We are very anxious to hear of the armed vessels being ready for sea. Every day, nay, every hour, is precious. It is now fourteen days since they were set on foot; sure they cannot be much longer in preparing. You will write if any thing material occurs.

I am, dear Sir, your very obedient humble servant,

JOSEPH REED.

To Stephen Moylan, Esq., Portsmouth.

P. S. The Committee seem to think the transportation by Cape Ann dangerous. Pray do not run any unnecessary risks. If there are no enemy's cruisers, there can be no danger. At all events, consult with the Provincial Committee, and if you do not follow their advice in sending it by Ipswich, give them your reasons for not doing so. This is a proper mark of respect, after what they have said.

Yours, &c.

Two hundred and forty dollars sent by the bearer of this.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF SHREWSBURY.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses, of the Town of Shrewsbury, in Common Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by the Mayor, William Owen, Esq., a Lieutenant in His Majesty's Navy.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Town of Shrewsbury, in Common Council assembled, actuated by the warmest zeal for your royal person, and the firmest attachment to our most excellent Constitution, humbly presume to approach the throne, and to offer up our tribute of gratitude for the many blessings we have enjoyed under your Majesty's mild and impartial Government.

Firmly persuaded that it has been the great object of your Majesty's reign to cherish and preserve true liberty in every part of your Dominions, it is with the deepest concern that we behold our fellow-subjects in America hurried into an unnatural rebellion against their Sovereign, not only rejecting every reasonable overture of accommodation, but imperiously dictating to the Parent State, which, at the expense of its blood and treasure, hath raised, nourished, and protected them.

With equal grief, but not without indignation, we look upon a discontented faction at home, promoting and encouraging these unhappy disturbances. In this situation, we rely upon the wisdom of your Majesty and the Great Council of the Nation, under the direction of Divine Providence, to adopt such measures as shall be most consistent with the dignity of the Crown, the honour of Parliament, and the safety and welfare of the whole British Empire. And we think it an indispensable duty we owe to your Majesty, to the State, to ourselves, and to posterity, to express these our sentiments of loyalty and affection, and to make a tender of our most faithful services to support, by every means in our power, the due authority of the Legislature, and to enforce that good order and obedience to the laws so essential to Government, and so conducive to the welfare and happiness of the people.

Given under the common seal, in the Guildhall, at Shrewsbury, this sixth day of October, 1775.

WILLIAM OWEN, Mayor.
JOHN ASHBY, Town Clerk.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Friday, October 6, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: John Broome, Chairman pro tem.

Mr. Desbrosses,	Mr. Pell,	Mr. Sands,
Mr. Totten,	Mr. Lasher,	G. W. Ludlow,
Gabriel H. Ludlow,	Mr. Brinckerhoff,	John Berrian,
Robert Ray,	Mr. Abeel,	F. Bassett,
Mr. Hyer,	J. Broome,	Mr. Bull,
Mr. Clopper,	Mr. Pintard,	L. Burling,
Mr. Brower,	Mr. Templeton,	Mr. Dennis,
Abraham P. Lott,	J. B. Moore,	Mr. Johnson,
Cornelius P. Low,	Mr. Roosevelt,	Mr. Goelet,
Mr. Imlay,	Mr. Hoffman,	Mr. Kettletas,
Mr. Morton,	Mr. Mulligan,	Mr. Norwood,
Mr. Bleeker,	Mr. Ramsay,	Mr. Wickham,
G. Duyckinck,	Mr. Breasted,	Mr. Woodward,
Mr. Dunscomb,	Mr. De Peyster,

Petition of Samuel Ward and thirty-nine others, received and read, praying the removal of John Taylor and James Light from their respective offices.

Ordered, That the same be laid over until the next meeting; and that the parties be both summoned to attend.

The following gentlemen were nominated as Field-Officers, viz:

Colonels: Henry Remsen, David Clarkson, William Walton.

Lieut. Colonels: Jos. Bull, James Beekman, J. Broome.

Adjutants: Stephen Rapalje, Peter P. Van Zandt, John White.

Majors: Abraham Walton, Anthony Lispernard, Anthony L. Bleeker.

Second Majors: Thomas W. Moore, Garret Abeel, Morgan Lewis.

Quartermasters: Abraham Brinckerhoff, Nicholas Quakenbos, Andrew Breasted.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 9, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed packet we this hour received from Major-General Schuyler. We have also enclosed a copy of the General's letter to this Congress. In consequence thereof, we have ordered up, under the care of Mr. Watkins, one of our members from Charlotte County, fourteen hundred weight of powder, in a convenient boat, rowed with oars. This quantity, except two hundred weight, belongs to the different Counties of the Colony, and was ordered to be delivered some weeks ago; but finding it yet in the magazines, we have, in this necessity, taken it. It is the whole that can be obtained in the Colony. We have wrote to the Committee of Albany for their aid in forwarding this necessary article with all despatch. We have communicated this intelligence to Governour Trumbull.

From the importance of General Schuyler's requisition, and the situation of the Army to the northward, you will judge of the necessity of completing the General's request.

Pray devise some ways and means to replace our powder with all expedition, as we may be distressed, and should not remain in this defenceless state, if it can be avoided.

Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant.

By order:

NATHL. WOODHULL, President pro tem.

To the Hon. the Continental Congress.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Robert Wallace, in the Brig Mary, sailed from Baltimore, in Maryland, on the 14th of September last; cleared out the 9th, and was loaded before the 10th, and passed the Capes on the 23d. She is bound for Falmouth for orders, and put in here by distress, and wants repairs. Her cargo consists of wheat, flour, and sixty casks of flaxseed. She was brought to by the Asia ship-of-war, in our harbour, who has pressed six of her men, but has promised to return them, or supply her with others in their stead.

The Captain of this brig has applied to us for leave to come into this harbour, to unload and refit; and when she is repaired, that she may be allowed to prosecute her intended voyage. From principles of humanity, we consented to his coming up to unload and repair, but shall give no further orders until we are favoured with your sentiments on the subject, as it may possibly be construed a breach of the regulations of the last Congress, relative to exportation.

We are, respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order:

NATHL. WOODHULL, President pro tem.

To the Hon. the Continental Congress.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp near St. John's, October 6, 1775.

SIR: The command of the Troops employed on this service having devolved on me, by the indisposition of General Schuyler, I have the honour to acquaint you, that at the request, and by the recommendation of Col. Waterbury, I have ventured to make the enclosed appointments in the Fifth Regiment of Connecticut Troops, till the pleasure of your Legislature be known.

I am, Sir, with respect, your most obedient servant,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY,
Brigadier-General Continental Army.

SAMUEL MOTT TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp before St. John's, October 6, 1775.

SIR: Ever since the 17th of last month we have laid siege to this place; it is a very difficult place to come at, as it is almost surrounded with sunken swamps and marshy ground; many small occurrences have happened during the siege, which I cannot recapitulate. The enemy, it is thought, have fired six hundred bomb-shells, besides numbers of cannon-shot, and showers of grape-shot; but we have lost but about a dozen men by them all. They played very severely on us when we were erecting our batteries. I was for three days successively where the shot and shells came, and the grape-shot rattled around me like hail; but a good God has preserved me. I had several times the dirt spattered all over me by the shells and shot, but none have hitherto hit me. The extreme rainy season, and our very wet and muddy camp, make it much unhealthy. Some days ago I was ordered to go round and reconnoitre on the northwest part of the fort, where we are going to erect a gun battery, in order to make a breach and storm the place, if it can be conquered no other way, (which I look upon the attempt dangerous, and the event dubious.) In going to reconnoitre I crawled up within musket-shot of the enemy's batteries, and observed their movements; in doing of which I was obliged more than once to be knee-deep in water; and it being rainy, I was wet from head to foot, from early in the morning till ten o'clock at night, by which I got a great cold, and have not been well since. I have been laid up for several days from business, only that I keep about, but find it too hard for my constitution.

Colonel Allen has been very serviceable in bringing in the Canadians and Indians; but being encouraged by some others, he has, rather contrary to his own judgment, crossed the river, about five miles below Montreal, with only about thirty New-England men and seventy Canadian friends, one hundred in the whole; and intended to augment his number of Canadians, and, if possible, get possession of Montreal; but he was the next morning met by St. Luke La Corne, with about four hundred Regulars and French Tories. They overpowered Allen, and he is either killed or taken, with about twenty of his men, (which was a severe stroke to us;) he, however, made some havock; he stood his ground firing till they surrounded him, although his men forsook him. The Town-Major of Montreal, with some other of the most potent Tories, were killed in the engagement.

On the 3d instant there was a severe engagement between the French Whigs on one side, and the French Tories and Regulars on the other side, at Chambly, about thirteen miles from this place. The Tory party had the advantage, as they fired about fifty cannon-shot on our Whigs, when they had only small arms to defend with. They lost several men on each side. The Whigs maintained their ground. In short, it is a melancholy prospect to see that all Canada is in one continued scene of war and bloodshed. If we don't carry our point, we have brought Canada into the most deplorable situation possible to conceive, as those people who have taken arms in our favour, with their wives and children, will be left to cruelty without mercy, and any of our Army will hardly escape with safety. It is amazing to me that the Colonies should have so little sense of the importance of this expedition, as not to give us a good large Army, well furnished, in due season, which indeed would have nearly settled the controversy; but we have never yet been two thousand strong, exclusive of our friends of Canada, although we assume to ourselves all the airs of a potent Army.

On the 4th instant the enemy hauled off an armed vessel to the east side, when, with her and a large schooner, and the cannon of the fort, they began a heavy cannonading and bombarding on our camp and battery, but principally aimed at a party of about two hundred or two hundred and fifty of our Canadian friends, who are intrenching themselves on the east side; on which our gondolas and batteries returned the fire, and the Canadians poured in a fire of musketry on the enemy, and a party from our camp, commanded by Colonel Bedel, likewise came up and fired upon them, which made the enemy retire to their den. The firing of cannon and musketry was warm for about half an hour. Our Canadian friends maintained their ground, and killed some of the enemy, with the loss of only one man, slightly wounded with a grape-shot.

I have been present with the General at a Congress and treaty with the Indians, where the heads of all the seven Nations of Canada were present; and matters were conducted with great solemnity, and to the mutual satisfaction of all.

Yesterday, St. Luke La Corne, (that arch devil incarnate,) who has butchered hundreds, men, women, and children, of our Colonies, in the late war, in the most inhuman manner; who has ever been a head and leader of the Canadians, and all the Indians, now finding, that notwithstanding all his wiles and falsehoods, the Indians, and more than half the Canadians, are become friendly to us, he has now sent a message to us, desiring a conference with us. The General has agreed to a conference, to be held at La Prairie to-morrow; Major Brown and the Aid-de-Camp on our side, and that wretch, St. Luke, with the principal leaders of the Tory faction of Montreal, on the other side. It is a very delicate embassy, and the consequences will better manifest the event than it can be guessed. The Indians of all the tribes, and the Canadians who join us, have all learned English enough to say Liberty and Bostonian, and all call themselves Yankees. The Indians boast much of it, and will smite on their breasts, saying, "me Yankee."

It is very grievous to me that General Schuyler is not here; I had a very good understanding with him, and a good agreement in all the modes of prosecuting the expedition; but to my sorrow and the embarrassment of the service, there is not that good understanding as I could wish now. General Montgomery's chief confidant is one Col. Campbell, a Scotchman, who has been an officer in the Regulars, and is now Deputy Quartermaster-General, and is very profane. I should be very sorry to inform your Honour, that there is scarcely a word heard from headquarters, without some oaths and curses on every occasion; but I value myself on the righteousness of the cause, and hope in God for success. I have no great opinion of Montgomery's generalship, although I believe him to be a man of courage; that is but a small (though essential) qualification of a General.

For all the pretensions of New-York, there has not been one head Colonel of a Regiment seen in the Army this year; and out of their three thousand five hundred men, we have never had more than six hundred down here until within these four days, there have come down between two and three hundred more. I recollect nothing more material. The firing goes on now pretty briskly. The enemy are very strongly fortified. The event of each day can only be told or even guessed at the close of it.

I am, Sir, with all deference and respect, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

SAMUEL MOTT.

To the Hon. Governour Trumbull.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 14, 1775.]

Providence, October 6, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 30th ultimo came to hand last evening. The forming an Army to be kept in constant service, is a measure so absolutely necessary, that without it we are an undone people. The season is now so far advanced, that it appears to me impracticable to raise one any other way than out of the Troops posted round Boston. I shall punctually attend upon this important service, at Cambridge, at the time appointed; and you may be assured of my doing every thing in my power to bring it to a happy issue.

I have the honour to be, with great esteem and respect, Sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

P. S. Some transports from Boston have lately arrived at Newport, where they obtained a small quantity of stock of two persons who have always been deemed inimical to the Country. Such measures have been taken as effectually to prevent their obtaining any more in the Colony.

PROVIDENCE (RHODE-ISLAND) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Inspection of the several Towns in the County of Providence, at Providence, on Friday, the 6th of October, 1775:

Whereas there has been great suspicion among the inhabitants in this County, as well as in the Towns of the Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, that our cruel and unnatural enemies, from time to time, receive supplies of butter, cheese, and other provisions, by reason of the large quantities carried to the Town of Newport, &c., under pretence of supplying that place, Nantucket, &c.: And whereas, whilst it is our duty to have our friends, wherever they may be, reasonably supplied, it is equally our duty to prevent our enemies from receiving succours of any kind. It is therefore the opinion of this Committee, that no Butter, Cheese, or any other articles of Provisions, be hereafter transported, either by land or water, to Rhode-Island, except under the following regulations, viz:

Those persons who may have the beforementioned articles to dispose of, shall, before they proceed to market, procure a certificate or certificates from the Committees of the respective places where such articles are laden, of the quantities of each article they may carry, and that they are persons friendly to the cause of American freedom, which shall serve as a pass through the respective Towns to the market: and provided that the said Provisions are destined for Rhode-Island, that they carry the same, together with the certificate, to John Collins, Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Inspection in the Town of Newport, or to some person by him to be appointed; whereupon, they may dispose of their Butter or other articles, to such persons as the said John Collins, or his substitute, may recommend to be friends to their Country, and to none other. And upon their return from the market they shall deliver certificates, signed by the said John Collins, Esq., or his substitute, as aforesaid, of the quantity disposed of, and to whom, unto such persons from whom they received their certificates; and the same shall discharge them from all cause of suspicion with their Town and countrymen. And all persons travelling with Butter, Cheese, &c., in any considerable quantities, without such certificate and certificates, shall be liable to be detained, and their goods, &c., stopped, until, at their expense, such certificates are procured, or until the order of the Committee of Inspection of such District where the same may be stopped, be taken thereupon.

And whereas the honourable General Assembly of the Massachusetts-Bay have taken particular order with respect to the transportation of Provisions to Nantucket; and it is altogether unnecessary, and may be very prejudicial, to attempt to supply that island from any part of this Colony, by water; therefore, it is

Resolved, That no Provisions of any kind be suffered to pass through any sea-port Town of this Colony, under pretence of sending them to Nantucket; but all such Provisions shall be stopped, until the matter may be inquired into by the Committee of Inspection of the District where they may be stopped, and such order taken thereon as they shall see fit.

Resolved, That all persons who shall endeavour to elude these Resolutions, or in anywise counteract them, shall, upon conviction, have their names published in the Newspapers, in order that they may be avoided, as enemies to their Country.

Voted, That the above and foregoing Resolutions be immediately printed in the Providence Gazette.

Voted, That Captain Solomon Owen, Messrs. John Brown, Joseph Russell, Job Manchester, and Noah Mathewson, be a Committee to receive any complaints that may be exhibited to them, and lay the same before this Committee at their next meeting, which stands adjourned to the house of the Widow Waterman, in Smithfield, on the second Tuesday in November next, at ten o'clock, A. M.

Whereas there have been many complaints of such as are venders of Goods and Merchandise in this County, for selling them at higher prices than settled by the Association Agreement of the Continental Congress, under pretence of buying them at a higher rate, which we deem a breach and violation of said Association: We do hereby forewarn all persons from selling any Goods at a higher price than they were usually sold at before said Association took place, on any pretence whatever, as they will thereby incur the just censure of this Committee; and their names will be published to the world accordingly.

CALEB HARRIS,
Clerk of the County Committee.

PROVIDENCE (RHODE-ISLAND) COMMITTEE OF INSPECTION.

At a meeting of the Committee of Inspection, on Thursday, October 5, 1775:

Whereas we have reason to suspect, by frequent complaints from the country, that some persons in this Town do still continue the detestable practice of selling India Tea, the Committee do earnestly request of all persons who are possessed of that article, that they would deliver the same into their hands, to be by them stored, until the United Colonies do allow of its being sold. And all persons having India Tea in their possession, and do not deliver it up agreeable to this request of the Committee, will be deemed enemies to their Country, and as such be treated.

By order of the Committee:

DAVID LAWRENCE, Clerk.

Whereas complaint has been made to the Committee of Inspection, against me and my family, for selling India Tea, contrary to the Association of the Continental Congress; which conduct is very disagreeable to the publick: I do therefore solemnly engage, that forbearing to give any further offence to the friends of the American cause, I will forthwith deliver up to the Committee of Inspection all the India Tea I or my family now have in possession; and that, for the future, I will not, directly or indirectly, violate any part of the Association aforesaid; and as I wish to live in unity with my neighbours, I earnestly ask the forgiveness of the community.

NATHAN ANGELL.

REHOBOTH (MASSACHUSETTS) COMMITTEE.

Rehoboth, October 5, 1775.

The Committee of Inspection for the Town of Rehoboth being informed that Provisions have been carried through said Town, to Newport, and to other Towns at the southward, whereby the Ministerial Army has been supplied, the Committee met on the 2d instant, and resolved that no Provisions of any kind shall pass through said Town to Newport, or any Town southward of Rehoboth, without a certificate from the Chairman of the Committee of Inspection for the Town where the Provisions are conveying, by which it shall appear that the said Provisions are for the use of the inhabitants, and not for supplying the enemies of America; they therefore made choice of Capt. Daniel Hunt, Mr. Nathan Monro, Mr. P. Degget, and William Cole, to inspect and stop all such Provisions.

By order of the Committee:

JOSEPH BRIDGHAM, Clerk.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR-GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp at Cambridge, October 6, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I wrote you yesterday, of which the enclosed is a copy, since which I have been informed that your illness has obliged you to quit the Army; and General Wooster, as the oldest Brigadier, will take rank and command of Mr. Montgomery. General Wooster, I am informed, is not of such activity as to press through difficulties with which that service is environed. I am, therefore, much alarmed for Arnold, whose expedition is built upon yours, and who will infallibly perish, if the invasion and entry into Canada are abandoned by your successor. I hope by this time the penetration into Canada by your Army is effected; but if it is not, and there are any intentions to lay it aside, I beg it may be done in such a manner that Arnold may be saved, by giving him notice; and, in the mean time, your Army to keep up such appearances as may fix Carleton, and prevent the force of Canada being turned wholly upon Arnold. He expected to be at Quebeck in twenty days from the 26th of September; so that, I hope, you will have no difficulty in regulating your motions with respect to him.

Should this find you at Albany, and General Wooster about taking the command, I entreat you to impress him strongly with the importance and necessity of proceeding, or so to conduct that Arnold may have time to retreat. Nothing new has occurred since yesterday, deserving your notice. Our next accounts of your health, I hope, will be more favourable. Ten thousand good wishes attend you from this quarter; none more sincere and fervent than those of, dear Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

ADDRESSES TO GENERAL GAGE.

Address of the Gentlemen and principal Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, to his Excellency Governour Gage.

May it please your Excellency:

The gentlemen and principal inhabitants of Boston beg leave dutifully to address your Excellency on your departure for Great Britain.

We can very sincerely assure you, Sir, that we have ever considered your appointment to the chief command of this Province as a distinguishing mark of His Majesty's paternal disposition towards us; and that the full effect of so wise and benevolent a designation we most earnestly hoped in those undisturbed operations of law and settled Government, which are so essential to real liberty.

Your attention to the true interest of this unhappy Town was, in our opinion, very early manifested, and your compassionate desire that some steps might be taken that should put it in your power to rescue us from impending ruin in our trade and navigation, we shall with gratitude for ever remember.

We cannot forbear to express our sentiments, that could a restoration to quiet and good order have been effected in this Province, by the influence of personal character, a gentleman of your Excellency's established reputation for candour and justice, for moderation, and an obliging disposition, invested, at the same time, with the supreme military authority, could not have failed to have procured it.

Unhappily for this Country, the general sentiments were too strong, and too far heightened, for the efficacy of your humane exertions. It must, however, be evident, we think, to all the world, that to allay the ferment in this Province, without the effusion of human blood, has been your Excellency's first object; and the pursuit will be your fame.

We have imagined, Sir, with great pleasure, your truly laudable intention and most noble ambition, of being viewed as the happy instrument in the appeasing all animosities, and in the reviving that mutual affection, as well as sense of united interest, which was once the strength and glory of Great Britain and her Colonies.

We need not wish your Excellency a higher enjoyment than what must arise from your own reflections on your constant sincere endeavours for the safety and happiness of the people under your Government, and from that countenance of approbation which we anticipate for you in the King.

John Erving,	John Taylor,	Edw. Hutchinson,
William Brattle,	Lewis Deblois,	Theophilus Lillie,
Isaac Winslow,	Nathaniel Taylor,	John Lovel,
Thos. Hutchinson,	Daniel Hubbard,	Miles Whitworth,
John Troutbeck,	James Murray,	Henry Barnes,
Byfield Lyde,	Archibald McNeal,	Hugh Tarbet,
Silvester Gardner,	Samuel Fitch,	Daniel McMasters,
Stephen Greenleaf,	Joseph Scott,	M. B. Goldthwait,
Richard Clarke,	Francis Green,	Nathaniel Perkins,
William Bowes,	John Atkinson,	John Hunt, 3d,
William Walter,	Peter Johannott,	Lewis Gray,
Benj. Faneuil, Jr.,	Benjamin Davis,	John Powell,
John Thumins,	Joseph Turill,	James Lloyd,
James Perkins,	Nathaniel Cary,	Nathaniel Brinley,
Thomas Amory,	John Simpson,	James Selkrig,
Nathaniel Coffin,	S. H. Sparhawk,	William McAlpine,
Philip Dumaresque,	Martin Gay,	John Jeffries, Jr.,
George Brindley,	John Taylor,	William Cazneau,
John Winslow, Jr.,	Ebenezer Bridgham,	A. Cunningham,
Ralph Inman,	Samuel Hughes,	John Greenartt,
Alexander Brymer,	John Inman,	William Dickson,
Henry Lloyd,	William Codner,	David Black,
Edward Winslow,	William Coffin, Jr.,	John Barron,
Joshua Loring, Jr.,	William Perry,	William Hunter,
Robert Hallowell,	Jonathan Snelling,	John Semple,
Wm. Lee Perkins,	Adino Paddock,	Robert Semple,
Benj. M. Holmes,	John Gore,	Henry Laughton,
Robert Jarvis,	Benjamin Gridley,	John Jay,
George Leonard,	Andrew Cazneau,	Gregory Townsend,
William Jackson,	Isaac Winslow, Jr.,	Archibald Bowthan,
David Phips,	Gilbert Deblois,	James Anderson,
Thomas Brinley,	Henry Liddel,	Jonathan Simpson,
Richard Green,	Thomas Courtney,

Boston, October 6, 1775.

His Excellency's Answer.

To the Gentlemen and Principal Inhabitants of the Town of BOSTON.

GENTLEMEN: I sincerely lament the miseries brought upon this once happy Country, through the deep designs and dark contrivances of ambitious men, to raise themselves from obscurity to power and emoluments; nor can I reflect without pain upon the infatuation of the multitude who enjoyed perfect liberty, who felt no oppression; but, deceived and betrayed, have flown to arms to avert evils that only existed in imagination; and in lieu of liberty, have madly erected a tyranny upon the ruins of the most free, happy, and lenient Government.

I thank you, gentlemen, for your address, and depart the Province in the firm hope that the people will recover from their delusion, and discover, before it is too late, that the Government they want to subvert is the surest guardian of their lives, property, and freedom.

THOMAS GAGE.

The Address of His Majesty's Council.

To his Excellency General GAGE, Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's Forces in AMERICA, Captain General and Governour in and over His Majesty's Province of the MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, &c., &c.

May it please your Excellency:

We, His Majesty's Council of the Massachusetts-Bay, having been honoured with your Excellency's message, informing us of His Majesty's orders, "that you should repair to England, to lay before him the state of affairs in this Colony," beg leave to assure your Excellency, that from a sense of the many virtues which distinguish and adorn your character, we feel the most sincere regret at the necessary occasions which call you from us.

The critical situation of affairs in America, during your administration in the Province, has afforded an opportunity for the severest trial of those virtues; and we should betray a great degree of insensibility, or be wanting in common justice to your character, were we to suffer them to pass unnoticed. We reflect with gratitude upon that care and attention, by which we have been secured from many of the calamities and miseries with which we have been threatened.

Your concern for the evils we have unavoidably suffered has exceedingly endeared your Excellency to us; and we shall ever entertain a profound respect for the prudence, benevolence, and candour, which have been so conspicuous in your civil department, as well as the great steadiness, vigilance, and humanity, which have marked your military character.

We have seen with pleasure the many efforts you have made to avert this unhappy rebellion. We lament that the success has not been equal to your endeavours. But the undisturbed constancy and firmness with which you have pursued this principle, opposed to every abuse which wickedness, delusion, or enthusiasm could devise, has been as much the object of admiration to the loyal, as the subject of disappointment to the disaffected people of this Province.

The difficulties you have had to encounter, during your administration, are known but to a few. Your patience and secrecy have kept them from the public eye. To lay them open to the world, would be a subject offensive to your delicacy, as well as too large to come within the compass of our address.

We flatter ourselves, that our loyalty to the best of Kings will recommend us to the care and protection of your Excellency's successors in command; whose characters, in their important stations, promise every encouragement we can wish. And we hope your Excellency will be pleased to recommend us to our gracious Sovereign; to assure him we are unalienably attached to his sacred person and Government; that hoping for his approbation, and relying on the benignity of his royal mind, we support ourselves with all possible patience, under the difficulties we are obliged to encounter.

We wish your Excellency a safe arrival at the Court of Great Britain, where we doubt not you will meet the gracious approbation of our royal master.

His Excellency's Answer.

Gentlemen of the Council:

While I thank you for your kind address on my departure from the Province, you will permit me to testify the sense I have of your unshaken loyalty to the King and zeal for his Government.

You have stood forth in support of both, at a time when an unnatural and unprovoked rebellion has been wantonly raised to subvert our glorious Constitution, and have despised the menaces of open and concealed attempts upon your lives: nor has the seizure of your properties by the lawless hands of Rebels deterred you from a steadfast pursuit of that duty which every Briton owes to his King and Country.

Such a conduct cannot fail to recommend you highly to our most gracious Sovereign; and you may be assured that it will afford me the greatest pleasure to acquaint His Majesty of your unalterable attachment to his person and Government.

THOMAS GAGE.

Boston, October 6, 1775.

Address of the Gentlemen who were driven from their Habitations in the Country to the Town of Boston.

To his Excellency THOMAS GAGE, Esq., Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief in and over His Majesty's Province of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, in NEW-ENGLAND, &c.

May it please your Excellency:

When we reflect on the surprising effects of that enthusiasm and infatuation which are so generally prevalent in this Country, and the variety of dangers to which the loyal and obedient have been exposed, we feel the most grateful sensations towards your Excellency, and are anxious to acknowledge our obligations. To your wisdom and prudence we consider ourselves indebted for protection from the lawless fury and unbridled violence of our countrymen; and had not events taken place beyond what human wisdom could foresee, and contrary to any calculations, upon rational principles, we might in all probability have been further indebted to your Excellency for a reconciliation of the unhappy differences that subsist, and a restoration to harmony, happiness, and peace.

It is with regret we think of your Excellency's departure from this Province, but are relieved in some degree by a consideration of the very important services which you will render this Country, by a just representation of its present state at the Court of Great Britain, by the confidence we repose in the abilities of your successors to the civil and military commands, the hopes of your speedy return, and the anticipation of an establishment of the rightful supremacy of Parliament over this part of His Majesty's Dominions.

Justly meriting and possessed of the esteem and applause of the virtuous and good, happy in the pleasing reflections of an approving conscience, and blessed with the gracious plaudit of the best of Kings, your opportunities will be equal to the inclination you have ever discovered to restore and settle, on the most lasting basis, that union of the interests of Great Britain and the Colonies, so indispensably necessary to the happiness of both.

We sincerely lament that the number of those who have dared to stem the torrent of rebellion and sedition in this Province is so small; but we trust that the cordial thanks even of a few (who have fled from oppression, who have sacrificed their properties, and every domestick enjoyment, and are now ready to risk their lives, to manifest their loyalty to the best of Sovereigns) will not be unacceptable to your Excellency.

Be pleased, Sir, to accept the ardent wishes of these few faithful and grateful subjects, that your voyage may be prosperous and agreeable, and that your unwearied endeavours for the publick service may be crowned with success.

Richard Saltonstall,	Abijah White,	Daniel Thomas,
John Bowen,	Sylvanus White,	Levi Ford,
Daniel Oliver,	Benj. Stockbridge,	Joseph Ashley,
Thomas Danforth,	William Tyng,	Benjamin Grinnel,
Edw. Winslow, Jr.,	Peter Oliver, 3d,	Peter Etter,
John Sargent,	Caleb Wheaton,	Peter Etter, Jr.,
Ward Chipman,	Ebenezer Spooner,	Franklin Etter,
David Phips,	John Emerson,	Daniel Etter,
Thomas Josselyn,	William Cowper,	Joseph House,
Charles Curtis,	John Tilden,	Samuel Gilbert,
Elkanah Cushman,	Stephen Tilden,	John Walker,
Thos. Foster, 3d,	Joseph Tilden,	Nath'l Dickenson,
James Putnam,	Joseph Hall,	Jonathan Stearns,
John Ruggles,	James Budd,	Jonathan Sowl,
James Craige,	Adam Hall,	Edw. G. Lytwyche,
Samuel Paine,	Joseph Phillips,	Elisha Jones,
Elisha Ford,	Samuel Goldsburly,	Henry Barnes,
Daniel Dunbar,	William Campbell,	Nathaniel Phillips,
Lemuel Goddard,	Stephen Jones,	F. B. Winthrop,
Seth Williams, Jr.,	John Chandler,	Thomas Achinloss,
Zebodee Terry,	Nathaniel Chandler,	Jonathan Dix,
William Simmons,	William Chandler,	Benjamin Hart,
Luke Hall,	Ebenezer Cutler,	John Cochran,
Nathaniel Thomas,	James Putnam, Jr.,	Peter Oliver, Jr.,
Ebenezer Whipple,	Pelham Winslow,	Archibald Achinloss.
Adam Walker,

Boston, October 7, 1775.

His Excellency's Answer.

To the Gentlemen that were drove from their Habitations in the Country, to the Town of Boston.

GENTLEMEN: Your kind address at this time gives me much pleasure, as it affords me an opportunity, before my departure from the Province, to acknowledge the steady attachment you have shown to the true interests of your King and Country in the worst of times; and the sacrifices you have made in support of both are great.

It will be my duty to represent to our gracious Sovereign the distinguishing proofs you have given of your loyalty and patriotism; and you may be assured that, during my absence, my successors in the civil and military command will afford you every favour and protection.

THOMAS GAGE.

MAJOR ISRAEL MOREY TO THE NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Orford, October 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: A few days since I received a letter from Lieutenant Palmer, dated 23d of September, in Colonel Bedel's Company, informing me that they were in camp, about one and a half miles below St. John's; Colonel Bedel is there, with about one thousand men. I would inform you something of the engagement that they had in landing. Major Brown attempted to land, and was drove off some time since, as most likely you have heard, with the loss of eight men; but since, they landed higher up, without much loss. Major Brown, with a party of forty men, went partly round St. John's, and took possession of the wagon road, and took eight wagon loads of stores, and conveyed them so that they were well secured from the enemy, and hove up a small intrenchment, with his little number of men. But the enemy at St. John's, hearing of the affair, sent out a party of two hundred and fifty men, with two field-pieces, and obliged Brown, &c., to retreat, with one of his Captains mortally wounded, and some other wounded men. The General, hearing the fire, sent off Colonel Bedel, with four hundred men, to re-enforce Major Brown; but Colonel Bedel met Brown, as Brown had retreated out. Colonel Bedel came right upon the enemy, where Brown had intrenched, and obliged them to make the best of their way back to St. John's, so that Colonel Bedel got possession of the intrenchment, and still keeps it; and had Colonel Bedel fully took the advice of the Indian that led him, it is thought he would have cut off the whole party, with their cannon, &c.; but he was, as I am informed, afraid they would not be true to their trust, as no doubt we should, if we had been in his place. But I can assure you, by all that I can learn by the post, &c., that Colonel Bedel behaved exceeding well in that affair, &c., and that he does honour to the Colony of New-Hampshire, &c. They have surrounded St. John's on every side, and cut off all communication from Chaudiere, &c., that in the whole they have taken twenty-two wagon loads of stores, provisions, ammunition, and the sails for their shipping that they were building, and that our men had intrenched within about half a mile of St. John's, and began to draw the cannon up before the post came away; and it is most likely the affair is settled before this time.

Lieutenant Palmer writes me that the French were exceedingly kind and true, and that five hundred were then under arms with them, and that five thousand more every hour expected to join them, from Chaudiere, with Colonel Allen, &c., who was gone into Chaudiere, with three hundred men, and that the French are as much engaged as our people in the camp, and that the Indian Captain, Louis, &c., are there with Colonel Bedel, and that they day by day join them, and that they send in their belts to Colonel Bedel, and receive presents from him, &c., &c. Blessed news this for our Country, &c., and they (our Army) live well by the help of the French, &c. Captain Moses Harren is in St. John's, but whether confined as a prisoner or joined the enemy, we cannot yet learn.

From your humble servant,

ISRAEL MOREY.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety of New-Hampshire.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH AND TOWN OF CARMARTHEN.

Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Sheriffs, Justices of the Peace, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Borough and Town of Carmarthen, presented to His Majesty by John Adams, Esq., their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Sheriffs, Justices of the Peace, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Borough and Town of CARMARTHEN, whose names are hereunto subscribed.

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, impressed with a deep concern at the rebellious proceedings of our American fellow-subjects, beg leave to approach your sacred person with hearts filled with gratitude for the blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and equitable Government, and an utter abhorrence of measures tending to throw off a due dependance on our present happy Constitution. This we apprehend and dread is the real (though concealed) motive of the present disturbances fomented and carried on by them, in opposition to their Parent Country, and regardless of the many weighty obligations they owe to it. The melancholy consequences that may arise from their present illegal conduct, taken in every point of view, require us to express our wishes, that your Majesty's Councils may form such plans as, by a proper exertion, may reduce to a just submission those deluded people now daring to appear in arms, to the great annoyance of the publick peace, and in defiance of the laws of this realm. We hereby promise and assure your Majesty of every effort in our power, that may be conducive to that great end, at the hazard of our lives and fortunes; praying that the Almighty may bless and prosper your Councils, and enable you speedily to restore tranquillity to every part of your Dominions.

Carmarthen, October 7, 1775.

London, October 23, 1775.

The late Address from Coventry, framed for the purpose of fomenting civil war, having been precipitately hurried through, as well as surreptitiously introduced, several of the principal inhabitants and manufacturers of that place thought it necessary to call a meeting, where the true sense of the people might be discovered.* Publick notice was given by the following advertisement:

"The publick are hereby most respectfully informed, that a meeting is intended to be held on Tuesday evening next, six o'clock, at the King's Head, in order to consider of a dutiful, affectionate, and loyal address to His Majesty, upon the present alarming situation of affairs. As the business of this meeting will not be taken up on a partial, narrow, or contracted ground, but upon principles as generally extensive and important as its nature, therefore the attendance of every friend to His Majesty is most earnestly requested.

"Coventry, October 7, 1775."

In consequence of this notice, a meeting was held on the 10th, which proved a very large one, where an humble Address and Petition were agreed to. It was signed by the worthy Lords Archer and Craven, and about four hundred other respectable freemen. Friday it was presented to His Majesty by Lord Craven, and most graciously received. The Marquis of Rockingham and the Duke of Portland were at Court. The Petition is as follows:

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address and Petition of the principal Citizens, Inhabitants, Manufacturers, and Traders of the City of COVENTRY.

Most Gracious Sovereign:-

At a time when some parts of the Kingdom, and even a small number of our fellow-citizens, profess to hold principles so opposite to our own, when they are represented to your Majesty as the genuine and general sentiments of the people of England, and particularly of your loyal City of Coventry, (at all times distinguished for its zealous attachment to liberty and the illustrious House of Hanover,) we should be dead to every sense of feeling and honour, if we did not protest against such proceedings, and publickly avow our disapprobation of them.

* It is a little remarkable, that all the Addresses to the King, (of which there are many from the various dependants through the Kingdom,) to enforce the bloody measures against the Americans, are published in the Gazette, as news from St. James's; but as for Petitions in favour of America, we see nothing of them from St. James's. Such is the partiality of the bloody-minded British Court.—Md. Gaz.

In the present alarming crisis, to prostitute our consciences to hold the language of servile flattery and adulation would disgrace the characters of English freemen: we are called upon by the love of our Country, and by every tie of duty, to speak of things as they are; to carry truth to the foot of the throne.

When we look back upon the system of Colony administration within these few years adopted, when we observe the manner of its execution, we cannot attribute the resistance of America to the arts and designs of a few factious men, either at home or abroad; when we see a whole people, almost from north to south of that vast Continent, (which we claim,) firmly united in one mind, and determined to oppose a system which they think ruinous to their liberty, we are naturally led to believe that they act from principle, and in consequence of self-conviction.

If we look forward to the issue of this great contest, we see the fate of the British Empire determined. Our armies and our fleets (for what can withstand their valour?) may be triumphant; America may be laid low; but what laurels shall we reap by such a conquest? Either we shall have to govern a people submitting to temporary necessity, a distant Province watchful of an opportunity to throw off a galling yoke, or we shall completely triumph over and cut up by the root that gallant spirit of a free people, descendants of Britons, which has cherished them in their infancy, and, through the midst of dangers, brought them to their present state of manhood; that spirit, under which trade has flourished, and riches flowed in upon them and us. This, Sire, together with the alarming decline of our manufactures, and the starving condition of the poor, affords us the most melancholy prospect, and to your Majesty we fly for redress.

With great humility we supplicate your Majesty, in pity to your distressed and divided people, to interpose your wonted clemency, to stop the effusion of blood, to recommend to your Parliament to consider, with all due attention, the petition from America lately offered to be presented to the throne, which we firmly believe proposes the foundation of a temple of Concord, sacred to the mutual interests of Great Britain and America; interests which seem to have been joined together by the hand of Providence, and which no friend to your Majesty and this Country can wish to put asunder.

Coventry, October 10, 1775.

FINCASTLE (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee meeting held for Fincastle, the 7th of October, 1775, present the following Members: Stephen Trigg, Chairman; William Preston, Thomas Madison, Arthur Campbell, William Campbell, William Russell, Walter Crockett, James McGavock, William Edmonston, Evan Shelby, and Daniel Smith.

The Committee being informed that Colonel William Christian hath accepted the appointment in the regular forces to be raised in this Colony, and of course hath vacated the several places he held in this County, it is therefore ordered, that the Chairman address him in the following terms:

"In justice to you, we declare that, as a Field-Officer in the Militia, our Representative in the honourable Convention, and Chairman of this Committee, you have justly obtained and deserved the esteem and confidence of the inhabitants of this County in general, and this Committee in particular; and, in each of these departments, you have, on all occasions, discovered the utmost impartiality and prudence; for which, together with the most exemplary zeal and attachment to the liberties of your Country, and your indefatigable industry in the service thereof, you merit and deserve our particular thanks. We therefore hope you will accept of this publick testimony of the grateful sense we entertain of your past services; and our warmest wishes that your future services may be attended with such success as will gain you the esteem of your Country in general, and this Colony in particular."

The above was ordered to be transmitted to the publick printer, to be published.

STEPHEN TRIGG, Chairman

NEW-HAMPSHIRE DELEGATES TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, October 7, 1775.

SIR: We wrote you a few days since fully, desiring the accounts of our supplies to be forwarded immediately, as also the number of inhabitants, as soon as may be. This serves chiefly to enclose a resolve of the Congress, which we were ordered to forward to the several Conventions immediately, that they might take such spirited measures as to them might seem meet.

By the last advice from London, the Ministry seem wickedly inclined to burn more Towns; therefore we would humbly suggest the propriety of securing our sea-ports, as thereby we should not only secure the capital, but prevent the sons of depredation from ravaging the Country, and thereby completing their diabolical designs.

By express just arrived from General Schuyler, we are likely soon to be in possession of St. John's and Canada, as the former is held besieged by our Troops, and the Canadians join us; the Indians are also friendly.

We are, with respect, your most obedient servants,

JOSIAH BARTLETT,
JOHN LANGDON.

Matthew Thornton, Esq.

HANOVER (ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Hanover Precinct, at the house of Arthur Parkson, on Monday, the 14th day of August, 1775, Alexander Tremble chosen Chairman; when it was resolved that the Committee do attend at the election of Officers in this Precinct, as follows:

Resolved, That John Wilkin and Samuel Parkly do attend Captain Newkirk's Company this day. And they attended accordingly, and Matthew Felta was elected Captain; Henry Smith, First Lieutenant; Johannes Newkirk, Jun., Second Lieutenant; William Crist, Ensign.

Resolved, That Alexander Tremble and James Milligan do attend Captain Goldsmith's Company this day. And they attended accordingly, and William Jackson was elected Captain; Arthur Parks, First Lieutenant; James McBride, Second Lieutenant; Andrew Neelly, Ensign.

Resolved, That William Jackson and James McBride do attend Captain Colden's Company on Friday, the 18th instant. And they attended accordingly, and Cadwallader C. Colden was elected Captain; James Milligan, First Lieutenant; John Hunter, Second Lieutenant; Matthew Hunter, Ensign.

Resolved, That Henry Smith and John Wilkins do attend Captain Crage's Company on Friday, the 18th instant. And they attended accordingly, and John J. Graham was elected Captain; Samuel Parkly, First Lieutenant; Joseph Crawford, Second Lieutenant; James McCurdy, Ensign.

Resolved, That Joseph Newkirk and Arthur Parks do attend Captain Galatian's Company on Friday, the 18th instant. And they attended accordingly, and John Galespie was elected Captain; Jason Wilkins, First Lieutenant; Robert Hunter, Jun., Second Lieutenant; and Samuel Galespie, Ensign.

The above is a true return of all the Officers that have been chosen in the five Companies in the Precinct of Hanover, in Ulster County, agreeable to the Resolves of the Provincial Congress.

By order of the Committee:

ALEXANDER TREMBLE.

Hanover, October 7, 1775.

NORTH-KINGSTON (RHODE-ISLAND) COMMITTEE.

The Committee of Inspection and Correspondence for the Town of North-Kingston, being convened in said Town on the 7th day of October, 1775, came into the following Resolves, viz:

Whereas Stephen Boyer, of said Town, being accused of carrying a quantity of Cheese to some of the declared enemies to America; and he, being present before this Committee, hath daringly endeavoured to justify himself in so doing, and saith that he further intends to send a quantity of Barley and Corn to George Rome, one of our said enemies:

Resolved, therefore, That the said Stephen Boyer is an enemy to American liberty, and ought to be hereafter treated as such; and it is recommended to the publick in general, and strictly required of every person in this Town, that they forthwith break off all dealings with him; and that a copy of this Resolve be inserted in the Providence Gazette and Newport Mercury.

A true copy:

GEORGE THOMAS, Clerk.

JOSEPH REED TO JAMES OTIS.

Cambridge, October 7, 1775.

SIR: The two Officers who accompany this were taken prisoners some time ago, on board a vessel retaken from the enemy. They have been some time in Cambridge, on account of the indisposition of one of them, for which reason it is suggested to the consideration of the honourable Board, whether it may not be best to order them to some considerable distance from the camp. You will please to lay this circumstance before the honourable Board.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
JOSEPH REED, Secretary.

PROVINCE OF THE MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

By His Excellency the Honourable THOMAS GAGE, Captain-General and Governour-in-Chief in and over His Majesty's Province of MASSACHUSETTS-BAY, and Vice-Admiral of the same, &c., General and Commander-in-Chief of all His Majesty's Forces in NORTH-AMERICA.

To JOSHUA LORING, Jun., Esq., Greeting:

Whereas it has been represented to me, that it is expedient and necessary that effects, both real and personal, may be sold and disposed of at publick auction or vendue, both for the full and final execution of judgments, awards, and decrees, that do or may arise in His Majesty's Courts, within and for the said Province, and also for the better accommodating and promoting the lawful commerce and trade of His Majesty's subjects inhabiting, trading to, or resident in said Province:

Now know ye, therefore, That for the securing and just execution of the aforementioned purposes, and for preventing all fraudulent and illegal practices therein, and other sufficient reasons me hereunto moving, and reposing especial trust and confidence in your loyalty, abilities, and integrity, do hereby constitute and appoint you, the said Joshua Loring, Jun., Esq., to be sole Vendue-Master and Auctioneer, in and for the Town of Boston, in the Province aforesaid; giving and granting unto you, the said Joshua Loring, all the customary fees, privileges, profits, and emoluments to the said office belonging or appertaining, hereby requiring and enjoining you, the said Joshua Loring, fully, faithfully, and impartially to execute the functions to the said office of Vendue-Master or Auctioneer in any wise appertaining, by yourself, your sufficient deputy or deputies, justly, faithfully, and without delay, exposing to publick auction all such messuages, lands, tenements, and hereditaments, goods and chattels, wares and merchandise, whatsoever, as shall be committed to your care for publick sale, and the proceeds (first deducting all just and necessary expenses, together with the customary fees upon such sale or sales) forthwith to receive and pay unto the legal proprietors thereof, respectively, together with an account of such sales; and for the further encouragement of you, the said Joshua Loring, to do, execute, and perform the said office, with diligence and care, and for the prevention of all unlawful practices in publick sales or auctions, I do hereby strictly forbid and prohibit any other person or persons whomsoever to exercise, do, or perform the said office of Vendue-Master or Auctioneer within the said Town of Boston, after the date hereof, other than such as are or may be appointed by you, the said Joshua Loring.

Given under my hand and seal, (the seal of the Province being lost,) this seventh day of October, 1775, in the fifteenth year of His Majesty's reign.

By his Excellency's command:

THOMAS GAGE.

SAMUEL KEMBLE.

THOMAS FLUCKER, Secretary.

Pursuant to the foregoing commission, I have opened an office in Queen Street, for the purposes therein mentioned, where constant attendance will be given and due care taken of all goods, wares, merchandise, and other things committed to my charge, upon the usual and customary commissions, according to the nature of the things sold, or trouble attending the sale.

JOSHUA LORING, Auctioneer.

RICHARD HENRY LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, October 8, 1775.

DEAR SIR: A ship, in seven weeks from London, brings us pretty perfect intelligence of the infernal designs of our Ministerial enemies, as you will see by the enclosures in Doctor Shippen's letter. I believe they are the most perfect that could be obtained, and so may be much relied on. God grant that our successes at Boston and in Canada may disappoint and thereby ruin these fatal foes to the liberty and happiness of the British Empire.

My love, if you please, to General Lee, Mifflin, and Griffin, and my other friends with you. May Heaven preserve you, and give your Army success in the most glorious cause that was ever contended for by human nature.

I am, dear Sir, your affectionate friend and obedient servant,

RICHARD HENRY LEE.

ELIZABETH CITY COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Elizabeth City County, and Town of Hampton, October 9, 1775, present: William Roscoe Wilson Curle, Henry King, Cory Selden, John Tabb, Jacob Wray, Worlich Westwood, John Cary, William Armistead, and Miles King.

Mr. Joseph Selden being summoned to appear before this Committee, to give an account of the business which had lately induced him to wait on Lord Dunmore several times, on board the Ship William, appeared, and informed this Committee that he was sent the first time by his father, to pay about twenty Pounds due his Lordship, from the Clerk of this County, since last October; and that on another time he went on board to pray his Lordship would discharge him from the custody of Captain Squire, who had seized him, in his passage to Norfolk, with others, when going on his own private business. Upon which information, this Committee being satisfied with the young gentleman, ordered him to be discharged.

ROBERT BRIGHT, Clerk.

CÆSAR RODNEY TO CAPTAIN THOMAS RODNEY.

Philadelphia, Monday, October 9, 1775.

SIR: On Friday, about eleven o'clock at night, Doctor Kearsley, of this City, was seized, by order of the Committee of Observation, for having wrote letters to England, injurious and destructive to us in the American contest, and wicked with respect to this City, and is now confined in jail, together with one Brooks, who came here with Governor Skene, Mr. Carter, an apothecary, who was in partnership with Mr. Spikeman, and one Mr. Snowden, all of whom were aiding the Doctor in his plan.* You must * October 6, 1775.—About six, was called to the Committee room, where were twenty-nine Members, some of whom, by information, had been down to Chester after some letters, which they were informed were going to England, in the possession of Christopher Carter, who had been partner with . . . Spikeman, in Market Street; which said person they found, and then recovered the letters by threats of detaining and bringing him up to Town. And after recovering said letters, in two parcels, (one of them directed to Thomas Corbyn, and the other to Mrs. Macauley), and taking his qualification to the whole of them, and of whom and by whom he received them, they then discharged him, and brought the letters which were now read; and as they appeared to be base and cruel invectives against the liberties of America, and calculated, by wicked men, to inflame the minds of the people in England against the Colonies in general, it was directed that three of the authors be immediately taken into custody; which was immediately put into practice by securing Doctor Kearsley, James Brooks, and Leonard Snowden, (Quaker,) a brewer in Pemberton Street, and they were confined, under a guard, in the State-House, until next morning. A seal was also put on the Doctor's desk, and a guard placed at his house; all this done by eleven o'clock.

N. B. James Brooks was taken up at the Doctor's, and Snowden at the Doctor's street door.

October 7.—Notices called the Committee to meet at ten. Accordingly I went and met them, there being about seventy Members. After some time, being met, report was made that there was reason to apprehend that there were a great number of inimical letters on board the Snow Patty, bound to London; upon which, a Sub-Committee was sent down, in a pilot boat, to examine and bring them all up that were suspected, and also all persons on board that were suspected. This being done, a resolve was brought in by three of the Committee of Safety, know Kearsley has been a considerable time since marked out as a thorough-paced tory; for which, together with his having insulted the people, he was (since I came to Town last) carted through the streets. But the offence for which he is now confined is thus circumstanced. On Wednesday last, a ship sailed out of this port for London, in which Mr. Carter was going passenger. A few days before she sailed, young Dewees, son of the Sheriff, went to pay Dr. Kearsley some money, and coming suddenly into his room, found him and Carter together, with a bundle of papers before them, which they hustled up in seeming confusion. This, with Kearsley's tory character, gave Dewees suspicion, and he accordingly informed a few of the Committee, who kept the matter secret, let the ship sail, and the passengers go down to Chester, by land, to go on board. On Thursday evening, which was the day the passengers went, a small party was sent down to Chester; they stayed there that night incog., and saw the passengers go on board next morning. They then immediately pushed on board, seized and examined Mr. Carter, who, in a little time, told them that there were several letters from Dr. Kearsley and Mr. Brooks, and one from Mr. Snowden; that he had the charge of their letters, and was concerned with them in the plan they had concerted, but that the letters were then in the custody of a woman, down in the cabin, and that she had them concealed in a pocket sewed to the inside of her shift-tail, where, in fact, they soon after found them, and came back to Town, (leaving Carter, as they had promised, upon his making a discovery of the whole matter, on oath, before Mr. Graham, at Chester), and then seized the authors. The letters were to Lord Dartmouth and other Ministers of State, but under cover to Mrs. Macauley. The substance and design was, pressing their sending to Philadelphia five thousand Regulars, on which condition they would engage five thousand more here to join them, provided the royal standard should be also sent in, and Kearsley appointed to bear it; for that great numbers of those who now wear cockades and uniform were hearty in the Ministerial cause; that the rest were a pack of cowards; for that he (Kearsley) had made above five thousand of them run by snapping a single pistol at them, &c. They had with them, for the use of the Ministry, one of J. F. . . 's plans of Delaware Bay and River, whereon they had described the place where the chevaux-de-frise were fixed. Besides these, and many more villanous contrivances, they were taking home the outlines for a print, to be struck off in London, showing Kearsley's late exhibition in the cart, going through the streets of Philadelphia with the mob, some of whom he undertakes particularly to describe, to wit: Bradford, &c., &c., many of whom were actually not there, and he every now and then, by snapping his pistol, made them run, &c. His abuse of the Congress, Committees, &c., in his letters, is intolerable—such as Rebels, &c. After the Committee of Safety had examined them and the contents of the letters, they sent a pilot boat down the river to overtake the ship, to bring up Carter, and to search the box of letters, and to bring all of them that they supposed to be from or to suspicious persons. This boat refrom the Congress, dated the 6th instant, ordering that all suspected persons that were found to act inimical to the rights and liberties of America, that fell under our discussing and notice, should, by us, be delivered over, for trial of their offences, to the Committee of Safety, they only being invested with that power, and not we; we having no right to hear or determine any case of that kind.

This produced a warm debate for some time, and at length, upon motion seconded, whether the present papers, relating to Kearsley, Brooks, Snowden, and Ordale, Minister of Burlington, in the Jerseys, should, by a Committee appointed, be carried to the Committee of Safety, for their sole judgment and determination, the same motion was carried by a majority of the whole, except one and myself. Past two, the Committee broke up.

October 8.—About two, was brought to Town Christopher Carter, with a number of letters from on board the Black Prince. He was put into prison, where the three beforementioned (Kearsley, Brooks, and Snowden) were sent by the Committee of Safety, last night, till further examination.

October 9.—Went, at ten o'clock, to the Committee at the Philosophical Hall. Staid till twelve; in which meeting fifteen Members were chosen to assist the Committee of Safety in the trials of Doctor Kearsley, Leonard Snowden, J. Brooks, and Christopher Carter, whose trials then came on before the Committee of Safety and those fifteen Members, at the Lodge Room, and continued till just dark before finished.

N. B. The four persons, beforementioned, were conveyed from prison, and back there again, by a guard of Associators, not less than fifty, with drums, fifes, &c., &c.

Oct. 24.—Near six, this morning, Dr. Kearsley and James Brooks, under a guard of eight of the Light-Horse, left this City for the different jails allotted them in this Province.—Marshall's Remembrancer.

turned Sunday afternoon, brought Carter and put him in jail, and also brought a number of letters belonging to and wrote by other persons. The Committee of Safety has been sitting on these affairs all this day, but I have been so closely confined to Congress to-day, that I do not yet know what they have done, or what others are accused.

Yours, &c.,

CÆSAR RODNEY.

Mr. Thomas Rodney.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, October 9, 1775.

SIR: The enclosed intelligence was designed to be forwarded on the day of its date, but the arrival of fresh advices from you prevented it. I now, by order of Congress, enclose you sundry resolutions entered into by them on the 14th of September last, respecting the appointment of Mr. Stringer as Director of the Hospital and Chief Physician, and several other orders respecting the hospital; and a direction to the Commissary to pay Doctor Stringer the amount of costs of medicines purchased by him for the use of the Army, and orders that the Commissary furnish such other medicines as you shall direct.

I am directed by the Congress to inform you, that if you judge it necessary, they approve of your appointing a suitable person for a Brigade-Major in your department.

Your several letters have been duly laid before Congress, and are now under the consideration of a Committee. As soon as they report, and the Congress have come to resolutions thereupon, the result shall be immediately transmitted to you. But they have directed me to forward to you by this express, under the escort of two of the Light-Horse of this City, what silver and gold can be collected in the time, lest you should be in want; and I have accordingly sent you six thousand three hundred and sixty-four Pounds, Philadelphia currency. A further sum will be forwarded you by the express that carries you the resolutions of Congress on the various parts of your letters; which will be despatched in a few days.

I have nothing further in charge from Congress to communicate. I hope your next will give us the pleasing account of the restoration of your health. That you may have the full enjoyment of that blessing, and that success may crown your expedition, is the wish of, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Major-General Schuyler.

P. S. You will please to acknowledge the receipt of the money. Enclosed is the invoice of the money.

ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Manor of Livingston, October 9, 1775.

SIR: I have received yours by Mr. Watkins, who was here this morning. As I was not sure there was any powder ready at my mill, it was not thought proper to send him back six miles at an uncertainty. I have also received your order to send two hundred pounds to the Committee at Albany; this, my powder-maker has promised should be ready to-morrow, when I shall have an opportunity to send it up by Captain Dow.

I am sorry to inform you that my mill does not turn off half so much as I expected; it is partly owing to my carpenter committing some faults in the formation, though I had sent him, at my expense, to see those in Pennsylvania. I am building a stove-room to dry the powder in, which I was not told was wanted till lately, and am promised it shall go better for the future. Out of the powder mixed with water, sent me from Albany, I have made one thousand and twenty pounds very good, the last part of which was sent up some days ago. When I get the last receipt I shall send it down to you. My powder-maker thinks it hard you should order him to send up two hundred weight to the Committee, at twenty Pounds, when he can retail as much as he can make, at six Shillings the pound, and sell by it the hundred pounds, at twenty-five Pounds. However, what you have ordered shall be sent, and the price left to the Congress.

I remain, Sir, your most humble servant,

ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON.

To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President of the Congress of New-York.

P. S. I have above nine hundred pounds of saltpetre, sent from Connecticut by one Mr. Jabez Hamlin. How must the powder, when made, be disposed of? I should also be glad to know upon what terms the Philadelphia powder-men work, and shall not ask any more than they have, whatever it be. I have also about four hundred pounds of saltpetre, sent me from Albany, belonging, I suppose, to the publick. This, when worked up, must be disposed according to the directions of the Congress, which I should be glad to have.

OFFICERS OF MINUTE-MEN, PAWLING'S PRECINCT, DUTCH-ESS COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

At a meeting of the Minute Company of Pawling's Precinct, on the 9th day of October instant, at the house of William Conroy, said Company made choice of the following gentlemen for their Officers, viz: Captain, Phineas Woodard; First Lieutenant, Comfort Shaw; Second Lieutenant, Mark Williams; Ensign, Gideon Ousterhout.

Under the inspection of

ANDREW MORHANS, }
BENJAMIN SHERMAN, } Committee-Men.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 25, 1775.]

Lebanon, October 9, 1775.

SIR: Your letter of the 30th of September last was delivered me the 4th instant. Our General Assembly meeting on the day appointed for the proposed conference, rendereth it inconsistent with my duty to attend the latter. Shall appoint a proper person or persons to represent this Colony at the conference with the Committee from your Congress.

It is unhappy that jealousies should be excited, or disputes of any sort be litigated between any of the Colonies, to disunite them at a time our liberty, our property, and our all, is at stake. If our enemies prevail, which can happen only by our disunion, our jealousies will then appear altogether groundless, and all our disputed claims of no value to either side.

Mr. Kirkland, who will deliver this, appears to me a virtuous, religious, and very useful gentleman, deserving the countenance and assistance of the honourable Congress of the United Colonies, to enable him to secure the friendship of the Indians, and prevent their taking up the hatchet against us. The New-England and Virginia Colonies have been more especially misrepresented to the savages, as having injurious designs upon them.

I am, with great truth and sincerity, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

The Hon. President Hancock.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, October 9, 1775.

SIR: I have to acknowledge the receipt of your letter of the 21st of September. Have no disposition to increase the weight of your burdens, which, in the multiplicity of your business, must be sufficiently heavy; nor inclination to disturb the harmony so necessary to the happy success of our publick operations; am persuaded no such difficulty will any more happen.

It is unhappy that jealousies should be excited, or disputes of any sort be litigated between any of the Colonies, to disunite them at a time our liberty, our property, our all, is at stake. If our enemies prevail, which our disunion may occasion, our jealousies will then appear frivolous, and all our disputed claims of no value to either side.

Yours of the 5th was delivered me the 6th. Have not heard of the small fleet you mention; imagine their primary object is Newport; they may likewise design an attack on some of our Towns. The letter enclosed to the Commissary-General was delivered him at his arrival on Saturday. President Hancock's letter, of the 30th September, was delivered me the 4th instant, requesting me to meet the Committee from the Congress, on the 12th, at Cambridge, to confer touching the continuing, supporting, and regulating the Continental Army. Our General Assembly meeting on the day appointed for the proposed conference, rendereth it inconsistent with my duty to attend the latter. Agreeable to their desire, shall appoint a proper person to represent the Colony at the conference. Expect to obtain the favour of Deputy-Governour Griswold to accept such appointment. Had the meeting been earlier, it would have afforded me satisfaction to have attended, given me the pleasure of waiting on you and the other gentlemen, besides gratifying my curiosity to see the works the Army have made.

I am, with great truth and esteem, your Excellency's most obedient very humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

His Excellency General Washington.

MAJOR CHRISTOPHER FRENCH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.
Hartford, October 9, 1775.

SIR: I was favoured last night with your letter, which I must acknowledge was very different from what I expected. First. Because you ground your reasoning upon the treatment your officers meet with. Secondly. Because you say you cannot help expressing some surprise that I should contest points of mere punctilio. Thirdly. Sir, you are pleased to term me a voluntary instrument of an avaricious and vindictive Ministry: and, fourthly; you say you do not know whether the liberty of wearing our swords was taken or given. I should not have placed these extracts from your letters so near to each other, without answering them in their order, only it appears to me I can thereby answer them with more brevity and precision.

With respect, Sir, to the treatment your officers meet with, I informed you in my last letter, that I had told the Committee here, that our wearing our swords was a matter already granted by the Committee at Philadelphia, and could not be counteracted with justice, propriety, or honour to us. Of this, Sir, you have not taken any notice in your letter to me; though I must think it should be considered of some weight, as it was granted by that Committee to which we gave our paroles as to the whole United Colonies; and therefore conceived what was agreed to by, or in the name of all, could not be counteracted by a part. I cannot, for the same reason, in answer to its being a mere punctilio, be of opinion that it can be considered in that light. An agreement once made, I conceive should be binding to both parties; and could I be capable of acting contrary to my parole, I make no doubt, Sir, you would be among the first to condemn me. Have I not, for the same reason, a right to expect that what was agreed to on the part of the Committee to whom we gave our paroles, in the name of the Twelve United Provinces, should be as invariably adhered to? Would it not be the greatest meanness (not punctilio) in us to submit tamely, and without resenting it?

As I never held any commission from a Minister, I cannot conceive with what propriety you can call me a Ministerial officer. You are pleased to observe I am an old officer. True, Sir. I have served His Majesty King George the Third, and his royal grandfather, near thirty-three years, I flatter myself with honour; I have always done it, and do so still, from that motive; and shall at all times think I do right in obeying his Ministers, acting under his legislative power (as I am satisfied they now do) from constitutional principles. If you will be pleased to revise my last letter, you will see I acquainted you in it (as I have done again in the preceding part of this) that the Committee at Philadelphia had agreed to our wearing our swords. I am therefore greatly at a loss to account for your saying you do not know whether the liberty of wearing them was given or taken. I am inclinable to suppose your saying it must have been from inadvertence, as I cannot believe you could suppose me capable of telling an untruth. I did not communicate my letter to the Committee here, as I think it would be extremely derogatory to the honour of any commander-in-chief, to show letters written to him to the Committee of a little paltry Town like Hartford; nor could I have conceived a set of men of their penetration and worldly knowledge could have communicated that paragraph at which you take umbrage, viz: "That I would have acted vigorously," &c. I was asked by Mr. Paine, if I would not fight against the Colonies, if at liberty? and answered, I would; in which might have been included, that I would endeavour to reduce them; but I did not say so; and must appeal to you, Sir, if the question need or should have been asked. The answer was obvious; and, therefore, it could only be asked with a design to have something to say. I told them, therefore, that I gloried in serving my King and Country, and should always do so; and I glory even in repeating it to you.

As there is no church here of our persuasion, we should esteem it as a particular favour if you direct us to be removed to Middletown, where there is one, and is but fifteen miles distant.

I am to thank you, Sir, for the genteel reasons you assign for not determining with respect to the swords; but, as I flatter myself you may alter your sentiments, upon your considering candidly my reasoning upon it, I hope you now will, as I cannot think of paying compliments, which I conceive inconsistent with our honour, even though we were to remain longer than the ten months (if not exchanged) which are unexpired.

I am convinced, Sir, you will not think the worse of me for supporting my honour as a man—as a British officer, which, in all situations, I am determined to do, as long as I have power to subscribe myself, Sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

CHRISTOPHER FRENCH.

FROM A GENTLEMAN AT BRISTOL, RHODE-ISLAND, TO HIS FRIEND IN NEW-YORK.

Bristol, October 12, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Having observed in the last Newport Mercury an imperfect account relative to the conduct of His Majesty's Ships, under the command of Captain Wallace, at Bristol, last Saturday night, I embrace this opportunity to give to you a true and particular detail of facts that took place, from their anchoring in the harbour till they left the Town.

On Saturday, the 7th instant, P. M., appeared in sight off this harbour a very formidable fleet, consisting of sixteen sail, viz: three men-of-war, one bomb ketch, and other armed vessels, all which, excepting the Glasgow, (which ran ashore at Paquash Point,) drew up in a line of battle, from one end of the Town to the other. Soon after they had moored, a barge came from the Rose to the head of a wharf, with the Lieutenant, who, asking if there were any gentlemen on the wharf? William Bradford, being present, answered, yes; whereupon, the Lieutenant informed him Captain Wallace had a demand to make on the Town, and desired that two or three of the principal men or Magistrates of the Town would go on board his ship, within an hour, and hear his proposals, otherwise hostilities would be commenced against the Town. The above gentleman replied, as a Magistrate, that, in his opinion, Captain Wallace was under a greater obligation to come ashore and make his demands known to the Town, than for the Magistrates to go on board his ship to hear them; and added, that if Captain Wallace would come to the head of the wharf the next morning, he should be treated as a gentleman, and the Town would consider of his demands. With this answer the Lieutenant returned on board the Rose. The inhabitants being made acquainted with the above conversation, repaired to the wharf, and waited with the utmost impatience for a reply from Captain Wallace, till an hour had expired, when the whole fleet began a most heavy cannonading, and the bomb vessel to bombard and heave shells and carcasses into the Town, which continued, without intermission, an hour and a half. In the mean time, Colonel Potter, in the hottest of the fire, went upon the head of the wharf, hailed the Rose, went on board, and requested a cessation of hostilities till the inhabitants might choose a Committee to go on board and treat with Captain Wallace; which request was complied with, and six hours were allowed for the above purpose. Colonel Potter returned, and made a report to the Committee of Inspection, who chose a select Committee to hear Captain Wallace's demands, which, after they had gone on board, Captain Wallace informed them were a supply of two hundred sheep and thirty fat cattle. This demand, the Committee replied, it was impossible to comply with, for the country people had come in and drove off their stock, saving a few sheep and some milch cows.

After some hours had expired, during the negotiation, without coming to any agreement, Captain Wallace told them, I have this one proposal to make: "If you will promise to supply me with forty sheep, at or before twelve o'clock, I will assure you that another gun shall not be discharged." The Committee, seeing themselves reduced to the distressing alternative, either to supply their most inveterate enemy, or devote to the flames the Town, with all the goods, besides near one hundred sick persons, who could not be removed without the utmost hazard of their lives; I say, seeing themselves reduced to this dreadful dilemma, of two evils, reluctantly chose the least, by agreeing to supply them with forty sheep at the time appointed, which was punctually performed.

The Reverend Mr. John Burt having been confined to his house by the camp distemper, when the cannonading began, left his habitation to seek some place of safety, and the next day was found dead in a neighbouring field. It is conjectured, that, being overcome with fear and fatigue, he fell down, and was unable to raise himself up, and so expired. A child, also, of Captain Timothy Ingraham, having been removed in the rain, died the next day.

What equally challenges our admiration and gratitude to God, is, that no more lives were lost, or persons hurt, by such an incessant and hot fire, the streets being full of men, women, and children, the whole time. The shrieks of the women, the cries of the children, and groans of the sick, would have extorted a tear from even the eye of a Nero; but I forbear; no words can describe the dreadful scene.

After the ships had received their supply, and stole about ninety cheeses and some poultry from Papaquash, they weighed anchor, and moored at Papaquash Point. The next day (being Tuesday) they went into Bristol ferryway, and fired a number of shot at the houses and people on each shore, where three of them got aground; but the tide rising towards evening, they left us, and have not molested us since. A great number of dwelling-houses, &c., were shot through, but suffered very little damage. A cannon ball entered a distill-house, then passed through three hogsheads and barrels of rum, and spilt their contents.

MAJOR-GENERAL HOWE TO THE EARL OF DARTMOUTH.

Boston, October 9, 1775.

MY LORD: General Gage having communicated to me your Lordship's separate letter of the 2d of August last, in obedience to your Lordship's commands, I trouble you with my ideas upon the subject of the ensuing campaign. But I must beg leave to premise, that this Town, without the most unforeseen accident, will be in no danger from the enemy during the winter; on the contrary, that the re-enforcement of two thousand men or five Battalions, from Ireland, will enable us to distress the Rebels by incursions along the coast; and I hope Portsmouth, in New-Hampshire, will feel the weight of His Majesty's arms in the course of that season.

From the present appearance and strength of the Rebel Army, and from the extent His Majesty's Troops now occupy for the defence of this place, nothing material will probably be attempted during the remainder of the campaign.

The Army will shortly have full employment in preparing quarters for the winter, that we may get under cover by the middle of November, or sooner, if expedient. A fortification is lately begun near the extremity of the Town, on the Roxbury side, on which six hundred men are daily at work, and in this state there is only a proper relief for the defence of the place. The corps upon the heights of Charlestown is also employed in securing that post for the winter.

In answer to your Lordship's first question, viz: whether the ensuing campaign should open from hence with the whole force? I beg leave to say, that the opening of the campaign from this quarter would be attended with great hazard, as well from the strength of the country as from the intrenched positions the Rebels have taken, from which they probably would not be forced without considerable loss on our part; and from the difficulty of access farther into the country, they would have every advantage in the defence of it on their side, being indefatigable in raising field-works, which they judiciously suppose must wear us down by repeated onsets, whereas they are so numerous in this part of the country, that they would not feel the loss they might sustain in the least degree of proportion with us; neither could we prevent them from having supplies of all denominations from the Southern Colonies, or even preserve the communication between the Army and this Town without difficulty. I may add to this the considerable expenses attending carriages, artillery, &c., from the want of a water conveyance from hence, except for a short distance.

Your Lordship's second query regards the division of the Army, for the possession of New-York and this Town. I am humbly of opinion that our strength at present is not adequate to the undertaking. The Generals Gage, Clinton, and Burgoyne, having declared the same, I am to wait His Majesty's further pleasure on this head; in the mean time, the utmost attention will be paid to the health and discipline of the Troops.

If my orders shall be to leave a force here for the preservation of the Town, and to proceed with the remainder to New-York, I beg leave to intimate to your Lordship, that not less than five thousand men, or eight or nine Battalions, upon the proposed plan of augmentation, will be, in my humble opinion, sufficient for the service required. Such a force having Major-General Clinton at the head of it would probably find employment for an Army of ten thousand Rebels.

And I would propose twenty Battalions to compose the division for New-York, which would be near twelve thousand men: this corps to be employed in opening a communication with Canada in the first instance, leaving five Battalions for the defence of the City of New-York.

There would then remain three thousand Regulars for Quebeck, who, with three or four thousand Canadians, and some hundred Indians, would compose the Army of Canada. But whether these numbers for Quebeck would be adequate to the service required on that side, I do not presume to give an opinion.

The accomplishment of the primary object for opening the communication being obtained by the two Armies, and secured by proper posts, in which operation the reduction of the Rebels in the Province of New-York must in some measure be included, these corps might take separate routes into the Province of Massachusetts-Bay, as circumstances may arise.

But I am humbly of opinion, that by the entire evacuation of this Town, and taking hold of Rhode-Island with the force proposed for this place, the Army would be better connected, and the corps would act with greater effect on that side, from whence it might possibly penetrate into the country; whereas, in this station, it could only defend the post, and perhaps make some few incursions for fresh provisions, without the power of reducing the inhabitants. The diversion it would occasion, by drawing after it a large portion of the Rebel Army, would, I imagine, be equal in both situations; but being in that of Rhode-Island, it would occasion such a jealousy in Connecticut, that the Army furnished by that Province would probably be kept at home for its defence.

And for the blockade of this harbour, should that measure be expedient upon the Town being evacuated, a small force might probably be intrenched with security on some commanding spot in the neighbourhood of Nantasket Road, for the convenience of the shipping, which I suppose might lie there for the purpose of blockading the port.

General Gage will have the honour of informing your Lordship of the steps he has taken for the immediate defence of Halifax.

Your Lordship having been pleased to say that the strength of the American Army for the ensuing spring shall amount to twenty thousand men, may I hope it may be composed of thirty-four Battalions of ten Companies, at fifty-nine rank and file, according to the proposed plan of augmentation, which will produce the number required of regular Infantry, upon whom we must depend for decision? Were it expedient to add six Battalions to the thirty-four already proposed for the American Army, amounting to about five thousand men, by an equal partition of them between the Canada and Rhode-Island divisions, I have no doubt of the effects being adequate to the extra expense incurred by such addition.

The early arrival of the destined re-enforcement in the spring, is of such material consequence to His Majesty's service, that I am persuaded it is needless for me to trouble your Lordship with any solicitations upon so essential a point. But I should hope the Troops for the Boston division may be embarked by the beginning of February, in which case they may be expected here about the time I should wish the campaign to open, in the middle or latter end of April.

I beg leave, at the same time, to request an additional number of Surgeons for the general hospitals.

May I, in this place, entreat your Lordship's countenance and protection in the promotion of the additional Companies for some old and experienced officers upon this duty, who, by their good services, have rendered themselves worthy of His Majesty's most gracious favour? The passing of them by at this juncture would deprive the Army of that spirit which has been so conspicuous among its officers this campaign; but as General Gage will have the honour of laying their names before His Majesty, I shall not presume to trouble your Lordship further on this subject.

I am, &c.,

W. HOWE.

ELBRIDGE GERRY TO SAMUEL ADAMS.

Watertown, October 9, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I received your letter of September 26th. It gives me great satisfaction to hear that your ride on horseback has contributed to your health. I hope the friends of America who are transacting the most important concerns of their Country, will not find the want of so valuable a blessing.

I unite in your opinion, that the eyes of friends and foes are fixed on this Colony; and if jealousy or envy can sully its reputation, they will not miss the opportunity. Great attempts have been made to do this by representing the expenses of the camp as unreasonable. These expenses have been great, but they only, who do not know our situation would call them extravagant. Let it be remembered that the first attack was made on this Colony; that we had to keep a regular force, without the advantage of a regular Government; that we had to support in the field from twelve to fourteen thousand men, when the whole forces voted by the other New-England Governments amounted to eight thousand five hundred only. That New-Hampshire found it impracticable to support its own Troops at so short notice, and was for a considerable time actually supplied with provisions from this Province. That after we had ransacked the sea-ports, and obtained all that was not wanted for their immediate support, and had stopped two cargoes of flour owned in Boston, it was found that all the pork and grain in the Government would not more than supply the inhabitants and the Army until the new crops came in, and that there was no way left, unassisted as we were by the Continent or any other Colony, for we never had a barrel of Continental flour to supply the Army, but to write a circular letter to every Town in the Counties of Worcester, Hampshire, and Berkshire, desiring them in the most pressing terms to send in provisions, and engaging that the inhabitants should be allowed the customary price in their respective Towns, and the teamsters the usual rate for carting. But for this measure, the forces of this Colony and New-Hampshire must have dispersed.

My attention is directed to the fitting out of privateers, which I hope will make them swarm here. Is it not time to encourage individuals to exert themselves this way? General Gage, before the commencement of hostilities, destroyed or confiscated the provisions then collecting for the Army; and can we hesitate at this time about the propriety of confiscating vessels employed by him to infest the coasts or supply his Troops, or can we doubt the propriety of encouraging individuals, by giving them the advantage resulting from their reprisals, when it is certain that other plans will not meet with such success as will probably attend this?

If the Continent should fit out a heavy ship or two, and increase them as circumstances shall admit, the Colonies large privateers, and individuals small ones, surely we may soon expect to see the coast clear of cutters. The saltpetre discoveries are lately very great. Attention is paid here to the manufacture, and it is hoped that ere long the manufactory of powder will be equally promoted. When I say attention, I mean the attention of individuals; it is not yet generally practised through the Government. Doctor Whiting is ordered to set up a leech here, that the members of the Court, seeing the process as by him reported, may be able to direct the works in the recess of the Court in their respective Towns.

The manufacture of fire-arms is not less an object of regard. A Committee of both Houses is upon the Militia bills, and great attention ought to be paid to this matter. I wish to see the Militia formed not only into Battalions, but also Brigades, with Brigadiers for each County, to be under the direction of the Generals of the Continent whenever they are called to re-enforce the Army; this adopted throughout America must be evidently advantageous whenever the enemy shall make incursions that must be repulsed by the militia, and such we may probably expect.

With respect to the Army nothing new occurs, unless it be the affair of Doctor Church, which continues as when I wrote Mr. Paine. He is confined under a guard of fifty men, without being permitted to communicate with any one. Numbers of flat-bottom boats are building in Cambridge River, to carry about fifty men each, but whether with design to go to Boston or otherwise, I know not. The camp is generally easy and healthy. Pray make my respects to your brethren from this Colony, and believe me sincerely your most obedient and very humble servant,

E. GERRY.

P. S. Since closing the above, I observe by extracts from the prints that the Parliament is adjourned, and the Ministry vigorous in their measures. If they are sending to Hanover for Troops, as well as to Ireland, is it not time for us to think of alliances? We may depend on their pushing matters with the utmost violence, if the American Tories can effect or they themselves dare to attempt it. The Colonies are daily improving in the art of war, and will soon be invincible; but if foreign force is employed against us, we may be greatly puzzled, unless we endeavour at the same thing, especially by our want of military stores before our manufactures are further advanced. If any ill consequences from such a measure be dreaded, may it not be asked, what consequence can be more miserable to America than its subjugation? What is more to be dreaded? What more fatal? We have hitherto been foremost in our plans. I hope the same spirit will continue.

S. MOYLAN AND J. GLOVER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Salem, Monday, October 9, 1775.

SIR: We were too sanguine in our expectations on Saturday, which occasioned Mr. Moylan to tell Mr. Reed that one of the schooners would be ready for the sea on Thursday next. It is difficult to procure carpenters to put them in the necessary order. We therefore think it will be Saturday before the first will be ready to sail; on that day we would recommend to your Excellency to order the Captain and his company to set off; on the Wednesday ensuing, we have no doubt but that the other vessel will be properly fitted.

There has some difficulties occurred in the hire of these vessels, relative to the manner in which they should be found. It is customary for them to have but three sails—mainsail, foresail, and gib; these are sufficient for the voyages they usually make. The owners justly remark, that were they to purchase the other sails necessary for the present purpose, the hire of the vessels would be inadequate to the expense. There are many objections made, of a similar nature, which we had no other method of compromising than agreeing that, on their part, they shall put their vessels in the same good order and condition which they would be obliged to do, were they hired to take in a cargo for the West-Indies or elsewhere; and on ours, that what extra expense may accrue from the nature of their present employment must be a publick charge.

Colonel Glover has given the strongest proofs of his good opinion of the schooner commanded by Captain Broughton: he has ventured his brother and his favourite son on board of her. However, lest any blame may lie with him, if any misfortune should happen, (which God avert,) he will be pleased to have the Captain and his company removed to a vessel of better fame for sailing. We have for this purpose hired a schooner from Mr. Stevens, of Marblehead. She is noted for her good qualities, and will be ready to take in the Hannah's company and stores in twelve or fourteen days; the extra sails, &c., on board the latter will serve for her. She is taken up on the same terms with the other two—four shillings per ton per month, or five shillings four pence, lawful money.

Your Excellency may be assured we have used our best diligence in transacting this business, which we will continue to do in fitting them out, appointing agents, and in every command you may please to honour us with.

We have the honour to be, with due respect, your Excellency's most obedient and humble servants,

STEPHEN MOYLAN,
JOHN GLOVER.

P. S. Yesterday afternoon, about five o'clock, were seen coming out of Boston harbour, and this morning about six o'clock, off Marblehead, two large ships of war, a schooner, and a sloop, steering a N. N. E. course. It is apprehended they are going to Portsmouth. Mr. Moylan will set out for that place to-morrow.

PARLIAMENT OF IRELAND.

Dublin Castle, October 10, 1775.

This day, the Parliament having met, according to the prorogation, his Excellency Simon, Earl of Harcourt, the Lord Lieutenant General and General Governour of Ireland, went in state to the House of Peers, and being seated on the Throne, with the usual solemnity, the gentleman Usher of the Black-Rod was sent with a message from his Excellency to the House of Commons, signifying his pleasure that they should immediately attend his Excellency in the House of Peers; the Commons being come thither accordingly, his Excellency made the following speech to both Houses:

My Lords and Gentlemen:

Your distinguished loyalty to the King, your just attention to the honour and dignity of his Government, and your well regulated zeal for the peace and happiness of your Country, have made so sensible an impression on my mind, during a three years' residence amongst you, that, encouraged by the experience of what I have seen, it is with the most sincere satisfaction I meet you again in Parliament.

I am persuaded that you entertain a grateful sense of the blessings you enjoy under the mild and firm Government of the best of Sovereigns; and His Majesty relies on the known zeal and loyalty of his subjects of Ireland, that, whilst his Government is disturbed by a rebellion existing in a part of his American Dominions, you will be ready to show your inviolable attachment to his person and Government, in the assertion of his just rights, and in the support of his legal authority.

Gentlemen of the House of Commons:

I have ordered the proper accounts and estimates to be laid before you, that you may be enabled to judge of the provisions necessary to be made for the ordinary expenses of His Majesty's establishments, and for discharging an arrear which has been unavoidably incurred.

My Lords and Gentlemen:

I am happy to inform you, that, since your last meeting, His Majesty's tender concern for the welfare of this Kingdom hath induced him to pass several laws in the British Parliament, highly beneficial to your commerce, your manufactures, and your agriculture.

By the act which extends the great advantages of British fisheries to Ireland, a source of industry and wealth is opened to you, which has made other Nations great and flourishing: let me, therefore, recommend to your earnest attention the improvement of advantages tending so obviously to promote your navigation and trade, in the pursuit of which you may depend upon my warmest assistance and support.

The act which allows the clothing and accoutrements necessary for His Majesty's forces, paid from the revenues of this Kingdom, to be exported from Ireland, is a particular mark of the royal favour; and even that which allows the importation of rape-seed into Great Britain, from this Kingdom, under certain regulations, connected with those salutary laws passed in your last session, form such a system of agriculture and improvement as will, I trust, secure riches and plenty to the people of Ireland.

A bounty granted by Great Britain upon the importation of flax-seed is so marked a recommendation of the linen manufacture, that it becomes needless for me to urge the most persevering application to that staple of your Country.

The Protestant Charter Schools, an institution established on the principles of wisdom and humanity, and so peculiarly adapted to the present state and circumstances of this Kingdom, are eminently entitled to your consideration and care.

On my part, you may be assured that I shall continue faithfully to represent your loyalty and zeal to His Majesty; and that I shall cheerfully co-operate with you in whatever may tend to advance the prosperity and happiness of this Kingdom.

Sir Charles Bingham enlarged on His Majesty's goodness to Ireland, and the grateful sense his subjects ought to entertain of the same, which demanded a stronger expression of zeal and duty than ordinarily; adding, that these acts had been principally obtained by the attention of Lord Harcourt, and the assiduity of Sir John Blaquiere. He thought, if the House were cold on the affair of America, it would make the Americans persist longer in their rebellion; but if unanimous in their loyalty, it would bring it soon to an end, and prevent other Nations from assisting them. He then moved for an address to His Majesty, which he read; and it was, as usual, a repetition of the speech in every point, with thanks for continuing Lord Harcourt as Lord Lieutenant.

The address was seconded by Mr. Townley Balfour.

Mr. Ponsonby rose to oppose agreeing to that part of the address relative to the Americans, which he was sorry was brought into question there, as it was highly imprudent to do, since the House could not decide upon it, as no man there was master of the subject, for want of proper materials and proper evidence; nay, even if they had both, it was a subject too nice, too delicate, and too high, for the Commons of Ireland; nay, it was also premature, as the British Parliament would meet in a few days, and they ought to wait for their determination. Besides, they might, by intermeddling, make themselves subject to requisitions for assistance not in their power to give; that taking notice of American affairs was like embarking on the wide Atlantick Ocean, without a compass to steer by, or provisions for the voyage. He instanced the social war of the Romans, which was forced to be compromised, to avoid destruction to the Empire. He then moved, as an amendment, in lieu of the paragraph in the address, to say, "the Commons were concerned to see differences arise between His Majesty's Parliament of Great Britain and his Colonies; that they relied on his paternal care to heal this breach; and though they had hitherto been silent on this affair, they should now be wanting in their duty, if they did not express their hopes of a reconciliation; and if, after the offer of conciliatory measures, the Americans should still stand out, his faithful subjects of Ireland would do their utmost to support him."

Mr. Conolly seconded this amendment, and said he had, in the British Parliament, opposed every act against the Americans; that they ought not to promise any thing on that head, as it would tend to a demand for a supply, to enable Britain to subdue the Colonies, and the next step would be to tax Ireland in the British Parliament; for it had been already asserted there, that they had an absolute right to do so, without their consent.

Mr. George Ogle urged it was wrong to bring even the idea of America into the House—for if you take the part of the Americans, you irritate England; and if you assist Britain, you thereby vote away your own liberties—that they ought not too hastily fix the stain of rebellion on two millions of fellow-subjects; that the English longed for the Risk-lands, and if you vote the Americans to be rebels for resisting a taxation where they are not represented, what can you say when the English will tax you?

Sir Edward Newenham spoke on the same side of the question, and observed, if they voted against America, whenever matters were decided, the Americans would remember it, and not take a yard of our linen, nor send us any of their flour, in any extremity.

Sir John Blaquiere replied, that the address was only to testify our loyalty, and nothing further; that the original dispute was now lost in the consequences; that he was not empowered to call the Americans by any other name than that of Rebels; that no supply would be asked or expected on their account; and that, on the Scottish rebellion, and all other wars, the Commons always addressed to declare their loyalty. He added, that any mention in the English House of a right to tax Ireland was only the rash opinion of some individuals, not that of Government, and was wrong-founded; and this address would be of great effect to end the quarrel, when the Rebels found they could have no countenance from hence.

Mr. Conolly spoke again, adding, that the promise made at the augmentation, of leaving twelve thousand men always here, for our defence, was now broken.

Mr. Yelverton said he expected a different motion from the gentleman who made it; that he could not call the Americans rebels, without at the same time allowing the right and authority of the British Parliament to tax them; and no slavery can be more perfect than to be taxed where men are not represented. He dwelt on the same arguments with Mr. Ponsonby and Mr. Ogle, and said he would agree to the amendment, rather than the original address; but had rather every thing relative to America should be totally omitted.

Mr. Dennis Daly observed, that the idea of taxing Ireland was to be found in the King's speech at the opening of the last sessions of Parliament; but, indeed, they might permit Ireland to have one, whilst the members would be tools to fleece the publick.

Mr. Hussey Burgh said the motion was too sudden, and they had not time to determine. No money could be voted without passing through a phalanx of Committees; but here a vote of the utmost consequence to their liberties was urged in a moment. It might be a feather in the cap of the Minister, but it had a poisoned dart to the interests of Ireland joined to it. Gentlemen might argue on declarations against taxing Ireland; but should thirty thousand English swords enforce that doctrine, the eloquence of gentlemen would be but a weak defence against them. On what authority could they vote the Americans rebels? On none but newspapers; and he hoped the right honourable gentleman would move, that the proper officers (printers' devils) should lay them before the House.

Mr. Bushe said such an address would most infallibly produce a requisition for a supply to enforce the war against America; and if we agree to it, the next step will be to tax Ireland in the British Commons.

Mr. Hussey Burgh agreed it would be best to leave out the entire mention of America.

Mr. James Brown spoke against the amendment.

The question was put, and the House divided: Ayes, for the amendment, forty-nine; noes, against it, ninety-nine.

Mr. Gardiner then moved, that the whole clause relative to the Americans should be expunged.

Colonel Brown opposed it, and said the whole troubles there arose from a speech of Lord Chatham's, which was as unintelligible as St. Athanasius's Creed.

The House divided: Ayes, for keeping the clause, ninety; noes, for expunging it, fifty.

Captain Wilson, just before the question was put, said, no reward the King could give could satisfy his conscience, if he voted for the clause.

Mr. Hussey Burgh then opposed the promise of granting for arrears, and moved the question for adjournment, on which the House divided: Ayes, for adjournment, thirty-nine; noes, against it, eighty-two.

Mr. Charles Bingham agreed to add the word unavoidable before arrears; and then the House agreed to the address, and a Committee was appointed to draw it up.

Colonel Ross moved an address to the Lord Lieutenant; which was carried; and the House adjourned, as it was near twelve o'clock.

Wednesday, October 11, 1775.

The Resolutions for the Address, read last night, having been committed, Sir Charles Effingham reported from the Committee the Address pursuant thereto; which was read, first entire, then paragraph by paragraph.

When the clause relative to the Americans, which had been yesterday the chief bone of contention, was read again, Mr. John Hatch proposed to leave it entirely out; but since the great majority on the former question for that purpose sufficiently showed him that it was necessary to take some notice of the American troubles, and to testify to the King the loyalty of the Commons, he wished gentlemen would agree to another clause which he had framed, and he hoped would satisfy every member. This clause imported "to assure His Majesty of the unalterable loyalty of his Irish subjects, who would be ready to testify their hearty attachment to his person and Government, in all his just rights, and the support of his legal authority, whensoever his Government shall be disturbed in any, even the most distant part of his Dominions."

Though this clause seemed to answer every intention, yet many gentlemen adhered firmly to the words of the address, which were a transcript of those in the speech from the throne; and a debate ensued, which was carried on with great eloquence. The arguments of the preceding day were recapitulated, with very few additional reasons; for indeed the subject had been then sufficiently canvassed, and need not be repeated here. Such as were either new, or set in a different light, were to the following purport:

The eagerness with which gentlemen who supported the original address insisted on the very words, and so strenuously opposed any alteration, though they carry the same meaning, seems to evince that some particular design was couched under them; that it was intended, doubtless, to convey an approbation of those Ministers whose counsels had caused and increased the troubles in America, and now breathe nothing but terror to its people. These counsels might be fatal, and to approve them indiscriminately, without sufficient grounds, (and no evidence was before the House,) would only assist the British Ministry to deceive the people, and blind the King. It was said this address was intended only to demonstrate the loyalty of the Commons; and a right honourable gentleman (Sir John Blaquiere) had declared there was no supply to be asked now, in consequence of this testimony. Perhaps none might be asked now, but in all probability it soon may; and then it might be told they had pledged themselves to the King to assist him against the Rebels. But it seemed evident this clause was inserted for another particular purpose. Lord Chatham had said, in the British Parliament, that Ireland, to a man, was in favour of the Americans; and this address was intended as a reply to that speech, and to insinuate that it was the general sense of the Irish Nation, expressed by their Representatives, that the Americans were in actual rebellion. But it was well known many gentlemen in the House were of a contrary opinion, as well as the generality of the people without doors. An honourable gentleman (Mr. Solicitor-General) had yesterday mentioned the Proclamation, and mentioned pains and penalties hanging over those who should act contrary thereto. But members of Parliament were not to be intimidated by such words from a freedom of speech and a freedom of discussion; for proclamations are of no avail, unless sanctified by law—their intent is not to make law, but to declare and promulgate what the law is. The present dispute is not between Ireland and the Colonies, with whom she has no connection, but between Great Britain and her Colonies; and it would be as absurd to take a part, as it would be if they were told a rebellion was broke out in the East-Indies. It was, indeed, an important subject, as great as ever came before any Senate; but it would be highly imprudent to interfere. Is it not clear it would deprive them of their chartered rights? and if resistance against those who would tear their liberties from them is deemed rebellion, all honest men would be rebels; that those who say this clause is only to show loyalty and zeal, deceive the House. It is more—it is to decide that the Americans are rebels, without any means of judging clearly they are so. It is evident they had a tax imposed on them, without their consent; which tax was to be paid into the British Treasury, and not to centre in the Colonies themselves. The resistance against such taxation ought no more be styled rebellion than that at the time of the Revolution, which was brought about by resisting against oppressions. These arguments were principally used by Mr. Hatch, Mr. Chapman, Mr. French, Mr. George Montgomery, Mr. Barry Barry, Mr. Ogle, &c., &c.

On the other side, it was urged by Mr. Hellen, Captain Josephson, Colonel Burton, and Mr. Carleton, that the words in the address were proper. His Majesty had acquainted the House with the most material and important occurrence that had happened since the last session of Parliament; and hoped that, whilst the American subjects had departed from their duty, his subjects of Ireland would lay their hearts at the foot of the throne, and testify their loyalty and their intention to support his just rights and legal authority. Could they refuse to do that? This was all that was expected, and less they could not do with any degree of duty and consistency. The amendment implied a doubt that the Americans were in rebellion; but can there be a doubt? Is not America in open war against the King's forces? Is not all civil order dissolved? Is not the administration of the Colonies in the hands of usurpers? In this case our silence would be deemed an approbation of their measures. A neutrality is impossible; as it would be impolitic to be maintained, as it would affront both. The Irish must declare; and for whom is it most just, most prudent to declare? For Britain, who was breaking down the barriers against our trade, encouraging our manufactures, and extending our commerce; or America, who had refused to trade with us? The Proclamation was not without sufficient authority—it was legalized by the resolutions of both the Lords and Commons—and the Earl of Chatham's speech was not held of that consequence to be contradicted expressly by an address of that House, for many of his speeches were more famous for their boldness than their veracity.

Mr. Hussey Burgh had hitherto been silent, and had been employed in framing a fresh clause, as he thought that proposed by Mr. Hatch went too far. It promised assistance against any disturbances, which this Country was not able to afford. He communicated his amendment to that gentleman, who consented to withdraw that which he had made. Mr. Hussey Burgh then moved for the adoption of his clause, which was, "to assure His Majesty of their concern to hear that his Government has been disturbed by any dissensions in America; but they had a firm reliance on the wisdom, justice, and mercy, of His Majesty's counsels, to terminate them in the manner that would be most advantageous to the whole of his Dominions."

This motion raised a fresh debate, in which most of the former ground was trod over again. Col. Brown urged the necessity of contradicting the assertion of Lord Chatham.

Mr. Gardiner said the British Ministry were acting like those rash practitioners who prescribe immediate amputation, when any inflammation or gangrene comes on, which might be cured by gentler means; and that agreeing with the words of the original clause would carry us farther than we were aware.

Captain Hamilton gave a long detail of the proceedings of the different Administrations, from Mr. Grenville to Lord North; said the last war was merely an American war, as it was undertaken solely on their account; inveighed strongly against their ingratitude and their behaviour in regard to the tea, and concluded they were absolutely rebels.

Mr. Holmes spoke in favour of the address; and Mr. Dillon declared he should be against the amendment, as he was against making any mention at all of the Americans.

Mr. Hussey Burgh expressed his terror of the consequences that would result from joining to an address which supported sanguinary measures, and urged a vindictive Administration to proceed to the last extremities. If the Americans were brought on their knees to the Minister, as had been the favourite expression, they could expect nothing but slavery. A conqueror, when he held his sword over the head of the vanquished, has, indeed, been known to spare his life, but never to give him liberty. To keep the subdued Colonies in a state of subjection would require a large standing Army; and these troops would be ready, whenever required, to come over and destroy the liberties of the other subjects. Ireland would then be enslaved, since those who are slaves themselves are the fittest to enslave others; and Great Britain itself would then become only the seat of a wide-extended despotism. It is evident Britain has not relinquished her design of destroying the rights of this Kingdom; she has torn off already one of the valuable privileges of a free nation, an appeal to the House of Lords; and the book written by Molyneux, in defence of Irish rights, was burnt by the hands of the common hangman. They only wait an opportunity, and it would be wrong to give them the least handle for one. An honourable gentleman (Captain Jephson) has called the Americans the offspring of convicts, the outcasts of this Country. Many of them are so; but why this cruel insult on persons guilty of no crime? The law spared the lives of their forefathers, who were criminals; but it is tenfold cruelty to destroy their guiltless children. Many gentlemen have doubtless undertaken to do, as it is called, the King's business in the House, and are to be properly considered for it; but this is the Minister's business, and ought to have an extra charge.

Sir John Blaquiere replied, and repeated that no supply was wanted in consequence of this address. He urged, that the acts in favour of Ireland were resolved on before the war broke out in America, and therefore not held out as any inducement to this expression of loyalty; that it would shortly appear that twenty-five thousand Pounds per annum had been saved on the military establishment, and near eighty thousand Pounds on contingencies; therefore, the King well deserved any dutiful expressions.

Mr. Conolly and Mr. Yelverton replied, in behalf of the amendment. The latter said a proffer of loyal hearts would soon bring on a supply for the American war, as it was well known the Irish never gave their hearts without their hands; that the Ministry were acting the wish of Caligula. They had cut off the rights of thirteen or fourteen Colonies at once; Ireland would be next, and then, when liberty had but one neck, that too would be lopped off at one stroke.

Mr. Prime Serjeant and Mr. Solicitor-General dwelt on the impropriety of the address; and the question being put on agreeing to the amendment, the House divided: Ayes, fifty-two; noes, ninety-two.

When the question was put on the original clause, Mr. Dillon opposed it, and the House divided a second time: Ayes, ninety; noes, fifty-four. Majority for the clause, thirty-six.

Thus the Address was agreed to, as was that to the Lord Lieutenant, reported by Colonel Ross.

— Thursday, October 12, 1775.

Captain Wilson said, that as his knowledge of American politics was only derived from newspapers, he was convinced, as such authority had heretofore been deemed unworthy the attention of the House, of his incompetence to discuss the subject, although he was fixed in his sentiments; for which reason he did not take a part in the debate yesterday. He said that it had been much complained of, that gentlemen too often came into the House predetermined how they would vote, let the arguments be, on either side, however cogent; but that he thought on some occasions it was expedient and necessary for gentlemen who did not make politics their entire study. To support his position, he said, that the variety of contradictory assertions which often happened in the House, must, on subjects of importance, unavoidably bewilder the understanding of many. For instance, that he had heard it asserted that the greatest part of His Majesty's Colonies were now in a state of rebellion, and, on the other hand, that they were only contending for their natural rights, in opposition to a tyrannick Ministry. He heard it said, that the American proceedings were abhorred by almost all His Majesty's subjects; and that he had heard it insisted, that an infinite majority of the Protestants of Ireland wished them an emancipation from their oppression, as the probable consequence of the Ministry issuing their design on America must be the inevitable vassalage of Ireland. That he had heard it insinuated that a great man, well known in the political world, was a man of fire without judgment, and words without truth; that by others it was alleged he was revered by every friend of the Constitution, and was a most able and unrivalled statesman. That he heard it said, the import of the clause in the address respecting the American disputes, was of no other consequence than to declare our attachment to His Majesty; and, on the other hand, he heard it strenuously contended, that it was a very dangerous foundation for a more dangerous superstructure. That he heard it asserted the Americans were an infamous, fanatical banditti, consisting of the outcasts of both Kingdoms; and, on the other hand, as warmly maintained, that they were a wealthy, honest, brave, industrious people, toiling to enjoy their natural rights. He then said he would not at that time pretend to give an opinion, but that, if they were that desperate gang as represented, they were very unfit to be trusted with dangerous weapons; wherefore, he begged to submit a proposal to the consideration of gentlemen; which was, that in the next address they should insert the following clause:

"That His Majesty's Ministers may graciously take into consideration the dangerous effects, on His Majesty's liege Troops, by those inhuman weapons called rifle-guns; and that they may be pleased to issue a proclamation forthwith, that such of the Provincial Troops as are called Riflemen be disbanded, and the barrels of their guns be turned into plough-irons; and, by way of punishment to those who have made use of such weapons, that they may be converted into plough-horses; and if any difficulty should attend the execution of such orders, that said men and guns be sent to His Majesty's Ministers of the Gospel in Canada, who will very soon have the matter accomplished, as they do not find the least trouble in much more miraculous transformations."

The House then adjourned till Tuesday, the 24th instant.

Dublin Castle, October 12, 1775.

The House of Lords and Commons having resolved upon humble Addresses to His Majesty, the same, together with Addresses from both Houses to the Lord Lieutenant, were this day presented to his Excellency, and, with his Excellency's Answers, are as follows.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled, do most humbly beg leave to assure your Majesty of our unalterable loyalty to and undiminished zeal for your Majesty's royal person, family, and Government.

We return your Majesty our sincerest thanks for continuing his Excellency Simon, Earl Harcourt, in the Government of this Kingdom, whose distinguished merit in the high stations he has filled, whose eminent virtues and exalted character, as well as a most affectionate regard to the welfare of this Country, uniformly manifested by him during a three years' constant residence amongst us, leave us no reason to doubt that he will at all times make a just and effectual representation of us to your Majesty.

We beseech your Majesty to believe that we are filled with a just and lively gratitude for the many blessings we enjoy under your mild and firm Government, and your Majesty may rely on our unfeigned zeal and unshaken loyalty, that whilst your Government is disturbed by a rebellion existing in part of your American Dominions, which we cannot hear of but with the utmost abhorrence and indignation, we shall ever be ready to show our most inviolable attachment to your Majesty's royal person and Government, in the assertion of your just rights and the support of your legal authority.

We most sensibly feel the tender concern which your Majesty has graciously shown for the welfare of this Kingdom, manifested by the several laws passed in the British Parliament, highly advantageous to our commerce, our manufactures, and our agriculture.

We are truly grateful for the act which extends the great advantages of the British fisheries to Ireland, whereby a source of industry and wealth is opened to us, which has made other nations great and flourishing; and it shall be our constant endeavour to improve advantages tending so obviously to promote our navigation and trade.

We beg leave to express our highest satisfaction and thankfulness for that particular mark of your Majesty's royal favour, the passing the act which allows the clothing and accoutrements necessary for your Majesty's forces, paid from the revenues of this Kingdom, to be exported from Ireland. And we have the utmost confidence, that the act which allows the importation of rape-seed into Great Britain, from this Kingdom, under certain regulations, will, connected with those salutary laws passed in this Kingdom during the last session of Parliament, form such a system of agriculture and improvement as, we trust, will secure riches and plenty to the people of Ireland.

We acknowledge with gratitude the bounty granted by Great Britain upon the importation of flax-seed into Ireland, which we consider as so marked a recommendation of the linen manufacture, as must engage us in the most persevering application to that staple of this Country.

We consider your Majesty's gracious recommendation of the Protestant Charter Schools as a strong proof of your attention to the established religion of this Country; and as we are convinced that they are eminently entitled to our consideration and care, they shall certainly meet with our utmost protection and assistance.

We beg leave most sincerely to assure your Majesty that, truly sensible of your constant and uniform attention to the strict preservation of our laws and liberties, we shall be always ready to testify our most dutiful attachment to your royal person, family, and Government, and to exert the most cordial zeal in support of the honour and dignity of your Crown; certain that by such conduct we shall ensure to ourselves and our posterity a continuation of that uninterrupted protection and favour which your subjects of this Kingdom have universally experienced under the Government of your Majesty—convinced that, in the mild and just reign of the best of Sovereigns, we cannot fail of becoming a happy and flourishing people.

W. WATTS GAYER, } Cler. Parliamentor.
EDWARD GAYER, }

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's Answer.

I will forthwith transmit this dutiful and loyal Address, to be laid before His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Knights, Citizens, and Burgesses, in Parliament assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Commons of Ireland, in Parliament assembled, beg leave to assure your Majesty of our steady loyalty to your person, our attention to the honour of your Government, and our zeal to preserve the peace and happiness of your subjects.

We return our most grateful thanks to your Majesty for your paternal care, in being graciously pleased to continue in the Government of this Kingdom a Nobleman, who, during three years that he hath presided over us, has given ample proofs of those abilities and virtues that have distinguished his publick character, in every station which he has filled under your Majesty, and have dignified his private life in every relation which he hath borne to society. We are happy to express the favourable impression which our past conduct has made upon his mind, and our anxious desire that our future proceedings may warrant the same disposition towards us, in his representations to your Majesty.

We beseech your Majesty to believe that we are filled with a just and lively gratitude for the many blessings we enjoy under your mild and firm Government, and that your Majesty may entirely rely on our most unfeigned zeal and unshaken loyalty, that whilst your Government is disturbed by a rebellion existing in a part of your American Dominions, which we hear with abhorrence and feel with indignation, we shall be ever ready to show our most devoted and inviolable attachment to your Majesty's sacred person and Government, in the assertion of your just rights, and in the support of your legal authority.

We declare our readiness to grant the supplies necessary for the ordinary expenses of your Majesty's establishments, as far as the state and circumstances of this Country will permit, and to provide for the arrear unavoidably incurred thereon.

We acknowledge your Majesty's tender concern for the welfare of this Kingdom, in the several laws recently passed in Great Britain, highly advantageous to our commerce, manufactures, and agriculture, and profess our resolution to improve advantages, so obviously beneficial to our navigation and trade, as those which must arise from an act which extends the great benefits of British fisheries to Ireland, which has been the source of industry and wealth to other nations.

We thankfully express our satisfaction for that particular mark of your Majesty's royal favour, the act allowing the clothing and accoutrements for your Majesty's forces, paid from the revenues of this Kingdom, to be exported from Ireland; and are confident that the act which allows the importation of rape-seed to Great Britain, from this Kingdom, under certain regulations, will, connected with those salutary laws passed in this Kingdom during the last session of Parliament, form such a system of agriculture and improvement, as we hope may secure riches and plenty to the people of Ireland.

We assure your Majesty of our being deeply impressed with the expediency of persevering application to the staple of this Country, so strongly recommended by a bounty from Great Britain upon the importation of flax-seed into Ireland; and that the Protestant Charter Schools are eminently entitled to our consideration and care, as a wise and humane institution, peculiarly adapted to the state and circumstances of this Country.

In terms of the most unbounded loyalty and allegiance, we lay before your Majesty the hearts of your ever faithful Commons of Ireland, labouring to pour forth the just and grateful sense which they feel of your Majesty's great goodness, indulgence, and favour, and wishing to proclaim to the world, at this critical conjuncture, their steady determination to approve themselves not unworthy the protection of so wise, so just, and so amiable a Sovereign.

E. STERLING, } Cler. Dom. Com.
H. ALCOCK, }

His Excellency the Lord Lieutenant's Answer.

I will take the first opportunity of transmitting this dutiful and loyal Address, to be laid before His Majesty.

To His Excellency SIMON, Earl HARCOURT, Lord Lieutenant General, and General Governour of IRELAND.

The humble Address of the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled.

May it please your Excellency:

We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Lords Spiritual and Temporal, in Parliament assembled, return your Excellency our unfeigned thanks for your speech from the throne to both Houses of Parliament, and we beg leave to assure your Excellency that we feel ourselves exceedingly happy in the favourable opinion which your Excellency hath conceived of us, and in that satisfaction with which your Excellency is pleased to declare you meet us again in Parliament.

We flatter ourselves that your Excellency's residence amongst us for three years, which hath formed an impression upon your mind so favourable to us, and hath afforded your Excellency such a competent knowledge of the circumstances of this Country, will be propitious to the interests of it; and that, impressed, as we are, with a grateful sense of your Excellency's successful endeavours to promote the prosperity of this Kingdom, which have been manifested by the advantages which our commerce, manufactures, and agriculture, have received, we cannot but think ourselves most happy under your Excellency's administration.

The late acts passed in the British Parliament, so highly beneficial to this Kingdom, which your Excellency is pleased to take notice of in a manner expressive of your good wishes and kind concern for us, fill our minds with gratitude; and the reflection that they have passed during your Excellency's government yields us the best grounded assurances that your Excellency's just and favourable representations of us, together with your good offices and kind interpositions, have not been wanting in our favour.

On our part, we beg your Excellency to accept of our grateful acknowledgments; and we think it but just to assure your Excellency, as we now do, that as it is our duty, so it will be our inclination, to co-operate with you in promoting those great objects recommended to us by your Excellency from the throne, and that we will cordially concur with your Excellency in such measures as may conduce to the happiness of this Kingdom, and the honour and ease of your Excellency's administration.

W. WATTS GAYER, } Cler. Parliamentor.
EDWARD GAYER, }

His Excellency's Answer.

I return the House of Lords my sincerest thanks for this kind and obliging Address. I consider it not only as the most honourable proof of their regard and esteem, but it is a very distinguished instance of their approbation of my conduct during a residence of near three years in this Kingdom; and that I may not be undeserving of the continuance of it, I shall take every opportunity of representing to His Majesty the unshaken loyalty and affection of the House of Lords, and do every thing in my power to promote the happiness and prosperity of Ireland.

To His Excellency SIMON, Earl HARCOURT, Lord Lieutenant General, and General Governour of IRELAND.

The humble Address of the Knights, Citizens, and Burghesses, in Parliament assembled.

May it please your Excellency:

We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Commons of Ireland, in Parliament assembled, return your Excellency our sincere thanks for your most excellent speech from the throne.

We beg leave to express our highest satisfaction in being again assembled under so just and prudent a Chief Governour, our happiness at the favourable impression which our past conduct hath made upon your Excellency's mind, and our gratitude to His Majesty for his paternal care of this Kingdom, in permitting to remain among us a Nobleman, distinguished by the many eminent virtues which have invariably adorned his publick character and private life.

Encouraged by an assurance of your Excellency's co-operation and support, we cannot fail to give the strictest attention to the several great and important advantages that are the objects of your Excellency's earnest recommendation; those benefits to our commerce, manufactures, and agriculture, solicited and obtained during your Excellency's administration, deserve our warmest and sincerest gratitude and acknowledgments.

We shall cheerfully make provision for the necessary expenses of His Majesty's establishments, as far as the circumstances of this Country will admit; sensible of the numberless blessings we enjoy under the best of Kings, and confident that your Excellency will continue faithfully to represent our loyalty and zeal to his sacred person and Government, your Excellency may be assured of our endeavours to contribute to the ease and honour of your administration, as we have, from experience, the strongest reason to rely upon your Excellency's disposition uniformly to promote the welfare and happiness of the people of Ireland.

E. STERLING, } Cler. Dom. Com.
H. ALCOCK, }

His Excellency's Answer.

I return the House of Commons my most sincere thanks for this very kind and affectionate Address, which, after a residence of near three years in this Kingdom, is the most honourable testimony of their approbation and esteem; the continuance of which I shall ever be ambitious of deserving, by faithfully representing to His Majesty the unshaken loyalty of the Commons of Ireland, and by a constant attention, on my part, to every thing that can tend to promote the welfare and prosperity of this Kingdom.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Tuesday, October 10, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Deputy Chairman.

Gabriel H. Ludlow,	William Denning,	J. Beekman,
P. V. Voorhies,	G. Abeel,	L. Burling,
C. C. Clopper,	J. Brower,	W. Walton,
J. Totten,	P. T. Curtenius,	N. Bogart,
J. Pell,	J. Berrian,	N. Roosevelt,
William Hyer,	H. Young,	P. Byvanck,
N. Ray,	David Beekman,	R. Norwood,
G. Duyckinck,	J. Lefferts,	William W. Ludlow,
A. Abrahams,	J. Inlay,	H. Roome,
P. P. Van Zandt,	N. Hoffman,	J. Ramsey,
A. P. Lott,	J. Desbrosses,	L. Lasher,
O. Templeton,	C. P. Low,	S. Johnson.
A. Brinckerhoff,	Gabriel W. Ludlow,

Ordered, That Captain Lasher be requested to give it in charge to the Captain or Commanding Officer of the Military City Guard of this night, and to the Captain or Commanding Officer of the said Guard in future, to be particularly careful that proper sentries be placed at the Barracks in which the stores returned this day were deposited, and not to permit any of the said stores to be removed without a written order from the Provincial Congress or this Committee.

The Petition of William Prince received and read, praying leave to ship off Fruit Trees.

Ordered, That leave be given accordingly.

A Letter, dated Camp at Cambridge, 8th August, 1775, from George Washington to the Provincial Congress, received and read, and is in the words following, viz:

"It must give great concern to every considerate mind, that when this whole Continent, at a vast expense of blood and treasure, is endeavouring to establish its liberties on the most secure and solid foundations, not only by a laudable opposition of force to force, but denying itself the usual advantages of trade, there are men among us so basely sordid as to counteract all our exertions for the sake of a little gain. You cannot but have heard that the distresses of the Ministerial Troops, for fresh provisions and many other necessaries, at Boston, were very great. It is a policy justifiable by all the laws of war, to endeavour to increase them. Desertions, discouragement, and a dissatisfaction with the service, besides weakening their strength, are some of the natural consequences of such a situation, and, if continued, might afford the fairest hope of success, without further effusion of human blood. A vessel cleared lately out of New-York, for St. Croix, with fresh provisions and other articles, has just gone into Boston, instead of pursuing her voyage to the West-Indies. I have endeavoured to discover the name of the Captain or owner, but as yet without success. The owner, it is said, went to St. Croix before the vessel; from which, and her late arrival, I make no doubt you will be able to discover and expose the villain; and if you could fall upon some effectual measures to prevent the like in future, it will be doing a signal service to our common Country."

"In Provincial Congress, New-York, Die Sabbati, }
August 19, 1775. }

"Resolved and Ordered, That the paragraph of General Washington's Letter, relative to a Vessel that arrived at Boston with fresh Provisions and other necessaries, supposed to be from New-York, be sent to the General Committee of New-York, and that they be directed to make strict inquiry whether the said Vessel did sail from hence, and who are the owners and master of the said Vessel, and report the result thereof to this Congress.

"A true copy from the Minutes:

"ROBERT BENSON, Secretary."

The Petition of James Light received and read, praying leave to resign his office of Ensign, in Captain Dean's Company; which was granted accordingly.

NEW-YORK PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 10, 1775.

Whereas it is highly necessary, for the sake of liberty, that the duration of the power of all persons, intrusted with high authority, should be limited to a short period, and more especially when they are nominated by, and their authority delegated unto them from the body of the people:

Resolved, therefore, That this Congress shall be dissolved on Tuesday, the 14th day of November next. And forasmuch as it appears to us highly necessary that a Provincial Congress should exist until the disputes between Great Britain and America shall be adjusted, and that the members of that Congress should be so proportioned as to give a due weight of representation to the several parts of the Colony, it is therefore recommended to the good people of this Colony, that those who are qualified to vote for Representatives in General Assembly do choose such persons as they can confide in to represent them, as Deputies of this Colony, in Provincial Congress, until the second Tuesday in May next, unless a reconciliation with Great Britain shall sooner take place; and that the Deputies, so chosen, meet at the City of New-York on the said 14th day of November next. And it is further recommended, that the election be held at the usual places for election of Representatives in General Assembly, in the several Counties, on Tuesday, the 7th day of November next, by the respective Committees of the several Counties, or at such other places as the said Committee shall previously appoint, and duly notify to their several Counties.

And in order to proportion the Members of each County, it is Resolved, That the City and County of New-York have twenty-one Members; the City and County of Albany, twelve Members; the County of Dutchess, nine Members; the County of Westchester, nine Members; the County of Ulster, eight Members; the County of Suffolk, eight Members; the County of Orange, six Members; the County of Queen's, eight Members; the County of King's, four Members; the County of Richmond, four Members; the County of Tryon, four Members; the County of Cumberland, three Members; the County of Gloucester, two Members; the County of Charlotte, two Members.

A true copy from the Minutes:

ROBERT BENSON, Secretary.

LIEUTENANT GIBBS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Ticonderoga, October 10, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I being appointed to take down a number of sick people from this place to Connecticut, belonging to said Colony, and draw but two days' provisions from this place to Fort George, and when I came to Fort George, I could not get any provisions, salt nor fresh; and as I had no money, it put me and the sick soldiers into a very distressing situation; but had the good fortune to borrow a little money. I got to Albany; and had it not been for Captain Phelps, we must all have suffered; but he let us have some money, though he said it was without orders; and I understand the General will not allow him a farthing of it; and he says he cannot pay any more to any body, as he has no money nor orders. And as I know our Colony is humane, and would not have their friends die for want of provision and care, therefore think I could not discharge my duty if I did not let your Honour know the situation of our sick—many obliged to sell their blankets and shirts to get bread, and others begging on the road. I beg there may be some provision made; if not, we must expect never to raise any more men. Our sick soldiers here are allowed four ounces of beef and one gill of rice per day.

Honoured Sir, forgive my freedom for letting you know the distress of the sick soldiers of our Colony. I shall be careful another year, and that is the universal say of all the officers.

I am, with respect, your Honour's very obedient humble servant,

WARHAM GIBBS, Lieutenant.

Governour Trumbull.

MAJOR FRENCH TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Hartford, October 10, 1775.

Major French, Twenty-Second Regiment, presents his compliments to Governour Trumbull, begs to inform him that there is no place of worship, according to the Church of England, in which he was educated, at Hartford. He requests he, and the gentlemen with him, who are of the same persuasion, may be removed to Middletown, or any other place not farther distant from Boston, where they may be permitted to hear the word of God according to their persuasion.

To his Honour Governour Trumbull.

MAJOR FRENCH TO T. PAINE.

Hartford, October 10, 1775.

Major French's compliments to Mr. Paine, requests he will apply to the Governour, in the name of the Committee, to inform him that he conceives (from the law of nations to prisoners of war) he has a right to demand his subsistence, and that of the gentlemen with him, amounting to seventeen shillings and six pence sterling per day; but he does not mean to draw for that sum, though he claims it as a right, and therefore requests that some determination may be come to, as they are at present, and have been for some time, destitute of money. As he and these gentlemen do not receive the allowance of the Province, at their own desire, they are willing to give such security, for the payment of what they draw for, as may be thought necessary.

To T. Paine, Esq., Hartford.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, October 10, 1775.

SIR: I have this moment received, by express, orders from the honourable Continental Congress to despatch the two armed vessels, belonging to the Colony, on a cruise after two brigs that sailed from England on the 11th of August last, for Quebeck, with six thousand stand of arms, powder, &c. I think it my duty to inform your Excellency, that the large sloop hath not yet returned from her Bermuda expedition, and that the small one is unfit for service, unless it be in our rivers; so that it is not in my power to take any measures for intercepting those vessels. I also give the same information to Governour Trumbull.

I am, Sir, your Excellency's most humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

To General Washington.

Cambridge, October 12, 1775.

Last Tuesday, one of our privateers from Beverly, having been on a cruise in the bay, was followed on her return into port by the Nautilus, man-of-war. The privateer run aground in a cove a little without Beverly harbour, where the people speedily assembled, stripped her, and carried her guns, &c., ashore. The man-of-war was soon within gun-shot, when she also got aground; she, however, let go an anchor, and bringing her broadside to bear, began to fire upon the privateer. The people of Salem and Beverly soon returned the compliment from a number of cannon on shore, keeping up a warm and well-directed fire on the man-of-war for two or three hours, and, it is supposed, did her considerable damage, and probably killed and wounded some of her men; but before they could board her, which they were preparing to do, the tide arose about eight in the evening, when she cut her cable and got off. Some of her shot struck one or two buildings in Beverly, but no lives were lost on our side, and the privateer damaged very little, if any.

No express is yet arrived here, with an account of the taking of Montreal.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Exeter, October 10, 1775.

SIR: We received yours of the 29th ultimo, enclosing a petition of the Field-Officers to have blanks sent down for commissions, to fill up vacancies, &c.; and if we were authorized by the Congress, would comply without delay. But this Committee were particularly instructed to make out commissions for the Troops, and no liberty to delegate that power. We are sensible that the officers of the Army are more capable of judging of fit persons to be promoted to offices, than the Committee, who have not had the opportunity of knowing how they have behaved in other stations. But, as they are not authorized to do otherwise, must desire a list of the vacancies, with the time that they became vacant, and the names of those persons pitched upon to fill them, sent up; and the Committee will endeavour to send down commissions as soon as possible.

Please to communicate this to the several New-Hampshire Colonels.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO THE HON. MESHECH WEARE AND NATHANIEL FOLSOM.

In Committee of Safety, Colony of New-Hampshire, }
Exeter, October 18, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: Whereas the Hon. M. Thornton, Esq., President of the Congress of this Colony, has represented to us that he had been requested by the honourable Continental Congress, and gentlemen from the other New-England Colonies, to confer on matters for the publick safety, and has further represented, that the circumstances of his family are such as will probably prevent his attendance, you are desired to attend said Conference, in behalf of this Colony, and join with them in consulting upon such measures as may be proposed for the publick weal.

By order of the Committee.

To the Honourable Meshech Weare and Nathaniel Folsom, Esquires.

ADDRESS OF NOBLEMEN, ETC., OF COUNTY OF AYR.

Address of the Noblemen and Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Ayr, presented to His Majesty by Sir Adam Fergusson, Baronet, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Noblemen and Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Ayr.

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Noblemen and Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Ayr, called together by publick advertisement, think ourselves bound in duty, in the present situation of publick affairs, most humbly to approach your Majesty with this our unanimous address, and to express our gratitude for those manifold blessings which we enjoy, in common with all our fellow-subjects, under your mild, just, and legal Government.

While we thankfully acknowledge these blessings, we observe, with the most sincere regret, that the spirit of disaffection which has for some time past unhappily prevailed in several of your Majesty's Colonies in America, has now broke out into a daring and open rebellion; a rebellion the more unjustifiable, that your Majesty's declarations from the throne, and the resolutions of Parliament, must have convinced every impartial man, that so far from a wish being entertained to oppress your subjects in America, they might, with certainty, have depended upon every indulgence, if applied for in a proper manner, consistent with the dignity and just authority of the Sovereign and Legislature of both Countries to bestow.

At the same time that we lament that infatuation which has led those deluded men to act in a manner so subversive of the peace and quiet of this great Empire, and so ruinous to themselves, we have such confidence in your Majesty as not to doubt that you will take the most effectual measures to support and maintain the constitutional rights of Great Britain.

In expressing our hopes of seeing the most efficacious means pursued for restoring good order and a due submission to Government, we have no object in view but the common happiness and prosperity of the whole State. As we are certain, from your Majesty's known clemency, that the punishment of your rebellious subjects will not be carried further than the prevention of such evils for the future, and the necessary maintenance of good government may require; so we hope from your Majesty's wisdom, and that of your Parliament, that, after peace and good order shall be re-established, those defects in the Constitution of the Colonies, which have, in part, been the occasion of these unhappy disorders, may be corrected, and such a plan of government, with regard to them, adopted, as may be effectual to ensure their obedience in time to come. In this hope, we would gladly flatter ourselves that even those events which appear most adverse to the prosperity of this great State, may, by being the means of establishing it upon a more solid foundation, tend, in the final result, to render it more permanent and secure.

In the mean time, Sire, a vigorous exertion of the power and authority of Great Britain appears clearly to us to be the only means by which these important ends can be attained. We trust your Majesty will exert it, and, in so doing, your Majesty may be assured of our most hearty support.

Signed by order and in presence of the meeting.

EGLINTOUNE, Præses.

Ayr, October 11, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF EDINBURGH.

Address of the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the City of Edinburgh, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Sir Lawrence Dundas, Baronet, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the City of EDINBURGH, in Common Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign :

Sensible of the many blessings which we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and equitable Administration, we cannot refrain, at this important crisis, from expressing our abhorrence of that rebellious spirit which has prompted your deluded subjects in America to take arms in opposition to your Majesty's Government, and to the legal authority of Parliament.

We have long beheld, with deep regret, many unwarrantable attempts which have been made to disturb the tranquillity of your Majesty's reign. We now bewail the unhappy influence of domestic faction, on the remote parts of the British Empire, which has incited the Colonies to forget what they owe to the Parent State, by which they were reared, and on which they depend, and has precipitated them into measures so undutiful to your Majesty, and so destructive to themselves.

We should ill deserve that liberty and happiness which are secured to us by your Majesty's gracious Government, if we did not declare our fixed resolution of supporting it to the utmost of our power, and express our hopes, that, by the propriety and firmness of public measures, your Majesty's American subjects will soon be induced to return to their allegiance, and to place themselves again under the protection of legal and constitutional Government.

That your Majesty's reign may be long and prosperous, and may continue to diffuse the blessings of liberty and peace among a grateful people, is the united and ardent wish of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Lord Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of your City of Edinburgh.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, the seal of the City being affixed. JA. STODART, Provost.

Edinburgh, October 11, 1775.

London, October 5, 1775.

Yesterday there was a numerous meeting of the Gentlemen, Merchants, and Traders of this City, at the King's Arms Tavern, in Cornhill. At twelve o'clock, Mr. Baker, who had been Chairman of a previous meeting, came forward and informed the gentlemen present what had been done at that meeting, and the intention of calling them together. He was immediately requested to take the chair, and again addressed the company, begging that they would be deliberate in their resolves.

Mr. Sampson, an American merchant, rose and stated the present unhappy situation of publick affairs, and concluded with moving for an humble Address, Petition, and Remonstrance to His Majesty, relative to the unhappy dispute between Great Britain and the American Colonies.

Mr. Baker then produced an Address to His Majesty, intituled "The humble Address and Petition of the Gentlemen, Merchants, and Traders of London;" which he requested he might have leave to read.

A motion was then made, seconded, and carried, that the said Petition should be read; and it was twice read accordingly, first by Mr. Baker, in his place, and afterwards by Mr. Wooldridge, merchant, at the lower end of the table.

Mr. Wooldridge having read the Petition, moved that said Petition should be approved by the meeting; which was carried unanimously. He then made a further motion, that the Petition, so approved, be signed by the company present; which was also carried.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. III.

The Chairman then informed the meeting that he had in his possession the Address, fairly transcribed on vellum, for signing; and having signed it himself, several of the merchants present followed his example.

A motion was afterwards made, that a Committee of twelve merchants attend the signing; which was carried.

Mr. Alderman Lee then moved, that the four Members for London be requested to attend Mr. Baker, the Chairman of this meeting, on the delivery of the Address to His Majesty; which was also carried in the affirmative unanimously.

Address, Memorial, and Petition of the Gentlemen, Merchants, and Traders of London, unanimously agreed to at a general meeting, called by publick advertisement, and presented to His Majesty on Wednesday, October 11, 1775, by William Baker, Esq., Chairman, accompanied by John Sawbridge and George Haley, Esquires, two of the Representatives of this City, (Mr. Oliver having been absent from Town, and Mr. Bull confined by illness.)

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address, Memorial, and Petition of the Gentlemen, Merchants, and Traders of London.

May it please your Majesty :

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Merchants, and Traders of London, beg leave to approach your Majesty with unfeigned assurance of affection and attachment to your Majesty's person and Government, and to represent, with great humility, our sentiments on the present alarming state of publick affairs.

By the operation of divers Acts of the British Parliament, we behold, with deep affliction, that happy communion of interests and good offices which had so long subsisted between this Country and America, suspended, and an intercourse which, augmenting, as it grew, the strength and dignity of your Majesty's Dominions, hath enabled your Majesty to defeat the natural rivals of your greatness in every quarter of the world, threatened with irretrievable ruin.

We should humbly represent to your Majesty, if they had not been already represented, the deadly wounds which the commerce of this Country must feel from these unfortunate measures; that it has not yet more deeply felt them, is owing to temporary and accidental causes, which cannot long continue.

But we beg your Majesty to cast an eye on the general property of this land, and to reflect what must be its fate when deprived of our American commerce.

It fills our minds with additional grief to see the blood and treasure of your Majesty's subjects wasted in effecting a fatal separation between the different parts of your Majesty's Empire, by a war, uncertain in the event, destructive in its consequences, and the object contended for lost in the contest.

The experience we have had of your Majesty's paternal regard for the welfare and privileges of all your people, and the opinion we entertain of the justice of the British Parliament, forbid us to believe, that laws, so repugnant to the policy of former times, would have received their sanction, had the real circumstances and sentiments of the Colonies been thoroughly understood, or the true principles of their connection with the Mother Country been duly weighed. We are therefore necessarily constrained to impute blame to those, by whom your Majesty and the Parliament have been designedly misled, or partially informed of those matters, on a full knowledge of which alone, determinations of such importance should have been founded.

We beg leave further to represent to your Majesty, that in questions of high national concern, affecting the dearest interests of a State, speculation and experiment are seldom to be justified; that want of foresight is want of judgment; and perseverance in measures which repeated experience hath condemned ceases to be error.

We might appeal to the history of all countries to show, that force hath never been employed with success, to change the opinions or convince the minds of freemen; and from the annals of our own, in particular, we learn that the free and voluntary gifts of the subject have ever exceeded the exactions of the sword.

Restraining, prohibitory, and penal laws, have failed to re-establish the publick tranquillity; and the present state of this unfortunate dispute affords reason to believe, that as it commenced without policy, it must be prosecuted by means which the natural and constitutional strength of Great Britain cannot supply.

In your Majesty's justice we confide for a fair construction of an apprehension we have conceived, that your Majesty hath been advised to take foreign Troops into British pay, and to raise and discipline Papists, both in Ireland and Canada, for the purpose of enforcing submission to laws, which your Majesty's Protestant subjects in America conceive to be destructive of their liberties, and against which they have repeatedly petitioned in vain.

Anxious to vindicate the national honour, we would willingly discredit reports of slaves incited to insurrection, and barbarous nations encouraged to take arms against our American brethren, if they had not prevailed without refutation, and filled the minds of your Majesty's faithful subjects with indignation and horror.

If to these circumstances of peril and distress, our fears could suggest any addition, we might justly expect it from the resentment of those powerful enemies, who have ever shown a readiness to take advantage of our internal commotions, and will joyfully embrace the occasion of avenging that disgrace they sustained during the late glorious war, from the united arms of Great Britain and America; and we should, indeed, be reduced to despair, but that we are encouraged to look up to your Majesty, the common father of all your people, as the happy instrument in the hands of Divine Providence, which bringeth good out of evil, for restoring to this distracted Empire the blessings of mutual confidence, liberty, and peace. For the speedy effecting of which, we most humbly beseech your Majesty to cause hostilities to cease in your Majesty's Colonies in America, and to adopt such mode of reconciling this unhappy controversy as may best promote the interest of commerce and the welfare of all your people.*

MR. BURKE TO MR. HAYES, THE CHAIRMAN OF THE MEETING OF MERCHANTS, ETC., AT BRISTOL.

Westminster, October 11, 1775.

SIR: I delayed my acknowledgment of your commands until I should be able to inform you that I had obeyed them. I had this day the honour of presenting your petition to the King. It was graciously received. At the same time Mr. Baker presented a petition from the merchants of London, which had the same reception.

It gave me as much pleasure, as in the present state of things I am capable of feeling, to be honoured with such commands from so numerous and respectable a body of my constituents. I do not yet abandon all hopes that truth and reason, frequently and firmly urged, will have their effect; and that the healing endeavours of good and moderate men will prevail over the hasty violence of those deluded people, who, though unable to assist either with counsels or arms, are so forward to give their inconsiderate voices for the continuance of a bloody and expensive civil war, which neither they nor those whom they urge to such a desperate course are able to foresee any end of. It is indeed a war against the interest of England, and in favour of her inveterate enemies.

I have no doubt but that you will persevere in sentiments so becoming all virtuous and sober citizens. By degrees, the example of your temper, forbearance, and moderation, operating with the unhappy effects of the present measures, which begin to be daily more and more conspicuous, will abate the irregular ardour of some fiery spirits, and render our City at least unanimous in its wishes for the tranquillity of the whole Empire.

I beg my best compliments to the gentlemen of the Committee; and do me the favour to believe me, with great esteem and regard, your most obedient and humble servant,

EDMUND BURKE.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Philadelphia, October 11, 1775.

SIR: The Congress have considered your letters of the 19th and 29th of September last, and directed me to assure you that they are very sensible of the difficulties under which you labour, and your unremitted diligence to remove such as may in any wise obstruct the publick service. They most heartily lament the loss of your health, as well on your own as on account of the publick, but find some pleasure in thinking that you are not without consolation, when you reflect, that the obligations of your Country are increased in proportion to the sacrifices you make to her interest. Their concern for the publick is greatly alleviated by the abilities and zeal of General Montgomery, in which they cannot but place the highest confidence.

* The number of names signed to this petition were one thousand one hundred.

The Congress see the necessity of attending to the situation of Canada, but trust that your care and prudence will render any delegation from this body unnecessary, at least for the present. What they expect from your endeavours is, that the Canadians be induced to accede to an union with these Colonies, and that they form from their several Parishes a Provincial Convention, and send Delegates to this Congress. And, as in the present unsettled state of that country, a regular election can hardly be expected, we must acquiesce in the choice of such Parishes and Districts as are disposed to join us.

You may assure them that we shall hold their rights as dear as our own, and, on their union with us, exert our utmost endeavours to obtain for them and their posterity the blessings of a free Government, and that security to their persons and property which is derived from the British Constitution. And you may further declare, that we hold sacred the rights of conscience, and shall never molest them in the free enjoyment of their religion.

If our arms should be crowned with success, you will consult with your principal officers about the number of Troops that will be necessary for the defence of Canada, and for the different posts of Crown Point and Ticonderoga, and the best method of procuring men for those services. If you should observe in the Canadians an inclination to take up arms, you may immediately, at the expense of the Continent, raise a Regiment, and appoint such officers as you conceive will be most agreeable to them and serviceable to us. The Congress will endeavour to attend to the clothing of your Troops, and approve of your design to purchase woollens at Montreal, which they sincerely hope it may be in your power to accomplish. You may depend upon their compliance with all contracts made by you for the supply of the Troops under your command.

The establishment of a civil Government in Canada is a subject of great consequence, and requires the most deliberate counsels. The temper, the disposition and local circumstances of our brethren in that Colony must be known, before we can form a proper judgment on so important a question. You will endeavour, therefore, to collect the sentiments of the most discreet and sensible among the principal Canadians and English on this head, and communicate their opinion, with your remarks, to the Congress.

It is the determination of the Congress, at all events, to keep the command of Lake Champlain. They would, therefore, have the most effectual measures adopted for that purpose; and, if our enemies should be expelled Montreal, will exert their utmost endeavours to secure the River St. Lawrence, and prevent, by batteries, vessels, and every other obstruction, the Ministerial Troops from regaining the possession of that Town.

The Congress approve of the presents made to the Caughnawagas, also of the disposition of the prisoners, and have borrowed one ton of gunpowder from the Committee of Safety of this Colony, and directed it to be sent to the Provincial Convention of New-York, with a request to transmit to you the whole, or such a part of it as they can spare; nails will be supplied you by the Convention of New-York, when they receive your direction on that head. They, together with the Committee of Albany, and the Governour of Connecticut, will, on application, furnish such carpenters and blacksmiths as you may want, over and above what may be procured from among the Troops. As for the artificers taken from thence, you will pay them the customary allowance, if you think their services entitle them to any reward. The Congress are pleased with the mode in which you propose to settle with and pay those who took and garrisoned Crown Point, and desire that the accounts may be transmitted to them as soon as possible.

Mr. Phelps will be considered as Deputy to Mr. Livingston, for the New-York Department, and be paid as such at the rate of forty Dollars per month, from his entrance into the service. The Congress are greatly hurt at the misconduct of a part of the Troops, and hope they will take the earliest opportunity to obliterate their disgrace. It is their earnest wish, that the strictest discipline be observed; for, as on the one hand they are resolved to reward those who deserve their favour, so on the other, a regard for their Country forbids them to overlook the offences of such as neglect their duty, or basely betray their trust.

I cannot conclude without assuring you, that the Congress are highly sensible of the spirit, activity, and zeal, of Mr. James Livingston, from which they cannot but promise themselves advantages that will be entitled to their earliest recompense.

I have the honour to be, &c.,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Philadelphia, October 11, 1775.

To follow a certain party through all their windings, doublings, and jesuitical contrivances, would require some judgment and attention, but certainly an indefinite share of patience. When the words faction, sedition, and oppugnation to Government, have entirely lost their force with the people, we are now plagued with a new Shibboleth or Witch of Endor, conjured up to set the lazy, timid, ignorant, ambitious, and corrupt, at variance with the men whose disinterested wisdom and spirit have long laboured for the deliverance of this oppressed and devoted Country. This dreadful, this alarming sound, is nothing less than the long word INDEPENDENCE; a word which, I confess, was grating to the ears of every devotee to the shrine of power, in Church or State, longer than any now living can remember. Did people universally apprehend the snare, little need be said on this ridiculous subject; but when real effects are observed to follow the lowest efforts to injure the Country, an honest man will not think his time totally misspent while he is busied in exposing the dark designs of its enemies.

The idea now held out for a scare-crow to the weak and irresolute, is, that if our dear Mother Country should once withdraw her omnipotent protection, we should instantly fall a prey to other nations; and that, to prevent this tremendous evil, we had better propose or accept of any terms of accommodation, than run the venture of falling into it. That once to indulge a thought of setting up for ourselves includes every idea of breach of our ancient Constitution, of rule by a King, Lords, and Commons, and threatens, if not the worst of anarchy and confusion, at least a Republican establishment, abhorred by some more than the tyranny of Spain or Morocco. To give this Centaur a more terrific appearance, it is said that the moment we become free from a foreign master, we shall fall to cutting the throats of each other; and a combination is already discovered between the Massachusetts Presbyterians and Virginia Churchmen, to persecute, if not exterminate, the poor Quakers, Anabaptists, and all other persuasions, and render theirs the established faith.

To have a thorough understanding of these matters, it becomes necessary to analyze this chaos of tory jargon, and consider each part and parcel thereof soberly apart. And to take the most alarming supposition first into consideration: Let any one show me the probability of either of the maritime powers of Europe falling upon and endeavouring to destroy the granary from whence they derive the chief supplies necessary for the carrying on of their own plantations. Farmers are like Pythagoras's sheep: they profit much more by their encouraged industry than ravaged plunder; all that is worth having from the Colonies may be obtained from them in the way of commerce; and whoever attempts other means with them will find loss and disappointment the consequence. Great Britain, founded on an exclusive trade to these Colonies, has long been boasting of giving law to Europe; will the powers thus insulted be reluctant to a circumstance which will check this enormous power? Credat Judæus Appella, non ego. Britain was certainly great at the end of last war, and great is the sorrow of every honest man that this era so much resembled the Julian period of all-conquering Rome. Britons, most strenuously aided by Americans, conquered; but for whom? For any solid advantage to the inhabitants of either Country at large? By no means. A George as well as a Julius seemed to think all won for himself and favourites. What have the common people, either in Britain or America, had in return for their so freely lavished blood and treasures in the acquirement of new territories over half the globe? New taxes, new boards of commissioners, with an indefinite train of dependants, to collect and consume them; and this innovation on pretence of making provision for the distribution of civil justice in and protection of the Colonies. Short was the term, however, that this ridiculous mask was used to cover the designs of Administration. Instead of protection of the Colonists' properties from any invasion, foreign or domestic, it quickly appeared that their subjection to the will of the Ministry "in all cases whatsoever" was the object in view; and from that time to this it has, in a lower or louder tone, been uttered, that a standing Army was necessary to be kept up in the Colonies, at their expense, to ensure their obedience. Here is, in truth, the protection intended for the Colonies! Here is the constitutional dependance insisted on with so much eagerness, by the party who have already rendered Great Britain so dependant upon them, that the power of the people in Parliament is a mere vax et preterea nihil, the omnipotent Minister is all in all. He can raise fleets and armies, can shut ports and open them, can suspend legislatures and restore them, can tear charters into pieces; and of his own mere pleasure establish what kind of Constitution he judges most to his purpose, in territories where he never had an atom of constitutional power since the creation. Whoever thinks this representation of a Ministerial power overstrained, let them read Burgh's Political Disquisitions, now reprinted in this City; and I dare pledge myself he will find that what our sleek courtiers here called dependance on the Parent State is in reality a dependance on George the Third, and Lords Bute and Mansfield. What proposals of accommodation Rebels are to make to these illustrious personages, may be guessed by any one who remembers the terms granted the Charibs, "to be at the King's will." If this be the dependance I must acknowledge, in order to be esteemed a liegeman and good citizen, I confess myself quite unripe for the surrender.

If any can show me that less than this, and the delivering up of a considerable number of the most conspicuous opposers of a most violent usurpation, will ensure us peace and liberty, I will candidly acknowledge he has conferred a great favour upon me, for which I am unspeakably obliged to him.

The next objection in course is, that once to indulge a thought of setting up for ourselves includes every idea of breach of our ancient Constitution, of rule by King, Lords, and Commons, and threatens (if not the worst of anarchy and confusion) at least a Republican establishment.

To talk of our breaking any compact or Constitution with the Parent State, at this time of day, and aiming at independency or revolting, and setting up for ourselves, and thereby incurring the imputation of rebellious and wicked children, is just as fair and pertinent as to accuse a son who had taken a wife and plantation for himself, and when he had by his own labour subdued the soil, and was enjoying from it a comfortable subsistence, of ingratitude and disobedience, or want of filial duty, if he refused to admit of his father's absolute direction of all his affairs, and taking to himself what share of the profits of his farm he pleased. In every civilized community, one would expect to find a time when men ought to be esteemed of age to determine and act for themselves.

Respecting the ancient constitutional mode of Government, by King, Lords, and Commons, in the Kingdom of Great Britain, it may have been the best mode that could have been fallen upon for the government of that people; but why these young agrarian States, where no such being as a Lord exists, should have any regard to a set of prerogatives which a number of petty tyrants usurped, and by force of arms confirmed to themselves, I have not hitherto had penetration to discover. I presume, whoever will take the pains to inform himself of Denmark, Sweden, or Poland, will find nothing in the character of their Lords which will set him on longing for such an order of men in America. If a Republican Government, as it was managed in England, where, by the way, it never did in our knowledge exist, failed to give peace and security there, it has been more fortunate in Holland. And doubtless the fitness or inadequacy of peculiar forms of Government are ever relative to the circumstances of the people for whom they are designed.

The danger of our falling into civil wars among ourselves I view at a remote distance as yet; and all that can be harped on the string of religious domination is perfectly idle, for the major voice of the Continent would be, "no particular establishment whatever," if it was now put to vote; and as there seems little danger of this Country growing more ignorant while it maintains its liberty, there is no little probability of graceless zealots, or ignorant bigots, disturbing the community much about their peculiar modes of faith. I believe none but enemies to the civil and religious rights and liberties of America have any reason to dread their power.

I most sincerely wish that my countrymen, of every sect and denomination, would take pains to "search the Scriptures," i. e. the writings of the learned and good, who have set life and death, political as well as spiritual, before their eyes, and gain a capacity to judge for themselves in matters of such importance as the liberty of themselves and posterity. Every man is obliged to know the law, at his peril; and who can have any serviceable knowledge of municipal law, unless he studies natural and politick law, on which municipal law is founded? Two moderate octavos, published by Burlamaqui, will instruct him in these important elements of the science, without which he is really incapable of enjoying the benefits of civil society. When men talk of their aversion to politicks, I cannot avoid pitying their misled apprehensions of the term, condemning their laziness, or detesting their wickedness. Every freeman, says Blackstone, ought to be in some measure his own governor: and how shall he either govern or obey, with any degree of understanding, if ignorant of the very first principles of the rule of his conduct? Thus much, says the same author, is incumbent on persons even of inferior condition, who have neither time nor capacity to enlarge their views. But those on whom nature and fortune have bestowed more abilities and greater leisure cannot be easily excused; even to suppose such ignorant in their branch of learning is treated by Mr. Locke (whom he quotes) as a strange absurdity. Would every one who can read peruse Lord Somers's Judgment of Nations, (a two shilling pamphlet,) and Locke on Government, (about the same bulk,) they would need no more excitement to study their birth-rights.

ABNER BRIGGS TO NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

To the Honourable the Committee of Safety for the City of NEW-YORK.

The humble Petition of ABNER BRIGGS, in behalf of the United Inhabitants of the Island of NANTUCKET, sheweth:

Whereas the inhabitants of said Island are greatly distressed for the want of provisions, and have been necessitated to apply to some part of the Continent for a supply; and knowing their situation to be such as would attract the attention and compassion of any one properly acquainted with the truly deplorable state in which they at present are, first made application to the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Falmouth. Leave was accordingly very readily granted to have it exported from thence, not doubting but it might be safely conveyed, as per the resolves of said Committee, which herewith please to receive. But the brave American Army being in the parts adjacent, and consequently ought to be sufficiently supplied, require all the provisions that can be conveniently spared from those parts. Should your Honours kindly grant leave to have a small vessel, of about thirty tons burden, loaded at this place, for the supply of the said inhabitants of Nantucket, your petitioner will give sufficient bonds, to any amount, that he will with the greatest care first convey the said cargo of provisions to the aforesaid Town of Falmouth, and there will give sufficient bonds to deliver the same at Nantucket.

N. B. The above petition has been presented to the Committee, who refer it to the consideration of the honourable the Provincial Congress, for their sentiments on the matter.

CHRISTIAN BERGH AND OTHERS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

New-York Jail, October 11, 1775.

To the Gentlemen of the Congress.

The humble Petition of TIMOTHY DOUGHTY, CHRISTIAN BERGH, Jun., and ADAM BERGH, sheweth:

That your petitioners have been confined almost six weeks, expecting to be brought to trial for a certain misdemeanor laid to their charge; and your petitioners have expended all their money, and must now suffer, without they have a speedy delivery. Your said petitioners also have large families (of twenty children) at home, not able to maintain themselves, because of their infancy. Your petitioners therefore humbly pray that the gentlemen of the Congress will take the same into consideration, and give your petitioners a speedy hearing, or at least permit your petitioners the liberty of the Town, so that they may go to their acquaintance, and obtain a living with them until such time as they shall be called upon to have their hearing. Your petitioners promise not to leave the Town till they shall be duly discharged; they also will appear every day at the Hall, if it is required; and your petitioners will ever pray.

CHRISTIAN BERGH, JUN.,
ADAM BERGH,
TIMOTHY DOUGHTY.

COL. JOSEPH REED TO COL. GLOVER AND STEPHEN MOYLAN.

Cambridge, October 11, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Yours of the 9th instant came safely to hand. It is some disappointment to us that the vessels cannot be got ready sooner, as we have just received very important advices respecting the despatch of a number of transports from England, which may be hourly expected on the coast. The General, therefore, directs that you will immediately set every hand to work that can be procured, and not a moment of time be lost in getting them ready. One of you will also proceed immediately to Newbury, and take up a fourth vessel on the same service. There are carpenters, guns, &c., to be had there in great plenty; and let the same expedition be used to this vessel. On the day the vessels are ready to sail you will give us notice, that we may despatch the crews. In the equipment of the two first vessels let the agents lay in provisions for six weeks, with water accordingly, for seventy men.

Should Mr. Moylan be gone to Portsmouth, Colonel Glover is directed to forward the express with this letter, that he may immediately return to Newburyport to take up the fourth vessel, which he will do on the best terms, and let us know what he will want to equip the vessel for the sea. The General approves of the steps taken respecting those already engaged.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant.

J. REED.

To Colonel Glover and Stephen Moylan, Esq., Salem or Marblehead.

P. S. The Instructions for the agents will be forwarded in a day or two.

JOS. REED TO PRESIDENT OF COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 11, 1775.

SIR: There were two women, taken in the Quebeck brig, sent down here by the honourable Board, to go into Boston. There were some particular reasons against their going into the Town for a few days. They were accordingly ordered to stay here for that time; instead of which, we are informed they returned to Watertown, and perhaps may have troubled the Council unnecessarily. As the request of the General Court was complied with, it was not thought needful to trouble them with an answer. If the women should be at Watertown again, they may be directed to come here, as there is now no objection to their going in immediately.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
JOSEPH REED.

CONNECTICUT ASSEMBLY.

Anno Regni Regis Georgii Tertii 15to, 1775.

At a General Assembly of the Governour and Company of the English Colony of Connecticut, in New-England, in America, holden at New-Haven, in said Colony, on the second Thursday of October, being the eleventh day of said month, and continued by several adjournments to the twenty-fifth day of the same month, Annoq. Domini 1775. Present:

The Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour, Jabez Hamlin, Elisha Sheldon, Jabez Huntington, William Pitkin, Abraham Davenport, William Samuel Johnson, Oliver Wolcott, Samuel Huntington, Esquires, Assistants.

Representatives or Deputies of the Freemen of the several Towns, are as follow, viz:

HARTFORD.—Colonel John Pitkin, Mr. Benj. Payne.
 FARMINGTON.—Colonel Isaac Lee, Colonel Fisher Gay.
 SUFFIELD.—Captain Abraham Granger, Captain John Harman.
 COLCHESTER.—Mr. Daniel Foot, Capt. Peter Bulkley.
 EAST-WINDSOR.—Colonel Erastus Wolcott, Mr. Benoni Olcott.
 WEATHERSFIELD.—Colonel Thomas Belden.
 SIMSBURY.—Mr. Judah Holcomb, Mr. Elisha Graham.
 EAST-HADDAM.—Mr. Daniel Brainard, Mr. Jabez Chapman.
 STAFFORD.—Capt. Isaac Pinney, Capt. Samuel Davis.
 HADDAM.—Capt. Joseph Brooks, Mr. Joseph Smith.
 HEBRON.—Capt. Benjamin Buell, Mr. Samuel Gilbert.
 WILLINGTON.—Major Elijah Fenton, Mr. Caleb Holt.
 BOLTON.—Mr. Benjamin Trumbull, Mr. Seth King.
 TOLLAND.—Mr. Ichabod Greggs, Captain James Chamberlin.
 ENFIELD.—Maj. Nathaniel Terry, Mr. Nathaniel Chapin.
 SOMERS.—Mr. Hezekiah Spencer, Mr. Reuben Sikes.
 MIDDLETOWN.—Mr. Titus Hosmer, Doctor John Dickenson.
 WINDSOR.—Major Roger Newbury, Capt. Henry Allyn.
 GLASTENBURY.—Capt. Jonathan Wells, Mr. Elijah Holister.
 CHATHAM.—Mr. David Sage, Mr. Ebenezer White.
 NEW-HAVEN.—Mr. Samuel Bishop, Mr. Jonathan Fitch.
 DURHAM.—Colonel James Wadsworth, Jun., Mr. Daniel Hall.
 WATERBURY.—Mr. Joseph Hopkins, Capt. Ezra Brunson.
 MILFORD.—Mr. Ephraim Strong, Mr. Isaac Mills.
 GUILFORD.—Mr. John Burgess, Mr. Samuel Brown.
 DERBY.—Captain John Holbrook.
 BRANFORD.—Capt. Edward Russell, Mr. Daniel Page.
 WALLINGFORD.—Mr. Samuel Beach, Mr. Oliver Stanly.
 NEW-LONDON.—Mr. Richard Law, Mr. William Hildhouse.
 NORWICH.—Mr. Benjamin Huntington, Mr. Isaac Tracy.
 KILLINGWORTH.—Mr. Elnathan Stevens, Mr. Hezekiah Lane.
 SAYBROOK.—Captain Benjamin Williams, Captain Justus Buck.
 LYME.—Major Samuel Selden, Mr. John Lay, 2d.
 STONINGTON.—Mr. Nathaniel Minor, Captain William Williams.
 GROTON.—Mr. Thomas Mumford, Mr. Nathan Gallop.
 PRESTON.—Capt. William Witter, Capt. Joseph Tyler.
 FAIRFIELD.—Mr. Jonathan Sturgess, Mr. Thaddeus Burr.
 STRATFORD.—Captain Robert Fairchild, Colonel Ichabod Lewis.
 STAMFORD.—Mr. Benjamin Weed, Mr. Thomas Young.
 NORWALK.—Colonel Thomas Fitch, Doctor Thaddeus Betts.
 GREENWICH.—Colonel John Mead.
 RIDGEFIELD.—Mr. Samuel Olmstead, Colonel Philip B. Bradley.
 DANBURY.—Captain Daniel Starr.
 NEW-FAIRFIELD.—Mr. Alexander Stewart, Captain Dan Turner.
 REDDING.—Mr. Lemuel Sanford, Mr. William Hawley.
 WINDHAM.—Mr. Samuel Webb, Mr. Ebenezer Devotion.
 LEBANON.—Colonel William Williams.

CANTERBURY.—Colonel Jabez Fitch, Captain Ebenezer Bacon.

COVENTRY.—Captain Ebenezer Kingsbury, Mr. Jeremiah Ripley.

PLAINFIELD.—Mr. William Robinson, Mr. Joshua Dunlap.

POMFRET.—Colonel Ebenezer Williams.

ASHFORD.—Captain Benjamin Sumner, Mr. Ezra Smith.

KILLINGLY.—Mr. Simeon Learned, Mr. Benjamin Leavins.

MANSFIELD.—Mr. Benjamin Chaplin, Captain Amariah Williams.

WOODSTOCK.—Captain Elisha Child, Capt. Samuel McClellan.

VOLUNTOWN.—Mr. James Gordon, Mr. Robert Hunter.

LITCHFIELD.—Mr. Abraham Bradley.

WOODBURY.—Mr. Daniel Sherman, Captain Increase Moseley.

TORRINGTON.—Mr. John Cook.

SHARON.—Mr. John Canfield, Mr. Caleb Jewett.

GOSHEN.—Col. Ebenezer Norton, Mr. David Thompson.

CANAAN.—Capt. Samuel Forbes, Mr. Asahel Bebee.

NEW-MILFORD.—Major Samuel Canfield, Capt. Sherman Boardman.

CORNWALL.—Mr. Edward Rogers, Mr. John Pearce.

NEW-HARTFORD.—Mr. Abel Merrill, Capt. Seth Smith.

KENT.—Capt. Jethro Hatch, Capt. Justus Sackett.

HARWINTON.—Mr. Josiah Phelps, Capt. John Wilson.

WESTMORELAND.—Col. Zebulon Butler, Major Ezekiel Pearce.

SALISBURY.—Capt. Abiel Camp, Capt. James Bird.

William Williams, Esq., Speaker of the House of Representatives; Richard Law, Esq., Clerk.

Resolved by this Assembly, That an Embargo be forthwith laid upon the exportation out of this Colony, by water, of the following articles of Provision, viz: Wheat, Rye, Indian Corn, Pork, Beef, Live Cattle, Peas and Beans, Butter, Cheese, Bread, Flour, and every kind of Meat, except necessary stores for Vessels bound to sea; and that his Honour the Governour be, and he is hereby desired to issue a Proclamation laying such Embargo, and prohibiting the exportation of such Provisions accordingly; such Embargo to continue till the first day of June next: provided, nevertheless, that his Honour the Governour be, and he is hereby empowered and fully authorized to grant Permits for the exportation out of this Colony, by water, of Live Cattle and Provisions, in such cases, and to such ports and places, as he shall judge necessary and expedient for the publick service: provided, also, that his Honour the Governour, by and with the advice of the Council, may discontinue the Embargo, in whole or in part, at any time when they shall judge it expedient.

This Assembly being informed that certain questions and disputes have arose amongst the Troops lately raised by this Colony, and sent into the Colony of New-York, and such as are now employed against the Ministerial Forces in Canada; which disputes, unless prevented, may be attended with unhappy consequences:

Therefore, it is hereby Resolved by this Assembly, That all the Troops which have been lately raised by this Colony, for the special defence thereof, and sent into the Colony of New-York, and all such as are now employed against the Ministerial Troops in Canada, are and shall be subject to the Rules, Orders, Regulations, and Discipline of the Congress of the Twelve United Colonies, during the time of their enlistment.

Resolved by this Assembly, That Roger Sherman, Oliver Wolcott, Samuel Huntington, Titus Hosmer, and William Williams, Esquires, be, and they are hereby appointed Delegates to represent this Colony at the General Congress of the United Colonies in America, for the year ensuing, and until others be chosen; that is to say: the said Roger Sherman, Oliver Wolcott, and Samuel Huntington, Esquires, do attend said Congress; and, on the failure of either of the said gentlemen, by sickness or otherwise, then the said Titus Hosmer or William Williams, Esquires, are to supply the place or places of any or either of the said three gentlemen first named, in such manner that three of said Delegates, and three only, do attend said Congress at any one time; and the said three Delegates, or any or either of them who shall be present in said Congress, are hereby fully authorized and empowered to represent this Colony in said Congress, to consult, advise, and resolve, upon measures necessary to be taken and pursued for the defence, security, and preservation of the rights and liberties of the said United Colonies, and for their common safety; and of such their proceedings and resolves they do transmit authentick copies, from time to time, to the General Assembly of this Colony; that the said Delegates, now appointed, do repair to and take their seats in said Congress by the first day of January next, in case said Congress shall be then sitting, or as soon after as said Congress shall be convened; and that the said gentlemen who are now attending said Congress in behalf of this Colony, do continue in their said office until the gentlemen now chosen, and are directed to attend in manner aforesaid, shall arrive at said Congress.

Whereas the Committee appointed by this Assembly in May last, for the purpose of procuring three thousand stand of Arms for the use of this Colony, &c., have now represented to this Assembly that they have proceeded in said business, and procured a considerable number of said Arms to be made in this Colony, which are now in the hands of said Committee; but, notwithstanding their utmost assiduity, have not been able to procure the whole number ordered by said Act, within the time therein limited:

Resolved by this Assembly, That the said Committee be directed, and they are hereby directed, to purchase and receive for the use of this Colony all the stands of Fire-Arms which shall be made and completed within this Colony, according to the direction of the aforesaid Act, and shall be delivered to said Committee at any time before the first day of May next; and the manufacturers of said Fire-Arms and Gun-Locks shall be entitled to and receive the same bounty as those are entitled to by said Act, who made and delivered to the Committee any Arms before the twentieth day of October instant, the time therein limited.

An Act in further addition to an Act entitled An Act for the forming and regulating the Militia, and for the encouragement of military skill, for the better defence of this Colony.

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That the chief officer of every Troop shall cause the Arms and Ammunition of all under his command, and the chief officer of every Company of Foot shall cause the Arms and Ammunition of all under his command, and also of all others, dwelling within the limits of his Company, who are by law obliged to keep Arms, to be reviewed on the first Monday of May and the first Monday of October, annually, by requiring such persons to bring forth their Arms and Ammunition at a certain time and place by such officer appointed; and if any of the persons aforesaid shall not appear, being thereto required and duly warned, or shall be deficient in Arms or Ammunition, such persons, respectively, shall pay the same fine for non-appearance, and also for deficiency of Arms or Ammunition, as in and by said Act is provided; saving and excepting, in said Act is excepted, any repealing Act, or any law, usage, or custom, to the contrary notwithstanding; this Act to continue and be in force for the term of one year from the rising of this Assembly, and no longer.

An Act in further addition to an Act entitled An Act for forming and regulating the Militia, and for the encouragement of military skill, for the better defence of this Colony.

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That each and every Trooper, enlisted into and belonging to any Troop of Horse in this Colony, shall, within three months from the first day of November next, furnish and provide himself with a suitable Horse and furniture, a Carbine, and every other article of Fire-Arms and accoutrements which are, by law, already directed and prescribed for Troopers, and the same constantly hold and keep in readiness for service; and that every person who shall hereafter enlist and be received into any Troop of Horse, shall, within three months after such his enlistment, be completely furnished, provided, and equipped, in manner aforesaid.

Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That every enlisted or to be enlisted Trooper, who shall neglect to furnish and provide himself in manner and within the time and times limited as aforesaid, shall be, by the Captain or chief officer of such Troop, discharged and dismissed from the same; and every person so discharged shall be liable and shall attend and perform military duty in the Company of Foot, within whose limits he shall be long, under the same regulations as the soldiers of said Company, by law, are, unless such discharged Trooper is or shall be, by law, otherwise exempted.

Be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the Captain or chief officer of every Troop, where any such neglect shall happen, shall, within a short reasonable time after, certify such neglect, and the names of the persons so neglecting and discharged, to the Captain or chief officer of the Foot Company, within whose limits the same shall happen; and it shall be the duty of such Captain of such Foot Company to enroll and require such discharged Trooper to attend and do duty in his Company as aforesaid.

And it is further enacted, That if any Captain or chief officer, of any Company of Horse or Foot, shall neglect his duty as required by this Act, he shall pay a fine of ten Shillings, for each offence, to the Town Treasurer of the Town to which he belongs, for the use of said Town, to be recovered, by warrant, from the Colonel of the Regiment to which he belongs: provided, nevertheless, that if any such Trooper shall be deficient in any article required, which is not to be had or obtained in this Colony, it shall be in the power of the Colonel or chief officer of the Regiment, in such case only, to excuse him from the penalty of this Act until such articles can be procured.

Whereas the Listers, in sundry Towns in this Colony, have, by mistake, omitted to insert, in the General List of Polls and Rateable Estate in such Towns, made up and sent to this Assembly, the Polls of the Officers and Soldiers belonging to said Towns, who are abroad in the service of this Colony, in the Army, from whence inconveniences may arise; which to prevent,

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Lists made up as aforesaid, without inserting the Polls of such Officers and Soldiers, may be received and entered by the Committee for receiving the Lists from the several Towns, said omission notwithstanding.

And it is further Resolved, That the Listers, in any of the Towns in this Colony, who have omitted to insert the Polls of such Officers and Soldiers, in the Lists they have made up and sent to this Assembly, be and they are directed and enjoined to make up an additional List of the Polls of such Officers and Soldiers, and send the same to this Assembly, at this or their next session.

And whereas said omissions proceeded from a mistaken apprehension of their duty in such Listers, for which said Towns ought not suffer loss or damage:

Resolved, That said Towns shall have and receive their School Money, after the rate of forty Shillings on every thousand Pounds, on such additions of the Polls of said Officers and Soldiers, out of the publick Treasury, said omissions notwithstanding; and the Treasurer is authorized and directed to pay the same to such Towns accordingly.

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Treasurer of this Colony be directed, and he is hereby directed and ordered, to receive into the Treasury all such sum or sums of Money, or Bills, lately emitted by order of the Continental Congress, which have already or hereafter shall be ordered by said Congress to be remitted to this Colony.

And whereas there is now in the hands of William Williams, Esq., Speaker of the Lower House of Assembly, a large sum of said Bills, &c.,

It is further Resolved, That the said William Williams, Esq., do deliver said Bills, now in his hands, to the Treasurer, and receive his receipt therefor, and lodge the same with the Secretary of this Colony; and also receive a receipt for all such sum or sums which the Treasurer hath heretofore received from any other person or persons, and lodge the same as aforesaid. And that it shall be the duty of those who shall hereafter be employed to bring further sum or sums of said Money, or Bills, to deliver the same to the Treasurer, and receive his receipt therefor, and lodge the same with the Secretary as aforesaid; and that the Treasurer pay out the same according to the order of this Assembly.

Whereas this Assembly have appointed and authorized John Canfield, Esq., to receive out of the Colony Treasury the sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds, lawful money, which he is to apply to the relief of the infirm and sick Soldiers at Ticonderoga, and the parts adjacent, in the service of the United Colonies, in such way and manner as in the Act of this Assembly is directed; and this Assembly being informed that there are Continental Bills in the hands of Colonel William Williams, that are to be delivered by him into the Treasury of this Colony:

Resolved, therefore, by this Assembly, That the said John Canfield, Esq., apply to the said Colonel Williams, and receive of him so many Continental Bills as to amount to said sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds; which sum the said Colonel Williams is desired to pay to the said John Canfield, Esq.; and said Canfield's receipt therefor shall be accepted, by the Treasurer of this Colony, as payment for that sum, of the said Col. William Williams.

Resolved by this Assembly, That John Canfield, Esq., receive, out of the Colony Treasury, the sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds, and thereupon forthwith repair to Ticonderoga, and parts adjacent, and apply to the proper officers of the United Colonies, that they afford all proper and suitable relief, on account of the United Colonies, to all sick and infirm Soldiers, in that quarter, who have enlisted in the service of this Colony, and are or may be lawfully returning home; and in case no adequate relief can be had on account of the United Colonies, then he, the said John Canfield, Esq., is hereby directed to give such sick and infirm Soldiers all such relief as may be necessary, at the expense of this Colony, and lay his account, for his services and expenditures herein, before the Pay Table for allowance, and fully account for the money he shall receive as aforesaid. And the said John Canfield, Esq., is further directed to receive and adjust all accounts, which have arisen for the relief of such sick and infirm Soldiers, for which no compensation has or can be otherwise obtained, and lay the same before the Pay Table, who shall order payment therefor, and for all other accounts which have or may have arisen in manner aforesaid, according to what they shall find justly and equitably due.

An Act providing for the defence of the Sea-Coast of this Colony, during the term therein limited.

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That a Company of seventy men be enlisted and stationed at New-London, from the 20th day of October instant, until the 1st day of December next, for the defence of the same; that said men be commanded by a Captain, two Lieutenants, and an Ensign. That the works begun on the old Fort, at New-London, be finished and completed, and that said men, to be enlisted, be employed in performing the same; and that the Cannon belonging to this Colony, now in said New-London, be mounted on said Fort, and that said Fort be supplied with one ton of Gunpowder out of the Colony stores. That a suitable platform be erected and made on said Fort, and that the Colony Treasurer, by order of the Committee of Pay Table, issue and pay to the Captain of said Company of Soldiers the sum of one hundred Pounds, to be laid out in purchase of materials for said platform, and other necessary expenses on said works, for which the said Captain shall render his account when required. That a Company of thirty men be enlisted and stationed at New-Haven, under the command of a Lieutenant, from the 20th day of October instant, until the 1st day of December next, for the defence thereof. That fifteen men be enlisted and stationed at Lyme, under the command of a Lieutenant, from said 20th of October to said 1st day of December, for the defence thereof. That a Company of forty men be enlisted and stationed at Stonington, under the command of a Captain, from said 20th day of October to said 1st day of December, for the defence thereof. That said Officers and Soldiers shall have and receive the same monthly wages with the Officers and Soldiers already raised for the defence of this Colony; and that said Officers and Soldiers be allowed the sum of five Shillings and three Pence, per week, for their billeting, during the term aforesaid; and that the Officers already appointed by his Honour the Governour and Committee of Safety, still continue to have the command of said respective bodies of men, agreeable to said appointment.

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Committee of Pay Table be directed, and they are hereby directed and ordered, as soon as may be, to prepare and state an account of all the expense and disbursements this Colony hath been at in raising, equipping, and furnishing the Troops lately raised in this Colony, agreeable to Act of this Assembly, for the defence of the invaded rights of America, and all other expense which has been incurred by this Colony in defence and prosecution of the said common cause of America, and transmit to his Honour the Governour an authenticated copy of said accounts, who is hereby desired to transmit the same to the honourable Continental Congress, and request the payment of the balance which shall appear to be due to this Colony.

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Committee of Pay Table be and they are hereby directed to receive, adjust, and allow what is reasonable, of the accounts of Physicians, Surgeons, Nurses, and others, who have attended or shall attend upon or support the sick, among the Troops raised by this Colony, who are taken sick in the service either before or on the march to or from their encampments, and not under advantage of being taken care of as the sick in the Army are, and to draw upon the Treasurer of this Colony for the payment thereof accordingly.

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Post now riding from Woodstock to Fairfield, through Lebanon, in this Colony, be, and he is hereby directed to be continued by the same person or persons, and under the same regulations and circumstances, at the publick expense, as has been heretofore used and practised, until the further order of this Assembly, or until some other regulations, adequate to the purposes of such Post, shall be made by the Postmaster-General.

Whereas his Honour the Governour, with the Committee of Safety, did order a number of Men, Officers and Soldiers, to be raised for the defence of the Towns of New-Haven, New-London, Lyme, and Stonington, in this Colony, at which places said Officers and Soldiers were stationed from the 20th day of October instant:

Resolved, therefore, by this Assembly, That the Committee of the Pay Table for this Colony be, and they are hereby empowered to receive, examine, and adjust, the several Accounts and Expenditures for the purpose aforesaid, and draw orders for the payment thereof upon the Treasurer of this Colony, who is hereby directed to pay such sums to the chief officer of each Company, respectively, as shall be found due.

Whereas this Assembly, in their session in May last, appointed Colonel Erastus Wolcott, Captain Samuel Wadsworth, Captain Ezekiel Williams, Mr. Epaphras Bull, Henry Allyn, Esq., Colonel Fisher Gay, Colonel Matthew Talcott, Colonel James Wadsworth, Captain Jonathan Wells, Ebenezer White, Esq., and Colonel Jonathan Humphrey, a Committee, with instructions, at the expense of this Colony, to take care of and provide for a number of Officers and Soldiers, with their Families, &c., who were then Prisoners of War in the Town of Hartford; and this Assembly being informed that a number of such Prisoners are now in this Colony, and no provision is made for their confinement and support, therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee aforesaid be empowered, and they are hereby fully authorized, to take care of and provide for all such Prisoners as are or shall be ordered and directed to this Colony by authority, in the same manner as in said Act they are directed.

Whereas a former Assembly did appoint Daniel Sherman and Benjamin Stiles, Esquires, a Committee to pay off the Prizes in the Ousatonic River Lottery, that were not discharged by the Managers of said Lottery; and for that purpose did order the Treasurer of this Colony to deliver into the hands of said Sherman and Stiles, Esquires, the sum of five hundred Pounds, lawful money, whereof they were to account to this Assembly; and whereas no account has been rendered by those gentlemen:

Resolved by this Assembly, That Colonel Oliver Wolcott, and Andrew Adams, Esq., be a Committee to settle and adjust accounts with the said Daniel Sherman and Benjamin Stiles, Esquires, of their doings in the premises, and receive of them whatever sum or part of said five hundred Pounds may be left in their hands, not disposed of for the use aforesaid; and said former Committee are directed to render their account and payment, as aforesaid, to the present Committee, who are to make report to the next General Assembly, of their doings in the premises.

Resolved by this Assembly, That his Honour the Governor be desired to write to the Continental Congress, and state the several matters relative to the Prisoners of War who now are or hereafter shall be brought into this Colony, and request the direction of said Congress in what manner the Officers and Soldiers who are Prisoners as aforesaid shall be provided for and supported, and how and in what manner the expense incurred thereby shall be defrayed; and that his Honour transmit, therewith, a copy of General Washington's Letter to the Committee of Inspection at Hartford, respecting Major French and his companions; also, said French's request, contained in his Billet to Mr. Payne, and Captain William Delaplace's Memorial, preferred to this Assembly.

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Accounts exhibited to this Assembly, for allowance, by John Boles, Jun., and John Boles, 3d, both of New-London, for sundry articles supplied to Officers and Soldiers raised in this Colony, be referred to the Committee of Pay Table, who are directed to examine and adjust said Accounts, and to draw on the Treasurer for what they shall allow therein, and charge the same to the respective Officers at whose request the said articles were had, as appears by said Accounts, to be adjusted, upon settlement, between said Committee of Pay Table and said Officers; which said Accounts said Committee of Pay Table are directed to receive and keep for that purpose.

This Assembly do appoint Jonathan Fitch, Esq., to be Colonel of the Second Regiment of Militia in this Colony, in the room of Colonel Leveret Hubbard, resigned.

Major William Danielson to be Lieutenant-Colonel of the Eleventh Regiment in this Colony, in the room of Lieutenant-Colonel Putnam, promoted.

Captain Samuel McClellan to be Major of the Eleventh Regiment in this Colony, in the room of Major Danielson, promoted.

Joseph Hopkins, Esq., and Captain Samuel Fords are appointed a Committee to repair to the Lead Mines in New-Canaan, and examine into the quality, state, and circumstances thereof, and report the same to this Assembly at their next session.

On information of the state, circumstances, and doings, of the West Military Company or Trainband, in the Society of Northbury, in the Town of Waterbury,

Resolved by this Assembly, That said Company or Trainband be, and the same is hereby dissolved; and that all persons living within the limits of the same, who by law are obliged to perform military duty, be annexed to the remaining Companies or Trainbands in said Society, in manner following, viz: All such persons who now do or hereafter shall dwell in said Society, southward and westward of a line beginning at the north end of the dwelling-house of David Smith, in said Society, then running westward, as the Highway runs, over Naugatuck River, to a place (Twitch-Grass Brook) near the south side of Captain David Blakesley's house, then running up said Brook till it comes to Litchfield line, and not belonging to the Company or Trainband under the command of Captain Jesse Curtiss, shall be annexed to the Company or Trainband now under the command of Captain Nathaniel Barns; and that all persons who now do or shall hereafter dwell in said Society, northward and eastward of the line aforesaid, and not included in the original limits of the said Company or Trainband, under the command of said Captain Barns, be and are annexed to the Company or Trainband now under the command of Captain Jesse Curtiss; always provided, that nothing in this Resolve shall be construed to prevent any person from enlisting into the Company or Trainband under the command of said Captain Curtiss, as by law is already provided.

Whereas this Assembly are informed that Benjamin Stiles, of Woodbury, hath publickly and contemptuously uttered and spoken many things against the qualifications of the three Delegates of the Colony of Connecticut, now belonging to the Continental Congress, with respect to their abilities, intelligence, and uprightness, and also against the measures that have been adopted by the Continent for the relief and security of the valuable rights and privileges of the inhabitants of the Continent of America, by means whereof he, the said Benjamin Stiles, has openly showed his inimical temper of mind and unfriendly disposition against the measures taken and pursued for a union of defence in the American cause, as per information on file:

It is therefore Resolved by this Assembly, That the said Benjamin Stiles be cited to appear before the General Assembly of this Colony, at their next session, to answer to the matters alleged against him, the said Benjamin Stiles; and the Secretary is hereby directed to cause him to be served with a citation for that purpose, and also with a copy of the information exhibited to this Assembly against him, and that the several Witnesses named in said information be by the Secretary summoned to appear before the General Assembly, at their next session, to testify in the premises.

Whereas this Assembly are informed that John R. Marshall, of Woodbury, Missionary, hath publickly and contemptuously uttered and spoken many things against the doings of the General Assembly of this Colony, and in derision and contempt of the same, relating to the measures and plans of procedure that have been adopted and come into by this Assembly, for the defence and security of the valuable rights and privileges of the inhabitants of said Colony; and that the said John R. Marshall hath, by means thereof, evidently showed therein his inimical temper and unfriendly disposition against the measures, modes, and plans that are adopted for the defence of the American cause, as per information on file: it is thereupon

Resolved by this Assembly, That the said John R. Marshall be cited to appear before the General Assembly of this Colony, at their next session, to answer to the matters alleged against him, the said John; and the Secretary is hereby directed to cause him to be served with a citation for that purpose, and also with a copy of said information exhibited to this Assembly against him, and that the several Witnesses named in the information be by the Secretary summoned to appear before the General Assembly, at their next session, to testify in the premises.

Upon the Memorial of the Second Company of Governor's Guards, praying this Assembly to authorize said Company annually to elect their Non-Commissioned Officers, &c.,

Resolved by this Assembly, That said Company be authorized, and they are hereby authorized and empowered annually to elect their Non-Commissioned Officers: provided, nevertheless, that those Non-Commissioned Officers who may or shall be superseded at such annual election, shall be obliged to return into the ranks, and act as common soldiers in said Company only.

Upon the Memorial of John McCall and others, of Norwich, in the County of New-London, showing to this Assembly that they have associated in a military Company, under certain articles to said Memorial annexed, praying that they may be constituted a military Company, under the directions of the Field-Officers of the Twentieth Regiment, &c.,

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Memorialists be, and they are hereby constituted a distinct military Company, by the name of the Veteran Guards, with liberty, by voluntary enlistment from time to time, to complete their number of sixty men, including officers: provided, that no other military Company, or Troop of Horse, shall be by such enlistment reduced below the number by law allowed to such Companies, with full power to choose a Captain, one Lieutenant, and an Ensign, and such other officers as shall be necessary, and to furnish themselves with such Arms, Ammunition, and implements of war, as said Company shall agree upon by the major vote of said Company, who shall be present, upon legal warning, to act thereon, and shall do as much military duty as other military Companies are by law obliged to do, and shall be subject to such further rules, orders, and regulations, as shall or may be voted and agreed upon by the Officers and Company, and in equal vote the Captain or chief officer to have a casting vote: provided such orders and regulations are allowed and approved of by the Captain-General, or by the Field-Officers of said Regiment; and no person shall be enlisted into or dismissed from said Company, but by the vote of said Company; and in case said Company should be dissolved, or any person or persons be dismissed therefrom, all persons released from said Company, in either of the ways aforesaid, who ought by law yet to bear arms, shall do duty in the military Companies where they respectively belong.

Upon the Memorial of Daniel Gray, of Stamford, in Fairfield County, showing to this Assembly, that he hath quantities of Rye and Indian Corn, which are wasting, and also that many of the inhabitants of said Town of Stamford have large quantities of the aforementioned commodities, and that he owns a Sloop of about fifty tons burden, which he would risk, together with her loading, to transport Rye and Indian Corn, to supply the suffering inhabitants of the eastern parts of the Province of Massachusetts-Bay, viz: to Falmouth, Machias, and Sheepscut, in said Province, praying for liberty to transport a sloop load of Rye and Indian Corn to the said Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, viz: to Falmouth, Machias, and Sheepscut, in the said Province, as per Memorial:

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Memorialist have liberty, and he is hereby permitted and liberty is granted him to transport said sloop load of Rye and Indian Corn to said Falmouth, Machias, and Sheepscut: provided he give bond to the Governour and Company of this Colony, for the sum of five hundred Pounds, lawful money, that he will faithfully transport, land, and dispose of said Rye and Indian Corn, at one or other of the places aforesaid; said bond to be lodged with the Naval Officer for the Port of New-Haven.

Upon the Memorial of Leonard Dusau, of Cape François, in the West-Indies, showing that he is owner of a Schooner of about fifty tons burden, now lying in the Harbour of New-York, praying for permission to load said Schooner with Lumber from this Colony for said Cape, as per Memorial on file:

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Memorialist have liberty, and permission is hereby granted to load said Schooner with a cargo of Lumber from this Colony to Cape François, in the West-Indies, upon his giving bond, in the sum of five hundred Pounds, lawful money, payable to the Treasurer of this Colony, that he will not carry said cargo of Lumber to any English Island in the West-Indies, and also that he will procure and return unto this Continent such Military Stores as he can obtain, that may be needful and necessary; and any Naval Officer in this Colony is hereby empowered to take such bond, payable to the Treasurer of this Colony.

Upon the Memorial of Stephen Thorp, of Fairfield, in the County of Fairfield, showing to this Assembly, that he is owner of a Sloop of about fifty tons, and has in store a large quantity of Indian Corn, Rye, and Rye Flour, and is desirous to load said Sloop with the articles aforesaid, and transport such lading to Falmouth, Machias, or Sheepscut, in the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay, praying for liberty to transport said sloop load of Rye, Indian Corn, and Rye Flour, to either of the places aforesaid, as per Memorial:

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Memorialist have liberty, and he is hereby permitted and liberty is granted him to transport said sloop load of Rye, Indian Corn, and Rye Flour, to said Falmouth, Machias, or Sheepscut: provided he give bond to the Governour and Company of this Colony, for the sum of five hundred Pounds, lawful money, that he will faithfully transport, sell, and dispose of said Rye, Indian Corn, and Rye Flour, at one or other of the places aforesaid; said bond to be lodged with the Naval Officer for the Port of New-Haven.

Upon the Memorial of Increase Bradley and Peter Whitney, of Fairfield, showing to this Assembly that they have in store a large quantity of Rye and Indian Corn, which lies by them for want of buyers, which they are desirous to ship on board their Sloop of about fifty tons, and the same transport to Falmouth, Machias, or Sheepscut, in the Massachusetts-Bay, praying this Assembly to grant them a permit to transport said sloop load of Rye and Indian Corn to either of the places as aforesaid, as per Memorial:

Resolved by this Assembly, That the Memorialists have liberty, and they are hereby permitted and liberty is granted them to ship on board said Sloop a sufficient quantity of Rye and Indian Corn to load the same, and the said Rye and Indian Corn transport to Falmouth, Machias, and Sheepscut, in the Province of the Massachusetts-Bay: provided they give bond to the Governour and Company of this Colony, that they will faithfully transport and land and dispose of said Rye and Indian Corn, at said Falmouth, Machias, or Sheepscut; said bond to be for the sum of five hundred Pounds, lawful money, and to be lodged with the Naval Officer for the Port of New-Haven.

The Gentlemen nominated by the votes of the Freemen, to stand for election in May next, as sent in to the General Assembly holden at New-Haven, on the second Thursday of October, 1775, are as follow, viz:

The Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., The Hon. Matthew Griswold, Esq., Jabez Hamlin, Esq., Elisha Sheldon, Esq., Eliphalet Dyer, Esq., Jabez Huntington, Esq., William Pitkin, Esq., Roger Sherman, Esq., Abraham Davenport, Esq., William Samuel Johnson, Esq., Joseph Spencer, Esq., Oliver Wolcott, Esq., Samuel Huntington, Esq., Mr. Richard Law, Colonel William Williams, Col. Erastus Wolcott, Col. Samuel Holden Parsons, Mr. Daniel Sherman, Mr. Silas Dean, Mr. Titus Hosmer.

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Assembly, that it is not best to enter upon any private business, of a civil nature, betwixt party and party, wherein there is any litigation, at this session of this Assembly.

Whereas the situation of publick affairs is such at present that this Assembly will not attend to private matters:

Therefore, Resolved, That the consideration of all private business, of a disputable nature, be referred over to the session of this Assembly in May next; and that all persons that, by any former Resolve of Assembly, are freed from arrest during the pendency of their Petitions already preferred, do remain in the same situation till their causes are heard, or until the further order of this Assembly.

Resolved by this Assembly, That William Williams, Esquire, who has now in his hands, in this Town of New-Haven, a sum or quantity of Continental Currency, lately received by him and Nathaniel Wales, Esq., of the Continental Treasurer at Philadelphia, for the use of this Colony, do, and he is hereby authorized and directed to pay and deliver unto Samuel Bishop and Fisher Gay, Esqs., the sum of sixteen hundred and seventy-eight Dollars, equal to five hundred and three Pounds, eight Shillings, lawful money, of said currency, to be by them improved, to pay and discharge the debenture of said Assembly in their present session; and if said sum shall be more than sufficient for that purpose, they are to pay and deliver the overplus to the Treasurer of this Colony, taking his receipt therefor for their own security, not to be lodged with the Secretary nor charged against said Treasurer; and said Treasurer is directed to allow said sum to said Williams, so delivered and paid over to said Bishop and Gay, as if delivered to him personally, and charge the Colony for said debenture, paid as aforesaid.

This Assembly grants to his Honour Governour Trumbull the sum of one hundred and fifty Pounds, for the last half of his salary the current year.

This Assembly grants to the Honourable Deputy-Governour Griswold the sum of fifty Pounds, for the last half of his salary the current year.

This Assembly is adjourned, by proclamation, &c., until his Honour the Governour, or in his absence the Deputy-Governour, shall see cause to call it to meet again.

Test:

GEORGE WYLLYS, Secretary.

Be it enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That all the male persons, inhabitants of this Colony, of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, shall have tendered to them the following Association, to wit:

Whereas the British Parliament have of late claimed a power and authority to bind the people of America in all cases whatsoever, and, in pursuance of such claim, have passed divers Acts of Parliament subversive of the natural and constitutional rights and liberties of the Americans; and whereas the British Ministry have attempted to carry said Acts of Parliament into execution by military force, with an express intention to subjugate the Americans, and in a time of peace have wantonly and unprovoked shed the blood of many of their inhabitants, and all reasonable measures for obtaining redress of their said grievances which have been taken proving ineffectual, we are at last reduced to the unhappy necessity of taking up arms in defence of their lives and liberties, in obedience to the first law of nature, self-preservation, and to make their solemn appeal to the Supreme Governour of the Universe and All-Wise Disposer of every event; and that much depends, under God, upon the unanimity and joint efforts of a brave and free people for their preservation and defence:

We, the subscribers, do each for ourselves claim, demand, and insist upon our constitutional rights and privileges, and do solemnly covenant, agree, and promise, to and with each other, that we will always maintain and defend the same, to the utmost of our power, against every attempt that shall be made to wrest them from us, and especially against the measures that have been or may be taken by the British Ministry and Parliament for that purpose. And we likewise promise and agree that we will not aid, assist, or help the Fleet and Army, or any other person or persons employed by the said Ministry or Parliament, by furnishing them with Provisions, warlike Stores, or other necessities, or by giving or conveying any intelligence to them, or in any other way whatever, while they shall be thus employed against this or the other Colonies in America; but will be faithful and true to the Government, as established by charter in this Colony, and to the United American Colonies, and will to the utmost of our power, in our several places, assist in carrying into execution every measure of our General Assembly, and also the measures of the said United Colonies; that have or shall be formed and come into for their common safety, and shall be approved of by the General Assembly of this Colony, and that we will use our utmost influence to discountenance and prevent all riotous assemblies and mobs within this Colony.

Witness our hands, at —, this — day, A. D. —.

And be it further enacted by the authority aforesaid, That the civil authority and Selectmen, or any or either of them, of every Town within this Colony, do, as soon as may be, offer and tender the aforesaid Association to every male inhabitant of the age of twenty-one years and upwards, in their several Towns, to be by them signed; and the said civil authority or Selectmen are further directed to make return of the names of all and every person or persons, in their respective Towns, who shall neglect or refuse to sign the same, to the General Assembly, at their next session; and that the said civil authority do lodge the said Association, after the said inhabitants shall have signed it, with the Town Clerk of their respective Towns.

In the Lower House, the consideration of the above Bill is referred to the next session of this Assembly.

Test: RICHARD LAW, Clerk.

Concurred in in the Upper House.

Test: GEORGE WYLLYS, Sec'y.

Whereas this Assembly are apprehensive that there are some persons in this Colony whose going at large may endanger the safety of the same, or the liberties of America; and whereas the Continental Congress have recommended that such persons be arrested and secured:

Be it therefore enacted by the Governour, Council, and Representatives, in General Court assembled, and by the authority of the same, That when complaint shall be made by the Committee of Inspection in any Town in this Colony, to any Assistant or Justice of the Peace in this Colony, against any person living within their Town, or in any other Town where no Committee of Inspection is appointed, that such person is an enemy to this Colony, and that his going at large endangers the safety of this Colony, or the liberties of America, it shall be the duty of such Assistant or Justice of the Peace, and they are hereby directed and empowered to issue a warrant to the Sheriff or Constable, ordering such person so complained of to be brought before such Assistant or Justice of the Peace, to be examined touching such complaint; and in case it shall appear, to the satisfaction of such Assistant or Justice of the Peace, that the person so complained of is guilty of the matter alleged against him, it shall be in the power of such Assistant or Justice, and they are directed to order such person to give bond, with sufficient surety, to the Treasurer of this Colony, for his appearance before the then next General Assembly to be held in this Colony, to answer said complaint, and abide the judgment and order of said Assembly thereon, and for his good behaviour, unto said Assembly; and in case such person shall neglect or refuse to give such bond, the said Assistant or Justice shall order such person to be committed to the common Jail in the County where such Assistant or Justice dwells, there to be held until released by the General Assembly, and the said Assistant or Justice is ordered to transmit to such Assembly a copy of such complaint, and his proceedings thereon; and in case any person so complained of shall be acquitted by the Assistant or Justice of the Peace to whom such complaint is made, such person so complained of shall be discharged without cost, and in such case the cost of suit shall be laid before the County Court in such County where such proceedings are had, for their allowance, and said County Courts respectively are empowered to draw an order or orders on the Treasurer of this Colony for such as they shall allow.

In the Lower House, the consideration of this Bill is referred to the next session of this Assembly.

Test: RICHARD LAW, Clerk.

Concurred in in the Upper House.

Test: GEORGE WYLLYS, Sec'y.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF LEITH.

Address of the Magistrates, Incorporated Societies, and principal Inhabitants of the Town and Port of Leith, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of his Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, by Henry Dundas, Esquire, Lord Advocate in Scotland and Representative in Parliament for Edinburghshire, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's faithful subjects, the Magistrates, Incorporated Societies, and principal Inhabitants of the Town and Port of Leith, think it our duty on this occasion with unanimous voice to testify our loyalty at the foot of your throne.

The differences between Great Britain and some of her Colonies have now come to such a crisis, that every community feels itself a part of the Nation, and every good citizen is interested in the publick cause.

We cannot reflect, without concern, on the agitations that must have arisen in your sacred and paternal breast, upon this unnatural division; nor think, without horror, on those of your Majesty's subjects who have sown the seeds of dissension, and kindled the flames of civil war between one part of your Majesty's Dominions and another.

Attached to that order flowing from good Government, which is the basis of human felicity, and fully justified with that liberty which is derived from the laws, we look upon the audacious attempts to overturn our happy Constitution with indignation, and abhor the vile artifices that are used to alienate the affections of your people from the best of Sovereigns.

Sensible of the great increase of our trade and commerce, and certain that industry, when cherished by liberty and protected by valour, will ever be crowned with success, our hearts overflow with gratitude for the happiness we enjoy under your Majesty's Government; and we rest with confidence upon the wisdom and rectitude of your Majesty's measures for bringing the present unhappy differences to a conclusion which shall be consistent with the honour of Great Britain.

But if our unhappy and deluded fellow-subjects in America shall continue in their unnatural and unprovoked rebellion, with our fortunes and with our lives we will assert the supremacy of our King and Parliament over every part of the British Empire; and teach the sons of anarchy, that the same arm which was lately stretched out for their defence and security, and which drove all their enemies far from their borders, can with equal ease chastise ungrateful and rebellious subjects; happy that the rod is in the most mild and merciful hand, in the hand of the father and friend of his people.

Signed in our name, in our presence, and at our appointment, by our Præses, one of the Magistrates of Leith, and the seal of the said Town is hereto affixed.

JAMES CUNDELL, Præses.

[ Leith, October 12, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF SEVERAL TOWNS IN THE COUNTY OF WILTS.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Clothiers, and other Tradesmen, of the Towns and neighbourhood of Bradford, Trowbridge, and Melksham, in the County of Wilts, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, by Philip James Gibbs, Esq., Thomas Johnson, Esq., and Paul Newman, Esq., and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and faithful subjects, the Gentlemen, Clergy, Clothiers, and other Tradesmen of the Towns and neighbourhood of Bradford, Trowbridge, and Melksham, in the County of Wilts, approach the throne at a season we think critical and alarming to the honour, peace, and welfare of our Country, to testify our affectionate attachment and loyalty to your Majesty's person and Government, our sincere abhorrence of that rebellious spirit which has appeared among our American fellow-subjects, and our unfeigned sorrow for those inquietudes which, from humanity, and concern for the common welfare of your people, your royal mind must feel, on account of those unnatural and dangerous convulsions which at present rend the British Empire.

Though we declare ourselves steadfast friends to constitutional liberty, and disdain the imputation of appearing as abettors of oppression and slavery; though we wish our American fellow-subjects all that indulgence and encouragement, which justice to the rest of your Majesty's people, and the common interest, safety, and welfare of the Empire will admit of; yet we cannot but condemn that uncandid and malignant spirit with which they have boldly imputed to the British Legislature odious and iniquitous designs against the just rights and liberties of your Majesty's subjects; with intention to inflame the minds of your people here, and hurry them likewise into unnatural acts of violence; whilst we can perceive no ground for so black an imputation, but the Legislature's endeavouring to protect the persons and properties of peaceable subjects from injury, to support order and Government, and to maintain its own constitutional authority. We cannot but condemn that want of equity which leads them to urge the advantages Great Britain derives from their commerce as a sufficient reason for their not being subjected to bear an equitable proportion in the publick burdens of the State, whilst, from the same commerce, themselves derive superior advantages, according to their property employed in it, and their different ranks and conditions in life. We cannot but condemn their want of gratitude to their Parent Country, and of tenderness to their poorer fellow-subjects here, shown in the rash unwarrantable prohibition of all commerce with your Majesty's European Dominions; by which they designed and hoped to deprive those of the means of subsistence, who, by the sweat of their brows had long contributed to the protection and prosperity of America; though we have the pleasure to assure your Majesty, we as yet feel no such melancholy effects of American ingratitude and unkindness, by any unusual failure of demand for our manufactures, or of employment for our poor.

Ardently wishing for the speedy restoration of peace and harmony throughout the British Empire, upon an equitable and constitutional foundation, we at the same time think it our duty to assure your Majesty of our determined readiness to use any lawful means in our power to support the constitutional rights of your crown and of the British Parliament, in and over every part of the British Dominions; not doubting but that, from the purity of your Majesty's intentions, and the benevolence of your heart, all desirable mercy will be mixed with any severity that will with deep regret be seen needful for accomplishing that important end.

That your Majesty may long reign with glory and honour, over a free, a united, a happy and grateful people; that your descendants, adorned with princely virtues, and friends to the rights and happiness of mankind, may inherit your crown to latest ages, is the fervent prayer of your Majesty's dutiful and faithful subjects.

ADDRESS OF THE JUSTICES OF THE PEACE FOR THE COUNTY OF MIDDLESEX.

Address of the Justices of the Peace for the County of Middlesex, in General Session assembled; and also of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the same County, presented to His Majesty by Sir John Hawkins, Knight, Chairman of the Session, the Reverend Sir George Booth, Baronet, and John Brettell, Esquire.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Justices assigned to keep the peace, and to hear and determine divers Felonies, Trespases, and Misdemeanors, in the County of MIDDLESEX, in General Session assembled; and also of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the same County, whose names are hereunto subscribed.

We, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, resident in this opulent County, sensible of the blessings which we derive from your Majesty's mild and gracious Government, during which justice has been administered with an impartiality unknown to former ages, and under which every subject has felt himself protected in the enjoyment of all those benefits which it is the ultimate end of civil institutions to ensure, humbly presume to address your Majesty at a crisis, which we conceive to be a most important one, and such as is not to be paralleled in the history of this or any other country.

We look back with awful reverence on that period towards the end of the last century, when, by a revolution, from which it were impiety to exclude the interposition of Divine Providence, the bounds of regal authority, and the measures of civil subjection, were mutually adjusted and ascertained, upon principles coeval with and interwoven in the very Constitution of this Country. To those genuine patriots, and friends of religious and civil liberty, the actors in that noble cause, we at this day owe it that persecution is banished to the realms of despotism; that illegal restraints of civil liberty are guarded against; that the ancient power of Parliaments over every part of the British Dominions, is recognised; and the supreme legislative authority, by a wise and happy temperance of various interests, declared to reside in the three estates of King, Lords, and Commons.

Reflecting on the above auspicious event, and the numerous benefits that have followed from it, we seek in vain for the motives of that unnatural rebellion in North-America into which the inhabitants of some of the Provinces thereof, not less by the artifices of a disappointed and impotent faction, than their own aversion to our religious and civil Constitution, have been precipitated.

To attain the ends of a lawless association, which aims at nothing less than an independence on the Mother Country, that would draw down destruction on their own heads, the legal Governments of the Colonies, now in rebellion, have, by degrees, been subverted, and the allegiance due to your Majesty from your loyal subjects there, has been extorted by and transferred to a few usurpers, whose regard for the publick is absorbed in the hope of private advantage. In the prosecution of their traitorous purposes, the hostilities originally commenced by the Americans have been continued in a manner practised only by savages; and in the conduct of a war, on which, with unhallowed lips, they implore the Divine blessing, we behold, with equal amazement and horror, the violation of those rules of war to which humanity and the practice of all civilized nations have given a sanction.

Miseries, greater, if possible, than those of a war thus conducted on the part of our enemies, have been denounced against the Mother Country by its rebellious sons, who, by resolutions of non-importation, have endeavoured to cut off the sources of our wealth, and by the dread of famine, to stimulate the industrious manufacturers of this Kingdom to oppose that power which has been their constant support. But, thanks be to God, the flourishing condition of our trade, the quick circulation of wealth, the state of public credit, and the amazing increase of buildings and mercantile improvements which present themselves to our eyes in every part of this Country, are evident proofs of the futility of all such attempts, as they are of the flourishing state of the Kingdom in general.

With very little attention to the merits of the dispute, and without being able to controvert that fundamental principle of civil society, that protection and allegiance are reciprocal, the Colonies in rebellion resist the payment of taxes which their preservation has made necessary, founding their pretended exemption, not on reason, equity, or natural justice, but upon the construction of those grants to which the Colonies owe their political existence.

The rights, whatever they are, which the Americans claim, are founded in Charters from time to time granted by your Majesty's royal predecessors, under proper limitations and restrictions. With the greatest professions of zeal for liberty, do these infatuated people exalt the regal into arbitrary power, and from principles of law and logick, which are now for the first time advanced, contend that the acts of the aggregate legislative body are of less force to bind the subject than those of an integral part thereof; and with all the insidious arts of adulation, your Majesty is courted to accept of that absolute power which you have uniformly disclaimed, as well by the whole tenour of your conduct, as by referring the means of preserving the supremacy of this Country over the Colonies, to the great council of the Nation.

For this singular instance of moderation, as for every other benefit which we derive from your Majesty's paternal care and watchful regard for our interests, receive, most gracious Sovereign, the sincere and humble acknowledgments of us, your Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects; and as the merciful forbearance hitherto shown to the Colonies in rebellion, would, if farther extended, be injurious to the interests of the whole British Empire, accept, also, this tender of every assistance which we are capable of rendering towards establishing the authority of the British Legislature over its Colonies and dependencies; while, with unfeigned zeal, we supplicate the Supreme Disposer of all events for prosperity on those wise and lenient, but steady councils which have been resolved on, and we doubt not will be pursued, for effectuating this important and necessary purpose.

JOHN HUNTER HOLT TO THE PUBLICK.

Norfolk, October 12, 1775.

The subscriber having been prevented from continuing his business, by a most unjustifiable stretch of arbitrary power, begs leave to inform the publick that he has some expectations of procuring a new set of materials, which, if he should be so fortunate as to succeed in, will enable him once more to apprise his countrymen of the danger they may be in from the machinations and black designs of their common enemy. The particular place where the office will be erected, is not yet fixed, but it will be so near Norfolk as to give him an opportunity of receiving the earliest and most authentick information of the proceedings of the gentlemen of the Army and Navy, and of sounding the alarm whenever danger approaches. As his paper has hitherto been free and open to all parties, he intends to observe the same caution and impartiality in his future publications, and cannot but flatter himself that his conduct has been such as will entitle him to the future encouragement of his subscribers and the publick.

JOHN HUNTER HOLT.

THOMAS ROBINSON TO MESSRS. WILLIAM AND THOMAS BRADFORD.

Sussex County, October 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: A paper appeared in your Journal, No. 1712, said to be published by order of the Committee of the proposed new County in the Delaware Government, holding me out to the publick as an enemy to my Country. As that publication was made without my having an opportunity to controvert the charge made against me, though it has failed of answering the private election purposes for which it was made, in the County where I live; yet it may have some effect upon those who do not know me, and who, from their distance, cannot be acquainted with the true state of the matter. I therefore beg you will do me the justice to insert in your next paper the enclosed certificate, signed by five members of the Committee of Inspection, which is all I can yet procure. I also beg of the publick in general to suspend their opinion until the Committee have examined the matter, and are prepared to lay a full state of it before the publick. I shall avoid saying any thing about the charge, except that it is wholly groundless, not doubting but that I shall be honourably acquitted by the Committee.

I am, Gentlemen, yours, &c.,

THOMAS ROBINSON.

Messrs. William and Thomas Bradford.

We, the subscribers, being appointed to represent the character of Thomas Robinson, Esq., in that point of view in which it appeared to the Committee of that District lately annexed to the County of Sussex, do certify, that we have not as yet had it in our power to enter into a full discussion of the matter; but, in the mean time, beg leave to offer to the publick a resolution of a majority of a very full Committee, on the 16th day of August last:

"On motion, resolved by this Committee, that the proceeding of the Committee of Correspondence, of the 27th of July last, in regard to Thomas Robinson, Esq., is illegal, it being drawn up and sent to the press by only four of said Committee, when there should have been seven of that body at least to have done the same."

And from any circumstance that has yet appeared to us on the inquiry that we have been able to make, the charge against the said Thomas Robinson is altogether without foundation. The publick is therefore desired to suspend their opinion in regard to said Robinson, until he is heard by the General Committee.

ISAAC MINSHALL, Chairman, JOHN LAWS,
JOSEPH TURPIN, ALEX. LAWS.
ISAAC BRADLEY,

NATHANIEL WOODHULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

New-York, October 12, 1775.

SIR: Captain Thompson, lately arrived from London, was examined before the Provincial Congress here; some parts of the information he gave are important, and may not be fully known to you. I therefore take liberty to enclose you notes of Mr. Thompson's information, and have the honour to be, with the greatest respect and esteem, most respectfully, Sir, your obedient humble servant,

NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

His Excellency General Washington.

New-York, October 10, 1775.

Captain William Thompson informs that he left London the 13th of August, and left Torrey on the 19th; that it was generally reported in England that troops were to go from Ireland to Boston; that five Regiments were the number mentioned; that transports had actually sailed to take in those troops; that it was supposed the troops were ready, as they had been collecting from April last; that a train of artillery was shipping, and in part shipped for America; and that four Companies of Artillery are coming out therewith from London; that a brigantine was at Torrey, with artillery, arms, and ammunition, and that the officer who had the care of the artillery, &c., told him that they were destined for Quebeck, and had on board ten thousand muskets, three hundred barrels of gunpowder, and six field-pieces, three-pounders, and a proportionate quantity of lead; that the vessel with those arms and ammunition is a small brigantine, about one hundred or one hundred and ten tons; that she was under convoy of the Lizard, of twenty-eight guns, who was to take her in tow, if necessary; that there were four Companies of Artillery, with the train abovementioned, destined for America, besides this store vessel; that the Captain of the said brigantine informed him, that another vessel, with the like quantity of stores, was to sail for Virginia, for the use of the negroes there; but that the officer who had the direction of the arms, &c., gave him no information of that matter; that he heard, soon after the receipt of the news of Bunker's Hill, that Hanoverian or Hessian Troops were to be sent for; that three thousand ton of transports were taken up immediately after the arrival of the Bunker's Hill news, and generally reported to be taken up for the Hanoverian Troops; that those transports were not sailed, to his knowledge, when he left Britain; that, after the news of Bunker's Hill arrived, as many Members of Parliament as could be collected near London were called and consulted; that, from what he heard at the Exchange, the voice of the landed interest seemed to be for the measures of Administration, and the mercantile interest against them; that there was not any talk of a change of Administration; that the people were in expectation of overtures from the Congress; that it was generally reported that General Gage was to be recalled, as inactive, and General Amherst sent to take the command; that he counted seventy-two vessels, with brooms at mast-head, between Deptford and London Bridge, besides many others to be sold; that they believed a non-exportation would take place in America; that there were very great complaints among the American merchants and manufacturers, of the stagnation of trade; that he heard nothing of the West-India merchants in particular; that the ship carpenters had chiefly abandoned the yards; that it was currently reported that the manufacturers had discharged some of their people, and that one in the woollen branch told him he had discharged a dozen of his hands; that there is a discontent among the lower class of people; that there had been a large demand for woollens from Russia, and larger than usual, but that it was in a great measure satisfied; that the Russian demands had assisted to keep down the murmurs of the people; that orders were issued to put ten sail of ships in commission; that stocks had fallen a very little, viz: half per cent., and had risen again a quarter per cent.; that the news of Ticonderoga and Crown Point being seized had been long arrived, and that the taking those places was generally condemned; that the appointment of the Generals Washington, Lee, Putnam, &c., and the striking paper money, was known in London; that those officers were thought to be proper men and good officers; and that General Washington was spoken of in a very high character as a General; that some people laughed at a paper money; that there was money for paying troops, and many rich presents to the Indians, on board of the Lizard frigate-of-war, for Quebeck; that they had the accounts of the conduct of the people of Georgia, and looked on the union of the Colonies as complete; that they had formerly been taught to believe that a handful of men could conquer the Colonies; that they say in England, that if they do not conquer America now, she will throw off all obedience, and become a Republick.

The preceding is a true copy of notes of the information given by Captain William Thompson to the Provincial Congress, at New-York, on the 10th of October, 1775; which notes were by me taken, and afterwards read to Mr. Thompson in Congress, who then declared they were truly taken.

JOHN MCKESSON, Secretary.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Ticonderoga, October 12, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 29th ultimo I had the honour to receive on the 10th instant, by Captain Stanton. Your Honour has my warmest thanks for your kind wishes. By the Divine favour, my health is so far restored as that I hope in a few days to leave this, and join the Army.

It gives me pain that your Honour should labour under any uneasiness on account of the information Colonel Dyer has given you; and therefore, agreeable to your request, I shall relate what is come to my knowledge of the facts, for I was not here when Mr. Lynch honoured this place with a visit.

On the 30th of August, in the evening, I returned here, from Albany, after an absence of thirteen days; and on the next day I issued an order, of which the following is an extract:

"Such part of Hinman's as can be furnished with boats to embark to-morrow, and the remainder (except Balch and Curtis's Companies) as soon as boats can be provided; to carry with them four barrels of flour and four of pork in each boat; to join the Army, wherever it may be, with all possible despatch. Those of the Regiments who are fit for duty, and have bad arms, to exchange them with those that are sick, and have good arms."

There were then at this place Colonel Hinman's, Captain Buell's, Captain Haines's, and Captain Sedgwick's, Captain Curtis's at the landing, and the remaining three Companies at Crown Point, who were also ordered to march. I embarked a little after sunset on the 31st of September, having just before delivered, among others, the following order to Colonel Hinman:

"You will give discharges to all such men as have no prospect of being fit for service this campaign, to whatever Regiments they belong, provided they have the certificate of the Surgeon or his Mates."

I make no remarks on this order, as I believe the propriety of it must be evident to every person; and when I wrote your Honour on the 31st, (not the 21st, as your letter mentions,) I really believed I should have carried five hundred of Hinman's down the lake. I found, however, soon after my arrival at Isle-aux-Noix, that I had laboured under a mistake, as you will hereafter perceive; for, since your letter on this subject, I find, by examination, that the last return I had of Colonel Hinman was of Saturday, the 12th of August, four days before I went to Albany, and I had no idea that so many had sickened between that time and my return, on the 30th. In this return, two hundred and fifty effective rank and file were returned here, and two hundred and thirty-four at Crown Point—amounting, together, to four hundred and eighty-four; but I now find that, between the 12th and 25th of August, inclusive, fifty-three of this Regiment had gone from this post on furlough; and the number of sick increased with such amazing rapidity, that General Montgomery, between the 16th and 28th of August, discharged thirty-five of Colonel Hinman's; and the Colonel himself, on the 1st and 2d of September, discharged eighty-seven, and between that and the 16th, inclusive, the further number of eighty-three—so that I believe Mr. Lynch was not much misinformed, that Colonel Hinman had not above one hundred men with him when Mr. Lynch was here, provided effectives at this place were meant. And I am more induced to believe this, because on the 12th of September, at Isle-aux-Noix, Brigade-Major Dimon, in a general return of the Army, reported only twenty-two of Colonel Hinman's, officers included, fit for duty; and as they had arrived only four or five days before, there could not be many sick; and of these twenty-two, it is reasonable to conclude that the Crown Point Companies made the greatest part, as they had all along been healthy.

I cannot account for the foundation of the report that Colonel Hinman has suffered his men to depart to their various homes, unless it took rise from the number that went on furlough when Mr. Lynch was here; but I had reason to believe they were sick men, sent to recover their healths in the country.

I do not know that any of the troops from Connecticut came without arms, if guns, in whatever condition they may be, can be called arms; but, to speak like a military man, great numbers of every corps in the Army under my command wanted arms. Witness the order of the New-York Provincial Congress, for all the gunsmiths in that large City to quit all other work, and immediately repair the arms of General Wooster's and Colonel Waterbury's Regiments. These had then been on little or no service. Witness, also, the several armourers that have been constantly employed, both at this place and Crown Point, in repairing the arms of Colonel Hinman's Regiment and Colonel Easton's small corps, from the beginning of the campaign to the 12th of August, with other troops being on the ground until then. Witness, also, my order above, for the exchange of arms, so late as the 31st of August. And however great the solecism may be, for the soldier to go to war without arms, Mr. Lynch was perfectly right when he said that many were without arms; for I am well informed, when he was at Crown Point, and the troops turned out, that many had no arms. I have two Companies here, of the troops raised in this Colony, a greater part of which have no arms at all. Another Company is repairing the roads between this and Albany, of which none but the officers have arms; and I suppose I have been obliged to furnish or exchange arms for upwards of one hundred more.

Your Honour says you cannot conceive why the Connecticut troops should refuse to be mustered. Nor I, I assure you; but I believe Mr. Lynch has not been misinformed on this head, whoever was his informant. I have had a long argument with Colonel Hinman on this subject. He and I differ as to the conclusion; but General Montgomery, the Muster-Master General, the gentlemen of my family, and I believe the Quartermaster-General too, were present, and will all agree with me, that Colonel Hinman refused to muster. I am informed that General Montgomery spoke with Colonel Waterbury on the subject, in my absence; and that so many difficulties arose, that it was judged best to defer the matter until it could be known what was done to the eastward. That the Captains, too, were apprehensive they should lose their one or one and a half per cent., allowed by your Colony for paying the men. It cannot be surprising, Sir, that I should not mention any misconduct of Colonel Hinman's. I have none to charge him with. He has always behaved to me with politeness and attention, and ever showed a readiness, in common with all the Connecticut officers, to obey my orders. I would not be understood, however, that my orders have been always punctually obeyed by the inferior officers and men, either of the Connecticut or any other corps. But this I impute to its true cause, a want of discipline and subordination, and not to any unwillingness.

I enclose your Honour a return of the men discharged here. You will perceive that very many are sent home since my return to this place; but none unless they were reported to me by the Director of the Hospital, Dr. Stringer, as unfit for further service—a very few excepted, whose families were in such a distressing situation, that I must have been void of the feelings of humanity, not to have suffered them to go home. It is certain, however, that some have feigned sickness; for Dr. Stringer informs me, that on his way up here, about the 6th of September, he met many men that looked very well; and, upon inquiry, some acknowledged they had procured their discharges by swallowing tobacco juice, to make them sick. Others had scorched their tongues with hot chocolate, to induce a belief that they had a fever, &c. Perhaps Mr. Trumbull, your son, may give you some information on this head.

I have just received a line from General Montgomery. His anxiety about provisions is relieved, but is in great want of powder, of which I have not an ounce left at this post. A conference took place on the 6th, between St. Luke La Corne, an agent of Governor Carleton's, and two gentlemen of ours, deputed by General Montgomery. I wait with impatience to learn the result. I need an apology for this interlined scrawl, and beg your Honour will impute it to my want of assistance, and to the hurry with which Captain Buell (whom I beg leave to recommend to your Honour's attention, as a good officer and good man) goes off.

I am your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

The Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

P. S. Since writing the above, Colonel Hinman (to whom I have taken the liberty to show this letter) informs me, that he acquainted General Montgomery, whilst I was at Albany, that he had got his account of enlistments from Connecticut, and was willing to muster.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, October 12, 1775.

—DEAR SIR: I did myself the honour to write your Excellency on the 26th ultimo, which I sent by the way of Albany. On the 4th instant I received the originals of the enclosed, except that marked No. 2, which came to hand yesterday. It chagrins me much, that I have not more frequent opportunities of addressing myself to you.

I am extremely apprehensive that a want of powder will be fatal to our operations. I have sent express to Albany and New-York, but have not yet learnt whether I shall be supplied or not.

The Army is now supplied with provisions to the 30th instant, but all the pork that is to be had is gone; and although we have a sufficiency of fat cattle, I fear we shall want salt.

Enclose your Excellency a return of the discharged men from this Army. Exclusive of this, one hundred and fifty, at least, occupy the general hospital at Fort George, and I fear as many more are ready to enter it.

I begin to gather strength; my fever has left me, and I hope soon to be able to join the Army.

General Wooster's Regiment I suppose will be this evening at Fort George; they will be pushed off immediately on their arrival here.

Be pleased to make my best respects to General Lee, General Gates, and the gentlemen of your suit. I hope we shall all meet at a merry Christmas.

Adieu, my dear General; my best wishes attend you through life, happy if I can have an opportunity of evincing how sincerely I am, dear Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

General Washington, &c., &c.

P. S. This moment your Excellency's despatches of the 4th came to hand. Captain Buell waits for this; can therefore only thank you for them.

NEWPORT (RHODE-ISLAND) COMMITTEE TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Newport, October 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to a vote of the Committee for this Town, and in their behalf, I now beg leave to recommend to your favourable notice Captain John Andrews, the bearer of this letter, and Mr. Nathan Bebee, a baker in this Town, who both go to New-York to purchase flour for the use of the Town of Newport. They are both friends to the liberties of their Country, and, from inclination as well as interest, will use every precaution to avoid men of war and their tenders; and you may depend the flour they may purchase and import will be applied solely to the beforementioned use. There is only a small quantity of flour here at present; and unless we can procure a supply, we shall soon be in great distress for want of bread. We therefore hope the Committee of Inspection of New-York will commiserate our unhappy situation, and permit the abovementioned persons to purchase flour at and export the same from your City, or any where else within your district.

I am, with great regard, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

SAMUEL DYRE, Chairman pro tem.

To the Committee of Inspection, City of New-York.

LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN CONNECTICUT.

Cambridge, October 12, 1775.

DEAR SIR: By your last I find there are many unfavourable reports prevailing in regard to our General Officers, as well as those of more inferior rank and station. I am very sorry to find such a spirit of jealousy and animosity prevailing among our friends at home, at a time when the strictest harmony and the firmest union are necessary to preserve America, now bleeding in the glorious cause of liberty. Is it a small thing that we have left our homes, our parents and brethren, our wives and children, at a time, too, when the caresses of an affectionate husband are wanting to soothe the grief of a fond and kind mother, under the loss of her tender offspring, or to quiet the weeping children under the loss of their kind and provident mother, and are hazarding our lives in the high places of the field for you, your wives and your little ones—in fine, for you all—that you should heap upon us the most ignominious reproaches? Is it not enough that we should bleed and die for you, but must we, in the last groan and agony, be scourged and tormented with your slandering tongue? We are men of your own appointing; did you elevate us to be buffeted and spit upon? Ungenerous to the last degree! Such conduct is a disgrace to the noble cause in which we are contending; and not only so, but it is unfriendly, yea, it is against it. This spirit, I fear, will effect that which the united power of Europe could not, viz: the subjugating America to perpetual bondage. Had hell all been called together in council, they could not have fell upon any thing more likely to effect the grand design of our enemies, than the raising and spreading false and malicious reports against our officers, especially against our General Officers, whom I dare venture to affirm are men every way calculated for the important office they sustain, and are worthy to command a Roman Army.

My dear friend, consider the consequences of these things, and prevent them as much as in you lies. I know your influence. Should those worthless spreaders of sedition be neglected and frowned upon by men of worth and dignity, they would immediately see their folly and hold their peace.

Our cause is just and righteous, and nothing but intestine broils and divisions can defeat us. Heaven is pleased at our noble union and efforts in the cause of liberty and righteousness, and let us beware how we merit its displeasure. If we persevere in the path we have set out in, we shall rid our land of foes to liberty and religion, and America will be the grand seat of liberty and righteousness, and the asylum of the oppressed and the afflicted throughout all the earth; which is the wish of him who has the pleasure to be your friend and very humble servant,

D. T.

COL. JOSEPH REED TO CAPTAIN NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

Head-Quarters, October 12, 1775.

SIR: You are to recruit your present crew to seventy men, including officers, but not out of the Companies stationed at Marblehead, for the security of the coast, without the consent of the Committee. You will have further instructions in a few days. In the mean time, you are to follow the orders of your Colonel.

I am, Sir, your very humble servant, J. REED.

[To Captain John Selman the same.]

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO COLONEL JOHN GLOVER.

Head-Quarters, October 12, 1775.

SIR: I was under some mistake with respect to the proportion of the two vessels who advance farther. Their share of prizes will be the same, and any special service will be recommended to the Congress for further bounty; therefore you need say nothing upon this head. Lose no time. Every thing depend upon expedition.

I am, Sir, your very humble servant, J. REED.

To Colonel John Glover.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 21, 1775.]

Camp at Cambridge, October 12, 1775.

SIR: I am honoured with your several favours of the 26th and 30th September, and 5th October, the contents of which I shall beg leave to notice in their respective orders.

Previous to the directions of Congress to consult the General Officers on the best mode of continuing and providing for the Army during the winter, I had desired them to turn their thoughts upon these subjects, and to favour me with the result, by a particular day, in writing. In this interval, the appointment of Doctor Franklin, Mr. Lynch, and Colonel Harrison, was communicated; an event which has given me the highest satisfaction, as the subject was too weighty and complex for a discussion by letter. This appointment made any conclusion here unnecessary, as it is not probable any such arrangement would be agreed on as would not be altered, in some respects, upon a full and free conference. This good effect will arise from the step already taken, that every officer will be prepared to give his sentiments upon these important subjects. The estimates of the Commissary and Quartermaster-General, I have now the honour of enclosing; the first is the enclosure No. 1; the other, No. 2. With respect to the reduction of the pay of the men, which may enter into the consideration of their support, it is the unanimous opinion of the General Officers that it cannot be touched with safety at present. I have procured an account, from Colonel Thompson, of the expenditure of the five thousand Dollars, which is enclosed, No. 3. Upon the presumption of there being a vacancy in the direction of the Hospital, Lieutenant-Colonel Hand, formerly a Surgeon in the Eighteenth Regiment, or Royal Irish, and Dr. Poster, late of Charlestown, and one of the Surgeons of the Hospital, under Doctor Church, are candidates for that office. I do not pretend to be acquainted with their respective merits, and therefore have given them no further expectation than that they should be mentioned as candidates for the department. I therefore need only to add, upon this subject, that the affairs of the Hospital require that the appointment should be made as soon as possible.

Before I was honoured with your favour of the 5th instant, I had given orders for the equipment of some armed vessels, to intercept the enemy's supplies of provisions and ammunition. One of them was on a cruise between Cape Ann and Cape Cod when the express arrived. The others will be fit for the sea in a few days, under the command of officers of the Continental Army, who are well recommended as persons acquainted with the sea, and capable of such a service. Two of these will be immediately despatched on this duty, and every particular mentioned in your favour of the 5th instant literally complied with. That the honourable Congress may have a more complete idea of the plan on which these vessels are equipped, I enclose a copy of the instructions given to the Captain now out, No. 4. These, with the additional instructions directed, will be given to the Captains who go into the mouth of the St. Lawrence River. As both officers and men most cheerfully engage in the service, on the terms mentioned in these instructions, I fear that the proposed increase will create some difficulty, by making a difference between men engaged on similar service. I have, therefore, not yet communicated this part of the plan, but reserved an extra bounty as a reward for extraordinary activity. There are no armed vessels in this Province, and Governor Cooke informs me the enterprise can receive no assistance from him, as one of the armed vessels of Rhode-Island is on a long cruise, and the other unfit for the service. Nothing shall be omitted to secure success. A fortunate capture of an ordnance ship would give new life to the camp, and an immediate turn to the issue of this campaign.

Our last accounts from Colonel Arnold are very favourable. He was proceeding with all expedition, and, I flatter myself, making all allowances, he will be at Quebeck the 30th instant, where, a gentlemen from Canada (Mr. Bruce) assures me, he will meet with no resistance.

In the Quartermaster's estimate there are some articles omitted, of which, he informs me, he cannot pretend to furnish a computation, such as cartage, tools, &c., for which some general allowance must be made.

From the various accounts received from Europe, there may be reason to expect troops will be landed at New-York or some other middle Colony. I should be glad to know the pleasure of the Congress, whether, upon such an event, it would be expected that a part of this Army should be detached, or the internal force of such Colony, and its neighbourhood, be deemed sufficient; or whether, in such case, I am to wait the particular direction of Congress.

The fleet, mentioned in my last, has been seen standing N. N. E., so that we apprehend it is intended for some part of this Province, or New-Hampshire, or, possibly, Quebeck.

The latest and best accounts we have from the enemy are, that they are engaged in their new work across the south end of Boston, preparing their barracks, &c., for winter. That it is proposed to keep from five hundred to one thousand men on Bunker's Hill, all winter, who are to be relieved once a week; the rest to be drawn into Boston.

A person who has lately been a servant to Major Connelly, a tool of Lord Dunmore's, has given an account of a scheme to distress the Southern Provinces, which appeared to me of sufficient consequence to be immediately transmitted. I have therefore got it attested, and do myself the honour of enclosing it, No. 5.

The new levies from Connecticut have lately marched into camp, and are a body of as good troops as any we have; so that we have now the same strength as before the detachment under Colonel Arnold marched.

I am, with the most respectful sentiments to the honourable Congress and yourself, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Hon. John Hancock.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL WARD AND OTHER GENERAL OFFICERS.

[Circular.]

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

SIR: In a letter from the Congress, dated September 26th, information on the following points is required:

What number of men are sufficient for a winter's campaign?

Can the pay of the privates be reduced? How much?

What rations should be allowed the men?

And what regulations are further necessary for the government of the Forces?

To the above queries of the Congress I have to add several of my own, which I also request your opinion upon, viz:

For how long a time ought the men in the present Army (should we set about enlisting them) be engaged?

What method would you recommend, as most eligible, to clothe a new-raised Army with a degree of decency and regularity? Would you advise it to be done by the Continent? In that case, would you lower the men's wages, and make no deduction for clothing, or let it stand, and make stoppages? And how much a month?

As there appears to be great irregularity in the manner of paying the men, and much discontent has prevailed on this account, in what manner and at what fixed periods would you advise it to be done, under a new establishment?

What sized Regiments would you recommend under this establishment; that is, how many men to a Company, how many Companies to a Regiment, and how officered?

Is there any method by which the best of the present officers in this Army can be chosen, without impeding the enlistment of the men by such choice and preference? Under any complete establishment, even if all the privates in the Army were engaged again, many of the present officers must be discharged, as there is an over proportion; of course we ought to retain the best.

Your close attention to the foregoing points, against Monday, ten o'clock, at which time I shall expect to see you at this place, will much oblige, Sir, your most obliged humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

COUNCIL OF WAR.

At a Council of War held at Head-Quarters, October 8, 1775, present: His Excellency General Washington; Major-Generals Ward, Lee, Putnam; Brigadier-Generals Thomas, Spencer, Heath, Sullivan, Greene, Gates.

His Excellency having, on the 5th instant, proposed sundry questions, in writing, to each of the Members of the Council, now requested their opinion on the several matters referred to their consideration.

1st. What number of men are sufficient for a winter's campaign?

Unanimously agreed, that the Army ought not to consist of less than twenty thousand three hundred and seventy-two men,* and that it will be proper to form it into twenty-six Regiments, exclusive of Riflemen and Artillery; that each Regiment consist of seven hundred and twenty-eight men, officers included. Each Company to be officered with one Captain, two Lieutenants, and one Ensign, and to contain four Sergeants, four Corporals, two Drums or Fifes, and seventy-six Privates; which Army is deemed sufficient both for offensive and defensive measures. That the Adjutant and Quartermaster of each Regiment have also a subaltern commission.

* Battalion men, eighteen thousand nine hundred and twenty-eight; Rifle and Artillery men, one thousand four hundred and forty-four—twenty thousand three hundred and seventy-five men.

2d. Can the pay of the Privates be reduced? How much?

Unanimously agreed, that the pay cannot be reduced at present.

3d. What rations should be allowed the men? and for such small articles as the Commissary at times cannot furnish, shall they be compensated in money or provisions?

Unanimously agreed, that the present allowance of provisions ought to stand. And agreed by a majority, that the compensation be made in money.

4th. What regulations are further necessary for the government of the Forces?

This question being so general, the Members of the Council were not prepared to give their sentiments. Whereupon his Excellency desired they would particularly attend to the Articles and Regulations of the Continental Army, and suggest such alterations and improvements as they should deem necessary.

5th. For how long a time ought the men in the present Army (should we set about enlisting them) be engaged?

Unanimously agreed, to the 1st December, 1776; but to be sooner discharged if necessary.

6th. What method would you recommend as most eligible to clothe the new-raised Army with a degree of decency and regularity? Would you advise it to be done by the Continent? In that case, would you lower the men's wages, and make no deduction for clothing, or let it stand, and make stoppages? and how much per month?

Agreed, that each General Officer clothe a person according to his own fancy and judgment, and then the best dress to be selected as a model. That the clothing be provided by the Continent, and paid for by stoppages of ten Shillings per month.

7th. As there appears great irregularity in the manner of paying the men, and much discontent has prevailed on that account, in what manner and at what fixed periods would you advise it to be done, under a new enlistment?

The Members of the Council, upon this question, were equally divided, viz:

For payment per month—Greene, Sullivan, Heath, Lee, Washington.

For payment per three months—Gates, Spencer, Thomas, Putnam, Ward.

8th. What sized Regiments would you recommend under this establishment; that is, how many men to a Company, how many Companies to a Regiment, and how officered?

This question answered under the first.

9th. Is there any method by which the best of the present officers in the Army can be chosen, without impeding the enlistment of the men by such choice and preference? Under any complete establishment, even if all the privates in the Army were engaged again, many of the present officers must be discharged, as there is an over proportion; of course, we ought to retain the best.

This question being of a very difficult and delicate nature, the several Members requested further time to consider it.

10th. Whether it will be advisable to enlist any negroes in the new Army? or whether there be a distinction between such as are slaves and those who are free?

Agreed, unanimously, to reject all slaves, and, by a great majority, to reject negroes altogether.

Brigadier-General GATES's Opinion on Queries of OCTOBER 5, 1775.

Question 1st. What number of men are sufficient for a winter's campaign?

Answer. This will depend, in great measure, upon the number the enemy intend to keep in Boston and upon Bunker's Hill. If they do not, by detachments from thence, diminish their present numbers lower than seven thousand effective men, exclusive of officers, seamen, and artillerymen, I think twenty thousand (commissioned and non-commissioned officers included) are as few as ought to be stationed at Cambridge and Roxbury. Perhaps a less number might suffice for defence at both those posts; but an eye to offence will most undoubtedly be wide open, to avail ourselves of every possible advantage which the weakness of the enemy, the circumstances of the time, and our own superiority, may afford. Provision is hereby also made for any new re-enforcement the enemy may receive; and every intelligence from them declares that they expect, this fall, very considerable assistance, both by sea and land. Another powerful reason for keeping up this number is, that by the opening of the summer, the Army, by the diligence and activity of the officers, may be made a well-disciplined body of troops, and fit to execute any service they may be commanded to perform.

Question 2d. Can the pay of the privates be reduced, and how much?

Answer. The pay of the privates had better be continued as at present established, and all necessary stoppages made, for clothing, &c., out of that pay.

Question 3d. What rations should be allowed the soldiers?

Answer. The rations to be continued as directed by the general orders of the 8th of August and 21st of September following. If milk and peas, or any of the small species of provisions, cannot be procured in the winter, the Commissary-General should make good such deficiency by a larger supply or allowance in some other article, but not in money. More care to be taken in the baking of bread; nothing contributes more to the health of soldiers than good and wholesome food.

Question 4th. What regulations are further necessary for the government of the Forces?

Answer. This question comprehends almost all the others. As those are particularly answered, I shall confine my answer to so general a question to the smallest possible compass; and, first, the Army ought to be so regulated that every non-commissioned officer and soldier be provided with good and sufficient clothing, (as well for winter as summer,) substantial and complete arms and accoutrements, as follows: A powder-horn; a bag for buck-shot; a tin canister, to hold thirty-six cartridges of powder and ball, with a leather strap to sling it across the shoulder; a cartridge-box, to contain twenty-three cartridges or thereabouts; and every soldier, without exception, should have a bayonet. Much regulation is wanted in the Continental Articles of War, as in many instances they have been found to give too discretionary a power to the members who compose General Courts-Martial; a very flagrant instance having happened lately in the trial of Lieutenant-Colonel Abiah Brown. A Provost-Martial should, without delay, be appointed.

Question 5th. For how long a time ought the men in the present Army (should we set about enlisting them) be engaged?

Answer. The Army to be now raised should be enlisted to serve for one year; that is, from the 31st of December, 1775, to the 31st of December, 1776. If the wicked attempts of the present abandoned English Ministry should cease before that period expires, and peace and liberty be restored to this once happy Continent, and the Ministerial Troops withdrawn, then the Troops to be discharged as the Continental Congress, in their wisdom, shall direct.

Question 6th. What method would you recommend as most eligible, to clothe a new-raised Army with a proper degree of decency and regularity? Would you advise it to be done by the Continent? In that case, would you lower the men's wages, and make no deduction for clothing, or let it stand, and make stoppages? and how much a month?

Answer. As to clothing, I am confident it might be so made and contrived that, by throwing off the coat or outer garment, the waistcoat would answer sufficiently for the heat of the summer. Indian stocking, and warm woollen breeches, made strong by being doubled upon the seams, would be best in this climate. It would be proper for a pattern dress to be exhibited. Let each General Officer produce a soldier dressed to his fancy; from those the best might be adopted.

Question 7th. As there appears great irregularity in the manner of paying the men, and much discontent has prevailed upon that account, in what manner and at what fixed periods would you advise it to be done under a new establishment?

Answer. The soldiers should be paid regularly every two months, which will keep so much in arrear as will provide such necessities as they immediately want, and, in many instances, prevent desertion.

Question 8th. What sized Regiments would you recommend under this establishment; that is, how many men to a Company, how many Companies to a Regiment, and how officered?

Question 9th. Is there any method by which the best of the present officers in the Army can be chosen, without impeding the enlistment of the men by such choice and preference?

Answer. The Regiments should, I think, consist of eight Companies; each Company to have one Captain, two Lieutenants, one Ensign, four Sergeants, four Corporals, one Drummer, one Fifer, and seventy-six Privates; three Field-Officers, one Chaplain, one Adjutant, one Quartermaster, one Surgeon, and one Surgeon's Mate. The Adjutant to have also an Ensign's commission, to enable him to keep a horse; he to be a good disciplinarian; to be ready at his pen. This encouragement will make it the ambition of the subalterns to deserve well, that they may get the Adjutancy when vacant.

In regard to selecting the best officers, it has been determined to have all the names of the officers, who are inclined to continue in the service, returned to the Brigadier-General of each Brigade, who will return to the General-in-Chief as soon as the whole are returned. The General-in-Chief, assisted by the rest of the General Officers, to select such as are thought fittest for the different ranks; the rest to be discharged.

HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

Cambridge, October 15, 1775.

Opinion of Brigadier-General GREENE, in answer to Queries of OCTOBER 5, 1775.

Question 1st. What number of men are sufficient for a winter's campaign?

Answer. Twenty-five Regiments, amounting in the whole to thirteen thousand one hundred and thirty men, including Battalion officers; to be posted, nine Regiments on the right division, nine on the left, and seven in the centre. To act offensive and defensively, thirty-eight Regiments to be distributed as before mentioned.

Question 2d. Can the pay of the privates be reduced?

Answer. No. Because a sudden reduction would impede the filling the Regiments to such a degree as would possibly weaken the lines at the expiration of the old establishment. The people have not, as yet, felt the necessity of entering the service for the support of themselves and families. They will consequently refuse enlisting for a time, with the view of reducing the Congress to the necessity of raising the wages.

Question 3d. What rations should be allowed the men?

Answer. As the rations do not enter into the nature of the establishment, but are variable at the pleasure of the Commander-in-Chief, I do not think it eligible to make alteration, at this time, of the present provision.

Question 4th. What regulations are further necessary for the government of the Forces?

Answer. As to appointments, a Provost-Martial is wanted; as to martial laws, treason against the United Colonies, committed in the Army, should be clearly designated, and the punishment expressed.

Question 5th. What is the most eligible method of clothing a new-raised Army?

Answer. The clothing should be procured by the Continent, and delivered to the men at prime cost and charges; to be paid for by monthly deductions; each deduction amounting to twelve Shillings, lawful money.

Question 6th. How are the men to be paid?

Answer. I esteem monthly payments the best calculated to quiet the minds of the soldiery, who must frequently contribute to the support of their families. To this purpose, regimental abstracts should be made, signed by the Colonel or commanding officer of the Regiment, who should apply to his Excellency for a warrant to the Paymaster-General. The Colonel should deliver the money to the Captains of Companies, who will be accountable to the Colonel, who will be answerable to the Paymaster-General.

Question 7th. What sized Regiments upon the new establishment?

Answer. The Regiment should consist of five hundred and twenty-six men, including officers; one Colonel, one Lieutenant-Colonel, and one Major; eight Companies to each Regiment; one Captain, one Lieutenant, and one Ensign; three Sergeants, three Corporals, one Drummer and one Fifer. Staff Officers: one Chaplain, one Adjutant, (being a sub,) one Quartermaster, (being a sub,) one Surgeon, and one Mate.

Question 8th. Can the best officers be retained without impeding the enlistment.

Answer. It is a matter of great delicacy, and, to accomplish it with propriety, I feel the want of military knowledge; however, I beg liberty to propose that the officers now in the service receive enlisting orders: first, to engage all that are fit and willing, now in service; then every one who shall have leave of absence by furlough, as well as the rest, be directed to engage, for the establishment, as many effective men as possible, (each Government or Colony having a certain number of Regiments assigned to it,) and, when the whole number shall be raised, his Excellency will retain such officers as he shall think best qualified, after receiving recommendations for the Field-Officers from the Brigadier-Generals, and of the Commissioned Officers from the Colonels or commanding officers of Regiments, and also from the Brigadier-Generals.

Question 9th. For how long a time should the men be engaged?

Answer. For one year, unless sooner discharged by the Continental Congress; because every contract should be fixed and certain in all its parts; for men esteem confinement, (of which the service partakes,) without any fixed period to its duration, a boundless gulf, where the fruitful imagination creates ten thousand nameless horrors. They will therefore startle at visionary ills, (supposing their enlistments during the pleasure of the Congress,) not considering that the importance of the contest should banish every private consideration which may rise in competition with the publick good.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Questions proposed by his Excellency General Washington, with answers thereto, by his humble servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

Question. What number of men are sufficient for a winter's campaign?

Answer. Eighteen thousand one hundred and forty-eight, arranged in the following order, viz:

At Roxbury, two Brigades, (five Regiments each),
ten Regiments, each 698 men, all officers included,	6,980
Four Regiments at Winter-Hill, one Brigade,	2,792
Four Regiments at Prospect-Hill, one Brigade,	2,792
Eight Regiments at Cambridge, one of which to be stationed at Chelsea and Malden, two Brigades,	5,584

Total, Men, 18,148

Question. Can the pay of the privates be reduced? and how much?

Answer. An attempt to reduce the wages, at this time, will probably prevent the raising of another Army. And when it is considered that the men, in general, find their own arms, and all find their own clothing, and enlist without a bounty, I cannot suppose the wages unreasonable.

Question. What rations shall be allowed the men?

Answer. The same as at present; only fixing a price on each article, that the men may have their money weekly in lieu of those articles which the Commissary cannot furnish.

Question. What regulations are further necessary for the government of the Forces?

Answer. That a General Court-Martial have power to try and punish atrocious offenders, who may come into the camp and behave disorderly, and all such as may be guilty of stealing and purloining from the Army. That persons convicted of holding correspondence with or giving intelligence to the enemy be punished with death. That Adjutants be appointed to each Brigade. That in case of the death or resignation of any officer, the officers are to rise in their own corps, and keep the command in the respective Regiments or Companies to which they belong.

Question. For how long a time ought the men in the present Army to be engaged?

Answer. As the Army is principally composed of husbandmen, and their business comes on about the 1st of April, none of those would incline to enlist for a longer time; as tarrying one month longer would as effectually defeat the farming business, for the year ensuing, as if they were to engage for a year; and as an Army may easily be engaged, before that time, for the ensuing summer, I recommend that they be enlisted until the 1st of April, and no longer.

Question. What method would you recommend as most eligible to clothe a new Army with a proper degree of decency and regularity? Would you advise it to be done by the Continent? In that case, would you lower the men's wages, and make no deduction for clothing, or let it stand, and make stoppages? and how much a month?

Answer. The wages ought to stand; and if a uniform be agreed on, the men should have the liberty to procure it for themselves; provided they do it seasonably and to the acceptance of their officers; but as many of them will not be able to do this, the Continent should provide for those, and stop it out of their wages. The same method ought to be pursued if common clothing only is required, as many of them will be unable to procure the necessary articles.

Question. As there appears to be great irregularity in the manner of paying the men, and much discontent has prevailed upon that account, in what manner and at what fixed periods would you advise it to be done, under a new establishment?

Answer. As some new recruits must be raised, and as those recruits will not, probably, have money to provide themselves for the campaign; and as no bounty money is to be given them, I recommend that they receive one month's advance wages, and the residue at the expiration of their term.

Question. What sized Regiments would you recommend under this establishment, viz: how many men to a Company, how many Companies to a Regiment, and how officered?

Answer. Ten Companies to a Regiment, two of which to be Light-Infantry, sixty-four men to a Company, including Sergeants and Corporals, which will give sixty Corporals and Privates to each Company, or subdivision, and thirty to each platoon. The officers to be, one Captain, one Lieutenant, and one Ensign.

Question. Is there any method by which the best of the present officers in this Army can be chosen, without impeding the enlistment of the men by such choice and preference?

Answer. I think the officers in my Brigade, who are most averse to doing duty, and least able to endure fatigue, having signified their intention to leave the service, and the best officers inclining to tarry, I am of opinion that the most worthy and resolute officers in the whole Army will remain in the service, which will supersede the necessity of selecting the best for the winter campaign. But in case more than is requisite should incline to stay, when the names of the whole are given in, some method may be hit upon to get rid of those supernumerary officers, without impeding the enlistment of the men. I therefore advise that the Generals of Brigades give in the names of those officers who incline to tarry in the service, as soon as may be.

An Account of the Men who are willing to continue in the service of the United Colonies, during the winter, from Colonel STARK's Regiment.

Captain George Reed's Company,	- - - - -	27
Captain Daniel Moore's	" - - - - -	40
Captain Gordon Hutchings's	" - - - - -	30
Captain Elisha Woodbury's	" - - - - -	37
Captain Thos. McLaughlin's	" - - - - -	00
Captain John Hale's	" - - - - -	13
Captain Samuel Richards's	" - - - - -	7
Captain Aaron Kinsman's	" - - - - -	18
Captain Joshua Abbott's	" - - - - -	25
Captain Henry Dearborn's	" - - - - -	32
Total, Men,		229

October 8, 1775.

[No. 1.]

An Estimate of the cost of such articles, for the support of an AMERICAN Army, consisting of twenty-two thousand men, from the 10th of OCTOBER, 1775, to the 10th of MAY, 1776, being seven months, as full within the department of the Commissary-General:

Twenty-five thousand barrels Flour, at 44s.,	-	£55,000
Twelve thousand barrels Pork, at 65s.,	-	39,000
One thousand barrels salted Beef, at 50s.,	-	2,500
Twenty-two thousand pounds fresh Beef, three days in a week, 25s. per cwt.,	-	29,100
Two hundred barrels Beer or Cider per day, 5s.,	-	10,500
Twenty-two thousand pints Milk per day, 1d.,	-	19,150
Twenty-eight thousand bushels Peas or Beans, 6s.,	-	8,400
Six ounces Butter per man per week, 8d. per pound,	-	10,080
Two gallons Vinegar per man per week,	-	10,000
One hundred hogsheads New-England Rum,	-	1,250
Hospital stores uncertain; say thirty pipes Teneriffe Wine,	-	900
One hundred casks Raisins, 50s.,	-	250
One hundred barrels Oat Meal,	-	200
		£186,330
Add contingencies,	-	13,670
		£200,000

I compute the Pork as drove to camp; if bought in the country, the transportation will cost twenty Shillings per barrel more; in the whole, twelve thousand Pounds. Beer and Cider, Vinegar, Wine, Raisins, Oat Meal, and fifty hogsheads Rum, already purchased.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

[No. 2.]

An Estimate of the cost of a Barrack, ninety-six feet by sixteen feet, to be divided into six rooms, and to contain one hundred men:

Boards,	-	£30 00 0
Joist or slit work,	-	6 00 0
Timber for the frame,	-	12 06 0
Shingles,	-	10 16 0
Nails,	-	9 00 0
Bricks,	-	12 06 0
Additional wages to Soldiers, one month, (sixteen men,) who build the Barrack, 20s. per month,	-	16 00 0
Cost of a Barrack, ninety-six by sixteen feet,	-	£96 08 0

At the lowest estimate, we must build one hundred and twenty Barracks of that size, (ninety for Cambridge, and thirty for Roxbury camp,) which, in round numbers, will amount to - - - - - £12,000

Allowing one and a half cord of fire-wood, per week, to one hundred men, the Army will consume, in six months, eight thousand cords, at 20s., - - - - - 8,000

Lawful money, £20,000

THOS. MIFFLIN, Quartermaster-General.

Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

[No. 3.]

Cash advanced from the Congress—Dr.

To cash paid Marsteller & Thorne, for fifteen Rifles, as per account,	-	£68 04 00
To cash paid Benja. Weiser, for four Rifles, as per account,	-	16 02 06
To cash paid John Ross, for Drums, &c., as per account,	-	37 19 06
To cash paid Duffield & Delany, for Medicines for the Surgeon,	-	69 06 09
To cash paid six wagoners, in part, for carriage, as per account,	-	90 00 00
To cash paid Peter Filbert, for Mr. John Biddle, Commissary, as per account,	-	200 00 00

To cash paid Christian Wegman, for Mr. John Biddle, Commissary, as per account,	£17 14 00
To cash paid Owen Biddle, for Mr. John Kean, as per receipt, for Rifles,	54 18 00
To cash paid M. Gratz, for Rifles, as per account,	17 10 00
To cash paid Mr. Graydon, for Blanketing, Camp Kettles, &c.,	140 10 00
To cash paid John Davis, Commissary, in Reading,	36 00 00
To cash paid for Blankets, Russia Sheetting, &c.,	90 10 00
To cash paid Major Magaw,	11 15 00
To cash paid for Epaulets for Capt. John Lowdon,	6 00 00
To cash paid Expresses at sundry times,	30 07 06
To cash paid Margaret Duncan, for Russia Sheetting, by Mr. Biddle, as per account,	55 00 00
To cash paid William Homes's Draft,	76 00 00
To cash paid William Patterson, Conductor of Military Stores,	1 00 00
To cash paid Captain James Ross, as per receipt,	60 00 00
To cash paid Captains Lowdon, Dowdle, Nagel, Smith, Miller, Hendricks, and Chambers, sixty Pounds each, as per receipt, amounting to	420 00 00
To cash paid Lieutenant McClellan, as per receipt,	5 00 00
To cash paid Lieutenant James Parr, as per receipt,	15 00 00
To cash paid Lieutenants Grier, McCornel, and Buchanan,	15 00 00
To cash paid Valentine Eckart, Wagon-Master,	30 00 00
To cash paid Richard Backhouse, as per receipt, (Commissary from Reading,)	60 00 00
To cash paid Henry Yedse, Peter Smith, and Stophel Leab, Wagoners, as per receipts,	22 10 00
To cash paid Lieutenant John Dill,	5 00 00
To cash paid William Magaw, Surgeon,	5 00 00
To cash paid Lieutenant-Colonel Edward Hand,	44 00 00
To cash paid Captain Michael Dowdle,	35 00 00
To cash paid Nicholas Hansigger, Agent,	7 10 00
To cash paid Lieut. Samuel Craig, £1 5s., and paid Wm. Magaw, Surgeon, £7 10s.,	8 15 00
To cash paid Lieutenants McClellan, Irvine, and Nicholls, as per receipt,	15 00 00
To cash paid John Montgomery, for cash lent to purchase Provisions, &c.,	52 00 00
To cash paid Lieutenant Robert Makenzie, as per receipt,	3 02 06
To cash paid David Harris, Paymaster,	8 17 06
To cash given Captain Hendricks to recruit his Company, (omitted above,)	26 11 10
To cash given Captain Chambers to recruit his Company, (omitted above,)	27 10 00
	£1,885 01 01

Contra—Cr.

By five thousand Dollars, at seven Shillings six Pence each,	£1,875 00 00
Balance due,	10 01 01

Errors excepted: £1,885 01 01

WM. THOMPSON, Col., Second Regiment.

[No. 4.]

INSTRUCTIONS TO CAPTAIN NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

1. You, being appointed a Captain in the Army of the United Colonies of North-America, are hereby directed to take the command of a detachment of said Army, and proceed on board the schooner Hannah, at Beverly, lately fitted out and equipped with arms, ammunition, and provisions, at the Continental expense.
2. You are to proceed, as commander of said schooner, immediately on a cruise against such vessels as may be found on the high seas or elsewhere, bound inwards or outwards, to or from Boston, in the service of the Ministerial Army, and to take and seize all such vessels, laden with soldiers, arms, ammunition, or provision, for or from said Army, or which you shall have good reason to suspect are in such service.

3. If you should be so successful as to take any of said vessels, you are immediately to send them to the nearest and safest port to this camp, under a careful prize master, directing him to notify me, by express, immediately, of such capture, with all particulars, and there to wait my further direction.

4. You are to be very particular and diligent in your search after all letters or other papers tending to discover the designs of the enemy, or of any other kind, and to forward all such to me as soon as possible.

5. Whatever prisoners you may take you are to treat with kindness and humanity, as far as is consistent with your own safety; their private stock of money and apparel to be given them, after being duly searched; and when they arrive at any port, you are to apply to the Committee, or to any officer of the Continental Army stationed at such port, for a guard to bring them up to Head-Quarters.

6. For your own encouragement, and that of the other officers and men, to activity and courage in this service, over and above your pay in the Continental Army, you shall be entitled to one-third part of the cargo of every vessel by you taken and sent into port, (military and naval stores only excepted, which, with the vessels and apparel, are reserved for the publick service;) which said third part is to be divided among the officers and men, in the following proportions: Captain, six shares; First Lieutenant, five shares; Second Lieutenant, four shares; Surgeon, four shares; Ship's Master, three shares; Steward, two shares; Mate, one and a half share; Gunner, one and a half share; Boatswain, one and a half share; Gunner's Mate and Sergeant, one and a half share; Privates, one share each.

7. You are particularly charged to avoid any engagement with any armed vessel of the enemy, though you may be equal in strength, or may have some small advantage; the design of this enterprise being to intercept the supplies of the enemy, which will be defeated by your running into unnecessary engagements.

8. As there may be other vessels employed in the same service with yourselves, you are to fix upon proper signals, and, your stations being settled so as to take the greatest range, avoid cruising on the same ground. If you should happen to take prizes in sight of each other, the rules which take place among private ships of war are to be observed in the distribution of the prize money.

9. In case of retaking the vessel of any friend to the American cause, I will recommend it to such person to make a suitable compensation to those who have done such a service; but such vessels are not to be deemed as coming within the directions respecting other vessels.

10. You are to be extremely careful and frugal of your ammunition, by no means to waste any of it in salutes, or for any purpose but what is absolutely necessary.

Given under my hand, at Head-Quarters, Cambridge, this 2d day of September, 1775.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

[No. 5.]

William Cowley, of lawful age, being duly sworn, deposed and saith: That he has lived with Major John Connolly, of Fort Pitt, in the character of a servant, for two years last past; that the said Connolly was obliged to quit that place, fearing some injury from the inhabitants, who suspected him of being an enemy to his Country; that some time in August last, the said Connolly paid a visit to Lord Dunmore, on board of his Lordship's ship, the Royal William, then lying at Portsmouth, in Virginia, and took this deponent as his servant; that the said Connolly staid fourteen days on board of the said ship, and afterwards went to Boston in his Lordship's tender Arundel, with despatches to General Gage, from Lord Dunmore, where he was for the space of ten days. This deponent further saith, that after their departure from thence, the said Connolly asked this deponent if he was willing to go with him into the Indian Country; told him that he had been with General Gage, to get a commission, and orders to go into the Indian

Country to raise the Indians and French; that there was some part of the Royal Irish at Fort Chartres, this deponent thinks he said, who had it in command from General Gage to join him, and who had nine twelve-pounders; that as soon as he had settled his business with Lord Dunmore, after his return, he intended, as he dared not go home through the heart of the Country, to take his Lordship's tender, go to St. Augustine, there get guides to lead him through the Cherokee Nation, Shawanese, Mingoes, and Delawares; that he was to get commissions from Lord Dunmore, for Captain White Eyes and Cornstalk, and other of the chiefs, and designed to make them presents, in order to encourage them to join him; that he intends to stay at Detroit this winter, to furnish himself with boats and canoes, to bring his forces and cannon up the Ohio River; that he then intends to attack Fort Pitt, after taking which, he supposed all that part of the world would join him, especially as he had orders to give three hundred acres of land to every man that would enlist under him. This deponent further saith, that the said Connolly informed him of another scheme he had in view, namely, to proclaim freedom to all convicts and indented servants, then to march down to Alexandria, in Virginia, where he expects a reinforcement from Lord Dunmore, and to meet with some men of war, with which he intended to sweep the whole Country before him.

WILLIAM COWLEY.

MIDDLESEX, ss., October 12, 1775:

William Cowley, the subscriber to the within deposition, made oath to the truth of the same, before me,

ABRAHAM FULLER, Just. Peace.

ORDERS BY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

(Parole, Quebeck.)

(Countersign, Roxborough.)

Lieutenant Zachariah Walker, tried at a General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Varnum was the President, for "cowardice in the action upon Bunker's Hill, the 17th of June last." The Court, on consideration of the evidence, are unanimously of opinion that the prisoner is not guilty of the charge against him. The General commands the prisoner to be instantly released.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 7, 1775.

(Parole, Uxbridge.)

(Countersign, Williamsburgh.)

Lieutenant-Colonel Abijah Brown, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Hitchcock was President, for "endeavouring to defraud the Continent, in mustering two Soldiers, whom he at the same time employed in working upon his farm." The Court, having duly considered the evidence, are of opinion that Lieutenant-Colonel Brown is not guilty of any fraud, in endeavouring to have Harrington and Clarke mustered in the manner he did. But the Court are of opinion, that Colonel Brown is guilty of employing Harrington for fourteen days, and Clarke for eighteen days, out of camp, upon his own business, yet are inclined to think it was done rather through ignorance than a fraudulent intent, and therefore adjudge that he be fined four Pounds, lawful money, for the said offence.

The General orders Lieutenant-Colonel Brown to be released as soon as he has paid his fine to Dr. Foster, Director of the Hospital, who will apply it to the use of the sick in the General Hospital under his care. The General hopes the stigma fixed on Lieutenant-Colonel Brown, by the above sentence, will be a sufficient warning to all officers, not to be guilty of the like offence, especially as the General is confident no General Court-Martial will for the future admit a plea of ignorance in excuse of so atrocious a crime.

His Excellency Governour Trumbull's Commission being produced to the Commander-in-Chief, by Thomas Dyer, Esq., appointing him, the said Dyer, to be a Captain in the Thirty-Fourth Regiment of foot, which Regiment was raised in the Colony of Connecticut, and the officers commissioned by the legislative authority thereof: the General orders Thomas Dyer, Esq., immediately to join his Company, to be received into the said Regiment as a Captain, and to be obeyed as such.

The General Court-Martial, of which Colonel Hitchcock was President, is dissolved.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 8, 1775.

(Parole, Yarmouth.)

(Countersign, Ambay.)

For the future, the Adjutant-General will send the Parole and Countersign, under a sealed cover, by the Orderly Adjutant at Head-Quarters, to the Majors of Brigade, Scammell, Box, Cary, and Henley. They at gun firing in the evening, and not before, are to deliver the Parole and Countersign to the Adjutants of their respective Brigades. The Adjutants are first to deliver the Parole and Countersign to the Officers of the advanced guard, then to the Officer of every guard in and about the camp, and then to their Commanding Officers and Corps. The Roxbury Adjutant will receive every day, at orderly time, the Parole and Countersign, in a sealed cover, directed to the Commanding General at Roxbury, who will observe the same order and time of delivering them to Officers in his encampment, as is directed to be done here.

A General Court-Martial to sit to-morrow, to try such prisoners as shall be brought before them; Colonel Bridge, President.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 9, 1775.

(Parole, Bedford.)

(Countersign, Cork.)

If any negro is found straggling, after tattoo beating, about the camp, or about any of the roads or villages near the encampments at Roxbury or Cambridge, they are to be seized or confined until sunrise, in the guard nearest to the place where said negro is taken up.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 11, 1775.

(Parole, Falkland.)

(Countersign, Georgia.)

Captain Samuel Gridley, of Colonel Gridley's Regiment of Artillery, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Bridge was President, for "backwardness in the execution of his duty, and for negligence in the care and discipline of his camp." The Court, upon mature consideration of the evidence examined in support of the charge, are unanimously of opinion, that no part of the charge is supported against Captain Gridley, and dismiss the complaint, as malicious, vexatious and groundless. The General approves the proceedings of the Court-Martial, and orders Captain Gridley to be immediately released.

COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE DELEGATES IN CONGRESS.

In Committee of Safety, Exeter, October 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: On the 2d of this instant, the Ship Prince George, Richard Emmes master, from Bristol, bound to Boston, with one thousand eight hundred and ninety-two barrels of flour, for the use of General Gage's Army, came into our harbour, and was boarded by a number of men, under the command of Lieutenant Pickering, of the Matross Company, and brought up to Portsmouth, where she is detained. General Washington has been consulted concerning her, and has desired that the cargo may be sent to the Army, and has promised to write to the Congress for their directions in what manner the cargo should be disposed of, and what should be allowed the captors, &c.

Our batteries are almost completed; the work done on them will surpass your imagination; several hundreds of men from the country round about having voluntarily laboured thereon a considerable time since they were begun.

We have nothing to communicate to you now, our public affairs continuing as they were when you left home; but must desire your diligent endeavours to procure something to be done relative to our civil Government. As there is not a barrel of flour to be sold in this Colony, we were under the necessity of taking a hundred barrels of the flour for the support of our soldiers and workmen at the batteries erecting on Scovys and Pierces Islands, there being upwards of a hundred soldiers, besides workmen, employed thereon, which we have since represented to General Washington, with a proposal to sell five hundred barrels to the inhabitants of Portsmouth, and deposite the money safely until directions from the Congress should be obtained.

We have lately had a requisition from General Washington to pay our Troops' wages up to the 4th of August, which was quite unexpected, and will occasion our emitting more money, and of course hinder our accounts from being forwarded for some time. The numbering the inhabitants in this Colony is on hand, and when completed we shall transmit you an account thereof.

P. S. If, through the multiplicity of his affairs, General Washington should omit to write fully concerning the said ship and cargo, we desire you to lay the matter before the Congress, and procure their directions concerning it, to be transmitted to us as soon as possible.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF SOUTHAMPTON.

Address of the Mayor, Bailiffs, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Town of Southampton, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Hans Stanley, and John Fleming, Esquire, their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Bailiffs, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Town of Southampton, humbly approach your throne, expressing our acknowledgments of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's auspicious reign.

Zealous for the honour of our Sovereign, the prosperity of our Country, and the support of the laws of this Kingdom, we ardently wish your Majesty may very long rule in the hearts of all your people, wherever dispersed through your extensive Dominions, and cannot but lament that our fellow-subjects in America, forgetful of the succour and protection so constantly afforded them by this their Parent State, have suffered themselves to be deluded by the arts of wicked and licentious men, and proceeded to acts of rebellion against your royal person and Government. In testimony, therefore, of our abhorrence of those pernicious maxims by which they pretend to justify their conduct, we presume to entreat your Majesty to use the most effectual means to assert your royal authority, vindicate the injured supremacy of the British Legislature, and recall the infatuated Colonists to their allegiance. And because we fear the milder influence of reason and persuasion will still be found inadequate to those truly desirable ends, while those unhappy men continue wilfully ignorant of your Majesty's gracious intentions towards them, and blind to the pleasing prospect of accommodation, we beg leave to assure your Majesty that we will, at the hazard of all that is valuable to us, support the dignity of your Crown, and exert all our power to preserve the utmost limits of your Empire undiminished, and in due obedience to your Majesty and your illustrious family.

May the God of wisdom and of power direct your Majesty's counsels for the restoration of harmony and peace, or go forth with your fleets and armies in the prosecution of your undoubted rights over every part of the Dominions which He, by whom Kings reign, has committed to your care.

In testimony whereof, we, the said Mayor, Bailiffs, and Burgesses, have affixed our common corporate seal and names, and we, the said inhabitants, have subscribed our names, the 13th day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

NEW-JERSEY CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 16, 1775.]

Trenton, October 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress of New-Jersey, animated with equal affection to the common cause of America, and equally with the other Colonies desirous to promote its general interests as far as in their power, are sorry to find their good intentions likely to be restrained by one of the resolutions of the honourable Continental Congress of the 12th inst., obligingly communicated to us by their President.

We cannot but observe, that if the nomination of the field-officers in the Battalions proposed to be raised in this Province be not first ascertained to be in this Congress, it will much impede the expeditious raising of the men; and we are clearly of opinion that it will tend much to expedite this service, if field-officers are first of all appointed; for if they are such as are generally respected in the Province, not only Captains and subalterns of reputation will offer their service, but the privates will enlist more cheerfully; indeed, the other commissions cannot perhaps be properly filled up without inserting in what Battalion the officers are to serve. We also humbly conceive, that as other Provinces have been indulged with this privilege, we cannot, in justice to our constituents, nor consistent with the honour of our Province, give up this claim.

We have no doubt, therefore, the honourable Continental Congress will reconsider this resolution, and determine that this Province ought neither to be precluded a privilege granted to every other Province, nor restrained in their endeavours to promote the general interests of America. In such case, we beg leave to assure them this Congress will exert all its influence in promoting the raising the proposed levies; and we have the pleasure to add, that we have reason to hope they will be attended with the desired success.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

By order of the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey:
SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

To the Members of the Honourable Continental Congress.

NEW-JERSEY CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 16, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, Trenton, October 14, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: This Congress finding that, in order to enable them to provide a sufficient quantity of arms and ammunition, and such other articles as are essentially necessary to enforce the operations of the present glorious struggle for liberty, a very considerable fund must at all events be immediately raised; and as this Congress, in all causes of importance, think it necessary that they should have some knowledge of the sentiments of the Continental Congress, I am directed to apply to your House, and to inquire whether it is consistent with the measures the Continental Congress have adopted, to let any of the Provinces have the use of such a sum of the Continental currency as may be sufficient to answer their particular exigences, upon the faith of such Province; and if so, what sum the Continental Congress can spare, and upon what terms, for the use of New-Jersey at this time.

Anxiously desirous of rendering every possible assistance to the common cause, this Congress have it before them to make provision sufficient to enable them at least to raise four thousand Minute-Men, to take the field on any emergency. But as it is uncertain what provision the Continental Congress may have thought proper to make for such Minute-Men, if called into actual service, I am likewise directed to apply to you for information in this respect.

This Congress beg the favour of an answer as soon as possible.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant.

By order of Congress:

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 14, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed letter from Governour Trumbull we received this morning.

In our application to the Colony of Connecticut, for aid in the article General Schuyler requested might be forwarded to him, we have failed, and thought proper to enclose a copy of Governour Trumbull's letter to the Congress.

We are, Gentlemen, your obedient servants.

By order: NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Lebanon, October 9, 1775.

SIR: I have this moment received your favour of the 6th instant, enclosing an extract of your letter from General Schuyler, who requested me to give such aid in the necessary article you mention as may be in my power. Have just received General Washington's letter of the 5th inst., advising that a small fleet, consisting of a sixty-four gun ship, a twenty, two sloops of eighteen guns, two transports, and about six hundred men, with two mortars and four howitzers on board, had just sailed from Boston, from which he suspects they intended to bombard some Town on the coast. We have this day received, by report, a transient account that some ships were cannonading the Town of Bristol on the last Saturday, but have not got any certain intelligence of the matter. We are in expectation they may appear soon on our coast; that, under the present situation of affairs, we are not able to lend any aid in the necessary article you mention, having made so many disbursements of that article already.

I am, most respectfully, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

To the Honourable President Woodhull.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 17, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 13, 1775.

SIR: I am directed to request the favour of you to take the sense of the honourable Congress, and to give us their answer by return of the post or first other good conveyance, whether the inhabitants of this Colony ought to be prevented from exporting provisions or other articles to any places whatsoever, except those intended for the General Association of the Congress.

I am, with the greatest respect, your most obedient servant. By order:

NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

GOVERNOUR TRYON TO THE MAYOR OF NEW-YORK.

New-York, October 13, 1775.

SIR: From undoubted authority from the City of Philadelphia, the Continental Congress have recommended it to the Provincial Congress to seize or take up the officers of this Government, and particularly myself, by name. I am therefore to desire you will inform the Corporation and citizens of this City, that I place my security here in their protection; that when that confidence is withdrawn, by any seizure of my person, the Commander of His Majesty's ships of war in the harbour will demand that the inhabitants deliver me on board the fleet; and on refusal, enforce the demand with their whole power. Therefore, anxious to prevent, if possible, so great a calamity to this City, as well as inconvenience to myself, I am ready, should the voice of the citizens be unfavourable to my staying among them, immediately to embark on board the Asia, requesting that the citizens will defeat every attempt that may be made to hinder my removal, with my domesticks and effects, should that be their wish, since I returned to this Province with every honourable intention to serve them, consistent with my bounden duty to my Sovereign. I am, Sir, your very obedient servant,

WILLIAM TRYON.

To Whitehead Hicks, Esq., Mayor of the City of New-York.

MAYOR OF NEW-YORK TO GOVERNOUR TRYON.

New-York, October 14, 1775.

SIR: Instantly upon the receipt of your Excellency's commands, signified by your letter of yesterday, I called the Magistrates and Assistants to a Common Council, upon its important contents. The Members of the Corporation unanimously expressed themselves, upon this occasion, in terms of the strongest affection and confidence respecting their Governour; and I am persuaded, Sir, that their fellow-citizens (for I consulted as many individuals without doors as the time would permit) are utterly disinclined to your removal from the capital of your Province.

The City Committee, which is a very numerous body of reputable inhabitants, elected at a Convention of the whole Town, before your last arrival, were immediately convened, upon my acquainting the Chairman with your Excellency's letter, and in a very little time I had their sentiments in writing, under the signature of their Chairman, which I now communicate, as a confirmation of what it gives me the greatest pleasure to declare, that the citizens, confiding in your friendship to a Colony which you have governed with so much reputation, earnestly desire you will still continue your residence among us; and, from the declarations and temper of the people at large, I have not the least doubt of your enjoying the most ample protection.

I have the honour to be, with the highest esteem and respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,
 WHITEHEAD HICKS.

His Excellency William Tryon, Esq.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE TO WHITEHEAD HICKS.

Committee Chamber, New-York, October 13, 1775.

SIR: The Committee have taken into consideration the letter your Worship received from his Excellency Governour Tryon, of this date. From unquestionable authority, they are assured that the Provincial Congress have received no order or recommendation to seize his Excellency's person, or the persons of any of the other officers of this Government.

It is with pleasure, Sir, we can assure you, as far as we can judge, that his Excellency's conduct has given general satisfaction to our fellow-citizens; and, confiding in his friendly disposition towards the inhabitants of this Colony, it is our earnest wish that he will continue to reside among us.

I am, with much respect, your Worship's obedient and very humble servant.

By order of the General Committee:

HENRY REMSEN, Deputy Chairman.

Whitehead Hicks, Esq., Mayor of the City of New-York.

GOVERNOUR TRYON TO WHITEHEAD HICKS.

New-York, October 14, 1775.

SIR: I have received your letter in answer to my application to the Corporation and citizens, of yesterday, to obtain their assurances, either of protection while among them, or security to remove on board the King's ship. But as they have not authorized you to pledge to me their assurances of security in either case, my duty in this hour of alarm will not justify me to my Sovereign in staying longer on shore, without positive declarations of their full protection, under every circumstance.

I beg you will present my best thanks to the Corporation and citizens, for their affectionate and friendly wishes towards me.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM TRYON.

Whitehead Hicks, Esq., Mayor of the City of New-York.

MAYOR OF NEW-YORK TO GOVERNOUR TRYON.

New-York, October 18, 1775.

SIR: When your Excellency's letter of Saturday came to hand, the day was so far spent that I had no prospect of an opportunity to take the sense of the citizens upon it till Monday, and then, unfortunately, the Chairman and Deputy Chairman of the Committee I mentioned in my last letter, and many of the members, were out of Town.

On Tuesday morning, they met and deliberated upon it, and had a second convention for that purpose in the evening; and the result of their counsels appears in the written answer they sent me, and which I now have the honour to transmit to your Excellency.

Permit me to add, Sir, that the friendly and respectful terms in which people of all ranks express themselves concerning your Excellency on this occasion, and their anxiety at the thought of your retiring from the Capital, are very satisfactory to the Corporation, and in particular to your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

WHITEHEAD HICKS.

To His Excellency William Tryon, Esq.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE TO WHITEHEAD HICKS.

Committee Chamber, October 17, 1775.

SIR: His Excellency Governour Tryon's second letter to your Worship, of the 14th instant, has been laid before the Committee. We flattered ourselves that the sentiments of respect expressed in answer to his Excellency's first letter to your Worship, and the assurances that his information from Philadelphia was ill-grounded, would have removed every suspicion of injury intended to his person or property.

We can, with great truth, assure his Excellency that we are not apprehensive of the least danger to his person or property; and that he may rest assured of all that protection from us and our fellow-citizens, which will be consistent with the great principle of our safety and preservation; declaring, at the same time, that we have the utmost confidence in his Excellency's disposition to serve the true interest of this Colony, and that he will, by his wise and prudent mediation, use his best offices to restore that harmony between Great Britain and the Colonies, so ardently wished for by us. The Committee, therefore, cannot but again express their most earnest desire that his Excellency would continue his residence among a people who have the most grateful sense of his upright and disinterested administration.

We have the pleasure to acquaint your Worship, that the above letter was unanimously approved of in a full Committee, and are, Sir, your very humble servant.

By order of the Committee:

ISAAC LOW, Chairman.

The Worshipful Whitehead Hicks, Esq.

GOVERNOUR TRYON TO THE MAYOR OF NEW-YORK.

On board the Halifax Packet, October 19, 1775.

SIR: Finding your letter of yesterday insufficient for that security I requested from the Corporation and citizens, and objectionable for the mode in which you obtained the sense of the inhabitants, my duty directed me, for the present instant, to remove on board this ship, where I shall be ready to do such business of the Country as the situation of the times will permit.

The citizens, as well as the inhabitants of the Province, may be assured of my inclination to embrace every means in my power to restore the peace, good order, and authority of Government.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

WILLIAM TRYON.

Whitehead Hicks, Esq., Mayor of the City of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Ticonderoga, October 13, 1775.

SIR: Since writing you yesterday, Colonel Hinman has shown me a copy of his letter to your Honour. I perceive the Colonel says he only believes it was General Montgomery whom he informed of his willingness to muster. I must set this matter right.

On Sunday evening, the 13th of August, General Montgomery and the Muster-Master arrived here. My conversation with Colonel Hinman was on Tuesday, the 15th. That very evening I received an express from Crown Point. Early next morning I went there; returned after sunset. At daybreak next day set out for Albany; returned on the 30th; and I am as confident as I exist, that Colonel Hinman never spoke a word to me on the subject, until since my last return to this place.

The Colonel says, the sick have, at most, only six days' provisions. I assure you they have what they like. Those that go by Fort George have only four days', where they can get more. That they have not the least help by wagons, is not my fault, as the enclosed copy of my order will evince. But I believe the Colonel is misinformed.

The Colonel is mistaken, that he knows nothing about the men who were furloughed. I can take my oath that I never gave a furlough to one man, without the Colonel's request, or Doctor's certificate; and I have many of the scraps of paper now lying by me, requesting furloughs by the Colonel himself.

I am, Sir, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To Governour Trumbull.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOHN AUGUSTINE WASHINGTON.

Camp at Cambridge, October 13, 1775.

DEAR BROTHER: Your favour of the 12th ultimo came to hand a few days ago. By it I gladly learned that your family were recovered of the two complaints which had seized many of them, and confined my sister. I am very glad to hear, also, that the Convention had come to resolutions for arming the people, and preparing vigorously for the defence of the Colony, which, by the latest accounts from England, will prove a salutary measure. I am also pleased to find that the manufacture of arms and ammunition has been attended to with so much care. A plenty of these, and unanimity and fortitude among ourselves, must defeat every attempt that the Ministry can invent to enslave this great Continent. In the manufacturing of arms for public use, great care should be taken to make the bores of the same size, that the same balls may answer; otherwise, great disadvantages may arise from a mixture of cartridges.

The enemy, by their not coming out, are, I suppose, afraid of us, whilst their situation renders any attempts of ours upon them in a manner impracticable. Nothing new has happened since my last worth communicating. Since finishing our own lines of defence, we, as well as the enemy, have been busily employed in putting our men under proper cover for the winter. Our advanced works and theirs are within musket-shot of each other. We are obliged to submit to an almost daily cannonade, without returning a shot, from our scarcity of powder, which we are necessitated to keep for closer work than cannon distance, whenever the red coat gentry please to step out of their intrenchments. Seeing no prospect of this, I sent a detachment, about a month ago, into Canada, by the way of Kennebeck River, under the command of a Colonel Arnold. This detachment consisted of one thousand men, and was ordered to take possession of Quebeck, if possible; but, at any rate, to make a diversion in favour of General Schuyler, who, by this time, is in possession, I trust, of Montreal and St. John's, as I am not altogether without hopes that Colonel Arnold may be of the Capital. Finding that we were in no danger of a visit from our neighbours, I have fitted out and am fitting out several privateers, with soldiers, who have been bred to the sea; and I have no doubt of making captures of several of their transports, some of which have already fallen into our hands, laden with provisions.

I am obliged to you for your advice to my wife, and for your intention of visiting her. Seeing no great prospect of returning to my family and friends this winter, I have sent an invitation to Mrs. Washington to come to me, although I fear the season is too far advanced to admit this, with any tolerable degree of convenience, especially if she should, when my letters get home, be in New-Kent, as I believe the case will be. I have laid before her a state of the difficulties, however, which must attend the journey, and left it to her own choice.

My love to my sister and the little ones is sincerely tendered, and I am, with true regard, your most affectionate brother,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To John Augustine Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Camp at Cambridge, October 13, 1775.

SIR: I am favoured with yours of the 10th, and am sorry it so happened, that the proposed scheme of intercepting the enemy's ordnance stores cannot have your assistance. The experience your officers and men have had, by an earlier attention to sea service, would have made them very acceptable on the proposed enterprise.

The fleet which sailed out of Boston a few days ago, and of which I apprized you on the 6th instant, has been seen standing N. N. E., from which we suppose they are destined against some Town of this Province, or New-Hampshire, or possibly to Quebeck.

We have had no occurrence of any consequence in the camp since I had the pleasure of writing you last. I find the Delegates did not expect to leave Philadelphia till the 6th instant, so that their arrival here will be later than at first proposed. I expect the pleasure of seeing you shortly, and am, with much regard and esteem, yours, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Cooke, Rhode-Island.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp at Cambridge, October 13, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 9th instant has been duly received. The fleet mentioned in mine of the 6th instant has been standing N. N. E.; so that we presume it is destined against some Town of this Province, or New-Hampshire, or possibly gone to Quebeck.

Our last advices were very favourable from Col. Arnold. By the 20th instant we expect he will be at Quebeck. A gentleman of character, from Canada, assures me he will meet with no opposition there.

I am sorry other avocations will deprive me of the pleasure of seeing you in camp at the proposed conference. I hope, upon some other occasion, you will do us the favour of a visit. I shall be happy in every opportunity to manifest my respect and regard for the Government of Connecticut.

No occurrence of any consequence in either camp since my last. In my last letter from the Congress, it is mentioned that the armed vessels of Connecticut will be sent on a special service, with which you are acquainted. In your next you will please to inform me whether they may be expected to proceed in that enterprise. Two will proceed from hence with all expedition. Governour Cooke informs me he can give us no assistance in it.

I am, with much respect and esteem, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO CAPT. EPHRAIM BOWEN, JUN.

Head-Quarters, October 13, 1775.

SIR: His Excellency having determined to equip an armed vessel out of Plymouth, has empowered you to negotiate this business, in which you are to observe the following directions:

1st. You are to inquire for Captain Daniel Adams, who went down a few days ago to set the carpenters at work upon his schooner. You are to inquire in Plymouth what character she has as a sailer; if not a good one, take up one instead of her, which can be well recommended. If she is a stranger in the port, and nothing said against her, proceed in fitting her out.

2d. Apply to the gentlemen of the Committee to nominate proper persons to appraise the vessel; the appraisement, when made, to be sent to Head-Quarters.

3d. The hire of the vessel to be agreed for with the owner, at a sum not exceeding five shillings sterling per month per ton; the owner to fit her up with sails suitable for the service, particularly topsails.

4th. You are to endeavour to get guns, both carriage and swivel, at Plymouth, upon loan, if possible; their value to be paid; if left in the service, the General to pay for them.

5th. You are, as soon as possible, to send down formers, and proper directions for making cartridges suitable for the guns.

6th. Go by Watertown, and apply to Colonel Warren to nominate a proper person as agent to procure provisions for one month for fifty men, and to manage such prizes as may be sent in, instructing him to give as early information as possible of all captures, and a list of the cargo, as far as he can do it from papers. This person, when fixed upon by you, to receive further instructions from Head-Quarters, and to receive the same commission as other agents at Salem and Marblehead, for the like service. If Col. Warren is not at Watertown, you must take the advice of the Committee on this business. He is to be a person of approved good character and known substance. All agreements you make to be put in writing.

7th. All agreements made by you, in this service, the General will ratify and confirm. You are to let us know, by the first good opportunity, what prospects you have of getting the vessel ready, and what guns you can get.

8th. Keep a journal* of your proceedings, and an account of all your expenses, to be rendered on your return.

I am, Sir, yours, &c., JOSEPH REED, Secretary.

To Captain Ephraim Bowen, Jun.

* PLYMOUTH, October 15, 1775.—Went to Kingston, to see Captain Adams, who promised to have his vessel down to Plymouth at five o'clock.

16.—Waited on William Watson, Esq., one of the Committee, with the letter, who engages to supply the provisions, and take charge of any prizes that may be sent in here. Waited on the Committee with the letter from Head-Quarters, who engaged to give their assistance. Ex-

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO THE COMMITTEE OF PLYMOUTH.

Camp at Cambridge, October 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The bearer, Captain Bowen, is despatched by his Excellency General Washington to superintend the equipping an armed vessel to intercept the enemy's supplies. As he is somewhat of a stranger, the General begs your kind assistance to him in this business; particularly in procuring guns suitable for the vessel. We make no apology for the trouble we may give you, as your spirit and zeal in the publick cause make it unnecessary.

I am, by his Excellency's order, Gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JOSEPH REED.

To the Committee of Plymouth.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Second Portage from Kennebeck to the Dead River, }
October 13, 1775. }

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: A person going down the river presents the first opportunity I have had of writing to your Excellency since I left Fort Western; since which we have had a very fatiguing time; the men in general not understanding batteaus, have been obliged to wade and haul them more than half way up the river. The last division is just arrived; three divisions are over the first carrying place, and, as the men are in high spirits, I make no doubt of reaching the River Chaudiere in eight or ten days; the greatest difficulty being, I hope, already past.

We have now with us about twenty-five days' provisions for the whole detachment, consisting of about nine hundred and fifty effective men. I intend making an exact return, but must defer it till I come to Chaudiere.

I have ordered the Commissary to hire people acquainted with the river, and forward on the provisions left behind (about one hundred barrels) to the great carrying place, to secure our retreat. The expense will be considerable, but when set in competition with the lives or liberties of so many brave men, I think it trifling; and if we succeed, the provisions will not be lost.

I have had no intelligence from General Schuyler or Canada, and expect none till I reach Chaudiere Pond, where I expect a return of my express, and to determine my plan of operations; which, as it is to be governed by circumstances, I can say no more than, if we are obliged to return, I believe we shall have a sufficiency of provisions to reach this place, where the supply I ordered the Commissary to send forward will enable us to return on our ained the guns here, and find four of about three or three and a quarter inches caliber, seven swivels, and one wall piece. Captain Adams tells me that the hire of his vessel is to be the same as those at Salem, &c.

17.—Wrote to his Excellency General Washington, concerning the guns, vessel, &c.

18.—Waiting for the General's answer. Attended the schooner most of the day. Received the General's answer, with Mr. Watson's instructions, which I delivered him.

19.—Viewed and examined, with Captain Martindale, Captain Wormeel's schooner; which find to be suitable for the service, and wrote to Head-Quarters thereon.

20.—Got the rammers and sponges, &c., for the guns. Went to Marshfield, about ten miles, to look for a vessel, but found none suitable.

21.—Procured the water casks, and got them filled. Rained all day.

22.—Waiting for the return of the express from Head-Quarters, who arrived just before night.

23, Monday.—Put all the provisions and stores aboard the Schooner Putnam. Set the carpenters at the work on the brig; also the riggers.

24.—Waiting for Captain Coit till four o'clock, P. M., who not being arrived, and the guns likely to be waited for for the brig, set out for Bristol; got thirteen miles this evening.

25.—Set out, and reached Bristol by five o'clock. Waited on the Committee, who told me the guns belonged to Captain Potter, and that he might dispose of them at his pleasure.

26.—Waited on Captain Potter; found ten four-pounders and ten swivels, which he refused to lend or let, and asked one thousand dollars for the guns, exclusive of the swivels; which price I thought too extravagant, so went to Head-Quarters, two miles this side of Newport, where I found several cannon suitable, but was told by General Hopkins that I could not have them without an order from the Lieutenant-Governour; on which I returned to Bristol, and so to Providence, after making Captain Potter an offer for his guns, which he declined. Arrived at Providence between nine and ten in the evening.

27.—The Lieutenant-Governour out of Town, at the Assembly; expected home to dine, but did not come till four o'clock, A. M. Waited on him, and told him my business. He said he would acquaint the Committee that evening, who he ordered to meet, and would give me an answer in the morning.

28.—Waited on the Lieutenant-Governour, and got an order for ten carriage-guns; he said all the swivels would be wanted for the galleys, so could not spare any of them. Left Providence at two o'clock; de-way home so far that your Excellency will be able to relieve us. If we proceed on, we shall have a sufficient stock to reach the French inhabitants, (where we can be supplied,) if not Quebeck.

Your Excellency may possibly think we have been tardy in our march, as we have gained too little; but when you consider the badness and weight of the batteaus, and large quantity of provisions, &c., we have been obliged to force up against a very rapid stream, where you would have taken the men for amphibious animals, as they were a great part of the time under water, add to this the great fatigue in portage, you will think I have pushed the men as fast as they could possibly bear. The officers, volunteers, and privateers in general, have acted with the greatest spirit and industry.

I am, with the greatest respect, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

BENEDICT ARNOLD.

His Excellency General Washington.

A Journal of an intended Tour from CAMBRIDGE to QUEBECK, via KENNEBECK, with a detachment of two Regiments of Musketeers and three Companies of Riflers, consisting of about eleven hundred effective men, commanded by BENEDICT ARNOLD.

Having received orders from his Excellency General Washington to march with the above detachment, I set out on Friday morning, the 15th of September, from Cambridge; dined at Salem, where I procured two hundred pounds of ginger, and engaged a teamster to transport that and two hundred and seventy blankets, received from the Committee of Safety, by order of Major Mifflin, Quarter-master-General, to Newburyport, where I arrived at ten o'clock the same evening.

Saturday, 16.—This evening the whole detachment arrived; despatched three boats to Kennebeck, Isle-of-Shoals, and along shore, to look out for men of war and cruisers, with orders to give us the earliest intelligence, if they discovered any on the coast; and procured a quantity of small stores, &c. N. B. Contrary winds.

Sunday, 17.—Head winds and thick weather; made preparation to embark.

Monday, 18.—The whole detachment embarked; one of the boats just returned, and informs us the coast is quite clear.

Tuesday, 19.—Weighed anchor at seven o'clock, A. M., and at noon all the transports, being eleven in number, got tained by the rain till that time. Arrived in Bristol at half past five. Rained all day. Waited on Captain Potter again, to buy his swivels; which he would not sell without the carriage-guns. Nine o'clock, A. M., received a line from Captain Potter, offering me ten four-pounders, with the carriages, two hundred shot, sponges, ladles, rammers, cartridge-boxes, &c., and ten swivels, for eight hundred dollars.

29.—Got my horse, and going to Newport, called on Captain Potter, and made him one more offer of two hundred and twenty Pounds for his guns, &c.; which he accepted, after some time. N. B. I should not have took Potter's guns, if I could have got swivels in this Colony. Ten o'clock, getting the guns, &c., on board the boat, to carry to Taunton. Five o'clock, A. M., got all the guns, &c., aboard, and took the boatman's receipt, who is to set off at nine o'clock this evening. Set out for Taunton.

30.—Arrived at Taunton before noon. Boat not arrived with the guns, wind being ahead; head wind all day.

31.—Sent a pilot down the river to bring up the boat, who found a pilot on board when he got to Swansey. The vessel arrived with the guns about two o'clock, P. M. Procured teams; saw them loaded, and set off for Plymouth.

November 1.—Arrived at Plymouth about ten o'clock, and the cannon about two. Found Coit's vessel aground.

2.—Set the carpenters to repair the carriages, &c. Captain Coit's vessel got off, but detained by the weather. Sent forgers for Martindale's cartridges.

3, 4.—Procuring water hogsheads for Martindale, and getting them filled. Coit got aground again.

5.—Captain Coit's vessel sailed last evening; not to be seen this morning.

6.—Captain Coit returns with two prizes, viz: a sloop and schooner; got a mast. Martindale's brigantine graved this day.

7.—Ballasted the Washington. Rained all day.

8, 9.—Rain. Nothing to be done.

11, 12.—Carpenters at work on the platform. The crew arrived.

13, Sunday.—Nothing done; could get no carpenters to work. Coit sailed this day for the Cape Cod; where, we are informed, is a ship at anchor.

14.—Got the guns on board, &c.

15.—Rained all day.

16.—Struck the water.

17.—Provisions all on board, and brig ready to sail.

18.—Set out for Cambridge.

safe out of the harbour, except the Schooner Swallow, which run on the rocks, and could not be got off this tide; took all the men from on board her, except twelve, including Captain Scott, whom I ordered to follow us, as fast as possible. As soon as our fleet passed the bar, ordered the Captain of each vessel to be furnished with a copy of the following signals, which are to be hoisted on board the Schooner Broadbay, Captain James Clarkson, who is to lead the van:

1. Signal for speaking with the whole fleet: ensign at main-topmast head.
2. Signal for chasing a sail: ensign at fore-topmast head.
3. Signal for heaving to: lantern at mast head, and two guns, if head on shore; and three guns, if off shore.
4. Signal for making sail in the night: lantern at mast head, and four guns. In the day, for making sail, jack at fore-topmast head.
5. Signal for dispersing, and every vessel making the nearest harbour: ensign at main peak.
6. Signal for boarding any vessel: jack at main-topmast head, and the whole fleet to draw up in a line, as near as possible. N. B. No guns to be fired without orders.

This being done, bore away for Kennebeck, wind W. S. W.; about four o'clock, P. M., brought to and spoke with two fishing schooners, who could give us no intelligence; the weather came on thick and foggy; continued a N. N. E. course till twelve o'clock at night, when we hove to, with head off shore, off Wood Island, and at two o'clock made the signal for heaving to, with head on shore.

Wednesday, 20.—Made sail again early in the morning; weather still continues very thick and foggy, attended with rain, and at nine o'clock, A. M., arrived safe in the mouth of Arowsick, with all our fleet, except three, without the least molestation from the enemy; anchored about six hours at Eels Eddy; sent on shore for some refreshment, as many of the people were extremely sea sick on the passage; weighed anchor, and proceeded up the river as far as Georgetown, where we lay all night, when one of our fleet, viz: Captain . . . , overtook us.

Thursday, 21.—Weighed anchor at five, A. M.; after sailing a few miles, discovered the other two of our fleet coming through Sheepscut Creek, they having run past the mouth of Arowsick the day before; left the transports in the river, wind and tide unfavourable, and proceeded as far as Gardinerstown.

Friday, 22.—This morning arrived three of the transports; were employed the whole day in forwarding the men, provisions, batteaus, &c., to Fort Western; engaged two caulkers, some guides, and assistants; at four, P. M., arrived the Schooner Swallow, which run on the rocks off Newbury; she brings intelligence that the Houghton, Captain Somersby, with one hundred and twenty men, and the Eagle, Captain Maby, with eighty-four men, were aground fifteen miles down the river; engaged the Swallow, and a number of men, to go to their relief.

Saturday, 23.—Embarked the men, and sent them on to Fort Western, with their batteaus laden with provisions; all the vessels weighed anchor, and stood up the river, and anchored above five miles short of Fort Western, the water not permitting them to go up higher; at six, P. M., arrived at Howard's, at Fort Western.

Sunday, 24.—Despatched Lieutenant Steel, with six men, in two birch canoes, to Chaudiere Pond, to reconnoitre, and get all the intelligence he possibly can from the Indians, who, I am informed, are hunting there; and also Lieutenant Church and seven men, with a surveyor and pilot, to take the exact courses and distances to the Dead River.

Monday, 25.—Despatched the three Companies of Riflers, with forty-five days' provisions, under command of Captain Morgan, as an advanced party, with orders to proceed to the great carrying place, and to cut a road over to the Dead River; about three o'clock, P. M., Lieutenant Gray arrived, with a number of manifestoes and a letter from Colonel Reed.

Tuesday, 26.—The second division, consisting of three Companies, viz: Hubbard's, Topham's, and Thayer's, under command of Colonel Greene, embarked; James McCormick, a private in Captain Goodrich's Company, tried by a Court-Martial for the murder of Reuben Bishop, a Sergeant in Captain Williams's Company, and received sentence of death, but respited till his Excellency General Washington's pleasure be known, and ordered to Head-Quarters; a number of our men employed in bringing up provisions, &c.; wrote his Excellency General Washington, and despatched back five of the transports.

Wednesday, 27.—The third division, consisting of four Companies, viz: Hanchett's, Ward's, Dearborn's, and Goodrich's, under command of Major Meigs, embarked; sent down a number of boats to bring up all the flour from below, and sent to the Commissary to forward on all the batteaus, &c.

Thursday, 28.—Part of the fourth and last division, McCobb's and Scott's Companies, embarked; Captain Williams's Company being left for batteaus, oars, paddles, &c.; sent for Colonel Enos and the Commissary to come up from Coburn's with all the men and batteaus; ordered the sick and criminal on board the Broadbay, Captain Clarkson, with stores, &c.

Friday, 29.—Set out in a birch canoe, about noon; left Colonel Enos, with Captain Williams's Company, to bring up the rear, with the provisions behind; our canoe proves very leaky; stopped at Vassalborough, eight miles above Fort Western, and changed her for another, and having gone about twelve miles, lodged six miles short of Fort Halifax.

Saturday, 30.—At six o'clock, A. M., crossed the Six Mile Falls, and at ten arrived at Fort Halifax, where I found Captain Dearborn's and Goodrich's Companies first passing the carrying place, which is about sixty rods over; course of the river, from Fort Western to Fort Halifax, N. N. E.; distance eighteen miles; at two, P. M., dined at Crosier's, and hired him, with his team, to carry our baggage over land about five miles, to avoid the ripples and quick water above the falls, which are very dangerous and difficult to pass; at five, P. M., left the landing place, and proceeded up the river about two miles, when we overtook Major Meigs and party, with whom we encamped; whole distance this day thirteen miles; course N.

Sunday, October 1.—Left our encampment early in the morning; at ten, A. M., passed the seven and fifteen mile streams; dined at one Western's; at four, P. M., reached the Scohegan Falls, where we overtook Hubbard's and Thayer's Companies; after crossing the carrying place, which is about one hundred rods, launched our batteau again, and proceeded up the river about five miles, and at eight, P. M., encamped at the widow Warren's; distance seventeen miles; course to Scohegan Falls, about N.; from the falls to where we lodged, S. W.; water quiet part of the way; quick and small falls.

Monday, 2.—After going a mile, overtook Colonel Greene, Major Bigelow, Captain Topham, and Company; about eight, A. M., passed the Bombazee Falls, and at ten arrived at Norridgewock Falls, six miles and a half from the widow Warren's; great part of the way swift water and rapids; the land from Fort Western to this place appears, in general, very good and fertile, but is thinly inhabited; here we leave the English settlements, no inhabitants being above the falls, which, by the best estimation, are fifty miles from Fort Western; here I overtook Captain Morgan, with his division, who had just got their baggage over the carrying place, which is one mile; course N. W.

Tuesday, 3.—The Riflers proceed for the great carrying place; Topham's, Thayer's, and Hubbard's Companies employed in getting over their baggage, and examining their bread, great part of which is damaged by the boat's leaking, and the difficulty of passing the rapids, which is impossible for people unacquainted to get up the boats without shipping water; here are some small vestiges of an Indian Town, destroyed by the English about fifty years since, namely, the foundation of an old church and altar, the monument over St. Francis, the founder of the church, &c.; the whole tribe, we are told, are extinct, except two or three.

Wednesday, 4.—Carpenters employed in repairing batteaus, and the several Companies in carrying over their provisions, some of which prove unfit for use; Colonel Greene's division proceeded forward; Major Meigs's division arrived with Colburn.

Thursday, 5.—Companies employed as the preceding day.

Friday, 6.—Major Meigs, with his division, went forward; Colonel Enos, with the rear division, arrived.

Saturday, 7.—The last divisions employed in examining their bread, part of which is wet and unfit for use, and carrying their baggage and provisions over the portage.

Sunday, 8.—We have not been able to get our baggage, &c., over the portage until this morning, though we have had constantly two sleds going with oxen, owing to the height of the hill and the bad road; a storm of rain prevents our proceeding this day.

Monday, 9.—Struck our tent, carried our baggage over the portage, embarked, and proceeded up about three miles, a N. N. E. course; here the river takes a remarkable turn to the E. N. E., about three-quarters of a mile, then turns W. and N. about three-quarters of a mile more, and then returns to its proper course again; we crossed the elbow over land, being about thirty rods, which saves more than a mile of rapid water; at twelve o'clock passed the seven mile stream; at three, P. M., dined on one of the islands, and at five encamped with Captain McCobb, on another island, within two miles of Caratunk Falls; whole distance this day, sixteen miles; course N. N. E. easterly, the water very rapid; the land, from the mouth of the river to Caratunk Falls, appears level, and in general fertile, and tolerably well wooded, with some oak, elm, ash, beech, maple, pine, hemlock, &c.

Tuesday, 10.—At nine o'clock, A. M., arrived at Caratunk Falls; the fall of water, fifteen feet; the portage near fifty rods over; we proceeded up the river, about five miles, against a very rapid stream, course N.; here the mountains begin to appear on each side of the river, high and level on the tops, and appear well wooded; the river, from Norridgewock to the great carrying place is very irregular in width, but in general about four hundred yards, and full of small islands, which appear very fertile land; we ascended the river this day about twelve miles; in general very rapid and shallow water; encamped late in the evening, much fatigued.

Wednesday, 11.—We embarked early this morning, and proceeded up the river; the stream very rapid indeed; at ten, A. M., arrived at the great carrying place, which is very remarkable—a large brook emptying itself into the river just above, which comes from the first lake; when abreast of the carrying place, in the river, you will observe, at about four hundred yards above you, a large mountain, in shape of a sugar loaf, at the foot of which the river turns off to the eastward; this mountain, when you are at the carrying place, seems to rise out of the middle of the river—here I overtook Captain Morgan and his division, and Col. Geene, with his division; part of each had proceeded as far as the second lake; Major Meigs arrived just before me; met Lieutenant Church, who had been at the Dead River, on a survey, and reports as follows:

From Kennebeck, over the portage, to the first pond or lake; course W., twenty-seven degrees N.; distance three-quarters of a mile, rising ground; bad road, but capable of being made good; over the first pond, half a mile, which pond is a quarter of a mile long; here our people caught a prodigious number of very fine salmon-trout, nothing being more common than a man's taking eight or ten dozen in one hour's time, which generally weigh half a pound apiece; the second portage is W., six degrees N. half a mile and twenty rods; very level, but rough road; the second pond is in length, from north to south, two and a half miles, and half a mile wide; the third carrying place is one mile and a quarter and forty rods; the road very bad; course W., ten degrees N.; the third pond is in length, from north to south, three miles, and two miles wide; course over it, W. by N.; the fourth or last portage is W., twenty degrees N.; distance two and three-quarter miles, and sixty rods; the first part of the road tolerably good; the last mile a savanna, wet and miry, about six or eight inches deep.

Thursday, 12.—Lieutenant Steel returned from Chaudiere Pond, and says he discovered no Indians; that the Dead River, from the last carrying place, he judges to be eighty miles, most part of the way a fine, deep river; the current hardly perceptible; some fine falls, and short carrying places, and rapid water; the carrying place from Dead River to Chaudiere Pond, about four miles; very good and even ground, most part of the way, and plenty of moose and other game on the river; this day employed Captain Goodrich's Company in building a log house on the second portage, to accommodate the sick, eight or ten in number, who we are obliged to leave behind; also a party on the east side of the first portage, to build a small log house for men and provisions; ordered Lieutenants Steel and Church, with twenty axe-men and a surveyor, to Chaudiere Pond, to clear the portages and take a survey of the country; Lieutenant Steel to go down Chaudiere, near the inhabitants, and examine the falls, portages, &c., and return to the pond as soon as possible.

Our men are much fatigued in carrying over their batteaus, provisions, &c., the road being extremely bad; however, their spirit and industry seems to overcome every obstacle, and they appear very cheerful. We have had remarkable fine weather since we left Cambridge, and only one death has happened, and very few accidents by water, which is the more remarkable, as there seldom passes a season without some people being drowned in the Kennebeck, which is very difficult and dangerous to ascend.

Friday, 13.—This morning despatched one Eneas and another Indian with letters to some gentlemen in Quebeck, and to General Schuyler; sent a white man with them, who is to proceed as far as Sartigan, and after discovering the sentiments of the inhabitants, and procuring all the intelligence he can, is to return to us at Chaudiere Pond, where we expect to meet him in about seven or eight days; two divisions have this day reached the Dead River.

ELEAZER OSWALD, Sec'y pro tem.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO JOHN MANIR.

Dead River, about 160 miles from Quebeck, }
October 13, 1775. }

DEAR SIR: I am now on my march for Quebeck, with about two thousand men, where I expect to have the pleasure of seeing you soon. This detachment is designed to co-operate with General Schuyler, to frustrate the unjust and arbitrary measures of the Ministry, and restore liberty to our brethren of Canada, to whom, we make no doubt, our exertions in their favour will be acceptable; and that we shall have their assistance, or at least their friendly wishes, as the expedition is undertaken at the request of many of their principal inhabitants. I beg the favour of you, on receipt of this, which will be delivered you by one Eneas, a faithful Indian, that you would immediately write me by him of the disposition of the Canadians, the number of troops in Quebeck, by whom commanded, and every advice you have received from General Schuyler, and the situation of matters in general; what ships are at Quebeck, and, in short, what we have to expect from the Canadians and merchants in the City; whether any advice has been received of the march of this detachment. If any gentleman of my acquaintance will undertake to meet me on the road, he will be received with pleasure, and handsomely rewarded. The enclosed letter to General Schuyler, I beg the favour of you to forward by express, which charge shall be reimbursed you with thankfulness.

I am, with much esteem, dear Sir, your friend and very humble servant,
BENEDICT ARNOLD.

John Manir, Esq., or, in his absence, to Captain William Gregory, or Mr. John Maynard.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Dead River, 160 miles from Quebeck, }
October 13, 1775. }

DEAR SIR: I make no doubt his Excellency General Washington has advised you of his ordering me, with a detachment of the Army at Cambridge, to march against Quebeck. In consequence of which, I left Cambridge on the 13th of September, and after a very fatiguing and hazardous march over a rough country, up the Kennebeck River, against a very rapid stream, through an uninhabited country, and meeting with many other difficulties, which we have happily surmounted, we have at last arrived at the Dead River, which we have examined to the Chaudiere Pond, and hope in a fortnight of having the pleasure of meeting you in Quebeck. Any intelligence or advice you can communicate will be gratefully received, as this detachment was intended to co-operate with your Army.

I am, with much esteem, dear Sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To the Honourable Major-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Northern Army.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO LIEUTENANT STEEL.

October 13, 1775.

SIR: I have sent the bearer and another Indian to Quebeck, with letters, and must have John Hall, as he speaks French, to go to Sartigan with them, and get all the intelligence he possibly can in regard to the number of troops there, the disposition of the Canadians, and advice from General Schuyler. When he arrives at Sartigan, he must employ some Frenchman, that can be depended on, to go to Quebeck with the Indians, to deliver their letter and get an answer; for which purpose I have sent twenty dollars for him to take. Desire him to caution the Indians not to let any one know of our march, but to sound the inhabitants, and find out how they stand affected, and whether our coming would be agreeable to them. If he does not choose to go alone, you must send a man with him, and both must return to us at Chaudiere Pond, as soon as possible; taking particular notice of the river, whether our batteaus can pass down.

I am, Sir, your humble servant, B. ARNOLD.
To Lieutenant Steel.

ADDRESS OF THE MERCHANTS AND TRADERS OF THE CITY OF LONDON.

The following gentlemen, viz: Isaac Hughes, Esquire, Chairman, the Rt. Hon. Thomas Harley, Zachary Philip Fonnereau, John Cornwall, John Rily, Samuel Smith, George Stainforth, Peter Cazalet, Richard Willis, John William Anderson, Benjamin Winthrop, Edward Forster, James Bogle French, Bignall Potter, and Peter Hodgson, Esquires, having been deputed to attend His Majesty with an Address of a very numerous body of the Merchants and Traders of the City of London, they did all (except Mr. Cornwall and Mr. Rily, who were prevented by illness) wait on His Majesty with the following Address.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects, Merchants and Traders of the City of London, filled with the deepest concern at the unjustifiable proceedings of some of your Majesty's Colonies in America, beg leave to approach your royal throne, to testify our entire disapprobation and abhorrence of them, with the most solemn assurances that we will support your Majesty with our lives and fortunes in maintaining the authority of the Legislature of this Country, which, we conceive, does and ought to extend over and pervade every part of the British Dominions.

With regret and indignation we see Colonies, which owe their existence, and every blessing that attended their late prosperous situation, to this their Parent Country, unnaturally regardless of the fostering hand that raised and supported them, and affecting distinctions in their dependance not founded in law or in the Constitution of Great Britain.

We are convinced, by the experienced clemency of your Majesty's Government, that no endeavours will be wanting to induce our deluded fellow-subjects to return to their obedience to that Constitution which our ancestors bled to establish, and which has flourished, pure and uninterrupted, under the mild Government of the House of Hanover.

May that Being who governs the universe so direct your Majesty's counsels and measures, that from the present confusion order may arise and peace again be restored.

That your Majesty may long reign over a happy and united people, is the earnest prayer of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most faithful and loyal subjects.

GEORGE MASON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Gunston-Hall, Virginia, October 14, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I wrote you in July, a little before my being appointed to the Convention, congratulating you upon an appointment which gives so much satisfaction to all America, and afterwards, in August, from Richmond; since which I have to acknowledge your favour of the 20th of August, which nothing but want of health should have prevented my doing sooner, as I shall always think myself honoured by your correspondence and friendship. I hinted to you, in my last, the parties and factions which prevailed at Richmond. I never was in so disagreeable a situation, and almost despaired of a cause which I saw so ill conducted. Mere vexation and disgust threw me into such an ill state of health, that before the Convention rose, I was sometimes near fainting in the House. Since my return home, I have had a severe fit of sickness; from which I am now recovering, but am still very weak and low.

During the first part of the Convention, parties run so high that we had frequently no other way of preventing improper measures, but by procrastination, urging the previous question, and giving men time to reflect. However, after some weeks, the babblers were pretty well silenced, a few weighty members began to take the lead, several wholesome regulations were made, and if the Convention had continued to sit a few days longer, I think the publick safety would have been as well provided for as our present circumstances permit. The Convention, not thinking this a time to rely upon resolves and recommendations only, and to give obligatory force to their proceedings, adopted the style and form of legislation, changing the word enact into ordain; their ordinances were all introduced in the form of bills, were regularly referred to a Committee of the Whole House, and underwent three readings before they were passed. I enclose you the ordinance for raising an armed force for the defence and protection of this Colony; it is a little defaced by being handled at our District Committee, but it is the only copy I had at present by me. You will find some little inaccuracies in it, but, upon the whole, I hope it will merit your approbation. The minute plan, I think, is a wise one, and will, in a short time, furnish eight thousand good troops, ready for action, and composed of men in whose hands the sword may be safely trusted. To defray the expense of the provisions made by this ordinance, and to pay the charge of the last year's Indian war, we are now emitting the sum of three hundred and fifty thousand Pounds, in paper currency. I have great apprehensions that the large sums in bills of credit now issuing all over the Continent may have fatal effects in depreciating the value, and therefore opposed any suspension of taxation, and urged the necessity of immediately laying such taxes as the people could bear, to sink the sum emitted as soon as possible; but was able only to reduce the proposed suspension from three years to one. The land and poll tax (the collection of which is to commence in June, 1777) will sink fifty thousand Pounds per year; and instead of the usual commissions for emitting and receiving, the Treasurer is allowed an annual salary of six hundred and twenty-five Pounds. Our friend, the Treasurer, was the warmest man in the Convention for immediately raising a standing army of not less than four thousand men, upon constant pay. They stood a considerable time at three thousand, exclusive of the troops upon the western frontiers; but at the last reading (as you will see by the ordinance) were reduced one thousand and twenty rank and file. In my opinion, a well judged reduction, not only from our inability to furnish at present such a number with arms and ammunition, but I think it extremely imprudent to exhaust ourselves before we know when we are to be attacked. The part we have to act at present seems to require our laying in good magazines, training our people, and having a good number of them ready for action. An ordinance is passed for regulating an annual election of members to the Convention and County Committees; for encouraging the making saltpetre, sulphur, and gunpowder; for establishing a manufactory of arms, under the direction of commissioners; and for appointing a Committee of Safety, consisting of eleven members, for carrying the ordinances of the Convention into execution, directing the stations of the troops, and calling the Minute Battalions and draughts from the Militia into service, if necessary, &c.

There is also an ordinance establishing articles for the government of the troops, principally taken from those drawn up by the Congress, except that about martial law upon life and death is more cautiously constituted, and brought nearer to the principles of the common law.

Many of the principal families are removing from Norfolk, Hampton, York, and Williamsburgh, occasioned by the behaviour of Lord Dunmore and the commanders of the King's ships and tenders upon this station.

Whenever your leisure will permit, it will always give me the greatest pleasure to be informed of your welfare, and to hear what is doing on the great American theatre.

I most sincerely wish you health and success equal to the justice of our cause; and am, with great respect, dear Sir, your affectionate and obedient servant,

G. MASON.

His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. I beg the favour of you to remember me kindly to General Lee, and present him my respectful compliments.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 31, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, October 14, 1775.

SIR: I had just closed my letter of yesterday when I had the honour to receive yours of the 9th, enclosing the resolution of Congress of the 14th September, and the alarming intelligence contained in yours of the 7th. You may recollect, Sir, that early after the meeting of Congress I urged the necessity of securing Hudson's River, and assigned my reasons for it. I have been, and still am, so deeply impressed with the necessity of doing it, that I saw with chagrin that it has been so long neglected, and I learned with pleasure that a fortification was at last begun at Martelaer's Rock; but that is not the only place that ought to be secured; there are several others, both above and below, that ought equally to claim attention, and immediately too; for should a body of forces be sent up Hudson's River, and a chain of vessels stationed in all its extent, it will undoubtedly greatly distress if not totally ruin our cause. The Indians, notwithstanding their declarations, will, in such a case, in all probability, act against us; the disaffected to our cause gain strength, and many others, through fear and the principle of self-preservation, will either be neuter or join our foes. To me, Sir, every object, as to importance, sinks almost to nothing when put in competition with this of securing Hudson's River.

I hope Congress will pardon the freedom with which I express myself on this occasion. The danger of such an operation on the part of the Ministry is painted in such lively colours on my mind, that I could not avoid saying what I have done.

I shall immediately transmit to Doctor Stringer your resolutions respecting the Hospital. I fear the pay allowed to the Mates is too little, and that they will not remain in the service. He has now I suppose near two hundred sick under his care.

Soon after my appointment, as I understood that I was to have a Brigade Major, provision being made for it, and that the appointment lay with me, as one of my suite, I appointed Captain Dimon, of Colonel Waterbury's Regiment, to that office, who has acted in that capacity ever since. Should I have erred, I beg Congress to impute it to a mistake, and not to any presumption of mine.

I shall be happy to learn the resolutions of Congress on my several letters, which you are so good as to say will soon be transmitted me. The bags containing the six thousand three hundred and sixty-four Pounds, Pennsylvania currency, have been delivered me under seal, by the gentlemen to whose charge they were intrusted, and I shall forward them to-morrow to General Montgomery.

I have not heard a word from St. John's since mine of yesterday. I am still in hopes all will go well there, unless a want of ammunition takes place. The New-York Congress have wrote to Connecticut; what the result of their application is, I do not yet know.

I should be extremely happy if your good wishes (on which I return you the most unfeigned thanks) for the restoration of my health were realized; but, unfortunately for me, I am so daily weakening by a violent lax and extreme sweatings at night, that I shall think it necessary to send for Doctor Stringer to me, because I neither can (consistent with the publick weal) nor will I quit this place to go southward until our affairs in Canada are decided.

General Wooster having ordered a Court-Martial at Fort George, of which I was informed only this morning, which he by no means had a right to do, and apprehensive, from that extraordinary conduct, that he might create difficulties if he should join the Army under General Montgomery (from which I cannot dissuade him, nor dare I order him to stay, lest the Regiment should refuse to go, which he says they would do,) I thought it my indispensable duty to write him a letter, of which the enclosed is a copy, and to which I received an answer, copy of which you have also enclosed. I have since received letters advising me that he has presumed to discharge men of Hinman's and Waterbury's Regiments. I assure you, Sir, that I feel these insults from a General Officer with all that keen sensibility that a man of honour ought; and I should be ashamed to mention them to Congress, but that the critical situation of our publick affairs at this period require that I should sacrifice a just resentment to them, and I would wish to have it remembered that to that cause only must be imputed that I have suffered a personal indignity.

I am, Sir, most respectfully, your very obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., &c.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Ticonderoga, October 14, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 6th instant was delivered me yesterday. It gives me great satisfaction to learn that you have sent me fourteen hundred pounds of powder. It will be very welcome, but I fear not sufficient, even with seven hundred and fifty which is arrived from Albany. If more can be procured, I shall hope it will be forwarded without delay. My last accounts from St. John's were of the 6th. General Montgomery is carrying on his approaches as fast as the difficulties he hath to struggle with will permit. Every species of artillery stores are in some measure wanted. The Canadians are not only friendly, but join us in considerable numbers, and the garrison of St. John's is so completely invested, that not the least succour can be thrown in of any kind. I hope soon to give you an account of its reduction.

My disorders have taken such deep root, that I now begin to have little hopes of a recovery so as to take an active part in the future operations of the campaign. I hope, however, that I shall not be obliged to leave this place, unhealthy and unfavourable to my recovery as it is, lest it should involve General Montgomery in irremediable inconvenience.

I am, Sir, with great respect, your and the Congress's most obliged, obedient, and very humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To Colonel Woodhull, President pro tempore of the New-York Provincial Congress, at New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, October 14, 1775.

As I cannot let my dear General remain one moment in anxiety, I acknowledge his letter of the 6th, and send this by express. Mr. Wooster is the younger Brigadier of the two, but lest any uneasiness should be occasioned, I will keep him here.

Mine of the 26th ult., which I hope you have received, will inform you where our Army is. You may be assured that nothing but a superior force will bring it from thence. I have already despatched the papers you honoured me with to General Montgomery; copy of that I have just now received will be sent him to-morrow.

Fortune is very unkind to me; a violent flux, which has renewed its attack, is reducing me so much, that I begin to give over hopes of joining the Army; I hope, however, that I shall not be under the necessity of quitting this place, where, sick as I am, I can still be of service.

Be assured, my dear General, that I shall do every thing in my power to promote the weal of the glorious cause we are embarked in. I feel a conscious inadequacy, which I must atone for by assiduity.

I am, with the most respectful sentiments, your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Winter Hill, October 14, 1775.

MUCH RESPECTED SIR: I have reviewed the palefaced corps in my Brigade, and find the persons named in the enclosed list totally unfit for duty at present, have been so for a long time, and are likely to remain so during this campaign, except those to whose names I had added a quere, whose disorders may possibly be removed before the end of this campaign. With respect to those, your Excellency will act as your wisdom shall direct. With respect to all the others, I beg leave to say that the sooner they are discharged the sooner will the Continent be free from the unnecessary charge of maintaining them here.

I am, with respect, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

His Excellency General Washington.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO COLONEL FARNSWORTH.

Second Carrying-Place, October 14, 1775.

SIR: I wrote you on the road here to send forward to the great carrying place all the provisions, and for that purpose to hire men on the river, well acquainted with setting up. I have thought proper to write you again, for fear my former letter should have miscarried. You will hurry on the provisions as fast as possible; we have now about twenty-five days' allowance. Hope before that is gone to be in Quebeck. However, I think it necessary to have the provisions forwarded on, that our retreat may be secured in case of any accident.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To Colonel Farnsworth.

EDMUND PENDLETON TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Williamsburgh, October 15, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have by express your obliging favour of the 5th. We were, in some sort, prepared for the disagreeable intelligence of the small hopes of an accommodation, by reports and papers here, intimating the same thing. Colonel Corbin has a letter from a hand, connected in some manner with Administration, that the plan was to withdraw all troops, and send men of war and cutters to put a stop to all foreign trade, and that with each other, and so starve us into submission. If this is the case, perhaps Shulldham may not bring troops. Our affairs may, perhaps, take another turn, when the Congress Petition and the Virginia Representation against Lord Dunmore reaches the people there. These furious measures seem to have been suddenly adopted on the arrival of Lady Dunmore, no doubt with cargoes of aggravating letters and misrepresentations from our hero, and just after some fears of Administration respecting the Spaniards were quieted by their loss among the Algerines; whatever be our state, I hope we shall meet it with fortitude. Had we arms and ammunition, it would give vigour to our measures. We hourly hoped to hear of the arrival of the necessities, but now fear we shall be defeated. A villain has given Lord Dunmore information of it, and he has six or seven tenders flying out for it about the capes. What can such a parricide deserve? We have been sitting a month, and yet see no hopes of a recess; we are thin, and some present unwell. Colonel Thomas is among the healthy. Nine Companies of Regulars are here, and seem very clever men; others we hear are ready, and only wait to collect arms. Lord Dunmore's forces are only one hundred and sixty as yet, intrenched at Gosport, and supported by the ships drawn up before that and Norfolk. I have heard of no attempt of his, since seizing the printer, and a ship with flour from Baltimore, except sending a party to Sleepy Hole in pursuit of some powder we had there, which he missed about three hours. Most of the inhabitants of Norfolk, except Tories, have moved out their families and valuable effects. Lord Dunmore, it is said, is much afraid of the riflemen, and has all his vessels caulked up on the sides, above men's height; however, they may perhaps pay him a visit ere long. The good news relative to General Schuyler came as a reviving cordial after the other; nothing has yet happened more important, in my opinion, than this event, if completed, as I hope it is before now. Pray present my affectionate compliments to your worthy brethren and the ladies.

I am, with great regard, your affectionate and obedient servant,

EDMUND PENDLETON.

To Richard Henry Lee, Esq., of Virginia, now at Philadelphia.

NATHAN TAYLOR AND OTHERS TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Lake George, October 15, 1775.

To the honourable Governour and Council of the Colony of Connecticut. These are to inform you of our grievances:

We, the subscribers, being by orders sent to St. John's, to drive off the enemy, we were obliged to be encamped in low wet ground, swampy, and almost over shoes in mud and water; the weather being very cold for the time of year, which occasioned us to take great colds and agues, which hove us into bloody fluxes, and all kinds of disorders; and when our Doctors (of the Connecticut troops) thought us unfit for duty, and not like to be any more this campaign, we were sent off to Ticonderoga; and when we came there we were viewed by the head Doctor of the Continentals; we were viewed by General Schuyler also, and such men as the Doctor returned sick the General damned all in heaps, and swore; damned them for their sickness, and said he would pay them for it, and said they should have but four ounces of fresh meat a day, and a gill of rice; which is now fulfilled on us, your poor suffering subjects and soldiers. Likewise we are forbidden any spirituous liquors of any kind; and two sentries set at the doors, to prevent any friends to bring the least support to us. Our daily diet is rice for breakfast and supper, and not the least of butter or sugar, nor milk, but the clear rice itself; and for dinner about six pounds of mutton, with some of the broth, for twenty men, for subsistence, and a pound of bread a day, which is all the support we can have. And now we humbly beg some relief, if possible. The above is what we the subscribers will give oath to, if we are called to it, as witness our hands. There are sundry officers that can attest to the same, and can be produced if wanted.

NATHAN TAYLOR, Serg't.	SAMUEL SPENCER,
WILSON NORTHRUP,	THOMAS STEVENS,
JOHN COMSTOCK,	JOHN WATERBURY,
BILL TROWBRIDGE, Serg't.	LEVI SCRIBNER,
GILES MALLARY,	SAMUEL BAILEY,
ALBAN COLE,	SIMEON TUPPER,
THOMAS STARR,	JNO. BISHOP,
HETH. PECK,	STEPHEN MEEKER,
JAMES SHAW,	LUTHER BALDWIN,
ELI RUNDLE, Serg't.	JOSEPH CLARK.
JOSEPH BOOTH,

To Governour Trumbull.

JOHN GLOVER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Marblehead, October 15, 1775.

SIR: This will acquaint you the two vessels that the Captains Broughton and Selman are to command are ready to take the troops on board. The formers for the cannon and swivel cartridges I have sent to Col. Burbank. Would it not be best that every man be furnished with a spear or cutlass, and a pair of pistols, if to be had? Our guns are very unhandy in boarding. I have procured provisions for the two vessels, saving four thousand weight of bread, which cannot be had here but at the extravagant price of thirty-two Shillings per hundred weight.

Captain Selman has his complement of men, to ten, which, with your Excellency's leave, he will take out of the Regiment. Captain Broughton is very unwell, but hope it is nothing more than a bad cold which he took at the time of running his vessel on shore. He has not been able to recruit a single man here; apprehend he may get his complement out of the Regiment, with your Excellency's leave.

This morning, six o'clock, saw a ship coming out of Boston; steered her course directly for Marblehead, which alarmed the inhabitants very much. She came almost to the harbour's mouth, tacked ship, and stood off, where she now is, about one or two leagues distance.

I communicated to my son your Excellency's intention (as handed to me by Colonel Reed) of giving him the command of one of the vessels, which he seems much pleased with; hope his conduct will meet your Excellency's approbation; he therefore waits for directions.

I am, respectfully, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

JOHN GLOVER.

To his Excellency General Washington.

REV. DR. ELEAZER WHEELOCK TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Dartmouth College, October 15, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Presuming the nature and importance of the subject will apologize for this interruption, I make bold to propose to you, whether the sending an experienced and well accomplished missionary into Canada (and if may be in character of chaplain to your forces there) may not answer very valuable and good purposes at this juncture, viz: to facilitate and effect the union of that Colony with the other Colonies; and in case this design of your forces there should be successful, make it yet more extensive, by the union of the Indian tribes therein, confirm their friendship to these Colonies, as well as increase it to this seminary, and lay them under stronger bonds, by giving them fresh assurance of the well-being of their children with me, and bringing a number more from these and (if it may be) from remoter tribes to this school, &c., &c. The Rev. Mr. Ripley, who is now a tutor of this college, and has been employed in several missions, is well acquainted with and is high in the affection and esteem of several of those tribes, and is the most suitable man I know, while Mr. Dean is otherwise employed among the Six Nations, to be sent on such an errand; is willing to undertake it, provided he may only be supported therein.

And the present course of Providence appears so encouraging, and the prospects of his usefulness therein so inviting, that I am near determined to send him as missionary at my own risk, as soon as may be. I am sorry I could not have an opportunity for your Excellency's advice and direction in the affair, before the season advanced so far as to make his delay dangerous. However, if you shall approve of it, and think it worthy your encouragement, I shall likely have an opportunity to transmit to him, by the post, whatever recommendation of the design, or instructions, you shall please to give him in the prosecution thereof.

My heart and prayers are with you and for you; and I am, honoured Sir, with much duty and esteem, your most obedient and very humble servant,

ELEAZER WHEELOCK.

His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. I enclose my last Narrative, and shall endeavour to give you an account of occurrences since my last, as soon as I am favoured with an opportunity and leisure for it.

GENERAL GAGE TO LORD DARTMOUTH.

At Sea, October 15, 1775.

It will give me pleasure, as I think it my duty, to send your Lordship every hint or intelligence that can be of use at this important crisis; nor am I disposed to do it in a secret manner, as it behooves every man, in such times as these, to declare his sentiments openly. People agree, now, that there has been a scheme for a revolt from the Mother Country, long conceived, between those who have most influence in the American councils, which has been preparing the people's minds, by degrees, for events that at first view they regarded with horror and detestation. If the Boston Port Bill had not furnished a pretext for rebellion, something else would have brought it forward. Unfortunately, few could believe it possible for them to prevail with the people to rise, and to the last the friends of Government assured them it was only threats and menaces, meant to intimidate. Misfortune has arisen from this incredulity; for the Rebels have been prepared to exercise their plan, while the Government, not apprehensive of so general a revolt, has been unprepared to oppose it. The conduct of the leaders on the 19th of April evinced their intention to begin hostilities; and had they not commenced then, they would only have been deferred. Your Lordship has a perfect idea of the transactions of that day, which were so far unlucky as it put an immediate stop to supplies of every kind. Otherwise, our magazines would have been better filled.

I am convinced that the promoters of the rebellion have no real desire of peace, unless they have a carte blanche. Their whole conduct has been one scene of fallacy, duplicity, and dissimulation, by which they have duped many well inclined people. Your Lordship will judge if the last petition of the Congress to the King is to be relied upon; and yet we are told that this petition was obtained by the most moderate of the members with great difficulty, and after very long debate. There has been much heat and division in the Congress, and a jealousy of the New-England members; and I am told it was owing to jealousy that Washington was appointed to the command of the Rebel Army, in which there is much discontent. Lee is neither respected nor esteemed among them, though it is said that he is supported by the Boston rulers in opposition to Washington; and that he is for making an attack, without delay, upon the troops; but that the rest think it too desperate an undertaking. The Rebel forces are well fed, but in general ill clothed and badly paid, though paper money has been issued to them lately. The credit of the paper is now kept up by force, and I have not heard that any plan has been fixed upon to redeem it.

They give out that they expect peace on their own terms, through the inability of Britain to contend with them; and it is no wonder that such reports gain credit with the people, when letters from England and English newspapers give so much encouragement to rebellion. Many people are of the opinion that the Rebels will not hold together another year; but, though the Country will be very greatly distressed, and the people tired of the work, I will take the liberty to say, that from their presumption, arrogance, and encouragement from England, we can rely on nothing but our force to procure even decent terms of peace; and that if it was ever necessary to obtain peace through the means of war, it is highly so in the present juncture. I transmit to your Lordship a packet of letters that were picked out from a number of papers scattered about Cushing's house. They contain no intelligence of present transactions, but show the nature of the correspondence that the two Lees, Dr. Franklin, and others, kept up with the leaders of this rebellion.

COLONEL BENEDICT ARNOLD TO COLONEL ROGER ENOS.

Third Carrying-Place, October 15, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I forgot to desire you to send on the yoke of oxen to Dead River as soon as can be, as I intend killing them there for the whole detachment. Your proposal in regard to Mr. North will be agreeable to me, if it is so to the detachment; but I am at a loss whether they will be fond of having an officer introduced, not belonging to the detachment. When we arrive at the Dead River, will determine that matter, where you will hurry as fast as possible. There I design holding a council of war, and expect particular advice from Canada.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

Lieutenant-Colonel Enos.

COLONEL BENEDICT ARNOLD TO COLONEL ROGER ENOS.

Third Carrying-Place, October 15, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Yours of yesterday was this moment delivered to me. I had just wrote you in regard to Mr. North, and to forward on the oxen, &c. When I left the carrying place, I expected to have found some subaltern unwell, who might have been detained with fifteen or twenty men who were feeble, and not so well able to proceed, yet capable of taking care of the sick, provisions, &c. If none such is sent back before you leave the carrying place, you must order some subaltern to remain there, and have a batteau at each lake. Give him orders to send the sick down, and take particular care of the batteaus left behind. The three first divisions have twenty-five days' provision, which will carry them to Chaudiere Pond and back, where we shall doubtless have intelligence, and shall be able to proceed or return, as shall be thought best. Give the officer who stays behind orders to send down the river and secure the batteaus adrift.

I am, dear Sir, your humble servant, B. ARNOLD.
Colonel Roger Enos.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF WINCHESTER.

Address of the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty of the City of Winchester, in Guildhall assembled, presented to His Majesty by Henry Penton and Lovel Stanhope, Esqrs., their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's loyal subjects, the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty of your City of Winchester, in Guildhall assembled, impressed with a due sense of your Majesty's royal virtues, and of the innumerable blessings we enjoy under your mild and auspicious Government, beg leave to approach your Majesty with an humble offer of our duty, and to express our just abhorrence of the unnatural rebellion which prevails in many of your Majesty's Colonies in America, too successfully fomented by the wicked designs of artful and ambitious persons in that part of your Majesty's dominions, and traitorously abetted by a licentious and disappointed faction at home.

It would give your loyal citizens the most inexpressible satisfaction to find that the lenient measures adopted during the last session of Parliament had so far influenced the minds of such of our American fellow-subjects who might have been drawn aside from their duty, as to have induced them to return again to their obedience, in imitation of that conciliatory spirit, of which one part of the Legislature had set them an example.

But, Sire, should neither the moderation which your Majesty has ever made the rule of your conduct, nor the gentle though necessary interposition of the Legislature, operate to recall those deluded persons to a just sense of their allegiance, we rely on your Majesty's known firmness and magnanimity for the prosecution of such measures as may convince all the world that we are not unworthy of the blessings we enjoy under such a Prince and such a Constitution, but that the supreme legislative authority of this Kingdom is able to enforce obedience to itself throughout your Majesty's dominions.

That your Majesty may long reign over a people as conspicuous for their union as they are distinguished by their happiness, is the fervent prayer of your loyal citizens.

In testimony whereof, we have caused our common seal to be hereunto affixed, the 16th day of October, in the fifteenth year of your Majesty's happy reign over us.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF DUNDEE.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Dundee, presented to His Majesty by Henry Dundas, Esq., Lord Advocate in Scotland, and Representative in Parliament for Edinburghshire.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Filled with every grateful sentiment at the recollection of the many blessings we enjoyed under the mild and benign Government of your Majesty's royal progenitors, happy with the continuance and even increase of these blessings under this auspicious reign, we, your Majesty's loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Dundee, beg leave to approach the throne with all humility, and, at the same time, with that freedom which becomes a people whose well founded boast is, that they are subjects of a Prince the father of his Country, and live under the most perfect of human Governments.

It is with surprise and wonder we have seen, that these high and distinguished privileges should have operated in so strange a manner on the minds of your Majesty's subjects in North-America; that benignity, clemency, and the most sacred regard to our glorious Constitution, on the part of your Majesty, should have been returned, by the deluded people of that Country, with clamours and complaints; and that we should now see them in open rebellion, disclaiming the authority of the British Legislature, which has often so effectually exerted itself in their behalf, and saved them from the inevitable ruin that threatened them.

We cannot forbear to express, in the strongest terms, our high disapprobation of a rebellion so unnatural and unprovoked; and to profess our inviolable attachment to your Majesty's person and Government, and our resolution of acting the part of loyal and dutiful subjects on all occasions.

We can assure your Majesty, that the measures adopted in America, evidently with a design to prejudice the commerce of Great Britain, have not in any perceptible degree injured the trade of this Town and neighbourhood.

It is our sincere and ardent wish, that the distractions amongst your American subjects may subside, and peace, good order, and just dependence upon the Mother Country, be again restored, without the further effusion of human blood; but should such pleasing expectations fail, we beg leave to express our approbation of vigorous and coercive measures, and our full conviction that further forbearance and lenity would be injurious to the honour and destructive to the interests of every part of the British Empire. And if such measures are adopted, we pray with unfeigned earnestness, that the Supreme Disposer of all may prosper them, and give your Majesty the glory of re-establishing the authority of Great Britain over all her Colonies.

Signed in name and by appointment of the Town Council, at Dundee, the 16th of October, 1775.

PAT. MAXWELL, Provost.

DOVER (KENT COUNTY, DELAWARE) COMMITTEE.

In Committee, October 16, 1775.

The Committee of Inspection and Observation, in and for Kent County, having met according to appointment, Daniel Varnum appeared before this Committee, according to special notice, to answer for his, said Varnum's, using certain expressions deemed inimical to the welfare and true interest of America.

Whereupon it appearing by evidence, offered to this Committee, as well as by said Varnum's own confession, that he, the said Daniel Varnum, in speaking of our present troubles, declared, "he had as lief be under a tyrannical King as a tyrannical Commonwealth, especially if the d—d Presbyterians had the rule of it."

Resolved, therefore, That the said Daniel Varnum be censured for his said unfriendly expression, and be ordered to make public acknowledgments for his said offence.

By order of the Committee, the following concessions were drawn up, approved of, and signed by the said Daniel Varnum:

"Being conscious that such language, by me used, (as above set forth,) is the language of the worst of enemies to America, and that it hath a direct tendency to injure the common cause, in which all should be engaged, take this public method of declaring my sorrow for my imprudence and folly, and that in future I will pay a strict regard to the resolves of the Continental Congress, and rules and directions of the Committees of said County, carefully avoiding every thing that has the least tendency to violate or contravene the same.

"DANIEL VARNUM."

A true copy of the proceedings: By order of the Committee to be published.

MARK MCCALL,
Clerk of the Committee of Inspection.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM A MEMBER OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS TO HIS FRIEND IN VIRGINIA, DATED PHILADELPHIA, OCTOBER 16, 1775.

What have I read in the Virginia papers to-day! That an officer and thirteen men went into the Town of Norfolk at noonday, and took from thence, unopposed, an inhabitant of the place and the printer's types. Would this have been suffered in York? Not whilst there was a single man living to defend the poor captive. O, Sir, did you but know what I feel upon this occasion, you would sympathize with me. Is it possible, says one, that they would suffer such a thing? Why, you see it is possible, says another, for they have suffered it. Well, says a third, I would not have such a disgrace upon my Colony for the whole world. Can you conceive a more unhappy state for a man of feelings? A man who has the honour of his Country at heart? I tell them that the chief of the inhabitants are Tories: Then why do you suffer such wretches to stay among you?

Ah, why do we suffer them, indeed! It would not be permitted in any other Colony on the Continent, I am convinced; but what are we to do? The bulk of the inhabitants of Norfolk is composed of natives of North Britain; and all the world knows that the late Virginia Convention have expressly exempted those men from the service of defending their Country, or, rather, they have granted them a privilege of doing all the mischief imaginable to the common cause of America. They say it is inhuman, it is cruel, it is barbarous, to make them take arms against their countrymen. Poor, mean tools of despotism! Brutus condemned his sons to death, because they supported tyranny; and Timoleon slew his brother, because he was a tyrant; but if these examples of patriotism are of too old a date for them to follow, let them look at many brave men, both English and Scotchmen, now on the Continent, who have most ardently embarked in the common cause of freedom and mankind. They feel no shocks to humanity, but, warmed with the spirit of liberty, are ready to plunge the dagger into a tyrant brother.

It is high time for the Test Act to make its appearance among us. It is highly proper that the worthy natives of Britain should be distinguished from the others, and that every man should have the choice of joining us or not; but it is also reasonable, that those who will not join us should be forthwith sent out of the Country; for who can trust a man in his neighbourhood whose principles are avowedly against the liberties of the people? It requires no great gift of prophecy to foretell, that if such men are suffered to live among us, whether natives of North or of South Britain, or of our own Country, our plans and operations must forever be betrayed, which, in all probability, will prove the downfall of Virginia. But there is another reason for the rapid progress which Lord Dunmore makes in and about Norfolk. Without regular forces to support them, without Minute-Men, and the Militia but badly armed, what are the poor, wretched inhabitants to do? They must either submit to the military government of Lord Dunmore, or suffer the miseries of imprisonment and the loss of property. Five thousand regular forces, with a few horse, would have prevented the disgrace of Norfolk and Princess Anne, and, perhaps, of the whole lower country. Those men are weak politicians who would sacrifice a wide extended coast to the mean consideration of saving a little publick money.

Philadelphia, October 25, 1775.

On Monday morning, the 16th instant, the transport ship, Captain Hastings, of London, bound from Boston for New-York, with seventeen seamen, a Captain Duncan Campbell, a Lieutenant Sims, a recruiting Sergeant and fifteen or twenty ragamuffin fellows, that had ran from New-York and listed, who acted as marines on board, ran ashore on Brigantine Beach, near Egg Harbour where she is lost. The seamen and marines were secured soon after their coming on shore, and conducted to this City, where the seamen are set at liberty, but the marines are properly secured. Captain Campbell, Lieutenant Sims, and one Cameron, (who it appears were to land at New-York, to list what men they could, by large promises of confiscated land, which he never could fulfil, get them on board the Asia, and then transport them to Boston.) left the ship in a small boat, put into a place called Cranberry Inlet, but being pursued, were seized on board a sloop in which they had taken their passage for New-York. It is said, before they quitted the ship, they threw overboard several pieces of cannon belonging to the vessel, sixty muskets, and two and a half barrels of powder. The vessel left Boston the 5th of October, in company with a twenty gun ship and one transport, with some troops, bound for Halifax. No other ship of war or troops had sailed. General Gage was to sail in a day or two, in a merchant ship of sixteen guns. The Forty-Eighth and Fiftieth Regiments being greatly reduced, the privates are incorporated into other Regiments, and their officers going home. The object of Colonel Arnold's expedition was not known at Boston, but supposed to be destined against Halifax. Beef at Boston was nine pence sterling per pound, mutton a quarter of a dollar, and bills of exchange sold at twenty per cent. discount.

JOSEPH SOOY'S AFFIDAVIT.

County of BURLINGTON, NEW-JERSEY, ss.

The examination of Joseph Sooy, Jun., of Little Egg Harbour, of the County aforesaid, taken on oath, this 23d day of October, 1775, is as follows, viz:

That on the 16th of this instant October, he was going up the Little Egg Harbour River to engage a craft to bring him some fire wood, and he perceived a vessel on shore on Brigantine Beach; upon which he immediately went down to her, and went on board her, inquired of the people on board where she came from; and was told by a person (who he since understands is one Captain Campbell, that the ship was from Newcastle-on-Tyne, had very little lading in, except ballast; that the said Campbell told him they were bound to New-York, and that the day before they came on shore, they were by their reckoning seventy leagues distant from the land, and upon that account were careless about sounding. That he perceived a great many people on board, and inquired what they were; and was told they were passengers, coming to settle in America. That as none of the people had any regimentals on, and he did not perceive any arms or ammunition, he had no suspicion they were officers or soldiers. And that the said Campbell told him he was a part owner of the vessel, and wanted to go to New-York, where he had a considerable tract of land, and pressed this deponent to assist him in procuring a small vessel or vessels, to take what they could save out of the wreck; and he promised to do it, and signed a letter to one Captain Grant, (which was wrote by a person who he since understands to be Lieutenant Sims,) desiring the assistance of Grant and his vessel, to help the said Campbell to secure his effects, and convey them to New-York, firmly believing him to be a distressed merchant, and not an enemy to this Country. That the said Campbell, Sims, and a person who he is informed is named Cameron, went in his boat away from the inlet, with William Stibbs and Thomas Skinner, without his, the deponent's, knowledge, privity, or consent, and that he hath not received any bribe, hire, or reward, nor hath he the promise of any reward whatsoever, from any person or persons, to convey away the said Campbell, Sims, and Cameron, in a private or clandestine manner.

JOSEPH SOOY, JUN.

Sworn before JOSEPH REED, Justice of Peace.

J. YOUNG TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Albany, October 16, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: Some time about the 28th or 30th of July last, General Montgomery gave orders to Captain Elisha Phelps, to take care of the sick belonging to the Northern forces, and furnish them with such articles as the Doctor who attended them might judge necessary; and as all that had fallen sick were put under my care, he sent them to me as they came, and I have taken care of them since that time; and as no hospital had been provided, Mr. Phelps put them into private houses and taverns, where he could get them in, at the rate of twelve Shillings per week. After some time, I made application to Col. Van Schaick for a place for the sick, who ordered me to take possession of the fort for an hospital, which I did upon the 16th of August, and have since kept the greatest number of them there. Upon the 23d of September I received an order, which came from General Schuyler, to make a return of all the sick that were in a situation to be removed, to Colonel Van Schaick, that they might be sent home; after which time many have returned from the posts above, some discharged, and some not, unable to pass on, being quite sick, and destitute of money. I have advised with Colonel Van Schaick, (who is a very worthy gentleman,) and with the Commissaries, who were all of opinion that they should be taken care of; which I have done. Notwithstanding all, our conduct is found fault with. Mr. Phelps is blamed for agreeing with the wagoners for three Pounds ten Shillings, to take a load from Albany to the lake, and twelve Shillings per week, for the lodging, diet, &c., of the sick ; though I am told that three Pounds ten Shillings has been a standing price for riding a load from Albany to the lake, and is paid by the other Commissaries ; and the accustomed price for the board of a sick person, per week, I well know to be from sixteen to twenty Shillings, as I have inoculated many, and never had any boarded under sixteen. After what I have said, I need not tell you that I think matters are conducted in an uncertain, fluctuating manner. I would therefore crave your Honour's particular instructions relative to the Connecticut forces that are under my care, or that may stand in need of medical aid in passing this place.

I am, Sir, with due respect, your Honour's obedient humble servant,
JO. YOUNG.
To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq.

N. B. General Wooster has left the sick of his Regiment under my care.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO COLONEL JOHN GLOVER AND STEPHEN MOYLAN.

Camp at Cambridge, October 16, 1775.

GENTLEMEN : Col. Glover's letter of the 15th inst. came safe to hand. Captain Broughton and Captain Selman have their orders, and must be immediately despatched. The price you mention for bread is monstrous ; but there must be no delay. If the flour is not come in from Portsmouth, you must do as well as you can ; but if it is, we hope you need not submit to such terms. Let the agent take care to reserve a suitable quantity for the vessels, when it does arrive. Captain Glover will have the seventh vessel fitted out, but the General fears he is too young ; he has agreed to be second in command under Manley, for a little time. The experience he will gain will enable him to take the first command afterwards with more honour.

I am, Gentlemen, yours, &c.,

JOSEPH REED.

To Col. J. Glover and S. Moylan, Esq., Marblehead.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CAPT. NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

[Additional Instructions.]

Head-Quarters, October 16, 1775.

SIR : The honourable Continental Congress having received intelligence that two north country brigantines, of no force, sailed from England some time ago for Quebeck, laden with six thousand stands of arms, a large quantity of powder, and other stores, you are hereby directed to make all possible despatch for the River St. Lawrence, and there to take such a station as will best enable you to intercept the above vessels.

2d. You are also to seize and take any other transports, laden with men, ammunition, clothing, or other stores, for the use of the Ministerial Army or Navy in America, and secure them in such places as may be most safe and convenient.

3d. The other armed schooner, named the Lynch, and commanded by Captain Selman, is to be under your general command ; but you are to advise and concert with him the proper station and the proper time to continue this service.

4th. You are to endeavour, if possible, to discover whether the above vessels have passed by ; if they have, you are not to return, but keep the station as long as the season will admit. As there is a great probability that Quebeck will fall into our hands in a very short time, it may be expected that not only the above ordnance vessels, but others from Quebeck and Montreal, may come down and fall into our hands.

5th. As there may be men of war at Newfoundland, you are so to conduct as to prevent being discovered by them, or any intelligence given of your station.

6th. Whatever vessels you may meet, bound in or out of the River St. Lawrence, which you have reason to believe are in the service of the Ministerial Army, or conveying any stores to them, of provisions, or of any other nature, you are to endeavour to seize, though they should not be transports regularly engaged by Government.

7th. For your encouragement, and that of the officers and men under your command, you will receive one third part of the value of any prizes you may take, as well military stores as the hulls of such vessels, nothing being excepted but the wearing apparel and private stock of the Captains and other officers and passengers of such prizes.

8th. Should you meet with any vessel, the property of the inhabitants of Canada, not employed in any respect in the service of the Ministerial Army, you are to treat such vessel with all kindness, and by no means suffer them to be injured or molested.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Captain Nicholson Broughton.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CAPTAIN JOHN SELMAN.

[Additional Instructions.]

Head-Quarters, October 16, 1775.

SIR : The honourable Continental Congress having received intelligence that two north country brigantines, of no force, sailed from England some time ago, for Quebeck, laden with six thousand stands of arms, a large quantity of powder, and other stores, you are hereby directed to make all possible despatch for the River St. Lawrence, and there to take such a station as will best enable you to intercept the above vessels.

2d. You are also to seize and take any other transports laden with arms, ammunition, clothing, or other stores, for the use of the Ministerial Army or Navy in America, and secure them in such places as may be most safe and convenient.

3d. You are to consider Captain Broughton as your Commodore, and to keep company with him till you arrive at the proper station. You are to consult together upon the proper places to cruise, your signals, &c., and to agree upon the proper time to continue this service.

4th. You are to endeavour, if possible, to discover whether the above vessels have passed by ; if they have, you are not to return, but keep the station as long as the season will admit. As there is a great probability that Quebeck will fall into our hands in a very short time, it may be expected that not only the above ordnance vessels, but others from Quebeck and Montreal, may come down and fall into our hands.

5th. As there may be men of war at Newfoundland, you are so to conduct as to prevent being discovered by them, or any intelligence given of your station.

6th. Whatever vessels you may meet, bound in or out of the River St. Lawrence, which you have reason to believe are in the service of the Ministerial Army, or conveying any stores to them of provisions, or of any other nature, you are to endeavour to seize, though they should not be transports regularly engaged by Government.

7th. For your encouragement, and that of the officers and men under your command, you will receive one third part of the value of any prizes you may take, as well military stores as the hulls of such vessels, nothing being excepted but the wearing apparel and private stock of the Captain, other officers, and passengers of such prizes.

8th. Should you meet with any vessel, the property of the inhabitants of Canada, not employed in any respect in the service of the Ministerial Army, you are to treat such vessel with all kindness, and by no means suffer them to be injured or molested.

I am, Sir, yours, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Captain John Selman.

GENERAL GREENE TO GOVERNOUR WARD.

Prospect-Hill, October 16, 1775.

It gives me great pleasure to hear that the troops from Rhode-Island stand as high in publick esteem as the troops of the neighbouring Colonies. I have spared no pains, night or day, to teach them their duty. How far I have succeeded, I leave to his Excellency to say. Col. Varnum and Col. Hitchcock are excellent disciplinarians. . . . . knows nothing about it, and never will.

With regard to paying the troops part of their wages, and the Committee part, it will be productive of a multitude of inconveniences. The Colonels can retain part of their wages for their families at home ; the people may give orders to those who supply their families, to receive it. This will give less dissatisfaction, and answer every salutary purpose. A man from each Town or County may undertake to supply the families of those that are engaged in the Army. The Colonels are the best judges of the prudence and good economy of their soldiers; those who behave well, and make a prudent use of their money, want no agent, for they will receive monthly payments, and such parts as they can spare for the support of their families can easily be conveyed home. As the troops are considered Continental, and not Colonial, there must be some systematical plan for their payment, without any reference to any particular Colonies; otherwise, they will be partly Continental and part Colonial.

His Excellency has a great desire to banish every idea of local attachments. It is next to impossible to unhinge the prejudices that people have for places and things which they have long been connected with. But the fewer of those local attachments which discover themselves in our plan for establishing the Army, the more satisfactory it must be to the Southern people. For my part, I feel the cause, and not the place. I would as soon go to Virginia as stay here. I can assure the gentlemen to the southward, that there could not be any thing more abhorrent to . . . , than an union of these Colonies for the purpose of conquering those of the South.

The pay and provision of the troops cannot be lowered at present; they do not feel themselves under a necessity to enter the service for the support of themselves and families, and, therefore, would refuse to enlist again. This might produce a recess at the termination of their present enlistment, which would be dangerous to the liberties of America. At some future period, if the people are obliged to resort to the Army for employment, such a measure might be prudent and practical, but by no means at present.

The Committee from the Congress arrived last evening, and I had the honour to be introduced to that very great man, Doctor Franklin, whom I viewed with silent admiration during the whole evening. Attention watched his lips, and conviction closed his periods. Colonel Harris is a very facetious, good humoured, sensible, spirited gentleman; he appears to be calculated for military employment. Mr. Lynch was much fatigued, and said but little, but appeared sensible in his inquiries and observations. You may depend upon our paying the gentlemen every mark of respect and attention during their stay.

I had the pleasure to hear from your son, Samuel, the 26th of September; he was at Fort Western; just going to set off on their journey, all in health and good spirits. I had the same apprehensions with regard to Samuel's health and strength to endure the fatigues of such a campaign, as you had. I advised him to decline it; but the heat of youth, and the thirst of glory, surmounted every obstacle, and rendered reasoning vain, and persuasion fruitless. Col. Christopher Greene is gone with him; his going made me the more readily consent to your son's going. I gave the Colonel a particular charge to lend him a helping hand in every case of difficulty, and he promised that his aid never should be wanting.

By several letters from Quebeck, things wear a promising appearance there. If the expedition succeeds, and we get possession of Canada, we shall effectually shut the back door against them; and I make no doubt of keeping them from entering at the front. You may depend on my influence to obtain Charles a commission in the new establishment.

ADDRESS OF THE FREEHOLDERS OF THE SHIRE OF ARGYLE.

Address of the Freeholders of the Shire of Argyle, presented to His Majesty by Colonel Livingston, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King.

The humble Address of the Freeholders of the Shire of ARGYLE.

We, whose predecessors suffered early and greatly in the cause of liberty, and who are persuaded it is our greatest interest, as well as honour and duty, on every proper occasion, to exert ourselves in its defence, judge it now incumbent upon us to express our sense of the blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and constitutional Government; and, at the same time, to declare our abhorrence of the unnatural rebellion of our deluded fellow-subjects in America, which, we apprehend, is encouraged and fomented by several discontented and turbulent persons at home.

Permit us, therefore, to express our earnest wishes, that the measures adopted by the wisdom of the Nation may be vigorously prosecuted by your Majesty, till faction and rebellion are brought to yield due obedience to the decrees of the Legislature, without which our invaluable Government can never be said to subsist; and we beg leave to assure your Majesty, that, in support of such measures, we are ready to risk our lives and fortunes.

Signed in name, presence, and by appointment of the meeting.

ROBERT CAMPBELL, Præses.

Inverary, October 17, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH AND TOWN OF ARUNDEL.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Inhabitants of the Borough and Town of Arundel, in the County of Sussex, presented to His Majesty by George Lewis Newnham, Esq., one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Inhabitants of the Borough and Town of ARUNDEL.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Inhabitants of the Borough and Town of Arundel, impressed with the liveliest sense of the blessings we have enjoyed during your mild and equitable reign, and struck with horror at the unnatural and daring rebellion into which your Majesty's infatuated American Colonies have suffered themselves to be deluded, respectfully beg leave to approach the throne, with the warmest assurances of our fidelity and allegiance.

At a time when your Majesty's sovereign rights, the authority of Parliament, and the natural ties which ought to bind your Majesty's extensive Dominions in a band of union, are traitorously set at naught, it becomes the duty of all good subjects to vie with each other in supporting the dignity of the throne and the Legislature of Great Britain, with their lives and fortunes.

We therefore, with all humility, assure your Majesty, that though many corporate Towns may surpass this Borough in point of opulence, none can surpass it in steady and determined attachment to your royal person, in zeal for the Constitution, or in wishes that the Crown of these realms may be transmitted, undiminished in lustre or in power, to the latest descendants of a King who has paid so just and equal an attention to the laws of the land, to the prerogatives of the Crown, and to the liberties and happiness of his people.

Given under the common seal of Arundel, and signed by the Mayor, Aldermen, and Inhabitants, this 17th day of October, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE MAGISTRATES AND INHABITANTS OF THE ISLAND OF GUERNSEY.

Address of the Lieutenant-Governour, the Bailiff and Jurats of the Royal Court, the Dean and Clergy, and other principal Inhabitants of the Island of Guernsey, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Sir Jeffery Amherst, Knight of the Bath.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Lieutenant-Governour, the Bailiff and Jurats of your Majesty's Royal Court, the Dean and Clergy, and other principal Inhabitants of your Majesty's Island of Guernsey, impressed with the deepest concern to see so great a part of our fellow-subjects in your extensive Dominions of North-America, so far deluded and lost to the sense of a just and legal dependance on your Majesty's auspicious Government, as to forego, by an unwarrantable and criminal resistance to the constitutional legislative authority of your realms, that prosperity and happiness which they, in common with your Majesty's subjects in Europe, so fully enjoyed, humbly beg leave to assure your sacred Majesty, that however we may be moved, by sentiments of humanity, to lament their folly and blindness, we shall ever abhor and detest such atrocious attempts to subvert, under your auspicious sway, the mildest and best of Governments.

The wisdom and justice of your Majesty's counsels, ever since your Majesty's happy accession to the throne, have been so conspicuous, that we look forward with confidence and well-grounded hopes, that the same just, prudent, and vigorous measures which have so happily distinguished your Majesty's reign, on the most difficult occasions, will, on this, bring the seditious and rebellious chiefs, and their adherents, to a peaceable and dutiful submission; teach them that a state of independence is a state of anarchy and confusion, and therefore full of calamities; that their own and Country's importance and prosperity solely depend on the protection of Great Britain; that to leave them to themselves would be leaving them, as in the times of ancient unsettled States, a prey to their own civil broils, and the victims of wicked and ambitious men; that to return to their allegiance to your Majesty, and due submission to the laws, is their only happiness, and their only title to your Majesty's clemency. May your Majesty, by their unfeigned repentance, and sincere return to their duty and loyalty, soon have occasion to exert, in their favour, that benign appanage of royal authority, and which your Majesty has at all times so cheerfully extended to the imprudent and unfortunate.

But as the attainment of that desirable end must be much accelerated by the hearty concurrence of your faithful subjects at home, to the wisdom of your Majesty's measures, we deem it our indispensable duty, in so important a circumstance, humbly to assure your Majesty of our fidelity and loyalty to your Majesty, and of our zeal, affection, and firm attachment to your royal person, family, and Government, in support of which we shall ever be ready to sacrifice every thing we hold most dear.

That your Majesty may long reign over a free, dutiful, and happy people, and that your royal sceptre may regularly descend to your august line, to the end of time, is the sincere prayer of, may it please your sacred Majesty, your Majesty's most dutiful and most faithful subjects.

PAULUS ÆMILIUS IRVING, JOHN WAUGH, late Lieut. of 61st Regiment.

WILL. LE MARCHANT, ROB'T PORRET LE MARCHANT.

LAW. FIOTT, DANIEL DE LISLE, J. G. ST. GEORGE, D. L. MARE, CHARLES ANDROS, R. DE BEAVOIR, NICHOLAS DOBREE, NICH. RESERSON, PETER DE JERSEY, HIRZEL LE MARCHANT, KING'S PROCUROR.

PETER COUTART, KING'S DELEGATE COMPTROLLER. JEAN GOSSELIN, Prevot du Roi. JOSH. GOSSELIN, Greffier. J. MOULLIN, Serjeant. E. CRESPIN, Dean. JEAN GODEFROY, Recteur de St. Sauveur.

JOSHUA LE MARCHANT, Chaplain of the Island and Garrison. ISAAC VALLAT, Recteur de St. Pierre du Bois. GOUNON DE PRADON, Recteur de St. André. FRAN. PEPIN, Ministre. J. C. BERNEL, Ministre. R. MARTINEAU, Ministre. EMERIC DE ST. PALMAS, Ministre. WM. DOBREE, Clerk. JAMES DE HAVILLAND, Lieut. in the Navy. JOHN RIVOIRE, JAMES HUBERT, JUN., GEORGE LEFEBVRE, Col. JOHN LE MESURIER, Col. of the Blue. JOHN CAREY, JUN., JOHN LA SERRE, PETER DOBREE, THOMAS SMITH, Captain of Invalids. JAMES NAIRN, Lieut. WILLIAM READE, Lieut. JAMES ADEAR, Lieut. J. JENKINSON, Ensign. THOMAS CAREY, JOHN CORNELIUS, PETER HUBERT, THOMAS ANDROS, SOLOMON LAUGA, PETER LE COCQ, WILLIAM COUTART, JOHN LE MARCHANT, Lieutenant-Colonel. THOS. LE MARCHANT, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Red. ELISHA LE MARCHANT, JOHN GEORGE HARRIS, King's Receiver-Gen'l. WILLIAM BROCK, DANIEL WATKINS, HENRY BROCK, PETER BONAMY, NICHOLAS DE LISLE, WILLIAM LE MESURIER, JOHN BOLGER.

THOS. LE MARCHANT, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Red. ELISHA LE MARCHANT, JOHN GEORGE HARRIS, King's Receiver-Gen'l. WILLIAM BROCK, DANIEL WATKINS, HENRY BROCK, PETER BONAMY, NICHOLAS DE LISLE, WILLIAM LE MESURIER, JOHN BOLGER.

THOS. LE MARCHANT, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Red. ELISHA LE MARCHANT, JOHN GEORGE HARRIS, King's Receiver-Gen'l. WILLIAM BROCK, DANIEL WATKINS, HENRY BROCK, PETER BONAMY, NICHOLAS DE LISLE, WILLIAM LE MESURIER, JOHN BOLGER.

THOS. LE MARCHANT, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Red. ELISHA LE MARCHANT, JOHN GEORGE HARRIS, King's Receiver-Gen'l. WILLIAM BROCK, DANIEL WATKINS, HENRY BROCK, PETER BONAMY, NICHOLAS DE LISLE, WILLIAM LE MESURIER, JOHN BOLGER.

THOS. LE MARCHANT, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Red. ELISHA LE MARCHANT, JOHN GEORGE HARRIS, King's Receiver-Gen'l. WILLIAM BROCK, DANIEL WATKINS, HENRY BROCK, PETER BONAMY, NICHOLAS DE LISLE, WILLIAM LE MESURIER, JOHN BOLGER.

THOS. LE MARCHANT, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Red. ELISHA LE MARCHANT, JOHN GEORGE HARRIS, King's Receiver-Gen'l. WILLIAM BROCK, DANIEL WATKINS, HENRY BROCK, PETER BONAMY, NICHOLAS DE LISLE, WILLIAM LE MESURIER, JOHN BOLGER.

THOS. LE MARCHANT, Lieutenant-Colonel of the Red. ELISHA LE MARCHANT, JOHN GEORGE HARRIS, King's Receiver-Gen'l. WILLIAM BROCK, DANIEL WATKINS, HENRY BROCK, PETER BONAMY, NICHOLAS DE LISLE, WILLIAM LE MESURIER, JOHN BOLGER.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Tuesday, October 17, 1775.

The Committee met. Present:

Mr. Clopper,	Mr. Lispenard,	Mr. Van Zandt,
Mr. Bleecker,	Mr. Smith,	Mr. Abeel,
Mr. Ray,	Mr. McDougall,	Mr. Lispenard,
Mr. White,	Mr. Curtin,	Mr. Bancker,
Mr. Hyer,	Mr. Stoutenburgh,	Mr. Bicker,
Mr. Van Horne,	Mr. Lott,	Mr. Buchannan,
Mr. John B. Moore,	Mr. Woodward,	Colonel Lasher,
Mr. Totten,	Mr. Templeton,	Mr. Walton,
Mr. Duyckinck,	Mr. Pell,	Mr. Beekman,
Mr. Goelet,	Mr. C. P. Low,	Mr. Marston,
Mr. Miller,	Mr. Brower,	Mr. Norwood,
Mr. Denning,	Mr. Verplanck,	Mr. Mulligan,
Mr. Brinkerhoff,	Mr. Sharpe,	Mr. Roome,
Mr. Dunscomb,	Mr. Durjee,	Mr. Bogart,
Mr. Clarkson,	Mr. Desbrosses,	Mr. I. Low,
Mr. Ramsay,	Mr. Kissam,	William W. Ludlow,
Mr. Bull,	Mr. Burling,	Garret Kettletas,
Mr. Berrian,	Mr. Bassett,	Gabriel W. Ludlow.
Mr. Inlay,

His Worship the Mayor of this City produced a Letter from Governour Tryon, which having been read and considered, Ordered, That Benjamin Kissam, Colonel McDougall, Samuel Verplanck, and Isaac Low, be a Committee for drawing an answer to the said Letter.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 23, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, at New-York, October 17, 1775.

SIR: We have used all possible despatch to complete the fortifications on Hudson's River, and we expect they will be in such forwardness, in about six weeks, as to have most of the cannon mounted.

The Commissioners have been directed to make the necessary inquiries respecting the other small batteries, and the obstructing the navigation of Hudson's River, mentioned by Congress in the order of the 7th inst., to which due attention shall be paid.

We are of opinion that four Companies of Matrosses, consisting of at least eighty men each, will be wanted to occupy these forts when completed, and that one Company, at least, should be immediately raised, that we may, in time, have men properly trained to the use of cannon, as the utility of our fortifications will much depend upon it.

We are, most respectfully, Sir, your most obedient humble servants. By order:

NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President, &amp;c.

[Enclosed in the foregoing Letter.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 17, 1775.

Your Committee report that they have perused all the resolutions of the Continental Congress, (which more immediately respect this Colony,) from the 18th May to the 7th instant, and find that the resolution relative to salt-petre and brimstone hath not been fully complied with, and therefore do report it as their opinion—

1st. That all the brimstone and sulphur in this City, not exceeding twenty tons, (except about two tons, to be reserved for the use of vessels,) be purchased and deposited, with all convenient despatch, at some secure place near the powder-mills, in this Colony, under the care of the respective Committee of the County or District where the mills are.

2d. That a letter be written to the respective Colonels of the Militia and Minute-Men in this Colony, requesting them to appoint, and notify to their respective Regiments, some convenient place of rendezvous, where they are to muster, completely equipped, upon any publick alarm, and to remain till marching orders shall be received by their respective Colonels or commanding officers; and that the Colonels be desired to acquaint this Congress of the places they shall so respectively appoint for that purpose.

3d. That in order to give a general alarm throughout the Colony, in case of invasion, and for the purpose of mustering the Regiments aforesaid, that beacons be erected at convenient places and distances throughout the Colony, and where convenient places cannot be found to erect beacons, that cannon be fixed instead of them; and that some fit person be employed, under the direction and with the advice of the several County Committees, to make proper arrangement of this business, and to report thereon to the Congress.

Guersey, October 17, 1775.

4th. And for the purpose of conveying intelligence, in case of invasion, your Committee report that it be recommended to the several County Committees, in this Colony, to appoint and engage some one or more of their own body, whose place of residence shall be convenient for the purpose, or any other discreet person or persons, who shall live on or near the most publick roads that lead from New-York through their respective Counties, to have a person and horse in readiness to forward intelligence in case of invasion; and that the Committee fix the several stages, in their respective Counties, from ten to about fifteen miles distance, and make return thereof to the Congress, with the names and places of abode of the persons to be employed as aforesaid.

5th. That a letter be written to the Commissioners appointed for erecting a battery on the banks of Hudson's River, requesting them to examine whether it is practicable to obstruct the navigation of Hudson's River, between this City and the said battery; and if so, in what place and how, and that they report thereon with all convenient speed; and that the said Commissioners be also desired to report whether there are any other places on Hudson's River where small batteries may be erected, so as to annoy the enemy in their passage; and, particularly, whether the point on the west shore, a little above Verplanck's Point, and at or near Moore's house, would not be proper places for that purpose; and that they be requested to report to this Congress, with all convenient speed, such places as they shall think may be advantageously fortified, with an estimate of the expense, and an account of the number and weight of ordnance that will be wanting, and when, in their opinion, the work could be completed.

6th. Your Committee further report that it is their opinion that four Companies of Matrosses, consisting of eighty men each, will be necessary to occupy the forts on Hudson's River, when completed, and that one Company at least should be immediately enlisted for that purpose, and that it will be proper to write to the Continental Congress for their direction on the subject.

7th. That a copy of the Continental resolution of the 7th instant, together with a copy of such parts of this Report as respects the said resolution, be sent to the Assembly of Connecticut and the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, together with a letter on the subject of conveying intelligence in cases of invasion, and of receiving assistance when necessary.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in their said Report.

A true copy: JOHN MCKESSON, Secretary.

FIELD-OFFICERS OF THE MILITIA OF DUTCHESS COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Colonel, Petrus Ten Broeck; Lieutenant-Colonel, Morris Graham; Majors, Simon Westfall, Jonathan Landon; Adjutant, William Stuart; Quartermaster, Hendrick Van Hoevenburgh.

Colonel, Tobias Stoutenburgh; Lieut. Colonel, John Frere; Majors, Robert Hoffman, Benjamin De la Vergne; Adjutant, John Carpenter; Quartermaster, John Ringley.

Colonel, David Southerland; Lieut. Colonel, Roswell Hopkins; Majors, Simon Cook, Rich'd De Cantolou; Adjutant, Joseph Carpenter; Quartermaster, Dan'l Shepherd.

Colonel, Dirck Brinckerhoff; Lieut. Colonel, Abraham Brinckerhoff; Majors, Daniel Ter Boss, Richard Van Wyck; Adjutant, Thomas Storm; Quartermaster, Adrian Brinckerhoff.

Colonel, William Humphrey; Lieut. Colonel, James Vandenburg; Majors, Benja. Birdsall, Morris Place; Adjutant, Ebenezer Cary; Quartermaster, Chas. Platt.

JOHN HUNTER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

The following plan, for establishing a Linen Manufactory, is humbly presented to the honourable the Provincial Congress.

It is necessary to point out to your Honours the necessity and utility there is, at present, for establishing a linen manufactory; and as I have been carefully instructed in every branch of the linen manufactory, from the sowing of the flax seed until it is fit for the wearer, and I am so fully convinced that manufactories, under proper directions, can be carried on in this Country, with equal advantage to that of any part of the world, from a variety of reasons, which, if necessary, I will explain, I have already drawn out a plan which I have shown to a number of gentlemen, who all approve much of the scheme, and have already subscribed as adventurers in it. Some of your Honours, from a principle of publick spirit, have informed me that they could wish such a manufactory could be carried on in such an extensive manner as to employ a number of our industrious poor, and have requested of me to furnish your Honours with an estimate of said manufactory. First, I would propose that the sum of two thousand Pounds should be applied to the carrying on a manufactory of linens, cottons, and sewing threads, and coarse sheetings made of hemp; that a treasurer shall be appointed, and four or more gentlemen, who shall serve gratis, to inspect and inquire into the state of the manufactory, a clerk to keep the books, and give out the flax to the spinners; the treasurer is not to pay any money without a written order from one of the managers. As I am fully convinced that this manufactory may be carried on to advantage, and the profits, which appear by the annexed estimate, being rather under than over, I will undertake to conduct the whole manufactory on receiving one-half of the profits which arise from the two thousand Pounds. I beg your Honours will be as speedy as possible in coming to a determination, that I may know whether to relinquish my other scheme or not.

I am, with respect, Gentlemen, your most humble servant,
JOHN HUNTER.

Estimate. £—— to be appropriated by the Congress to the purpose of setting up manufactories of linen, woollen, &c., in the Province. This money to be repaid (if repaid at all) by a lottery; let the profits of the manufactories be applied to publick services. It will not do to repay the £—— with the money arising from the sale of the goods, because this will very soon put an end to manufacturing.

To carry on the business properly, it will be necessary to have a number of Inspectors or Superintendents, whose business should be to see the raw materials and the manufactures properly taken care of, and to inspect the Treasurer's and Clerk's accounts, and see that nothing is embezzled, or carelessly destroyed or wasted.

The Treasurer should not be allowed to pay any money except for accounts or orders, signed by the Clerk and countersigned by at least one of the Inspectors.

The department of the Clerk should be to receive and deliver out raw materials and manufactures, to have the care and keeping of both, and to keep exact accounts of the disbursements and receipts of the manufactory. For these purposes he will need an assistant; and as the Clerk's office will be burdensome, he should be allowed, besides an assistant, a compensation for his trouble.

The work to be done at the manufacturers' houses.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 25, 1775.]

New-Haven, October 17, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 5th instant came safe to hand the 9th, by express. Pursuant to the desire of Congress, gave the necessary orders for our largest vessel (which was the only one we had any way suitable for the purpose) to sail immediately on the proposed cruise; but am sorry to inform you that on attempting further to prepare for the voyage, find the vessel not in a condition to proceed on that service, and wholly out of my power, after the utmost endeavours, to comply with the desire of the Congress, in this respect, with such despatch as may be of any service, which gives me great uneasiness. Governour Cooke acquaints me, also, that their only vessel fit for this duty is absent upon a cruise. I am advised, however, by General Washington, that two vessels from Massachusetts-Bay are ordered on this service.

I am, with great truth and regard, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO CAPTAIN EPHRAIM BOWEN, JUN.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 17, 1775.

SIR: Your letter, without date, is just come to hand. Captain Martindale will deliver you this, with whom you can consult on the proper guns to fit Adams's schooner out. He is going down to fit out, with your assistance, a schooner belonging three-quarters to George Ewing, and one-quarter to Captain Wormwell, provided you can agree with Wormwell. Martindale is to command, but Wormwell may sail as master, if he chooses. This vessel is highly recommended here; but you must make proper inquiries about her, and act accordingly. If it is absolutely necessary to procure proper guns at Providence and Bristol, you must go; but we have always found that when gentlemen, sent upon this business, go among their friends, they are apt to stay too long, and are induced to favour their friends in such articles as may be wanted, so as to delay the business. I therefore think it necessary to give you this caution. Enclosed are Mr. Watson's instructions, which you will please to deliver him. Pray consider that after the guns are procured, the ammunition is to be provided; and no cartridges can be made till you send forners, unless ammunition is to be procured there. You will also please to bear in mind that our situation, as to powder, does not admit these vessels being fitted out at all points, nor will the time admit. Captain Martindale having been used to have a vessel where nothing was wanted, I fear will not make suitable allowances. If Wormwell's vessel should not be found to answer, or cannot be had but upon such terms as you do not choose to comply with, and there is another there, you may take her. Let the good of the publick direct you, and that only.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

J. REED.

To Captain Ephraim Bowen, Jun., Plymouth.

P. S. Captain Adams does not go Captain, but has my promise to go master, if he chooses. We send a Captain from hence.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO WILLIAM WATSON.

[Instructions as Agent for Prizes.]

Head-Quarters, October 17, 1775.

SIR: You, being recommended to his Excellency as a proper person to transact the business of the several armed vessels fitted out of Plymouth, at the Continental expense, will be pleased to consider the following as your instructions:

1st. That you immediately lay in provision, on the best terms, for the vessels now fitting or to be hereafter fitted, of such articles only as are allowed in the Continental Army, and in the same proportion as per enclosed paper, or as near as possible.

2d. When no special order to the contrary, you are never to put more than one month's provision in each vessel, for fifty men, officers included.

3d. In making up your accounts, you are to remember that the original bills or invoices are to be sent as vouchers. That your own account is to be general, and at the bottom an affidavit of the justice of your account. This is not done from any jealousy or suspicion, but that the utmost satisfaction may be given the Country, and that all agents may be on the same footing.

4th. That in case any prizes are taken and sent into Plymouth, you are immediately to inform yourself of the quality and value of the cargo, vessel, &c., as well as you can, from papers, and send it up to the General. You are then to wait for further directions. If the officers and men appoint an agent for their one-third, you are to permit him also to have a copy of all papers necessary to ascertain the cargo, and, when the vessel is discharged, give him a true copy of the cargo.

5th. All military stores belonging to the Continent, and the hulls of all vessels so deemed, that they may be applied to the Continental service if necessary.

6th. Whatever advice you at any time have of the vessels, that is material, you will send up here by suitable opportunities.

7th. As there are other vessels cruising besides those fitted out at Plymouth, you are to consider yourself as agent for all vessels fitted out at the Continental expense, who shall have occasion for necessaries at Plymouth, or may send any prizes into that port.

8th. You will endeavour to lay in every thing on the best terms, and send your opinion as to the disposal of cargoes at your place or elsewhere, in which it is hoped you will not be influenced by interest, as it is intended so to regulate the sale of cargoes as to make them most advantageous to the publick, and suitable compensation, in all cases, made to the agents.

9th. Your commissions will be regulated by the agreements made at Marblehead and Salem for the same services.

10th. In case of any irregularity, misconduct, or negligence, in the officers of any vessel, you are desired to give immediate information to the General.

11th. You are now, and at all times, to use all possible despatch, and not permit the vessels, when equipped, to remain in port.

By order of his Excellency General Washington.

To William Watson, Esquire.

J. REED, Secretary.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO COLONEL JOHN GLOVER.

Head-Quarters, October 17, 1775.

SIR: We learn, with a good deal of concern, that there is no probability of the vessels being got away for several days, and that, in all appearance, the remainder of the vessels, besides Captain Broughton and Captain Selman, will not be ready these two weeks, to which the long delay already, and frequent disappointment, makes us give some credit. The General is much dissatisfied, and cannot but think a desire to secure particular friends or particular interests does mingle in the management of these vessels. The number of workmen, we are told, is considerable, and, in short, it is said, in plain terms, that it will be made a job of. I thought it proper to mention to you what has been said; and at all events, unless you engage that the vessels, which are to remain at and about Cape Ann and that coast, shall be ready in five days, one must be got at Newburyport, as I cannot but think, from all we hear, that it would expedite this business to have one vessel out from thence. Six transports came into Boston yesterday. If our cruisers find themselves watched at Marblehead and Cape Ann, they must run out in the night and cruise farther off. Should they take any prizes, they must send them to Plymouth, or some other Town on that coast. We are told that our vessels make a practice of running in every night when they have been out, and the men come on shore. This must be rectified. Captain Manley is to have one of the vessels left for the coast about Cape Ann. General Sullivan's Captain will have another. Manley's vessel will be manned from your Regiment. I have said so much upon despatch that I need say no more than that if they are not soon at sea, we shall heartily repent it was ever undertaken.

I this morning paid Major Lee sixty Dollars for Captain Broughton, forty for your son, and thirty for the Third Lieutenant, as a compliment from Captain Langdon for retaking his vessel. The men behaved so ill that nothing could be allowed them.

I am, Sir, your very humble servant,

J. REED.

To Colonel John Glover, Marblehead.

SAMUEL GOODWIN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Pownalborough, October 17, 1775.

SIR: According to your Excellency's verbal orders, by Colonel Benedict Arnold, I supplied him with a plan of the sea-coast, from Cape Elizabeth to Penobscot, and the River Kennebeck to the several heads thereof, and the several carrying places to Ammeguntick Pond and Chaudiere River, (which Ammeguntick empties into said Chaudiere River, which Chaudiere empties into the River St. Lawrence, about four miles above Quebeck;) and the passes and carrying places to Quebeck; and also made several small plans for each department, for their guide; and also gave him a copy of a journal which represented all the quick water and carrying places to and from Quebeck, both ways, viz: east and west; the west is the way to go, and the east to come. Sir, if there was a road cut, it would be much easier carrying an army and provisions, and would shorten the way much; and then you might have a post to pass once a week or ten days.

I think it would be for the general interest for you to have a copy of said plan, &c., and then you would be a judge of what would be best to be done. It hath been a great cost and labour to me to obtain those plans, &c., and make them. Sir, if you think it worth your notice, and will give orders therefor, I will copy one for you, and wait on you with it, and give you the best intelligence I can, as I think I know as much of this country as any one, as I have been travelling, surveying, and settling this part, ever since the year 1750. I would willingly go to lay out a road, and see it cleared, &c., and do every thing necessary, if agreeable, and orders therefor, and you, &c., should think it worth while.

But submitting all to your better judgment, I am, Sir, with all due respect, your most obedient, devoted, and very humble servant,

SAMUEL GOODWIN.

To his Excellency George Washington, Esq.

N. B. Mr. Reuben Colburn informed me you wanted a plan. I thus began it about three weeks before Colonel Arnold arrived, or I could not have got it ready for him.

Please to excuse the smallness of the paper, for there is a famine of it here.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO COMMITTEE OF PORTSMOUTH.

In Committee of Safety, Exeter, October 17, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Application having been made to us for liberty of transporting necessities of life to the inhabitants of the Isle of Shoals, we have thought best to refer all matters of that kind to your consideration and determination; more especially, as we conceive you must be much better acquainted with the circumstances and necessities of those people than we possibly can be. We think, whatever their conduct may have been, through the misfortune of their situation, they ought not to be precluded from the means of subsistence, and therefore recommend to you to grant permits to such persons as incline to supply them from your harbour; to do it in such manner and in such quantities as to you shall appear most safe and expedient.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO COLONEL ENOS.

On the Dead River, 20 miles above the Portage, }
October 17, 1775. }

DEAR SIR: I arrived here last night, late, and find Col. Greene's division very short of provisions—the whole having only four barrels of flour and ten barrels of pork. I have therefore ordered Major Bigelow, and a Lieutenant and thirty-one men out of each Company, to return and meet your division, and bring up as much provision as you can spare, which is to be divided equally among the three; in particular, of flour. This will lighten the rear, and they will be able to make greater despatch, and will be no hinderance, as I shall keep the men here making up cartridges. I make no doubt you will hurry on as fast as possible.

I am, with esteem, dear Sir, your humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

N. B. If you find your men much fatigued, and this party can bring on more of your provision than their share, let them have it; you shall have it again when you come up, and it will forward the whole. The carpenters of Colburn's Company have more than they can bring up.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO MAJOR BIGELOW.

Dead River, October 17, 1775.

SIR: You are, as soon as possible, to go back until you meet Colonel Enos's division, and take from him as much provision as he can spare, which you will return with as soon as you can. Leave your batteaus this side the carrying place, and one man to take care of the whole.

I am, Sir, your humble servant, B. ARNOLD.

Major Bigelow.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN AND COUNTY OF HAVERFORD-WEST.

Address of the Mayor, Sheriff, Aldermen, Common Councilmen, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Town and County of Haverford-West, presented to His Majesty by William Edwardes, Esq., their Representative in Parliament, and Sir Richard Phillips, Baronet, Representative in Parliament for the Borough of Plympton.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Mayor, Sheriff, Aldermen, Common Councilmen, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Town and County of Haverford-West, equally uninfluenced by motives of servility or of faction, but actuated by a most loyal and affectionate regard as well for your Majesty's sacred person as that mild Government from which we derive so many and so great advantages, humbly beg leave to address your Majesty on the present unhappy situation of affairs between Great Britain and her Colonies in America.

At the time, Sire, that we look up with gratitude to your Majesty for the enjoyment of such blessings, permit us to express our abhorrence of those traitorous measures which have been adopted in a distant part of your Dominions to dispossess us of them, by stirring up a most unnatural rebellion, upon pretences as vain and absurd in speculation, as the conduct to which they lead is nefarious and destructive in practice.

Anxious as we naturally are to prevent the effusion of the blood of our fellow-subjects, yet despairing of the efficacy of other than compulsive means to bring back this deluded people to a sense of their duty, we wish not that the sword of justice be sheathed till the constitutional sovereignty of this great Empire, over all its inferior dependencies, be permanently and effectually secured.

Let those wicked persons, who either from hence secretly abet, or in America openly support this destructive contest, be taught some truths, of which it is material that they and their misguided followers should no longer be ignorant.

Let them learn, Sire, from the voice of a free and an intelligent People, that real liberty is no less far removed from the barbarism and anarchy of licentiousness, than is loyalty to our Sovereign, and that excellent Constitution of which he is the guardian and protector, from the mean and servile compliances of baseness and adulation.

Let them learn, whilst they talk of their own boasted rights and immunities, to respect those of their Sovereign, and of that Country from whence they derive their existence, and which, from the infancy of their Colonies to their present vaunted state of maturity and greatness, has fostered, encouraged, and protected them, with a tenderness truly affectionate and parental.

But if, deaf to maxims perhaps ill-suited to the temper with which they have already treated this important subject, they still continue to pursue measures apparently tending to the temporary distress of one Country, and the utter and inevitable destruction of the other, let them learn, through such channels as these, (the most proper, in our humble opinions, for conveying the real sense of the rational majority of the inhabitants of Great Britain,) that their partisans in this Island are neither so numerous nor so powerful as that misguided people, by the arts of seditious and designing men, has been induced to believe; and that every sensible and unprejudiced man considers the present contest not (as is vainly pretended) as a struggle for power between your Majesty's Ministers and the Colonies, but, as it really is, a contention between those Colonies for an unjust and unconstitutional independence on the Parent State, and that State asserting its inherent and indisputable rights of sovereignty over its inferior members.

Let them learn, that as their sophistry cannot deceive, so their menaces cannot terrify your Majesty or your Ministers into compliances injurious to the general interests of the Empire; or let them feel, that the uplifted arm of Britain is no less powerful to suppress and chastise the insolence of Rebels, than they, in their happier days of loyalty and affection to your Majesty's Government, have experienced it effectual for their protection against foreign enemies.

Impressed with these sentiments, we beg leave to assure your Majesty of our warmest support in all those measures you shall think it proper to adopt, for the general honour and safety of your Dominions, both at home and abroad.

May they prove as successful as we trust they will be found both wise in plan and vigorous in execution; and may it be your Majesty's peculiar felicity, after settling the present unhappy differences upon the most equitable and permanent foundations, neither relaxing from the constitutional rights of Britain on the one hand, nor infringing those of America on the other, to reign with dignity, ease, and happiness, over a free, a loyal, and united people, is the earnest prayer of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most faithful and loyal subjects.

October 18, 1775.

NORTH-CAROLINA PROVINCIAL COUNCIL.

At a Provincial Council held at the Court-House in the County of Johnston, the 18th day of October, in the year of our Lord 1775:

The Provincial Congress having, by Resolve, nominated the following persons to be a Provincial Council, to wit:

The Honourable Samuel Johnston, Esquire.

For the District of WILMINGTON.—Cornelius Harnett, Samuel Ashe, Esquires.

For the District of EDENTON.—Thomas Jones, Whitmill Hill, Esquires.

For the District of NEWBERN.—Abner Nash, James Coor, Esquires.

For the District of HILLSBOROUGH.—Thomas Person, John Kinchen, Esquires.

For the District of HALIFAX.—Willie Jones, Thomas Eaton, Esquires.

For the District of SALISBURY.—Saml. Spencer, Waightstill Avery, Esquires.

Pursuant to which, Samuel Johnston, Cornelius Harnett, Samuel Ashe, Thomas Jones, Whitmill Hill, Abner Nash, James Coor, Thomas Person, and John Kinchen, Esquires, appeared, and subscribed the Test directed by the Congress, and took their seats accordingly.

The Council then proceeded to the choice of a President, when Cornelius Harnett, Esquire, was unanimously chosen; and, at the same time, James Green, Junior, appointed Clerk.

Certificates from the Chairman of the Committee of Dobbs County were laid before the Council, whereby it appears that Mr. Jesse Cobb was elected Captain; William Cobb, Lieutenant, and Richard Caswell, Jun., Ensign, of the First Company of Minute-Men. Certified the 23d day of September last.

Mr. George Miller, Captain; Mr. Benjamin Ecum, Lieutenant, and David Jernagan, Junior, Ensign, of the Second Company of Minute-Men. Certified the 28th day of September last.

Mr. John Garland, Captain; Mr. William Kilpatrick, Lieutenant, and Mr. John Granger, Ensign, of the Third Company of Minute-Men. Certified the 4th day of October instant.

The Council taking the same into consideration,

Ordered, That Commissions issue immediately to the said Captains, Lieutenants, and Ensigns.

The Council adjourned till four o'clock.

The Council met according to adjournment.

The Counties of Wake and Tryon having failed to elect Delegates, agreeable to the Resolution of the late Provincial Congress, by reason of the Freeholders not receiving timely notice of the day appointed for that purpose,

Resolved, That on the 1st day of November next, the Freeholders in Wake County, and on the 28th day of November next, the Freeholders in Tryon County, shall meet and elect Delegates and Committee-Men for their respective Counties, in the same manner, and under the same regulations and restrictions, as directed by Resolve of the late Congress.

The Council adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Thursday, October 19, 1775.

The Council met according to adjournment.

Waightstill Avery, Esq., one of the Members for the District of Salisbury, appeared.

Resolved, That the Treasurers, or either of them, pay into the hands of Colonel William Kennon, Commissary to the First Regiment, the sum of one thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money, to enable him to purchase Provisions for the same; and that they be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That the Treasurers, or either of them, pay into the hands of Mr. Andrew Knox, Commissary for Edenton District, the sum of five hundred Pounds, Proclamation Money, to enable him to purchase Provisions for the Troops; and that they be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That the Treasurers, or either of them, pay into the hands of Mr. Robert Salter, Commissary of Newbern District, the sum of five hundred Pounds, Proclamation Money, to enable him to purchase Provisions for the Troops; and that they be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That the Treasurers, or either of them, pay into the hands of Mr. Robert Lanier, Commissary of Salisbury District, the sum of five hundred Pounds, Proclamation Money, to enable him to purchase Provisions for the Troops; and that they be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That Colonel William Kennon be appointed Commissary to the Battalion of Minute-Men for the District of Wilmington.

Resolved, That Mr. John Coart be appointed Commissary to the Battalion of Minute-Men for the District of Newbern.

Resolved, That Mr. Andrew Knox be appointed Commissary to the Battalion of Minute-Men for the District of Edenton.

The Council adjourned till four o'clock.

The Council met according to adjournment.

The Council adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Friday, October 20, 1775.

The Council met according to adjournment.

Samuel Johnston, Esq., one of the Committee to get proper Plates engraved, and to provide Paper and agree with an Engraver to stamp or print the Bills of Credit, and to frame devices for the same, informed the Council that the said Committee had employed Mr. William Tisdale, at Newbern, for the above purpose, and had agreed to give him one hundred Pounds.

Resolved, That the Treasurers, or either of them, pay to Mr. William Tisdale the above sum of one hundred Pounds; and that they be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

At the same time was laid before the Council, an account of the Paper and other Stationary provided for the above purpose, amounting to twenty-two Pounds four Shillings.

Resolved, That the Treasurers, or either of them, pay the same out of the Moneys in their hands, and be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That William Kennon, Esquire, be appointed Commissary to the Battalion of Minute-Men for the District of Salisbury.

Willie Jones, Esq., one of the Council for the District of Halifax, appeared, subscribed the Test, and took his seat in Council.

Thomas Eaton, Esq., one of the Council for the District of Halifax, appeared, subscribed the Test, and took his seat in Council.

Resolved, That Commissions do issue, signed by the President, to the Minute and Militia Officers in the several Districts and Counties within this Province.

Resolved, That the one thousand Troops raised in this Province on the Continental establishment, be supplied with one Blanket, a Hunting-Shirt, Spatterdashes, and Gaiters, so as not to exceed the sum of forty Shillings for each Soldier; this Council being of opinion that the same is absolutely necessary, and was intended by the late Provincial Congress.

The Council being informed that the Minute-Men, directed to be raised in some of the Counties in this Province, cannot be enlisted in time to answer the intention of the Congress:

It is therefore Resolved, That the Field-Officers of any District in which the Counties, or any of them, have not or cannot speedily raise the Company or Companies by the Congress directed to be raised in such Counties, may appoint suitable persons, in any of the other Counties within their respective District, to enlist Minute-Men sufficient to complete their Battalions; and such Minute-Men shall be formed into Companies, choose their Officers, and be subject to the same rules, orders, and discipline, and entitled to the same pay, as other Minute-Men raised in this Province.

And whereas it will be impossible for one person to attend the several Counties in some of the Districts, and perform the duties of an Adjutant to the Minute-Men, on account of the great extent of such Districts:

Resolved, That the Field-Officers and Captains, or a majority of them, in any of the Districts where they judge it necessary, shall appoint two Adjutants to the Minute-Men of their respective Districts, shall direct their duty and apportion their pay, so that the same does not exceed the duty or pay of one Adjutant, appointed agreeable to the Resolution of the Provincial Congress; and that the Ferriages of the Adjutants, in attending the Musters, shall be paid by the publick.

And, also, whereas it may be found impracticable at last to complete the Battalions in some of the Districts:

Resolved, That the Field-Officers and Captains, in such case, shall call together such Minute-Men as shall enlist, to the place, and proceed to training in the manner by Congress directed; and they are directed, under these circumstances, to proportion the pay of the Adjutant or Adjutants to the services which he or they are to render.

Resolved, That Mr. Thomas Picket be appointed Ensign in Captain William Picket's Company, of the First Regiment, in the room of James Childs, resigned.

Tilghman Dickson, Lieutenant in Henry Dickson's Company, of the First Regiment, in the room of Hezekiah Rice, resigned.

John Brown, Ensign in Captain Alfred Moore's Company, of the First Regiment, in the room of John Taylor.

Charles Allen, Ensign in Captain John Armstrong's Company, of the Second Regiment, in the room of Benjamin Cleveland.

Thomas Standing, Ensign in Captain Michael Payne's Company, of the Second Regiment, in the room of Whitmill Pugh, resigned.

Joseph McClammy, Ensign in Captain Henry Irvin Toole's Company, of the Second Regiment, in the room of Joseph Clinch, resigned.

William Gardner, Lieutenant in Captain Hardy Murfee's Company, of the Second Regiment, in the room of John Williams, resigned.

Joseph Worth, Ensign in Captain Hardy Murfee's Company, of the Second Regiment, in the room of William Gardner, promoted.

And, in case of the death or resignation of Lieutenant John Grange, that Henry Vipon be appointed Lieutenant, and John Sitgreaves Ensign, in Captain John White's Company, of the Second Regiment, in the room of Henry Vipon, promoted.

Resolved, That John Bryan, Esquire, be appointed Colonel of the Militia for the County of Craven.

Resolved, That Lehansyus Dekeyser be appointed Adjutant in the First Regiment, and Ensign in Captain John Walker's Company, in the room of Berryman Turner, resigned.

Resolved, That Samuel Johnston, Esq., be appointed Paymaster of the Troops stationed in the District of Edenton, as also to the Minute-Men in the said District; first entering into bond to this Council, with sufficient security, in the sum of ten thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money.

Resolved, That Richard Caswell, Esquire, be appointed Paymaster of the Troops stationed in the District of Newbern, as also to the Minute-Men in the said District; first entering into bond to this Council, with sufficient security, in the sum of ten thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money.

Resolved, That Samuel Ashe, Esq., be appointed Paymaster of the Troops stationed in the District of Wilmington, as also to the Minute-Men in the said District; first entering into bond to this Council, with sufficient security, in the sum of ten thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money.

Resolved, That Matthew Locke, Esq., be appointed Paymaster of the Troops stationed in the District of Salisbury, as also to the Minute-Men in the said District; first entering into bond to this Council, with sufficient security, in the sum of ten thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money.

Resolved, That the next Congress shall be held at the Town of Halifax, the first day of May next, unless otherwise determined hereafter by this Council.

Resolved, That the next Provincial Council shall be held at the Court-House, in the County of Johnston, the seventeenth day of December next; but that the President may call a Council sooner, if he should find it necessary.

Resolved, That Samuel Johnston, Esq., be empowered, and he is hereby required to send an express to the Delegates of this Province at Philadelphia; and that the Treasurers, or either of them, pay him the expense thereof, and be allowed in their accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That Abner Nash and James Coor, Esquires, or either of them, be empowered to charter one or more Vessels, and agree with Masters and Seamen, at the Port of Newbern, and load the same to such parts as they shall judge expedient, and with such articles as they may think proper, not exceeding the sum of one thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money, in order to procure Arms and Ammunition for the use and protection of this Province; the same to be at the hazard, risk, and expense of this Province.

Resolved, That Mr. President, Richard Quince, and John Forster, Esquires, or either of them, be empowered to charter one or more Vessels, and agree with Masters and Seamen at the Port of Wilmington, and load the same to such parts as they shall judge expedient, and with such articles as they may think proper, not exceeding the sum of one thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money, in order to procure Arms and Ammunition for the use and protection of this Province; the same to be at the hazard, risk, and expense of this Province.

Resolved, That Whitmill Hill, Esquire, be empowered to charter a Vessel, and agree with one or more Masters and Seamen, at the Port of Edenton, and load the same to such parts as he shall judge expedient, and with such articles as he may think proper, not exceeding the sum of one thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money, in order to procure Arms and Ammunition for the use and protection of this Province; the same to be at the hazard, risk, and expense of this Province.

Resolved, That Mr. Memucan Hunt be appointed Commissary to the Battalion of Minute-Men for the District of Hillsborough.

Resolved, That Nathaniel Rochester, Esq., be appointed Paymaster to the Battalion of Minute-Men in the District of Hillsborough; first entering into bond in the sum of five thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money.

The Council adjourned till to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

Saturday, October 21, 1775.

The Council met according to adjournment.

Resolved, That in case any Troops should attempt to land in a hostile manner, in any part of this Province, the Commanding Officers of the two Battalions of the American Army raised in this Province do immediately oppose the same, to the utmost of their power.

Resolved, That the President of this Council correspond, from time to time, with the Councils of Safety within the Colonies of Virginia and South-Carolina, or with the proper Boards chosen and appointed in those Colonies.

Resolved, That the Paymasters now appointed are not to be considered as Military Officers, under the order, direction, or control of the Commanding Officers of the two Battalions of the American Army raised in this Province; and that their said appointment does not, in the opinion of this Council, disqualify them from sitting at this Board, and ought not to disqualify them from sitting in the Provincial Congress, in case they should be elected Members of the same.

Resolved, That Mr. Cullin Edwards be appointed Commissary to the Battalion of Minute-Men for the District of Halifax.

Resolved, That Mr. Joseph John Williams be appointed Paymaster to the Battalion of Minute-Men in the District of Halifax; first entering into bond in the sum of five thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money.

Resolved, That Colonel Robert Howe employ proper persons to make Carriages for six of the Cannon Guns now at Newbern, mount and unspike the same, for the use of the Province; and that Richard Caswell, Esq., Treasurer of the Southern District, advance a sum sufficient to pay the expense thereof, so that the same does not exceed the sum of fifty Pounds, Proclamation Money, and be allowed in his accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That Colonel James Moore employ proper persons to make Carriages for six of the Cannon now lying at Wilmington, mount and unspike the same, for the use of the Province; and that Richard Caswell, Esq., Treasurer of the Southern District, advance a sum sufficient to pay the expense thereof, so that the same does not exceed the sum of fifty Pounds, Proclamation Money, and be allowed in his accounts with the publick.

Whereas some Counties have, through mistake, elected Committee-Men and Delegates previous to the seventeenth day of October, the day by Congress appointed:

Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Council, that such Committees ought to be held legal, and to act in the same manner as if they had been chosen on the proper day; and that the Delegates elected as aforesaid ought to be admitted to their seats in Congress: provided that there was no fraud in the election of such Committees and Delegates.

And whereas other Counties, for want of the proceedings of the Congress, have not yet chosen Committee-Men and Delegates:

Resolved, That such Counties may hold their Elections of Committee-Men and Delegates at any time between the 17th of October and the 1st of January next, under the rules and restrictions by Congress directed; and that it is the opinion of this Council, that such Elections ought to be as valid as if they had been held on the said 17th of October.

The Council adjourned till four o'clock.

The Council met according to adjournment.

Resolved, That Samuel Johnston, Esq., the Northern Treasurer, pay into the hands of Mr. Nathaniel Rochester the sum of two thousand one hundred and fifty Pounds, for the use of the Minute-Men, and for the purchase of Drums, Colours, &c., in the District of Hillsborough; and that a warrant for that purpose issue, signed by the President, and that the said Treasurer be allowed in his accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That Samuel Johnston, Esq., the Northern Treasurer, pay into the hands of Mr. Joseph John Williams the sum of two thousand one hundred and fifty Pounds, for the use of the Minute-Men, and for the purchase of Drums, Colours, &c., in the District of Halifax; and that a warrant for that purpose issue, and be signed by the President, and that the said Treasurer be allowed in his accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That Richard Caswell, Esq., the Southern Treasurer, pay into the hands of Samuel Ashe, Esq., the sum of ten thousand five hundred Pounds, for the use of the Regular Troops and Minute-Men, and for the purchase of Drums, Colours, &c., in the District of Wilmington; and that a warrant for that purpose issue, and be signed by the President, and be allowed in his accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That Richard Caswell, Esq., the Southern Treasurer, pay into the hands of Matthew Locke, Esq., the sum of five thousand two hundred and fifty Pounds, for the use of the Regular Troops and Minute-Men, and for Colours, Drums, &c., in the District of Salisbury; and that a warrant for that purpose issue, and be signed by the President, and be allowed in his accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That Richard Caswell, Esq., pay the Troops now at Newbern, and the Minute-Men to be hereafter raised for that District, from time to time, as the same shall become due, and to purchase Drums, Colours, &c., and be allowed in his account with the publick.

Resolved, That Samuel Johnston, Esq., pay the Troops now at Edenton, and the Minute-Men to be hereafter raised for that District, from time to time, as the same shall become due, and to purchase Drums, Colours, &c., and be allowed in his account with the publick.

Resolved, That Mr. Lewis Williamson deliver up to Messrs. Cumming, Warwick, & Co., or their Agents, the Books of Accounts of the said Cumming, Warwick, & Co., which he has in his possession.

Resolved, That Richard Caswell, Esq., purchase from David Baron, of Newbern, all the new serviceable Guns and all the Gunpowder he may have for sale, at the lowest price they can be had for; and that he deliver them to Colonel Robert Howe, for the use of his Regiment, who is to account for the same with the next Provincial Congress; and that he be allowed in his account with the publick.

Resolved, That Commissions be issued to a Captain, Lieutenant, and Ensign, in the room of Captain John Walker, Lieutenant Robert Smith, and Ensign James Cook, all of Colonel Howe's Regiment, and who have all resigned or refused to act under their Commissions.

Resolved, That the Captains of the Companies in the Regular Regiment shall report to the several Committees of the Towns and Counties in the District where they are stationed, the number of men in their Companies who are unarmed, who shall thereupon borrow such Guns as are fit for service, giving receipts describing such Guns and the value thereof to their owners, that they may hereafter get them again, or the value of them; and the said Committees shall take receipts of the Captains for the Guns thus supplied, which receipts shall be transmitted to the Provincial Council, and the Captains shall produce such Guns when demanded, pay the value of them, or show that they have been lost by unavoidable accident to the publick; and that an allowance be made after the rate of ten Shillings per annum for a good smooth-bore, and twenty Shillings for a Rifle, to the owners, for the use of their Guns, in the case abovementioned.

Resolved, That Richard Caswell, Esquire, Treasurer of the Southern District, pay into the hands of Abner Nash and James Coor, Esquires, or either of them, the sum of one thousand Pounds, for purchasing Arms and Ammunition, to be accounted for at the next Provincial Congress, and that the said Treasurer be allowed in his account with the publick.

Resolved, That Samuel Johnston, Esq., Treasurer of the Northern District, pay into the hands of Whitmill Hill, Esquire, the sum of one thousand Pounds, for purchasing Arms and Ammunition, to be accounted for at the next Provincial Congress, and that the said Treasurer be allowed in his accounts with the publick.

Resolved, That Richard Caswell, Esq., Treasurer of the Southern District, pay into the hands of Mr. President, Richard Quince, Sen., and John Forster, Esqs., or either of them, the sum of one thousand Pounds, for purchasing Arms and Ammunition, to be accounted for at the next Provincial Congress, and that the said Treasurer be allowed in his accounts with the publick.

The Council adjourned till four o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Sunday, October 22, 1775.

The Council met according to adjournment.

Resolved, That the Sheriff of Johnston County immediately take into his possession all the Real and Personal Estate of John Gresham, unless he gives bond, with good and sufficient security, in the sum of two hundred and twenty Pounds, payable to the Justices of the Inferiour Court of Johnston County and their successors; conditioned that he, the said John Gresham, shall well and truly settle with the said Court the accounts of the Estate of Sill Johnston, deceased, and pay into the hands of the Guardian to the Orphans of the deceased all such sums of Money which shall be directed by order of the said Court to be paid to the said Guardians; and that the said Sheriff shall keep the said Estate in his hands, unless such bond and security is given, until the meeting of Johnston Inferiour Court, and then deliver the same up to the Justices of the said Court, that they may make such order concerning the same as to them may seem just, it having on oath been made appear to this Council, that the said John Gresham was about to leave the Province in a private manner.

Resolved, That Samuel Ashe, Esq., pay into the hands of Thomas Eaton, Esq., for the use of Captain William Green, one hundred and twenty Pounds, to be applied to the enlisting of Regular Soldiers, and be allowed in his account with the publick.

The Council being informed that discontents had taken place among the people in the County of New-Hanover, arising perhaps from mistake and misrepresentation, and that in consequence thereof they had publickly protested against the proceedings of the late Congress:

Resolved, That this Council do highly disapprove of such conduct, as tending to create divisions, which may prove prejudicial to the cause of liberty; and they do therefore recommend to Mr. President, Samuel Ashe, and John Ashe, Esquires, to explain the proceedings of the Congress to the people abovementioned, and endeavour, by argument and persuasion, to promote that harmony which is so essential for the preservation of the rights of America.

Whereas the mode by Congress provided for securing Debts due from persons suspected of an intention to abscond is found defective, as no application can be made but in term time, or at the sitting of the Committees:

Resolved, That the Committees of Safety and County Committees, in their respective jurisdictions, may make such other and further regulations with respect to this point as to them shall appear necessary.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 23, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 18, 1775.

SIR: We are this moment honoured with your favour of the 16th instant, advising us of the unanimous resolutions of Congress to forward to General Schuyler the ton of powder yesterday sent us, which was immediately ordered to be carried into execution; although we cannot, beside that, command two hundred pounds of powder, if it would save the Colony from destruction. We have frequently spared all the powder in our Colony to supply the urgent calls of the Continental Army, at Cambridge and Ticonderoga, and thereby exposed ourselves to insult and ruin. We therefore entreat you to represent to Congress the absolute necessity of replacing without delay the powder we have furnished the Continental Army, for otherwise we shall not be able, in case of an invasion, to make that defence which might be expected from us by our neighbours, nor even to prevent insults. Should the Congress be unable to order us the powder out of the Continental magazine, we submit it to their consideration, whether the City of Philadelphia cannot with greater safety to the confederated Colonies spare the quantity we have sent to the Army, than we can want it.

We are, respectfully, Sir, your most obedient servants.

NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 31, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, Wednesday, October 18, 1775.

SIR: Since my last of the 5th inst., General Montgomery has favoured me with several letters, extracts whereof I do myself the honour to enclose you.

Resolved, That the Colonel of each regular Regiment in this Province have a power to appoint a Clerk, by warrant, under their hands, to each Regiment, who shall receive the same pay that Clerks upon the Continental establishment receive for their service.

Resolved, That the Committees of the several Counties and Towns, and the Committees of Safety for the several Districts of this Province, be required to exert their utmost influence to forward and hasten the Minute service, and procure the several Battalions of Minute-Men to be completed with all possible despatch; and that the Militia be immediately embodied, and Adjutants employed to instruct them in military discipline, agreeable to the Resolutions of the Provincial Congress; the same being of very great importance to the publick safety.

Whereas it appears to this Council, that, from the great extent of Rowan County, it is very inconvenient and burdensome for the Militia thereof to assemble at any one place therein, and that a division of the Rowan Regiment would ease the inhabitants, and encourage military discipline; therefore,

Resolved, That the Regiment of Militia in the said County of Rowan shall be divided by a line beginning at the Catawba River, where Lord Granville's south line crosses the same; thence running up the said River, in the middle of the main stream thereof, to the mouth of the Lower Creek; thence a due north course to the dividing ridge between the waters of the Catawba and the Yadkin Rivers; and that all the Militia of said County, on the west side of said line, shall be, and is hereby made and established a new and distinct Regiment, and shall be known and distinguished by the name of the Second Regiment of Rowan Militia.

Resolved, That Commissions issue to the Field-Officers of the Second Regiment of Rowan Militia.

Resolved, That it be, and it is hereby recommended to the Committees of Safety, who have not yet met, to meet in their respective Districts on or before the last Tuesday in November next.

CORNELIUS HARNETT, President.

By order:

JAMES GREEN, JUN., Clerk.

The General's complaint, in No. 1, that he wants men, is too well founded; the enclosed return will show how much the Army is reduced by sickness, &c. At that time, all the men that I could send were on the way to join him, and they arrived on the 9th, as you will see by No. 2. It is too true that very few of the men he sends to this post return. The greater part of them are so averse to going back that they pretend sickness and skulk about; and some, even officers, go away without leave, nor can I get the better of them, although I do not suffer a ration of provision to be issued unless I countersign the order, and the sick, or pretended sick, do not get half allowance.

What little money I have been able to procure at Albany, I have sent on. I fear the want of specie will be fatal to us, should every thing else go well. The Canadians have suffered much by paper currency, and a burnt child dreads the fire.

Two hundred and fifty-three of General Wooster's Regiment came across Lake George on Sunday, but the General is not yet arrived, and they do not choose to move until he does. Do not choose to move! Strange language in an Army; but the irresistible force of necessity obliges me to put up with it. This morning I gave an order to Lieutenant-Colonel Ward to send a subaltern, a sergeant, corporal, and twenty privates, in two batteaus, to carry powder, artillery stores, and rum. The Colonel (who is a good man) called upon me to know if he would not be blamed by General Wooster for obeying my orders. I begged him to send the men, and urged the necessity. The men, I believe, will condescend to go. I could give many instances of a similar nature; but General Montgomery has most justly and emphatically given the reasons: "Troops who carry the spirit of freedom into the field, and think for themselves," will not bear either subordination or discipline.

If there is any foundation in the report that the garrison intend quitting St. John's, I conjecture it must arise from intelligence that Mr. Carleton may have received of Colonel Arnold's approach. Should the garrison effect their escape, it may go hard with Arnold, whose numbers, in so long and fatiguing a march, must be considerably diminished. I have therefore requested General Montgomery to send immediate intelligence of his situation and prospects, that Colonel Arnold may govern himself accordingly.

I am deeply impressed with the necessity of putting this place in a proper posture of defence. I have wrote on the subject to Congress before; but I have now only sixty-five effectives here, (exclusive of General Wooster's), who are insufficient for the necessary works carrying on.

I cannot help observing that the reasons General Montgomery gave in support of his opinion, for having a battery on the west side, appear to me so cogent that I wonder the Council of War should be opposed to it; but he was certainly right to acquiesce in their determination, as I am morally sure, if he had not, that the men would have been troublesome.

I have no prospect of getting my health re-established at this place; but in the present critical moment I dare not leave it. Much, very much, is to be done, whether we succeed or fail in Canada. The distance between this and Philadelphia is so great, and the season so far advanced, that the least delays may be attended with the most fatal consequences. I therefore humbly submit it to Congress, if it would not be best to send up a Committee with full powers to direct our future operations; to me, such a measure appears highly necessary.

General Wooster is just arrived here. As he was appointed a Major-General by the Colony of Connecticut, and as I did not know his sentiments with respect to the rank he considered himself in, in the Continental Army, my intentions were to have him remain at this post; but assuring me that his Regiment would not move without him, and that although he thought hard of being superseded, yet he would most readily put himself under the command of General Montgomery; that his only views were the public service, and that no obstructions, of any kind, would be given by him; this spirited and sensible declaration I received with inexpressible satisfaction, and he moves to-morrow with the first division of his Regiment.

Mr. Bedford has mustered such of the New-York troops as he possibly could; they were so scattered that it was morally impossible he could see the whole. He has done every thing in his power to fulfil his duty, without being able to complete it. The reasons of this failure are various. He will inform the honourable Congress why the Connecticut troops were not mustered. I have directed him to return to Philadelphia, and report what has been done. Previous to his departure, I desired him to deputize Mr. McPherson, my Aid-de-Camp, in case it should be possible to make another muster, which, I believe, will hardly take place this campaign.

I am, Sir, with the most respectful esteem, your and Congress's most obedient and most humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., &c., &c.

[No. 1.]

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp south side St. John's, October 6, 1775.

DEAR GENERAL: Your diligence and foresight have saved us from the difficulties that threatened us; we are no longer afraid of starving. I wait now with impatience for the arrival of those troops mentioned in your last, and which, I believe, from the number of boats on the way, will soon be here to take the advantageous post I formerly spoke of, on a hill to the westward. Since my last, I have had some proposals of an accommodation, through the channel of the Caughnawagas, from the formidable St. Luke La Corne, and other principal inhabitants of Montreal. To-morrow is appointed for a conference at La Prairie. I have sent Major Brown to manage it. McPherson goes with him; and Mr. Livingston, of Chambly, will attend. The result of this negotiation I hope soon to make you acquainted with. Mr. St. Luke's character gives me all the reason in the world to be on my guard against him. I shall insist upon some substantial proof of his sincerity.

Mr. Livingston, some days ago, took post at Mr. Hazen's house, with near two hundred of the Canadians; they are erecting a battery there, which seems to make the garrison very uneasy. Yesterday they attacked them with their row-galleys, but were beaten back without loss on the side of the Canadians. No certain intelligence yet of Arnold's arrival, though there are flying reports to that purpose. I wish he was at Quebeck with all my heart; I believe there is nothing to oppose him. I am extremely happy that you have sent for more powder; I believe we have not more than two tons and a half; this, I am afraid, will not do. Send as many men as you possibly can furnish with provisions; I am greatly in want of them. Our feebleness has intimidated the Canadians from embarking in so uncertain an adventure. Were I strong enough to send five hundred men to Montreal, it would certainly declare for us; at least I have great reason to think so. The miserable weather we have had has distressed us much; but I hope it is now over.

Let the hard cash come up as soon as possible, that our reputation may hold good. Mr. Carleton is not departed, as I informed you. We want both iron and steel, and turner's tools. The large mortar is ready to play.

I am, &c., RICHARD MONTGOMERY.
To General Schuyler.

P. S. I shall send some more boats in a few days.

[No. 2.]

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp south side St. John's, October 9, 1775.

DEAR GENERAL: This evening I have been favoured with yours by Colonel Clinton. Every re-enforcement is welcome, but I expected more men in fourteen batteaus. I find my numbers but little increased, as I seldom see any of those return I send to Ticonderoga. The two barrels of sugar turn out to be two barrels of flour. We now have here, and at the Isle-aux-Noix, three hundred barrels of pork, and three hundred and twenty-eight barrels of flour; so that I think you may venture to send more men than provisions. The season advances fast, and we shall have a heavy piece of work to get our cannon to the westward, where we must have a strong post, as it is at a distance from support, and near the enemy.

Our conference with St. Luke has ended in smoke. He made the Indian deliver my letter to Carleton, who had it burnt without reading it. The Indian told the Governour, very honestly, that he was sent to me by St. Luke and others. The Indians of Caughnawaga attended at La Prairie, according to appointment, and are much displeased at the trick put upon them by those gentlemen. They seem to think St. Luke was discovered in his plan, and dared not venture to carry it through. I hope we shall have more powder.

The enemy are exceedingly uneasy at the post on the east side, and have made two ineffectual and, indeed, feeble efforts to dislodge the Canadians. The battery there is not finished; they don't love work. I have been obliged to send them assistance. The very high prices which officers must pay here for every thing brought from Ticonderoga, are far above what their scanty pittance of pay will allow of. I must request you will represent the peculiar hardship of their situation, which displaces them entirely from the footing of the troops employed among their friends, in the midst of a plentiful country. If their pay cannot be augmented, a gratuity may be made to them, adequate to the difficulties they labour under. It might extend to Subalterns and Captains; perhaps it may not be so absolutely necessary to go any higher up. And, indeed, the detachment in the country, and on the north side, live very well, and, by what I can find, cheap. I am afraid I shall have a disagreeable reckoning with some of them concerning the publick money.

I send a considerable corps of sick; little mischief since my last; one or two wounded.

Your residence at Ticonderoga has probably enabled us to keep our ground. How much do the publick owe you for your attention and activity.

I am, &c., RICHARD MONTGOMERY.
To General Schuyler.

Return of discharged sick Men.

From General Wooster's Regiment, - - - - -	93
From Colonel Hinman's " - - - - -	318
From Colonel Waterbury's " - - - - -	215
From Colonel Parsons's " - - - - -	57
From Colonel Easton's " - - - - -	143
From Colonel McDougall's " - - - - -	35
From Colonel Van Schaick's " - - - - -	28
From Colonel Clinton's " - - - - -	11
From Colonel Holmes's " - - - - -	7
From Lieut. Col. Warner's " - - - - -	30

Total of discharged, 937

Ticonderoga, October 12, 1775.

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp near St. John's, October 13, 1775.

DEAR GENERAL: Some time ago I informed you of my intentions to make my approaches on the west side, as soon as the expected re-enforcement enabled me to undertake it. I had had a road cut to the intended ground, and some fascines made, when I was informed by Major Brown that a general dissatisfaction prevailed; that unless something was undertaken, in a few days there would be a mutiny; and that the universal sense of the Army was to direct all our intentions to the east side. The impatience of the troops to get home has prevented their seeing the impossibility of undertaking this business sooner, the duty being hard for the troops, even on the present confined state of operations.

When I mentioned my intentions, I did not consider I was at the head of troops who carry the spirit of freedom into the field, and think for themselves.

Upon considering the fatal consequences which might flow from the want of subordination and discipline, (should this ill-humour continue,) my unstable authority over troops of different Colonies, the insufficiency of the military law, and my own want of power to enforce it, weak as it is, I thought it expedient to call the Field-Officers together. Enclosed I have sent you the result of our deliberations. I still suspect the garrison intend an elopement; and there is some reason to think they are getting flat boats ready to go down the rapids. This intelligence has just come.

The Canadians, who have befriended us, begin to be exceedingly uneasy at their situation should we not succeed. I have ventured to assure them, should any accident oblige us to retire without effecting our business, that I would take care of all those who were afraid to remain in the country.

You will see the propriety of putting Ticonderoga in a state of defence against a winter coup-de-main, which, in my opinion, will be best effected by a stockade, and also of having a post at Crown Point. The vessels should lie in stockade also, the garrison be well provided with vegetables, and every thing necessary to make them comfortable, otherwise it will be difficult to keep them there; and such preparations made for a naval armament for the spring, that the troops may move down to the Isle-aux-Noix before Mr. Carleton has time to establish himself there, should these unhappy troubles continue.

I am, &c.,
To General Schuyler.

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

Proceedings of a Council of War held at St. John's, OCTOBER 13, 1775.

I proposed establishing a battery of all our spare heavy cannon on the rising ground exactly opposite the stone house in the north redoubt, (in the west face of which there is but one embrasure open,) at the distance of about four hundred yards, securing this battery with a work capable of being well defended by two hundred men. From this battery our approaches might be continued to the ditch, and, by the time we arrive there, the faise round the berm would be destroyed, the rampart in a ruinous state, and the large house (which is said to be their principal barrack) would be destroyed, as every shot that missed the rampart must take the house. Two four-pounders, on the east side, would answer the end of seeing the west rampart in reverse, and thereby slackening the opposition of the enemy. By this mode of proceeding, if our ammunition held out, there would be, in my opinion, some prospect of success, notwithstanding the superiour artillery of the garrison, which could not be mounted in its proper place time enough to prevent the erection of our battery. The Field-Officers were, to a man, of opinion that my reasons were insufficient, being afraid the designed ground was, at this season, too wet for approaches, and strongly of opinion our heavy cannon, on the east side, would more effectually distress the enemy by annoying their buildings; the fort having a gentle slope to the river, and which was urged as the strongest motives by destroying their schooner. In vain I represented, if every building was destroyed, the garrison could not surrender without a probability of an assault, which could never arise from any attack on the opposite side of the river. That the vessel could not be destroyed, because she would change her place in such a manner as to elude our batteries; that we had little powder or time to throw away on experiments; that I had a moral certainty they would find themselves mistaken and, finally, that they must take it upon themselves, so I would not oppose the general sense of the Army, and should enforce the measure by every effort in my power.

I cannot help observing to how little purpose I am here. Were I not afraid the example would be too generally followed, and that the publick service might suffer, I would not stay an hour at the head of troops whose operations I cannot direct. I must say I have no hopes of success from the garrison's wanting provisions.

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO MAJOR BROWN.

Camp near St. John's, October 6, 1775.

SIR: You will proceed to La Prairie, in order to meet Mr. St. Luke La Corne, and other principal inhabitants of Montreal, who express an inclination to accommodate matters. Mr. St. Luke and his friends must give hostages, and deposite a considerable sum of money, (for which they shall have an order on the Treasury or Paymaster-General,) as a proof of their sincerity and good intentions. You will insist upon our having access to Montreal, in case I find it necessary to occupy it; if possible, the Governour and his troops must be obliged to quit it. Should he remain, those who now wish for an accommodation, and are met for that purpose, or their dependants, are not to take up arms, under pain of being deemed violators of their faith. They shall engage, in the most solemn manner, not to obstruct in any manner the liberal plan laid down for the establishment of a free Government in Canada. As soon as the situation of affairs will permit it, the people must choose Committees to depute Delegates for the Continental and a Provincial Congress, that Canada may at once make a part of that union which will, with the blessing of God, establish the rights of all the Colonies on a firm basis. I am at the head of an auxiliary Army to effect these purposes, and sent by the Congress at the earnest solicitations of the friends of liberty in Canada; as an auxiliary, I shall act in conformity to the general inclinations of the inhabitants, and no man's property shall suffer, as far as lies in my power, unless the people themselves think proper to punish such delinquents as may persist in the support of a tyrannick Government. Should you find it prudent to mention the Kennebeck expedition, you will do it.

It must be communicated to the commanding officer at Montreal, that if Mr. Allen or any other prisoner of our troops, or the Canadians, who have taken up arms for the establishment of their rights, are treated with cruelty, or more severity than is necessary for their security, I must, much against my inclination, retaliate on those who already are or may fall into my hands.

You may, perhaps, have an opportunity of extending your negotiation further than I foresee; and, perhaps, in some instances you may not be able to proceed so far. I must leave matters to your own judgment and zeal for the publick good. You will consult Mr. Livingston on these occasions. I only give these as hints.

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

P. S. You may observe that it was late before the Congress were so well acquainted with the disposition of the Canadians as to venture to send a corps of troops into a sister Colony; that therefore our preparations have been somewhat backward, but that I receive re-enforcements and necessary stores as fast as my boats can return to Ticonderoga. If any powder can be obtained, it would be serviceable; but it is a delicate point to touch on, lest it might give suspicions of our inability to carry our point here.

It would be proper to take the conference in writing, and make them sign their engagements. R. M.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

In Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-Hampshire, }
October 18, 1775.

SIR: We have the honour to acknowledge the receipt of yours of the 15th instant, and are deeply sensible of your benevolence towards the inhabitants of Portsmouth. We have consulted the Committee of that Town, and concluded to forward the whole cargo; to sell three hundred barrels thereof to the inhabitants of Portsmouth, and, out of the proceeds, to pay the sailors' wages.

Before the receipt of yours, Mr. Moylan had settled the method of transportation.

In behalf of the Committee, I have the honour to be, with the highest esteem, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Winter-Hill, October 18, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to your request, I enclose you a list of vacancies in the New-Hampshire Regiments, with the names of the persons recommended to fill them; beg you to fill up the commissions and forward them, as soon as possible, to, Gentlemen, your very humble servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

Honourable Committee of Safety, New-Hampshire.

P. S. As Colonel Stark and Colonel Reed have not mentioned when the vacancies happened, beg you to leave me to put in the dates, which I think you may venture to do, though I am fully convinced of the justice of your observation, viz: that you have no authority to delegate the power of making out commissions.

Your humble servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

Return of Vacancies in Colonel REED's Regiment.

The vacant commissions in Colonel Reed's Regiment, with the names of those persons recommended to receive said commissions:

A Lieutenant wanting in Captain Spalding's Company; the person recommended to supply the said vacancy is George Aldrich, now Ensign in Captain Hinds's Company, although the said Aldrich hath not received his Ensign's commission. An Adjutant vacant; Stephen Peabody recommended to receive the Adjutancy, who hath ever done the duty. An Ensigncy vacant in Captain Hutchinson's Company; the person recommended is Richard Coughton, Sergeant-Major, to fill up said vacancy; and William Hawkins, who distinguished himself in the battle at Bunker's Hill, the 17th of June last, to supply the place of an Ensign in Captain Hinds's Company, in lieu of the abovenamed Aldrich.

So the matter is: Lieutenant, George Aldrich; Ensigns, Richard Coughton and William Hawkins; Adjutant, Stephen Peabody.

JAMES REED, Colonel.

ISRAEL GILMAN, Lt. Col.

NATHAN HALE, Major.

Camp, October 18, 1775.

Vacancies in Colonel POOR's Regiment.

Return of those recommended for commissions in Colonel Poor's Regiment:

Ensign Thomas Lyford to a Lieutenantcy in Captain Tilton's Company; vacated September 20th. Joseph Huntoon to be Ensign in said Company, vacated August 27th.

Lieutenant Thomas Leavitt to succeed the late Captain

Elkins, discharged August 20th. Ensign Nath'l Thwing to succeed Lieutenant Leavitt, and James Wedgewood to succeed Ensign Brown, of said Company, discharged September 20th.

William Rowell to be Ensign in Captain Clough's Company, to succeed Ensign Lyford, vacated September 20th.

Richard Weare to be Ensign in Captain Rowe's Company, commission vacated September 3d.

Enoch Chase to be Ensign in Captain Titcomb's Company, commission vacated September 1st.

Thomas Chandler to succeed Ensign Thwing, in Captain Shortridge's Company, vacated August 20th.

ENOCH POOR.

A Return of Vacancies in Colonel STARK's Regiment.

In Captain Reed's Company Lieutenantcy vacant; Ensign James Anderson recommended to said vacancy, and Robert Barnet for an Ensign in said Company.

Ensign vacant in Captain Kinsman's Company; Samuel Bradford recommended to said vacancy.

Ensign vacant in Capt. Abbott's Company; Abiel Chandler recommended to be commissioned as Ensign in said Company, from the first establishment of the Regiment.

JOHN STARK, Colonel.

Camp on Winter-Hill, October 18, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF ABINGDON.

Address of the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Burgesses of the Borough of Abingdon, in the County of Berks, presented to His Majesty by John Mayor, Esq., High Sheriff of Berkshire, and Representative in Parliament for the said Borough, and John Morton, Esq., Recorder of the said Borough.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Burgesses of the Borough of Abingdon, in Common Council assembled, truly sensible of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and auspicious Government, beg leave at this important juncture to present to your Majesty the strongest assurances of our faithful and zealous attachment to your royal person, to the supreme Legislature of Great Britain, and our excellent Constitution, in Church and State; and that we will, to the utmost of our abilities, assist in supporting them.

We cannot but lament the misery and abhor the conduct of many of our fellow-subjects in America, influenced and deluded by the artful designs of seditious and factious men, both at home and abroad, who, under the specious pretext of preserving the liberty of the people, are aiming at a total subversion of Government, and the confounding of all order and decency, and whose machinations have plunged those unhappy people into open rebellion against your Majesty's crown and the laws of the realm.

We therefore most ardently wish such success may attend those measures which your Majesty, in your wisdom and the firmness of your Parliament, shall adopt at this crisis, as may speedily reduce your rebellious subjects to a just sense of their duty and allegiance; and that the indubitable authority of the British Legislature may be equally acknowledged and permanently established in every part of your Majesty's Dominions.

Given under our common seal, this 19th day of October, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF ABERDEEN.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the City of Aberdeen, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the City of ABERDEEN.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of Aberdeen, beg leave to approach the throne, and to assure your Majesty that we are most warmly and loyally attached to your person, family, and Government; that we contemplate with the highest veneration your many royal virtues; that we entertain a most grateful sense of the blessings we derive from your administration; and that we yield to none of our fellow-subjects in zeal for the laws, liberties, and Constitution of Great Britain.

Satisfied as we are that the honour and safety of these your Kingdoms, and of every part of this great Empire, depend on a due subordination of the whole to the supreme legislative authority of Great Britain, constitutionally vested in your Majesty and the two Houses of Parliament, we are filled with astonishment and horror to see a most audacious spirit of opposition to that supreme authority prevail among so many of our fellow-subjects in America.

When we consider this unprovoked and unnatural rebellion as the effect of blind rage in a deluded multitude, seduced to their ruin by the falsehoods and sophistries of designing and desperate men, we cannot but pity their infatuation, and lament its consequences. But we should belie our own hearts, and be wanting in duty to our fellow-subjects, as well as to the best of Sovereigns, if we did not declare, before the world, that we hold all such traitorous proceedings, and all their abettors, in utter abomination; that we do most heartily approve of those measures which your Majesty has been pleased to take for vindicating the authority of the laws, the honour of your crown, and the rights of your people; and that, reposing with full confidence on your royal wisdom and paternal care, we hope and earnestly pray that the steady prosecution of the same vigorous measures may soon restore peace to America, and diffuse prosperity and gladness through every part of the British Dominions.

As we know that your Majesty has nothing so much at heart as the good of your subjects, and as nothing could make us so happy as to be instrumental in communicating any degree of pleasure to the father of his Country, we beg leave to inform your Majesty that turbulence and sedition are crimes unknown to this City and Province; that our trade and manufactures are flourishing; and that our people are industrious, peaceable, and loyal.

It is our daily and earnest prayer, that the Divine Providence may bless your Majesty with length of days, and with all imaginable felicity, both here and hereafter; and that your descendants, ever ambitious to imitate your illustrious example, may sway the British sceptre to the latest generations.

Signed in name, in presence, and by appointment of the Magistrates and Town Council of Aberdeen, in Council convened, at Aberdeen, the nineteenth day of October, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

ADAM DUFF, Provost.

ADDRESS OF THE BURGH OF AYR.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of Ayr, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Sir George Macartney, Knight of the Bath, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of your ancient Royal Burgh of AYR, in Common Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, beg leave unanimously to express our sentiments of gratitude for the many blessings we have enjoyed under your mild Government, ever since your happy accession to the throne.

Being thus sensible of our own happiness, it is with horror and detestation that we behold the standard of Rebellion erected in so many of your American Provinces, and an unnatural war carried on by your subjects there, against their lawful Sovereign and Mother Country, after the greatest marks of lenity and condescension have been shown to them, by your Majesty and the Parliament of Great Britain.

We sincerely lament the present situation of these unhappy and deluded people, who, instead of enjoying liberty, law, justice, and property, as formerly, are now governed by the mob and rabble, headed by mad enthusiasts and desperate Republicans.

We beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we, and the inhabitants of this Burgh, whom we represent, are ready to support, with our lives and fortunes, all such measures as shall be judged necessary, by your Majesty and Parliament, to put a speedy end to this unnatural rebellion, and to disappoint the seditious practices of a discontented faction at home, who appear to us to have greatly encouraged and instigated the rebellion of the Americans.

That Almighty God may bless your Majesty's councils, give success to your arms; that a speedy peace and reconciliation may take place among all your subjects, and the further effusion of human blood be prevented; that you may have a long and prosperous reign, over a free and happy people—is our sincere prayer.

Signed in name and by appointment of the Magistrates and Town Council of the Burgh of Ayr, in Common Council assembled, this nineteenth day of October, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

JAMES HUTCHISON, Provost.

ADDRESS OF THE FREEHOLDERS OF THE COUNTY OF LINLITHGOW.

Address of the Noblemen, Gentlemen, Freeholders, and others, of the County of Linlithgow, presented to His Majesty by Sir William Augustus Cuninghame, Baronet, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the County of Linlithgow.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Noblemen, Gentlemen, Freeholders, and others, of the County of Linlithgow, most humbly beg leave to lament the unhappy disturbances occasioned by the Rebellion raised by some of your Majesty's subjects in America; to declare our detestation and abhorrence of these and all other attempts against your Government; our entire confidence in such measures as to your Majesty's wisdom, and that of your Parliament, shall appear most prudent to quell the insurgents, restore peace to your dominions, and to maintain the necessary constitutional dependance of all your Colonies on the Mother Country; and that we are ready cheerfully to contribute all in our power to these desirable ends.

Permit us to assure your Majesty of our inviolable attachment to your sacred person, family, and Government, and to offer our prayers for the long continuance of your auspicious reign, under which, by the blessing of Divine Providence, we enjoy every advantage derivable from our happy Constitution.

In presence and by appointment of the meeting.

Linlithgow, October 19, 1775.

ROSEBURY.

VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Williamsburgh, October 19, 1775.

As the circumstances of the present times make it prudent to guard against the consequence of intelligence to the enemies of America, by means of certain evil disposed persons, who may travel through the Country for that purpose, the Committee of Safety do therefore earnestly recommend it to all Magistrates and other officers, civil and military, the members of the several Committees, and all others within this Colony, to be vigilant in examining all strangers and suspected persons whom they may find passing, and to stop such as do not give a proper account of their journey and employment.

As Saltpetre is an article much wanted in America, the Committee of Safety earnestly recommend it to the planters of tobacco in this Colony to cut down and preserve all their tobacco suckers; and also to preserve the trash, stalks, and sweepings of their tobacco houses, which are found to be exceedingly useful in the production of that necessary article.

By order of the Committee;

JOHN PENDLETON, JUN., Clerk.

TO THE INHABITANTS OF VIRGINIA.

Williamsburgh, October 19, 1775.

How long will loyalty to your Sovereign, how long will your attachment to a form of Government once happily administered, how long will that moderation which has ever characterized you, prevail on you to keep the sword unsheathed, to stifle those noble sentiments of resentment which must so torture the breasts of injured innocence? On other occasions such principles might do you immortal honour; but as circumstances change our notions of things, in what light must we view them when we consider the late answer* of a blood-thirsty King to the only men in Britain who have honesty and spirit enough to tell him they are friends to the liberties of mankind, and will endeavour to protect them from all tyrannick invasions? It must now be shamefully notorious to the whole world, that he was the infernal author, and has all along been (though a secret yet) the most strenuous supporter of all those diabolical measures which have been adopted and pursued against America.

But though scenes of villany, with respect to America, have been perpetrated on the other side the Atlantic, which seem to have tortured the invention of hell itself, yet, if ye can bear the shock, I will beg leave to call your attention nearer home, and bid you behold your native land contaminated with those of a far deeper dye: for there is a monster of impiety still suffered to exist among us, and furnish the world with a new catalogue of crimes, to which all ages, all nations, have hitherto been strangers, and which could have been suggested to him by none but some being more pernicious and exuberant in evil than old Satan himself. He was set over a free, a virtuous people, to protect, to be the sacred guardian of their liberties and laws; to diffuse on all, though it were but with reflected lustre, the benign rays of sovereign mercy. So long as ye thought he even wished (for to accomplish he was by nature incapable) to promote these laudable ends, ye granted him every indulgence, ye showed him every mark of respect that the best, the most virtuous Governour could have desired; even the small share of merit which ye thought could possibly be due to any part of his conduct, was ever, with the sincerest gratitude, placed in the most conspicuous point of view.

But to trace him through all the dark mazes of his unparalleled perfidy, cruelty, and tyrannick exertions, would prove a painful task, both to him who should write, and to him who should think proper to read the black detail; would put vice itself to the blush, shock even inhumanity, and make oppression stare. It must suffice, therefore, to touch only on a few circumstances; but each of them is of such a nature as ought ere this to have sounded the trumpet of vengeance through the whole land. I will say nothing of the robbery of the publick magazine, which, it was foolishly hoped, would at once so disarm and terrify the inhabitants as to bring them tamely to submit to every act of lawless power; but, happily for us, it had quite a different effect. How would his guilty fears have been multiplied had he have known of the six hundred armed men assembled at Fredericksburgh, with determined resolutions to get satisfaction, even though it should be at the expense, of a Lord's head? How would his mean dastardly soul, have shrunk within its native contracted sphere at the sight of numbers of those brave men whom he flattered himself he had, in his late campaign, so inviolably attached to his interest? Fool that he was, to suppose that men who had so bravely fought and bled for their Country could so soon be induced, by any tool of despotism, to endeavour to overturn its liberties. But that their noble resolutions were not put into execution, he may confess himself under eternal obligations to the influence of some of our leading men, who, though with the utmost difficulty, did at length prevail with them, after holding a council of war, composed of their officers and the most respectable of their body, to disperse and return, with disappointment and dissatisfaction, to their respective homes. Neither will I trouble you with a relation of that black, cowardly, and bloody affair, of the spring guns in the magazine; neither will I molest you with a tedious detail of those base scenes of falsehood, equivocation, dissimulation, and villany, which he acted during the last sessions of Assembly, and which so strikingly evince the distinguished turpitude of his heart. As to his piratick expeditions up and down our rivers, in quest of hen-roosts, sheep-folds, cow-pens, and negro-quarters, which he never omitted an opportunity of pillaging, they are of too trifling a nature to engage your attention; for here he only condescended to imitate the more pardonable crimes of those who are but novices in the arts of vice when compared with himself. Nor will I tire out your patience with an enumeration of the gross insults he has offered in particular to individuals, and to the Town of Norfolk, and, in general, to the whole Colony; the bare mention of any one of which ought to be sufficient to stimulate the most inactive to revenge. But how will your breasts glow with just resentment, and honest indignation, when I tell you he has dared to offer violence to the chastity of a poor innocent girl? This unhappy victim to his lawless lust, whose beauty had stricken him, was by him, or by some of his minions, torn from the poor-house in Norfolk, from the few friends which poverty could procure her, carried on board his ship, and forced to become an instrument of pleasure to him who had degraded himself far beneath the most grovelling of the brute creation. There, we are told, she was kept, and in that capacity, till that notorious pander of his brutal passions, by the prostitution of his own offspring, supplied him with more charming objects; for on their arrival this unhappy girl was dismissed, and thrown upon the world, robbed of all she held most dear, of all on which she relied for a future reputable subsistence. Ye inhabitants of Norfolk! Why were ye passive here? Why suffer such an outrage to go unpunished? Could none be found among you animated with the noble spirit of old Virginius? Or would none dare to stand forth the avenger of injured, of ravished virtue? Such an act, whatever had been the consequence, would have been supported by the whole Colony; nay, by the whole Continent, and would have entailed on its authors eternal applause.

To let the sword, therefore, remain a moment longer within the scabbard, will be criminal. What! Shall the sons of Virginia be idle spectators, while one of her daughters is ravished, and while others are, by that diabolical pander, prostituted with such unnatural, such unheard-of infamy? No! Give vent, then, to every sentiment of revenge; let it, like the obstructed torrent, burst forth with gathered fury; let it sweep off, and bury in eternal oblivion, that more than Tartarian monster of impiety, that infamous pander, and his prostituted race, that posterity may not know that there ever was an age when humanity was so far debased, and that the future daughters of Virginia may never blush to hear that there was a time when one of their sisters could so shamefully depart from the amiable characteristic applied to the fair sex in general, but more particularly to them.

Let it involve also, in the same deserved fate, those insolent minions of his who act under the auspices of his all-malevolent countenance. The insults they, without any provocation under heaven, offer to every person who passes within their reach, are insufferable. Neither had they been thus long borne, had not the people been left in uncertainty how to act, by seeing that laudable spirit which was but a few months ago bursting forth against the first strides of tyranny and lawless power, checked by those whom they thought more capable of consulting for the common good than themselves. They indeed acted from the best, the noblest principles; but it is the inevitable frailty of human nature sometimes to be deceived in its conjectures of the future, even where the consequences are most carefully drawn from, and tried by the present and the past, the surest criteria within the reach of humanity.

I know the heart of every Virginian glows with secret resentment when he reflects that there is not a peaceable passenger secure from the search and insults of the insignificant Captains of a few armed vessels, who now pretend to lord it over us; but each waits for his neighbour to strike the first blow. The destruction of them must cost the lives of a few; but when all are, to a man, prepared to risk them in the noble cause in which we are engaged, why are we backward? Perhaps, too, it may cost either the partial or total destruction of one of our sea-port Towns ; but the inhabitants of it are ready to see it sacrificed when the general good requires it. They are conscious of the importance of a noble and spirited stand. They also, as well as every true friend to America, must be conscious, that it is not for the accumulation of wealth, nor even for the preservation of more of that which we already possess, than is consistent with the good of the whole, that we are struggling. But if we can retain only a small share of our property, secure our future safety, and maintain our liberties inviolate, we shall think ourselves rich, fortunate, and happy indeed. Let me again tell you, that any further delay is dangerous, is criminal. Behold how they are fortifying and strengthening themselves in their own abominable wickedness ! While we can, with the loss of the lives of but few of our countrymen, and with the destruction of only part of the property of a few others, let us sacrifice the whole infernal crew to the guardian deities of American liberty, and to those of Virginian chastity. Their sacred rights have of late been so horribly profaned, so daringly violated, that they require some propitiatory sacrifice to be immediately made.

* To the Address of the Lord Mayor, &amp;c., of the City of London.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WOOSTER.

Philadelphia, October 19, 1775.

SIR: General Schuyler, having by letter informed the Congress, that he believed he should have no occasion to employ the troops under your command, I am desired by the Congress to direct that you immediately proceed, with the troops under your command, to the batteries erecting on the Highlands on North River, and there leave as many of your troops as, in the opinion of the conductor, will be necessary for expediting the completion of the works there ; and that you repair with the remainder of the troops to New-York, and there continue until further orders from the Congress. But in case you should have any orders from General Schuyler previous to the receipt of this, to join the Army under his command, or in any way to be aiding to his expedition, you are wholly to conform yourself to his directions, the above orders of Congress notwithstanding. I am, &c.,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To Brigadier-General Wooster, at Albany.

COMMITTEE OF CONTINENTAL CONGRESS TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

[Circular.]

Philadelphia, October 19, 1775.

SIR: The Continental Congress having been pleased to appoint us a Committee for collecting an account of the hostilities committed by the Ministerial Troops and Navy in America, since last March, with proper evidence of the truth of the facts related, the number and value of the buildings destroyed, and of the vessels inward and outward bound seized by them, as nearly as can be ascertained, and, also, the stock taken by them from different parts of the Continent, as you may see by the enclosed resolve, we entreat the assistance of your Convention, that we may be enabled to perform what is required of us, and to report our proceedings in the manner and with the expedition the Congress expects ; and, to that end, that you will be pleased to furnish us with the necessary materials, sending to us clear, distinct, full, and circumstantial details of the hostile and destructive acts, and the captures or seizures, and depredations in your Colony, and accurate estimates of the loss and damage, with the solemn examinations of witnesses, and other papers and documents, officially authenticated.

We are, Sir, your obedient, humble servants,

SILAS DEANE,
JOHN ADAMS,
GEORGE WYTHE.

ALLEGIANCE TO CROWNED HEADS UPON THE BRITISH THRONE.

New-York, October 19, 1775.

The word Allegiance is derived from the Latin verb alligo, or alligare, which signifies the binding of one thing or person to another : when it is spoken of a subject with relation to his Sovereign, it means the obligation the former is under to submit to and obey the latter in all things lawful ; so that it is the legal faith and obedience which every subject owes to his Sovereign, immediately upon his being placed upon the throne, with the royal crown upon his head, accompanied with his coronation oath.

Sovereign rulers, seated upon the throne of Great Britain, are bound by their coronation oath to govern the realm according to the fundamental laws of the State, contained in Magna Charta, which is the basis of all the English laws and liberties that can be justified ; which laws the subject is under indispensable obligations to obey, so soon as he sustains the relation of a subject to his Sovereign. But the obligation is very much confirmed by his taking the oath of allegiance. For he promises and solemnly swears, that he will be faithful and bear true allegiance to his Sovereign upon the throne, governing according to the fundamental laws of the Kingdom.

This oath of allegiance, taken by the subject to the Sovereign, may be considered as the counterpart of the coronation oath, taken by the Sovereign to the subject ; and both together constitute the nature of a covenant between Prince and people ; for as the King or Queen is bound by oath to govern the people according to the fundamental laws of Magna Charta, so the people are bound by the oath of allegiance to obey all the laws of the Administration that are conformable to that great charter.

But if the British Legislature enact laws subversive of the fundamental Constitution—laws that stretch the prerogative beyond its limited bounds, and violate the liberties of the subject, the Sovereign adding his sanction to them, and thereby violating his coronation oath ; the people in such case are absolved, ipso facto, from their obligations of obedience to the King. So far, in this case, is it from being a virtue and matter of duty for the people tamely to surrender their natural and constitutional rights and privileges, that it is their duty to insist upon them, and not submit to the cruel arm of despotism.

Every measure, indeed, expressive of suitable deference to crowned heads, should be taken, by petitions, remonstrances, and addresses to the Throne. But if all these are rejected and prove ineffectual, the subject has a right to defend his liberties by resistance, even unto blood, in case the Administration endeavour to carry their unconstitutional acts of despotism into execution by the sword. The law of God, the law of nature, and the gospel of Jesus Christ, will justify them in so doing.

But may we rebel against the King ? Is he not “ the Lord’s anointed ? ” No ! the King of England is not “ the Lord’s anointed,” in the sense that Saul, David, and other Kings of Israel were, who were made Kings by the special appointment and nomination of God himself.

The Government of the Jews, before God gave them a King, was theocratical. God himself was their King and their lawgiver, as an absolute Sovereign. And when the form of their Government was changed, he pointed out their Kings, who by divine direction were solemnly anointed with oil. God retaining his legislative superintendency, as supreme monarch, their Kings had only the administration of Government committed to their trust ; in which they were under indispensable obligations to be observant of his laws, in every step of their administration.

But we have no such Kings in England, nor ever had. Not one of them ever was pointed out by God, in that extraordinary way, nor anointed as those Kings of Israel were. Our Kings are made so by compact, as is apparent in the coronation oath and oath of allegiance. The rule of the Administration is the law, or laws made by the Lords and Commons, agreeable to Magna Charta ; and the King is as much bound by that Constitution as the subject.

Therefore, if the King gives his sanction to acts of Parliament, subversive of that grand charter by which he holds his crown, and endeavours to carry them into execution by force of arms, the people have a right to repel force by force, in vindication of their lives, their rights and privileges. And if they do, it cannot with any propriety be called rebellion ; for rebellion is a traitorous taking up of arms against the King, in the regular discharge of his important trust, as King of Great Britain, &c.

But when the King of Great Britain violates the Constitution, by such mal-administration as has been specified, he unking himself, and is liable to be deposed: Nay, he in a sense deposes himself. The person remains, but the constitutional King of Great Britain no longer exists in him. Nor can he be recovered from that degradation, that moral and political death, without reversing, annulling, and repealing those unconstitutional acts which he has ratified, and recalling the fleets and armies of those raparees, those bloody banditti he has sent forth to carry them into execution.

Can it, with any propriety, be called rebellion to fight against such robbers, such murderers, who came with an unjustifiable commission to rob, plunder, and destroy, contrary to the letter, spirit, and genius of the British Constitution? May it not rather be said, that they fight and rebel against the King, inasmuch as they rebel against the Constitution that made him King; and so fight against the King, though they fight for his person? And are not all those Ministers and lawmakers traitors to the King, who have led him into these destructive snares? And yet the King himself cannot be excused.

It would be vain to say, he did not make those unconstitutional acts, but the Lords and Commons in Parliament assembled. For he ratified them, and passed them into laws, when he might and could have negatived them. His approbation passed them into laws, to enslave or murder his subjects. And he, having the power of making war as well as peace, sent his hostile fleets and armies to enslave or destroy his American Colonies, when he might have withheld them, and ought so to have done. Nor can he any more be deemed the lawful King of Great Britain, until he repeals those cruel acts, and causes the bloody war to cease which they have commenced. No King, unless it be a constitutional King, can subsist under the English Constitution.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WOOSTER.

Ticonderoga, October 19, 1775.

SIR: The Continental Congress having taken the six first Regiments, raised this year in the Colony of Connecticut, (of which yours is one,) into the pay and service of the associated Colonies, at the earnest request of the honourable Delegates representing the Colony of Connecticut, and you having in a variety of instances obeyed the orders of Congress, who have conferred on you the rank of Brigadier-General in the Army of the associated Colonies, I was taught to believe you considered yourself as such, both from what I have above observed, and from your declarations to me yesterday; but I am just now informed, that you have called a General Court-Martial, at Fort George, in your way up here—a conduct which I cannot account for, unless you consider yourself my superior; and that cannot be in virtue of your appointment by Congress, by which you are a younger Brigadier-General than Mr. Montgomery; and unless you consider yourself as such, I cannot, consistent with the duty I owe the publick, permit you to join that part of the Army now under Brigadier-General Montgomery's command, lest a confusion and disagreement should arise that might prove fatal to our operations in Canada. You will, therefore, Sir, please to give me your explicit answer to this question: whether you consider yourself and your Regiment in the service of the associated Colonies, and yourself a younger Brigadier-General in that service than Mr. Montgomery or not, that no misapprehensions or misrepresentations may hereafter arise.

I am, Sir, with much respect, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To General Wooster.

GENERAL WOOSTER TO MAJOR-GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Ticonderoga, October 19, 1775.

SIR: In answer to your favour of this day, give me leave to acquaint you, that immediately upon my receiving the Continental articles of war, I gave them out to the different Captains and commanders of Companies in my Regiment, but they universally declined signing them; of consequence, in the discipline of the troops under my command, I was obliged to continue in the use of the law martial of Connecticut, under which they were raised, which I certainly had a right to do, by virtue of my commission from that Colony. Upon the same principle, I ordered a General Court-Martial at Fort George, which, whether right or not, was never designed in the least to contradict or counteract your authority as Commander-in-Chief of the troops upon this department.

With regard to the other question, my appointment in the Continental Army, you are sensible could not be very agreeable to me, notwithstanding which, I never should have continued in the service, had I not determined to observe the rules of the Army. No, Sir; I have the cause of my Country too much at heart to attempt to make any difficulty or uneasiness in the Army, upon whom the success of an enterprise of almost infinite importance to the Country is now depending. I shall consider my rank in the Army what my commission from the Continental Congress makes it, and shall not attempt to dispute the command with General Montgomery at St. John's. As to my Regiment, I consider them as what they really are, according to the tenor of their enlistments, and compact with the Colony of Connecticut, by whom they were raised, and now acting in conjunction with the troops of the other Colonies in the service, and for the defence of the associated Colonies in general. You may depend, Sir, that I shall exert myself as much as possible to promote the strictest union and harmony among both officers and soldiers in the Army, and use every means in my power to give success to the expedition.

I am, Sir, with much respect, your most obedient servant,

DAVID WOOSTER.

To Major-General Schuyler.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Ticonderoga, October 19, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I am indebted to you in a thousand thanks for your polite letter which Mr. Caldwell was so good as to deliver me this day. The utmost of my ambition is to approve myself a good citizen—an important and comprehensive epithet. You will pardon me if I refer you to my publick letters for an account of our operations: nothing as yet that is decisive. The intelligence which I have received from Congress, respecting the Ministerial designs on Hudson River, gives me much uneasiness, as I think it must to every friend to America acquainted with the geography of that part of the Country; but a timely attention, and a vigorous execution of any plan that may be formed to guard against the evil, may frustrate the designs of the Ministry. Were I in Congress, and capable of conveying my ideas with propriety, I should speak for hours on the subject, in order to impress gentlemen, were it needful with gentlemen, of the necessity of taking this matter in hand without delay. My good wishes attend you through life.

I am, dear Sir, most sincerely, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To Richard Henry Lee, Esq.

New-York, October 19, 1775.

We hear from Rhode-Island that Colonel Esek Hopkins, a brave and experienced officer, is arrived there, at the Town of Bristol, with seven hundred men, sent by General Washington in order to protect the inhabitants from the piratical incursions of a Captain Wallace and other freebooters, acting under the pretended authority of a set of traitors aiming to establish a tyrannical Government on the ruins of the English Constitution.

This pirate, Wallace, having presumed in a cowardly dependance on his lawless force to demand the property of the inhabitants, and, like other robbers, threatening them with destruction in case of refusal, which threat he enforced by murderously and treasonably firing a number of shot against the Town of Bristol, the inhabitants of which sent on board the said pirate a Committee to expostulate with him on the baseness and villany of his conduct. In his vindication he showed them the orders of the more atrocious and bloody traitors under whose authority he acted, by which he was directed to fire upon, murder and destroy every Town or City where there should be the least appearance of men in arms in order to defend their rights and liberties; and he told them that in case there should be the appearance of men in arms in opposition to his illegal demands, he should certainly fire upon them. After he had by threats extorted from and robbed the inhabitants of as much of their property as they were, on such a sudden demand, able to produce, Colonel Hopkins and his forces arrived, and on being told Wallace's menace of firing upon the Town in case of the appearance in it of men in arms, he let the people know his orders from the General, which were, at all events to prevent the pirates from landing or receiving supplies from the shore; and that instead of being intimidated from defending their property by fear of the Town being fired upon, they might be assured he would destroy the Town, rather than the pirates should land in or draw supplies or advantage from it.

It is probable this measure will be adopted with respect to all the sea-port Towns in America; so that no more of them will experience the fate of Boston, where many thousands, relying on the faith of an inhuman villain, have long been starving to death by inches under every circumstance of distress, and many more thousands have been cozened or plundered of their property—but vengeance will soon overtake the wretches who have been actors in this horrid tragedy.

COL. JOSEPH REED TO CAPT. NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

Head-Quarters, October 19, 1775.

SIR: Besides the other two brigs mentioned in your former instructions, we have advice that another brig, laden with arms and ammunition, sails the latter end of August for Quebeck, under convoy of the Lizard man-of-war of twenty-eight guns, so that you will be careful how you expose yourself to the risk of falling into their hands. You may reasonably conclude, if you see a brig under convoy of a ship, that it is the abovementioned, and take care accordingly. Capt. Reed, of Philadelphia, sails in company with the two former, and it may be depended upon that they are under no convoy, and are of no force.

I am, Sir, yours, &c., J. REED.
To Captain Nicholson Broughton.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO STEPHEN MOYLAN.

Head-Quarters, October 19, 1775.

SIR: Your favours per express and for Mr. Wilson are received. The two hundred and sixty dollars were sent per express, as per receipt; but, to prevent any disappointment, the sum you mentioned is now again sent. You must make inquiry and endeavour to get the former sum, which has missed its way. Let two hundred barrels of flour be detained for the use of the vessels at Salem, to be put in the hands of the agent. There is nothing to be gained by sending teams from hence, so that you had better employ those of the country at the price you mention. A letter from you to the Committee of Ipswich, I fancy, will answer all your purpose. We really have no time this morning.

We have no news from St. John's to be depended on. For God's sake, hurry off the vessels that are to cruise—transports without convoy arrive every day at Boston. The Philadelphia delegates are in camp. Your friend Mr. Lynch will be glad to see you. We must take another opportunity to write Mr. Wentworth. I will do what I can for Wilson, who, I think, has merit.

Yours, &c., J. REED.
To Stephen Moylan, Esq.

P. S. Please to deliver the enclosed letters for Selman and Broughton to themselves.

STEPHEN MOYLAN AND JOHN GLOVER TO COL. JOS. REED.
Salem, October 19, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Mr. Moylan received your letter of this day, with the money he had received at Portsmouth, two hundred and sixty dollars, the evening of the day he last wrote you. This serves to acquaint his Excellency that Captain Broughton and Captain Selman will both be ready to sail to-morrow. The latter is in want of a Surgeon, which you will please to have despatched, as we believe it will be difficult to prevail on the Captain and crew to go without one. Enclosed is a letter from Capt. Bond to a gentleman of that profession, who is willing to go on board. We shall deliver the letters you enclosed to Mr. Moylan to each Captain, on their departure. The whole of the orders Col. Glover left with Colonel Burbank have not been complied with, particularly the musket cartridges, flints, the musket balls and buck-shot, for which Captain Glover sent off an express last evening. Do, Sir, forward the Surgeon, and those articles which may give work to surgeons, immediately. Mr. Moylan has the pleasure to inform his Excellency that the flour is all safe arrived, and we have the pleasure to assure you of our best regards.

STEPHEN MOYLAN,
JOHN GLOVER.
To Colonel Joseph Reed.

EPHRAIM BOWEN TO COLONEL JOSEPH REED.

Plymouth, October 19, 1775.

ESTEEMED SIR: Yours per Captain Martindale I received last evening, and have consulted with him about the guns, and conclude that they are large enough for the schooner. Shall get them on board to-morrow morning. You mentioned nothing about the swivels to make up the complement of ten, as I wrote you there were seven here. Should be glad to know your pleasure concerning the remainder, nor whether it would be agreeable to have one or both of the cohorns. Mr. William Watson, one of the Committee, tells me that the powder may be had here for this schooner of Adams's, as they have one thousand weight in this Town, but advises that the General would give a line to the Committee thereon, to ease the minds of the people. As that quantity is a large proportion for this Town, I doubt not the General will order it here. I have therefore sent no formers; only desire that you would send paper for the cartridges, as there is no paper to be had here. The schooner will be complete for sea by Saturday night, so that if the men are here, every thing can be made ready save the cartridges, which can be made in a few hours. Captain Adams accepts the birth of master, and expects the same terms as other masters at Salem, &c.

I have, with Captain Martindale, this day examined the schooner of Wormwell's, and find her to answer. Captain Watson says three-fourths of her are in the hands of the Commissary, and expects the same terms as others for her. Shall proceed to-morrow in fitting her with all possible speed. Captain Martindale says he is to have twelve carriage guns and sixteen or twenty swivels. Should be glad to know in what manner it is concluded to fit this vessel, that I may be governed about the cannon at Bristol. I have no friends in Providence or Bristol who can reap any advantage in this business through my means, and be assured that I would not lose one moment's time to the detriment of the cause in which I am engaged. Captain Martindale says he should not desire so large a number of cannon, but finds the vessel to be able to carry them, and doubts not of giving a good account of them. I have sent Mr. Harlow, the bearer, on purpose with this letter, as I found the vessel would be ready as soon as the people could possibly be here. You'll please to satisfy him for his time. The horse he rides is the one I rode, in lieu of which I beg you will order a better, as it will be impossible to make that despatch to Bristol which will be requisite with him.

Since writing the above, Capt. Wormwell has been here, and says he will not let his part of the vessel under six shillings, sterling money; and as Adams says he is to have but five shillings four pence, am afraid it will cause some uneasiness if Wormwell has more. Should therefore beg your opinion in this case; therefore, shall do nothing towards fitting her till I know it.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,
To Colonel Joseph Reed. E. BOWEN.

COLONEL HUNTINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Roxbury Camp, October 19, 1775.

HONoured SIR: His Excellency General Washington has discharged, at their desire, three of the officers of my Regiment—Lieutenant Tirrell, of Ripley's Company; Ensign Markham, of Ellsworth's; and Ensign Stoughton, of Humphrey's—and I have promoted Lieutenant Hillyer, of Humphrey's, to the Adjutancy, which makes four vacancies in the whole. The principal officers of the Regiment have desired me to recommend them to be filled up in the following manner, in case blank commissions are not sent to me. I believe the disposition will be generally agreeable, and for the service of the Regiment. Ensign Abraham Wright, of Major's Company, to be Second Lieutenant in the Fourth Company, (Humphrey's), vice Lieutenant Hillyer; Sergeant Jonathan Humphrey, Jun., of the Fourth, to be Ensign, vice Ensign Wright; Ensign Nathaniel Bingham, of Lieutenant-Colonel Douglass's Company, to be Second Lieutenant of Ripley's, (which is the Tenth,) vice Lieutenant Chamberlain, to be promoted to the First Lieutenantcy, vice Lieutenant Tirrell; Sergeant John Kinsman, of Colonel Douglass's, to be Ensign, vice Ensign Bingham; Sergeant Solomon Makepeace, of the Fifth Company, (that is, Ellsworth's), to be Ensign, vice Ensign Markham.

We have many fears concerning the Commissary General of our Army, who we just hear is dangerously sick at your house. The universal satisfaction he has given in his station, and in private life, fills every one with much anxiety for his recovery.

The night before last, one of our floating batteries was much damaged by the bursting of a cannon—two men killed, and several wounded. We had three fine floating batteries, two in Cambridge and one in Mistick River—two of them remain good yet—and about twenty flat-bottomed boats, that will carry near one hundred men each, besides a number of whale boats. What is to be done with them I know not.

Our enemies continue their defensive operations; they have taken down the buildings not far from the Haymarket, south end of Boston, and made an opening from water to water, and are busily raising batteries.

All the articles of news from the other side of the water are full of threats. All appearances of a reconciliation between this Country and Great Britain, commonly though erroneously called the Mother Country, are vanished out of sight. The breach is daily widening. I begin to think the golden age of New-England is passed; that she will enjoy no more of her good days, such as she has seen, till the time comes when there will be none to hurt or destroy in all the holy mountain.

With most dutiful respects, I remain your affectionate son,

JEDEDIAH HUNTINGTON.

Honourable Governour Trumbull.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF WORCESTER.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens of the City of Worcester, in Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by John Walsh and Thomas Bates Rous, Esquires, their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens of the City of Worcester, in Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, the Mayor, Aldermen, and Citizens of your ancient and loyal City of Worcester, humbly beg leave to approach your throne, with hearts full of zeal to your Majesty's person and Government, truly sensible of the great benefits we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and auspicious reign.

At the same time, we think it our duty to express our abhorrence of those seditious principles which, under the mask of patriotism, have been industriously propagated by artful and evil designing men, through all ranks of your Majesty's subjects in these Kingdoms, and have excited a most atrocious and unnatural rebellion in many of your American Colonies, which we implore your Majesty to suppress by an exertion of the powers with which you are invested; entirely relying on your Majesty's wisdom and paternal care for such terms of concession, from the deluded Colonists, as shall be consistent with the honour of the crown, the support of commerce, and the welfare of the British Empire.

And here we beg leave to inform your Majesty, that, notwithstanding the cessation of our trade to America, we find the principal manufacture of this City still continues in a flourishing state; but whatever interruptions our trade may for a time receive we shall cheerfully submit to, firmly persuaded that publick happiness can never be secured till the legislative authority is acknowledged by all your Majesty's subjects, in its fullest extent.

We solemnly assure your Majesty, that we are ready to sacrifice all that is dear to us in support of your Majesty's person and Government, and that we will at all times oppose with vigour every attempt to violate that Constitution which is the envy of other nations and the glory of our own.

Given under our common seal, this twentieth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

ADDRESS OF THE COUNTY OF STAFFORD.

Address of the County of Stafford, presented to His Majesty by Sir William Bagot and Sir John Wrottesley, Barons, their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

We, your Majesty's loyal and faithful subjects of the populous and commercial County of Stafford, humbly beg leave to express our just sense of your Majesty's paternal care for the welfare and prosperity of all your people, and to testify our great concern that your Majesty's auspicious reign should be disturbed by an ungrateful and unnatural rebellion in America, encouraged and abetted here by those who, under the specious veil of liberty, are sacrificing the blessings of order, of true freedom, and publick harmony, to factious views and gratifications, and who endeavour to unsettle the foundations that give unity and firmness to the whole, by restraining the legislative power of the British Parliament, and contesting its original and inherent authority, which must extend to every part of the British Empire.

Far from being actuated by vindictive principles, we sincerely wish to see peace and harmony restored to our fellow-subjects in America. But when we observe a presumptuous faction daring to address the electors of Great Britain at large, to countenance rebellion, and withhold every means that can enable your Majesty to quell it—at such a juncture, duty, gratitude, and regard for the whole community, call upon us to concur with the rest of your Majesty's loyal subjects, in offering our faithful services for the support of our excellent Constitution, and of your Majesty's mild and impartial Government, well assured that whatever we can offer and contribute will be directed by your Majesty's wisdom to the common good, of maintaining the dignity of the crown and of the estates of this realm, and of promoting the real interests of the subject, by the most salutary and effectual measures.

October 20, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF GLOUCESTER.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Common Council of the City of Gloucester, in Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by George Selwyn, Esq., one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Common Council of the City of Gloucester, in Council assembled, impressed with a grateful sense of the many and great blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and auspicious Government, beg leave to approach the throne, to testify our astonishment at and abhorrence of the unnatural rebellion which prevails amongst the deluded Colonies in America, and to assure your Majesty of our utmost assistance and support in maintaining the legislative authority of Great Britain over all your Dominions.

The paternal care and affection which your Majesty extends to all your subjects, and your unwearied endeavours for the support of their religious and civil liberties, give us the pleasing assurances that no efforts will be wanting to bring back the rebellious Americans to a just sense of their duty and allegiance, and to restore the blessings of peace, and establish it upon a firm and permanent foundation.

That your Majesty may triumph over all the enemies of our happy Constitution, and long continue to reign over a free and united people, is our sincere and ardent prayer.

Given under our common seal, the twentieth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, CLERGY, ETC., OF THE TOWN OF NOTTINGHAM.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Manufacturers, and principal Inhabitants of the Town of Nottingham, transmitted to the Earl of Rochford, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Manufacturers, and principal Inhabitants of the Town of NOTTINGHAM.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Truly sensible of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's Government, we humbly beg leave to approach the throne, to express our abhorrence of that spirit of faction and rebellion which has broken out, and still exists, in some of the Colonies in America. However their behaviour may be cloaked under the specious pretence of liberty, yet it is not difficult to discover that the term is only prostituted to the vilest and most unwarrantable purposes. The daring insults shown to your Majesty's person and Government, we have seen with a mixture of indignation and contempt, and could not help lamenting the licentiousness of the times, and the too fashionable mode, now adopted by many, of reproaching the most sacred characters. We feel the necessity your Majesty was under, in taking the part you did in this crisis of affairs in America, as it was impossible for your Majesty not to foresee, that unless Government be supported with firmness and fortitude, confusion and disorder must inevitably ensue.

Though we are sorry to give the most distant hint that any of the subjects in this Kingdom can have been disaffected to your Majesty, yet we cannot so far disguise our opinion as not to say that we believe, had not the flames of sedition been blown up by turbulent and dissatisfied minds, the disputes now subsisting between the Mother Country and her Colonies had long since been accommodated.

The association forming in the Metropolis is a confirmation of our opinion; but we have the satisfaction to hope that your Majesty's loyal subjects will convince these few mistaken men that their attempts to sow the seeds of discord amongst us will prove as impotent as they are wicked, and that their design will be too glaring to escape the notice, and their aim too detestable not to excite the honest indignation of the publick. In this situation, whom have we to look up unto but your Majesty, who is at once the guardian of the rights and the avenger of the injuries of our Country? It becomes, therefore, our duty to implore your Majesty's protection, and to offer you every assistance in our power.

As clemency and mercy are the criterion of a noble mind, it will be impossible for your Majesty not to exercise them, whenever proper concessions may be made from America; but till then, relying on the wisdom of your Majesty and your Council, we trust you will take such measures as may effectually bring back the Colonists to a sense of their duty, and at the same time convince them, that when the honour and dignity of the crown demand obedience, your Majesty will not bear the sword in vain.

October 20, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF NOTTINGHAM.

Address of the Mayor and Burgesses of the Town of Nottingham, presented by Lord Howe and Lord Edward Bentinck.

The humble Address of the Mayor and Burgesses of the Town of NOTTINGHAM, in Common Council assembled.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor and Burgesses of the Town of Nottingham, in Common Council assembled, beg leave to approach your royal presence with that submissive and grateful affection which is due to the illustrious descendant of the House of Hanover, and, with all humility, to supplicate the intervention of your Majesty's wisdom and power for averting those unusual calamities which hang over our Country, and which affect us with the deepest concern. In the present critical situation of these Kingdoms, it becomes Britons to drop every consideration but that of love to their Sovereign and their Country, and to unite as one man in their endeavours, by all lawful means, to stay those evils which threaten to involve the whole British community in one general distress. Impressed with this sentiment, permit us, Sire, to express our dread of the consequences of those Addresses, which, making a show of peculiar loyalty to your Majesty, and of distinguished zeal for the rights of the British Legislature, recommend an unyielding pursuit of measures, which, whether constitutional or not, if we may judge from present appearances, are perhaps as impracticable as they are ruinous. We would yield to none in a faithful attachment to your Majesty's sacred person and Government, or in a zealous concern for the permanence and dignity of our well-tempered Constitution. By these principles your Majesty's Corporation of Nottingham has ever been distinguished, and these principles would we transmit, as the most valuable inheritance, to posterity. We would meet the best subjects of your Majesty in all their loyalty and zeal, but at the same time check, if possible, that intemperate passion, which, for the sake of uncertain and ideal advantages, would hazard the dismembering of the British Empire, and the loss of those Provinces, to which the dignity of your Majesty's crown, and the prosperity, wealth, and power of these Kingdoms, have been so largely indebted, and on which the preservation from the ambitious attempts of rival nations may hereafter principally depend. We wish to see one presiding spirit actuate the whole British Empire. We wish to see a due subordination maintained through the whole to the authority of the British Legislature, nor would we be thought to countenance any claims that lead to independence; but we fear the hand of force will never answer the wishes of any friend to this Country. We dread even victory itself—every victory but that over the wills and affections of our American fellow-subjects, which arms and violence are but ill-fitted to produce, as any other victory can be but temporary and delusive, since the disunion of affections with America would rob us of the most valuable advantages of conquest, and no armed force which this Nation can spare, is, we apprehend, equal to the unwilling subjection of so wide a Dominion.

Permit us, gracious Sovereign, with all humility, to express our concern at seeing our gallant officers and soldiers, in whom the generous sense of duty and honour declines no danger, exposed in this unfortunate and unequal contest, and our regret that their courage is not reserved for a field in which, against the natural enemies of Britain, they might win honour to themselves and advantage to their Country; in particular we grieve to find absent, on such an errand, a descendant of that noble family, which, in every walk of glory, has equalled the Roman name, to whom we had intrusted our representation in Parliament, where, by his services to his Country and to America, he might have perpetuated that grateful remembrance which his brother had so gloriously acquired.

From this melancholy view, Sire, we would willingly turn our own eyes, nor presume to introduce to your Majesty, if we did not hope that so awful a scene might draw your royal attention, and induce to that relief which it is in your Majesty's power to bestow. Actuated no less by unfeigned affection to your royal person and Government, and to the true dignity and happiness of the Throne, than zeal for the welfare of our Country and of posterity, we have ventured to represent these truths in the serious and affecting light in which we view them. May our Address appear to your Majesty in its honest simplicity and integrity; may it contribute, with the requests of other your Majesty's faithful subjects, to call forth your paternal regard for your afflicted people.

The first object of our desires and wishes is the return of peace and cordial union with our American fellow-subjects; and to this end, most gracious Sovereign, we make it our humble and earnest request that your Majesty would suspend those hostilities, which, we fear, can have no other than a fatal issue, and, in your great wisdom and goodness, restore that better system of interchangeable interests and affections, of whose blessing no just calculation can be formed, and which a long experience has proved to be an ample foundation for every desirable advantage to this Country.

Given under our common seal, at the Guildhall of the Town of Nottingham, the 20th day of October, 1775.

ROBERT SEAGRAVE, Town Clerk.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE TOWN OF NOTTINGHAM.

Address of the Gentlemen, principal Manufacturers, and Inhabitants of the Town of Nottingham, presented by Lord Howe and Lord Edward Bentinck.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, principal Manufacturers, and Inhabitants of the Town of NOTTINGHAM.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

We, the Gentlemen, principal Manufacturers, and Inhabitants of the Town of Nottingham, beg leave, at this interesting period, to approach your royal presence in the character of your most loyal and affectionate subjects, whose attachment to the illustrious house of Hanover, and the Constitution of the British Empire, has been received by us as the sacred injunction of our parents, has been inviolably preserved, will be carried with us to our graves, and transmitted to our posterity. Devoted to these interests, we rejoice in every opportunity which invites a declaration of our principles; we would not yield in these noble sentiments to any subjects of your Majesty's Government, but, like them, be prepared with life and fortune to maintain the true dignity of your Majesty's crown, the just, the useful, and practicable rights of the British Legislature.

Inspired with these sentiments, we have no fear, Sire, in conveying to the throne the sense we have of the present situation of our Country, and of those steps which alone remain to rescue it from that impending danger into which it is plunged. We presume not to question the good intention of those who approach your Majesty with a different language; but, convinced that the measures which they recommend lead to irrecoverable ruin, it would ill become us to sit silent spectators in such an hour of danger; in an hour on whose resolves the fate of Britain hangs.

However just the claims of the British Parliament, however constitutional its sovereignty over every member of its extended Empire, the situation of America we apprehend to be such as renders it imprudent, and of no advantage to the common welfare, (the great end of sovereignty,) to enforce all these claims. No benefit can be greater than what results from the union of affections, of commerce, and of interests, with such distant Provinces. We lament the interruption of this union, and trust that, in the return to it, your Majesty will find the true policy of your Government, the best happiness of your Kingdoms.

In this great national question, Sire, we decline the mention of our particular interests, (the manufacturers of this late flourishing Town and neighbourhood,) which are deeply affected by the unhappy differences with your American Provinces, and will, we more than fear, be attended with irreparable injury to the merchant and artisan; but we earnestly wish to obviate the conclusions which may be drawn from the present state of trade throughout the Kingdom at large, as if it stood in no need of the tribute which our American settlements have hitherto paid to it. To accidental and temporary causes—the peace of Poland, Russia, and Turkey, and the expected departure of the Spanish fleet—its very fortunate support at this hour is owing.

This extraordinary flow must soon subside to its natural level, when the vacancy, which America has been accustomed to fill, will be dreadfully felt throughout the whole British trade; but the wisdom and providence of your Majesty will look forward to that period when the policy of other nations shall have possessed them of the manufactures which they at present demand of Britain; when the general decline of our European trade shall leave us no other resource, for supporting our rank in Europe, than a friendly and commercial interest in our American Colonies, which may know no limits to their increase from the parent which protects and smiles upon them. From this approaching fate save us, Sire, while safety may yet be found. The event of continual war may be dreadful, and repentance unavailing though universal. Victory cannot avert the mischief which it threatens, but returning peace carries no terrors with it; it promises every blessing which can secure to ages the glory of your Majesty's house, the prosperity and happiness of your envied Country.

Receive, most gracious Sovereign, our humble request as the tribute of true loyalty: dissipate the tears of your afflicted people. In your Majesty's goodness, stay the hand of war, and recall into the bosom of peace and grateful subjection your American subjects, by a restoration of those measures which long experience has shown to be productive of the greatest advantages to this late united and flourishing Empire.

MARYLAND COUNCIL OF SAFETY.

At a meeting of the Council of Safety of Maryland, at Chestertown, in Kent County, on Tuesday, the 20th day of October, 1775, were present:

The Hon. Matthew Tilghman, Esq., James Hollyday, Thomas Smyth, Richard Lloyd, and Henry Hooper, Esquires; the Hon. Daniel of St. Thomas Jenifer, Esquire, Thomas Johnson, Jun., Charles Carroll, Barrister, Robert Alexander, and Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, Esquires.

The Hon. Matthew Tilghman, Esq., Richard Lloyd, Thomas Smyth, and Henry Hooper, Esquires, having previously signed the Association, were qualified, before Emory Sudler, Esq., by taking the oath prescribed by the Convention.

Eleazer McComb was chosen Clerk, and qualified before Mr. Sudler, by taking the oath directed by the Convention.

The Council adjourned till to-morrow morning, at nine o'clock.

Saturday, October 21, 1775.

The Council met pursuant to adjournment.

In consequence of an application made by Mr. William Whetcroft, of Annapolis, the Council agreed as follows, viz:

The Council of Safety promise Mr. William Whetcroft, that in case he will, next spring, import a sufficient number of workmen, and will deliver, for the use of this Province, for every week for two years then next following, fifty good substantial proved Muskets, three and a half feet long in the barrel, and of three-quarters of an inch in the bore, with good double Bridle Locks; black walnut or maple Stocks, and plain, strong Brass Mounting; Bayonets, with Steel Blades, seventeen inches long; Steel Ramrods; double Screws; Priming Wires and Brushes fitted thereto; with a pair of Brass Moulds for every eighty Muskets, to cast twelve Bullets on one side, and on the other side to cast Shot of such size as the Musket will chamber three of them, wholly made within this Province—the publick will, provided the differences continue between Great Britain and the Colonies, take the said fifty stands per week, at the rate of four Pounds, common money, per stand, or for such part of the said two years as the said differences shall continue; but if, happily, there should be a reconciliation between Great Britain and the Colonies, after the said workmen shall embark, and before the end of the said two years, that then the publick will, if the said reconciliation shall take place before the said workmen shall have been set to work, take an assignment of the contracts made by the said Whetcroft with them, and pay him not only his actual expenses in procuring and importing the said workmen, but also forty Shillings sterling, for each of the said workmen imported, for his trouble. And if such reconciliation shall take place after any delivery of the said stands of Arms, and before the end of the said two years, that then the publick will make an allowance to the said Whetcroft, in proportion to the part of the two years then unexpired, on such assignment as aforesaid being made.

It is agreed, that it shall be at the option of Mr. Whetcroft to fit eight hundred of the Muskets, first delivered, with imported Locks, provided the prime cost of the said Locks be not less than five Shillings sterling each.

It is understood that the importation of the said workmen shall be at the expense and risk of Mr. Whetcroft.

Ordered, That a copy of the foregoing Agreement, signed by the Clerk, be delivered to Mr. Whetcroft, and that it be kept secret.

The Council adjourned to three o'clock, P. M., and met pursuant to adjournment.

Whereas Samuel Purviance, Jun., William Smith, and David Steuart, have certified to this Council, that in consequence of the Resolve of the late Provincial Convention, of the 4th day of August last, sundry persons have lent and advanced to the publick divers sums of Money, amounting in the whole to eleven hundred and ninety-five Pounds three Shillings and six Pence, sterling, which they have paid into their hands:

It is therefore Ordered, That upon the said Samuel Purviance, Jun., William Smith, and David Steuart, their certifying to the Treasurer of the Western Shore the names of the lenders, and the sums of Money by them respectively advanced and paid into their hands; and on the same certificate, and also the receipt of the said Samuel Purviance, Jun., William Smith, and David Steuart, for the said Moneys being produced to the said Treasurer, that then the said Treasurer pay to the said lenders, or their order, the sums by them respectively advanced, according to the order of Convention.

Messrs. Purviance, Smith, and Steuart, having given contingent orders to Captain Woolsey and Captain Waters, for the importation of sundry goods, it is the opinion of this Council that if any goods, other than those ordered by the Convention, should be laden on board, that the same will not be the adventure or on the risk of the publick.

Ordered, That the Deputies of this Province, in the Continental Congress, or any three of them, contract for the purchase of any quantity not exceeding three hundred barrels of Gunpowder, for the use of this Province, at a price not exceeding fifteen Pounds, common money, per hundred, and that the Treasurer of the Western Shore pay to the order of the said Deputies a sum not exceeding four thousand five hundred Pounds, to be by them applied to the purchase of the said Powder.

On application from Doctor Ephraim Howard, (son of Henry), for the loan of six hundred Pounds, to enable him to carry on the manufacture of Saltpetre in an extensive manner,

It is Ordered, That on his producing a certificate from Major Jenifer and Charles Carroll, of Carrollton, or either of them, that he hath given bond, with sufficient security, agreeable to the order of the Convention, the Treasurer of the Western Shore pay the said Doctor Ephraim Howard the sum of six hundred Pounds, common money, for the purpose aforesaid.

A like application was made by Doctor Samuel Coale, for the loan of two hundred and fifty Pounds, to enable him to carry on a Saltpetre work.

Ordered, That the said sum of two hundred and fifty Pounds, common money, be paid him by the Treasurer of the Western Shore, on his producing a certificate from Mr. Alexander and Charles Carroll, Barrister, or either of them, of his having given bond, with good security, agreeable to the order of the Convention.

“By the Council of Safety of Maryland, October 21, 1775.

“It is recommended to the officers having the charge and keeping of the Records in the Secretary's, Land, and Commissary's Offices, that proper Chests, not over large, be provided at the publick expense, and the Records of Conveyances, Certificates, Patents, and Wills, be placed in those Chests, and kept in the offices to which they respectively belong, in order that they, as well as the late papers, may be ready, in case of emergency, to be instantly removed to some place of security, and there kept under the care of the proper sworn officers.”

Ordered, That copies of the foregoing Recommendation be transmitted to the several offices therein mentioned.

The following Notice was ordered to be printed in the Annapolis Gazette, viz:

“By the Council of Safety of Maryland, October 21, 1775.

“The Committees of Observation are requested to complete their returns of the Minute and Militia Officers, and the Companies of Militia formed in Battalions, agreeable to the Resolves of the late Convention, as soon as may be, that the proper Commissions may issue.”

Resolved, That there be a meeting of the Convention, at the City of Annapolis, on the 4th day of December next, and that the Clerk of this Council enclose a copy of this Resolve to the Delegates of each County within this Province.

Ordered, That the Treasurer of the Eastern Shore pay John Garratt, for his trouble in attending this meeting, and for providing Wood and Candles, the sum of forty Shillings, common money.

Signed by order:

ELEAZER McCOMB, Clerk.

PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, October 20, 1775.

SIR: Captain John Macpherson having informed the Congress that he had invented a method by which, with their leave, he would take or destroy every Ministerial armed vessel in North-America, they appointed Governour Hopkins, Mr. Randolph, and Mr. J. Rutledge, to confer with him on the subject, for he would not consent to communicate the secret to any but a Committee and you.

These gentlemen reported that the scheme, in theory, appeared practicable; and that, though its success could not be relied on without experiment, they thought it well worth attempting on the fleet in and about Boston Harbour, their destruction being an object of the utmost importance.

The Congress have therefore desired Captain Macpherson to repair immediately to Cambridge. They recommend this matter to your particular attention, and request that if you view it in the light which the Committee did, you will give him all the support and assistance in your power, and furnish him with every thing he may require for this service.

I am, &c.,

JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To General Washington.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 25, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 20, 1775.

SIR: Over and above the necessary expenditures, by reason of the different services recommended to us, we are in advance to the general concern for moneys paid to the troops, and also for provisions and other necessities forwarded by the order of the Continental Generals, and tents furnished to the troops under the command of General Wooster and Colonel Hinman, and many other expenditures; which several articles, in the departments of the Paymasters and Commissaries, amount in the whole to a very considerable proportion of the moneys sent us by your body. We have now not above five thousand Dollars remaining, and are continually called upon for cash, on several occasions interesting to the service. We beg, therefore, that you will forward us money by the first opportunity, the necessity of which we doubt not will be immediately perceived.

We shall, as soon as possible, lay before the Commissaries, Paymasters, &c., our accounts, and send duplicates to the Congress, in order to check the drafts which they may make; and in the interim, pray your advice whether these gentlemen are to replace unto us the moneys advanced in their department.

We are, Sir, with great respect, your most obedient and humble servants. By order:

NATHANIEL WOODHULL, President.

To the Honourable John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

RETURNS OF OFFICERS OF SEVERAL NEW-YORK REGIMENTS.

CITY OF ALBANY.—FIRST REGIMENT.

Jacob Lansing, Junior, Colonel; Dirck Ten Broeck, Lieutenant-Colonel; Henry Wendell, Abraham Cuyler, Majors; Volkert A. Douw, Adjutant; Ephraim Van Veghten, Quartermaster.

John Barclay, Captain; John Price, Abraham J. Yates, Lieutenants; John Scott, Ensign.

Thomas Barret, Captain; Matthew Visscher, Abraham Eights, Lieutenants; John Hoogkerk, Ensign.

John Williams, Captain; Henry Staats, Barent Van Aelen, Lieutenants; Henry Hogen, Ensign.

John M. Beekman, Captain; Isaac De Freest, Abraham Ten Eyck, Lieutenants; Teunis Van Veghten, Ensign.

Harmanus Wendell, Captain; William Hun, Jacob G. Lansing, Lieutenants; Cornelius Wendell, Ensign.

John N. Bleecker, Captain; John J. Beekman, Casparus Pruyn, Lieutenants; Nicholas Marselis, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of the Committees of the different Wards:
MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

SCHENECTADY DISTRICT.—SECOND REGIMENT.

Abraham Wemple, Colonel; Jacob Schermerhorn, Lieutenant-Colonel; Abraham Swits, First Major; Nicholas Veeder, Second Major; Arent N. Van Petten, Adjutant; John Peeck, Quartermaster.

Jillis J. Fonda, Captain; Andrew Van Petten, First Lieutenant; Myndert Wemple, Second Lieutenant; Nicholas Yates, Ensign.

John Myndertse, Captain; Gerrit N. Veeder, First Lieutenant; Solomon Pendleton, Second Lieutenant; Lawrence Myndertse, Ensign.

John Van Petten, Captain; Cornelius Mabey, First Lieutenant; Simon F. Van Petten, Second Lieutenant; Daniel Loll, Ensign.

Abraham Wemple, Captain; Thomas B. Bancker, First Lieutenant; Abraham Swits, Second Lieutenant; John B. Vrooman, Ensign.

John Wasson, Captain; ———, First Lieutenant; ———, Second Lieutenant; ———, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

DISTRICT OF MANOR RENNELAERWYCK.

THIRD REGIMENT.

Abraham Ten Broeck, Colonel Commandant; Francis Nicoll, Lieutenant-Colonel; Henry Quackenbush, Barent Staats, Majors; John P. Quackenbush, Adjutant; Christopher Lansing, Quartermaster.

Henry Quackenbush, Captain; Jacob J. Lansing, First Lieutenant; Levinus Winne, Second Lieutenant; John Van Woerd, Ensign.

Abraham D. Fonda, Captain; Henry Oothoudt, Jun., First Lieutenant; Levinus F. Lansing, Second Lieutenant; Jacob J. Lansing, Ensign.

Peter Schuyler, Captain; Abraham Witbeck, First Lieutenant; Henry Ostrum, Second Lieutenant; Peter S. Schuyler, Ensign.

Barent Staats, Captain; Dirck Becker, First Lieutenant; John Van Wie, Second Lieutenant; George Hogan, Ensign.

Gerrit G. Vandenberg, Captain; Peter Van Wie, First Lieutenant; Wouter Becker, Second Lieutenant; Abraham Shugerland, Ensign.

FOURTH REGIMENT.

Killiam Van Rensselaer, Colonel; John H. Beekman, Lieutenant-Colonel; Cornelius Van Beuren, Jacob C. Schermerhorn, Majors; Jacobus Vanderpoel, Adjutant; John A. Lansing, Quartermaster.

Coenrad Ten Eyck, Captain; Peter Witbeck, First Lieutenant; Albert H. Van Derzee, Second Lieutenant; John L. Witbeck, Ensign.

William P. Winne, Captain; John De Voc, First Lieutenant; Philip C. Look, Second Lieutenant; Cornelius Van Derzee, Ensign.

Volkert Veeder, Captain; Abraham Veeder, First Lieutenant; Jacob La Grange, Second Lieutenant; Andrew Truax, Ensign.

Jacob Van Aernam, Captain; John Groot, First Lieutenant; George Wagenaar, Second Lieutenant; Frederick Crautz, Jun., Ensign.

Jacob Ball, Captain; John Warner, First Lieutenant; Peter Diets, Second Lieutenant; Jost Schefer, Ensign.

FIFTH REGIMENT.

Stephen Schuyler, Colonel; Gerrit G. Vandenberg, Lieutenant-Colonel; Peter P. Schuyler, Volkert Veeder, Majors; Maas Van Vranken, Adjutant; Francis Marshall, Quartermaster.

Cornelius Van Beuren, Captain; Nicholas Staats, First Lieutenant; Obadiah Lansing, Second Lieutenant; Philip Staats, Ensign.

John H. Beekman, Captain; Jacob C. Schermerhorn, First Lieutenant; Abraham J. Van Valkenburgh, Second Lieutenant; Jacobus Vanderpoel, Ensign.

Volkert Van Veghten, Captain; Gerrit T. Vandenberg, First Lieutenant; John Amory, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Van Schaick, Ensign.

Isaac Muller, Captain; Henry Shans, First Lieutenant; Johannes Lodewick, Second Lieutenant; John Muller, Ensign.

Philip De Freest, Captain; Rymer Van Alstyne, First Lieutenant; Peter Sharp, Second Lieutenant; David De Freest, Ensign.

John J. Fonda, Captain; John P. Fonda, First Lieutenant; George Berger, Second Lieutenant; George Scharpe, Ensign.

SIXTH REGIMENT.

Stephen J. Schuyler, Colonel; Henry K. Van Rensselaer, Lieutenant-Colonel; Philip De Freest, John J. Fonda, Majors; Volkert Oothoudt, Adjutant; Jacob Van Alstyne, Quartermaster.

Henry H. Gardener, Captain; Jacob Vanderheyden, First Lieutenant; Adam Beam, Second Lieutenant; Henry Tincher, Ensign.

Cornelius Lansing, Captain; Lodewick Snyder, First Lieutenant; Andries Stool, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Weeger, Ensign.

Luke Schermerhorn, Captain; James Magee, First Lieutenant; Reuben Knap, Second Lieutenant; Aaron Hamon, Ensign.

Ichabod Turner, Captain; Joel Pease, First Lieutenant; Jonathan Niels, Second Lieutenant; Joel Curtis, Ensign.

Caleb Bentley, Captain; Samuel Show, First Lieutenant; David Hustis, Second Lieutenant; Thomas Crandell, Ensign.

James Dennison, Captain; Stephen Niels, First Lieutenant; Obadiah Vaughan, Second Lieutenant; Oliver Bently, Ensign.

A true copy from the Return of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

KINDERHOOK DISTRICT.—SEVENTH REGIMENT.

Andries Witbeck, Colonel; Barent Vanderpoel, Lieutenant-Colonel; Lawrence Goes, Cornelius Van Schaick, Majors; Isaac Vanderpoel, Adjutant; John D. Goes, Quartermaster.

First Company: Lambart Borghardt, Captain; Isaac P. Van Valkenburgh, First Lieutenant; Johannes J. Van Alstyne, Second Lieutenant; Nicholas Kittle, Jun., Ensign.

Second Company: Gysbert S. Scherpe, Captain; Johannes Philip, First Lieutenant; Peter J. Van Valkenburgh, Second Lieutenant; Goose Quackenboss, Ensign.

Third Company: Philip Van Alstyne, Captain; John J. Goes, First Lieutenant; Peter Hugunine, Second Lieutenant; Andries Vanderpoel, Ensign.

Fourth Company: Dirck Gardinier, Captain; Evert Vosburgh, First Lieutenant; Johannes Klauw, Second Lieutenant; Jacobus McNiel, Ensign.

Fifth Company: Abraham J. Van Alstyne, Captain; Burger Klauw, First Lieutenant; David Van Ness, Second Lieutenant; John Van Ness, Ensign.

Sixth Company: Joshua Hall, Captain; Samuel Rowland, First Lieutenant; Henry Bush, Second Lieutenant; Thomas Beebe, Ensign.

A true copy from the Return of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

CLAVELACK DISTRICT.—EIGHTH REGIMENT.

Robert Van Rensselaer, Colonel; John Van Alen, Lieutenant-Colonel; Henry J. Van Rensselaer, Richard Esselstyne, Majors; Abraham Van Alen, Adjutant; Lawrence Fonda, Quartermaster.

First Company: Jeremiah Muller, Captain; William Van Ness, Jun., First Lieutenant; Joghum Muller, Second Lieutenant; James Hogeboom, Ensign.

Second Company: Jasper Huyck, Captain; John Upham, First Lieutenant; Glouda De Lametter, Second Lieutenant; Justus Van Hoese, Ensign.

Third Company: John Bartee, Captain; Michael Horton, First Lieutenant; Hendrick Blatner, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Best, Ensign.

Fourth Company: Jacob Philip, Captain; Peter Wiesmer, First Lieutenant; Jeremiah Johannes Muller, Second Lieutenant; George Philip, Ensign.

Fifth Company: Casparis Conyn, Captain; John Oosterhout, First Lieutenant; James Eltinge, Second Lieutenant; Philip Bartee, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

DISTRICT OF CLAVERACK.—NINTH REGIMENT.

Peter Van Ness, Colonel; Stephen Hogeboom, Lieutenant-Colonel; Jacob Ford, David ———, Majors; Bartholomew Heath, Adjutant; Jonathan Dean, Quartermaster.

First Company: Philip Bartel, Captain; Cornelius Hogeboom, First Lieutenant; Elias De Long, Second Lieutenant; Matthew Reh, Ensign.

Second Company: Ithamar Spencer, Captain; Abner Hawley, First Lieutenant; David Pratt, Second Lieutenant; Amaziah Philip, Ensign.

Third Company: Jonah Graves, Captain; Charles McArthur, First Lieutenant; William Tigner, Second Lieutenant; Elijah Bement, Ensign.

Fourth Company: Jacob Ford, Captain; Thos. Brown, First Lieutenant; Bartholomew Barrat, Second Lieutenant; Ephraim Leech, Ensign.

Fifth Company: Martin Krum, Captain; Isaac Vosburgh, First Lieutenant; Abraham Vosburgh, Second Lieutenant; Johannes Skirtz, Ensign.

Sixth Company: John Hallenbeck, Captain; Bartholomew Heath, First Lieutenant; Nathaniel House, Second Lieutenant; Johannes J. Van Valkenburgh, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

DISTRICT OF MANOR OF LIVINGSTON.—TENTH REGIMENT.

Peter R. Livingston, Colonel; Robert R. Livingston, Jun., Lieutenant-Colonel; Henry Livingston, Esq., First Major; Samuel Ten Broeck, Second Major; Philip Rockefeller, Adjutant; Petrus Wymcoop, Quartermaster.

First Company: Dirck Jansen, Captain; Leonard Ten Broeck, First Lieutenant; William Pulfer, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Blass, Ensign.

Second Company: Joseph Elliot, Captain; John Van Beuren, First Lieutenant; John P. McArthur, Second Lieutenant; John McArthur, Ensign.

Third Company: Markes Blatner, Captain; George Decker, First Lieutenant; Zachariah Volant, Second Lieutenant; Christopher Hagedorn, Ensign.

Fourth Company: Conradt Klyne, Captain; John L. Decker, First Lieutenant; James Robinson, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Vosburgh, Ensign.

Fifth Company: John A. Fonda, Captain; Peter Pulver, First Lieutenant; Fite Rossman, Second Lieutenant; John Schaver, Ensign.

Sixth Company: Jacob F. Schaver, Captain; Peter Van De Bogart, Junior, First Lieutenant; Fite Muller, Second Lieutenant; Johannes Best, Jun., Ensign.

Seventh Company: Adam Huysradt, Captain; Henry Ervine, First Lieutenant; Johannes Snyder, Second Lieutenant; Jury P. Dunce, Ensign.

Eighth Company: Philip Smith, Captain; Casper Shults, First Lieutenant; Adam Segendorph, Second Lieutenant; Bastian Jurry Lasher, Ensign.

Ninth Company: Samuel Ten Broeck, Captain; Petrus Van Gaasbeck, First Lieutenant; Hendrick Pulver, Second Lieutenant; Samuel J. Ten Broeck, Ensign.

GERMAN CAMP DISTRICT, (TO BE ADDED TO THE DISTRICT OF MANOR OF LIVINGSTON.)

Tenth Company: Tiel Rochefeller, Captain; Jacob Hagedorn, First Lieutenant; William Rochefeller, Second Lieutenant; Henry Will, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

DISTRICT OF COXSACKIE AND GROTE IMBOGHT.—ELEVENTH REGIMENT.

Anthony Van Bergen, Colonel; Cornelius Dubois, Lieutenant-Colonel; Ignatius Van Orden, First Major; John L. Bronck, Second Major; John Ten Broeck, Adjutant; Hubartus Van Loon, Quartermaster.

First Company: Thomas Hooghteeching, Captain; Henry Van Bergen, First Lieutenant; Richard Van Denburgh, Second Lieutenant; Cornelius Conine, Ensign.

Second Company: Philip Bronck, Captain; Myndert Van Schaick, First Lieutenant; Albert Van Loon, Second Lieutenant; Jachin Tryon, Ensign.

Third Company: Samuel Van Veghten, Captain; Johannes Rows, First Lieutenant; Jacob Van Veghten, Second Lieutenant; John Dubois, Ensign.

Fourth Company: John A. Witbeck, Captain; Francis Salisbury, Jun., First Lieutenant; Wessel Salisbury, Second Lieutenant; Barent Staats Salisbury, Ensign.

Fifth Company: David Abeel, Captain; William Snyder, First Lieutenant; William Van Orden Dumond, Second Lieutenant; John Wigram, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

DISTRICTS OF HALF-MOON AND BALLSTON.—TWELFTH REGIMENT.

Jacobus Van Scoonhoven, Colonel; James Gordon, Lieutenant-Colonel; Ezekiel Taylor, First Major; Andrew Mitchell, Second Major; David Rumsey, Adjutant; Simon Fort, Quartermaster.

Gerardus Chuet, Captain; Albert Van Derwerken, First Lieutenant; Robert Rowland, Second Lieutenant; John Van Derwerken, Ensign.

Nanning N. Visscher, Captain; John Van Vranken, First Lieutenant; Nicholas Van Vranken, Second Lieutenant; Maas Van Vranken, Ensign.

Jeremiah Vincent, Captain; Joseph Pinkney, First Lieutenant; Peter Ferguson, Second Lieutenant; Elias Van Steenbergh, Ensign.

Joshua Losee, Captain; Thomas Hicks, First Lieutenant; Cornelius Veeling, Second Lieutenant; Oliver Waight, Ensign.

Tyrannus Collins, Captain; William McCrea, First Lieutenant; Benjamin Wood, Second Lieutenant; David Clerk, Ensign.

Stephen White, Captain; Thomas Brown, First Lieutenant; Epinetus White, Second Lieutenant; Nathan Raymond, Ensign.

DISTRICT OF SARATOGA.—THIRTEENTH REGIMENT.

John McCrea, Colonel; Cornelius Van Veghten, Lieutenant-Colonel; Daniel Dickinson, First Major; Jacob Van Schaick, Second Major; Archibald McNeil, Adjutant; John Vernor, Quartermaster.

Peter Van Woerdt, Captain; James Storm, First Lieutenant; Jonathan Dunham, Second Lieutenant; Gerrit Van Beuren, Ensign.

John Thompson, Captain; Josiah Benjamin, First Lieutenant; John Hunter, Second Lieutenant; Joseph Row, Ensign.

Henry O'Hara, Captain; Benjamin Giles, First Lieutenant; Jonathan Pettit, Second Lieutenant; James Pettit, Ensign.

Ephraim Woodward, Captain; Thomas Ballard, First Lieutenant; Haltum Dunham, Second Lieutenant; Abel Belknap, Ensign.

Ephraim Lake, Captain; Samuel Sheldon, First Lieutenant; Jabez Gage, Second Lieutenant; Benajah Sheldon, Ensign.

Joseph Palmer, Captain; John Davis, First Lieutenant; Hezekiah Dunham, Second Lieutenant; Alpheus Davis, Ensign.

David Jones, Captain; Samuel Perry, First Lieutenant; Peter Winne, Second Lieutenant; Elisha Bentley, Ensign.

Minute-Men: Alexander Baldwin, Captain; Samuel Bacon, First Lieutenant; Walter Hughet, Second Lieutenant; Elias Palmer, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

DISTRICT OF HOSACK AND SCHAGHTICOKE.—FOURTEENTH REGIMENT.

John Knickerbocker, Colonel; Daniel Bratt, Lieutenant-Colonel; Dirck Van Veghten, First Major; John Van Rensselaer, Second Major; Charles H. Toll, Adjutant; Ignas Kip, Quartermaster.

First Company: Hendrick Van Derhoof, Captain; Saml. Ketchum, First Lieutenant; Nathaniel Ford, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Hallenbeck, Ensign.

Second Company: Walter N. Groesbeck, Captain; Wynant Van Denburgh, First Lieutenant; Peter Davenport, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Yates, Ensign.

Third Company: John J. Bleecker, Captain; John Snyder, First Lieutenant; Matthew De Garmo, Second Lieutenant; Stephen Thorne, Ensign.

Fourth Company: Lewis Van Woerd, Captain; John Schouten, First Lieutenant; Joseph Boyce, Second Lieutenant; John Morrel, Ensign.

Fifth Company: Fenner Palmer, Captain; John Johnson, First Lieutenant; James Williamson, Second Lieutenant; Jonathan Davis, Ensign.

Sixth Company: Daniel B. Bratt, Captain; Michael Lampman, First Lieutenant; Isaac Lansing, Second Lieutenant; Francis Hogal, Ensign.

Seventh Company: — Van Rensselaer, Captain; Michael Ryan, First Lieutenant; — — — — —, Second Lieutenant; Peter Hartwell, Ensign.

Minute-Men: John J. Bleecker, Captain; William Thorn, First Lieutenant; Thomas Hicks, Second Lieutenant; Jonathan Rowland, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

UNITED DISTRICTS OF SCHOHARIE AND DUANESBURGH.

FIFTEENTH REGIMENT.

Peter Vrooman, Colonel; Peter W. Ziele, Lieutenant-Colonel; Thomas Etherson, Junior, First Major; Jost Beecher, Second Major; Lawrence Schoolcraft, Adjutant; Peter Ball, Quartermaster.

First Company: George Man, Captain; Christian Sturbragh, First Lieutenant; John Dominack, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Snyder, Ensign.

Second Company: Jacob Heger, Captain; Martynus Van Slyck, First Lieutenant; Johannes W. Bauch, Second Lieutenant; Johannes L. Sawyer, Ensign.

Third Company: George Rechmyer, Captain; Johannes J. Sawyer, First Lieutenant; Martynus W. Ziele, Second Lieutenant; Johannes Sawyer Bellinger, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

DISTRICT OF KING'S.—SEVENTEENTH REGIMENT.

William Bradford Whiting, Colonel; Asa Waterman, Lieutenant-Colonel; Asa Douglass, Daniel Buck, Majors; Joseph Wood, Adjutant; Peter Garnsey, Quartermaster.

First Company: Asa Douglass, Captain; Elijah Bostwick, First Lieutenant; William Hallenbeck, Second Lieutenant; Isaac Averil, Ensign.

Second Company: Aaron Kelly, Captain; William Warner, Jun., First Lieutenant; Pollicarpus Smith, Second Lieutenant; Samuel Olmsted, Ensign.

Third Company: Philip Frisbe, Captain; Ebenezer Cady, Junior, First Lieutenant; Josiah Warner, Second Lieutenant; Ephraim Lord, Ensign.

Fourth Company: Nehemiah Fitch, Captain; Samuel Higley, First Lieutenant; John Smith, Second Lieutenant; Jonathan Mott, Ensign.

Fifth Company: Ebenezer Benjamin, Captain; Jonathan Ford, First Lieutenant; John Munsy, Second Lieutenant; Asa Doty, Ensign.

Sixth Company: Elijah Hudson, Captain; Jacob Vosburgh, First Lieutenant; Ezra Allen, Second Lieutenant; Samuel Bailey, Ensign.

Seventh Company: Banet Dyer, Captain; Samuel Wheeler, First Lieutenant; Daniel Herrick, Second Lieutenant; Nathan Herrick, Ensign.

Eighth Company: Elijah Gilbert, Captain; John Gil-

let, First Lieutenant; John Gile, Second Lieutenant; James Marvin, Ensign.

A true copy from the Returns of said District:

MATTHEW VISSCHER, Clerk.

JACOB BAYLEY TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Newbury, October 20, 1775.

SIR: The packet I received from you, some time the last of August, broken, many of the papers wanting, I supplied the Association, who all have signed but a very few. Shall send it soon. We are now regulating the Militia after the form that the Continental Congress advise, (not having received any thing from our Congress,) only shall choose by the Captain and subs together with the Committees, the field-officers, and shall recommend them accordingly. Heretofore we chose new Captains and subs, both for the standing and minute-men, who were at the command of the President of our little Congress, assisted by the Chairman of each District Committee; and long before we heard of a Congress at New-York, we all to a man signed an Association, agreeable to the Continental one, which I forget whether I mentioned to you before. I determine to see you this winter, if health permit.

It is sixteen days since we have heard any thing from Canada, and what I had then you have before now. I hope all is well. I shall make a return by Doctor Wetherspoon, whom we expect every day. All are well, and with us peace and plenty. This from your most obedient humble servant,

JACOB BAYLEY.

To John McKesson, Esq., Secretary to the Congress at New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read October 31, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, October 20, 1775.

SIR: Since doing myself the honour to write you this morning, by the gentleman who brought your despatches, two very material matters have occurred to me, and I send this by express, to overtake the gentleman.

I have unfortunately, too, too much reason to apprehend that very few of the troops to the northward will engage to remain in Canada, should we succeed; what is to be done in such a case? The season is too far advanced to raise troops below; and should they refuse to re-enlist, how dreadful the consequences.

From whence are the troops in Canada (on a supposition that we succeed, and they willing to remain) to be supplied with ammunition? as Mr. Carleton will most certainly destroy all, should he be obliged to quit the country, and we shall have none left.

These matters I humbly conceive require the immediate attention of Congress.

I am, Sir, most respectfully, your most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., &c.

SAMUEL MOTT TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp before St. John's, October 20, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I take this opportunity to congratulate your Honour on the success of the American arms in the reduction of the fortress of Chambly; they surrendered prisoners of war two days ago, and came to this place this day, being about eighty soldiers, with ninety-four women and children, besides the officers. There was only about one hundred and fifty of our troops, and three or four hundred Canadians, employed in the attack of this place, and they surrendered in about forty-eight hours. A list of the stores taken in the garrison I shall enclose you herein, as near as we can yet come at them. This garrison of St. John's holds out very obstinate, and is an extreme difficult place to reduce at this season of the year, and considering the situation and nature of this ground; wherever we attempt to erect batteries, the water follows in the ditch, when only two feet deep. I have this favour to ask of your Honour, viz: that the contents of my last letter to you may remain a secret until I see you.

I am sorry to say that the same disagreement yet subsists between me and another as has before, but this is not the place to settle such disputes. I have great reason of thankfulness that I am better in health than when I last wrote; and am, Sir, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

SAMUEL MOTT.

Honourable Governour Trumbull.

ORDERS TO MAJOR BENJAMIN TUPPER.

Whereas information has been given to me that two vessels, the one belonging to Holmes and the other to Coffin, both persons of known enmity to the United Colonies, are now lying at Martha's Vineyard, intending to proceed to Boston, with their cargoes, for the benefit and refreshment of the Ministerial troops there: These are therefore to require you to seize the said vessels, with their cargoes, and secure them in the safest and nearest port to this camp, for the use of the United Colonies; and all persons, friends of their Country and the cause of America, are desired to aid and assist you in the said enterprise, for which they shall be reasonably rewarded out of the said vessels.

Given under my hand, at Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October the twentieth, annoque Domini 1775.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO CAPTAIN EPHRAIM BOWEN, JUN.

Head-Quarters, October 20, 1775.

SIR: Your favour this day came to hand. Your conduct in fitting out the vessels is much approved of by his Excellency, who is particularly pleased with your despatch. Col. Warren has wrote to Wormuell about his demand of eight pence more than others, which I hope he will retract, otherwise you must endeavour to procure another, as we are resolved to submit to no demands that appear to be unreasonable. The difference to him is small, but as we must pay the same to others, and in that case the difference to the publick will be considerable. I think you had better take the swivels, but we would have the vessel delayed for the sake of making up the complement of ten. Advise with Captain Martindale about the cohorns. If he thinks they will be serviceable, you can take one or both. Enclosed is a letter to the Committee about the powder. The cartridge paper will be sent immediately. Captain Adams will have the same terms as other masters out of Salem or Marblehead.

I shall despatch Captain Coit as soon as possible, but the General would have you stay till the vessels are equipped and sailed. If it is not absolutely necessary for Captain Martindale to return to camp before he sails, he can stay to superintend the workmen, &c. I cautioned him against an extravagant outset, but I fear his former ideas on the subject are insuperable. There certainly can be no occasion for such a number of guns, unless he means to go without powder for them, as we cannot spare so much of that article as such an outset would require. We think eight or at the most ten six-pounders quite sufficient, with ten or twelve swivels. Enclosed is a letter to the Committee of Bristol, which may be of some use in procuring the guns, if you are obliged to go there for that purpose.

By what I mentioned in my former letter, I only meant to give you a caution, as we have been very unfortunate in sending persons to do business where their connexions lay. It will be best for you to pay all contingent expenses. If you have not current cash, Mr. Watson, the agent, will supply you, and his draft here upon me for these expenses, or any other attending the vessels, will be honoured. If the Committee of Plymouth claim a property in the vessel, notwithstanding she is to be employed on the publick service, you must agree with them, as with private persons, on the best terms you can. Pray forward both vessels as soon as possible, and in your next let me know when Martindale's will be ready. If he wants ammunition from hence, let us know in time, that none may be lost in fitting out these articles.

I am, Sir, your very humble servant,

J. REED, Secretary.

To Captain Ephraim Bowen, Jun., Plymouth.

P. S. By all means caution Captain Martindale against a large outset. The design is to intercept the enemy's supplies, not to look out for the armed vessels.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO THE COMMITTEE OF PLYMOUTH.

Head-Quarters, October 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I am directed by his Excellency General Washington to acquaint you that the publick service requiring a number of armed vessels to be fitted to intercept the enemy's supplies, and the distance making the transportation of ammunition tedious, you will render the General a most acceptable service, and much promote the publick interest, if you will supply, out of your Town stock or otherwise, the powder necessary for the service. The General will either replace it, or pay for it, as may be most agreeable to you. Any other service you may render Captain Bowen in this affair will be kindly accepted.

I am, by his Excellency's order, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

J. REED.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO THE COMMITTEE OF BRISTOL.

Camp at Cambridge, October 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: His Excellency General Washington has directed me to acquaint you, that, conceiving it would be of publick service to fit out some armed vessels, he is equipping two at Plymouth, designed to intercept the enemy's supplies. It may perhaps be necessary for Captain Bowen to apply to you for some guns; if so, it would much oblige the General and promote the publick service, if you could furnish him with such as he may want, and you can spare. Any other assistance which he may crave, we doubt not you will cheerfully give, as we are embarked in one great and common cause.

I am, Gentlemen, by his Excellency's direction, your most obedient and very humble servant,

J. REED.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO COLONEL GLOVER AND STEPHEN MOYLAN.

Head-Quarters, October 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of yesterday was duly received. The two hundred and sixty dollars Mr Moylan will keep till he returns, and then pay it to the Commissary-General. I sent for Colonel Burbeck, who makes some excuse that he could not get the order ready, but promises it shall be this day completed.

I also sent for Doctor Spofford, who agrees to go if his Colonel does not object to it. He is now gone to consult him, and if he determines to go, I shall despatch him immediately. You will remember, gentlemen, that the vessels will want a part of this flour. You will, therefore, be pleased to retain as much as will be necessary for this purpose.

P. M., six o'clock. After pursuing Doctor Spofford all day, to get his decision, I have at last got it, that he will go, and is preparing; so that I hope he will be with you some time to-morrow.

We have accounts that the small squadron which sailed some time ago is bombarding Falmouth and Portsmouth. Our vessels must be careful how they fall in with them. Please to fix upon some particular colour for a flag, and a signal by which our vessels may know one another. What do you think of a flag with a white ground, a tree in the middle, the motto "Appeal to Heaven?" This is the flag of our floating batteries.

We are fitting out two vessels at Plymouth, and when I next hear from you on this subject, I will let them know the flag and the signal, that we may distinguish our friends from our foes. You will hasten the equipment of the other two vessels as fast as possible.

Be pleased to prepare half a dozen reams of the best writing paper to be had in Salem or Marblehead, and send it down here per first opportunity. If you think any good purpose would be answered by it, you can send out Colonel Glover's schooner till the substitute is got ready.

I am, Gentlemen, with much regard, your most obedient humble servant,

J. REED, Secretary.

To Colonel Glover and Stephen Moylan, Esq., Salem.

P. S. Colonel Glover does not notice the receipt of Captain Langdon's present to the officers who retook his ship. Don't let it be forgot in your next.

GENERAL GATES TO THE COMMITTEE OF PORTSMOUTH.

Head-Quarters, October 20, 1775.

SIR: I have it in command from his Excellency General Washington to acknowledge his having this moment received your letter, dated yesterday, from Portsmouth. The General is deeply afflicted with the distress the savage barbarity of the enemy has in all probability brought upon the Town and unhappy inhabitants of Falmouth; he cannot but feelingly participate with them in their misery, and is grieved to the soul it is not in his power immediately to comply with your demand. You may believe, Sir, your request would, without delay, have been complied with, had the state of the magazine here made that compliance in any degree possible.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
H. GATES, Adjutant-General.

H. Wentworth, Esq., Chairman, &c.

P. S. The General is so busily engaged with a Committee from the Continental Congress, and the Governours of the adjacent Colonies, that he cannot, as he wished, write to you himself.

COLONEL JAMES READ TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Camp on Winter-Hill, October 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In obedience to a desire of Esquire Thornton to me, to order the several Captains in my Regiment to make out muster-rolls from the time of their enlistment to the 4th day of August last, I immediately gave said orders, although I never could get said rolls till this moment, and now one is not sent by reason of the Captain's being on furlough, and his Lieutenant does not incline to swear to the Captain's accounts.

Gentlemen, as I did not make these rolls, neither have I examined them, except my own pay, which I think is right. I hope these rolls will be carefully examined before payment is made.

I am, Gentlemen, your humble servant,
JAMES READ.

HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY FOR THE PROVINCE OF NOVA-SCOTIA.

Friday, October 20, 1775.

A Message from his Excellency the Governour, requiring the attendance of the House in the Council Chamber.

Mr. Speaker and the House attended accordingly, and being returned, Mr. Speaker reported that the House had attended his Excellency in the Council Chamber, where his Excellency was pleased to make the following Speech to both Houses:

*Gentlemen of the Council
and House of Representatives:*

The particular situation and circumstances of this Province, at this alarming conjuncture of affairs in America, has made it necessary to call you together at this time.

From the best information of the intentions of the Americans, who are now assembled in arms against His Majesty's Government, I have reason to think they are meditating to disturb the peace and tranquillity of the inhabitants of this Colony, proofs of which I shall order to be laid before you; and as self-defence is the first law of nature, and the consideration of it of the highest importance to your constituents, I do recommend to your serious deliberation those measures which will most conduce to the safety and protection of the Province. Among other weighty affairs, the state and condition of the Colony in respect to provision is become alarming, and though it is our duty to contribute to the utmost of our ability to furnish the Army and Navy with refreshments and every necessary, yet I am of opinion some rules and regulations might be made to prevent the enhancing the price of provisions, and its being diverted to other purposes. As this is a matter of great importance, and is become very interesting to the people in general, but more particularly to the inhabitants of Halifax, I must recommend it to your deliberations, that some measure may be adopted which will give a satisfactory relief.

Your firm attachment to his sacred Majesty and his Government, and your zeal in promoting the same sentiments among the inhabitants, have given me the highest satisfaction. The same union and harmony in all your deliberations will tend to the advancement of the publick good, and, you may be assured, I shall most heartily concur in every measure that will promote the peace, safety, and interest of this Province.

Ordered, That Mr. Morris, Mr. Fillis, and Mr. Bridge, prepare an Address to be presented to his Excellency the Governour, in answer to his Excellency's Speech.

Monday, October 23, 1775.

Mr. Speaker and the Members waited on his Excellency the Governour with their Address, in answer to his Excellency's Speech, and presented the same, as follows:

May it please your Excellency:

We, His Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Representatives for this Province, return your Excellency our unfeigned thanks for your speech in General Assembly.

Fully sensible of the dangerous situation in which the inhabitants of this Colony are, from the unhappy troubles in America, and as the providing for its security and defence is a matter of the highest consequence, we shall in our deliberations give it that weight and attention the importance of the subject requires, and sincerely wish it was in our power to grant supplies adequate to the exigency of the times.

We shall pay due regard to your Excellency's recommendation on the state and condition of the Colony in respect to provisions, and endeavour to provide against such abuses as may arise to the prejudice of its inhabitants; at the same time that we esteem ourselves happy in having it in our power to contribute to the supplying the Army and Navy, as well as His Majesty's distressed subjects at Boston, with such refreshments as this Province affords, and which we are cheerfully ready to continue to the utmost of our abilities.

It yields us the highest satisfaction that your Excellency is pleased to entertain such sentiments of our attachment and loyalty to our most gracious Sovereign and his Government; we shall not fail to continue to inculcate those sentiments among our constituents, and be ever ready to co-operate with your Excellency in every measure that may tend to promote the peace, safety, and welfare of the Province.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF BRIDGEWATER.

Address of the principal Inhabitants of the Borough of Bridgewater, in the County of Somerset, presented to His Majesty by the Hon. Anne Poulett, one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the principal Inhabitants of the Borough of Bridgewater, in the County of Somerset, beg leave to approach your royal presence, with hearts full of allegiance, loyalty, and fidelity.

Truly sensible of the happiness we enjoy under your Majesty's Government, uniformly regulated by the laws of this Country, by which our constitutional rights are preserved and secured, we cannot, without the deepest concern, behold the many inflammatory methods used to alienate the affections of your Majesty's subjects, to seduce them from their duty, and even to countenance and abet the most ungrateful and daring rebellion in America.

We therefore think it greatly incumbent on us to express our detestation and abhorrence of such flagitious attempts; and to humbly beg your Majesty's gracious acceptance of our most faithful assurances to support your Majesty, and the legislative authority of this Kingdom, to the utmost of our power.

ADDRESS OF THE HIGH SHERIFF, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF CARMARTHEN.

Address of the High Sheriff, Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Carmarthen, presented to His Majesty by the right Hon. George Rice, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the High Sheriff, Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders, of the County of CARMARTHEN, whose names are hereunto subscribed.

When the inhabitants of your Majesty's Colonies in America, forgetful of the allegiance they owe your Majesty and this Country, (from whence they derive their origin,) for the protection and nourishment they have uniformly sought and effectually received since their first emigration from this their Parent Country, are in a state of open rebellion, denying all obedience to your Majesty's Government and the supreme Legislature of this Country:

When, complaining of infringement of their chartered rights by the Legislature of Great Britain, they themselves, in open violation of those very charters, have dissolved all Government and lawful authority, and assembling themselves in Congresses and Provincial Meetings, to their Constitution unknown, have encouraged the utmost disloyalty and rebellious practices in your Majesty's subjects there, and by the most severe terrours and punishments have prevented the lawful Governours and officers of justice from exercising the duties of their respective stations:

When the same unlawful Congress, by their self-assumed authority, with a view to the destruction of the commerce, credit, power, and very being of this Country, have recommended and been able to enforce non-exportation and non-importation agreements, in open defiance to the laws of trade, established and admitted for ages between Great Britain and the Colonies in America, and by long experience found highly advantageous to both Countries:

When the same rebellious assemblies, by specious addresses to the people of Great Britain and Ireland, and other parts of your Majesty's Dominions, are attempting to seduce your Majesty's loyal subjects from their duty to your Majesty and their Country, and to give countenance and support to the violent and unconstitutional proceedings now carrying on in America:

At a crisis like this, perhaps as important as is to be found in the British annals, we think we owe it to your Majesty, of whose just, mild, and gracious Government we have the fullest experience, we owe it to our Country, we owe it to ourselves, to take this opportunity of expressing our most hearty abhorrence and detestation of these undutiful and traitorous practices of your Majesty's subjects in America, and of assuring your Majesty, that we are ready and willing with our lives and fortunes to give your Majesty every effectual support and assistance in our power, for vindicating the rights of Great Britain against all its open and secret enemies whatsoever.

ADDRESS OF THE OFFICERS OF THE DEVONSHIRE MILITIA.

Address of the Officers of the Northern Regiment of the Militia of Devonshire, transmitted to the Earl of Rockford, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Officers of the Northern Regiment of the DEVONSHIRE Militia.

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Officers of the Northern Regiment of the Devonshire Militia, humbly beg leave to approach your royal presence, to assure your Majesty of our unfeigned duty and allegiance.

With sorrow and concern we saw the first sparks of dissension arise between Great Britain and her dependant Colonies; with the greatest, with the utmost detestation and abhorrence, we now not only see these sparks break out into the fiercest flames of anarchy and rebellion, but to our surprise and astonishment we behold those flames supplied with fresh fuel, and the enkindled blaze fomented by many self-interested, discontented, and ill-disposed persons, even in this Kingdom, who justify and approve the daring rebellious measures of the Colonies against the legislative authority of this Country.

At this alarming crisis, both as faithful subjects, and as soldiers most firmly attached to your Majesty's most illustrious family and the happy Constitution of our Country, we think it our indispensable duty to assure our most gracious Sovereign, in the most solemn manner, that we are resolved and ready, as far as the laws of this realm will admit, to stand by your Majesty against all rebellious attempts whatsoever; to defend your sacred person, and to support our present Constitution, at the hazard of our lives, and at the expense of our fortunes.

Dated at our meeting at Bideford, in the said County of Devon, the twenty-first day of October, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

B. WREY, Colonel.
GEORGE BUCK, Lieutenant-Colonel.
J. WOLLOCOMBE, Major.
JOHN STAFFORD, Capt.
L. WELLINGTON, Capt.
THOS. HEDGES, Captain.
J. PARTRIDGE, Captain.
GEORGE LEY, Captain.
J. MEDDON, Captain-Lieutenant.

J. HARRIS, Lieutenant.
JOHN DENE, Lieutenant.
SAML. PYKE, Lieutenant.
W. BRUTON, Lieutenant.
W. JANS, Lieutenant.
C. DAVIE, Lieutenant.
BOURCHIER WREY, JUN., Lieutenant.
WM. H. HEYWOOD, Ensign.
PETER BOUND, Ensign.

NEW-JERSEY CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read October 23, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, Trenton, October 21, 1775.

SIR: Since the resolution of the Continental Congress, for raising two Battalions in this Colony, were communicated to us, great numbers of gentlemen have applied for commissions or warrants to recruit; but this Congress, expecting hourly to hear from you on the subject of appointing the Field-Officers, have as yet forbore either to grant commissions or issue warrants, and therefore are very anxious to have your resolution on the subject of our letter of the 13th instant.

This Congress desire me to assure you, that from every appearance the Battalions will speedily be completed, if your honourable House shall think proper to comply with the purport of our letter of the 13th instant.

To expedite this important service, I am directed to request the favour of you, Sir, to transmit to us the resolutions of the Continental Congress, by the bearer, Thomas Potts, Esq., one of our members.

By order of the Congress: Your most humble servant,

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. If the Continental Congress have yet considered the subject of our letter of the 14th instant, we likewise request an answer thereto by Mr. Potts.

MILITIA OFFICERS OF WEST-FARMS AND MANOR OF FORDHAM, WESTCHESTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

West-Farms and Manor of Fordham, in the Borough of } Westchester, October 21, 1775. }

It being determined by a Committee of the County of Westchester, that the abovesaid places should be one distinct Beat or District, we, the subscribers, being appointed a Committee of Inspection to preside at the election for Officers of the Militia for said Beat, do most humbly represent to the honourable the Provincial Congress for the Province of New-York, that they have proceeded to the choice of Officers, in conformity to the orders of the said honourable Provincial Congress, when the underwritten persons were unanimously chosen.

Captain, Nicholas Berrian; First Lieutenant, Gilbert Taylor; Second Lieutenant, Daniel Devoe, Jun.; Ensign, Benjamin Valentine.

THOMAS HUNT,
ABRAHAM LEGGETT.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Ticonderoga, October 21, 1775.

SIR: At four o'clock, this afternoon, I had the honour to receive your letter of the 12th instant. I should have been extremely happy if Congress had been in sentiment with me on the necessity of a delegation from that respectable body to this place—a necessity which to me appears to be absolute.

A General, Sir, who commands an Army in which discipline and subordination are established and prevail, and every corps of which considers itself under his immediate command, can devote the greatest proportion of his time uninterruptedly to weigh every measure that it may be necessary for him to pursue, in order to complete the wishes of his superiors. Unfortunately for me, I have seldom, very seldom indeed, had half an hour to myself in any period of this campaign. Judge of my situation at this moment. General Wooster's Regiment, detained here for three days by violent gales and heavy rains, are now in doubt whether they will proceed to the Army at St. John's. The General's Secretary and his Chaplain inform me, that many of the officers and most of the men apprehend being detained in Canada all winter; that they may be prevented by frost from returning; that they will perish with cold or with sickness; that if the Army should be under the necessity of retreating from St. John's, many must fall a sacrifice to the enemy, as there will not be boats sufficient to bring them away (although we really have craft sufficient for a thousand more than the Army consists of;) that none but the General, his Secretary and Chaplain, have any inclination to proceed. The weather is now clearing, the wind favourable, and I wait in the most distressing anxiety for the morrow to see the event.

I shall despatch a copy of your letter to General Montgomery, for him to execute such of the orders it contains as relate to the affairs of Canada, &c. I am happy that Congress has so just a sense of that gentleman's abilities and zeal. His being in this Army has been the source of vast consolation to me. I hope his health will be continued to him, that he may be enabled to support that variety of fatigue, both of mind and body, to which he is every moment exposed.

Were it possible to foresee the result of our operations at St. John's, I should be able to determine if it was necessary to build any vessels of war on Lake Champlain; at present I am at a loss what to do; but lest any detriment should arise to the publick from the dilemma I am in, if it is the intention of Congress to prepare timber for constructing such vessels, without waiting the event of our operations, the difference of time it will take in my sending to New-York for carpenters, or Congress sending there on receipt of this, and ordering them up, cannot be much; permit me, however, to observe, that all that can be done this fall will be to hew the timber, and prepare roads to draw it out in winter, so that the shipwrights may begin their work in April. I say this is all that can be done, for no plank are to be had here; and if there was, winter is so severe in this latitude that no building can be carried on.

If the ton of powder mentioned in your letter should be sent here, it will be vastly short of what this garrison and Fort George ought to have, should we be unfortunate at St. John's; should we succeed, a vastly greater quantity will be wanted in Canada.

Congress mentions a garrison for Crown Point. I suppose that is founded on a supposition that there is a fortification at that place, whereas in fact there is none. It may be possible this fall to enclose the barracks with a picket; but that is the most that can be done, and very much indeed is wanted here more (unless Canada should be ours) than can be at any rate completed this campaign.

Sunday, October 22d.—The wind, at south, is so violent that no boat can cross from this to Fort George. I therefore detain the express.

One o'clock.—General Wooster's Regiment is just sailed. They are gone with the greatest reluctance. The Parson has been indefatigable to persuade them to move. They consist of three hundred and thirty-five, officers included; ninety-eight having returned home, discharged between Albany and Fort George, and fifty-one sick and sham sick are left here.

There are still many more cannon here that can be mounted. I propose sending the spare ones to Fort George, unless Congress should disapprove of it.

I had forgot to observe, that in the order of Congress, which directs me to consult with my principal officers as to the number of troops, and the best method of procuring what will be necessary for the defence of Canada, should we obtain it, and for the posts of Crown Point and Ticonderoga, nothing is said of the pay; whence I conclude that their intention is, that it should remain as at present. But I really believe that many officers will refuse to remain in the service on account of the pay, which is so small that they cannot subsist upon it like gentlemen.

October 25.—I beg leave to remind Congress of the necessity of an immediate attention to what I said in mine of the 5th instant, respecting the paying of the troops, at least so far as concerns those who are willing to receive the Continental pay here, or at such places where they may be discharged or re-enlist. When soldiers find that they must return home without their pay, or are not paid off when asked to re-enlist, they will seldom re-enlist in the service, for the suspicions of men are very much in proportion to their ignorance. And I assure you that many are now discharged, naked and penniless, who may have money due to them, and which I would readily take the trouble to pay or cause to be paid, if I could ascertain what was their due. Some who are discharged are now offering their wages for two-thirds of it.

October 26, two o'clock, P. M.—This moment an express arrived from General Montgomery. Copy of his letter, and the papers enclosed in it, I do myself the honour to transmit you. Although I lament the necessity that has drove us to arms, I must congratulate you on this success of the American arms, and on the prospect there is of more. I shall send the prisoners as soon as they arrive here to Albany, the men from thence to Connecticut, and the officers either to that Colony, New-Jersey, or Pennsylvania, as they may choose, unless I should receive your orders in time to the contrary. I will not detain the express a moment, and therefore shall only add that I remain, with great respect and esteem, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., &c.

P. S. I also send the colours taken at Chambly.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp before St. John's, October 20, 1775.

DEAR GENERAL: I have the pleasure to acquaint you with the surrender of Chambly to Major Brown and Major Livingston, which last headed about three hundred Canadians. We had not above fifty of our troops. Indeed it was the plan of the Canadians, who carried down the artillery past the Fort of St. John's, in batteaus. I send you the colours of the Seventh Regiment, and a list of stores taken. Major Brown assures me we have gotten six tons of powder, which, with the blessing of God, will finish our business here. Major Brown offered his service on this occasion: upon this and all other occasions I have found him active and intelligent.

The enemy's schooner is sunk. They have not been very anxious to save her, else they might easily have protracted her fate. I must now think, unless some unlucky accident befalls us, we shall accomplish our business here, as I shall set to work in earnest on this side the water. The troops in high spirits. Colonel Warner has had a little brush with a party from Montreal. The enemy retired with the loss of five prisoners and some killed. Some of the prisoners (Canadians) are dangerous enemies, and must be taken care of—La Mouche, one of them. The Caughnawagas have desired one hundred men from us. I have complied with their request, and am glad to find they put so much confidence in us, and are so much afraid of Mr. Carleton; not that I think they had any thing to apprehend; he has too much business on his hands already to wish to make more enemies.

I shall endeavour, by means of the Chambly garrison, to obtain better treatment for Allen and the other prisoners, as well Canadians as our own troops.

I shall send off the prisoners as soon as possible. Their number of women and quantity of baggage is astonishing. Be so good as to let Captain Willet return with his company immediately if it can be done. He conducts the prisoners.

The commanding officer at St. John's has been so polite as to let our batteaus pass to the head of the rapids, in order to take in the baggage of the Chambly garrison. He behaved very genteelly to Lieutenant Lockwood, of Waterbury's, who went in with the request from Major Stopford. The Major is a man of family in Ireland. But one man killed since my last. Let us have rum, my dear General, else we shall never be able to go through our business.

I am much chagrined at your relapse; that you may speedily recover your health is the ardent wish of your sincere and affectionate humble servant,

To General Schuyler.

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

P. S. Major Brown has brought the colours of the Seventh Regiment, which I have the honour to transmit to you. Before Captain Lamb's Company of Artillery arrived, I was obliged to appoint officers and men to that service. They are still necessary. I promised to use my influence for an addition to their pay. I hope the Congress will indulge me in this particular.

Articles proposed for His Majesty's Garrison at Chambly.

ART. 1st. The garrison, officers, and men, not to be made prisoners, but to march unmolested, with their arms, accoutrements, twenty-four rounds of ammunition each, drums beating, colours flying, and provision and carts sufficient to pass by the shortest road to Montreal, or any other place in the Province of Quebeck, at the option of the Hon. Major Stopford, the commanding officer.

ART. 2d. The officers and men to be allowed their baggage.

ART. 3d. The men not to be decoyed from their Regiment.

ART. 4th. The women and children to be permitted to go with the Regiment, and their effects, unmolested.

ART. 5th. The ammunition and stores of all kinds remaining in the garrison to be given up.

ART. 6th. Hostages to be given on both sides for the faithful performance of the above articles, and then to be exchanged.

J. STOPFORD, Major of the Royal Fusileers, commanding at Fort Chambly.

The answer to the Articles, proposed by the Honourable Major Stopford, agreeable to the instructions of Brigadier-General Montgomery, commanding the Continental Forces for the time being, is this:

ART. 1st. The garrison, officers, and men, to surrender themselves prisoners of war.

ART. 2d. In case the garrison surrender prisoners of war, to be allowed all their baggage, agreeable to their desire.

As to ART. 3d, it never was the intention of any officer intrusted with the command of a party now besieging your fort, to take the advantage of decoying the garrison, after a solemn engagement entered into by both parties, and consequently your fears on that head must be groundless.

ART. 4th. The women and children shall be permitted to go with the rest of the garrison, and take their effects, provided the garrison surrender themselves prisoners as aforesaid.

ART. 5th. The ammunition and stores, &c., of all kinds, to be delivered up, upon the faith and honour of the commanding officer of the garrison.

JNO. BROWN, Major, &c., Commander of the Continental Forces before Chambly.

In reply to Major Brown's answer to the Honourable Major Stopford's proposals in regard to the surrender of Fort Chambly:

Major Stopford having considered Major Brown's Articles, agrees to the same, although he could wish the first Article might have been as he proposed.

Major Stopford, relying in every article to Major Brown's honour, will give him up the Fort any hour to-morrow morning.

J. STOPFORD, Major of the Royal Fusileers, commanding the Garrison of Chambly.

Fort Chambly, October 18, 1775.

A List of Officers taken at CHAMBLY.

Major Stopford, Captain Price, (sick at Chambly), Captain Godwin, Lieutenant Hamar, Lieutenant Harrison, Lieutenant Shettleworth, Captain Alye, of the schooner, Commissary McCullough, a Surgeon.

An Account of Stores taken at CHAMBLY.

Eighty barrels of flour. Eleven barrels of rice. Seven barrels of peas. Six firkins of butter. One hundred and thirty-four barrels of pork. Seven barrels of pork, damaged. One hundred and twenty-four barrels of gunpowder. Three hundred swivel shot. One box of musket shot. Six thousand five hundred and sixty-four musket cartridges. One hundred and fifty stand of French arms. Three royal mortars. Sixty-one shells. Five hundred hand grenades. Rigging for three vessels at least.

Royal Fusileers, 83. Accoutrements, 83.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO MAJOR STOPFORD.

Camp before St. John's, October 20, 1775.

SIR: I have information from different quarters, that Governour Carleton treats his unfortunate prisoners with the most cruel severity, loading them with irons, and that Colonel Allen himself meets with the same indignity. I should have thought his humanity, as well as his prudence, would have dictated other measures.

Should the Governour avow and persevere in this severity to the Canadians and other Colonists who have fallen into his hands, I must appeal to your own candour whether my duty to the troops committed to my charge, does not demand retaliation. Permit me to assure you, Sir, I shall feel the most painful reluctance on this melancholy occasion. Let me therefore request that you will despatch a letter to the Governour, acquainting him with your situation, and representing the fatal consequences which must attend the carrying on so barbarous a war. Your drummer shall have a passport, and I shall expect his return on the sixth day, at furthest.

Humanity would make me anxious for the success of this negotiation, were it a contention with foreigners; but when I consider that my countrymen are concerned, whose mistaken principles of Government or erroneous opinions of duty may have led into this fatal controversy, I feel the most ardent solicitude for its accomplishment.

I am, Sir, your obedient servant,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY,

Brigadier-General of the Continental Troops, and commanding the Auxiliary Troops in Canada.

To Major Stopford.

STEPHEN MOYLAN AND JOHN GLOVER TO COL. JOSEPH REED.

Beverly, October 21, 1775.

DEAR SIR: The schooners, commanded by Captains Broughton and Selman, sailed this morning. As they had none but their old colours, we appointed them a signal, that they may know each other by, and be known to their friends—the ensign up to the main toppinglift.

You will please to order the crew of the schooner to be manned out of General Sullivan's Brigade to hold themselves in readiness for embarking next Thursday. The sooner this is done the better, as they may prepare what necessities they may have occasion for, and not delay in looking out for them here; and, as the Marblehead gentry will go home, it will be best to send them off to-morrow, and we shall stand a better chance of being able to collect them on Thursday. Indeed, the Captains of both schooners should be here to superintend the work.

Mr. Moylan has ordered two hundred barrels of the flour that was at Ipswich to this place, for the use of the Navy; it saves some miles of land carriage, that at Salem being nearer camp.

Colonel Glover has received the present which Captain Langdon made to the officers on board the schooner; he thinks it very genteel.

Please to send the following articles immediately: forty spears, three hundred sorted swivel-shot and some match-ropes, two signal flags, fifty pounds chocolate, fifty pounds coffee, one hundred and twelve pounds sugar, and a small firkin of butter.

We are, with great regard, Sir, your most humble servants,

STEPHEN MOYLAN,
JOHN GLOVER.

JONA. HALE TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Haverhill, October 21, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I had the pleasure to receive from Col. Morey, not long since, a commission appointing me a Second Major of the Twelfth Regiment of Militia, by order of the Provincial Congress, which I esteem as an honour done me, and acknowledge myself obliged to that honourable body for the favour; but, for some reasons I am now to trouble you with, I must beg leave to resign the commission.

In the month of May, when the Country was generally alarmed at the commencement of hostilities in the Massachusetts Government, we had a meeting held in this place, of Committees from several Towns belonging to our Regiment, at which several matters of consequence were determined and regulated; among the rest, a choice of field-officers for this Regiment, in which the people in general appeared to be satisfied and to rest contented, expecting the same appointments might be confirmed by the Provincial Congress.

Mr. James Bayley was then chosen the Second Major; but it seems, for want of our plan being communicated at the time, he was dropped in the late choice by Congress, which has given him, and some others in our Regiment, as I am informed, considerable uneasiness, and endangers that harmony and unanimity which we would wish to cultivate and preserve in this part of the Country.

Mr. Bayley was a soldier in the last war, and in considerable service on the western frontiers; where he underwent great hazards and difficulties for his Country, and to which he has, in these perilous times, proved himself a good friend, having been very active in every measure recommended by the several Congresses, as far as related to us in this quarter, and of course supposed by our Committee to be a suitable person for that commission.

I am therefore willing, in order to keep peace among us, to give up my commission; not from any disgust myself—on the contrary, I shall be ready to serve my Country in any other commission or employ to which I may hereafter have the honour to be chosen; and remain, with all due respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

JONATHAN HALE.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety for the Province of New-Hampshire, Exeter.

EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO MAJOR-GENERAL HOWE.

Whitehall, October 22, 1775.

SIR: You will have seen, by the extract of a letter from Governour Martin, which accompanied my despatch of the 15th of September, and also by an extract of a letter from Lord William Campbell, transmitted to you by Mr. Pownall, that there were many circumstances in the state, both of North and South-Carolina, that indicated a disposition in the people, more particularly in those settled in the interior country, to resist the oppressive acts of the Committees in the Towns upon the sea-coasts; and you will have observed with how much confidence Governour Martin speaks of the practicability of reducing, with a small force, the Province of North-Carolina to obedience.

The small appearances begin to show themselves in Georgia and in Virginia, and Lord Dunmore even makes himself responsible for securing the obedience of the latter of those Provinces, with the assistance only of two or three hundred men.

I will confess, that it appeared to me, at the first view of the propositions made by Lord Dunmore and Governour Martin, that they were too sanguine in their expectations; but later advices confirm what they represented of the temper and disposition of the people, and there is good ground to believe that the appearance of a respectable force to the southward, under the command of an able and discreet officer, will have the effect to restore order and Government in those four Provinces.

The King, whose solicitude for pursuing with vigour every measure that tends to crush the present dangerous rebellion in the Colonies excites in His Majesty the most exemplary attention to every object of advantage, has thought fit, in consequence of these favourable appearances to the southward, to signify His Majesty's pleasure, that five Regiments of Infantry, viz: the Fifteenth, Thirty-Seventh, Fifty-Third, Fifty-Fourth, and Fifty-Seventh, should be ordered to hold themselves in readiness to embark at Cork, on or before the 1st of December, for North-America.

These Regiments will be joined by two Companies of Artillery from hence, who will take with them ten battalion guns, and as many howitzers and amusettes as the number of artillery-men serve, and also ten thousand stand of spare arms; and the whole will be ordered to proceed, under convoy of a proper naval force, to Cape Fear River, at which place there is good ground to hope they will be immediately joined by the Highland emigrants settled in that neighbourhood, whose assistance Governour Martin says we may depend upon.

It is the King's intention that this body of troops should, upon their arrival, be under the command of one of the General Officers who are now with you; and I am to signify to you His Majesty's pleasure that one of them do immediately proceed in a ship of war to Cape Fear River, and to remain on board, either within the river or in the offing, as shall be judged most proper, until the arrival of the forces from Cork, before which time he will probably have been able to collect such information and materials as may enable him the better to judge of the plan of operations to be pursued.

In the consideration of a measure of so much importance, every circumstance that can give facility and security to the landing of the forces from Ireland will deserve attention; and it will certainly be proper, that two or three small vessels, furnished with able pilots, should be appointed to cruise off the coast, and to conduct the fleet into Cape Fear River—a caution which is the most necessary, as the navigation of that part of the coast of America is difficult and dangerous.

I have already mentioned to you the probability that the King's troops will, upon their arrival, be joined by the Highland emigrants; but our expectations on this head are not confined to that description of people only, the inhabitants of four or five of the back Counties have shown the same disposition; and it is these circumstances which have induced the resolution of sending the troops to North-Carolina, and directing them to repair to Cape Fear River, which, from its vicinity to those Counties, as well as from its superior advantages as a port, is judged by the King to be the most proper place.

At the same time, His Majesty does not intend that the General should, in his plan of operations, be confined to any particular Province; his choice of situation must, in that respect, be governed by his own judgment. After maturely weighing every circumstance of greater or less advantage and facility in the means of restoring the public tranquillity, and re-establishing the authority of the King's Government, which object being once effected in any one of the Southern Colonies, the troops may proceed to another, leaving the support and protection of that which has been so reduced to a corps formed out of the well affected Provincials who shall have taken up arms in the King's cause; and His Majesty is not without hope that, by the time that the navigation of the northern coasts of North-America becomes practicable in the spring, the whole of this corps of regular troops may, upon that plan, proceed to join the main Army.

In the consideration of the means of effecting these important services, a great variety of objects present themselves. A landing once obtained, and the troops in secure possession, either of the capital or any of the Provinces, or of any other Town in which the Civil Governour may exercise the functions of his office with safety, the next step will be to require that all Committees of Towns, or Congresses of such Committees, and the unlawful Associations which have been entered into, be dissolved; that the Courts of Justice throughout the Province be opened; that all persons whatsoever do take the oaths of allegiance before the Judges of such Courts; and that those who have, by the instigation of the Committees, taken up arms against lawful authority, do surrender the same, and make such declaration of their future obedience as the Governour shall, with the advice of his Council, direct and require; in which case they may be told that they may expect to be recommended as objects of the royal mercy.

If the inhabitants of the Province, or any part of them, refuse to comply with these requisitions, it will be the duty of the King's General to employ the troops under his command to force them to submission, by seizing the persons and effects of the delinquents, and by attacking and doing their utmost to destroy any Towns in which the people shall assemble in arms, hold meetings of Committees, or Congresses, or prevent the King's Courts of Justice from assembling.

It is possible that the people may be rash enough to appear in the open field against the King's troops, and to hazard an action; but should that be the case, I trust the matter will soon be decided to the advantage of Government. I apprehend, however, that they will not hazard such a conflict; nor is it with any such expectation, that the measure of sending these troops has been adopted here, but principally upon the encouragement held out by the King's Governours, that if such respectable force was sent as might make it safe for the friends of Government to show themselves, they should soon prevail over those who, having found means of getting the sword into their hands, have hitherto been able to effect their rebellious purposes without control. At the same time, therefore, that the Rebels are encouraged to hope for mercy upon submission, every species of reward must be offered to those who have not yet involved themselves in that guilt, and shall consent to list under the royal banner, who, besides an allowance of the same pay as the King's troops receive, so long as they continue in service, may be encouraged to expect a remission of all arrears of quit-rent due to the Crown, and an exemption from payment of any for a few years to come.

In truth, the whole success of the measure His Majesty has adopted depends so much upon a considerable number of inhabitants taking up arms in support of Government, that nothing that can have a tendency to promote it ought to be omitted. I hope we are not deceived in the assurances that have been given; for if we are, and there should be no appearance of a disposition in the inhabitants of the Southern Colonies to join the King's Army, I fear little more will be effected than the gaining possession of some respectable post to the southward, where the officers and servants of Government may find protection, and from which the Rebels may be annoyed by sudden and unexpected attacks of their Towns upon the sea-coast, during the open part of the winter; which attacks, however, may be made very distressing to them, and will be no considerable advantage.

There are, indeed, so many objects of advantage in this expedition, that His Majesty is unwilling to suppose we can fail in them all, or that we shall not be able, at least, to maintain a post in one or other of the four Provinces in rebellion. But, supposing the worst to happen, St. Augustine, in all events, offers a secure retreat to the troops, until the season of the year will admit of their joining your Army.

Having fully explained to you the objects of the intended expedition, I have only to add, that it is not meant that it should prevent you in any measure of the like nature, which you may have had in contemplation, in consequence of my former despatches; on the contrary, the sending a detachment from your Army to any of the four Southern Provinces, where you see an opening for effecting any essential service, may have the consequence to give the greater facility and advantage to the present enterprise; and therefore it is the King's wish that you should pursue that measure, if it can be effected without prejudice to your general plan of operation; of which, however, you must be the best judge, and therefore His Majesty leaves it entirely to your own discretion.

I am, &c.,

DARTMOUTH.

To Major-General Howe.

RICHARD HENRY LEE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Philadelphia, October 22, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I thank you for your obliging favour of the 13th, and I assure you that no man living approves the vigorous measures you mention more than myself. Great bodies, you know, move slow; and it is as sure that the most palpable and glorious events may be delayed, and the best causes finally lost, by slow, timid, and indecisive counsels. We must be content, however, to take human nature as we find it, and endeavour to draw good out of evil. You will no doubt have heard of the disgraceful conduct of Norfolk, in suffering Lord Dunmore, with a few men, to take away their printing press. It happened when the good men of that place were all away, and none but Tories and Negroes remained behind. Virginia is much incensed, and five hundred men are ordered immediately down to Norfolk. I expect by every post to hear of the demolition of that infamous nest of Tories.

By a vessel in twenty days from Quebeck, which I believe brings us later intelligence than you had from thence when the last express left camp, we learn that the Deputy-Governour had twelve Companies of Canadians in training, and that they were generally on their guard. But the same account says the Government was so suspicious of the attachment of its troops, that they were trusted with no more than four rounds of cartridges. This still gives us some hopes of success on that quarter. Before this reaches you will have heard of Colonel Allen's unlucky and unwise attempt upon Montreal, nor have we from the last accounts much prospect of success from St. John's. The Ministerial dependance on Canada is so great that no object can be of greater importance to North-America than to defeat them there. It appears to me that we must have that Country with us this winter, cost what it will. Colonel Stephen writes me from Fort Pitt, that the Indians on that quarter come slowly in to the Commissioners, and that they evidently appear to be waiting the event of things in Canada, when they will surely, according to custom, join the strongest side. We have so many resources for powder, that I think we cannot fail of getting well supplied with that most necessary article.

Remember me, if you please, to General Gates, and to all my acquaintances with you.

I am, with great esteem and sincerity, dear Sir, your affectionate and obedient servant,

RICHARD HENRY LEE.

P. S. Monday morning. 'Tis with infinite concern I inform you that our good old Speaker, Peyton Randolph, Esq., went yesterday to dine with Mr. Harry Hill, was taken during the course of dinner with the dead palsy, and at nine o'clock at night died without a groan. Thus has American Liberty lost a powerful advocate, and human nature a sincere friend.

R. H. L.

COLONEL McDUGALL TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

New-York, October 22, 1775.

SIR: We impatiently wait for intelligence from St. John's, and have not had any from thence to be relied on since September, nor since the batteries were opened against it. The Viper, sloop-of-war, has aped the piratical conduct of the Ministerial ships to the eastward, by taking several of our vessels, inward bound, without so much as the least colour of their having violated any of the acts of trade. Nothing can more clearly manifest the absurdity and injustice of the present measures against this distressed Country, than the violations of those acts which they contend ought to bind the Americans, and which they come to enforce against them by every artifice their wicked hearts can suggest. Will a God of justice suffer such matchless wickedness to pass with impunity? Surely he will not.

This will be delivered to you by Mr. Richard Ray, of this place, whom I beg leave to introduce to you. He goes to the eastward to see the camp. If your attention to the publick service will permit you to show him the civilities due to a gentleman and a stranger, they will be gratefully acknowledged as done to, Sir, your humble servant,

ALEXANDER McDUGALL.

Brigadier-General John Sullivan, Cambridge.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GOVERNOUR CARLETON.

Camp before St. John's, October 22, 1775.

SIR: I have received information from different quarters that the prisoners you have made are treated with cruel and unnecessary severity, being loaded with irons, and that Colonel Allen himself meets with this shocking indignity. Your character, Sir, induces me to hope I am ill informed: nevertheless, the duty I owe the troops committed to my charge lays me under the necessity of acquainting your Excellency that if you avow this conduct, and persist in it, I shall, though with the most painful regret, execute with rigour the just and necessary law of retaliation upon the garrison of Chambly, now in my possession, and upon all others who may hereafter fall into my hands. I must be understood to stipulate for those unfortunate Canadians, your prisoners, who have thrown themselves into the arms of the United Colonies for protection, whose enraged countrymen have with difficulty been restrained from acts of violence on the garrison of Chambly.

I shall expect your Excellency's answer in six days; should the bearer not return in that time, I must interpret your silence into a declaration of a barbarous war. I cannot pass this opportunity without lamenting the melancholy and fatal necessity which obliges the firmest friends of the Constitution to oppose one of the most respectable officers of the Crown.

I am, Sir, &c.,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

To Governour Carleton.

ADDRESS OF THE JUSTICES, ETC., OF THE LIBERTY OF THE TOWER OF LONDON.

Address of the Justices assigned to keep the peace, and of the Grand Jury, Gentlemen, Clergy, Freeholders, and principal Inhabitants of the Liberty of the Tower of London, and Precincts thereof, presented to His Majesty by Robert Fell, David Wilmot, John Spiller, Thomas Tryon Cotton, and Richard Rutson, Esquires, and the Reverend Doctor Mayo.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Justices assigned to keep the peace, and of the Grand Jury, Gentlemen, Clergy, Freeholders, and principal Inhabitants of the Liberty of the Tower of LONDON, and Precincts thereof.

Deeply impressed with a due sense of the blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and gracious Government, we, your Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects, think it our indispensable duty, at this alarming crisis, to declare our abhorrence of the unnatural rebellion in America, excited, encouraged, and supported by the advice and assistance of a few disappointed seditious persons at home.

We feel exceedingly for the distresses of our deluded brethren, and lament the situation into which their own obstinacy and unjust spirit of independency have brought them, under the false colour of opposing the right of British taxation; attempting, at the same time, to captivate your royal mind by setting up charters, granted by the Crown, as superior in operation and effect to those wise and wholesome laws enacted by the British Legislature, for the good of all your Majesty's subjects, abroad and at home.

It is with the greatest respect and gratitude we observe your Majesty, instead of countenancing arbitrary Government, resting the valuable privileges of Britons on their natural and proper basis, viz: King, Lords, and Commons.

May, therefore, that period soon arrive, when the leaders and abettors of this most unnatural rebellion shall be brought to shame and punishment, and due subordination and respect be paid to the British laws. To accomplish which desirable ends, to restore peace and happiness, and to promote every other constitutional purpose, we beg leave to assure your Majesty that we will, to the utmost of our power, support the honour and dignity of the Crown, and maintain, with our lives and properties, the authority of the British Legislature over the whole Empire, against all invaders of our glorious Constitution.

ADDRESS OF THE BAILIFFS AND CITIZENS OF THE CITY OF LITCHFIELD.

Address of the Bailiffs and Citizens of the City of Litchfield, transmitted to the Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Bailiffs and Citizens of the City of LITCHFIELD:

May it please your Majesty to permit us, your dutiful subjects, to approach your sacred person with hearts filled with loyalty, gratitude, and affection, and to express our grief and astonishment that any of your Majesty's Colonies, raised and protected as they have been, and enjoying, in common with all your Majesty's British subjects, the blessings resulting from that most excellent form of Government established in these Kingdoms, and from your Majesty's paternal attention to the welfare of all your subjects, should suffer themselves to be inflamed and drawn into a most causeless and unnatural rebellion. And we think it our duty, as friends to the Constitution, to assure your Majesty that we will cheerfully contribute the utmost in our power in support of such measures as shall be found necessary for asserting and maintaining the supreme legislative authority of the British Parliament through your Majesty's Dominions.

Given under our common seal, at the Guildhall of the said City, the 23d day of October, in the year of our Lord 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF WORCESTER.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Worcester, presented to His Majesty by Edward Foley, Esq., one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Worcester, beg leave to assure your Majesty of our warmest fidelity and attachment. We are sorry to observe that the present season is a crisis which demands an open and explicit avowal of these sentiments from every loyal and faithful subject. That spirit of riot and disorder which has so long prevailed amongst many of your Majesty's subjects in America, has at length terminated in rebellion, and we are alarmed lest our silence, at such a juncture, should, by a misguided and infatuated people, be considered as an approbation of their proceedings. We have beheld their conduct with indignation and abhorrence, convinced that it is founded upon the worst of motives—an hostile and determined opposition to the legislative authority of their parent and protecting Country.

The supremacy of Great Britain, over all its depending parts, is a necessary and essential doctrine of the Constitution of this great Empire; and as the executive power of the Crown can never be so duly and properly employed as in the defence of the laws and Constitution, we trust, and humbly hope, that your Majesty will now effectually exert that power in the support and vindication of the legislative rights of this Country.

We assure your Majesty, that in the prosecution of this just and necessary measure we shall be ready to afford our best assistance with cheerfulness and alacrity; convinced that, by so doing, we shall support the true and most valuable interests of commerce, and contribute to the permanent prosperity of your Majesty and this Country.

Worcester, October 23, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BISHOP AND CLERGY OF THE ISLE OF MAN.

Address of the Bishop and Clergy of the Isle and Diocese of Man, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty:

Permit, most gracious Sovereign, the Bishop and Clergy of the Isle and Diocese of Man, few in number, inconsiderable in influence, and remote in situation, but in duty and affection to your sacred person, your family and Government, equal to those of any Diocese in your Majesty's Dominions, to express before you sentiments which, springing warm from their hearts, their coolest and most deliberate judgments also approve.

Fully sensible of our own unimportance, we should think it presumption to interrupt your Majesty with the tender of our most humble duty, did not the circumstances of the times, and the very culpable behaviour of some of our fellow-subjects, seem to call upon all persons, of all ranks and professions, "high and low, rich and poor, one with another," to declare their abhorrence of the daring and unprovoked rebellion, begun and carried on in several of your Majesty's Colonies, against the authority of the whole legislative power of Great Britain.

We profess the same passion for freedom, the same steady adherence to our just and legal rights, which is pretended to be the object in pursuit by the advocates for nominal liberty and real licentiousness; but we know not, nor expect any true liberty except under the guardianship of the laws; and we know not, and hope never to know, any other guardians of the laws than our Sovereign and his two Houses of Parliament.

That the deluded and unthinking many are (as is usual in such cases) misled and deceived by the designing and ambitious few, we are fully persuaded; and that the former may have their eyes opened, their errors removed, and (then) their faults forgiven, and the latter be brought to speedy repentance, or to their deserved punishment, we earnestly pray.

Our prayers and our hearts are, alas, all we have to offer to your Majesty; but these, because sincere, will by you, Sire, not be disdained.

May the present disturbance be the only one that shall ever disquiet your royal and benevolent mind. May it be short as the transient storm, and be succeeded by an unruffled calm, a long and glorious sunshine. May all your subjects, both at home and abroad, be duly sensible of the blessings we enjoy under your just and gentle rule; and may they express their grateful sense of those blessings by unfeigned piety towards their God, and undissembled loyalty to their King. May your Majesty's enemies (who, if your subjects, are enemies to their Country) "be clothed with rebuke, with shame and dishonour; but upon your own royal head, and on those of your posterity, may your crown flourish till all human empire shall be no more."

R. SODOR & MAN;

W. MYLREA, Archdeacon;

JA. WILKS, Vicar-General and Rector of Ballaugh;

JOH. MOORE, Vicar-General and Vicar of the Arbory;

TH. CUBBON, Official and Vicar of Kirk Maughold;

PHILIP MOORE, Rector of Kirk Bride;

EV. CHRISTIAN, Ep. Reg. and Vicar of Kirk Patrick;

WM. CLUCAS, Domestick Chaplain to Lord Bishop;

JOHN CHRISTIAN, Vicar of Kirk Marown;

CHARLES CREBBIN, Vicar of St. Anne's;

ROBERT QUAYLE, Curate of Douglas;

THO. W. J. WOODS, Vicar of Kirk Braddan;

THOMAS QUAYLE, Vicar of Kirk Onchan;

SAMUEL GELL, Vicar of Louan;

THOS. CASTLEY, Chaplain to the Governour;

In the name of themselves and the rest of the Clergy of the Diocese.

Peele-Town, Isle of Man, October 23, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE HOUSE OF KEYS, REPRESENTING THE ISLE OF MAN.

Address of the House of Keys, representing the Isle of Man, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal subjects, the House of Keys, representing the Isle of Man, humbly beg leave to approach your Majesty's throne with this our dutiful Address, sensible of the blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's Government. We are desirous to express our loyalty and affection to your Majesty's person, and our utter detestation of all traitorous conspiracies and rebellion, and especially at this critical juncture, when an unnatural rebellion has been raised in some of your Majesty's Colonies, and encouraged and abetted by wicked and designing men.

We not only lament the delusion of those unhappy people, but think it our duty, as loyal subjects and well-wishers to our happy Constitution, openly to declare our abhorrence of such misdoings.

We trust in your Majesty's wisdom, that every means will be used to bring them to a proper sense of the allegiance which they owe to your Majesty, and the power which has protected and preserved them; and we are confident your Majesty will exert that power with lenity. And we most fervently pray that Divine Providence may so prosper your Majesty's benevolent intentions, that your mistaken and deluded subjects in America may see their errors, and become once more happily united under your Majesty's constitutional Government; and that the blessings derived to us from your Majesty's august family may continue, and be handed down to our latest posterity.

Dated at our House in Castletown, the 23d day of October, 1775.

GEORGE MOORE,

JOHN TAUBMAN,

WILLIAM MURRAY,

JOHN TRISSELL,

PHILIP MOORE,

THOMAS FARGHER,

MAT. CHRISTIAN,

WILLIAM CALLOW,

THOMAS RADCLIFFE,

SAM. WATTLEWORTH,

WILLIAM QUAYLE,

RICHARD TYLDESLEY,

JOHN CESAR,

HUGH COSNAHAN,

WILLIAM CUBBON,

WILLIAM CALLOW,

WILL. QUALTROUGH,

THOMAS GAWNE,

WILLIAM CHRISTIAN,

PHILIP MOORE,

JOHN STEVENSON,

JAMES OATES,

THOMAS CHRISTIAN.

Tower of London, October 23, 1775.

This morning, between nine and ten, Mr. Stavelly, of Half Moon Street, Piccadilly, and Mr. Mann, of Queen Anne Street, Westminster, (both King's Messengers,) attended by a Constable, repaired to the house of Stephen Sayre, Esq., in Oxford Street. As an excuse to obtain an interview with Mr. Sayre, they said that a forged draft, for two hundred Pounds, had been issued by the bank of which Mr. Sayre is a proprietor. Mr. Sayre appeared, and they acquainted him that "they had an order, signed by Lord Rochford, one of the Secretaries of State, to take him into custody, on a charge of high treason; and to search for, seize, and carry with them, such of his papers as they might deem effectual for their purpose."

Mr. Sayre heard the summons with composure, and obeyed. Conscious of his innocence, he smiled at the heinousness of the charge; and, in a perfect reliance on his own integrity, he permitted them to examine and to take such papers as they thought proper.

Mr. Sayre expressed his readiness to accompany them to Lord Rochford's house, having previously despatched a servant to Mr. Reynolds, requiring his attendance with the utmost expedition. The King's Messengers conducted Mr. Sayre to Lord Rochford, who had Sir John Fielding with him.

An information from one Richardson, an Adjutant of the Guards, was read. The charge contained in this information was to the following purport:

"That Stephen Sayre, Esq., had expressed to him, the said Richardson, an intention of seizing the King's person, as His Majesty went, on Thursday, to the Parliament House; also, an intention of taking possession of the Tower, and of overturning the present Government."

After this information had been read, Mr. Sayre replied, that, in the course of conversation with Mr. Richardson, he had expressed himself very freely concerning the unhappy and destructive contest now depending in America, &c., &c., and that he concluded this conversation by saying, he feared there was not spirit enough in this Country to bring about a total change of men and measures; but that as to any plan or intention about seizing the person of the King, or any expression which could be construed into such intention, he totally and utterly denied.

Mr. Sayre then begged his Lordship's leave to make an observation or two upon the matter. He observed, that had there been any such plan under consideration, Mr. Richardson should, if in his senses, have concealed his resolution of divulging it, until some further steps were taken; that by a little delay, Mr. Richardson, in case the design had been real, must have been furnished with a thousand corroborating circumstances. But, says Mr. Sayre, I perceive there is a dangerous disposition, which gives high encouragement to informers, and marks Government as unfavourable to liberty, whether their information proves well grounded or not.

His Lordship very fairly acquiesced in those sentiments, and made a very handsome apology that he should be under a necessity of giving attention to the business.

Mr. Sayre was about to enter more largely into the futility of the charge, when it was announced to Lord

Rochford and the Justice, "that Mr. Reynolds demanded immediate admittance to his client." Several messages passed, but that which could not be denied as a matter of right, was granted as a matter of favour. Mr. Reynolds was admitted, and having been introduced to Lord Rochford and Sir John Fielding, the latter put the following question to Mr. Reynolds:

"Is it Mr. Sayre's desire that you should attend in his behalf?"

Mr. Reynolds replied in the affirmative. Sir John Fielding said, "that this was not true." Mr. Reynolds replied, "that Sir John Fielding, as a Magistrate, might say that which, as a gentleman, he could not justify." The Knight then desired that it might be asked of Mr. Sayre, "Whether he had sent for Mr. Reynolds." Mr. Sayre replied, "he had sent for him, without mentioning the place where he was to attend."

These disputes being adjusted, it was agreed that Mr. Reynolds might attend the private examination of his friend. The first advice Mr. Reynolds gave to Mr. Sayre was, "that he should not answer any interrogatories which Lord Rochford or Sir John Fielding might propound, and that he should not sign any paper."

The information which contained the charge was a second time read, at the request of Mr. Sayre, who smiled at the recital, (Mr. Reynolds joining in the laugh,) and said, "that the whole was too ridiculous to be seriously attended to." An altercation then ensued between Mr. Reynolds and Adjutant Richardson, the informer. Lord Rochford and Sir John Fielding were requested by the informer to silence Mr. Reynolds. He saved them the trouble, by observing, "that he should always pay a proper deference to authority, but whatever he had there said of the informer he would repeat in any other place whatever."

Mr. Reynolds then told Lord Rochford, "that if, after consulting the great law officers of State, (which his Lordship would do of course,) as the information did not amount to a direct charge against Mr. Sayre, his Lordship should think himself warranted to receive bail, ample and sufficient bail should be given; but if it was thought warrantable to commit, he scorned to ask a favour for his client."

Mr. Sayre was ordered into an adjacent apartment, and he was soon afterwards committed a close prisoner to the Tower.

The following is a true copy of the warrant of commitment.

"WILLIAM HENRY, Earl of ROCHFORD, one of the Lords of His Majesty's Most Honourable Privy Council, and principal Secretary of State:

"These are, in His Majesty's name, to authorize and require you to receive into your custody the body of Stephen Sayre, Esq., herewith sent you, being charged upon oath before me, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, with treasonable practices, and to keep him in close custody, until he shall be delivered by due course of law; and for so doing, this shall be your warrant.

"Given at St. James's, on the 23d day of October, 1775, in the fifteenth year of His Majesty's reign.

"ROCHFORD.

"To the Earl Cornwallis, Constable of His Majesty's Tower of London, or to the Lieutenant of the said Tower, or his Deputy."

The information against Mr. Sayre must strike every sensible mind as impossible to be true. A private individual was to seize the King's person on that very day when His Majesty is most securely guarded. This private person, having so seized the King, was to have secured His Majesty a close prisoner in the Tower; the guards were to be bribed into acquiescence, &c.

After Mr. Sayre was committed to the Tower, he sent the following letter to the Secretary of State:

"Mr. Sayre to Lord Rochford:

"MY LORD: I find, upon reading the warrant of commitment, that the commanding officer here cannot permit my friends to visit me, unless by express orders from your Lordship. If it is in your Lordship's power, I have no doubt but you will readily grant me that indulgence.

"I am, &c.

"Tower, 3 o'clock, October 23, 1775."

In consequence of which, Mrs. Sayre only was permitted to visit him. Lord Effingham, Mr. Edmund Burke, the Lord Mayor, Mr. Ellis, &c., &c., were refused.

October 28, 1775.

A writ of habeas corpus having been granted for the purpose of bringing Mr. Sayre before a Judge, in order that the informality of the warrant whereby he was committed might be argued, and that bail in consequence might be tendered for his enlargement, the writ being made returnable before Lord Mansfield, Mr. Sayre was this day conducted to his Lordship's house, in Bloomsbury Square. Mr. Sayre was attended by several counsel, together with Mr. Reynolds, his Solicitor. Mr. White, the Solicitor in behalf of the Crown, was also present. The counsel in behalf of Mr. Sayre rested their plea "on the extreme impropriety of committing a prisoner to close confinement by virtue of a warrant which conveyed no specific charge whatever." A tender of bail was then made, and Lord Mansfield, after inspecting the warrant, declared, "that not a doubt remained on his mind but that Mr. Sayre was clearly entitled to be bailed. The charge," Lord Mansfield said, "admitting it to be true, amounted only to a misdemeanor. Had, therefore, Mr. Sayre been brought up unattended by counsel, his Lordship declared he should instantly have admitted him to bail; and if the Court of King's Bench should be moved, on the first day of the ensuing term, Lord Mansfield intimated, that, for his part, he should have no scruple to discharge Mr. Sayre on his own recognizance."

Mr. Sayre said, "I thank your Lordship for granting me this ready admission to bail, and for your politeness on this occasion; and your Lordship must think with pleasure, as I do, on the wisdom of our ancestors, in providing this barrier against despotism." Lord Mansfield: "True, Mr. Sayre, but law is the barrier against both extremes, and to live within it, is the only way for us all to be secure and free."

Bail was then tendered and accepted. Mr. Sayre was bound in five hundred Pounds; Messrs. Reynolds and Coote Purdon in two hundred and fifty Pounds each.

CHESTER COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

Monday, October 23, 1775.

Pursuant to publick notice given, the Committee met at the house of David Cowpland, in the Borough of Chester. Present:

Anthony Wayne, James Moore, Evan Evans, and Francis Johnston, Esqs.; John Hart, Richard Thomas, John Richardson, Persifer Frazer, William Adams, Henry Hayes, Isaac Lloyd, Benjamin Brannon, Peter Hartman, Samuel Culbertson, William Evans, David Simson, John Fullton, Andrew Boyd, Jona. Vernon, Paul McKnight, Samuel Cunningham, Samuel Trémble, Frederick Fairlamb, Thomas Levis, Caleb Davis, William Montgomery, James Dunwoody, Patrick Anderson, George Pierce, Joseph McKinley, Dr. Samuel Kennedy, Thomas Smith, and Lewis Gronow.

Anthony Wayne, Esquire, was elected Chairman, and Francis Johnston, Esquire, Secretary.

Extract from the Proceedings of the Congress.

1st. "Such as are venders of Goods or Merchandise will not take advantage of the scarcity of Goods that may be occasioned by this Association, but will sell the same at the rates we have been respectively accustomed to do for twelve months last past; and if any vender of Goods or Merchandise shall sell any such Goods on higher terms, or shall in any manner, or by any device whatsoever, violate or depart from this agreement, no person ought, nor will any of us deal with any such person, or his or her factor or agent, at any time thereafter, for any commodity whatever."

For the more effectual carrying into execution the foregoing Resolve:

Resolved, That if it shall come to the knowledge of any Member of this Committee that any Retailer of Goods in this County demands or takes any higher rate for the same than allowed of by the Continental Congress, such Member shall require of him or her so offending a true copy of the original Invoices of said Goods, and shall lay the same before this Committee at their next meeting, in order that such Retailer, and the Merchant from whom he purchased, may be dealt with as the case may require.

2d. On motion, Ordered, That each Member of this Committee do immediately make return to the Chairman of the quantity of Powder which he already has or may collect within his District, together with the price and the name of the owner thereof, that the same may be paid for.

3d. On motion, Resolved, That Anthony Wayne, Francis Johnston, and Elisha Price, Esqs.; Mr. Richardson, Mr. Knowles, Mr. Lloyd, and Mr. Brannon, be, and they are hereby appointed a Committee of Correspondence for this County.

Extracts from the Minutes. By order of the Committee:
FRANCIS JOHNSTON, Secretary.

CONCESSION OF ROBERT FERGUSON.

Whereas I, Robert Ferguson, of the Borough of Ches-ter, have violated the Continental Association, by taking an unusual and exorbitant price for some of my goods, and being conscious of my error, do hereby solemnly promise in future to be governed by said Association in all my mercantile dealings. As witness my hand, this 24th of October, 1775.

ROBERT FERGUSON.

GENERAL GREENE TO GOVERNOUR WARD.

Prospect-Hill, October 23, 1775.

An express arrived from Casco Bay last evening, bringing an account that the enemy had been firing a day or two upon Falmouth. What has been the consequence we have not heard. The enemy had orders to burn Falmouth and Portsmouth, unless the inhabitants would deliver up their arms, and give hostages for their future good behaviour. Truly, "their tender mercies are cruelties!" Will not this brutal conduct rouse a spirit of indignation throughout America? Such a shocking scene as was exhibited at Bristol, you cannot conceive of. The people of Newport are all moving into the country. The night after Wallace returned from Bristol, the confusion in Newport was nearly equal to what it was there. Captain Wallace has made the inhabitants the following proposition: "If they will supply his vessels with fresh provisions, beer, &c., and remove the troops from the island, he will spare the Town; but if they do not comply with these conditions, he has positive orders to lay it in ashes, which he is determined to execute." What will be the event, God only knows. There is a Committee from Newport down here, to see Governour Cooke, to get an order for the removal of the troops, and liberty to furnish the ships with fresh provisions. The matter was laid before the Continental Committee, who advised furnishing the ships with fresh provisions, but not to remove the troops off the island; which, I suppose, will take place. But there appears a strange hobble in our gait. Here, we are at loggerheads; in other places, only sparring; and others, again, are in perfect tranquillity: here, we are cutting them off from fresh provisions, and removing the stock from the island, which amounts to a perfect depopulation, while at New-York, Philadelphia, and many other parts of America, their ships are supplied with every thing they stand in need of, and live in the midst of peace and plenty. If we are to be considered as one people, and they as the common enemy, upon what principles are they so differently treated in different Governments? Oh, could the Congress behold the distresses and wretched condition of the poor inhabitants, driven from the sea-port Towns, it must, it would kindle a blaze of indignation against the commissioned pirates and licensed robbers. They would not be permitted to find rest or an abiding place in America. The fate of Kingdoms depends upon the just improvement of critical minutes. Suffer not the noble ardour to slacken for want of action, nor smother the generous flame for want of fuel. The temper and feeling of men can be wrought up to a certain pitch, and then, like all transitory things, they sicken and subside. This is the time for a wise legislator to avail himself of the advantage which the favourable disposition of the people gives him to execute whatever sound policy dictates. It is not in the province of mortals to reduce human events in politicks to a certainty. It is our duty to provide the means to obtain our ends, and leave the event to Him who is the all wise governour and disposer of the universe.

The state of Rhode-Island, from its situation, must suffer amazingly. The stock, which lies exposed to the enemy's ravages, would be a plentiful supply for their troops in Boston. An object so considerable will not escape their attention. Without doubt they will attempt to avail themselves of the advantage. The situation of the island affords the means, and the attempt must be successful, unless some provision be made to frustrate their measures. As their defeat is a general benefit, it is but just that it should come within the line of a general charge against the Continent. Fresh provisions will be of infinite service to the troops in Boston. If they do not provide some very fine anti-scorbuticks, they must suffer amazingly by the scurvy. By two Captains of vessels, who came out of Boston the day before yesterday, we learn that it is extremely sickly; eight or ten are buried every day. Cold weather coming on, with the scurvy locked up in their blood, from eating salt provisions, must produce a prodigious mortality. Nothing can heighten their distress so much as cutting them off from fresh provisions. Therefore, I think it a subject worthy publick attention, to lend a helping hand to Rhode-Island, to secure the stock on the island. It must be grievous to the inhabitants to be subject to such an expense themselves, and unjust, seeing the whole Continent are to be benefited by its consequences.

The Committee has been closely engaged in forming a plan for regulating the Army. I hope, when the Army is re-enlisted, and the best of the officers selected, the troops will be under better regulation. The number agreed on may be larger than may appear necessary, but when you consider how raw and undisciplined the troops are in general, and what warlike preparations are going on in England, and how necessary it is to have a good Army in the spring, and the favourable prospect we shall have of making ourselves masters of Boston this winter, I doubt not you will cheerfully concur in the establishment. The General Officers agreed upon twenty thousand. What number the Committee has determined upon, I have not heard, but make no doubt they will approve of the number agreed to by the Generals.

I wish we had a large stock of powder, that we might annoy the enemy wherever they made their appearance. We could easily, in my opinion, drive them out of Boston, if we had the means; but for want thereof, we are obliged to remain idle spectators; for we cannot get at them, and they are determined not to come to us. However, I hope ere long fortune will favour us agreeably to our wishes.

I hinted, in my last, that people began heartily to wish a declaration of independence. I would make it treason against the States to make any further remittances to Great Britain, and stop all supplies to their shipping. We had as well begin in earnest at first as at last; for we have no alternative but to fight it out, or be slaves. We should open our ports to all who have a mind to come and trade with us. But it will be necessary to keep a check upon commerce, lest it take the lead of military pursuits. The merchants are generally a body of people whose god is gain, and their whole plan of policy is to bring publick measures to square with their private interest.

The French will never agree to furnish us with powder, as long as there is the least probability of an accommodation between us and Great Britain. The alternative is a separation from Great Britain, or subjugation to her. In the latter case, Great Britain, as a Nation, will receive little or no advantage from the Colonies; for slavery is ever unfriendly to trade, and trade is the strength and sinews of Great Britain. Therefore, France, as a real enemy to Great Britain, acts upon a true plan of policy, in refusing to intermeddle, until she is satisfied that there is no hope of accommodation. Then she can interpose with propriety to lend us a helping hand. Should France undertake to furnish us with powder and other articles, and the breach between Great Britain and the Colonies be afterwards made up, she would incur the hostility of her rival, without reaping any solid advantage.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Head-Quarters, October 23, 1775.

SIR: This will be presented to your hands by a First Lieutenant of Colonel Thompson's Battalion of Riflemen, who has under his command a party of experienced Riflemen, whom the General thinks you might dispose of to advantage, should the enemy attempt to set fire to the Town of Portsmouth, as he is informed the entrance of the harbour is narrow, and much commanded by high ground and rocks. The officer is directed to wait your commands the moment he arrives at Portsmouth.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

HORATIO GATES, *Adj. Gen.*To Brigadier-General Sullivan, Commanding the Forces of the United Colonies at Portsmouth.

COL. JOSEPH REED TO THE SELECTMEN OF BOSTON.

Roxbury, October 23, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have it in command from his Excellency General Washington to acquaint you that your letter to William Philips, Esq., came in course to Head-Quarters. His Excellency wishes to show every mark of attention to the Selectmen of Boston; at the same time he thinks Col. Robertson cannot expect his request to be complied with without a suitable return. He has therefore directed me to say, that Master Lovell, who has suffered a long and injurious confinement, can be set at liberty, and exchanged for the friend of Colonel Robertson. The latter will be immediately sent for to Hartford for that purpose, and the exchange made as soon as possible.

I have the honour to be, Gentlemen, with much respect, your most obedient humble servant,

JOSEPH REED.

To John Scollay and others, Selectmen of the Town of Boston.

LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN EDINBURGH, SCOTLAND.

Boston, October 23, 1775.

SIR: Within these two or three years, we have had most pompous accounts published of the several manufactures carrying on here; and by the English prints I find the very same falsehoods repeated there, no doubt to answer some wicked purpose. That the world may know the real true state to be depended upon of the manufactures going on in this Province, I send you the following by Captain Watson, of the Kitty, bound to Bristol; and am, as before, yours, &c.

A Letter concerning the AMERICAN Manufactures.

The New-England Colonies are not well adapted for raising and keeping large stocks of sheep, for they require a spacious range of pasture, and the benefit of getting at the ground in winter, which they cannot do where the snow falls deep, and continues long, as generally happens in this Province; for this reason, the greatest number of sheep are raised and kept on the sea-coasts and islands, where the snow does not lie so long as it doth in the inland parts. The wool raised on these islands is nearly as good as that in England, if proper care be taken of the sheep; but, as they are not so large, they rarely produce more than a fleece from two to two pounds and an half per season, one sheep with another, upon the best computation that has been made. There is not more wool produced annually here than what is barely sufficient to make stockings for the inhabitants; and, notwithstanding all the boasted publications of our increasing manufactures, we neither can make nor have made any more woollens than heretofore, for we have always worked up all our fleeces; have never exported any, consequently cannot exceed what we used to do. I am informed that in Philadelphia, and the Colonies to the southward, their wool is so coarse that it will make no cloth but of the lowest sort, and every body knows the nigher to the line the sheep grow smoother, inclining even to hair.

The New-Englanders have every advantage for making linen cloth, as our soil produces (with proper culture) the greatest crops of good flax, and the exportation of the flax-seed (for which we have always a ready sale in Ire- land) will nearly pay the cost of raising our flax; and in regard to the bleaching, it is not half so expensive as in that Kingdom, because we have much more sun, and plenty of wood-ashes and pot-ashes, articles more necessary for the above purpose; yet, notwithstanding all these advantages, the linens made in these Colonies are mere trifles in comparison of what are used in them.

We have attempted, within these thirty-five years, the making of nails three times; but the attempt always miscarried, since it was found, on repeated trials, that these commodities could be imported from England much cheaper than made here; and, as most of the dwellings here are made of wood, every house takes twenty times the quantity of nails that it would do in England.

It may be asked here, why people, under all these advantages, do not carry on such manufactures as their Country is so well adapted to succeed in. The answer is very plain: because every man can avail himself of one or two hundred acres of land for a mere bagatelle, with which he can support himself and family easier than by going into manufactures.

Then it follows, of course, that, by the American plan of non-importation, they will suffer more than Great Britain; for, in two years' time, they will not have clothes to defend them from the severity of the weather, nor will they have nails to build their houses. Besides, if their ports are kept well blocked up, they will not be able to procure either rum, sugar, molasses, coffee, cocoa, &c., and yet so great use has been made of these articles in all the Colonies, that they are almost become necessities of life; by this means they can have no other drink but water, and a little ordinary cider, from October to June, and of that not near a sufficiency for the inhabitants, for all their beer is made of molasses.

The people in the New-England Colonies (large seaport Towns excepted) live on salt provisions more than three-quarters of the year. The stopping of salt alone will prove their ruin, and, on the best inquiries I can make, they will suffer much this year from the scarcity of that article; so that their own plan of non-exportation, and the restraining act well put in execution, will cause such heavy sufferings among them, that they must be obliged to accept of any terms prescribed by Great Britain, (before two years be over,) and the more especially when they will have a large Army ravaging their Country, which will, in a great measure, put a stop to their agriculture.

ADDRESS OF THE HIGH SHERIFF, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF DEVON.

Address of the High Sheriff, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Devon, presented to His Majesty, by John Parker, Esq., one of their Representatives in Parliament; Charles Warwick Bampfylde, Esq., one of the Representatives in Parliament for the City of Exeter; John Dyke Acland, one of the Representatives in Parliament for Callington, in Cornwall; and Henry Arthur Fellowes, Esq., High Sheriff of the said County of Devon.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the High Sheriff, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Devon.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the High Sheriff, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Devon, impressed with the deepest affection and loyalty for your Majesty's person and Government, think, that did we remain silent spectators of the present awful situation of publick affairs, we should not perform the duty we owe to your Majesty, our Country, ourselves, and our posterity.

Permit us therefore, in the strongest terms, to assure your Majesty, that the various arts which have succeeded in some part of your Majesty's Dominions to inflame the minds of your subjects, have been tried on us in vain; possessed of that manly rational liberty which Britons alone enjoy, we cannot, by any artifice, be induced to imagine grievances that do not exist, or complain of oppressions we do not feel.

Unable to deceive, these arts have animated us with that becoming indignation which must actuate the mind of every man, jealous of holding his property, not by uncertain tenure of anarchy and confusion, but by the wholesome regulation of those just and wise laws, under which this free Country has so long and so pre-eminently flourished.

We are happy thus publickly to acknowledge the moderation and justice of your Majesty's Government, thoroughly satisfied that a grateful posterity will do that justice to a reign, which the envy of the factious, and the ambition of the disappointed, may at present refuse.

And here we must lament the infatuation, whilst we abhor the conduct of your American subjects, whose daring and unwarranted attacks on the legislative rights of Parliament, will, if unsubdued, perpetuate dishonour on this Country; and as we cannot but esteem national dishonour the sure presage of national calamity, we trust in the justice, wisdom, and vigour of your Majesty's counsels, that it will be speedily and effectually done away.

May your Majesty's throne be established for ever; may this Constitution, which enables your Majesty, and we trust will enable your latest posterity, to diffuse blessings over a happy land, remain sacred and inviolate, cherished and supported by the wisdom of our descendants, as it was formed by the virtue and sagacity of our ancestors.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF PEEBLES.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the Borough of Peebles, presented to His Majesty by Sir James Cockburn, Bart., Representative in Parliament for Peebles, Lanark, Linlithgow, and Selkirk.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Borough of Peebles, in Council assembled, beg leave to approach your royal throne, and, with hearts full of gratitude, express the many and great blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's wise, mild, and auspicious Government.

It is with the utmost abhorrence and detestation we see a rebellion carried on in some of your Majesty's Colonies, instigated and promoted by a seditious and evil-minded faction at home.

With the greatest respect and fidelity we beg leave to assure your Majesty, that we will be ready at all times, with our lives and fortunes, to defend your Majesty's person and family; support your Government, and the legislative authority of these realms, against all deluded and seditious subjects, at home or abroad.

That a continuance of the wise and prudent measures hitherto adopted, with respect to America, may soon reduce these infatuated people to their duty; that sedition may be extirpated these realms; and that your Majesty may long reign over a free and united people, are the sincere prayers of,

Signed in presence, and by appointment, and the Town's seal affixed, at Peebles, the twenty-fourth day of October, 1775.

WILLIAM KER, Provost.

ADDRESS OF THE ANCIENT BOROUGH OF CHRIST CHURCH.

Address of the Mayor and Burgesses of the ancient Borough of Christ Church, in the County of Southampton, presented to His Majesty by the Honourable Thomas Villiers Hyde and James Harris, Esq., their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor and Burgesses of the ancient Borough of CHRIST CHURCH, in the County of SOUTHAMPTON.

SIRE: We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor and Burgesses of your ancient Borough of Christ Church, beg leave to approach your royal throne, with every sentiment of affection, zeal, and gratitude.

It is with the deepest concern that we see a desperate attempt made to reject the sovereignty of this Country, by those who owe the very power of resisting it to its long, its expensive, and its parental protection.

We are daily taught the difference between freedom and despotism, and we are taught it in the surest way, not by words, but by deeds.

Under the mild and constitutional Government of your Majesty, we in this island feel both our persons and properties secured; nay, even those among us who affect to entertain a different opinion, and who sometimes perhaps differ, not in a manner the most respectful, are permitted to do it with impunity, and show by that impunity their charge of despotism to be groundless.

But when we look to the real regions of despotism (be they in the east or elsewhere) we find no such equity, no such tolerance; the minutest difference in sentiment is sure to expose the unhappy dissentient, however innocent, however conscientious, to infamous injustice and insolent cruelty.

When we reflect on these events, we cannot but be sensible that we have no other protection to shield us from anarchy and oppression, and to preserve our excellent Constitution unbroken, whole, and entire, than the wisdom and firmness of your Majesty's counsels, supported and enforced by the efforts of your Parliament.

We humbly beg your Majesty's permission to lay these our sentiments at your feet; and, while we assure your Majesty of our firm and unfeigned attachment, to add our fervent prayers for our deluded fellow-subjects, that they may become sensible of their error; that they may depart from their hostilities, and return to a sense of that duty which they owe to the British Legislature, and to the best of Princes.

Given under our common seal, at a full Assembly, in our Town-hall, this twenty-fourth day of October, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

THOMAS MEWS, Mayor ,	JASPER BURSEY,
JOHN REEKS,	ABRAHAM DAW,
JOS. STEVENS JEANS,	RICHARD HOLLOWAY,
JOHN LLOYD,	THOMAS JEANS,
THOMAS MEWS, JUN.,	JOS. GIBBS,
WILLIAM NEWSAM,	HENRY GIBBS,
JOHN HORLOCK,	ROBERT REEKS,
JOHN COOK,	EDWARD HOOPER,
WILLIAM JACKSON,	WILLIAM DALE,
JOS. JARVIS CLERKE,	JAMES TALMAN.

WESTCHESTER COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

White Plains, October 24, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Committee of Westchester County, thinking it highly necessary, from the complexion of the times, that a Minute Regiment should be completed in this County as soon as possible, take the liberty, with all submission, to recommend Samuel Drake, to be Colonel; Lewis Graham, Lieutenant-Colonel; Abraham Storm, First Major; Samuel Lyon, of Northcastle, Second Major; Elijah Mills, Adjutant; and Josiah Mills, to be Quartermaster.

We hope that if the persons we have taken the freedom to recommend should be looked upon as the most proper, or others should be thought more fit, that the honourable Congress will be pleased to direct commissions to be made out, and sent with expedition.

We are, Gentlemen, your most humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

GILBERT DRAKE, Chairman.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress at New-York.

MINUTE OFFICERS IN WESTCHESTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Officers of the Minute Company of Poundridge, and Lower Salem: Ebenezer Slason, Captain; Henry Slason, First Lieutenant; Ebenezer Scofield, Jun., Second Lieutenant; Daniel Waterbury, Third Lieutenant or Ensign.

Officers of the Minute Company in Bedford: Eli Seely, Captain; Zephaniah Mills, First Lieutenant; Cornelius Clark, Second Lieutenant; Philip Leek, Third Lieutenant or Ensign.

The above Officers have been duly elected by the Minute Companies, and the Committee are desirous to have their commissions forwarded with the utmost expedition.

There are two Companies of Minute-Men nearly completed in the Manor of Cortlandt—one in the Eastern District, the other in the Western District. The Committee think it of importance (if it can be done) that blank commissions should be sent to the Chairman, to be filled up by him, as soon as the Officers are elected.

By order of the Committee:

GILBERT DRAKE, Chairman.

White Plains, October 24, 1775.

SUFFOLK COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

At a meeting of the several Committees in the First Regiment in Suffolk County, held at Smithtown, the 24th October, 1775, Mr. William Smith appointed Chairman. Present:

FROM HUNTINGTON: Jesse Brush, Esq., Thomas Wickes, Esq., Gilbert Potter, Stephen Keley, John Squier, Stephen Ketcham, Timothy Ketcham, Henry Scudder, Thomas Brush, Jun., Israel Wood, Ebenezer Platt.

SMITHTOWN: Daniel Tillotson, Thomas Treadwell, Esq., Jeffery Smith, Philetus Smith, Daniel Smith, Captain Job Smith, Jacob Mills, Edmund Smith, Jun., Epenetus Smith, Samuel Phillips.

MANOR OF ST. GEORGES: Mr. William Smith, Jonah Hulse.

MERICHS: Captain Joliah Smith.

BROOKHAVEN: Captain Samuel Thompson, William Brewster, John Woodhull, Daniel Roe, Nathaniel Roe, Noah Hallock, Captain Jonathan Baker, Richard Woodhull, Esq.

At this meeting, a commission of the First Major in this Regiment being offered to Mr. Nathan Woodhull, he declined taking the same, offering such reasons as are satisfactory to this Committee. Likewise, a commission of a Second Major in the abovesaid Regiment being offered to Mr. Edmund Smith, Jun., he declined taking the same, offering reasons satisfactory to this Committee. They then received the thanks of this Committee for their publick spirit in their resignations.

The Committee then proceeded to the nomination of two Majors to fill the above vacancies, which is as follows, viz: Mr. Jeffery Smith, for the First Major; Captain Jesse Brush, Second Major.

Signed by order of the Committee:

WILLIAM SMITH.

To Colonel Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read November 1, 1775.]

Camp at Cambridge, October 24, 1775.

SIR: My conjecture of the destination of the late squadron from Boston, in my last, has been unhappily verified, by an outrage exceeding in barbarity and cruelty every hostile act practised among civilized nations. I have enclosed the account given me by Mr. Jones, a gentleman of the Town of Falmouth, of the destruction of that increasing and flourishing village. He is a very great sufferer, and informs me that the time allowed for the removal of effects was so small that valuable property of all kinds, and to a great amount, has been destroyed. The orders shown by the Captain for this horrid procedure, by which it appears the same desolation is meditated upon all the Towns on the coast, made it my duty to communicate it as quickly and extensively as possible. As Portsmouth was the next place to which he proposed to go, General Sullivan was permitted to go up and give them his assistance and advice, to ward off the blow. I flatter myself the like event will not happen there, as they have a fortification of some strength, and a vessel has arrived at a place called Sheepscut, with one thousand five hundred pounds of powder.

The gentlemen of the Congress have nearly finished their business; but, as they write by this opportunity, I must beg leave to refer you to their letter for what concerns their commission.

We have had no occurrence of any consequence in the camp since I had the honour of addressing you last; but expect every hour to hear that Newport has shared the fate of unhappy Falmouth.

I have the honour to be, with the most sincere respect, Sir, your most obedient and humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Falmouth, Monday, October 16, 1775.

The Canceau ship, of sixteen guns, commanded by Captain Mowat, a large ship, schooner, and a sloop, armed, anchored below the Town. The 17th, at three, P. M., they weighed and came up, and anchored within gun shot, and immediately Captain Mowat sent a letter on shore to the Town, giving them two hours to move their families out, as he had orders to fire the Town. The Town immediately chose a Committee of three gentlemen, and sent them on board, to know the reason of that Town's being set on fire; he returned for answer, that his orders were to set fire to all the sea-port Towns between Boston and Halifax, and that he expected New-York was then burnt to ashes. He further said, that when he received orders from the Admiral, he desired that he might show some favour to the Town of Falmouth, which the Admiral granted, (I suppose, as Captain Mowat was under particular obligations to some gentlemen at Falmouth, for civilities shown him when in captivity amongst them,) and which favour was, to spare the Town till nine o'clock, Wednesday morning, in case we would send him off eight small arms, which the Town immediately did. Wednesday morning, being the 18th, the Committee went on board Captain Mowat again, in order to save the Town; he said he would save the Town till he heard from the Admiral, in case we would send off four carriage guns, deliver up all our small arms, ammunition, &c., and send four gentlemen of the Town as hostages, which the Town would not do. About half past nine in the morning, he began to fire from the four armed vessels, and in five minutes set fire to several houses. He continued firing till after dark the same day, which destroyed the largest part of the Town. He further informed the Committee, that he should proceed to Portsmouth, and destroy that place also.

The foregoing is as near the facts as I am able to remember, as witness my hand.

PEARSON JONES.

H. WENTWORTH TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Portsmouth, October 19, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We beg leave to acquaint you that an express is just arrived here from Falmouth, Casco Bay, informing us that on Monday last came in there the Canceau, armed ship, Captain Mowat, together with a schooner mounting fourteen guns, a large transport, and two sloops, all full of men; that they lay at the mouth of the harbour till Tuesday following, making signals for some person to come off to them, which being taken no notice of by the Town, they weighed their anchors and came up and lay between the ferryways and Papudock, from whence they sent on shore a message, acquainting the inhabitants that they had orders to fire upon the Town. In consequence of this message, a Committee went on board Captain Mowat, to whom he showed his orders from the Admiral, which were, that in case the inhabitants did not forthwith deliver up their arms, and give hostages for their future good behaviour, he was to destroy that Town, and afterwards proceed and destroy this. Captain Mowat, however, acquainted the Committee, that in case they would deliver up part of their arms that night, he would give them till next morning to consider of his requisition; they accordingly sent on board eight muskets that evening. At half past eight, yesterday, this express came away, and heard a heavy firing all day afterwards, which began precisely at nine o'clock.

We entreat your Excellency's patience while we assure you that the people of this Province, and of this Town in particular, have exerted every nerve to put this port in a proper state of defence, but that all our precautions are to no effect, for want of a sufficient quantity of powder, our whole stock of which at present is only seventeen barrels. We have therefore despatched Mr. D'Ewing, who has orders to wait on your Excellency before he sleeps, to request the favour of your Excellency to spare us as much powder as you may think proper.

I am, very respectfully, by order of the Committee of Safety, Sir, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

H. WENTWORTH, Chairman.

His Excellency General Washington.

H. MOWAT, COMMANDER OF HIS MAJESTY'S SHIP CANCEAU,
TO THE PEOPLE OF FALMOUTH.

Canceau, Falmouth, October 16, 1775.

After so many premeditated attacks on the legal prerogatives of the best of Sovereigns, after the repeated instances you have experienced in Britain's long forbearance of the rod of correction, and the merciful and paternal extension of her hands to embrace you, again and again, have been regarded as vain and nugatory; and in place of a dutiful and grateful return to your King and Parent State, you have been guilty of the most unpardonable rebellion, supported by the ambition of a set of designing men, whose insidious views have cruelly imposed on the credulity of their fellow-creatures, and at last have brought the whole into the same dilemma, which leads me to feel not a little the woes of the innocent of them, in particular on the present occasion, from my having it in orders to execute a just punishment on the Town of Falmouth. In the name of which authority, I previously warn you to remove, without delay, the human species out of the said Town, for which purpose I give you the time of two hours; at the period of which, a red pendant will be hoisted at the main topgallant mast head, with a gun. But should your imprudence lead you to show the least resistance, you will in that case free me of that humanity so strongly pointed out in my orders, as well as in my inclination. I also observe that all those who did, on a former occasion, fly to the King's ship under my command for protection, that the same door is now open and ready to receive them.

The officer who will deliver this letter, I expect to return immediately, unmolested.

I am, &c.,

H. MOWAT.

To the People of Falmouth.

COUNCIL OF WAR.

At a Council of War, held at Head-Quarters, October 18, 1775:

Present, his Excellency General Washington; Major-Generals Ward, Lee, Putnam; Brigadier-Generals Thomas, Heath, Sullivan, Greene, Gates.

The General acquainted the Members of the Council, that he had called them together in consequence of an intimation from the Congress, that an attack upon Boston, if practicable, was much desired. That he therefore desired their opinions on the subject.

General GATES.—That under the present circumstances it is improper to attempt it.

General GREENE.—That it is not practicable, under all circumstances; but if ten thousand men could be landed at Boston, thinks it is.

General SULLIVAN.—That at this time it is improper. The winter gives a more favourable opportunity.

General HEATH.—Impracticable at present.

General THOMAS.—Of the same opinion.

General PUTNAM.—Disapproves of it at present.

General LEE.—Is not sufficiently acquainted with the men to judge; therefore thinks it too great a risk.

General WARD.—Against it.

General WASHINGTON.

ORDERS BY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 13, 1775.

(Parole, Kennebeck.)

(Countersign, Lebanon.)

Lieutenant Richard Woodward, of Captain Gridley's Company, in Colonel Gridley's Regiment of Artillery, tried at a late General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Woodbridge was President, for "cowardice in the action upon the 17th of June last, and for mutiny." The Court were unanimously of opinion, that the charge of cowardice, on the 17th June last, is fully supported against the prisoner, and are also unanimously of opinion that the prisoner is guilty of mutiny, and of a malicious, vexatious, and groundless accusation of Captain Gridley, at a late General Court-Martial. The Court therefore unanimously adjudge the prisoner, Lieutenant Woodward, to be cashiered, and rendered incapable of serving in the Continental Army.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 14, 1775.

(Parole, Malden.)

(Countersign, Norfolk.)

The General has seen and approves the sentence of the General Court-Martial, held upon Lieutenant Woodward, of the Artillery. He orders it to take place immediately, and commands Lieutenant Woodward to be dismissed the camp.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 15, 1775.

(Parole, Ostend.)

(Countersign, Plymouth.)

One subaltern, one sergeant, and twenty-five rank and file, from each of the four Brigades in the lines and in Cambridge, to parade to-morrow morning, at sunrise, upon Cambridge Common, to cut fire-wood for the Army. The Quartermaster-General, or his Deputy, will attend upon the Common in Cambridge, to give directions to the officer commanding the party.

A General Court-Martial to sit on Wednesday morning next, at Roxbury, to try Colonel David Brewer, of the Ninth Regiment of Foot, upon an accusation exhibited by a number of officers of that Regiment, a copy thereof having yesterday been sent by the Adjutant-General to Colonel Brewer. The Judge Advocate to be at Roxbury by nine o'clock, Wednesday morning, to sit in Court; all evidences and persons concerned to attend the Court at that time. For Court-Martial—Brigadier-General Thomas, President; four Colonels, four Lieutenant-Colonels, four Majors, Members. The Members to be taken equally from the two Brigades now in Roxbury.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 17, 1775.

(Parole, Sawbridge.)

(Countersign, Townsend.)

The Quartermaster-General will deliver to the Major of each Brigade, or his order, twenty great coats, for the use of the sentinels of each Brigade. As the Brigade-Major is to give his receipt for the same, he is to be answerable that they are regularly delivered from guard to guard.

Lieutenant Thomas Randall, of the Regiment of Artillery, tried at a late General Court-Martial, for "stabbing a Matross in the said Regiment." The Court are of opinion, that the prisoner is guilty of a breach of the forty-ninth Article of the Rules and Regulations of the Massachusetts Army; but, in consideration of the very insulting behaviour of the complainant, adjudge Lieutenant Randall only to receive a severe reprimand from the Colonel of the Regiment, at the head of the Company to which the prisoner belongs.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 18, 1775.

(Parole, Wilkes.)

(Countersign, Camden.)

The General Court-Martial ordered to sit this day, at Roxbury, is postponed until Friday morning next, at nine o'clock, Brigadier-General Thomas being obliged to attend this forenoon at Head-Quarters.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 21, 1775.

(Parole, Franklin.)

(Countersign, Lynch.)

The officers of Colonel Gridley's Regiment and Major Crane's Corps of Artillery, who are inclined to engage in the service of the United Colonies, for one year from the day of the expiration of their present term of service, are to deliver in their names and the rank they now possess to the Adjutant-General to-morrow morning, at ten o'clock; such as disincline to remain any longer in the service to give in their names also, and the reasons for their declining the service.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 22, 1775.

(Parole, Harrison.)

(Countersign, Cooke.)

The Deputies from the honourable Continental Congress having arrived in this camp, in order to confer with the General, the several Governours of Rhode-Island and Connecticut, the Council of Massachusetts-Bay, and the President and Convention of New-Hampshire, on the continuing an Army, for the defence and support of America and its liberties, all officers who decline the further service of their Country, and intend to retire from the Army at the expiration of their present term of service, are to signify their intentions, in writing, to their Colonel, which he is to deliver, with his own, to the Brigadier-General or commanding officer of his Brigade. Those brave men and true patriots who are resolved to continue to serve and defend their brethren, privileges, and property, are to consider themselves engaged to the last day of December, 1776, unless sooner discharged by the honourable the Continental Congress, and will in like manner signify their intentions. This return to be made at orderly time, Wednesday next.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 23, 1775.

(Parole, Hancock.)

(Countersign, Cushing.)

Colonel David Brewer, of the Ninth Regiment of Foot, tried at a General Court-Martial, whereof Brigadier-General Thomas was President, for "procuring a Lieutenant's commission for his son, an inexperienced boy of sixteen or seventeen years of age, and returning him as in the publick service from the 24th of April, and drawing his pay for the month of August, during all which time the said boy was at home, in his father's service, contrary to the repeated remonstrances of the officers of the Regiment; and, also, for making a return to the Committee of Supplies for a larger number of blankets than were requisite for said Regiment; and, also, for taking the men from the publick service, in the Army, and employing them in his own private business, in labour on his farm." The Court-Martial, on mature consideration, are of opinion, that the two last articles of the accusation are supported fully against the prisoner, and therefore unanimously adjudge, that Colonel David Brewer be dismissed the service.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 24, 1775.

(Parole, Trumbull.)

(Countersign, Langdon.)

The General approves the sentence of the General Court-Martial, in yesterday's orders.

COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE WITH THE COMMANDER-IN-CHIEF TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read November 1, 1775.]

Cambridge, October 24, 1775.

SIR: We arrived at this place on the 15th, and should have proceeded immediately to perform the duty imposed by the Congress, but the President of the Congress of New-Hampshire was detained, by the illness of his family, from attending. After waiting two days for him, it was determined to call in General Sullivan to represent that Colony. The President joined us next day, and we have been constantly employed in the consideration of the many important matters with which we are charged, all of which we hope will be finished to-day.

We enclose you a copy of the several determinations of this meeting, on those heads on which the Governours of Rhode-Island and Connecticut, the Council of this Province, the President of the Congress of New-Hampshire, together with the General, were directed to be consulted; by which you will see that they were unanimously of opinion, not only that any reduction of pay was absolutely impracticable, but that a bare proposal of this nature would cause such discontents, if not mutinies, as would, perhaps, prove the ruin of the Army. We are sorry to find this opinion too much confirmed by the difficulty that occurs in prevailing on the troops of Connecticut to enlist for the month of December only, according to the directions of Congress.

Under these circumstances, we thought it our duty to consent that the General should immediately proceed to a new enlistment of the present Army for the next year, without waiting for the directions of Congress, being convinced, by the opinion not only of the gentlemen we were directed to consult, but of every officer we conversed with on the subject, that every moment's delay was big with danger. We have, however, reserved, in the terms of the new enlistment, a right in Congress to disband at pleasure, without mentioning the month's additional pay, voted the soldiers in case they had enlisted at five Dollars per month.

Last night we received the melancholy account of the burning the Town of Falmouth by some ships, sent for that purpose by Admiral Graves, the commanding officer of which declared he had orders to destroy every sea-port between that and Boston. It is easy to conceive what effects this must produce in this camp; every soldier who came from Falmouth insisting on leave to go and take care of his family, and to find a place for them, where they may be covered from the inclemency of the approaching winter. Indeed, it is too reasonable a request to be refused. Should the same fate fall to the share of many such Towns, it is easy to foretell what must happen to the Army, especially should it happen before the new Army is enlisted. This, we hope, will not only excuse our conduct, but induce Congress to hasten their determinations upon this matter.

One more reason for despatch is, that men may much more probably enlist before, than after, they feel the hardships of a winter campaign.

Upon examining the journals of Assembly, it appears that the men raised in the years 1758 and 1759, by this Colony, received fourteen Pounds bounty, and had thirty-six Shillings per month, pay, which, as their engagements were for six months only, was much higher terms than the present, when no other bounty is allowed than a coat to each man.

We are, with great respect, Sir, your most obedient,

B. FRANKLIN,
BENJ. HARRISON,
THOS. LYNCH.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress at Philadelphia.

PROCEEDINGS OF THE COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE AT THE CAMP AT CAMBRIDGE.

Minutes of a Conference of the Delegates of the honourable Continental Congress, the Deputy-Governours of Connecticut and Rhode-Island, and the Committee of the Council of Massachusetts-Bay, with General Washington, began at Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 18, 1775, and continued to the 22d of the same month. Present:

His Excellency General Washington.

The Hon. Deputy-Governour Griswold and Nathaniel Wales, Esq., Connecticut.

The Hon. Deputy-Governour Cooke, Rhode-Island.

The Hon. Thomas Lynch, Doctor Benjamin Franklin, and Colonel Benjamin Harrison, Delegates from the Congress.

The Hon. James Bowdoin, Colonel Otis, William Sever, and Walter Spooner, Committee of Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

The Credentials of the several Members of this Conference for Connecticut and Massachusetts-Bay, were then read.

The President of the Provincial Convention of New-Hampshire not yet attending, General Sullivan was desired to attend this Conference, and took his seat accordingly.

The Members of the Conference then proceeded upon the instructions from the Congress, which were read through, and then again separately; and it was considered—

1st. To cause proper methods to be taken for continuing the Connecticut Troops (now near Boston) in the Continental service, upon the same terms as they are at present, until the last day of next December; hereupon,

Resolved, That it is the opinion of the Members of this Conference, that the General immediately direct the Field-Officers of the Connecticut Troops, that they consult with their inferior officers and men, and endeavour to learn what number of them will continue in the service to the last day of December, upon the present terms, and that as soon as possible.

The third Instruction was then read by paragraphs, containing the following articles, viz:

First. What number of men the new Army before Boston should consist of?

1st. The Committee having been informed that this question had been lately agitated in the Council of General Officers, desired the result might be communicated; by which it appeared that it was their unanimous opinion that the new Army, intended to lie before Boston, should not consist of less than twenty thousand three hundred and seventy-two men. In which opinion, on a consideration of all circumstances, this Committee unanimously concurs. Agreed, including Officers.

Second. What should be the pay of the Officers and Privates; that of some of the former in the present Army being, it is apprehended, too low, and that of the latter too high?

Answer. That of the Privates, unanimously agreed, cannot be reduced; and agreed, by a majority, that raising the pay of the Officers would be inconvenient and improper. It was also unanimously agreed, that, under the present circumstances, the proposition of lowering the pay of the Troops would be attended with dangerous consequences.

October 19, 1775.

The Members of the Committee to confer with General Washington met. Present as yesterday.

Matthew Thornton, Esq., President of the Convention of New-Hampshire, attending, took his seat this day.

It was now proposed for consideration, what number each Company and how many Companies each Regiment should contain.

Agreed, unanimously, That each Regiment consist of seven hundred and twenty-eight men, including Officers; that it be divided into eight Companies, each Company to consist of one Captain, two Lieutenants, one Ensign, four Sergeants, four Corporals, two Drums or Fifes, seventy-six Privates.

2d. Of what kind and quantity of provisions a Ration should consist?

Resolved, That it be as follows: One pound of beef or three-quarters of a pound of pork, or one pound of salt fish, per day; one pound of bread or flour per day; three pints of peas or beans per week, or vegetables equivalent, at six Shillings per bushel for peas or beans; one pint of milk per man per day, or at the rate of one Penny per pint; one half pint of rice, or one pint of Indian meal, per man per week; one quart of spruce beer or cider per man, per day, or nine gallons of molasses per Company of one hundred men, per week; three pounds of candles to one hundred men, per week, for squads; twenty-four pounds of soft, or eight pounds of hard soap, for one hundred men, per week.

3d. What is the best method of providing Arms for the Troops to be engaged in the new Army?

Agreed, That it be recommended to the several Conventions or Assemblies of the Colonies, respectively, to set and keep their Gunsmiths at work to manufacture good Firelocks with Bayonets; each Firelock, to be made with a good Bridle Lock, three-quarters of an inch bore, and of good substance at the breech; the Barrel to be three feet eight inches in length; the Bayonet to be eighteen inches in the blade; with a steel Ramrod, the upper loop therefor being trumpet-mouthed. That the price to be given be fixed by the Assembly or Convention, or Committee of Safety of each Colony, and to import all that can be procured; and that the good Arms of such soldiers as leave the service, be retained on a valuation made of them.

October 20, 1775.

The Committee met. Present as before.

It was now proposed for consideration, what will be the best method of providing Clothes for the Troops which are to compose the new Army?

Agreed, That the Clothing be provided by the Continent, and paid for by stoppages out of the Soldiers' wages, at ten Shillings per month; that as much as possible of the Cloth, for this purpose, be dyed brown, and the distinctions of Regiments made in the facings; also, that a man who brings a good new Blanket into the camp, should be allowed two Dollars therefor, and take it away with him at the end of the campaign.

2d. What is the best method of getting Provisions for the Army?

Agreed, That in procuring salt Provisions, it will be best to drive the Cattle and Hogs, at proper seasons, to the camp, there to be cured, and that the New-England Colonies can supply the Army fully with these articles. That in the article of Bread and Flour, the Commissary proceed in the way he has done for some time past, that appearing both safe and frugal.

3d. By whom the Officers should be chosen or recommended, and how the best Officers and men, in the present Army, may be engaged for the next, making a complete arrangement of the whole?

Agreed, That such Officers as have served in the present Army to approbation, and are willing to stay, be preferred; if there are more of them than are necessary for the new Army, the General to distinguish such as he deems best qualified.

Agreed, upon a representation from the General, That it be recommended to the several Legislatures of New-England, that proper authority be given him to impress Carriages, Vessels, Horses, and other things necessary, at a reasonable rate, for the transportation or march of the Army, or any part of it, or on any other emergency; and that this power may be deputed in writing, under the hand of the General, to the Quartermaster-General, or to any inferior Officer, who are to be accountable for any abuse thereof.

October 21, 1775.

Members of the Conference met. Present as before, except General Sullivan.

It appearing, on a full discussion and consideration of all circumstances, that any attempt to reduce the present pay would probably prevent the Soldiers re-enlisting, and that the advancement of the season does not admit of any delay in proceeding to form the new Army,

Agreed, That it be proposed to the Officers now serving in the present Army, that they signify in writing, as soon as possible, which of them will continue to serve and defend their Country, and which of them will retire; and that such Officers as propose to continue in the service, and are approved by the General, proceed to enlist their men into the Continental service, upon the same pay and allowance of provisions as is now given; their service to continue to the last day of December, 1776, subject to be discharged at any time by the Continental Congress, as has been heretofore practised in the like cases.

Agreed, That if, upon trial, it should appear that the number of twenty thousand three hundred and seventy-two men, before resolved upon, cannot be raised out of the present Army, that then the Officers appointed for the new Army recruit their several Regiments and Companies to their full complement; and in case the necessity of the service should require it, the General be empowered to call forth the Minute-Men or Militia from this or the neighbouring Colonies, according to the nature and exigence of the service.

The Rules and Regulations of the Continental Army were then taken under consideration, and the following alterations proposed, viz:

1. All persons convicted of holding a treacherous correspondence with or giving intelligence to the enemy, shall suffer death, or such other punishment as a General Court-Martial shall think proper.

October 22, 1775.

The Members of the Conference met. Present as yesterday.

The Rules and Articles of the Continental Army were again considered.

Agreed, That it be recommended to the several Legislatures of the Colonies, or Conventions, to enact a law, or pass an ordinance, inflicting the following punishment upon such as harbour Deserters, knowing them to be such, viz: A fine upon all such offenders, not less than thirty nor more than fifty Dollars; and in case of inability to pay the fine, to be punished with whipping, not exceeding thirty-nine lashes for each offence. That any person who shall apprehend a Deserter, and bring him to the Regiment to which he belongs, upon a certificate thereof by the Colonel or commanding officer of such Regiment, shall be entitled to receive five Dollars, and all reasonable expenses, from the Continental Paymaster, which is to be deducted from the pay of such Soldier.

2. That all Commissioned Officers found guilty, by a General Court-Martial, of any fraud or embezzlement, shall forfeit all his pay, be ipso facto cashiered, and deemed unfit for further service as an Officer.

That all Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers convicted, before a Regimental Court-Martial, of stealing, embezzling, or destroying Ammunition, Provisions, Tools, or any thing belonging to the publick stores, if a Non-Commissioned Officer, to be reduced to the ranks, punished with whipping, not less than fifteen nor more than thirty-nine lashes, at the discretion of the Court-Martial; if a private Soldier, with the same corporal punishment.

That it be recommended to the several Legislatures of the Colonies to empower the Commander-in-Chief, or the Officer commanding a detachment or an out-post, to administer an oath, and swear any person or persons to the truth of any information or intelligence, or any other matter relative to the publick service.

That in the punishment of cashiering a Commissioned Officer for cowardice or fraud, it be added that the crime, name, place of abode, and punishment of the delinquent, be published in the newspapers in and about the camp, and of that Colony from which the offender came or usually resides; after which, it shall be deemed scandalous in any Officer to associate with him.

That the Third Article of the Rules, &c., be amended by making the punishment refer to the Second instead of the First Article.

That the Fifth Article be amended by making the offence punishable with death, or otherwise, at the discretion of a General Court-Martial.

That the Eighth Article be amended to make deserters to the enemy, who may afterwards fall into our hands, punishable with death, or otherwise, at the discretion of a General Court-Martial.

That Articles Twenty and Twenty-One be amended by punishing the offences therein specified, in the following manner, viz: An Officer offending, to be cashiered and drummed out of the Army with infamy; a private Soldier, to be whipped not less than twenty nor more than thirty-nine lashes, according to the nature of the offence.

That the Seventeenth Article be amended by expressing the following punishment, viz: The Officer to be mulcted one month's pay for the first offence, cashiered for the second; a Soldier to be closely confined seven days, on bread and water, for the first offence, for the second offence the same punishment, and a forfeiture of one week's pay.

That the Twenty-Fifth Article be amended by leaving out the word immediately; and after the word death, substituting the words by any person on the spot.

That the Twenty-Ninth Article be amended by making the embezzlement of the stores therein mentioned punished as the like offence upon the stores mentioned in the Fifteenth Article of the Rules and Regulations of the Army.

That the Thirtieth Article be amended by making the offences punishable as the breach of the Twentieth and Twenty-First Articles, together with a forfeiture of all share of plunder taken from the enemy.

That the Fifty-Fifth Article be amended by expressing the punishment, viz: cashiering and mulcting of his pay.

That the Fifty-Seventh Article be amended so as to include all Surgeons and their Mates, and to make the offence of giving a false certificate of health punishable as a false certificate with respect to absence.

It appearing that both General and Special Orders are not duly obeyed,

Agreed, That it be recommended to the honourable Congress to form a new Article, by which Officers or Soldiers, wilfully or negligently disobeying such orders, be punished at the discretion of a Regimental Court-Martial when the offence is against a Regimental Order; by a General Court-Martial when the offence is against an order given from the Commander-in-Chief, or the commanding officer of any detachment or post, and such General Court-Martial can be had.

The Committee then proceeded to the consideration of such matters as have been mentioned in the General's letters to the Congress, upon which no order has been made; and

1st. What steps are necessary to be pursued with regard to Doctor Church? If guilty, the Articles for the government of the Army point out a very inadequate punishment, and to set him at liberty must be exceedingly dangerous?

Upon a discussion of all circumstances, it was agreed to refer Doctor Church, for trial and punishment, to the General Court of Massachusetts-Bay, but no procedure to be had hereupon until the pleasure of the Congress be known on the late application made by the General.

2d. What distinctions are necessary to be made between Vessels and Cargoes taken by the Armed Vessels in the pay of the Continent, and those taken by individuals? Should not the fitting out Privateers, by individuals, be done under some authority, and accidental captures subject to some regulations, to prevent piracies and other capital abuses which may arise?

Agreed, That the General Court ought, properly, to take cognizance of all Armed Vessels fitted out by individuals in this Province, and that commissions should be granted in such cases, or at least the captures made under some authority. That the captures made by Armed Vessels, in the pay of the Continent, be disposed of by the General, for the publick use, until the Continental Congress give further directions.

The Delegates then proposed to the consideration of the Members, what number of effective men it may be expected that the Colonies of New-Hampshire, Massachusetts-Bay, Connecticut, and Rhode-Island, could and would furnish by the 10th of March next, and on what terms?

The Massachusetts Gentlemen were of opinion that twenty thousand effective men might be raised in their Province, to serve the next campaign, if absolutely necessary, on the terms of the present Army, (viz: a coat, forty Shillings per month, one month's wages being advanced,) and a greater number to come in on a special emergency.

The Connecticut Gentlemen were of opinion that eight thousand men may be raised in their Province for the next campaign, on the same terms as the present, viz: forty Shillings per month, and forty Shillings bounty.

The President of New-Hampshire Convention gave his opinion that his Colony could and would furnish three thousand men, for the next campaign, at the rate of forty Shillings per month, without a bounty, unless a bounty was given in the adjoining Colonies, in which case they would expect it.

The Governour of Rhode-Island gave his opinion that that Province could not go further than they have done this campaign, viz: to raise fifteen hundred men, and on the same terms.

Upon considering the additional instruction, it was unanimously agreed, that the number of Forces necessary for the Northern Department depended so much upon events, and particularly the success of the present expedition against Canada, that no probable calculation can be made at this time; therefore deferred.

It was then deliberated, what should be done with Tory property; how is it to be applied or treated? Some of the Tories have estates near the Camp at Cambridge, which have wood upon them, and other articles wanted for the Army; ought they to be meddled with?

Agreed, That the determination of this matter be referred to the Congress.

The General then proposed the following question:

Should there not be a reasonable price fixed upon Wood, Hay, and other articles wanted for the Army, to prevent imposition and extortion?

Agreed, That if it be indispensably necessary, such articles should be taken at a valuation, and that a regulation, corresponding herewith, be recommended to the General Court of this Province.

The Conference then broke up with the several Governours of Connecticut and Rhode-Island, the President of New-Hampshire, and the Council of Massachusetts-Bay; and the Delegates then proceeded to confer with the General on several other matters of general concern.

I do hereby certify, that the foregoing are Minutes of the Conference held pursuant to the instructions of the honourable Continental Congress to the Honourable Thomas Lynch, Doctor Benjamin Franklin, and Colonel Benjamin Harrison, appointed to confer with the General, the above Governours, the President of the Convention of New-Hampshire, and the Council of Massachusetts-Bay, on the most effectual method of continuing, supporting, and regulating a Continental Army.

JOSEPH REED, Secretary.

MINUTES OF A CONFERENCE WITH THE GENERAL BY A COMMITTEE OF CONFERENCE.

October 23, 1775.

The Delegates now proceeded to confer with General Washington, as well on sundry matters mentioned in his letters to the Congress, upon which no order had been made, as also upon other matters occurring in the course of this business, viz:

1st. In the new establishment of the Army, should the General Officers be allowed Regiments, and the Field-Officers Companies?

Agreed in the negative unanimously.

2d. The affairs of the Hospital require a Director-General, if Doctor Church is unworthy of continuing in that office. Lieutenant-Colonel Hand, late a Surgeon in the Army, and Doctor Foster, are the only two who have made application for the office to the General.

Agreed, That this be referred wholly to the Congress.

3d. In what light are Vessels, which are made captures of, with their Cargoes, to be considered? that is, what part is to be assigned the captors, in the pay of the Continent, and where Vessels are fitted out at the publick expense, and how is the residue of the Cargo and Vessel to be disposed of?

The instructions given by the General, to the Armed Vessels now out, being considered, were approved, except that one-third of the whole capture be allowed the Officers and men, without any reserve.

4th. What is to be done with Prisoners taken in transports by Vessels, either in the Continental pay or others? Are they to be detained as Prisoners, or released? If the former, what distinctions are to be made between those taken by the Continental Vessels and others? in respect to the General's cognizance of them is meant.

Agreed, That all persons taken in arms, on board any prize, be deemed Prisoners, at the disposal of the General, as well such prizes as are taken by Vessels fitted out in the pay of the Continent, as others. That all Vessels, employed merely as transports, and unarmed, with their crews, be set at liberty, upon giving security to return to Europe; but that this indulgence be not extended longer than to the 1st of April next.

5th. In what manner are Prisoners to be treated, what allowance made them, and how are they to be clothed?

Agreed, That they be treated as Prisoners of War, but with humanity, and the allowance of provisions to be the rations of the Army; that the Officers, being in pay, should supply themselves with clothes, their bills to be taken therefor; the Soldiers furnished as they now are.

6th. Suppose Troops should be landed at New-York, is it expected that any part of the Army before Boston be detached while the Ministerial Troops remain there?

Agreed, That the number of men in the new Army being calculated to oppose the Army at Boston, it is not expected that the General should detach any part of it to New-York or elsewhere, unless it appears to him necessary so to do for the common safety.

7th. Ought not Negroes to be excluded from the new enlistment, especially such as are slaves? all were thought improper by the Council of Officers.

Agreed, That they be rejected altogether.

8th. How often should the Troops be paid? The General Officers were divided upon this point; some were for a payment per month, others every three months.

Agreed, That they be paid monthly.

9th. Are the Rations which have been allowed the Officers, and have issued, (an account thereof given to the Congress, and now laid before the Committee,) agreeable?

Agreed, That the present allowance be continued, as being usual and necessary.

10th. Is it advisable to propose an exchange of Prisoners? Should any of the Officers and Soldiers in the Army or Navy, now in our power, be given up for any except the Officers and Soldiers of the American Army?

Agreed, That an exchange will be proper—Citizens for Citizens, Officers for Officers of equal rank, and Soldiers for Soldiers.

11th. A proposition has been made in behalf of Ensign Moland, to go and reside among his friends in Pennsylvania, giving his parole; would this be disagreeable?

Agreed, That under all circumstances it is best he should remain where he is.

12th. Artificers of different sorts have been employed on the best terms they could be got, but may nevertheless appear high, none having less than one Shilling extraordinary for every day they work; some have four Pounds ten Shillings per month, and with great difficulty got on these terms. Is this agreeable?

Agreed, That it is, and that the General go on upon the present agreement, as being the best that can probably be made.

13th. The Rifle Companies have exceeded their establishment in point of numbers, but have nevertheless been paid, as they had no more Officers than were allowed by Congress. Is this right?

Agreed, That the General pick out from each Company such as are not marksmen, and dismiss them in such manner as will be safest, with an allowance of pay to go home, if they do not choose to enlist into other corps; and, in the mean time, that all receive their pay.

14th. Very unhappy disputes prevailed in the Regiment of Artillery. Colonel Gridley is become very obnoxious to that corps, and the General is informed that he will prove the destruction of the Regiment, if continued therein. What is to be done in this case?

Agreed, That as all Officers must be approved by the General, if it shall appear, in forming a new Army, that the difference is irreconcilable, Colonel Gridley be dismissed in some honourable way; and that the half pay which he renounced, by entering into the American Army, ought to be compensated to him.

15th. Artillery of different kinds will be wanted. How is it to be got, and where?

Agreed, That what can be spared from New-York and Crown Point be procured.

16th. Engineers are also much wanted. Where can they be got?

Agreed, To recommend to the Congress Henry Knor, Esq., and Lieutenant-Colonel Putnam, who have skill in this branch, as Assistant Engineers, with suitable pay, and rank as Lieutenant-Colonels; the present pay of Assistant Engineers being deemed too small.

17th. Several Indian Chiefs of the St. François, Pennobscot, Stockbridge, and St. John's Tribes, have been to offer their services, and told they would be called for when wanted, and dismissed with presents. Ought they to be called, if a necessity for them should appear, and is the giving them presents proper?

Agreed, That these Indians, or others, may be called on in case of real necessity, and that the giving them presents is both suitable and proper.

18th. Would it not be advisable to have Expresses posted along the roads, at different distances, (persons of character,) for the purpose of conveying early and frequent intelligence?

Agreed, That such a regulation is highly necessary, but that the mode of carrying it into execution be left to the Congress.

19th. Lead and Flints are much wanted. Where and in what quantities can they be had?

Agreed, That as much Lead as can be spared from the Northern Department, and is wanted here, should be sent down from Ticonderoga, and all other supplies of these articles attended to.

20th. Several issuing Commissaries and Clerks are necessarily employed under the Commissary-General, for which no provision is made. Several Assistant Quartermasters are also employed, in order to discharge that duty. A Clerk is and always has been found necessary to assist in the office of the Adjutant-General. What pay should be allowed them?

The Commissary being sick, and unable to explain the duty of those Commissaries, Clerks, &c., Agreed, That he draw up a Memorial to the Congress, stating the ranks, duties, &c., of the several officers under him; that the Quartermaster-General do the same, to enable the Congress to fix the proportion of pay to be allowed them. That these Memorials be first shown to the General, and by him transmitted to the Congress.

21st. Six Vessels, armed, are now fitted out and fitting, upon the best terms, to intercept the enemy's supplies. Will this be agreeable to the Congress?

Agreed, That the Committee approve of the scheme, and will recommend it to the Congress.

October 24, 1775.

The Committee proceeded in their Conference on the General's queries, viz:

1st. When the Army receives such supplies of Powder as to be enabled to spare some to the country, how and upon what terms is it to be done?

Agreed, That it be sold to them at a reasonable price.

2d. Tents, if the Army should have occasion to take the field, will be indispensably necessary for the Officers and men. How are they to be provided, and are the Officers to be allowed any?

Agreed, That it be recommended to the honourable Congress to pay an early attention to this article, and, if the pay of the Officers is not considerably increased, that Tents be allowed them.

The General informed the Committee that he had given particular orders that all the Tents, now in use, should be carefully packed up in proper places during the winter.

The Council of War lately held, having, in consequence of an intimation from the Congress, deliberated on the expediency of an attack upon Boston, and determined that at present it was not practicable, the General wishes to know how far it may be deemed proper and advisable to avail himself of the season to destroy the Troops, who propose to winter at Boston, by a bombardment, when the harbour is blocked up; or, in other words, whether the loss of the Town, and the property therein, are to be so considered as that an attack upon the Troops there should be avoided, when it evidently appears that the Town must of consequence be destroyed.

The Committee were of opinion this is a matter of too much importance to be determined by them, therefore refer it to the Congress.

The General now requested that the Committee would represent to the Congress the necessity of having Money constantly and regularly sent, and that some regulation, upon this head, should be made as soon as possible. Also, that the Congress would be pleased to establish or recommend it to the Legislature of this Province to establish some court for the trial and condemnation of Vessels taken from the enemy, so that they may be distinguished from those of a different character, and all abuses prevented as much as possible.

A true copy of the Minutes of the Conference held by the Delegates from the Continental Congress with General Washington.

JOSEPH REED, Secretary.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 24, 1775.

MEMORIAL OF THE JUDGE ADVOCATE AT CAMBRIDGE.

Remarks on the Rules and Articles for the government of the Continental Troops.

It has been objected to this Military Code, that most of the offences described in it are punishable by a General Court-Martial only. Experience has shown the inconveniences of this, and given weight to the objection. The time it takes to assemble a General Court-Martial, which, by the Thirty-Third Article, must consist of thirteen members at least, joined to the injury of taking officers from other duty, are sufficient reasons, without adducing others, to enlarge the jurisdiction of the Regimental Courts-Martial, by lessening the number of crimes triable by General ones. It has been said that the men who compose our Army are American citizens, and have been always possessed of the privileges of the common law, one grand right of which is trial by jury; and, to reconcile them to the summary mode of proceedings in Courts-Martial, they are tried by thirteen, which is one more than a petty jury consists of; and thus, while the idea of a jury is kept up, the delinquent will more patiently submit to the adjudications of the Court.

To this it is answered, when a man assumes the soldier he lays aside the citizen, and must be content to submit to a temporary relinquishment of some of his civil rights; the brave and virtuous admit the reasonableness of this, and men of opposite characters are not to be talked with. The service is greatly hurt by a General Court-Martial sitting constantly; but it must be so till fewer offences are made cognizable by such a Court alone, or until the Army is reduced. To obviate these difficulties, it is proposed—

That the offences mentioned in the Eighth, Ninth, Twenty-First, and Twenty-Second Articles, and ordered to be brought before a General Court-Martial, be in future tried by a Regimental Court-Martial.

By Articles Nineteenth, Twenty-Fourth, and some others, the Commissioned Officers, for failure of duty, &c., are punishable by a Regimental Court-Martial. This, it is presumed, was not the intention of the framers of the Articles. An amendment of each of these Articles should be made, or a general one added, subjecting all offences of the Commissioned Officers to the judgment of a General Court-Martial only.

It is a complaint that, in several instances, the offences are not sufficiently defined, and that the punishments are left too much at discretion. It is hoped, if the Articles are revised, this observation will have attention paid to it.

The Fifty-First Article ordains that capital punishment shall be inflicted in no instance except in cases expressly mentioned, which are in Articles Twenty-Fifth, Twenty-Sixth, Thirty-First; to which should have been added the offence "of corresponding and giving intelligence to the enemy," punishable by Twenty-Eighth Article. If any crime can deserve death in a camp, surely this must; as by such villany the best concerted enterprise may be defeated, and an army destroyed.

Death ought to be the punishment of mutiny, (vide Article Fifth,) according to the aggravation of the offence, as this crime may be productive of fatal effects; and, for the same reason, desertion to the enemy should be made capital.

The punishment of flagellation (limited by Fifty-First Article to thirty-nine lashes) is thought badly calculated to maintain that discipline, without which an army is but an armed rabble. There have been instances, where offences have been aggravated, that the Court-Martial have, when they could fairly do it, adjudged the offence to be a breach of different Articles, and ordered thirty-nine lashes for the breach of each Article, and thereby proportioned the punishment to the crime. But there are many reasons against this management. New-England people are not so bigoted to Mosaick institutions as is imagined. Was whipping confined to one hundred lashes, instead of thirty-nine, it would not be objected to by any man who knows the nature of a camp. Nine-tenths of the officers who compose the present Army think this addition absolutely necessary.

The first paragraph of the Third Article is nugatory, because the Article it refers to has no penalty annexed to it.

If the form of the oath is added to the Thirty-Third instead of the Fifty-Third Article, this last Article will be found superfluous.

In Article Twenty-First, the punishment should be expressed. Too much severity can hardly be shown to this offence, which may be attended with the most destructive consequences.

In addition to the provision made against false musters, false returns, &c., a general Article should be inserted, prohibiting and punishing every species of fraud. The infamous arts which speculation and avarice have practised, to cheat the publick, render an Article of this kind extremely necessary.

MEMORIAL FROM JOHN PARKE AND JOHN G. FRAZER TO THE COMMITTEE OF CONGRESS.

October 25, 1775.

To the Honourable the Committee of Congress:

GENTLEMEN: We do not intend to claim any extraordinary merit from our services, or to take an ungenerous advantage from the calamity of the times. We do not wish for emoluments, but the proper supplies of necessity and convenience; wishing for nothing more than what our situation in the Army requires. Your Honours have been pleased to fix a certain ration of money and provisions for our accommodation, which, as we have no authority to contradict, we would wish your Honours would take the matter into your further consideration, whether the rank of a Captain, with six Pounds per month, will defray our expenses, or compensate for the constant trouble and fatigue of, Gentlemen, your obliged humble servants,

JOHN PARKE,
Assistant Quartermaster at Roxbury.
JOHN G. FRAZER,
Assistant Quartermaster at Winter and Prospect Hills.

General Return of the Army of the United Colonies, commanded by his Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esquire, General and Commander-in-Chief, Head-Quarters at CAMBRIDGE, OCTOBER 17, 1775.

Regiments.	Officers present.												Rank and File.					Wanting to complete.	Since last Return.
	Commissioned.					Staff.			Non-commissioned.						Sergeants.	Drums and Fifes.	Privates.		Enlisted.	Dead.	Discharged.	Deserted.
	Colonels.	Lieut. Colonels.	Majors.	Captains.	Lieutenants.	Ensigns.	Chaplains.	Adjutants.		Quartermasters.	Surgeons.	Mates.	Sergeants.	Drums and Fifes.
1. Colonel Frye's.....	1	1	7	15	—	—	—	—	1	—	—	26	13	306	25	31	18	4	384	—	—	116	—	—	—	4
2. Colonel Thompson's.....	1	1	7	20	—	1	1	—	—	—	—	28	6	471	30	32	1	1	535	—	—	—	2	1	—	—
3. Colonel Read's.....	1	1	9	7	4	1	1	—	—	1	1	30	12	283	52	37	23	103	498	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
4. Colonel Learned's.....	1	1	9	20	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	40	21	371	27	5	23	28	454	—	—	—	—	—	6	—
5. Colonel Nixon's.....	1	1	3	12	—	1	—	1	1	1	1	25	17	208	19	28	19	141	415	—	—	85	—	—	—	—
6. Colonel Stark's.....	1	1	7	6	5	—	1	1	—	1	1	25	16	276	40	27	21	128	492	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
7. Colonel J. Brewer's.....	1	—	6	16	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	28	14	236	41	30	19	38	364	—	—	134	—	—	4	6
8. Colonel Fellows's.....	1	1	10	20	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	39	20	312	36	11	11	98	468	1	—	32	—	1	—	—
9. Colonel D. Brewer's.....	1	1	7	17	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	39	19	358	32	8	17	30	445	—	—	55	—	—	3	1
10. Colonel Prescott's.....	1	1	9	16	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	42	19	350	19	37	6	14	426	—	—	124	—	—	—	—
11. Colonel Poor's.....	1	—	6	7	5	1	1	1	1	1	1	22	15	294	77	20	23	117	531	—	—	—	1	—	—	5
12. Colonel Varnum's.....	1	—	6	7	5	1	1	1	1	1	1	16	17	241	53	—	11	88	393	—	—	2	—	—	—	—
13. Colonel Parsons's.....	1	1	6	12	8	1	1	1	1	2	2	42	27	566	84	8	34	45	737	5	—	56	—	—	—	—
14. Colonel Hitchcock's.....	1	—	7	4	5	—	—	—	—	1	1	16	15	293	29	18	26	49	415	—	—	—	—	—	—	1
15. Colonel Church's.....	1	1	3	5	3	—	—	—	—	—	—	13	8	234	11	46	27	76	394	—	—	—	—	1	2	2
16. Colonel Cotton's.....	1	1	10	19	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	40	20	394	23	36	22	27	502	—	—	—	—	—	1	—
17. Colonel Little's.....	1	—	6	16	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	23	15	340	21	41	15	102	519	—	—	—	—	—	—	3
18. Colonel Danielson's.....	1	1	11	19	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	40	19	316	36	3	26	85	466	—	—	84	—	—	6	1
19. Colonel Mansfield's.....	1	—	6	16	—	—	—	—	1	1	1	27	15	290	34	35	24	108	491	1	—	9	—	—	—	—
20. Colonel Reed's, of Uxbridge.....	1	1	7	14	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	27	16	370	19	17	9	55	470	1	30	—	—	—	4	—
21. Colonel Glover's.....	1	—	5	13	—	—	1	1	1	—	—	27	8	320	7	22	18	121	488	8	—	12	1	—	—	1
22. Colonel Walker's.....	1	1	6	15	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	28	15	311	36	31	22	18	418	1	—	82	—	1	5	—
23. Colonel Whitcomb's.....	1	1	7	16	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	32	12	369	50	21	23	49	512	7	—	—	—	—	1	—
24. Colonel Doolittle's.....	1	1	7	10	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	26	17	212	47	39	17	67	382	3	118	—	—	—	—	8
25. Colonel Woodbridge's.....	1	1	8	17	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	24	13	280	37	21	15	45	398	4	102	—	2	3	—	—
26. Colonel Paterson's.....	1	1	8	14	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	39	18	309	14	25	16	43	407	—	—	93	—	2	2	—
27. Colonel Bridge's.....	1	—	8	20	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	32	17	334	39	44	14	33	464	—	—	36	—	2	2	—
28. Colonel Sargent's.....	1	—	5	15	—	—	—	—	1	1	1	36	18	315	36	27	28	26	432	2	2	68	—	—	—	—
29. Colonel Huntington's.....	1	1	7	15	6	1	1	1	1	1	1	48	35	406	60	13	22	68	569	—	—	—	—	1	10	—
30. Colonel Scammons's.....	1	—	8	12	—	1	1	—	1	1	1	34	16	377	25	5	18	29	454	1	—	46	—	—	1	1
31. Colonel Phinney's.....	1	1	8	15	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	34	18	376	25	7	21	15	444	—	—	56	—	—	2	—
32. Colonel Ward's.....	1	1	9	17	—	1	1	1	1	1	1	40	17	352	25	17	11	45	450	3	—	50	—	—	—	1
33. Colonel Wylley's.....	1	—	3	16	8	1	1	1	1	2	2	50	26	493	133	9	47	128	816	1	3	70	—	—	15	—
34. Colonel Storrs's.....	1	1	2	5	14	7	1	1	1	1	1	44	25	533	99	—	25	148	805	—	—	60	—	—	15	—
35. Colonel Bailey's.....	1	1	7	9	5	1	1	1	1	1	1	30	14	295	25	51	24	79	474	—	—	26	—	1	2	—
36. Colonel Groaton's.....	1	1	10	20	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	49	20	333	15	47	18	52	470	—	—	30	—	—	1	—
37. Late Colonel Gardner's.....	1	—	6	13	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	31	17	298	13	39	13	47	410	—	—	90	—	—	2	3
38. Late Colonel Gerrish's.....	1	1	10	19	—	—	1	1	1	1	1	49	18	436	29	23	17	6	516	2	—	—	—	—	—	—
39. Colonel Webb's.....	1	1	10	16	10	1	1	1	1	1	1	47	26	445	19	35	2	43	544	4	—	22	—	—	—	—
Four Companies Riflemen, from Va. and Md.	—	—	3	9	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	13	4	215	34	1	—	1	251	—	—	—	—	—	—	2
Two Companies in Colonel Hinman's Regiment, and four Independent Companies..	—	1	6	12	—	—	—	—	—	—	—	24	12	394	—	—	—	—	394	—	—	—	—	—	—	—
Total.....	32	33	29	288	575	71	22	34	34	37	36	1298	690	13923	1476	952	746	2400	19497	9	42	1688	4	14	97	34

HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

Inventory of Ordnance and Stores necessary for the present Army, supposing it to consist of twenty thousand Men.

Cambridge, October 20, 1775.

Cannon, viz: 24 and 18 pounders, (battering cannon,) 36; 12 and 9 pounders, 20; 6, 4, and 3 pounders, (small cannon and field-pieces,) 40—total, 100—with carriages and implements complete.

Mortars, viz: 10 inch mortars, 6; 8 inch do., 2; 7 inch do., 2; 8 inch howitzers, 3—total, 13—with beds and carriages complete.

Guns, 6; platforms, complete, for guns, 100; platforms for mortars, 10; spare carriages for guns, 30; spare beds for mortars, 6; spare sponges, ladles, and rammers, 10 sets; round shot, for battering cannon, 5,000; round and case shot, for smaller cannon, 10,000; 10 inch shells, for mortars, 1,200; 8 inch shells, for do., 1,000; 7 inch shells, for do., 400; hand grenades, 2,000; fuses for bombs and hand grenades; portfires; tin tubes.

Powder for cannon and mortars, 200 rounds, 1,155 barrels; do. for 20,000 men, 120 rounds, or three pounds per man, 600 do.; do. for compositions and extraordinaries, 245 do.—total, 2,000 barrels.

Lead for musketry, 15 tons; sheet lead, 3 do.—total, 18 tons.

Horses and harness, complete, 40.

Stores, viz: Intrenching tools, spare timber and plank, handspikes, beds and quoins, match, flints, saltpetre, brimstone, pitch and tar, turpentine, oil, beeswax, rosin, candles and tallow, sheepskins, canvass and packthread, needles, lanterns of sorts, powder measures, iron pots and kettles, flannel, tin and copper for ladles, travelling forge complete, bar iron, steel, nails and spikes, files, carpenters' and wheelwrights' tools, cordage of sorts, codlines and marline, cotton for quick match, spirits of wine, budge-barrels and haversacks, painted canvass, tanned hides, tents, ammunition carts, cartridge paper, writing paper, two pairs of large hand bellows, brushes, glue, grindstones, scales and weights, surveying compass and chain, searces of sorts, sieves, one theodolite, one good telescope, one case of instruments.

Ordnance, Shot, and Shells, now in Camp.

Cannon: 24 pounders, 5; shot, 449. 18 pounders, 6; shot, 260. 12 pounders, 2; shot, 149. 9 pounders, 3; shot, 1,175. 8 pounder, 1. 6 pounders, 2; 5½ pounders, 4; shot, 1,134. 4 pounders, 7; shot, 1,475. 3 pounders, 9; shot, 3,079. 2½ pounders, 2; shot, 1,009. Total number of cannon, 41. Total number of shot, 8,730. Carriages, ladles, rammers and sponges, &c., complete.

Mortars: 10 inch mortars, 3; shells, 374. 8 inch mortars, 2; 8 inch howitzers, 3; shells, 452. 7 inch brass mortars, 2; shells, 641. Total number of mortars, 10. Total number of shells, 1,467. With beds, carriages, and implements, complete.

— Cambridge, October 20, 1775.

The foregoing inventory of ordnance and stores are what I judge to be absolutely necessary for this Army. Many small things are omitted being mentioned, as the Company of Artificers can make them; and many things can be supplied by the neighbourhood, if wanted. It is impossible to give an exact list of what may be wanted on all occasions. I have endeavoured, as much as the time would permit, to collect the essential matters for the Army; which are humbly submitted, by your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

RICHARD GRIDLEY,
Chief Engineer.

To his Excellency General Washington.

— GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COMMITTEE OF FALMOUTH.

Camp at Cambridge, October 24, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The desolation and misery which Ministerial vengeance had planned, in contempt of every principle of humanity, and which has been so lately brought on the Town of Falmouth, I know not how sufficiently to detest. Nor can my compassion for the general suffering be conceived beyond the true measure of my feelings. But my readiness to relieve you by complying with your request, signified in your favour of the 21st instant, is circumscribed by my inability. The immediate necessities of the Army under my command require all the powder and ball that can be collected, with the utmost industry and trouble: the authority of my station does not extend so far as to empower me to send a detachment of men down to your assistance. Thus circumstanced, I can only add my wishes and exhortations that you may repel every future attempt to perpetrate the like savage cruelties.

I have given liberty to several officers in Colonel Phinney's Regiment to visit their connexions, which may now stand in need of their presence and assistance, by reason of this new exertion of despotick barbarity.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Committee of Falmouth, Casco Bay.

— ARTICLES OF AGREEMENT BETWEEN GENERAL WASHINGTON AND MR. JOHN FISK, FOR POWDER.

Articles of agreement between George Washington, Esq., Commander-in-Chief of the Continental Army, for himself and his successors in the said command, and John Fisk, witness:

That the said George Washington doth hereby bind himself to receive of the said John Fisk any quantity of Powder, not exceeding twenty tons, for each pound of which he engages to pay the said Fisk four Shillings, lawful money; provided, that the said Powder shall be delivered by the said Fisk at Newburyport, or some other port convenient to the camp at Cambridge, in good order and of good quality, on or before the first day of April, 1776. That John Fisk doth, on his part, bind himself to use his utmost endeavours to procure the said twenty tons, or, if not the whole complement, such part thereof as he may be able to obtain; that he will deliver the same, when procured, at Newburyport, or some other port convenient to the camp at Cambridge, in good order and of a good quality, at or before the time abovementioned.

In witness whereof, we have hereunto set our hands, this 24th day of October, 1775.

GEORGE WASHINGTON,
JOHN FISK.

— STEPHEN MOYLAN TO JOSEPH REED.

Beverly, October 24, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I am much obliged to you that you take notice of my letter per Wilson, and doubt not he will answer your and my expectation. I wish with all my soul that these two vessels were despatched, chiefly for the publick service, and also that I may have the pleasure of seeing my friends, Mr. Lynch and Col. Harrison. I want much to be introduced to Doctor Franklin, for whom I have had, many years, a vast veneration. I think they will be off on Thursday evening; if they are, I will be with you on Friday.

Colonel Glover showed me a letter of yours which has mortified him much. I really and sincerely believe he has the cause much at heart, and that he has done his best, in the fitting out these four last vessels, for the publick service. You cannot conceive the difficulty, the trouble, and the delay there is in procuring the thousand things necessary for one of these vessels. I dare say one of them might be fitted in Philadelphia or New-York in three days, because you would know where to apply for the different articles; but here you must search all over Salem, Marblehead, Danvers, and Beverly, for every little thing that is wanting. I must add to these, the jobbing of the carpenters, who are, to be sure, the idlest scoundrels in nature. If I could have procured others, I should have dismissed the whole gang of them last Friday—and such religious rascals are they, that we could not prevail on them to work on the Sabbath. I have stuck very close to them since, and what by scolding and crying shame for their tory-like disposition in retarding the work, I think they mend something.

There is one reason, and I think a substantial one, why a person born in the same Town or neighbourhood, should not be employed on publick affairs of this nature, in that Town or neighbourhood; it is, that the spirit of equality which reigns through this Country will make him afraid of exerting that authority necessary for the expediting his business. He must shake every man by the hand, and desire, beg, and pray, do brother, do my friend, do such a thing; whereas a few hearty damns, from a person who did not care a damn for them, would have a much better effect, (this I know by experience,) for your future government. Indeed, I could give other reasons, but I think this sufficient.

I hope the Field-Deputies will not depart before I have the pleasure to see them; my compliments to those of them that I am acquainted with; and believe me, with great esteem, dear Sir, your assured humble servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

P.S. My best respects attend his Excellency. Pray order the articles wrote for yesterday, to be forwarded without delay. I sha'n't send my sensible boy any more express; but as he goes to town on some business of my own, I desire he may call on you, and if you have any commands, I dare say he will wait for them.

— GENERAL GREENE TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Prospect-Hill, October 24, 1775.

SIR: By an express that arrived from Falmouth last night, we learn the greatest part of the Town is in ashes. The enemy fired above three thousand shot into it, and a large number of carcasses and bombs, which sat the Town on fire. The enemy landed once or twice, to set fire to the stores; they lost eight or ten men in the attempt, and had one taken prisoner. The inhabitants got out a very considerable part of their furniture; no person killed or wounded during the whole time of their firing. The enemy produced orders from Admiral Graves, to burn all the Towns from Boston to Halifax. Captain Mowat informed the Committee at Falmouth, that there had arrived orders from England, about ten days since, to burn all the sea-port Towns upon the Continent, that would not lay down and deliver up their arms, and give hostages for their future good behaviour. He also acquainted them, that he expected the City of New-York was in ashes. By these accounts we may learn what we have to expect. I think Newport should be fortified in the best manner it can be. Doubtless the enemy will make an attempt to get the stock off the island. Provision should be made to defeat them. Death and desolation seem to mark their footsteps. Fight or be slaves! is the American motto. The first is by far the most eligible.

In haste, I am, with great respect and esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

NATHANIEL GREENE.

To the Hon. Nicholas Cooke, Esq., in Providence.

SENTIMENTS OF A GENTLEMAN OF EMINENCE, UPON THE OCCASION OF THE BURNING OF FALMOUTH.

1st. The inconsistency of fitting out privateers, at a great expense, to intercept ships laden with provisions for the enemy, and at the same time recommending it to each particular sea-port Town to furnish, at least not to prevent them from furnishing, the men of war with all provisions and necessities, is so manifest that it would be idle to dwell upon it.

2d. If it be said that it is prudent by this act of compliance to save the Towns from cannonade, it may be answered, the men of war will certainly make further demands, and on the same principles their demands must be complied with.

3d. Is it not reasonable to suppose, when the Ministerial instruments reap such fruits from their menaces, that they will point out to their masters the weak parts of America, and consequently that they will be encouraged to persist in their plan?

4th. Is it not probable, or almost certain, if one Town bids them defiance, that the rest would be ashamed not to follow the example? And vice versa, if the sanction of the Congress is given to any degree of compliance and submission to their terms, is it not probable that some one Town will avail itself of the sanction, and extend their complacency in proportion to the magnitude of their threats? That another and another will plead precedent, and thus ultimately the enemy will be enabled, by our own assistance, to continue the war to our destruction?

5th. Is it not certain, that if once the spirit prevails of denying every kind of refreshment to the ships of war, they cannot possibly keep their station; that diseases and desertions of the crews would in a short time unman the fleet, and consequently the distresses of America be brought to a speedy issue? But if it becomes an established rule to furnish the ships with necessities, may not the war and distresses of America be prolonged ad infinitum?

6th. Is it in fact a clear case that ships of war can, with so great facility, destroy sea-port Towns? If indeed they have force sufficient to land, they may effect this destruction;* but those who suppose it can be done by dint of cannonade, must be very little acquainted with the effects of cannon.† Cannon make a formidable noise to ears unused to the sound, but Towns will receive inconsiderable damage from the utmost fury of any ships of war which can come into our harbours.

But, in our present circumstances, (taking it for granted that ships and cannon can work all this mischief,) is it not necessary to inculcate the principles of making partial sacrifices for the general good? For if this principle is not established, could a poor defenceless Town be censured for submission to any terms which their lords may choose to dictate?

Would any circumstance so effectually reduce the Ministry to despair, as showing an indifference about the existence or destruction of our Towns?

ACCOUNT OF THE DESTRUCTION OF THE TOWN OF FALMOUTH, OCTOBER 18, 1775.

Falmouth, January 15, 1776.

Last March, one Captain Coulson, who had been for two or three years an inhabitant and trader in this Town, imported from Great Britain a quantity of sails and rigging; he immediately applied to the Committee of Inspection for leave to use them, in preparing a ship he had launched for her voyage to England. The Committee judged it would be a breach of the Continental Association, and refused to give him liberty, though they thought the case was hard, and would gladly have construed the Association in his favour; but he grew angry, and bade defiance to Committees and Congresses. However, under the pretence of going to the Provincial Congress for leave to rig, he went and obtained the Cancau, Captain Mowat, which arrived about the beginning of April, and under her protection rigged his new ship.

* They effected the burning of Falmouth, a wooden Town, partly by landing marines.

† This is demonstrated by the little damage generally sustained by Cities during a siege, and the small proportion of buildings burnt when the siege is over.

On the ninth day of May, Captain Mowat fell into the hands of Lieutenant-Colonel Thompson and Company, who had lain in wait for him; but, by the earnest solicitation of some gentlemen among us, as the Navy of Britain had not then commenced any hostilities against any part of the Continent, and as we expected several provision vessels to arrive soon, which we stood in great need of, he was persuaded to set him at liberty, the said Mowat promising to deliver himself up the next day, which promise he did not think proper to fulfil. A day or two after, without any affront or injury being offered him by the Town, Captain Mowat sent us a letter, threatening to fire upon the Town, if we would not by force expel Colonel Thompson and his Company. Instead of regarding it, the Town treated Colonel Thompson with civility, and his men were victualled at the expense of persons in this Town, as long as they pleased to tarry with us; the Town expecting as a consequence of it, for two or three days, to be cannonaded; in which time the inhabitants were at great expense and trouble in removing themselves and effects into the back settlements.

Soon after this, one Mr. Crandell was taken into custody by Admiral Graves; and after he was liberated, reported, that the Admiral inquired of him whether Captain Coulson had loaded. To which he answered in the negative; and that the Admiral then said, if that Town prevents his loading, I will lay it in ashes, or to that purpose. This report was but little attended to at the time, as the said Mr. Crandell was but little known in this place. But since the conflagration we have obtained from him the following deposition:

"I, Philip Crandell, of Harpswell, in the County of Cumberland, and Province of Massachusetts-Bay, being of lawful age, do testify and say: that some time in the month of June last I sailed from Harpswell, for Salem, and upon my passage there, I, the deponent, was forcibly taken by an armed vessel, and carried into Boston; and being in the presence of Admiral Graves, he asked me if such a man of war (he named her, but I forgot her name) had arrived at Falmouth. I answered that I heard she had. He then asked me if I thought she would be opposed by the people. I replied, I could not tell. He then asked me if Captain Coulson was loading at Falmouth. I answered, that I had heard he met with such opposition from the people as to prevent it. Upon which the Admiral said, you may tell them, if they will not let him load, that I will send a ship or ships, and beat the Town down about their ears. I then told the Admiral that Captain Coulson's being prevented loading was not owing to the inhabitants of Falmouth-Neck, but to the country people. I do not remember that the Admiral made any reply, or said any thing further relative to Falmouth or Captain Coulson. And further I, the deponent, say not.

"PHILIP CRANDELL."

"CUMBERLAND, ss. Harpswell, January 1, A. D., 1776:

"Then the above named Philip Crandell personally appeared and made solemn oath to the truth of the above deposition by him subscribed, before me,

"WM. SYLVESTER, Just. Pacis."

Mr. Crandell's mistake in thinking Captain Coulson's being prevented loading was not owing to the inhabitants of Falmouth-Neck will appear by and by. Captain Mowat, despairing, as we suppose, of being able to protect Captain Coulson, went away with him to Portsmouth. Captain Coulson returned the 7th day of June, in his ship, together with the Senegal, Captain Duddingston. The same day, or the day following, a party of the inhabitants of the Neck, by the direction of the Town's Committee, and in compliance with a resolve of the Provincial Congress, to prevent Tories carrying their effects out of the Country, seized a number of masts, which the said Coulson was just ready to take in, and towed them up a river, to a place where neither Coulson nor Duddingston dared to go after them.

Nothing further happened, that we can recollect, that has any connection with the destruction of the Town, excepting our generally obeying the authority of Congresses, until Monday, the 16th day of October last, when Captain Mowat, in the Cancau, with another larger ship, called the Cat, a large schooner, and a small sloop, all armed vessels, arrived in our harbour, and anchored down by the islands, a league from the Town. As the Town perceived it was Captain Mowat, by whom they had been before threatened, and knew him to have great reason to be bound in gratitude to several gentlemen in it, it was the less alarmed. But supposing him to be in quest of cattle and provisions, the Committee sent the greater part of Captain Noyes's men, and some of Captain Knight's, to guard the islands, where there were large stocks of cattle and quantities of hay. The next day, being Tuesday, we saw the fleet warping up towards the Town, as the wind did not favour them; and about four o'clock, P. M., they anchored in a line close to the Town. Though the publick has been told that Captain Mowat came ashore at this time, it is not true. He sent a messenger, with a flag, who delivered the following letter:

"Canceau, Falmouth, October 16, 1775.

"After so many premeditated attacks on the legal prerogative of the best of Sovereigns, after the repeated instances you have experienced in Britain's long forbearance of the rod of correction, and the manifest and paternal extension of her hands to embrace you, again and again, have been regarded as vain and nugatory; and in place of a dutiful and grateful return to your King and Parent State, you have been guilty of the most unpardonable rebellion, supported by the ambition of a set of designing men, whose insidious views have cruelly imposed on the credulity of their fellow-creatures, and at last have brought the whole into the same dilemma; which leads me to feel not a little the woes of the innocent of them in particular on the present occasion, from my having it in orders to execute a just punishment on the Town of Falmouth. In the name of which authority, I previously warn you to remove, without delay, the human species out of the said Town, for which purpose I give you the time of two hours; at the period of which, a red pendant will be hoisted at the main topgallant mast head, with a gun. But should your imprudence lead you to show the least resistance, you will in that case free me of that humanity so strongly pointed out in my orders, as well as in my inclination. I do also observe, that all those who did, on a former occasion, fly to the King's ship under my command, for protection, that the same door is now open and ready to receive them.

"The officer who will deliver this letter, I expect to return immediately, unmolested.

"I am, &c.,

H. MOWAT."

The Town met immediately, and appointed the Honourable Jedediah Preble, Esq., Doctor Nathaniel Coffin, and Mr. Robert Pagan, a Committee to wait upon Captain Mowat, to know of him in general the meaning of his letter, and the reasons for the threatenings therein contained. The Committee acted accordingly, and have testified as follows:

"Captain Mowat informed us, that his orders from the Admiral did not authorize him to give any warning to the inhabitants, but that they required him to come opposite the Town with all possible expedition, and there burn, sink, and destroy; and that he had taken upon him to give this warning at the risk of his commission. He further told us, that these orders did not respect this Town only, but also all the sea-port Towns upon the Continent. We then expostulated with him upon the severity of such orders, and entreated that, if possible, some method might be fallen upon to save the Town, or at least to give the inhabitants an opportunity of removing some of their effects, &c.; upon which he said, if the inhabitants would, in the morning, by eight o'clock, deliver up four pieces of cannon which were in the Town, with their arms in general, and ammunition, he would in that case do no hurt to the Town, until he had despatched an express to the Admiral, who, he did not doubt, would order him to save the Town. And as a token that his demand would be complied with, he required that eight arms should be delivered up by eight o'clock that evening, which should be the condition of the Town's being safe till eight o'clock next morning. We told him we were pretty certain these demands would not be complied with; but, that in discharge of the trust reposed in us, we must inform the Town of his demands. Upon this, we went to the County house, and acquainted our constituents with the terms abovementioned, who disapproved of delivering up the cannon or their arms. But that they might have an opportunity of removing the sick, with the women and children, and as many of their effects as possible, they ordered the eight arms to be sent on board, and desired us to inform Captain Mowat that the Town would meet early in the morning, and send him an answer by eight o'clock. The Town accordingly met in the morning, and resolved by no means to deliver up the cannon or their arms, and sent us with this message, at the same time desiring us to endeavour to prolong the time on board as long as possible, that more effects might be removed. We went on board with this message, and staid till half past eight o'clock, when we were desired to go ashore, and Captain Mowat, at our request, gave us half an hour longer, to get out of the way ourselves; at the expiration of which time, the firing upon the Town began.

"JEDEDIAH PREBLE,

"ROBERT PAGAN,

"NATHANIEL COFFIN."

It was about nine o'clock on Wednesday, being the 18th of October, that the firing began from all the abovementioned vessels, with all possible briskness, discharging on every part of the Town, which lay on a regular descent towards the harbour, an horrible shower of balls, from three to nine pounds weight, bombs, carcasses, live shells, grape-shot, and musket balls. The firing lasted, without many minutes cessation, until about six o'clock, P. M., during which time several parties came ashore and set buildings on fire by hand. Parties of our people, and others from the neighbouring Towns, ran down to oppose them, and it is thought killed several. One officer, after he fell, was stripped of a neat pair of pistols, his flask, and cockade. Through the goodness of God, no life was lost on our side, and only one man wounded, viz: Mr. Reuben Clough, of this Town. Had no opposition been made, we do not believe they would have left one building standing; and more opposition would have been made, had not the people's attention been taken up in securing their effects. Besides, it was very unfortunate that our Companies of sea-coast men were put under the direction of a Committee; for they did not, and we suppose could not, get together in the hurry of affairs, and therefore could give no authoritative directions.

As near as we can judge, about three-quarters of the buildings, reckoning according to their value, are consumed, consisting of about one hundred and thirty dwelling-houses, many of which held two or three families apiece, besides barns, and almost every store and warehouse in Town. St. Paul's church, a large new building, with the bell; a very elegant and costly new court-house, not quite finished; a fine engine, almost new; the old Town house, and the publick library, were all consumed. But one or two wharves have escaped the flames; and every vessel in the harbour, of any considerable bigness, was burnt, excepting two, which the enemy carried away with them. The warning given was so short, that but few teams could be procured to remove the goods out; much was carried out by hand; but, as far as we can learn, not much more than half of the moveables were saved out of the buildings that were burnt. All the compact part of the Town is gone; and among the hundred dwelling-houses that are standing, there are but few good buildings, and those damaged with balls passing through them, or bombs bursting. They are mostly the refuse of the Town, and their owners do not generally inhabit them, as we are apprehensive our enemies will soon endeavour to seize so fine a harbour as ours, and to possess themselves of so advantageous a post as the remarkable eminence on our neck.

Our hearts ache for the misery in which a great part of our people are involved. The most were greatly impoverished before the final catastrophe, by the decay of navigation and trade, which were our sole means of support; so many have lost a part or the whole of their substance, that we conjecture not less than a hundred families must have suffered for want of necessaries, unless relieved by charity. The settlements back of us are new, and but little cultivated. The inhabitants are mostly poor, and have never yet been able to raise their own bread, so that much alms is not to be expected from them.

From this state of facts, it follows most evidently, in the first place, that the Town of Falmouth was destroyed for no other reason, but because of its obedience to the Continental and Provincial Congresses, and its attachment to the cause of liberty and America. In the next place, that those who live remote from us would do well to minister something, out of their abundance, for the relief of our suffering poor, until it becomes possible for them to get into some way to support themselves, as we find with pleasure and gratitude this Province, by its Representatives, have begun to do.

ENOCH FREEMAN,
HUMPHREY MERILL,
JOHN JOHNSON,
WILLIAM OWEN,

Selectmen of the Town of Falmouth.

MAJOR SCAMMELL TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Camp on Winter-Hill, October 24, 1775.

DEAR HONOURED SIR: Your Brigade is almost a caput mortuum, and their countenances fallen. Providence, to prevent my seeing their gloomy aspects, has turned the relics of my dysentery into my eyes, so that I am almost blind. General Gates has never been here since your departure. General Greene urges the augmentation of the Winter-Hill picket; I urge your orders to go on with the usual details, and by that means have avoided his request. He declares he will lay it before General Lee; but I hope General Lee will go for Rhode-Island before he will have an opportunity.

The enemy have been very peaceable since you left us; waiting perhaps in silent expectation to hear the success of their diabolical piratical emissaries. I hope they won't hear of your absence till your return, lest they attempt our lines; and a body without a leader, they can fully depend on, will be, at best, but a dispirited number. We impatiently wait to hear of your success. We rest assured that all human efforts will be made use of to oppose the Ministerial butchers, since you preside.

May Heaven succeed and prosper your endeavours, preserve your life from the hostile balls, your health from any sad accident, and return you in safety to your many sincere friends and very humble servant,

ALEXANDER SCAMMELL.

To Brigadier-General Sullivan, at Portsmouth.

P. S. Please to make my compliments to Major Cilley. I long to be with you. The news of the camp (perhaps the lie of the day) is, that the King of France offers us two-and-twenty sail of the line, if we desire it.

DECLARATION OF DAVID NOBLE.

Williamstown, October 24, 1775.

Whereas the Committee of Correspondence for this Town have informed me, that some suspicions have been conceived of me, respecting my principles and conduct in regard to our publick affairs; and, in particular, concerning my conduct when I was Representative for this Town at the General Court held in Boston, in A. D. 1773; that I then acted in opposition to the measures pursued for the defence of our common rights and privileges, in that I voted against the petition and remonstrance to the King, for the removal of the then Governour Hutchinson: Now, impressed with a sense of my duty to myself and the publick, I sincerely declare, that although at the time above referred to, and for some time before then, I had conceived too good an opinion of that arch traitor to his Country, T. Hutchinson, and, for want of a thorough knowledge of my duty at that time, I inconsiderately opposed the above-said petition and remonstrance, and thereby justly incurred the displeasure of my constituents, and that by any thing whereby I have given any persons reason to suspect me to be unfriendly to my Country, I have so far deservedly forfeited their good esteem. Yet, to do justice to myself, I must declare, that although I have committed errors, and been liable to mistakes, in the little part I have been called to act, I have ever been a cordial friend to the liberties and true interest of America, so far as I understood it, and ever have conformed myself to the advice and directions of our several Congresses, and am determined for the future to unite, according to my abilities, in the defence of our common rights and privileges.

DAVID NOBLE.

The Committee of Correspondence being convened on the 26th of October, 1775, the abovenamed David Noble voluntarily presented the above declaration; which, being examined and accepted by this Committee, was presented to the Town, in a publick Town-meeting, for concurrence, which being twice read, was put to vote, whether the same be satisfactory to the Town. Passed in the affirmative. Attest:

ISAAC STRATTON, Clerk of the Com.

BOOTHBAY COMMITTEE.

In Committee of Safety, Boothbay, October 24, 1775.

Whereas this Committee, on occasion of a late alarm, prevailed with Captain William Pierce Johnson to deliver to them one hundred weight of Powder, thirty-two and a half weight of Ball, fifty Fire-Arms, and two hundred Flints, for which their agents have given him receipts, and for the payment of the price this Committee now stands bound, and petitions have been sent to the honourable the Great and General Court, praying that a quantity of Captain Johnson's cargo be forthwith ordered to be sold to the inhabitants of this County, as they are no less exposed to the enemy than any other part of the Colony, the answers to which petitions have not yet arrived:

Whereas Captain Johnson, in consequence of an express from the camp, has this night made a peremptory demand of this Committee for the return of the whole of said Arms and Ammunition, in order that the same may be speedily conveyed to Portsmouth, in New-Hampshire:

This Committee, having the greatest respect for the authority by which Captain Johnson has been ordered to remove said warlike stores, and the most cheerful readiness to obey it in every thing possible, yet having at the same time the firmest attachment to the great cause in which all America is engaged, which they are sure must speedily suffer in the total loss of this Country, if the little pittance of Ammunition now in it be withdrawn, they are persuaded that the preservation of the lives of the inhabitants of this and the neighbouring Towns on the coast, the safety of the coast of this whole Country, and so fidelity to the liberty of all America, which, insignificant as we are, might be greatly affected should this County open to the enemy the free trade of three hundred miles of the best coast for navigation in New-England, all compel us to refuse to return to said Captain Johnson any part of said stores, as absolutely as he has demanded them.

We are well assured that, were the circumstances of these parts known at Head-Quarters, said demand would never have been made, and trust that by the return of our express the orders that produced it will be countermanded. However, this Committee are free to declare that, as they would have compelled the said Captain Johnson to deliver said stores, had he persisted to refuse them while he saw the common foe carrying fire and sword among us, and leaving all desolate where they come, so, as the same danger still continues to stare us in the face, we think it our duty as plainly to declare that no part of said stores shall be delivered until the pleasure of the General Court is known, or a force shall appear to demand it, greater than we can raise to defend it.

Signed by order of the Committee:

JOHN BLATH, Chairman.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO COLONEL ENOS.

Dead River, 30 miles from Chaudiere Pond, }
October 24, 1775. }

DEAR SIR: The extreme rains and freshets in the river have hindered our proceeding any farther. When I wrote you last, I expected before this to have been at Chaudiere. I then wrote you that we had about twenty-five days' provisions for the whole. We are now reduced to twelve or fifteen days', and don't expect to reach the pond under four days. We had a council of war last night, when it was thought best and ordered to send back all the sick and feeble, with three days' provisions, and directions for you to furnish them until they can reach the Commissary or

Norridgewock; and that on receipt of this you should proceed with as many of the best men of your division as you can furnish with fifteen days' provision; and that the remainder, whether sick or well, should be immediately sent back to the Commissary, to whom I wrote to take all possible care of them. I make no doubt you will join with me in this matter, as it may be the means of preserving the whole detachment, and of executing our plan without running any great hazard, as fifteen days will doubtless bring us to Canada. I make no doubt you will make all possible expedition.

I am, dear Sir, yours,
Colonel Enos.

B. ARNOLD.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO COLONEL FARNSWORTH.

Dead River, October 24, 1775.

DEAR SIR: The heavy rains which have lately fallen, and rendered the river almost impassable, with many accidents, have so far retarded our proceeding that I find it necessary for the safety of the detachment to send back the sick, and to reduce the detachment so as to have fifteen days' provisions for the whole, which I make no doubt will enable us to reach Canada. Those who are sent back you will take all possible care of, and supply with provisions, &c., and send back to Cambridge as soon as possible.

I wrote you the 14th instant, to send forward to the great carrying place all the provisions you had. This I make no doubt you have done, to secure our retreat.

I am, dear Sir, your obedient servant,
To Colonel Farnsworth.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO COLONEL GREENE.

Dead River, 30 miles from Chaudiere, }
October 24, 1775. }

DEAR SIR: Enclosed is a letter from Colonel Enos, and also one from the Commissary, by which you will see our present situation, and the necessity of sending back all the sick and feeble of your division, and proceed on with the best men, and fifteen days' provision for each. You will, after perusing the letter, (if Colonel Enos has not joined you,) send them down the river, with all your sick, &c. Pray hurry on as fast as possible.

I am, with esteem, dear Sir, your humble servant,
Colonel Greene.

B. ARNOLD.

ADDRESS OF THE LIVERYMEN OF THE CITY OF LONDON.

Address of the Liverymen of the City of London, presented to His Majesty by Thomas Wellings, Chairman, John Spiller, Gabriel Leekey, William Judd, Evan Pugh, Roger Griffin, and Thomas Moore, Esqrs.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

From the warmest sense of duty to your Majesty and love of our Country, we, your Majesty's loyal subjects, Liverymen of the City of London, whose names are hereto subscribed, with the freedom we ever mean to assert as Englishmen, and with that deference which we owe, as good subjects, to your Majesty, presume to approach your royal presence, and to entreat your attention to the genuine sentiments of a loyal and dutiful people.

It is with the deepest concern we observe, that our fellow-subjects in your Majesty's American Colonies are now in open rebellion. A malignant spirit of resistance to law and Government has gone forth amongst them, which we firmly believe has been excited and encouraged by selfish men, who hope to derive private emolument from public calamities; from the counsels, the persuasions, the influence of such men, God protect your Majesty. The interest, the honour, the sovereignty of your Kingdom of Great Britain, are now at stake. As the guardian of these, we trust you will ever assert and preserve them. In this great work, be assured, Sire, that under your Majesty's direction we will, with the greatest cheerfulness, exert ourselves to the utmost of our abilities in support of those laws which are our protection, and of that Government which is our blessing.

Whilst we presume to approach your Majesty with hopes that you will exert the constitutional power you possess to subdue such of your deluded people as are now acting in open defiance of the laws, permit us, gracious Sire, to implore your clemency towards those whose eyes may be opened to a full conviction of their offences; and who, hereafter, when reason and reflection shall prevail over passion and prejudice, may be restored to the allegiance which they owe to the Mother Country and their Sovereign.

That your Majesty and your posterity may long reign over a people, happy in enjoying those blessings which the accession of your ancestors to the throne of these Kingdoms has hitherto ensured to us, is the unfeigned and ardent wish of your Majesty's most dutiful, faithful, and devoted subjects.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF BARNSTAPLE, IN THE COUNTY OF DEVON.

Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Capital Burgesses, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough and Parish of Barnstaple, in the County of Devon, presented to His Majesty by John Cleveland, Esq., one of their Representatives in Parliament.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Capital Burgesses, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough and Parish of BARNSTAPLE, in the County of DEVON.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, beg leave to approach your royal presence with professions of our zealous fidelity and attachment to your sacred person and Government. It is with gratitude we acknowledge your great care and regard for the publick welfare; and, impressed with a due sense of that prudence and tender concern for your people, which has at all times so eminently distinguished your Majesty's reign, we cannot but view with horror and detestation the present ungrateful and unnatural rebellion fomented in a distant part of your Empire. Of the necessity and propriety of those measures which have been already pursued to check and control the factious and misguided, to prevent their baneful influence over the minds of the weak and unwary, and support the honour and dignity of the British Crown, we are fully persuaded; and we rest assured that your Majesty will continue to take such steps as may serve most effectually to recall this infatuated and deluded people to a just sense of that duty which they owe to the best of Kings, and convince them of that submission and obedience which the supreme legislative authority of these Kingdoms may justly require from them. To show ourselves devoted to your Majesty's person and Government, we shall at all times deem our greatest glory and honour; and we trust that we shall always strenuously endeavour to cultivate among our fellow-subjects sentiments of the greatest loyalty, fidelity, and affection.

May the crown of these Realms long flourish on your royal head, and may the blessings which we enjoy under your mild and auspicious reign be perpetuated to a grateful and loyal people, under the government of your latest posterity.

ADDRESS OF THE PROVINCIAL SYNOD OF ANGUS AND MEARNS.

Address of the Ministers and Elders of the Provincial Synod of Angus and Mearns, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Ministers and Elders of the Provincial Synod of ANGUS and MEARNS, assembled at DUNDEE, this 25th of October, 1775.

May it please your Majesty:

Sensible of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's auspicious reign, we see, with the deepest concern, that a part of our fellow-subjects in America, having adopted principles subversive of all legal Government and subordination, are now in a state of actual hostility and rebellion.

At such a period, we consider ourselves as called on, with the rest of your Majesty's faithful subjects, publickly to declare our attachment to your Majesty's person, family, and Government, our abhorrence of every measure that may prove prejudicial to them, and our desire of contributing to undeceive a people misled by the hopes of finding in their Mother Country that same licentious spirit which prevails among themselves.

To this testimony of our unshaken loyalty and affection, it gives us pleasure to add, that the same principles prevail among the people under our care, who, as well as we, look with astonishment on those factious men in Great Britain, who, to gratify their own ambition, are ready to sacrifice the interests of their Country and the lives of their fellow-subjects.

It is our earnest prayer to the great disposer of all events, that the authority of the British Legislature may be acknowledged and obeyed throughout all the parts of your Majesty's Dominions, and that means may happily be devised for obtaining that end without the further effusion of human blood, which, as men and ministers of the gospel of peace, we wish to be avoided. But if, to our great regret, lenient measures should unhappily prove ineffectual, and only tend to foment the disorders which they are meant to remedy, we will most cordially pray for success to such expedients as the wisdom of your Majesty's counsels shall find necessary to employ.

That Almighty God may pour down his best blessings on your Majesty's person and family; that he may long preserve your Majesty to be the guardian of our religious and civil liberties, as presently established by law, and to reign over a free, happy, and affectionate people; and may at a distant period crown you with immortal glory, through Jesus Christ our Lord, are and ever shall be the earnest prayer of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most faithful, most obedient, and most loyal subjects, the Ministers and Elders assembled in this Provincial Synod of Angus and Mearns.

Signed in our name, and at our appointment, by JAMES ADAMSON, Moderator.

Martinico, October 25, 1775.

A few days ago an English frigate cast anchor in the harbour of Fort Royal, under the cannon of the fort, and sent some armed men in her boats to seize a New-England vessel which lay in that harbour, whose crew they made prisoners, then plundered the vessel, and afterwards left it to the mercy of the waves. The Count De Nozieres, being then at Guadaloupe, the Sieur de Sablonet, commandant in his absence at Fort Royal, failed not to take upon him to punish this violation of the law of nations, by firing on the English frigate, which, after this expedition, sailed for St. Pierre, where there were then a dozen ships belonging to New-England. The frigate anchored, without ceremony, also in that port, and despatched her boats to visit the ships which she suspected to be laden with warlike ammunition; but, as they met with resistance from the first they attempted to board, the inhabitants of St. Pierre defended the English Americans, and, having armed themselves, took the boats with their crews, and the men were conveyed ashore, notwithstanding all their resistance. Some of them were wounded on this occasion. The Count de Choiseul-Meuse, second in command at Martinico, and then chief in the absence of the General, immediately went to the store-house where the English were detained, and, after sharply upbraiding them for so manifest an infraction of the law of nations, he sent a detachment on board the English frigate, and caused it to be signified to the commander, that he would not release his men till such time as he had repaired the injury which had been done. This was accompanied with an express order to put to sea immediately after; and the more efficaciously to decide the matter, he instantly set about preparing the battery of St. Martha, and threatened to sink the English frigate if she deferred giving the satisfaction which was demanded. The firmness of our commandant had its effect on the Captain, who speedily performed what was desired, and then weighed anchor, after having received his boats and his men.

CHESTERFIELD COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee for Chesterfield County, at the Court-House, on the 25th of October, 1775, the following gentlemen were chosen Officers for the Militia of this County:

Edward Friend, Esq., County Lieutenant; John Bott, Esq., Colonel; Robert Haskins, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel; Joseph Bass, Esq., Major.

Captains: Thomas Bolling, George Robertson, Robert Goode, Richard Baugh, James Elam, Benjamin Brance, Bernard Markham, Jesse Cogbille, Edward Moseley, James Harris, Creed Haskins, and Joseph Royal.

Lieutenants: Rich'd Booker, Archerd Bass, David Patteson, John Osborne, Patrick Wright, Archerd Walthall, Stephen Pankey, King Graves, John Hill, Thomas Wooldrige, Samuel Goode, and Benjamin Ward.

Ensigns: John Archer, John Hill, John Fowler, Jun., Thomas Osborne, Branch Elam, Thomas Goode, Obadiah Smith, Jun., George Cogbille, Jun., Alexander Baugh, William Scott, Jun., Jesse Clark, and Daniel Worsham.

Resolved, That publick notice be given to our suffering friends in the County of Norfolk, and places adjacent, who may be compelled to quit their habitations in this time of distress, that the Members of this Committee will furnish them with every accommodation in their power, and they doubt not of the same disposition in the other inhabitants of this County.

By order of the Committee: JERMAN BAKER, Clk.

PRESIDENT OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS OF NEW-JERSEY.

Philadelphia, October 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress having taken into consideration your letters of the 13th and 14th instant, have directed me to inform you, that they are of opinion the publick service makes it necessary that the Jersey Battalions be levied with all possible expedition; but, as the Congress are waiting the return of their Committee from camp, in order to establish permanent regulations for all the Continental forces, they, for the present, incline to suspend a determination on the question about the appointment of regimental field-officers.

The publick exigency will not admit of loans from the Continental Treasury to any of the Colonies. The Congress, however, hope that this will not disable you from supplying yourselves with arms and ammunition; in doing which, it is not doubted you will fall upon such means as will be most for the ease and safety of the Colony, without hazarding the emission of paper currency.

From some expressions in your letter of the 14th inst., the Congress apprehend it is the intention of your Convention to take into constant pay four thousand Minute-Men. But as this will be a very heavy expense, and more, it is apprehended, than any one Colony can afford, we hope you will well weigh and consider such a measure before you adopt it. With respect to provisions for Minute-Men, the Congress have made none, conceiving that the several Colonies will make proper provision for them where necessary, or when they are called into actual service, except when they are taken into Continental service; in which case they will be entitled to the same pay as other Continental troops.

I am, &c., JOHN HANCOCK, President.

To the Provincial Convention of New-Jersey.

A LIST OF THE FIELD-OFFICERS FOR THE COUNTY OF ULSTER, NEW-YORK.

Johannes Hardenbergh, Colonel; Abraham Hasbrouck, Lieutenant-Colonel; Johannes Snyder, Jonathan Elmen-dorph, Majors; Petrus J. Elmendorph, Adjutant; Abraham A. Hasbrouck, Quartermaster.

James Clinton, Colonel; James McClaghry, Lieutenant-Colonel; Jacob Newkerk, Moses Philips, Majors; George Denniston, Adjutant; Alexander Trimble, Quartermaster.

Levi Pawling, Colonel; Jacob Hoornbeck, Lieutenant-Colonel; Johannes Cantine, Joseph Hasbrouck, Majors; David Bevier, Adjutant; Jacobus Bruyn, Jun., Quartermaster.

Jonathan Hasbrouck, Colonel; Johannes Hardenbergh, Jun., Lieutenant-Colonel; Johannes Jansen, Jun., Lewis Dubois, Majors; Abraham Schoonmaker, Adjutant; Isaac Belknap, Quartermaster.

RETURN OF OFFICERS FOR THE TOWNSHIPS OF ROCHESTER, MARBLETOWN, AND NEW-PALTZ, NEW-YORK.

A roll or list of the Officers of the respective Companies of the Regiment whereof Levi Pawling is to be the Colonel.

Of the Township of Marbletown.

First Company: Cornelius E. Wynkoop, Captain; Charles W. Brodhead, First Lieutenant; Moses M. Cantine, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Chambers, Ensign.

Second Company: Frederick Schoonmaker, Jun., Captain; Benjamin Louw, First Lieutenant; Jacobus Rosekrans, Second Lieutenant; John C. De Witt, Ensign.

Of the Township of Rochester.

First Company: Petrus Schoonmaker, Captain; Philip Hoornbeek, First Lieutenant; Cornelius Hardenbergh, Second Lieutenant; Dirck Westbrook, Ensign.

Second Company: Andrew Bevier, Captain; Richard Brodhead, First Lieutenant; Reuben De Witt, Second Lieutenant; Johannes A. De Witt, Ensign.

Third Company: Joachim Schoonmaker, Captain; John Depuy, First Lieutenant; Cornelius Van Wagenen, Second Lieutenant; Zacharias Rosekrans, Ensign.

Of the Township of New-Paltz.

First Company: Lewis J. Dubois, Captain; John A. Hardenbergh, First Lieutenant; Matthew Lafever, Second Lieutenant; Mathusalem Dubois, Ensign.

Second Company: Jacob Hasbrouck, Junior, Captain; Abraham Deyoe, Junior, First Lieutenant; Petrus Hasbrouck, Second Lieutenant; Samuel Bevier, Ensign.

The Third Company of New-Paltz is returned in Congress.

RETURN OF THE OFFICERS FOR THE TOWN OF KINGSTON, ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

A roll of the Officers (being elected) in the several Districts or Beats in the Town of Kingston, Ulster County, agreeable to the Resolve of the Provincial Congress, viz:

Beat No. 1. Evert Bogardus, Captain; Daniel Graham, First Lieutenant; Anthony Frere, Second Lieutenant; Johannes Persen, Ensign.

No. 2. Moses Cantine, Jun., Captain; Philip Swart, First Lieutenant; Abraham G. Vanaken, Second Lieutenant; Hendricus Tarpenning, Ensign.

No. 3. Matthew Dedrick, Captain; Evert Wynkoop, Jun., First Lieutenant; Petrus Eygenaer, Second Lieutenant; Hendrick Myer, Ensign.

No. 4. John L. De Witt, Captain; Petrus Oosterhoudt, First Lieutenant; Tobias Myer, Second Lieutenant; Petrus Brink, Ensign.

No. 6. Hendrick Schoonmaker, Captain; Edward Schoonmaker, First Lieutenant; Edward Whittaker, Second Lieutenant; Isaac Burhans, Ensign.

The above is a true copy of the Returns made to the Committee of Kingston.

JOSEPH GASHERIE.

RETURN OF A COMPANY OF HORSE IN THE TOWN OF KINGSTON, IN ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

Philip Hooghteling, Captain; Silvester Salisbury, First Lieutenant; Petrus Myndertse, Second Lieutenant; Cornelius C. Newkerk, Cornet; Cornelius J. Dubois, First Quartermaster; James Roe, Second Quartermaster.

RETURN OF MILITIA OFFICERS FOR NEW-WINDSOR PRECINCT, ULSTER COUNTY, NEW-YORK.

New-Windsor, October 5, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: These are to certify that John Belknap was legally elected Captain, Silas Wood First Lieutenant, Edward Falls Second Lieutenant, and James Stickney Ensign, for a Company of Foot, in the Second Regiment of Ulster County, being in the Precinct of New-Windsor, in the presence of two of the Members of this Committee. By order of the Committee:

SAMUEL BREWSTER, Chairman.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York, now convened in the City of New-York.

BENJ. BAKER TO MESSRS. YATES, GLEN, AND SILVESTER.

Albany, October 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 12th instant came to hand the 23d. It gave me satisfaction to understand that my intended process for the production of nitre had, by the Provincial Congress, been so far approved of as to authorize you to correspond with me on the subject. You desired to be informed what quantity I could make in three months, what in six months, and so on. I cannot, in justice, say more than I wrote in the latter part of my last letter, except a little more explanation. Saltpetre cannot, from its origin, be made to profit under nine or twelve months; yet at the same time a considerable quantity may be had in much less. For instance, a compound is put together for transmutation: it, in consequence, from the first day, must, by gradual ascents, undergo the change, and so on until the whole mass is, by its attractive quality, impregnated or laden with the nitrous particles; therefore, if the commixture is made use of before a sufficient change has taken place, we not only stop the vegetation, but bestow cost and labour to little or no profit. You further ask me to write my terms, and in case the Congress should lend me money, whether I could find security for the same. It cannot appear, from my writing before, that self-interested views was any ways my motive; but, on the other hand, purely to serve the Country—therefore, I really think it ought not to be expected for me to make propositions. In respect to security, I beg leave to inform you, that under the consideration of being a stranger, and at the same time in a part of a country where the people of it can have but a slender idea of the practicability of such a manufactory, can have faith enough to become bail for the return of cash advanced under these considerations. Please to excuse me—I cannot think of looking for it; but at the same time observe, that for any sum advanced, can find good security that it shall be disbursed for the purpose intended, and any capital (provided not too small) may be employed.

Now, gentlemen, upon a re-examination of what I wrote before, as well as now, I hope my repeated overtures will be looked upon as sufficient. My first was to the Committee of Albany, and forwarded to the New-York Congress; wherein I offered my service without any limited fee or reward, doubting not but publick services might meet with publick reward. And in my second, as well as this, have, for your mere satisfaction, been more open than is altogether consistent with safety to the art; and, notwithstanding all that I have said, will yet, for your better idea of the reasonableness of my process, give you the East-India method of making saltpetre, in which you will find an affinity between their method and mine, because the sameness is in all vegetables whatsoever, when reduced by fire, viz:

“The manner in which nitre is originally obtained in the East-Indies, is (I have it, says the author, on the authority of a person of unquestionable veracity, who made it his particular business to procure a just information) according to the following account: There is a very tall kind of grass growing in the country where the nitre is produced, which being burnt customarily in the autumn, forms beds of very large extent, covered with such salts and earths, resulting from the incineration, as the most proper matrices for the formation of the nitre. These lying all the winter on the sides of hills, exposed to the winds, consequently collect the nitrous spirits from the air, in the same manner as when spread by art with that intent, and produce great quantities of nitre. After this, a rainy season ensues, where the solution, partly absorbed by the earth, and partly flowing above it, is exposed to the heat of the sun; that makes an evaporation of the humidity, and leaves the salt in a dry state, either commixed with the earth, or on the surface of it, and this is sometimes artificially, by turning the rills of water, as they descend from the higher grounds, by proper tanks, into places where the absorption of it by the ground is prevented; and where, therefore, the fluid, drying away by insolation, produces a strong solution of the nitre, which being taken out and purified in that state, is afterwards reduced to a crystalline form by evaporation.”

Upon the whole of what has been said, if it is intended to have a work established, may appoint trustees; and I, for an adequate consideration, by way of superintendency, am willing, to the best of my abilities, to construct and manage the same. Winter is close at hand, yet considerable might be done, and is certainly the best season to give the change.

I am, Gentlemen, your very humble servant,
BENJAMIN BAKER.

To Messrs. Yates, Glen, and Silvester.

SILAS MARSH TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Amenia, Dutchess County, N. Y., October 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: You will observe, by my return of a former paper of this kind, or one returned by Roswell Hopkins, that Joel Harvey was returned on the back thereof, and Mr. Morse not returned at all, by reason the paper was never presented to him. Harvey since behaves like a true friend, and desires he may be entered among the faithful, and be entitled to their privileges; which desire he may.

I am your very humble servant, SILAS MARSH.
Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq.

Persuaded that the salvation of the rights and liberties of America depend, under God, on the firm union of its inhabitants in a vigorous prosecution of the measures necessary for its safety, and convinced of the necessity of preventing the anarchy and confusion that attend the dissolution of the powers of Government, we, the freeholders and inhabitants of Dutchess County, and Province of New-York, being greatly alarmed at the avowed designs of the Ministry to raise a revenue in America, and shocked by the bloody scenes now acting in the Massachusetts-Bay, do, in the most solemn manner, resolve never to become slaves, and do associate, under all the ties of religion, honour, and love to our Country, to adopt, and endeavour to carry into execution, whatever measures may be recommended by the Continental Congress, or resolved upon by our Provincial Convention, for the purpose of preserving our Constitution, and opposing the execution of the several arbitrary and oppressive acts of the British Parliament, until a reconciliation between Great Britain and America, on constitutional principles, which we most ardently desire, can be obtained; and that we will in all things follow the advice of our General Committee respecting the purposes aforesaid, the preservation of peace and good order, and the safety of individuals and private property.

JOSIAH MORSE,
JOEL HARVEY, JUN.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, October 25, 1775.

SIR: Captain Whipple returned here from his voyage to Bermuda on Friday last. He had received authentick intelligence of the arrival of the packet at New-York, before the first time limited for his cruise was expired, and immediately sailed for Bermuda. He had light flattering winds for several days, and when near the island met with a violent gale, which drove him three or four degrees to the southward, and occasioned his having a long passage. He put in at the west end of the island, where the inhabitants, taking him to be an armed vessel belonging to the King, were thrown into the utmost confusion, and the women and children fled into the country; but upon showing his commission and instructions, were satisfied, and treated him with great cordiality and friendship. They informed him that, upon the powder's being removed, the Governour had given General Gage an account of the part they had taken in the transaction, who had despatched a sloop of war and a transport of six hundred tons to take all the provisions sent to the island, (they then lay at Georgetown), and treated the islanders as Rebels. Captain Whipple had five of the King's Council on board his sloop, who all assured him that the inhabitants were hearty friends to the American cause, and heartily disposed to serve it. As the assistance they gave in the removal of the powder hath made them obnoxious to the enemy, and reduced them to a disagreeable situation, I think they ought to be treated with every mark of friendship. I submit to your Excellency the propriety of your representing their case to the Continental Congress, and recommending them to favour. We are fitting out Captain Whipple for a cruise to the eastward with all possible expedition; which I hope will prove more fortunate than his last.

I am, with acknowledgment of the polite treatment I received from you at Cambridge, and with great respect, Sir, your humble and most obedient servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

General Washington.

P. S. I enclose your address to the inhabitants of Bermuda.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO COLONEL GLOVER AND STEPHEN MOYLAN, ESQ.

Head-Quarters, October 25, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of blank date came safe to hand. We are much pleased that Captains Broughton and Selman are sailed, not only on account of their probably meeting with greater success in their destination, but on that of a piece of intelligence we lately had from Boston, viz: that a transport with twelve hundred barrels of powder on board, without a convoy or force, has been missing some time, and they expect has fallen into our hands. Captain Coit, with his Company, marched to Plymouth yesterday. We expect they will be out by Friday sometime. There will be a large schooner, carrying ten carriage-guns, fitted out there by Sunday. I have given them the signals. Captain Adams was with me to-night. I hope to get him and his men off by Friday morning. Enclosed you have the instructions for the agents, signed by the General, which you will please to send to each of them nominated that way. They are exactly the same as those sent to Plymouth. I have given yesterday to Captain Glover orders for the things mentioned in your letters, which I hope he will procure, as I have not time to go after them myself. Transports arrive every day. We would wish you to apprise Captain Manly and Captain Adams of their preserving a good understanding with each other, and settling their signals, &c. As Adams is well acquainted with the coast farther eastward than Cape Ann, it may, perhaps, not be amiss for him to go there. I shall direct him to advise with you on this and other subjects; and am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JOSEPH REED, Secretary.

To Colonel Glover and Stephen Moylan, Esq., at Salem or Marblehead.

P. S. We think you had best fix the Commissaries with the agents, and so make the instruction conformable where you are, and to those at a distance make them refer to these others, which will put all on a footing. It will be best to put any agreements in writing.

MASSACHUSETTS ASSEMBLY TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read November 16, 1775.]

Watertown, October 25, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: You have here enclosed nearly the amount of our disbursements, which have been paid by our Treasurer, before the 5th instant, for the support of the Army stationed in this Colony, and for providing necessaries to enable them to make a proper stand against the Ministerial forces.

The hurry with which we have been driven, the perplexities which have attended the sudden collection of an army, and the multiplicity of business which naturally arises, by attending to their various wants, together with a due attention to the distresses of our suffering friends in and about Boston, have prevented our perfecting such an account as your Honours might expect. But as soon as a settlement can be made with our several Committees, and our accounts adjusted, which are daily coming before us, we hope to be able to transmit to your Honours such an account as will appear satisfactory and reasonable. In the mean time, as the sum on the paper enclosed arises only from the purchasing articles absolutely necessary for support of the Continental cause, about ten thousand Pounds whereof is for provisions and other articles in store, before the arrangement of the American Army, which have been and are daily delivering to the Continental Commissary and Quartermaster-General, we trust you will be induced to grant us the same or such other sum, to supply our pressing necessities, as to your Honours may appear fit and reasonable. It is proposed that we should pay up the troops raised by this Colony to the 1st of August, (as will appear by a copy of General Washington's letter, herewith transmitted;) which business we shall attend to, as soon as the pay-rolls are laid before us. We have paid the non-commissioned officers and soldiers of this Colony only forty shillings each, which is included in the within account; and, as most of them have been in camp since the 19th of April last, we imagine that the balance of the said pay-rolls will amount to the sum of sixty-five thousand six hundred and eighty Pounds. Agreeable to the terms of enlistment, each non-commissioned officer and private soldier raised in this Colony was to have one coat given him; many of these coats have already been delivered, and the expense of the whole will, we presume, amount to the sum of sixteen thousand two hundred and twenty Pounds, at the least. We have also already before us accounts from several Towns, of powder supplied to the Army, to the amount of one hundred and seventy-four and a quarter barrels. We would further inform your Honours that we have raised in this Colony two thousand and eighty men, officers included, and stationed them on those parts of our sea-coasts which were most exposed to the depredations of the enemy. We judged this step absolutely necessary, in order to prevent our enemies from supplying themselves with provisions and other necessities. Their vessels of war made several attempts on the most naked and defenceless places, on the sea-coasts of this Colony, whose situation exposed them beyond that of our neighbours; but although their attempts were bravely opposed, we know the inhabitants of those places had not sufficient force within themselves to repel all such invaders. It was, therefore, of the utmost importance to send them such additional forces as might enable them effectually to cut off all supplies of provisions, wood, &c., from the Ministerial Army in Boston, as well as to secure themselves against the vengeance that might be expected from the rage of a disappointed enemy, and under which those unfortunate people are now suffering in a shocking degree. To these forces we have paid the sum of four thousand eighty-three Pounds eight Shillings. A measure so necessary and so essential to the service of the common cause, we are persuaded, will meet with the approbation and support of the Congress; and we trust your Honours will consider the above expenses, in connection with the within account, and make such grants as you may judge fit and reasonable. We have exhibited no account of moneys advanced in removing and supporting the inhabitants of the Town of Boston. The distresses of those persons who have virtuously sacrificed not only their conveniences, but necessities of life, to save their Country, so much deserves the compassion of this Continent, that we shall, as soon as may be, beg leave, in pursuance of a resolution of the late honourable Continental Congress respecting them, to lay an account of our disbursements thereon before you, for consideration.

In the name and by order of the Great and General Court of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay:

PEREZ MORTON, Deputy Sec'y.

Copy of a Letter from his Excellency General WASHINGTON, to a Committee of the Board.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, August 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have considered the papers you left with me yesterday. Those of them which relate to Jones show him to be a most malignant and inveterate enemy to his Country, and as such I trust he will meet with his deserts; but I have such various and important matters requiring my constant attention, that I must beg leave to refer him, and all others under similar circumstances, to the authority of the Province, both for safe custody and punishment.

The payment of the troops is of such indispensable necessity, that I must endeavour to use the powers committed to me by the honourable Congress, so as to remove this cause of complaint. I purpose to direct the new Paymaster to commence his payments from the 1st of August, and hereafter continue them monthly. I have considered that there are few, if any men, who have not served two months, and though some have received their advance twice, it cannot be supposed there are many who have had more. The two months' service will then be set against the double advance; and if a strict scrutiny is immediately made, which I would recommend, the accounts may be settled to that time, the delinquents probably be detected, and, in the end, justice done both to the Province and the men.

If any embezzlements have been made by the officers, they will stand accountable to the publick; but, at all events, the soldiers are entitled to and must have their pay, if any service is expected from them. The shirts, shoes, stockings, and breeches, provided by the Province, can be taken on the Continental account; but, I apprehend, there will not be the same necessity to provide coats, the Continental Congress having ordered hunting-shirts as an outside dress, under which a warm waistcoat will be cheaper and more convenient.

As to the expedition proposed against Nova-Scotia, by the people of Machias, I cannot but applaud their spirit and zeal; but, after considering the reasons offered for it, several objections occur, which seem to be unanswerable. I apprehend such an enterprise inconsistent with the general principle upon which the United Colonies have proceeded. It is true, that Province has not acceded to the measures of the Congress, and they have therefore been excluded from all commercial intercourse with the other Colonies; but they have not commenced hostilities against them, nor are any to be apprehended. To attack them, therefore, is a step of conquest rather than defence, and may be attended with very dangerous consequences.

It might, perhaps, be easy with the force proposed to make an incursion into the Province, to overawe those of the inhabitants who are inimical to our cause, and for a short time prevent their supplying the enemy with provisions; but the same force must continue, to produce any lasting effects.

As to the furnishing vessels of any force, you, gentlemen, will anticipate me, in pointing out our weakness and the enemy's strength. There would be great danger that, with the best preparation we could make, they would fall an easy prey, either to the men of war on that station, or some who would be detached from Boston. I have been thus particular, to satisfy any gentlemen of the Court who incline to adopt the measure. I could offer many other reasons against it, some of which, I doubt not, will suggest themselves to the honourable Board; but it is unnecessary to enumerate them, when our situation, as to the ammunition, absolutely forbids our sending a single ounce out of the camp at present.

I am, with great respect and regard, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To the Honourable the Continental Congress, now sitting at PHILADELPHIA:

The Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay beg leave to lay before your Honours the following disbursements made by said Colony, in defence of American liberty, for consideration and allowance:

	£	s.	d.
The Committee of Supplies' Drafts on the Colony Treasurer, amounting to	87,093	19	4
The Provincial Congress's Drafts on ditto,	1,292	0	10
The Committee of Safety's Drafts, " "	140	0	0
The Committee for procuring Fire-Arms' Drafts on ditto, " " " " " "	1,635	3	9
The Committee of Clothing's Drafts on ditto, " " " " " "	1,270	4	4
The Provincial Congress's Drafts on ditto, in favour of several Muster and Paymasters of the Army, " " " " " "	27,016	0	0
The Honourable Council's Drafts on ditto, to 5th October, instant, " " " " " "	14,608	0	0
Total, -	£133,055	8	3

Watertown, October 5, 1775.

This certifies that the foregoing drafts, amounting to the sum of £133,055 8s. 3d., lawful money, have been paid by me, out of the Colony Treasury, exclusive of the drafts made for the payment of troops on the sea-coasts, the support of civil Government, and other contingent charges, and of sundry other drafts of the above Committees, &c., which have not been presented for payment.

HENRY GARDNER, Treasurer.

To the Honourable the Continental Congress, now sitting at Philadelphia.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM QUEBECK, DATED OCTOBER 25, 1775.

A good many of the Rebels have deserted and enlisted in Colonel McLean's Highlanders, and about one hundred and fifty of them have deserted to Major Preston in Fort St. John's. That fort begins to be short of provisions, and is blocked up by the main body of the Rebels, consisting of near two thousand men. General Carleton, with a party of seven hundred men, is by this time marched to their relief, and Colonel McLean is gone for the same purpose, by another route, with three hundred and fifty men. They intend to attack the Rebels in their intrenchments, and at the same time Major Preston is to sally out with his garrison from the fort. If the Rebels are beat, the fort will be supplied with provisions for the winter; if not, they will make the best retreat they can to Montreal. We have here a man of war's snow and an armed brig belonging to the navy, under the command of a Lieutenant, and three or four armed vessels with about three hundred seamen on board, taken up by General Carleton, and we hear there is another man of war on her passage in the river. There are several passengers going for England in the ships that are now sailing from here. Some of them will give very unfavourable accounts of our situation; but you need not give much credit to what they say, for their tale will be suggested by their fears. Walker has been taken up, by order of General Carleton, for corresponding with the Rebels, and spiriting up the Canadians to take up arms against Government. He is in irons on board the Gaspee, armed vessel, together with the New-England Colonel Allen, Major Hezen, and Captain Turner.

EXTRACT OF ANOTHER LETTER FROM QUEBECK, DATED OCTOBER 25, 1775.

Amongst the many groundless reports which were daily spread about in the Province during the last spring and summer, there have been several relating to Mr. Walker, of Montreal. The friends of the Quebeck Bill were so exasperated against him for his spirited conduct on the Committee that drew up the petitions to Parliament against it, that they began to plan his ruin. When the Congress sent their first address to the Canadians, and Mr. Cushing, (an old and particular acquaintance of Mr. Walker's, when he resided at Boston), sent him a packet of them, printed in French, to distribute, Mr. Walker made no secret of his having received this packet, as we had long before received that address in the newspapers, and translated copies of it had been handed about the Country by the French themselves. However, Rouville and Cugnet took occasion from it to tell the Governour in publick, at his table, that Mr. Walker corresponded with the Congress; and when that shameful insult, of which I sent you an account, was offered to His Majesty's marble bust at Montreal, on the day on which the Quebeck Act took place, mention was again made of Mr. Walker by his enemies, as having a concern in that odious business. But fortunately (if I can with propriety say so) for him in that matter, he was at that time, and had been for some days before, very ill with the rheumatism, under the care of Doctor Beaumont. One day Rouville got into a dispute with him and others in the market in Montreal. What the dispute began upon, is not material, but Rouville would support this position, Que le roi est maitre, that is, that the King is master, or that his will must always be complied with. Mr. Walker said, very coolly, "that with regard to Monsieur de Rouville it might be so, as he eat of His Majesty's bread; but," said he, "I deny that the King is my master. I respect him as my lawful Sovereign and King, and am ready to pay due obedience to his lawful commands; but I cannot acknowledge him for my master while I live by my own industry. When I receive pay from him, I will acknowledge him for my master."

Rouville immediately wrote to the Governour an account of this conversation, and added, that he had made no reply to Mr. Walker; and in a few days he received an answer from the Governour, which he showed to several persons at Montreal, in which the Governour commends his prudence, and promises not to forget him. And accordingly he was soon after named for one of the Judges of Montreal, to the great surprise and astonishment of all the French inhabitants, who had conceived an ill opinion and a strong dislike of him, from his behaviour in the office of a Judge, of some kind or other, many years ago in the time of the French Government. This Mr. Rouville is remarkable for taking every opportunity (as he speaks a little English) to throw himself in the way of the English inhabitants of Montreal, in order to pick up what tales he can, to send them up to the Governour; and this has been so well known to be his practice, that many persons have amused themselves with leading him into mistakes, by opening their letters in his presence at the post-office, (where he was always sure to be,) and mentioning things as if they read them in the letters, and of which not a word was said in them. And it was while Mr. Rouville was thus upon the hunt for private anecdotes amongst the English inhabitants of Montreal, that Mr. Walker fell into the above dispute with him. This dispute, together with many invectives from some of the military gentlemen, who were particularly severe, and gave themselves many airs, styling the members of our Committee that prepared the petitions to Parliament, Rebels, and construing our dislike of the Quebeck Bill into a spirit of opposition to Government, and declaring that they hoped every moment to receive orders to take us up; I say the conversations of this kind, which were frequently heard, (though chiefly indeed among the young and inconsiderate,) yet had so ugly an appearance, and so bad a tendency, that they determined Mr. Walker, in the month of May, to go to his country house at Assumption, to the pot-ash works which he had erected there, and amuse himself with those, and with his farm, merely for the sake of being out of the way of such conversations, and out of the reach of the calumny of his enemies. But all would not do; for it would be impossible in the space of a letter to relate the many artful reports that have been spread to set his fellow-citizens against him, that he might with the greater ease be made a sacrifice to their resentment. One time, it was reported that packets of letters to him and others had been intercepted, which were answers to letters wrote by him; at another that letters from him had been taken; then, that two Canadians were taken up and in prison, who had brought letters for him from the southward; then, that he had been over the river with the Provincials. Once, it was asserted here that he and two other persons were taken up and imprisoned, and that three more persons at Quebeck were soon to be so; then, it was said that he had quitted the Province, and, afterwards, that he was fortifying himself. Mr. John Bondfield, having business up the country, called on him at Assumption, and mentioning these reports, and that we had publickly contradicted them at Quebeck, it was the first time he had heard of them; for he had not been easier or quieter for a long while, as he saw nobody but his own people, and amused himself on his farm, and with reading. But as things grew worse and worse, and our military preparations went on with vigour, (so that those who did not carry fire and sword in words and actions were suspected of favouring the Provincials,) nothing was talked of but parties of men to take up people; and on these occasions Mr. Walker's name was always uppermost. And at last, on the 7th of October, the postman brought the news, that just as he left Montreal, Mr. Walker had been brought in there a prisoner; that General Carleton had sent out in the night, with the greatest secrecy, an officer and thirty soldiers from Montreal, who were to receive their orders on their arrival at a certain place; and that these orders were to take him and bring him to Town, (as the officer said,) dead or alive. They accordingly surrounded his house just about daybreak, and summoned him to surrender; on which he flew to his arms, choosing rather the loss of life than to suffer what he thought he might expect from the soldiery, when employed on such an errand, in such troublesome times as these. He defended himself a long while with great courage, and wounded the officer, and a soldier or two. At last, finding they could not get at him, they set fire to the house, and then he, with Mrs. Walker, were obliged to make their escape from the flames, out of a garret window, naked; and thus he fell into the soldiers' hands, who then, it is said, fell upon him and beat him unmercifully. They carried him in a batteau to Montreal, where he was immediately put into very heavy irons, and no candle, or pen, ink, and paper, were allowed him. Mr. John Porteous was permitted to see him, being a correspondent of Mr. John Strettel, of London, who is also Mr. Walker's friend and correspondent; and he obtained a candle for him to read by. The postman who brought the first news, said that the Canadians who were taken in the action near Montreal, on the 25th of September, against Allen's and Jerry Duggan's party, when they were examined concerning the reasons of their enterprise, and were asked how they could think to take Montreal with so small a body of men, had replied, "that Duggan had assured them that all the Canadians were in his interest; that they had doubtless heard of Mr. Walker; and that he was to join them with four or five hundred men." Now, Duggan might artfully have said all this to the Canadians, without any foundation whatsoever, in order to encourage them, and keep up their spirits. But, be that as it may, not a syllable transpired, nor could any thing be learned concerning the grounds on which such a step was taken, from that day until two days ago, when a gentleman in the service of Government was heard to say he had full evidence enough to convict him, and to mention at the same time the deposition of Mr. Walker's own negro wench, who swears that a Captain of the Provincials dined with Mr. Walker, the day before the action near Montreal, and relates some of the conversation that then passed at table. Others say there is certain proof that he had a number of Canadians ready to join the Provincials. But this I never will believe until I see it proved by good undoubted testimony; for had that been the case, nothing could have prevented their succeeding. And as to that Provincial Captain's having been at Mr. Walker's on the day before the action, as is said, it seems to me, that if that report is true, it affords a strong proof in Mr. Walker's favour, that, instead of complying with the Captain's request to join him with the Canadians under his influence, (for that we must suppose to have been the Captain's errand,) he disapproved and declined the proposal.

A worthy and very sensible gentleman of this place, (Quebeck), who has been for some time past at Montreal, and returned from thence since Mr. Walker was taken up, cannot give the least credit to any one of the reports that are circulated there to his prejudice; nor can he, for his life, imagine on what grounds the Governour goes on in this violent prosecution of him. His loss must be very great by the burning of his house, store, potash, books, &c., besides the cruel, ignominious treatment of him, rarely executed on felons until convicted.

OFFICIAL NOTICE OF ADVICES FROM AMERICA.

Secretary of State's Office, Whitehall, December 16, 1775.

By the last advices received from Quebeck, of the 26th of October, it appears that General Carleton, who was then at Montreal, had formed a considerable corps of Canadians and English; that he, and Lieutenant-Colonel McLean, who commanded another corps on Sorel River, were preparing to proceed by separate routes to the relief of St. John's, which had been for some time invested by the Rebels, without their being able to make any impression upon it; and that there was the greatest probability that the Country would be soon cleared of those invaders, whose force was considerably diminished by sickness and desertion, and in great want of necessary supplies.

There are no advices from Boston later than the 12th of October, when General Gage left it invested as before by the Rebel Army, which had, however, attempted nothing since the affair of Bunker's Hill.

The Earl of Dunmore, Governour of Virginia, acquaints the Secretary of State, in a letter dated the 22d of October, on board the Ship William, off Norfolk, that on the 15th his Lordship had landed, with a party of between seventy and eighty men, in the neighbourhood of the Town of Norfolk, and destroyed seventeen pieces of ordnance, and brought off two more, which had been carried away from that Town by the Rebels, and concealed in the country; that on the 17th he had landed again, at about eight miles from the Town, and marched between two and three miles into the country, where about two hundred shirt-men were collected to oppose him, but who fled into the woods upon the appearance of the party, leaving behind them some small arms and ammunition, which his Lordship carried off; that on the 19th he had again landed, and destroyed ten guns and brought off six, at a distance of two miles from the coast, and on the 20th brought off six more; and on the 21st, the day before his Lordship's letter is dated, he had landed again, and brought off ten guns, and two cohorns, and about sixty small arms, and a great quantity of ball of different sizes; and his Lordship imagines there are not any military stores remaining in the possession of the Rebels in that part of the Province. In these several landings his Lordship made seven prisoners, among whom is one Robinson, a Deputy to the Provincial Convention, and one Matthews, a Captain of the Minute-Men.

ADDRESS OF THE UNIVERSITY OF OXFORD.

Address of the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Oxford, in full convocation assembled, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Frederick Lord North, their Chancellor.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and faithful subjects, the Chancellor, Masters, and Scholars of the University of Oxford, in full convocation assembled, humbly presume to express, at this alarming juncture, the genuine sentiments of that unfeigned duty, affection, and gratitude, which we owe to your royal person, under whose mild and auspicious Government the blessings of peace have been derived to these Nations; the spirit of commerce diffused; the cultivation of the liberal arts promoted and rewarded; and the civil and religious rights of all your Majesty's subjects protected, maintained, and confirmed.

We are truly sensible that the continuance of these blessings, and the preservation of these invaluable rights, essentially depend, under God, upon the safety of your Majesty's person, the dignity of your crown, and the authority of the laws over every part of your Majesty's Dominions; in the due and vigorous execution of which true liberty consists, and by which alone it can be supported.

Impressed with these sentiments, we think ourselves obliged, by every principle of conscientious duty to our King, by every motive of love and affection to our Country, to declare our utter abhorrence of those base artifices and seditious proceedings, by which some of your Majesty's American subjects have been tempted to violate the laws, to resist the authority, and at length to rebel against the sovereignty of the British Legislature.

We have observed, with deep concern, the pernicious tendency of that profligate licentiousness, by which every part of the legislative power has of late been insulted and reviled. We have lamented that the liberty of the press, the distinguished privilege of British subjects, has been prostituted to sedition, and most grossly abused by a faction which has openly countenanced rebellion, unavowed and unrestrained by the wholesome severity of those laws, which alone can protect and give vigour to a free Constitution.

We have lamented that the illegal associations of men, whose hopes are founded in the calamities of their Country, should prevail to give confidence to disobedience and sanction to rebellion.

We now deplore the miseries into which our deluded fellow-subjects in America have been by these seducing arts betrayed; plunged, as they are, in all the horrors of a civil war, unnaturally commenced against the State which gave them birth and protection.

The magnanimity and lenity of your Majesty's disposition, already so eminently conspicuous, give us just confidence to hope, that when by the vigour of your Majesty's counsels, and the valour of your arms, aided by the favour and protection of Divine Providence, your rebellious subjects shall be reduced under the power they have thus wantonly provoked, the royal mercy will be displayed in the pardon of a people who have forfeited their lives and fortunes to the justice of the State; and that the protection of the British Legislature, under such form and restrictions, as the wisdom of Parliament shall think fit to prescribe, will again be extended to the Colonies, when they shall have learned to revere it.

Given at our house of Convocation, this twenty-sixth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF BRIDGEWATER.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, Capital Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Borough of Bridgewater, in the County of Somerset, presented to His Majesty by the Honourable Anne Poulett, and Benjamin Allen, Esq., their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, Capital Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Borough of BRIDGEWATER, in the County of SOMERSET.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, Capital Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Borough of Bridgewater, beg leave to approach your Majesty with our unfeigned assurances of the most inviolable attachment to your Majesty's person and Government.

Anxious for the glory of your Majesty's reign, and for the prosperity of every part of this widely extended Empire, we observe, with the deepest concern and apprehension, the progress of the present dangerous and alarming troubles in America.

We therefore most humbly implore your Majesty graciously to permit us to express our most fervent hopes, that the wisdom of your Majesty's counsels may point out and effect some happy plan of conciliation, which may restore peace and confidence in your Majesty's Government, to your misguided American subjects, and which, without impairing the supreme legislative authority of this Country over any part of the British Empire, may continue and perpetuate to your Majesty's Colonies in America, on a proper and constitutional basis, the enjoyment of the rights and privileges of a free people.

That your Majesty's reign may be long and glorious, over a loyal and united people, is our constant and most earnest prayer.

ADDRESS OF THE OFFICERS OF THE NORTHAMPTONSHIRE MILITIA.

Address of the Officers of the Northamptonshire Militia, transmitted to the Earl of Rochford, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Officers of the NORTHAMPTONSHIRE Militia.

May it please your Majesty:

We, the Officers of the Militia now assembled for the County of Northampton, humbly beg leave to give your Majesty this assurance of our readiness to defend your royal person against all foreign and domestick enemies, and to support the legal authority of the Crown in preserving entire the matchless fabrick of the British Constitution.

SUSSEX, Colonel,	WM. ROBINSON, Capt.
CLARKE ADAMS, Lieut. Col.	G. HESILRIGE, Capt.
T. C. MAUNSELL, Major,	JOHN STEER, Lieut.
RICHARD KENT, Captain,	JOHN HOPE, Lieut.
WENMAN SAMWEL, Captain,

Northampton, October 26, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE TOWN OF DUNDEE.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Manufacturers, Incorporated Trades, and principal Inhabitants of the Town of Dundee, transmitted to the Earl of Suff- folk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Manufacturers, Incorporated Trades, and principal Inhabitants of the Town of Dundee, highly sensible of the happiness of our situation under your mild and most gracious Government, beg leave, in the most respectful manner, to address your Majesty with the utmost gratitude for the many blessings we enjoy. Zealous for the preservation of our most excellent Constitution, it is with pleasure and admiration we review the wisdom of your Councils, ever since your Majesty's accession to the throne.

Sensible that your Majesty's goodness reached the remotest corner of this extended Empire, it raised our indignation and surprise when first we heard of the ungrateful conduct of many of our American subjects; we never could have thought that they so soon would have forgot the hand that saved them; or that they, so lately at the expense of much blood and treasure, freed from the insults of a foreign power, and blessed with British freedom, would have dared to raise the standard of rebellion against your Government.

We would still fondly hope that they would yet return to their duty, and spare the further effusion of blood. But should they still continue in their obstinacy, we hope more vigorous methods will be adopted and continued, until they shall appear sensible of their crimes, content with their just rights, and atone for their offences by their submission to the laws of this Kingdom.

While we disapprove of the rebellious conduct of your Majesty's subjects in America, we are sorry to think, that even some of our own countrymen, by their practices, rather appear the aiders and abettors of their treason. These, notwithstanding their specious pretences, we consider as the enemies of their Country, and view their endeavours to raise disturbances amongst us with abhorrence.

It is with pleasure we can assure your Majesty, that our trade hath as yet suffered nothing by the American ports being shut against us.

We are happy under your Majesty's reign, and will most cheerfully, to the utmost of our power, exert ourselves, upon all occasions, to support the dignity of the crown and the true interest of Great Britain.

VIRGINIA COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Whereas Lord Dunmore, not contented with having involved the affairs of this Colony in extreme confusion, by withdrawing himself unnecessarily from the administration of Government, and exciting an insurrection of our slaves, hath lately, in conjunction with the officers of the Navy, proceeded to commence hostilities against His Majesty's peaceable subjects in the Town and neighbourhood of Norfolk, captivated many, and seized the property of others, particularly slaves, who are detained from the owners; stopped all intercourse between the inhabitants of that Borough and the other parts of the Colony, except by such as are inimical to the rights of America, by means of whom provisions are supplied to the Troops, and intelligence conveyed to his Lordship of every material transaction, whilst none of his pernicious designs can transpire in the country until they are manifested by the execution of them.

The Committee of Safety, in order to counteract, as far as they can, so unjustifiable partiality, have unanimously resolved that no person whatsoever shall be allowed to pass to or from the Borough of Norfolk, or Town of Portsmouth, without a permit from the said Committee, or the Committee of the County or Corporation wherein such person resides, or from the commanding officer of one of the Regiments, or of a detachment therefrom, or from the commanding officer of a Company or detachment of Minute-Men or Militia, in actual service at the time of such permit; and all Committees, and all officers, civil and military, and all other persons, friends to America, are desired to attend to this Resolution.

By order of the Committee of Safety:

JOHN PENDLETON, JUN., Clerk.

Williamsburgh, October 27, 1775.

Let no Tory plume himself on Lord Dunmore's success at and in the neighbourhood of Norfolk. The situation of Norfolk and Portsmouth was very different from that of any other place in Virginia. The inhabitants were almost to a man merchants and mechanics, and a majority of them Scotchmen and rank Tories; the Towns full of slaves, ready for an insurrection at the beck of their leader; two men of war always prepared to fire on them. The inhabitants had little or no ammunition, and were badly furnished with arms. It is true, there were some cannon, belonging to a few gentlemen who had fitted out privateers in the last war, but those were not mounted or furnished with cartridges, and were therefore useless, and removed into the country. What, then, could be expected from a people whose whole property was at stake in their houses, and whose lives were beset on all sides? An open and powerful enemy in full array of war before their Town, base and perfidious fellow-citizens surrounding them, and dangerous and deadly enemies in their very houses. But, with all these advantages, the great exploit of seizing the Printers was achieved when many of the most spirited gentlemen of Norfolk were out of Town; and the soldiers stole away the cannon in the night, not daring to venture so far from their ships in the day. Emboldened by these successes, they have, indeed, ventured to march one hundred and twenty Regulars on their way to Kemp's Landing. But their intelligence was good; they knew that there was no force to oppose them. There, indeed, they (unfortunately for our Country) surprised Mr. Matthews and a few other gentlemen. But let not our countrymen be the least discouraged at these things; the brave Bostonians bore many insults before they chastised the insolence and insults of their oppressors at Lexington. I do not, in the least, suspect the courage of my countrymen. I know their cool intrepidity, and will affirm that no troops in the world are superiour to them in the use of their arms; I mean not in the anticks of a parade, but in the true use of fire-arms; for, as marksmen, they are unequalled. Whenever an engagement happens, I make no doubt the list of killed and wounded will equal that of Bunker's Hill. Lord Dunmore is well acquainted with the skill of our Riflemen, and the Shawaneese have borne testimony of the coolness of their aim; and he may be assured that there is not a man alive, of the three thousand whom he ordered out against the Indians last year, who is not impatient to attack him, and would not as willingly discharge their rifles at him, as at any Indian they ever engaged with.

And now I have mentioned the Indian war, I cannot omit taking notice of the suspicion that has gone forth, that Lord Dunmore encouraged that war, and sent the Shawaneese to attack Colonel Andrew Lewis; for there were Indians in the engagement, who left Lord Dunmore after their conference with him, and who returned to him after their defeat. It is said that the Indians have confessed this, and declare that they were directed by Lord Dunmore to attack Colonel Lewis; and what must give credit to their charge is, that he marched with the troops, immediately under him, with less than a gill of powder a man. The direction of his march, and his behaviour on the news of the defeat, together with his endeavours to bring on a civil war with Pennsylvania, and his sending off the Indian hostages when he thought proper to feign a flight on board the Fowey, are circumstances which confirm this suspicion. This was indeed such a refinement of treachery as is scarcely to be conceived but by the most cruel and bloody of all tyrants. But no one will be much surprised at it who is acquainted with Lord Dunmore's private character, or with the machinations of the present Ministry. To have cut off Colonel Lewis and his Army would have been a trifle to what was intended to follow. His Lordship could have patched up a peace with the Indians, after finding them sufficient for his purpose; and having removed the great obstacle of their progress, (many brave Riflemen,) this summer he could have called them in to his assistance, laid waste our frontiers, butchering innocent women and children, and perhaps thousands of poor souls who are utterly unacquainted with and have had no share in the dispute with Great Britain. Nor was this perfidy greater than that of his employers, who encouraged the importation of slaves, nay, almost forced them on us, and then called on them to revenge the wrongs we had done them by enslaving them, and promised their assistance to recover that liberty which they basely pretended they are willing to indulge them with. Whoever considers the nature of this damnable plot, and the proofs we have that it was actually intended to have been executed, will not wonder at what has been said concerning Lord Dunmore's treachery to Colonel Lewis; and the whole world must admire our patience and fortitude, and will applaud the stroke, whenever struck, which shall completely chastise the insulting tyrants who had so diabolically plotted our ruin.

But to return to my first observation, viz: that no Tory need plume himself on Lord Dunmore's success; I will add, that this success has but served to increase that resentment which has been suppressed for some time past. The people had submitted themselves to the control of the Convention; they have left it to them to direct their fury, which is now ready to burst forth with redoubled force. There is now a good stock of powder in the Country, and an excellent manufactory of that useful article established; and almost every man has a gun or rifle, and (except a few Tories) every man in the Country is determined never to submit. The people are removing their effects from the rivers, and bid defiance to our enemies. We have appealed to Heaven, and rely on the Lord of Hosts and King of Kings for protection.

ISLE OF WIGHT COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee held for the County of Isle of Wight, on Thursday, the 26th day of October, 1775, present: John Scarsbrook Wills, Chairman, and thirteen Members:

Mary Easson, of the said County, (on a suspicion of her being privy to certain intelligence being conveyed to his Excellency Lord Dunmore—a charge exhibited against divers persons in this County, by some person unknown,) being summoned, appeared before the said Committee, but refused to be sworn, or answer such questions as the Committee might demand of her; and after behaving in a very insolent, scandalous, and indecent manner, departed without leave.

It is therefore the opinion of this Committee, that the said Mary Easson holds principles inimical to the rights and liberties of North-America, and ought to be considered as an enemy to her Country, and that every person ought to break off all kinds of intercourse and connection with her.

Resolved, That the Clerk of the Committee send a copy of the above to Messrs. John Dixon and William Hunter, and they are requested to insert the same in the Virginia Gazette.

FRANCIS YOUNG, Clerk.

PRINCE EDWARD COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee held for Prince Edward County, at the Court-House, on Thursday, the 26th of October, 1775,

The Committee took into their consideration the proceedings of the late Colonial Convention, held at Richmond, July 17th, 1775, and, after mature deliberation on the same, came to the following Resolutions:

Resolved, unanimously, That this Committee doth entirely and heartily approve the Resolutions and Ordinances of the said Convention; that they consider them as having the full force and power of a law, and as such ought to be equally binding and obligatory on all the good people of Virginia; and that we will exert, from time to time, in our respective capacities, our true and unremitting endeavours in carrying the same into full and complete execution, according to the true sense and spirit thereof; and that we shall most certainly rank in the same class as our common and avowed enemy any person or persons who shall presume, willingly and intentionally, to infringe the same, or attempt to obstruct the free execution thereof, and, as such, they shall be sure of meeting our just resentment and indignation.

Resolved, unanimously, That our cordial and unfeigned thanks are justly due to the worthy Delegates who composed the said Convention, for their honest zeal and attachment to the great American cause in general, and the interest of their constituents in particular, as manifested through their proceedings.

Ordered, That the Clerk transmit a copy of the above Resolutions to Mr. Purdie, and entreat him to publish the same as soon as convenient.

JOHN NASH, JUN., Chairman.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM ALEXANDRIA, (VIRGINIA,) DATED OCTOBER 26, 1775.

The post from the southward brings advice that Lord Dunmore had sent a party of armed men into the Town of Norfolk, who had spiked seventeen pieces of cannon and taken two off. This was done in the face of day, and without any opposition; indeed, none could be expected, as the principal people of that Town are Tories. His Lordship has also seized, dragged on board a man-of-war, and confined in irons, a certain Mr. Goodrich, who lived in the neighbourhood of Norfolk. This gentleman's crime is, that he suffered one of his vessels, a few days ago, to bring one hundred and fifty barrels of gunpowder, and land the same safely, without asking his Lordship's consent. We have also certain intelligence that Dunmore, a few days ago, with one hundred and forty men, landed about ten miles below Norfolk, at a place called Kemp's Landing, where he broke open a blacksmith's shop and destroyed about fifty muskets, which the smith had to repair, then pillaged a number of houses in the neighbourhood, and took two officers and four privates, in the Minute service, prisoners. The object of this expedition was to intercept the powder abovementioned, but it had luckily been carried off some time before. His Lordship has lately received from Augustine a re-enforcement of two hundred men; so that his whole corps is now supposed to consist of five hundred men.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE DELEGATES TO COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, October 26, 1775.

SIR: Your favour, in Committee, of the 12th instant, is now before us, in answer to which, we say that General Washington had laid the affair of the flour ship before the Congress some days before your favour came to hand, but nothing has been concluded.

We urged that the ship and her cargo belonged to the Colony, as she was taken by our men in Provincial pay, and not by Continental forces; that we had suffered and were still suffering many losses by the taking of our ships inward and outward bound, and that before the taking of this flour ship. As soon as the matter is settled, shall inform you.

We are greatly rejoiced to hear that the batteries are in such readiness, as we have expected to hear that Portsmouth was cannonaded. Captain George Hastings (who built a ship at Kennebunk last year, and loaded with masts at Portsmouth) is now here, having been cast away on the Jersey shore, in a transport from Boston, bound to New-York, with Captain Duncan Campbell and Lieutenant Symes, and a number of men, who were employed to enlist Scotchmen in the back parts of New-York, to re-enforce the Ministerial Army; they are all close prisoners, except Captain Hastings. A quantity of goods, &c., is saved out of the ship.

I saw Captain Hastings yesterday; and as I was acquainted with him, he wanted to inform that when he sailed from Boston, the 4th instant, Captain Mowat, (Scotchman), with three armed transports, were almost ready to go to Portsmouth, for the purpose of burning the Town; therefore, for God's sake, be ye ready.

You mention powder. There is a joint Committee for procuring that article, of which Mr. Langdon is one. Every precaution is taken for ample supplies; but as the whole Continent is to be supplied, as well as the two Armies, it makes it uncertain when we can send you any.

We beg leave here to suggest that the greatest attention should be paid to the use of powder; that no cannon be fired unless drove to the last extremity.

We are sorry to see that you intended to emit more paper money; but as General Washington's requisition demanded it, must be done. The House is now crowded with motions, otherwise should have moved for a grant of a certain sum to our Colony, which would have answered our purpose without emitting; shall do it first opportunity, but fear the want of our accounts will prevent the grant.

We some time since made a motion for the regulation of our civil Government, and this day a Committee was appointed to consider the motion and report thereon. Could have wished for a petition from our Congress, setting forth all the reasons, had been transmitted us, which would have helped the matter much.

Committee has been appointed to collect the depredations committed by the sons of tyranny through the Continent, which you will hear from.

We are, with respect, your most obedient servants,
JOSIAH BARTLETT,
JOHN LANGDON.

To William Whipple, Esquire.

P. S. Enclosed is a Resolution of Congress respecting powder.

TRYON COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO SIR JOHN JOHNSON.

Tryon County Committee Chamber, October 26, 1775.

HONOURABLE SIR: As we find particular reason to be convinced of your opinion in the questions hereafter expressed, we request that you will oblige us with your sentiments thereupon, in a few lines, by our Messengers, the bearers hereof, Messrs. Ebenezer Cox, James McMaster, and John J. Clock, Members of our Committee. We wish to know whether you will allow the inhabitants of Johnstown and Kingsborough to form themselves into Companies, according to the regulations of our Continental Congress, for the defence of our Country's cause; and whether your Honour would be ready himself to give his personal assistance to the same purpose; also, whether you pretend a prerogative to our County Court-House and Jail, and would hinder or interrupt the Committee making use of the same to our want and service in the common cause.

We do not doubt you will comply with our reasonable request, and thereby oblige, honourable Sir, your obedient and humble servants. By order of the Committee:

NICHOLAS HERCKHEIMER, Chairman.

Hon. Sir John Johnson, Johnson Hall.

JOHN SCHENCK, JUNIOR, AND OTHERS, TO THE NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Poughkeepsie, October 26, 1775.

To the Honourable the Congress in and for the Colony of NEW-YORK:

The officers of the Independent Company at Poughkeepsie, in Dutchess County, beg leave to remonstrate to the Congress—

First. That it will appear, as well by the enclosed copy of the Articles of Association of said Company, as from the knowledge of some of the Members in Congress for Dutchess County, that this Company was established, agreeable to their articles, on the first day of August last, as an Independent Company, and that we never solicited commissions on any other establishment.

Second. That by the rules and orders, &c., published by the Congress on the 22d of same month, in the first resolve contained in said orders it appears that all Independent Companies established in this Colony prior to that date were excepted out of said rules and orders, and to abide the association by them entered into.

Third. That the commissions sent by the Congress embody us as a Company of Minute-Men in Colonel Jacobus Swartwout's Regiment, contrary to the intent and meaning of our association, which is what our men wish to abide by.

Fourth. That we conceive the articles subscribed by us and the soldiers of our Company bind us and them as firmly to defend the glorious cause of American liberty, as the rules and orders, &c., published by the Congress, possibly can do.

These matters we request the Congress would take into consideration, and favour us with their answer. If the association on which our Company is founded is permitted to stand good, we presume it will give great satisfaction to the Company; if not, we shall endeavour most conscientiously to do our duties, but doubt much whether we shall keep or be able to enlist, in this Precinct, a sufficient number of men. Should the Congress determine in favour of our association, commissions sent us for that purpose will be thankfully received, and we trust duly executed.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient and very humble servants,

JOHN SCHENCK, JUN.,
PETER TAPPEN,
JOHN CHILD.

To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., President of the Honourable the Congress in and for the Colony of New-York, now sitting in the City of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Ticonderoga, October 26, 1775, 2 o'clock, P. M.

SIR: I am favoured with an express from Gen. Montgomery. The fort and garrison at Chambly, in which Maj. Stopford, of the Royal Fusiliers, commanded, has surrendered to our troops. One hundred and twenty-four barrels of powder, and a considerable quantity of prepared ammunition, together with a quantity of provisions, have fallen into our hands.

The reduction of St. John's seems of course; we have already sunk their best vessel of force. A party of ours, consisting of about five hundred, that were stationed at La Prairie, has been attacked, but the assailants were repulsed with some loss. I hope the success which attends and promises to attend the American arms will induce a misinformed Ministry to adopt other measures to bring about a reconciliation.

I am, Sir, with the most respectful sentiments, your and the Congress's most obedient and very humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., &c., &c.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, October 26, 1775.

DEAR SIR: At two, this afternoon, an express from General Montgomery arrived at this place. Copy of his letter, with copies of the papers it enclosed, I do myself the honour to transmit your Excellency by express. The irresistible force of necessity having drove us to arms, success cannot be attended without pleasure; and therefore I congratulate your Excellency on the good account these papers contain. The reduction of Chambly will in all probability be followed by that of St. John's, especially as General Montgomery has now a supply of powder, of which he stood in such need, that a very few days more would have expended his all.

I wrote your Excellency that I should not send on Gen. Wooster; but, as his Regiment refused to go without him, I was obliged to suffer him to go. But, lest any detriment should accrue to the service, I thought it proper to write him a letter, of which enclose a copy, as also a copy of his answer, [dated October 19, 1775.]

I am in hopes that the next accounts I receive will announce the arrival of Col. Arnold (whose success seems now certain) and the reduction of St. John's. I have requested General Montgomery to send me an express as soon as he receives any certain intelligence from Colonel Arnold. As I can easily conceive that your Excellency's anxiety must be extreme, I shall forward what intelligence I receive by express.

The great dread I was in, lest we should suffer for provisions, induced me to have all brought up that could be got; and it was very lucky, as the late heavy rains have carried away almost all the bridges between Fort George and Albany, and rendered the roads impassable, in which state they will continue at least a week hence.

I am, dear Sir, with the best wishes for your health, your happiness, and prosperity, your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

General Washington.

JAMES LIVINGSTON TO GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

Fort Chambly, October 26, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I am much concerned at your letter to Major Brown, of the 25th inst., from whence it would appear I was unworthy of a line from you. It is very likely that complaints have been made against me, by some of the Canadians. I detected two or three in cutting the sails belonging to the vessels at St. John's, and many other things belonging to the garrison here, and beat Maynard, who was the chief aggressor. I have since heard that Mr. Duggan promised them all the plunder in this garrison, before you sent me to Major Brown's assistance, and have reason to believe that Duggan and Maynard have joined in some damnable scheme to prepossess you against me. I must, therefore, insist upon a court-martial or a court of inquiry. If this is not granted, must beg leave to retire. I am not the least apprehensive but shall acquit myself with honour. This arises in a great measure from Duggan's jealousy, in my coming here by your particular desire.

I am extremely surprised you should harbour in your breast any thing that may be prejudicial to my honour, without giving me an opportunity of defending myself, or letting me know the villanous authors thereof. I have sacrificed my all to assist and support the cause to the utmost of my power and abilities, and this is the grateful return for my services. As for the Canadians, I will venture to say, not one of them disapproves my conduct, except a few villanous thieves. It has been my constant study to please them. I believe the better sort of them will do me the justice to say so.

General Carleton has just sent orders to the different Parishes, to proclaim a pardon for all those who will take up arms against you. Am greatly afraid some of them have accepted the above pardon, owing in a great measure to the length of the siege at St. John's. I shall use my best endeavours to keep up the spirit of the people on this river, even though should retire myself.

I shall wait with impatience your answer; and believe me to be yours, &c.,

JAMES LIVINGSTON.

To Brigadier-General Montgomery.

P. S. Mr. Mondelet, a merchant on this river, will inform you what number of people are at Sorel; and the sooner you send a force there the better. He is a particular friend of ours, and may be of service in furnishing the party who go to Sorel with provisions, &c. J. L.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR-GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Camp at Cambridge, October 26, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Your several favours of the 12th and 14th instant came safely to hand, (though not in the proper order of time,) with their several enclosures. You do me justice in believing that I feel the utmost anxiety for your situation, that I sympathize with you in all your distresses, and shall most heartily share in the joy of your success. My anxiety extends itself to poor Arnold, whose fate depends upon the issue of your campaign. Besides your other difficulties, I fear you have those of the season added, which will increase every day. In the article of powder, we are in danger of suffering equally with you. Our distresses on this subject are mutual; but we hope they are short-lived, as every measure of relief has been pursued which human invention could suggest.

When you write General Montgomery, be pleased to convey my best wishes and regards to him. It has been equally unfortunate for our Country and yourself, that your ill health has deprived the active part of your Army of your presence. God Almighty restore you, and crown you with happiness and success.

Colonel Allen's misfortune will, I hope, teach a lesson of prudence and subordination to others who may be too ambitious to outshine their General Officers, and, regardless of order and duty, rush into enterprises which have unfavourable effects to the publick, and are destructive to themselves.

Doctor Franklin, Mr. Lynch, and Colonel Harrison, Delegates from the Congress, have been in the camp for several days, in order to settle the plan of continuing and supporting the Army. This commission extended to your department; but, upon consideration, it appeared so difficult to form any rational plan, that nothing was done upon that head. If your time and health will admit, I should think it highly proper to turn your thoughts to this subject, and communicate the result to the Congress as early as possible. We have had no event of any consequence in our camp for some time, our whole attention being taken up in preparation for the winter, and forming the new Army, in which many difficulties occur. The enemy expect considerable re-enforcements this winter, and, from all accounts, are garrisoning Gibraltar and other places with foreign troops, in order to bring the former garrison to America. The Ministry have begun the destruction of our seaport Towns by burning a flourishing Town, of about three hundred houses, to the eastward, called Falmouth. This they effected with every circumstance of cruelty and barbarity which revenge and malice could suggest. We expect every moment to hear other places have been attempted, and have been better prepared for their reception.

The more I reflect upon the importance of your expedition, the greater is my concern lest it should sink under insuperable difficulties. I look upon the interests and salvation of our bleeding Country, in a great degree, to depend upon your success. I know you feel its importance, not only as connected with your own honour and happiness, but the publick welfare; so that you can want no incitements to press on if it be possible. My anxiety suggests some doubts, which your better acquaintance with the country will enable you to remove. Would it not have been practicable to pass St. John's, leaving force enough for a blockade; or, if you could not spare the men, passing it wholly, possessing yourselves of Montreal and the surrounding country? Would not St. John's have fallen of course, or what would have been the probable consequence? Believe me, dear General, I do not mean to imply the smallest doubt of the propriety of your operations, or of those of Mr. Montgomery, for whom I have a great respect. I too well know the absurdity of judging upon a military operation, when you are without the knowledge of its concomitant circumstances. I only mean it as a matter of curiosity, and to suggest to you my imperfect idea on the subject.

I am, with the utmost truth and regard, dear Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO THE COMMITTEE OF HARTFORD, CONNECTICUT.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 26, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Major French having persisted in his request that the General should determine on the propriety of his wearing his sword while under parole, he has this day sent him his final answer. By his direction I now enclose you a copy thereof, and hope this dispute will now be finally settled, without giving the General or the Committee any further trouble.

I am, very respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

JOSEPH REED, Secretary.

Thomas Seymour, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Hartford.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO MAJOR FRENCH.

Head-Quarters, October 25, 1775.

SIR: I now sit down to give you a final answer to your application respecting your sword. Doctor Franklin confirms what I before mentioned, that the privilege claimed was no part of the stipulation made at Philadelphia, but passed without discussion. Having made inquiry, I find the rule, with regard to the indulgence in question, is, that prisoners do not wear their swords. I therefore cannot approve of it, more especially as it gives such general dissatisfaction to the good people of the Country. To your other request, of removing to some place where you can have the benefit of attending publick worship of the Church of England, I have not the least objection, provided the place is approved by Governour Trumbull, to whom, in this case, you will be pleased to apply. Your letters, &c., have been all sent into Boston, and such as have been sent out forwarded. The Selectmen, at the instance of Colonel Robinson, have applied to have Mr. McDermott sent in, to which I have agreed, upon condition that a gentleman of Boston, most injuriously confined in jail, be permitted to come out; to which proposal I have yet received no answer.

I wish you all the happiness consistent with your situation; and while the inhabitants of America treat you with humanity and kindness, I trust you will make a suitable return. It is not grateful to me to hear the respectable citizens of any Town treated with incivility or contempt.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major French.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO MAJOR BENJAMIN TUPPER.

Camp at Cambridge, October 26, 1775.

SIR: The General thanks you for your care and diligence in the enterprise; the success we are just now informed of. You will endeavour to get the vessels to Plymouth as soon as possible, where you will find Mr. Watson, who is agent for the Continent, and will advance you what moneys may be necessary for the satisfaction of those who have assisted you. The General will notice you himself, as it would be indelicate to leave that to yourself. You will then put our vessels and their cargoes in the hands of Mr. Watson, who will take care of them till further orders.

We apprehend that with care and a good pilot you may get safe to Plymouth. Wishing you success, I remain, Sir, your very humble servant,

J. REED, Secretary.

To Major Benjamin Tupper.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO WILLIAM WATSON, ESQ.

Camp at Cambridge, October 26, 1775.

SIR: Major Tupper will deliver you two vessels, late belonging to Tories in Boston, which are taken and detained by the General's orders, together with their cargoes and other property, of which the Major will give you an account. Such articles as are perishable, you will immediately dispose of to the best advantage, and take care of the vessels until further orders. If Major Tupper could immediately man the brig from Plymouth, and be equipped without loss of time, in sending backwards and forwards here for ammunition, the General would not object to his going out on a cruise with her for a month or six weeks; but if it cannot be done in a few days, the season is too far advanced for this purpose. We suppose the vessels and cargoes being put into your hands, will enable you to advance such moneys as Major Tupper thinks necessary to reward those who have assisted in the enterprise, which we desire you would do.

I am, Sir, in haste, your most obedient servant,

J. REED.

To William Watson, Esq., Plymouth.

P. S. You will please to advise the General of your proceeding hereupon, as soon as possible.

DAVID PARKER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Dedham, October 26, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: Many and various are the difficulties which I have to encounter by the confinement to which I am subjected. The justice of your proceedings against me strike me with the most clear conviction, when I reflect upon the iniquity of my own unjustifiable conduct. I am, may it please your Excellency, necessitated, by a consciousness of my former erroneous practices, to acquit every measure adopted against me of cruelty or inhumanity. The assistance those who were inimical to the prosperity of America derived from my operations, very justly rendered me obnoxious to the displeasure of the inhabitants of these Colonies. My perseverance therein, notwithstanding the desire of the Committee of Boston that I should desist, confirmed the opinion of the publick that I was determined to co-operate in the subversion of our invaded privileges; but that, Sir, was foreign to my intention, whatever may be the general sentiment upon that affair. Had I indulged a momentary consideration, had I entertained the most distant conception that this injured Country would have been embroiled in the horrors of a civil war, or any ways apprehensive the present convulsions would be consequent upon the then unhappy struggle, I should immediately have relinquished the business, notwithstanding my engagements.

It never occurred to my mind the sword would be drawn in this contest. When that unhappy period arrived, my anxiety to accomplish my undertakings may be inferred from the naked circumstances in which I came into the Country. I acknowledge, Sir, I was justly esteemed an enemy to America. I very humbly implore the forgiveness of every man in the Country. I pledge my honour, and every thing I esteem valuable, for my future satisfactory proceedings and conduct. I will submit to any test your Excellency may propose, to evince the sincerity of my declarations and penitence. I would silently venerate the justice whose decision circumscribes my liberty within a few miles. But, Sir, the expenses of a maintenance, during the course of three months, have exhausted the pecuniary provision I procured in Boston, for the support of myself and family. You must be sensible, may it please your Excellency, of the obduracy of my situation, in respect to the obtaining employ, while I labour under the displeasure of the Province. The just indignation of the people against me, who have so greatly provoked them, I am totally unable to extinguish while a circumscription is appointed to my excursions; and notwithstanding any evidences I can possibly grant the commonalty, they yet esteem me as inimical to their welfare, else why, say they, should he be confined? This, may it please your Excellency, sufficiently prevents their granting me any assistance or employ, and this, Sir, very probably will be the sentiment, and these the consequences, while I continue under arrest; upon the removal of which, Sir, I may by some means regain that favour I have so justly forfeited—for which I most earnestly solicit. Have I, Sir, committed an offence for which no atonement can be offered and accepted? The omnipotent Father of Mercies is not inexorable to the most atrocious sinners, upon their repentance. I most sincerely ask forgiveness for my past conduct, and entreat my freedom.

I am, may it please your Excellency, your Excellency's most dutiful petitioner and very humble servant,

DAVID PARKER.

His Excellency General Washington.

ORDERS IN COUNCIL.

At the Court at St. James's, the 27th day of October, 1775, present: The King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas His Majesty was pleased, by his Orders in Council of the 23d of August and the 27th of September last, to direct that no person or persons whatsoever, should, at any time during the respective terms therein mentioned, presume to transport out of this Kingdom, or carry coastwise, any Saltpetre, Gunpowder, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition, (except the Master-General, Lieutenant-General, or principal Officers of the Ordnance for His Majesty's service,) without leave or permission in that behalf first obtained from His Majesty or his Privy Council. And whereas it hath been represented to this Board, that it will tend greatly to the advantage of trade for a general order in Council to be issued, to permit and allow Saltpetre and Gunpowder to be carried coastwise in small quantities, under certain restrictions, to be prescribed by the said order; His Majesty, taking the same into consideration, is hereby pleased, with the advice of his Privy Council, to order that Saltpetre and Gunpowder be permitted to be carried coastwise to and from any of the ports of this Kingdom, notwithstanding His Majesty's aforementioned Orders in Council, of the 23d of August and 27th of September last; provided, that no greater quantity of Saltpetre and Gunpowder be shipped, laden, or carried coastwise, at any one time, in any one ship or vessel, than one ton of Saltpetre and fifty barrels of Gunpowder, except such as shall be shipped, laden, or carried coastwise, by direction of the Master-General, Lieutenant-General, and principal Officers of the Ordnance for His Majesty's service; and, also, except such as shall obtain leave or permission, in that behalf, from His Majesty or his Privy Council; and provided, also, that sufficient security be first given to the proper Officers of His Majesty's Customs, in treble the value of the Saltpetre and Gunpowder desired to be sent coastwise, to carry the same to the places proposed, and none other; and that a certificate or certificates be produced, within one month from the date of the bond, from the proper Officers of the Customs, at the ports for which the respective quantities of Saltpetre and Gunpowder shall be shipped, of the same having been duly landed at such ports; in failure of which, the bonds to be immediately put in suit; which certificate or certificates the Commissioners of the Customs are hereby required to transmit to the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, in order to be laid before this Board; and the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary directions herein accordingly.

G. CHETWYND.

At the Court at St. James's, the 27th day of October, 1775, present: The King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas His Majesty was pleased, by his Orders in Council of the 23d of August and 27th of September last, to direct that no person or persons whatsoever, should, at any time during the respective terms therein mentioned, presume to transport out of this Kingdom, or carry coastwise, any Saltpetre, Gunpowder, or any sort of Arms or Ammunition, (except the Master-General, Lieutenant-General, or principal Officers of the Ordnance for His Majesty's service,) without leave or permission in that behalf first obtained from His Majesty or his Privy Council. And whereas it hath been represented to this Board, that it will tend greatly to the advantage of trade for a general order in Council to be issued, to permit and allow Saltpetre and Gunpowder to be exported to Ireland, in small quantities, under certain restrictions, to be prescribed by the said order; His Majesty, taking the same into consideration, is hereby pleased, with the advice of his Privy Council, to order that Saltpetre and Gunpowder be permitted to be exported to Ireland, for the inland consumption of that Kingdom, from any of the ports of this Kingdom, notwithstanding His Majesty's aforementioned Orders in Council, of the 23d of August and 27th of September last; provided, that no greater quantity of Saltpetre and Gunpowder be shipped, laden, or exported to Ireland, at any one time, in any one ship or vessel, than one ton of Saltpetre and twenty-five barrels of Gunpowder, except such as shall be shipped, laden, or exported, by direction of the Master-General, Lieutenant-General, or principal Officers of the Ordnance for His Majesty's service; and also except such as shall obtain leave or permission, in that behalf, from His Majesty or his Privy Council; and provided also, that sufficient security be first given to the proper Officers of His Majesty's Customs, in treble the value of the Saltpetre and Gunpowder desired to be exported, to carry the same to the places proposed, and none other; and that a certificate or certificates be produced, within two months from the date of the bond, from the proper Officers of the Customs, at the ports for which the respective quantities of Saltpetre and Gunpowder shall be shipped, of the same having been all duly landed at such ports; in failure of which, the bonds to be put immediately in suit; which certificate or certificates the Commissioners of the Customs are hereby required to transmit to the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury, in order to be laid before this Board; and the Right Honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary directions herein accordingly.

G. CHETWYND.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF LANARK.

Address of the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of the Land Tax of the County of Lanark, presented to His Majesty by Andrew Stuart, Esq., their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of the Land Tax of the County of LANARK.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

With hearts full of affection and loyalty to your Majesty's person and Government, and deeply impressed with a sense of our happiness under your mild and auspicious reign, permit us, the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of the Land Tax of the County of Lanark, to approach your Majesty's throne, sincerely regretting that any of your subjects should prove undeserving of the constitutional blessings which all of them enjoy.

We have at no time beheld with indifference the seditious conduct of your deluded American subjects; but now, since they have had the audacity to break out into open and unprovoked rebellion against the supreme legislative authority of our Country, we are struck with the highest indignation, and think it our indispensable duty to express these our sentiments to your Majesty.

What means, under Providence, may prove most conducive to enforce your Majesty's legal authority, to reduce your disaffected Colonies to allegiance, and recall them to their duty, we do not presume to suggest; but beg leave to assure your Majesty, that whatever measures your Majesty and your Parliament, in your united wisdom, may be pleased to adopt for these salutary purposes, we shall zealously promote; firmly determined to maintain, and to transmit inviolate to posterity, the authority of the Crown, the supremacy of the laws, and the unity of the Empire of Great Britain.

Signed in our presence, and by our appointment, by JAMES LOCKHART, of Lee, Præses.

Hamilton, October 27, 1775.

PETITION FROM THE INHABITANTS OF NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE.

Petition and Memorial from Newcastle-upon-Tyne, presented to the King by Sir George Savile, Bart.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Petition and Memorial of the Free Burgesses, Traders, and Inhabitants of NEWCASTLE-UPON-TYNE.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Free Burgesses, Traders, and Inhabitants of Newcastle-upon-Tyne, humbly beg leave to approach your throne, deeply impressed with a grateful sense of the many blessings we have enjoyed in consequence of the late glorious Revolution and the happy elevation of your Majesty's illustrious House, to the just and mild government of these Kingdoms; by which great events our natural rights as men, and our constitutional privileges as Britons, have been amply secured and defended.

Feeling for the imminent danger of this Country, and the distresses of our fellow-subjects in America, we esteem it our duty to lay before your Majesty our humble opinion of those measures which threaten the destruction of this powerful Empire; and we do this the more freely, from the fear lest your Majesty should be induced to pursue the present unhappy system, on the false suggestions and dangerous advice of many of your deluded subjects. At a time when addresses of approbation are industriously sought by those interested men who have plunged an happy and united people into all the horrors of civil war, we should ill deserve the blessings of freedom and of commerce, were we, by our silence, to give a sanction to their mischievous infatuation.

In the present unnatural war with our American brethren, we have seen neither provocation nor object; nor is it, in our humble apprehension, consonant with the rights of humanity, sound policy, or the Constitution of our Country.

Notwithstanding the various abuses and misrepresentations of that unhappy and persecuted people, royal Sir, looking to their declarations and conduct, we cannot but consider them as loyal, affectionate, and grateful. Your Majesty's Ministers have found them firm, temperate, and brave; let your Majesty's humanity and noble nature act in their behalf; vouchsafe to restore America to her former happy situation, and grant her "peace, liberty, and safety." So shall the gratitude of millions secure a reign of lasting happiness to your Majesty, and the strength of an industrious and rising people establish your throne, in your royal line, to the latest posterity.

These are the humble prayers and requests of disinterested men, who speak the language of humanity and truth. As none of your subjects are more sincere in their attachment to your Majesty's person and Government, in defence of which, in a just cause, they would cheerfully sacrifice their lives, they hope your Majesty will not treat this their humble Petition and Memorial with neglect, but, by a gracious compliance with their wishes, confirm their gratitude, loyalty, and affection.

LORD MULGRAVE TO MR. WILLIAM SMITH.

Mulgrave-Hall, October 27, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Your letter, dated the 17th of this month, came to my hands too late to be answered by the last post; it was therefore impossible for me to be in time at Newcastle to attend the meeting, which I suppose by your letter to have been held last Monday. You have not explained yourself as to the nature of the humble address to His Majesty, upon which, you say, my sentiments would oblige my friends. Had I received your letter in time, I should have suspended the attention to my private affairs, so particularly necessary from the severe misfortune which has lately befallen me, to have been present at the meeting, and expressed my sentiments upon the address, which you hint it might be thought proper for me to present. As it is, I must beg that you will communicate this letter to my friends.

If the address is to signify the approbation of the independent freemen of Newcastle to any measures which may enforce the legislative authority of this Country, I should, with pride and pleasure, be the instrument of laying such sentiments from so respectable a body at His Majesty's feet.

But should any application be intended to the throne, similar to some that I have seen in the papers, recommending a surrender of the powers of the Legislature, under an idea of restoring the tranquillity of the Empire, at a time when unanimity is so desirable, and every appearance of division amongst ourselves on this important point should be avoided, (as such addresses, from whatever motives they may take their rise, must tend to increase the distresses of the unhappily deluded Americans, by delaying their submission to that power, the continuance of whose protection alone can secure to them the enjoyment of those liberties which they have been so fatally induced to believe they assert by resistance,) I shall most sincerely lament that the precipitancy with which this step was taken, precluded the possibility of offering my reasons against it at an earlier period, and more fully than can be done in this letter; as they might, perhaps, have had some weight, upon a subject I have so much considered, with those of whose good opinion I have received such repeated and flattering marks.

I am the more anxious to have my sentiments upon this subject clearly explained, as I should think myself highly blameable in having solicited so important a trust as that of a share in the Legislature, had I entertained a design of sacrificing its powers.

In the last Parliament (to my conduct in which I owed the honour of so respectable an invitation to Newcastle) no man opposed with more zeal many of the measures respecting America than I did, on a conviction of their inexpediency; but so far was I from entertaining the smallest doubt of the supreme power of Parliament over all the Colonies, as much as over Great Britain itself, that I frequently declared, in the most explicit terms, my assent to that proposition, founded in the principles of the Constitution, and essential to the preservation of its unity. I now think, that upon the vigorous and effectual assertion of that absolute power, entire and unmodified, depends the prosperity and perhaps the existence of this Empire.

Such, Sir, are my opinions upon the present important and critical situation of publick affairs, which you will do me a favour in making known to those who wished to have intrusted the care of their most important rights to my zeal and diligence.

I shall leave this place for London on Tuesday next, where I shall be glad to receive any commands you have for me. I beg you will accept my thanks for the professions of your continued inclinations to serve me; and that you will believe me to be, with regard, your most obedient and most humble servant,

MULGRAVE.

To Mr. William Smith, Surgeon, in Newcastle.

Mr. GRIEVE presents his most respectful compliments to Sir Walter Blackett, and begs leave to inform him that he has brought to Town with him a petition and memorial to His Majesty, praying for lenient measures with America, signed by twelve hundred and ten burgesses, traders, and inhabitants of Newcastle, who are desirous of having it presented to the King by their Representatives, and in consequence have directed Mr. Grieve to deliver it to their care, if they shall think proper to sign and present it. Mr. Grieve will have executed his commission satisfactorily to himself, as well as the gentlemen of Newcastle, if Sir Walter Blackett and Sir Matthew Ridley fortunately approve of it, and, by signing and presenting it, will adopt and give their sanction to the measure.

Sunday morning, half past 11 o'clock, Nov. 5, 1775.

The same was addressed to Sir M. W. Ridley. Both the gentlemen desired to see copies of the Petition; which being sent them, they returned the following answers:

Sunday evening, November 5, 1775.

SIR: Please to accept the following, as my reasons for not signing and presenting to His Majesty the petition and memorial, of which you sent me a copy this morning. It being my opinion that, by the Constitution of our Country, the legislative authority of the Parliament of Great Britain extends over her Colonies, and that they are now in rebellion against that authority; and observing that the petition and memorial does not assert that right of Parliament, nor make a proper submission from the Colonies to that right of Parliament a previous condition for His Majesty's gracious consideration of their case, I must beg leave to decline signing and presenting the petition and memorial. I beg leave further to observe, that His Majesty's late gracious speech to his Parliament points out to the Colonies the certain means of reconciliation, and consequently that they have in their own hands the mutual peace and prosperity of themselves and their Mother Country, whenever they shall please to become loyal subjects, and return to their allegiance.

I am, with great respect, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

W. BLACKETT.

Burlington-street, November 6, 1775.

SIR: I have received the petition and memorial, containing the opinion of many of the free burgesses, traders, and inhabitants of Newcastle, on the measures which have been pursued in the present unhappy situation of our affairs in America, expressing a general disapprobation of them. As I have had an opportunity of expressing my opinion upon them in Parliament, (for I presume those are the measures and advice alluded to,) to some of which I thought proper to give my assent, and opposition to others, it would not be a consistent part for me now to include the whole in one general censure; nor can I agree in the character attributed to the Americans, as to their gratitude and loyalty. I believe their warmest advocates will not deny that they are at present in arms against this Country—justifying their rebellion by a denial of the legislative authority of this Kingdom—obedience to which authority, I apprehend, is as much the duty of the Colonies as any other part of His Majesty's Dominions. I should be extremely happy if their return to obedience and their duty could be effected by lenient measures, (which, I presume, by the tenor of the petition, though not expressed, are the means the petitioners would wish to have adopted.) From His Majesty's mild and humane disposition, such measures, I am inclined to hope and believe, will be fully tried, before those of a more coercive nature are further pursued.

I shall not trouble you further than to say, that, for these reasons, I must decline signing and presenting the petition and memorial.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

MATTHEW WHITE RIDLEY.

EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO MAJOR-GENERAL HOWE.

Whitehall, October 27, 1775.

SIR: It being judged expedient that, in order to forward the recruiting for the Regiments serving in North-America, the commission and non-commission officers appointed to one of the additional Companies should be sent to Great Britain by the earliest opportunity; and, also, that one or more commissioned officers, as you shall think proper, should be sent home from each corps, to assist in escorting the recruits from hence, as occasion shall require. I am commanded by the King to signify to you His Majesty's pleasure that you do consult with the Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's ships in North-America upon the best means of finding a passage for such of the said commission and non-commission officers as are to come from Boston and its neighbourhood, either on board any of His Majesty's large ships of war that may be under orders to return to England, or on board such transport vessels as you may be able to spare at the time this letter will reach you.

With regard to those which are to come from Florida, being only three commission and three non-commission officers, such allowance must be made to them as will enable them to defray the expense of their passage on board any ships that may offer from either of those Provinces, unless they shall find it more convenient to repair to Boston or New-York, in which case they will take their passage with the rest; the numbers of which, according to the return made to me by the War Office, will be as follows, viz:

From Boston and the neighbourhood: Eighteenth and Fifty-Ninth Regiments, 51 officers, 124 non-commissioned officers; additional Companies, of eighteen Battalions, 36 officers, 72 non-commissioned officers; officers to return home on duty, at least, 18. Total, 105 officers, 196 non-commissioned officers.

From Florida: One Regiment, 3 officers, 4 non-commissioned officers.

It is presumed that, besides the abovementioned commissioned and non-commissioned officers, there may be a considerable number of invalids and discharged men which it will be expedient to send home at the same time, and likewise some commissioned officers, who may have leave to return; you will, therefore, include them in any estimate you shall form for the freight that will be wanted; and I hope that a sufficient quantity of shipping may be spared, without the hazard of sending any from hence at this late season of the year.

Enclosed I send you His Majesty's speech to both Houses of Parliament, upon the opening of the session yesterday, together with their addresses in return thereto, which I hope will have the effect to convince the leaders of rebellion in America of the firm resolution of every branch of the Legislature to maintain the dignity and authority of Parliament, and open the eyes of those who have been misled by their wicked artifices.

You will see, by His Majesty's speech, that motion is made of negotiation with foreign powers for auxiliary troops; but it is with great concern I acquaint you, that our prospect of succeeding in our treaty with the Empress of Russia, of which we had so good an expectation, is, at best, but doubtful, and in the present situation is a circumstance of much embarrassment and disappointment.

I am, &c.,

DARTMOUTH.

To Major-General Howe.

WEST-AUGUSTA COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of the County of West-Augusta, on Friday, October 27, 1775:

Major William Trent produced a Maryland Paper of September last, in which, under the Williamsburgh head, of the 8th of the month, was the following paragraph: "By a gentleman who came passenger in the Ship Baltimore, bound for Maryland, we learn that one Captain Trent, a native of Pennsylvania, left London about the beginning of May, being intrusted by Lord North with the sum of £40,000, to see the Indians to cut our throats." Uneasy at having his character traduced in this publick manner, and in order to remove any bad impressions it may have made on such of his countrymen as are not acquainted with him, he thought it prudent to apply to us, to whom he is well known, as well as to the inhabitants in general on this side the Mountain, to have always been a friend to his Country, and at the time produced letters from gentlemen of family and fortune in England, to him, which being read, prove his connections are with the friends of America. He likewise showed copies of letters written by him to gentlemen there, which breathe the strongest spirit of American freedom.

His using his influence with the Indians at the Treaty lately held here in favour of the United Colonies, as well as its being his interest to keep peace with them, and to be on good terms with the inhabitants where his estate chiefly lies, all serve to corroborate the opinion we entertain of his attachment to his Country. Therefore, it is unanimously

Resolved, That the paragraph in the Maryland Paper, under the Williamsburgh head, is false and scandalous, and seems to be inserted with a design to ruin him in the opinion of his countrymen, and to sow dissensions amongst us.

Resolved, That Major Trent's conduct has been, on all occasions, that of a true friend to American liberty; and that any injury done him would be the cause of much mischief, as his numerous friends and acquaintances, as well amongst ourselves as amongst the Six Nations, would resent it.

Resolved, It is the opinion of this Committee, that the Printers ought to be cautious how they suffer publications in their Papers against any person, without good and sufficient grounds, and more especially against the friends of this Country.

Resolved, As Major Trent has ordered the author of this publication to be sued, that all friends to the Country ought to endeavour to have him apprehended.

Resolved, That these Resolves be sent to Messrs. W. & T. Bradford, of Philadelphia, and they be requested to publish them in their Paper; and as the paragraph has appeared in most of the other Papers on the Continent, the Printers of them will no doubt look upon it as a piece of justice due from them to Major Trent to publish these Resolves in their Papers.

GEORGE CROGHAN, Chairman.

Pittsburgh, October 23, 1775.

Major William Trent showed us a paragraph in a Maryland newspaper, in which it was mentioned, under the Williamsburgh head, that, "By a gentleman from London, who came passenger in the Ship Baltimore, bound for Maryland, we learn that one Captain Trent, a native of Pennsylvania, left London about the beginning of May, being intrusted by Lord North with the sum of forty thousand Pounds, to fee the Indians to cut our throats." He also showed us a letter, the writer of which informs him, that "it is said there is a large reward in the Virginia paper for taking him." Uneasy at this imputation thrown in such a publick manner upon his character, and anxious to wipe it off as far as he can in this remote place, where he has but very few of his papers with him, he requested us to hear some letters from gentlemen in England to him, and the copies of some letters from him to gentlemen in England. Those written by him are in the sentiments and language of a friend to America, and those written to him evidently show that their authors conceived him to be such. We have heard the characters of the gentlemen who wrote them, and believe that they would not have chosen Major Trent as a correspondent in political matters, had they thought his conduct while he was in England suspicious. We are well informed that Major Trent, since his arrival in America, has disposed of part of the Indian goods he had on hand, and has offered to dispose of more. We think that a person intrusted with money for the purpose mentioned in the newspaper would be inclined to purchase rather than to sell goods, as in the Indian country they would be much more useful than cash.

LEWIS MORRIS,
JAMES WILSON,
THOMAS WALKER,

Commis'rs from the Congress for Indian Affairs.

NEW-YORK CONGRESS TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read November 6, 1775.]

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 27, 1775.

SIR: The Committee of Safety, during the recess of the Provincial Congress, held a conference with Mr. Bernard Romans, and engaged his services as an engineer in the building the fortifications on Hudson's River. He objected to them that his pension from the Crown (of about fifty Pounds sterling per year, as botanist for one of the Floridas) might be taken away, when it was known that he had assisted this Country, and therefore prayed that he might be engaged as engineer in the Continental service. The Committee thereupon promised him the pay of fifty dollars per month, for the present, and informed him that it was probable his services would be wanted. We are not competent to the perfecting this business, and therefore pray that the Congress will make some order in the premises. As to the quantum of his pay, if fifty dollars is thought too little, the Congress will be pleased to fix upon the sum which they think adequate to the duty he is to perform.

We are, Sir, respectfully, your most obedient and humble servants.

By order: NATHANIEL WOODHULL, Pres't.
To the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

FIELD AND STAFF OFFICERS OF THE MILITIA OF THE CITY OF NEW-YORK.

Committee Chamber, New-York, October 27, 1775.

The following is a list of the names of Field and Staff Officers nominated by the General Committee to command the three Regiments of Militia for this City and County:

Names of Field and Staff Officers for the First Regiment, viz: Henry Remsen, Colonel; Joseph Bull, Lieutenant-Colonel; Anthony L. Bleecker, First Major; Nicholas Roosevelt, Second Major; John White, Adjutant; Nicholas Quackenbush, Quartermaster.

The aforesaid Regiment to consist of ten Companies, viz: Beat No. 1, Peter Stoutenburgh, Captain; No. 2, Samuel Johnson, Captain; No. 6, Peter Elting, Captain; No. 7, John Roome, Esq., Captain; No. 10, Garret Abeel, Captain; No. 11, Nicholas Low, Captain; No. 12, Peter Bertune, Captain; No. 15, Henry Remsen, Captain; No. 16, Garret S. De Wint, Captain; No. 20, Thomas W. Moore, Captain.

Names of Field and Staff Officers for the Second Regiment, viz: John Jay, Esq., Colonel; John Broome, Lieutenant-Colonel; Garret Abeel, First Major; Morgan Lewis, Second Major; Patrick McDavitt, Adjutant; Abraham Brinkerhoff, Quartermaster.

The Second Regiment to consist of ten Companies, viz: Beat No. 3, Mangle Minthorne, Captain; No. 4, James Brown, Captain; No. 8, Benjamin James, Captain; No. 9, George Janeway, Captain; No. 13, Benjamin Carpenter, Captain; No. 14, George Dominick, Captain; No. 17, Richard Fletcher, Captain; No. 21, Daniel Phoenix, Captain; No. 22, Nicholas Roosevelt, Captain; No. 23, Daniel Shaw, Captain.

Names of Field and Staff Officers for the Third Regiment, viz: Abraham P. Lott, Colonel; Peter T. Curtenius, Lieutenant-Colonel; Anthony Lispernard, First Major; John Reed, Second Major; Nicholas C. Bogart, Adjutant; Andrew Breasted, Quartermaster.

The Third Regiment to consist of nine Companies, viz: Beat No. 5, Anthony Lispernard, Captain; No. 18, William Depeyster, Jun., Captain; No. 19, Nicholas N. Anthony, Captain; No. 24, John Warner, Captain; No. 25, Richard Deane, Captain; No. 26, Nathaniel Tylee, Captain; No. 28, Theophilus Anthony, Captain; No. 29, Samuel Benson, Captain; No. 27, John Grigg, Captain.

N. B. Nicholas C. Bogart declines serving.

NEWBURGH (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

In Committee, October 27, 1775.

This is to certify, that we, the Committee of Safety and Observation for the Precinct of Newburgh, for the apprehending two persons, viz: Stephen Wiggins and David Purdy, did request and command Captain Samuel Logan, of the Minute Company at New-Windsor, to assist with eleven of his men in apprehending the said persons, he having attended and assisted one day and a half, with himself at the head of the following persons, viz: John Robin- son, Ensign; David Mandeville and John Scofield, Sergeants; one Corporal, one Clerk, and six Privates.

Captain Logan's account, signed by Mr. Ecker, our Chairman, for the expenses of himself and men for the time above certified, is just; and for his own and men's wages, we refer to be calculated by you, agreeable to the order of Congress.

N. B. The expenses are as follows, viz: laid out for the above men, this 27th day of October, 1775, one Pound, five Shillings, and three Pence.

WOLVERT ECKER, Chairman.
To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, President of the Provincial Congress for the Province of New-York.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Ticonderoga, October 27, 1775.

SIR: Whilst we lament the necessity which has drove America to arms, Americans may rejoice at the success of those arms. I therefore congratulate your Honour on the reduction of Chambly by Major Brown, with fifty of our troops and three hundred Canadians, under Mr. Livingston, in which a number of prisoners were made, a list whereof, together with a list of the stores taken, I enclose. Amongst the latter you will with pleasure perceive one hundred and twenty-four barrels (I am told of one hundred weight each) of powder; an article so much wanted, that we were apprehensive of the consequences, and procured in such happy time that the reduction of St. John's seems now certain.

Not a word from Colonel Arnold, as yet. Our troops are more healthy than such an extreme wet country as the vicinity of St. John's promised. General Wooster, with his Regiment of three hundred and thirty-five effectives, officers included, left this on the 22d—most of the men, and many of the officers, with great reluctance.

I am, Sir, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,
PHILIP SCHUYLER.

Honourable Jonathan Trumbull.

P. S. As I propose sending the prisoners into your Colony as soon as possible, beg your Honour to send a line, to be left at some publick place at Canaan, and another at Great Barrington; to direct to the place you shall destine for their reception. An officer and a party will accompany them.

COL. BEDEL TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Camp north of St. John's, October 27, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I left Coo's the 10th of September, with my Rangers, and arrived in eight days on the north of St. John's. I have done all in my power for the good of the cause, and have brought cannon down the river, by the fort of St. John's, and sent them to Chambly, and taken that post without the loss of a man. We found in the fort eighty barrels of flour, eleven barrels of rice, seven barrels of peas, six barrels of butter, one hundred and forty-one barrels of pork, one barrel of salt, one hundred and twenty-four barrels of powder, three hundred swivel-shot, six thousand five hundred and sixty-four musket shot, in cartridges, one hundred and fifty stand of French arms, three royal mortars, sixty-one shells, five hundred hand grenades, eighty-three stand King's arms and accoutrements, a large quantity of rigging, and other stores of various sorts; eight commissioned officers, seventy-three non-commissioned officers and privates, thirty-five women, and thirty-five children. They are sent to Hartford.

I have had the command here of about twelve hundred men, and have parties out at La Prairie and Longueil. We have took from the enemy, since we came here, twenty wagon loads of stores, which were going to St. John's, such as wine, rum, &c. I expect to be in the fort in a few days. I am fixing every thing that is requisite for a siege. I have a battery of four twelve-pounders, one mortar, and three royals, fixing at my post, which will be ready to play in a day or two.

I have applied to General Montgomery for money for my men, but without success, as he says he does not know whether we are to be paid by the Province or Continent; neither has he had any instructions about it from the Continental Congress or Committee of Safety. I shall be glad to have a supply, or orders for the same, as speedily as possible, as the men are suffering for want of clothing and other necessaries. Paper money will not pass here, and the weather begins to be very severe. I have a considerable body of Canadians and Indians under my command. The Indians remain chiefly with me. I must beg my men may not be suffered to want for necessaries, suitable for the season of the year, after serving their Country in so good a cause.

The two retreats had before my arrival, as also Colonel Allen, have been a great damage to us. We have had thirteen men belonging to Captain Perkins's Company desert in one night; and, I am afraid, if money and clothing cannot be had, we shall lose a great many by sickness or desertion, as we have a great many sick at present. I cannot hear any thing about Arnold, with the Quebeck expedition.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
TIMOTHY BEDEL.
To the Committee of Safety.

P. S. November 2, eight o'clock at night.—This moment I have got possession of St. John's, and the post being obliged to set off, have not time to copy the articles of capitulation, and to-morrow shall march for Montreal, leaving a detachment to keep this fort. General Carleton came out, with eight hundred men, against a party of ours of about three hundred and fifty, and was obliged to retreat. We have took two Indians and two French merchants prisoners, and killed four Indians, which were found upon the spot. The two Frenchmen (prisoners) say they carried off forty dead, and about as many wounded. We did not lose one man. The prisoners at St. John's forts consist of upwards of six hundred. In about four days we shall have either a wooden leg or a golden chain at Montreal. For God's sake, let me have money; I must supply my men.
TIMOTHY BEDEL.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Head-Quarters, October 27, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The continued accumulation of price, and the scarcity which prevails through the camp, for the several articles of wood, hay, &c., oblige me to address your honourable Houses again upon this subject.

The distress of the Army for these necessities, I fear, will be followed with the most dreadful effects to the general cause in which we are engaged, unless some speedy and effectual remedy is provided. I have the utmost reason to think the scarcity is artificial; and, that the General Court may have full satisfaction on this subject, three gentlemen, who have been employed in endeavouring to procure these articles, now wait on your honourable Houses, to give you such information as their inquiries and opportunities enable them to do. The importance and necessity of making such provision as to enable the troops to keep their post must be too obvious to make any argument necessary; and, as this Province has ever been among the foremost in its spirited exertions, I flatter myself such measures will be adopted as will remove the apprehensions and anxieties under which we now labour.

Messrs. Drew, Carthier, and Dunoin, officers taken from some ship of war, and now closely confined in Taunton jail, have made me such an affecting representation of their distress, that I cannot refuse them my recommendation to the favour of the General Court for an enlargement on their parole of honour, when removed to some inland Town.

I expect in a short time some regulation from the Continental Congress respecting the prisoners, which I shall do myself the honour of communicating as soon as received.

I am, Gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient and very humble servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.
To the Council of Massachusetts.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO COLONEL JOSEPH REED.

Beverly, October 27, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I received your favour to me of the 25th, and communicated that part of it which regarded Colonel

Glover to him. When I last wrote to you, I gave the true reasons for the delay attending the fitting out of these vessels.

I observe you had given orders to young Glover for all the things wrote to you for, and he is returned without the most material article, which is, the three hundred swivel shot. He says there were none; but says there were plenty of four ounce bullets, which, if he had had one ounce of sense, must have known would answer all the purposes.

This young gentleman, I find, has applied to you for a subaltern and twenty men more than were intended for this vessel. I can easily see his reason for it was to get on board with him a favourite young officer, who he apprehended would not be allowed without an addition of men. I see no objection to indulge him with his friend, but I really see no necessity for the twenty men; nor has there been a provision of stores laid in for more than the original number. You must also consider, that if you indulge one you must indulge the whole.

I have told him (as his father did not choose to interfere) that he may have his friend if he pleased, who, with fifty more, officers included, are all I would suffer to go on board, except I had written orders from Head-Quarters to the contrary. I am very sure that number must be full sufficient for all the purposes these vessels are intended for; all above that number must be an encumbrance on board one of these small vessels; and you will find, when the accounts come in, the expense full enough, without such an addition.

Pray what keeps Captain Adams and his Company? His vessel has got all her guns, provision, &c., on board, and I know there will be many things wanting, which we cannot possibly think of till he comes.

As Captain Manly's vessel is all ready, we now only wait the collecting together his hopeful crew, to send him off. I have declared, that if there are even thirty on board to-morrow morning, and the wind proves fair, that he shall hoist sail. But these swivel shot, pray send off immediately a large quantity of them; same, four ounce bullets. Captain Adams can take sufficient for both vessels, and give Manly his proportion at Cape Ann, which will be their place of rendezvous.

It will be very fortunate, should any of our cruisers fall in with the transport you mention. That would be a glorious prize indeed.

I am much grieved that I had not the pleasure of seeing Mr. Lynch and Colonel Harrison; I regard them highly. Dr. Franklin is going, and you are also on the wing. Every one engaged in this contest must sacrifice their private satisfaction to the publick good. I assure you, the not seeing these gentlemen, and having now little chance of shaking you by the hand before you depart, is very mortifying to, dear Sir, your sincere friend, &c.,

To Colonel Joseph Reed. STEPHEN MOYLAN.

P. S. My best respects attend his Excellency.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

To the Honourable Committee of Safety for the Province of NEW-HAMPSHIRE:

Humbly shows John Sullivan, that General Washington sent him to Portsmouth, in this Province, to take the command of the forces here, to repel any attacks upon this or any other sea-ports in this quarter, and has since sent some small forces from the Army, to assist in such defence; that he, in consequence of the directions given him, has summoned in a part of the Militia, with whose assistance he has thrown up some works in this and the Province of Maine, for the defence of Piscataqua harbour, and taken such steps as appeared to him necessary for the defence of Portsmouth, and has completed as far as the length of time since his arrival would admit; but finds that the fleet destined to destroy this port has proceeded to Boston, whereupon the Militia begin to return to their respective homes, leaving the works unfinished, not as yet defensible, and without guard sufficient to prevent the fort and Town's being taken or destroyed by surprise. He humbly apprehends that at least one thousand men, exclusive of two hundred artillerymen, ought to be raised and stationed at Newcastle, Pearce's and Seavy's Islands, for some short space of time, with proper officers appointed to command in each department, and with proper officers appointed to command the Companies stationed in each. He begs your advice on the affair, and that you would inform him what is necessary to be further done; and that you would let him know, as soon as may be, whether you apprehend it necessary for him or the riflemen and artillerymen sent him from the Army to tarry any longer, that he may conduct himself accordingly; and begs leave to assure you, that whatever you direct or advise shall be cheerfully complied with, by your most obedient servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN, Brig. Gen.

NEW-HAMPSHIRE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

In Committee of Safety, October 27, 1775.

SIR: This Committee, in consequence of your representation, are deeply impressed with gratitude to General Washington, for his early attention and kindness to this Colony, in sending you with some forces to protect their Metropolis from the threatened invasion; and hope the same generous disposition will induce him to continue his assistance while our danger remains.

The number of men you propose to have raised for our present defence, we have considered of; and judge it necessary that the number of matrosses be augmented to two hundred; and that eight hundred men more be enlisted for fifteen days, to guard the several necessary posts and passes, and shall give orders for completing the same.

Colonel Joshua Wingate, Lieutenant-Colonel Jonathan Burnam, and Major James Hacket, are appointed by the Congress of this Colony field-officers of a Regiment of Minute-Men, and commissioned. We have therefore directed them to take command according to their several stations.

We have requested William Knight and Joshua Wentworth, Esqrs., Captain William Pearne, Captain Thomas Thompson, and Supply Clap, or any three of them, to procure and fix a sufficient number of vessels a little above the boom, in order to hinder the passage of our enemy's ships up the river.

We expect, Sir, while you are permitted to tarry, you will employ the troops here, and such as shall come in, in such a manner as you shall judge necessary, in preparing for and making the best defence circumstances will allow of, observing all the frugality and economy the great object of defence will admit of; and on all matters of consequence, where time will permit, to consult the Congress of this Colony or this Committee.

The fixing a cable to strengthen the boom, as you proposed, (considering the time it will require to prepare it, and the great expense thereof, and the importance of the boom and ships,) we think may be omitted.

In behalf of the Committee, I am, with great esteem, Sir, your obedient servant,

MATTHEW THORNTON, Chairman.

Hon. Brigadier-General Sullivan.

ORDERS TO WILLIAM KNIGHT AND OTHERS.

In Committee of Safety, Exeter, October 27, 1775.

To WILLIAM KNIGHT and JOSHUA WENTWORTH, Esqrs., Captains PEARNE, THOMPSON, and CLAP:

It having been represented to this Committee as necessary that a number of vessels should be properly moored above the boom on Piscataqua River, we do therefore hereby desire you, to prevent the passage of the enemy's ships up the river, or any three of you, to take a sufficient number of the meanest vessels you can easily find, that will answer the purpose, and fix them in such places, and in such a manner above the boom, as you shall judge best. Also, to appraise each of said vessels, and make return thereof, with the name of the owner, to this Committee, and to assure the owners of the vessels you shall so take, that in case they are destroyed in said service, they shall be paid for, according to your appraisal.

By order of the Committee:

MATTHEW THORNTON, Chairman.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO COLONEL GREENE AND OTHERS.

Two and a half miles on the Great Carrying Place, }
October 27, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: I arrived here last night. Captain Han- chet informs me the roads through the woods are well spotted, and not so bad but men will make greater despatch than by water. The carrying places from lake to lake are so many and difficult, that I think the whole will get forward much sooner by leaving all the batteaus. If there are any people sick, you will perhaps be under a necessity of bringing on some batteaus. We are now near by the stream, which is about six miles to the lake. I believe the walking here is pretty good, if you go a little back from the stream. When you arrive at the lake, the walking is very good; the land rises gently, with a good road; I am told good all the way down.

I have heard nothing from Jackson. Lieutenant Steele has gone over the pond. His party are here, and most of them going forward. I shall proceed with what men I have, as fast as possible, to the inhabitants, to send back provisions. Pray make all possible despatch.

I am, Gentlemen, your humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To Colonels Greene, Enos, and the Captains in the rear of the Detachment.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO THE FIELD-OFFICERS AND CAPTAINS IN THE DETACHMENT.

Chaudiere River, October 27, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have this moment arrived here, and met my express from the French inhabitants, who, he tells me, are rejoiced to hear we are coming, and that they will gladly supply us with provisions. He says there are few or no Regulars at Quebeck, which may be easily taken. I have just met Lieutenants Steele and Church, and am determined to proceed as fast as possible, with four batteaus and fifteen men, to the inhabitants, and send back provisions as soon as possible. I hope to be there in three days, as my express tells me we can go most of the way by water. You must all of you keep the east side of the lake. You will find only one small river until you reach the crotch, which is just above the inhabitants. I hope, in six days from this time, to have provisions half way up the river. Pray make all possible despatch.

If any Companies, on their arrival at the river, have more than four or five days' provisions, let it be despatched to others, or left for their coming on.

I am, Gentlemen, your humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

P. S. The bearer, Isaac Hull, I have sent back, in order to direct the people in coming from the carrying place to Chaudiere Pond. From the west side of the great carrying place, before they come to the meadows, strike off to the right hand, and keep about a north and by east course, which will escape the low swampy land and save a very great distance, and about six miles will bring you to the pond. By no means keep the brook, which will carry you into a swamp, out of which it will be impossible for you to get.

N. B. To be sent on, that the whole may see it.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO COLONEL ENOS.

Chaudiere Pond, October 27, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Forward on the enclosed letter to his Excellency General Washington, by express. If you have any officer who is not hearty and well, send him; and give orders to take particular care of the sick, and those who are returning, as well as of any other matters that are necessary. I hope soon to see you in Quebeck; and am, dear Sir, your humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

To Colonel Enos.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO THE OFFICERS OF THE DETACHMENT.

Sartigan, October 31, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have now sent forward, for the use of the detachment, five barrels and two tierces, and five hundred pounds of flour, by Lieutenant Church, Mr. Barrin, and eight Frenchmen, and shall immediately forward on more as far as the falls. Those who have provisions to reach the falls will let this pass on for the rear; and those who want will take sparingly as possible, that the whole may meet with relief. The inhabitants received us kindly, and appear friendly in offering us provisions, &c. Pray make all possible despatch.

I am, Gentlemen, yours, &c.,

B. ARNOLD.

COSMOPOLITAN, NO. I.

To the Inhabitants of the AMERICAN Colonies.

Friends and Fellow-Citizens:

By the splendid monuments of Grecian antiquity, we learn, at Athens—that seat of science, that nursery of freedom, that mistress of the world, now in ruins—there was a custom, in times of trouble and general calamity, to invite, by the publick crier, every person, of whatever age, quality, degree, or profession, to give his opinion with freedom and plainness, for the good of the State. Unaspiring to opinions upon difficult and intricate questions, leaving plans and measures to the invention and wisdom of deep politicians and the united efforts of our assembled Delegates, not long since, without fee or reward, expectation or prospect, I assumed my pen in opposition to Ministerial hirelings, and the tools and minions of despotick sway. Having delineated our rights, and scanned the pretences for infringing them, I stopped short, and retired from the publick view. Something more may yet be done. The duty of a citizen is undischarged but in constant struggles in his Country's cause. My present design is to cast in a mite to rouse the attention, increase the vigilance, and set in motion the wheels of reflection, among the various classes of men, especially the yeomanry of America, against the wanton ebullitions of undelegated power, and the increasing torrent of Britannick oppression. Not doubting the sincerity of the heart, you will excuse, from a principle of tenderness, the want of elocution and polished sentiment in one whose highest ambition is the service of the publick; who, although he has neither that experience of years, which adds weight to counsel, and authority to debate, had rather wander abroad in a rustick dress, than to enjoy that silent glow of the recluse speculator, which, being confined to the narrow circle of his own breast, must, void of utility, soon perish.

We have, my dear friends, passed the Rubicon; the die is up. There is but a single alternative: either in the blaze of war to submit our cause to the great arbiter of battles, or resign ourselves and ours into the unrelenting hands of the proud and the cruel, to be by them butchered as sheep, or, like machines, disposed of in servile drudgery, or the infamous business of enslaving others. There is no retrospect; our choice is easy, our duty plain. It was the opinion of David, a brave and magnanimous prince, a great statesman, and a good soldier, that it was better to fall into the hands of God than into the hands of men. Being thoroughly convinced that the assumed right of Parliament is ill-founded, that her claim is usurpation, or exercised power, tyranny, and cruelty, we bottom on the unshaken rock of eternal truth, in defence of our own rights, the rights of humanity, and the rights of heaven. Let this prepare us for every hazardous and manly achievement. Reason, self-preservation points out the way, and a consciousness of rectitude ought to supply us with ardour, resolution, and fortitude. The calls of the community, the business of the day, is level to every man's eye. Our rights are invaded; they must be defended. The heavy stroke of Ministerial vengeance, which is aimed at our vitals, must be repelled, although, in its rebound, it should plunge Great Britain into the vast ocean of her own misconduct. The dispute is become too serious to think of temporizing accommodations or partial contracted negotiations. The exigencies of the times require something bold, something decisive. Mysteries and unintelligible refinement may amuse the curious, secure a party, or conceal a tyrant. Interest and faction may be their advocates; honour and honesty despise them.

There are those who solace themselves in the pleasing expectation that Great Britain will reverse her measures, and meet us again upon equitable terms; an expectation irrational in itself, and dangerous to the community. It is with bodies as with individuals: their past behaviour is the best security for their future conduct. The Ministry, however weak, narrow, and unstable in their means, have been, like the needle to the pole, fixed upon their favourite end. The entire subjugation of all America is their object. This must be attempted, at all adventures, say the Ministry, and the Commons echo back the humane sentiment. Nothing but a feeling conviction, from fatal experience of its utter impracticability, will ever divert King, Lords, or Commons, from the shameful pursuit. Deaf to the dictates of true policy, to the voice of prudence, the cries of humanity, and the schemes of the experienced statesman, to the reasoning of the wise, and the tongues of the eloquent, unsheathed daggers, fire and force, guns and swords, are their reasoning topicks.

Whoever dreams of settling the controversy, of recovering our injured rights, and defending our Country, on beds of down or in the garden of pleasure, may awake in melancholy disappointment. A restoration of our envied liberties, and the barriers against subsequent encroachments and usurpations, cannot be erected but by those exertions of understanding and integrity, those struggles of an undaunted and vigorous spirit, which have adorned the annals of old time, and may transmit to future periods a theme of admiration and just applause. A contempt of luxury, indolence, and private emolument, love to our fellow-mortals, publick spirit, and a persevering patience in hardships, dangers, and fatigues, are necessary for the mighty occasion. Infernal policy and the mighty of the earth are in array against us. The subtlest heads, and the most obstinate and incorrigible hearts, have joined the confederacy. Americans, stung with disappointment, minds reeking with malice, and souls black with revenge and the worst of passions, influence the process, and, with the importunity of a Hutchinson, call for vengeance, havoc, and desolation. Let us not court deception, or become dupes to a fond, ill-founded hope. Let us anticipate their power, consider their motives, and weigh their principles. Let us expect the conflict to be fierce and vigorous, the struggle long and expensive. Fortify for the event; prepare for the trial. Rise in spirit and resolution in proportion to the importance of the object. Hazard of life and fortune is not an equivalent for the extirpation of tyranny, the re-establishment of freedom and its attendant blessings. I repeat it, an imagination that the Ministry will slacken their pace, or halt in their career, from the sentiments of humanity, the checks of national interest, or the rebukes of their own consciences, is idle and dangerous. Considerations of future happiness, national felicity, and distant dangers, do not affect the callous hearts of court favourites, the creatures of venality, who live by the hour, and are warm in the pursuit of fortunes, rapine, and plunder. Removed from personal danger, they plot with security, and send forth their banded mercenaries to execute their hazardous projects. Necessity alone will make them retreat. A spirited opposition, on the part of America, must beget this necessity. In reply to British petitions, for redress of American grievances, says one in the Cabinet: "I do not doubt but the petitioners are aggrieved. I do not doubt but they labour under great and singular distresses. I do not doubt but every degree of men—the landed gentleman, the merchant, the manufacturer, and the mechanick—would all heavily feel, in their several situations, the threatened calamities. Nay, I do not promise certain success from present measures. The Army may proceed to hostilities; they may be defeated. The Americans may prevail. We may be stripped of the sovereignty of that Country; but what of that? (with marble apathy, says the Westminster demon.) The events of war are uncertain. The question is, allowing all the inconveniences, as set forth in the petitions, to be precisely just, and taking into full contemplation every possible contingency that human foresight and prudence can suggest, whether we should relinquish our rights, or resolve, at all events, resolutely to persist in their assertion. It is utterly impossible to say one syllable on the matter of expediency, till the right is first as fully asserted on one side, as acknowledged on the other."

What have we to expect? What not to fear, when the political pendulum is vibrated, and the reins of government guided by men possessing such principles?—artificially headstrong; determined to plunge a whole Kingdom into wretchedness, for the formal establishment of that which she might ever realize, as to all its valuable purposes, with pacifick facility. An experienced statesman would comprehend measures and their consequences. Actions, independent of their tendency, are like substances stripped of their essential qualities. That cannot be justifiable which is inexpedient, nor that expedient from which many bad and no good consequences can result. But this glorious advocate for servility has declared it impossible to attend to that alone which demands attention, until the right is established, "at all events," and then his question of expediency comes too late.

Certainly, then, it is not to the King, or his prostituted Court, that we are to look for security. Under a kind Providence, the strength of our arms, and our own bodies, must form the line of protection. Miracles are not to be expected. Heaven proceeds in the use of means. We are not to look for a dividing sea to swallow up an hostile fleet, or for hail-stones, from above, to humble the pride of an opposing power. The means of safety are in our own hands. Our internal resources are inexhaustible. Our natural strength, if fully and uniformly exerted, invincible. Our numbers sufficient; our bodies hardy and vigorous. Our union such as to quell the proudest Ministers and baffle the efforts of the greatest Jesuit to break it. Our courage and our discipline continually increasing, while a sense of indignities is still trickling in our veins, and the lash of oppression sharpening the edge of our spirits. Our all is at stake, and, in defence of our all, every thing is to be risked, forced, and attempted.

Worcester, Massachusetts, October 27, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BURGH OF RENFREW.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of Renfrew, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Lord Frederick Campbell, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the Burgh of Renfrew, with the warmest affection and utmost humility, beg leave to declare our entire satisfaction with your Majesty's mild and just Government.

When the greatest part of your Majesty's Colonies in America are in actual rebellion, stirred up by some restless and seditious spirits among themselves, who have imposed on the people, and, under the pretence of liberty, have, in a manner, abolished all liberty and lawful government; and while they are unnaturally aided and abetted by a disappointed faction at home, we think it our duty to declare our abhorrence of these proceedings, and that we are ready to lay our lives and fortunes at your Majesty's feet, to support your just right, and the authority of your Parliament over America.

Signed in our name, in our presence, and at our appointment, by JOHN PATERSON, Provost.

Renfrew, October 28, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF DUMFRIES.

Address of the Magistrates, Common Council, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Town of Dumfries, presented to His Majesty by William Douglas, Esq., their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Magistrates, Common Council, Burgesses, and Inhabitants of the Town of Dumfries, deeply impressed with a sense of the ingratitude of a number of the inhabitants of your Majesty's Dominions in America, both towards your Majesty and the Mother Country, humbly beg leave to assure your Majesty of our firm attachment to your Majesty, and utter abhorrence and detestation of those treasonable seditions that have of late been raised in that part of your Majesty's Dominions.

Persuaded, as we are, that those commercial purposes, to which your Majesty's Colonies in America owe their original, can never be answered but by maintaining a proper dependance of those Colonies on the Mother Country, and vigorously asserting the authority of the Legislature when resisted or contemned by the Colonists, nothing that is in our power to contribute shall be wanting, to aid and assist your Majesty in following out such measures as may be most effectual for asserting the honour and dignity of your crown, and the supremacy of the British Legislature, over every part of the British Empire.

Attached, as we have ever been, to the principles of the glorious revolution, and the succession of your Majesty's illustrious House, we cannot, without the utmost concern, perceive any of your Majesty's subjects acting upon principles subversive of that Constitution which has, since the succession of your Majesty's family, secured to us the most inestimable of all blessings—liberty and pure religion. And as it becomes every British subject to set life and fortune at nought, when these, or the Constitution by which they are secured, are attacked, should it be necessary for us to hazard both on the present occasion, we trust that we shall not be found backward to sacrifice them, to maintain the Constitution in the same state it has been handed down to us by our ancestors.

That your Majesty may be long preserved to reign over a free and united people, and that the British Empire may be transmitted undivided to your Majesty's royal issue, to latest posterity, is the sincere and ardent wish of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects.

Dumfries, October 28, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF HELLESTON.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, Freemen, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough of Helleston, in the County of Cornwall, transmitted to the Earl of Rockford, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, Freemen, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough of Helleston, in the County of Cornwall, most humbly beg leave to approach the throne, and, uninfluenced by any other motives than those of duty and loyalty to our Sovereign, to declare our utmost abhorrence and detestation of the unnatural rebellion which some of your Majesty's Provinces in North-America have lately entered into, fomented by the arts of evil and designing men, and to testify to your Majesty our entire approbation of and confidence in those measures which are pursuing for bringing these deluded people to a return of their duty; for which purpose, we, amidst the rest of our loyal fellow-subjects, do hereby make a tender of our faithful services to your Majesty.

Given under our hands and the common seal of the said Borough, this twenty-eighth day of October, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF BRECHINE.

Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of the City of Brechine, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of the City of BRECHINE, in Common Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Magistrates and Town Council of the City of Brechine, beg leave to approach your royal throne, as well from duty as from a sincere attachment to your Majesty's person and Government, at a time when rebellion, among some of your Majesty's subjects in America, rears its head, and bids defiance to the laws; to express our loyalty and attachment to your Majesty's person, family, and Government; and to assure your Majesty, that, from the bottom of our hearts, we abhor and detest the rebellious acts of your Colonists; and that we utterly disapprove of every method whatever, tending to inflame the minds of your Majesty's peaceful subjects against your Majesty, and those of your most honourable Council, while prosecuting measures so highly necessary for bringing to reason and submission to the laws those of your rebellious and deluded subjects who have endeavoured to throw off their dependance on the Parent State.

We beg leave to assure your Majesty, with the most unfeigned truth, that we look upon those attempts with the utmost indignation; and most earnestly wish that the measures adopted by the Legislature may, by the aid of the Almighty, be the speedy means of restoring tranquillity, and putting an end to civil discord: for obtaining of which happy end, we will support your Majesty, and the authority of the Legislature, with our lives and fortunes.

That your Majesty and your royal heirs may reign to latest posterity, over an united and happy people, is our most ardent wish.

May it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Magistrates and Town Council of your City of Brechine.

Signed in our name and by our appointment, and the seal of the City is affixed.

JOHN MOLISON, Provost.

Brechine, October 28, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF LEEDS.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of Leeds, in the County of York, presented to His Majesty by Edwin Lascelles, Esq., one of the Representatives in Parliament for the County of York.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and Burgesses of the Borough of LEEDS, in the County of YORK.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, beg leave (as we think it our indispensable duty at this time) to approach the throne, and with the utmost zeal and sincerity to declare our grateful and affectionate attachment to your royal person and family.

Convinced of your Majesty's great regard for the glorious Constitution of this Country, and the real happiness of all your subjects, permit us to assure your Majesty, that we shall at all times be ready to join in supporting the rights and authorities of the British Legislature and the just prerogatives of the Crown.

It is with very great concern we observe that our fellow-subjects in America disclaim all obedience to the laws of their Mother Country; but whatever sorrow or compassion we may feel for those misguided people, we think it not only our duty, but our interest, to afford every assistance in our power towards reducing them to due subjection, however disagreeable the means necessary to be used for that purpose may be; and your Majesty may rest assured that we shall at all times persevere in supporting such measures as may be thought necessary for ascertaining and maintaining the legislative authority of this Kingdom, and reducing your Majesty's rebellious subjects to proper obedience.

Given under our common seal, this twenty-eighth day of October, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

By the Court:

THOMAS BARSTOW, JUN., Common Clerk.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE BOROUGH OF LEEDS.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Freeholders, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough and neighbourhood of Leeds, in the County of York, presented to His Majesty by Edwin Lascelles, Esquire, one of the Representatives in Parliament for the County of York.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Freeholders, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough and neighbourhood of LEEDS, in the County of YORK.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, humbly beg leave to approach your throne, to testify our grateful acknowledgments for the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's auspicious Government, to the gentleness and mildness of which we owe the rapid increase of our manufactures, giving full employ to all our poor, even at advanced wages; and to the protection therefrom derived, attribute the extension of our commerce abroad, and the consequential flourishing situation of this populous Country.

Silence in us, therefore, would be criminal, at a time when sedition, fomented by the misrepresentations of artful, ill-designing men, working upon the minds of narrow and self-interested people, hath, in some of your Majesty's Colonies in North-America, erected the standard of rebellion—a rebellion as unnatural as unprovoked; the abettors whereof, for want of real grievances to palliate in any degree their treasonable purposes, are obliged to have recourse to speculative opinions and ideal doctrines, incompatible in practice with every form of Government.

Impelled by a grateful and just sense of the happiness we have enjoyed under your Majesty's reign, we, your Majesty's most faithful subjects, deem it a duty incumbent upon us, as good citizens, thus publicly to declare our utter abhorrence of the conduct of those traitorous and rebellious people, who are striking at the root of American liberty, which can only be preserved by due obedience to the legislative authority of Great Britain; that we sensibly feel the insult offered to the supreme authority of these realms; and with the greatest sincerity assure your Majesty that we will, to the utmost of our abilities, exert ourselves in supporting the execution of such measures as shall be found necessary to bring the Colonies to a due sense of their dependance upon the Mother Country, and a proper obedience to the laws of this Kingdom.

PROVINCIAL CONGRESS OF NEW-JERSEY.

A list of the Deputies who attended this Congress.

BERGEN: John Demarest, Jacobus Post.

ESSEX: Abraham Clark, Lewis Ogden, Samuel Potter, Caleb Camp, Robert Drummond.

MIDDLESEX: Azariah Dunham, John Dennis.

MORRIS: William Winds, William De Hart, Jacob Drake, Silas Condit, Ellis Cook.

SOMERSET: Hendrick Fisher, Cornelius Van Muliner, Ruloffe Van Dyke.

SUSSEX: William Maxwell, Ephraim Martin, Thomas Potts, Abia Brown, Mark Thompson.

MONMOUTH: Edward Taylor, John Covenhoven, Joseph Holmes.

HUNTERDON: Samuel Tucker, John Mehelm, John Hart, Charles Stewart, Augustine Stevenson.

BURLINGTON: Isaac Pearson, John Pope, Samuel How, John Wood, Joseph Newbold.

GLOUCESTER: John Cooper, Joseph Ellis, Thomas Clark, Elijah Clark, Richard Somers.

SALEM: John Holme, Edward Keasby, Benjamin Holme, John Carey.

CUMBERLAND: Theophilus Elmer, Jonathan Ayars.

CAPE-MAY: Jesse Hand.

Tuesday, October 3, 1775.

Several of the Deputies returned to serve in this Congress for the respective Counties of this Colony assembled at Trenton, pursuant to the appointment of the late Provincial Congress.

Wednesday, October 4, 1775.

The Congress again assembled, and, several other Members attending, proceeded to the election of a President and Vice-President; when Samuel Tucker, Esq., was chosen President, and Hendrick Fisher, Esq., Vice-President.

John Mehelm, Esquire, at the request of the Congress, consented to act as Secretary until a Secretary be chosen.

On motion made, Ordered, That the President do wait upon the Ministers of the Gospel in this Town, and, in the name of this Congress, request their alternate attendance and service every morning, at nine o'clock, during the session, in order that the business of the day may be opened with prayer, in the most humble manner to supplicate Almighty God, that, out of his infinite goodness and mercy, he will be pleased to influence and direct the Councils of America and Great Britain, so that peace, unanimity, and harmony, may be happily re-established between both Countries upon a permanent foundation.

The Congress was accordingly opened with prayer by the Rev. Mr. Spencer.

The Congress then proceeded to examine the Certificates of the Election of the Deputies for the several Counties in this Colony, and the following gentlemen were returned as duly elected, to wit:

BERGEN: John Demarest, Jacobus Post, Abraham Van Boskirk.

FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. III.

ESSEX: Abraham Clark, Lewis Ogden, Samuel Potter, Caleb Camp, Robert Drummond.

MIDDLESEX: John Dennis, Azariah Dunham.

MORRIS: William Winds, William De Hart, Jacob Drake, Silas Condit, Ellis Cook.

SOMERSET: Hendrick Fisher, Cornelius Van Muliner, Ruloffe Van Dyke.

SUSSEX: William Maxwell, Ephraim Martin, Thomas Potts, Abia Brown, Mark Thompson.

HUNTERDON: Samuel Tucker, John Mehelm, John Hart, Charles Stewart, Augustine Stevenson.

MONMOUTH: Edward Taylor, John Covenhoven, Joseph Holmes.

BURLINGTON: Isaac Pearson, John Pope, Samuel How, John Wood, Joseph Newbold.

GLOUCESTER: John Cooper, Joseph Ellis, Thomas Clark, Elijah Clark, Richard Somers.

SALEM: Grant Gibbon, Benjamin Holme, John Holme, Edward Keasby, John Carey.

CUMBERLAND: Theophilus Elmer, Jonathan Ayars.

CAPE-MAY: Jesse Hand, Elijah Hughes.

A Petition from twenty-four Inhabitants of the County of Monmouth, suggesting that the Deputies returned for that County were not duly elected, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Letter from the Committee of Safety of New-York to the Committee of Safety of this Colony, relative to the apprehending of Deserters from the Continental Troops, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from Daniel Maskell, of Cumberland County, praying that Commissions may issue for a Company of Minute-Men in that County, was read.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the several persons therein named.

A Letter from the Committee of the County of Morris, recommending the several persons therein named for Commissions in the Battalion of Minute-Men in that County, was read.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue accordingly.

Mr. President laid before the Congress a Letter from the Earl of Stirling, enclosing copies of some Letters lately written by his Lordship, on the subject of his having received a Commission of Colonel of a Regiment of Militia, together with the Return of his Regiment.

Ordered, That the Return be filed, and that the Letters be laid on the table for the inspection of the Members.

Sundry copies of Associations from the Township of Freehold, in Monmouth County, the Township of Hillsborough, in Somerset County, and the Township of Mansfield, in Burlington County, were read, and ordered to be filed.

A Petition from a number of Inhabitants of the Township of Nottingham, praying that the petitioners may be allowed to join Capt. Harrison's Company of Light-Infantry, in Trenton, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Thursday, October 5, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion made, Resolved, That William Paterson, Esq., be appointed Secretary to this Congress.

The Petition from Monmouth County, suggesting that the Deputies returned for that County were not duly elected, was read a second time; whereupon, on motion of Mr. Holmes, it is Ordered, That the parties be allowed a publick hearing on the prayer of this Petition on Wednesday next, at ten o'clock in the forenoon; and that the Deputies from Monmouth do acquaint the parties therewith.

The Letter from the Committee of Safety of New-York to the Committee of Safety of this Colony, respecting the apprehending of Deserters from the Continental Troops, was read a second time.

Ordered, That Mr. Fisher, Mr. Dunham, and Mr. Stewart, be a Committee to prepare the draught of a Resolution relative to the same, and make a report thereof to this Congress.

The Congress adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Friday, October 6, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

A Petition from Jonathan Williams and others, objecting to the Field-Officers of the Second Battalion of Militia for the County of Gloucester, as recommended by the County Committee, and praying that other Field-Officers may be commissioned to command that Battalion, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from a number of the Inhabitants of the County of Hunterdon, praying that Money at interest may be taxed, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A proposal from James Campbell and others, respecting the manufacturing of Fire-Arms in this Colony, was read, and ordered a second reading.

On motion made, Ordered, That Mr. Pearson, Mr. Stewart, Mr. Holmes, Mr. De Hart, and Mr. Camp, be a Committee to examine the Returns of Minute-Men and Officers, and report the same to this Congress.

On motion of Mr. Covenhoven, that Colonel Taylor be heard before this Congress, pursuant to the recommendation of the County Committee of Monmouth, upon the question, Whether, in Colonel Taylor's particular case, he might not be permitted to hold the commission of Captain and the commission of Colonel in the same Regiment, at the same time?

Ordered, That Colonel Taylor be heard immediately. Col. Taylor, having been called in, was heard; whereupon, on motion made, it is

Resolved, That the determination of this matter be postponed to a future day.

The Congress adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Saturday, October 7, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Committee appointed to examine the Returns of Minute-Officers having reported that they had examined the Muster-Rolls of Captain Hazlet, Captain Stout, and Captain Brearley, and found them agreeable to the Ordinance of the late Congress,

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the respective Officers of those three Companies.

On motion made, Resolved, That on Thursday morning next this Congress will take into consideration the following matters, to wit:

1. Whether the present state of the Provincial Fund, ordered by the late Congress, be sufficient to answer the present publick exigencies.

2. Whether any and what further Provincial Fund is necessary. And,

3. The ways and means to erect such Fund.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Congress resumed the consideration of Colonel Taylor's case; and, after debating the same,

Resolved, unanimously, That no Officer in the Militia service in this Colony be permitted to hold two commissions at the same time.

On motion made, Resolved, unanimously, That no one person shall hold commissions under the Minute and Militia Ordinances at the same time.

The Congress adjourned until Monday morning next, ten o'clock.

Monday, October 9, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Two Petitions from the Inhabitants of the County of Sussex, signed by a great number of persons, and praying that all who pay taxes may be admitted to vote with the freeholders, at future elections for Deputies to serve in Congress, were read, and ordered a second reading.

Five Petitions from other Inhabitants of the County of Sussex, signed by a number of persons, and praying that all suits at law for the recovery of debts already commenced, or to be commenced, may be suspended, upon certain conditions, until the dispute between Great Britain and the Colonies shall be settled, were read, and ordered a second reading.

On motion made, Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the Officers of the Third Company of Foot of the Township of Acquanuck.

On motion made, Resolved, That Mr. Hart, Mr. Dennis, Mr. Demarest, Mr. Van Dyke, Mr. Winds, Mr. Martin, Mr. Elijah Clark, Mr. Hand, Mr. Carey, Mr. Elmer, Mr. Newbold, Mr. Taylor, and Mr. Potter, be a Committee to prepare an estimate of the expense necessary to put this Colony into a posture of defence at this time, and to make report thereof to this Congress on Thursday morning next.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Dunham having informed this Congress that he had seen Mr. Paterson, who had acquainted him that his business and circumstances would by no means admit of his officiating as Secretary,

The Congress proceeded to the choice of a Secretary; when John Carey, Esq., was unanimously chosen Secretary, and Abraham Clark and Charles Stewart, Esquires, Assistant Secretaries.

A Petition from sundry Inhabitants of the County of Gloucester, praying that some mode may be adopted to compel the payment of the Ten Thousand Pound Tax from those in that County who have refused to pay the same, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Petition from Jonathan Williams and others, of Gloucester County, relative to the appointment of Field-Officers for the Second Battalion of Militia in that County, was read a second time; and the recommendation of the County Committee of Gloucester having likewise been read, and the prayer of the said Petition having been duly considered,

Resolved, unanimously, That Commissions do issue to the gentlemen recommended by the County Committee as proper persons for the Officers of the three Battalions in that County.

The Congress adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, October 10, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion made, Ordered, That Mr. Fisher, Mr. Abraham Clark, and Mr. Dennis, be a Committee to inspect the Minutes of the late Congress and Committee of Safety; and that they make report of such business as stands referred to the consideration of this Congress.

A Petition from sundry Inhabitants of Morris County, praying this Congress to appoint Field-Officers for the lower Regiment of Militia for the said County, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, October 11, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Petition from Morris County, praying this Congress to appoint Field-Officers, &c., was read a second time; and Captain Bates attending at the door, and desiring to be heard in support of this Petition,

Resolved, That Captain Bates be heard relative to the prayer of the said Petition.

And Captain Bates having been heard accordingly, and the Congress having debated the same,

Resolved, That this Congress think it is most expedient to wait for further information before they proceed to the appointment of Officers; and that the Captains and Subalterns of the said Regiment be directed to recommend proper persons for Field-Officers; such recommendation to be certified by the Chairman of the County Committee.

A Petition from Stephen Burrows, relative to the making of Cartouch-Boxes, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from the Committee of Amwell, praying that the Third Regiment of the Militia of Hunterdon County may continue, but that the commissions of the Field-Officers be vacated, and that the Captains and Subalterns may be allowed to choose Field-Officers, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from a number of the Inhabitants of the lower part of Amwell, praying that the Third Regiment, in the County of Hunterdon, may be united to the First Regiment, commanded by Colonel Smith, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from the Inhabitants of the upper part of Amwell, praying that, if any alteration be made in the Third Regiment of the Militia of Hunterdon, the petitioners may be united to the Fourth Regiment, and not to the First Regiment, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from Captain Inlay and Captain Gray, praying that the Field-Officers of the Third Regiment of Militia of Hunterdon may be continued, was read, and ordered a second reading.

On motion made, Ordered, That Mr. Fisher, Mr. Abraham Clark, Mr. Dennis, Mr. Stewart, and Mr. Ellis, be a Committee to prepare the draught of an Ordinance for the further regulating of the Militia of this Colony, and make report thereof to this Congress.

This Congress having received information that a few days since a small Vessel, supposed to be a tender to some Man-of-War, was taken near Barnegat, with three persons on board; and this information appearing to be true, this Congress think it proper that the said Vessel be detained for the present, and that the persons taken on board be secured in some safe place in the County of Monmouth, until this Congress can obtain satisfactory information respecting those persons, their business and destination. And this Congress request the Committee of Monmouth to make diligent inquiry into the above matter, and to report to this Congress whatever discovery they may be able to obtain, of which the Secretary is ordered to give the said Committee notice.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Petition from the County of Monmouth, suggesting that the Deputies returned for that County were not duly elected, and praying that the late election may be vacated, and a new one granted; and the parties for and against the Petition attending, were called in and heard, pursuant to the order of the day; and desiring a further hearing thereon,

The Congress adjourned to four o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Congress resumed the further consideration of the Petition from Monmouth, respecting the election of Deputies; and the parties again attending, were called in and heard, and then withdrew.

The Deputies from Monmouth having desired leave to withdraw during the debate,

Ordered, That leave be granted; and the Deputies withdrew accordingly.

Whereupon, after debating the question, on motion made,

Resolved, That the determination of the question be postponed until to-morrow morning.

The Congress adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Thursday, October 12, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Petition from Monmouth County, relative to the election of Deputies; and, after debating the same, the question being put, whether the election was regular or not, it passed in the affirmative.

YEAS.	NAYS.
Bergen County,	Burlington County,
Middlesex "	Gloucester "
Somerset "	Essex "
Morris "
Sussex "
Hunterdon "
Salem "
Cumberland "
Cape-May "

Ordered, That the Deputies from Monmouth County be called in, and that they take their seats.

The Committee appointed to prepare the draught of a Resolution for apprehending of Deserters from the Continental Troops, reported a draught of such Resolution, which was read, and ordered a second reading.

Mr. Hart, from the Committee appointed to prepare an estimate of the expense necessary to put this Colony into a state of defence, reported the draught of such an estimate, which was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Petition from the Committee of Hackensack, recommending Militia Officers for that Precinct, was read, and ordered a second reading.

On motion made,

Resolved, That the question relative to the state of the Provincial Fund be postponed till the afternoon, to be then taken into consideration.

The Petition from the Committee of Hackensack, recommending Militia Officers for that Precinct, was read a second time.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue, pursuant to the prayer of the said Petition.

A Petition from the Township of Kingwood, and a Petition from the Township of Alexandria, in the County of Hunterdon, praying that Householders and others, not Freeholders, who pay their proportion of Taxes in this Colony, may be admitted to vote for Deputies to serve in Provincial Congress at future elections, were read, and ordered a second reading.

Two other Petitions, from the Townships of Greenwich and Mansfield Woodhouse, in the County of Sussex, both of the same purport as above, were also read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from the Officers of the United Regiment of Freehold and Middletown, praying that the Officers therein named may be commissioned, was read.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue accordingly.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Pursuant to the Order of the Day, the Congress resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, and chose Mr. Fisher Chairman, upon the estimate of the expense necessary to put this Colony into a state of defence at this time, and also upon the ways and means necessary to be adopted to provide a sufficient fund to defray that expense; and, after some time spent therein, Mr. President resumed the chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported that the Committee had made some progress in the business to them referred, and desired leave to sit again; to which the Congress agreed.

A Letter from James Kinsey and William Livingston, Esquires, two of the Members of the Continental Congress, recommending to the consideration of this Congress to raise two Battalions in this Colony immediately, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Congress adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Friday, October 13, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The following Letter from the President of the Continental Congress, enclosing the Minutes of that House as to the raising of two Battalions in this Colony immediately, and also forty-eight blank Commissions for the Captains and Subaltern Officers, was laid before this Congress; and the Letter and Minutes were read, and ordered a second reading.

"Philadelphia, October 12, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Some late intelligence, laid before Congress, seems to render it absolutely necessary, for the protection of our liberties and safety of our lives, to raise several new Battalions, and therefore the Congress have come into the enclosed resolutions, which I am ordered to transmit to you. The Congress have the firmest confidence that, from your experienced zeal in this great cause, you will exert your utmost endeavours to carry the said resolutions into execution with all possible expedition.

"The Congress have agreed to furnish the men with a hunting-shirt, not exceeding the value of one dollar and one-third of a dollar, and a blanket, provided these can be procured; but these are not to be made part of the terms of enlistment.

"I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"To the Members of the Convention of New-Jersey.

"P. S. By order of Congress, I forward you forty-eight commissions for the Captains and subaltern officers in the New-Jersey Battalions."

"In Congress, Monday, October 9, 1775.

"On motion made,

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the Convention of New-Jersey, that they immediately raise, at the expense of the Continent, two Battalions, consisting of eight Companies, each Company of sixty-eight Privates, and officered with one Captain, one Lieutenant, one Ensign, four Sergeants, and four Corporals.

"That the Privates be enlisted for a year, at the rate of five Dollars per calendar month, liable to be discharged at any time, on allowing them one month's pay extraordinary.

"That each of the Privates be allowed, instead of a bounty, a felt Hat, a pair of yarn Stockings, and a pair of Shoes; the men to find their own Arms.

"That the pay of the Officers, for the present, be the same as that of the Officers in the present Continental Army; and in case the pay of the Officers in the present Continental Army is augmented, the pay of the Officers in these Battalions shall be in like manner augmented, from the time of their engaging in the service.

"October 12, 1775.

"Resolved, That each Captain and other Commissioned Officer, while in the recruiting service of this Continent, or on their march to join the Army, shall be allowed two Dollars and two-thirds of a Dollar per week, for their subsistence; and that the men who enlist shall, each of them, whilst in quarters, be allowed one Dollar per week, and one Dollar and one-third of a Dollar when on their march to join the Army for the same purpose.

"That the President transmit to the Convention of New-Jersey blank Commissions, to be filled up by the said Convention, to the Captains and subaltern Officers in the said two Battalions; and that the appointment of the Field-Officers be, for the present, suspended, until the Congress shall take order on that matter.

"The form of the enlistment to be in the following words:

"I, . . . , have this day voluntarily enlisted myself, as a Soldier in the American Continental Army, for one year, unless sooner discharged, and do bind myself to conform, in all instances, to such rules and regulations as are or shall be established for the government of the said Army.

"A true copy from the Minutes.

"CHAS. THOMSON, Secretary.

"By order of the Congress.

"JOHN HANCOCK, President."

A Memorial from Jonathan D. Sergeant, Esq., Treasurer to the late Congress, with a report of his proceedings, were read, and ordered a second reading.

A Letter from the Chairman of the Committee of Safety of Pennsylvania, enclosing two Letters, said to have been written by the Rev. Mr. Jonathan Odell, of Burlington, to certain persons in Great Britain, and referring the consideration of the said Letters to this Congress, was laid before the Congress, and the several Letters were read, and ordered a second reading.

A Memorial from the Rev. Mr. Odell, praying that this Congress will be pleased to appoint an hour for his being heard this day, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A motion was made by Mr. Mehelm, that this Congress do, in general, keep their doors open; and, on the question being put, it passed in the negative.

On motion made,

Ordered, That the several Associations, with the lists of such persons as have not associated, returned to this Congress, be filed for the inspection of the Deputies.

A Petition from the Freeholders of Hackensack, objecting to the election of the Committee of that Precinct, and referring the merits of that election to this Congress, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from a number of the Freeholders of the Precinct of Hackensack, praying that the said election may be confirmed, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Letter from the Continental Congress, recommending two Battalions to be immediately raised in this Colony; and, after some time spent therein, Ordered, That Mr. Fisher, Mr. Ogden, Mr. Abraham Clark, and Mr. Stewart, be a Committee to prepare the draught of an answer, and to report the same this afternoon.

The Letter from the Committee of Safety of Pennsylvania, with the Letters of the Rev. Mr. Odell sent therewith, and also the Memorial of Mr. Odell, desiring to be heard respecting the above Letters, were all read a second time; and, Mr. Odell attending, Ordered, That Mr. Odell hath leave to return to his house at present, upon his parole of honour to attend this Congress on Tuesday next, at three o'clock, in the afternoon.

The Committee appointed to examine the Muster-Roll of Minute Officers reported, that they had inspected those of Captain Toubrook, Captain Shaw, and Captain Anderson, and recommend that their Commissions be granted.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue accordingly to the Officers of those Companies.

The Congress adjourned till three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Several Memorials having been presented to this Congress, from gentlemen who offer themselves for commissions in the two Battalions expected to be raised in this Colony, it is Ordered, That all such Memorials as already have or hereafter may be received on this subject, be filed, until this Congress shall have come to a determination as to the raising of those Battalions, and then to be taken into consideration.

The Committee appointed to prepare the draught of an answer to the Letter from the Continental Congress, reported a draught, which was read, and ordered to be engrossed.

The following engrossed answer, to the Letter from the Continental Congress, was read and approved, and ordered to be signed by the President and despatched immediately.

Trenton, October 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress of New-Jersey, animated with equal affection to the common cause of America, and equally with the other Provinces desirous to promote its general interest, as far as in their power, are sorry to find their good intentions likely to be restrained by one of the resolutions of the honourable Continental Congress of the 12th instant, obligingly communicated to us by their President.

We cannot but observe, that if the nomination of the Field-Officers of the Battalions, proposed to be raised in this Province, be not first ascertained to be in this Congress, it will much impede the expeditious raising the men. And we are clearly of opinion that it will tend much to expedite this service, if Field-Officers are first of all appointed; for if they are such as are generally respected in the Province, not only Captains and subalterns of reputation will offer their service, but the privates will enlist more cheerfully; indeed, the other commissions cannot, perhaps, be properly filled up, without inserting in what Battalion the officers are to serve.

We also humbly conceive that, as other Provinces have been indulged with this privilege, we cannot, in justice to our constituents, nor consistent with the honour of our Province, give up this claim.

We have no doubt, therefore, but that the honourable Continental Congress will reconsider this resolution, and determine that this Province ought neither to be precluded a privilege granted to every other Province, nor restrained in their endeavours to promote the general interest of America; in such case, we beg leave to assure them that this Congress will exert all its influence in promoting the raising the proposed levies; and we have the pleasure to add, that we have reason to hope they will be attended with the desired success.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient servants.

By order of the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey.

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

The Members of the Honourable the Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

On motion made, the Congress resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon the estimate of the expense necessary to put this Colony into a state of defence at this time, and, also, upon the ways and means necessary to be adopted to provide a sufficient fund to defray that expense; and, after some time spent therein, Mr. President resumed the chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported, that the Committee had made some further progress in the matters to them referred, and desired leave to sit again on Thursday next: to which the Congress agreed.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

— Saturday, October 14, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Petition from the Freeholders of Hackensack, complaining of an undue election of the Committee of that Precinct, and, also, the Petition from others, Freeholders of Hackensack, praying that the said election may be confirmed, were both read a second time; and, after hearing the sundry evidence on both sides, and deliberating thereon,

Resolved, unanimously, That the election of the Committee, for the Precinct of Hackensack, be confirmed.

The Certificate from the Committee of the County of Bergen, of Field-Officers chosen for the Regiment of Militia in that County, was read.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the several Officers therein named.

Whereas, from the peculiar circumstances of the County of Morris, a debt of about one hundred and eighty Pounds hath accrued in the raising of Minute-Men in May last, on the alarming account of the battle of Lexington; and it being thought to be right and just that the same should be discharged, it is, therefore, recommended to the Committee of the County of Morris, to pay the same out of their part or proportion of the Ten Thousand Pound Tax, levied on the inhabitants of that County in virtue of an Ordinance of the late Congress: provided, that this payment be not considered as paid, or ordered to be paid, at the general expense of the Colony.

On motion made,

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the several Officers of the Regiment of Militia in the County of Bergen, whose names are mentioned in the Certificate signed by the Clerk of the County Committee.

On motion made,

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the several Field-Officers of the Regiment of Militia of Cape-May, whose names are mentioned in the Certificate of the County Committee.

On motion made,

Ordered, That Mr. Cooper, Mr. Mehelm, Mr. De Hart, and Mr. Carey, be a Committee to prepare the draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, and report the same this afternoon.

The Congress adjourned till four o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Committee appointed to prepare the draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, reported such draught, which was read the first and second time, and ordered to be engrossed.

The following engrossed Letter to the Continental Congress was read, approved, and ordered to be signed by the President and despatched immediately:

In Provincial Congress, Trenton, October 14, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: This Congress finding that, in order to enable them to provide a sufficient quantity of arms and ammunition, and such other articles as are essentially necessary to enforce the operations of the present glorious struggle for liberty, a very considerable fund must at all events be immediately raised; and as this Congress, in all cases of importance, think it necessary that they should have some knowledge of the sentiments of the Continental Congress, I am directed to apply to your House, and to inquire whether it is consistent with the measures the Continental Congress have adopted, to let any of the Provinces have the use of such a sum of the Continental currency as may be sufficient to answer their particular exigencies, upon the faith of such Province; and, if so, what sum the Continental Congress can spare, and upon what terms, for the use of New-Jersey at this time.

Anxiously desirous of rendering every possible assistance to the common cause, this Congress have it before them to make provision sufficient to enable them, at least, to raise four thousand Minute-Men, to take the field on any emergency; but as it is uncertain what provision the Continental Congress may have thought proper to make for such Minute-Men, if called into actual service, I am likewise directed to apply to you for information in this respect.

This Congress beg the favour of an answer as soon as possible. By order of Congress.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

To the Members of the Honourable the Continental Congress, now sitting at Philadelphia.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, on Monday morning.

— Monday, October 16, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion made,

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the several Officers of the Battalion of Minute-Men, in the County of Morris, whose names are mentioned in the Certificate of the County Committee, in the order and of the dates as set forth in the Certificate.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

— Tuesday, October 17, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Committee appointed to prepare the draught of a Resolution respecting the apprehending of Deserters from the Continental Troops, reported the following draught; which was read, passed, and ordered to be engrossed:

1. Resolved, That when information shall be made, to any Member of any County or Town Committee in this Colony, of any Deserters from the Continental Army being found lurking in such County or Town, any Member of such Town or County Committee shall be, and he is hereby authorized to issue his order to the Captain or commanding officer of any Company of Minute or Militia men in such Town or County, requiring him to send one or more men of his Company to search for and to apprehend such Deserter, and, when apprehended, to confine him in some safe place until he can be conveniently conducted to the Army; provided, always, that if any person or persons, so apprehended as aforesaid, shall deny his or their being a Deserter or Deserters, the Chairman or Deputy-Chairman of such Town Committee do immediately convene such Town Committee, to hear and determine the same.

2. Resolved, That all reasonable expenses of apprehending and conducting any such Deserter or Deserters as aforesaid, and allowed by any County Committee, shall be paid out of any publick moneys in the hands of the Treasurer or Collector of such County; and that such County Committee do transmit the accounts of such disbursements to this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, to be laid before the Continental Congress for reimbursement.

3. Resolved, That the Inhabitants of this Colony, in general, be desired to exert themselves in causing such Deserter or Deserters to be apprehended; and that any thing contained in the above Resolutions shall not be construed to preclude any such Inhabitant from apprehending such Deserters, without waiting for an order from any Member of such Town or County Committee as aforesaid.

The Petition from the Township of Nottingham, praying that the petitioners may be permitted to join the Light-Infantry Company at Trenton, was read a second time, and referred to future consideration.

The Petition from the County of Gloucester, praying that some mode may be adopted to compel the payment of the Ten Thousand Pound Tax, from such persons as have refused to pay the same, was read a second time.

Ordered, That Mr. Hart, Mr. Ogden, Mr. De Hart, Mr. Pearson, and Mr. Dunham, be a Committee to prepare the draught of an Ordinance for that purpose, and report the same to this Congress.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Pursuant to the Order of the Day, the Congress resumed the Letter of the Committee of Safety of Pennsylvania, the Letters said to be written by the Rev. Mr. Odell, and Mr. Odell's Memorial; and Mr. Odell attending, was called in and heard, and then ordered to withdraw. Whereupon, after deliberating thereon, the Previous Question being put, that the determination of Mr. Odell's case be postponed till to-morrow morning,

Resolved, That the same be postponed accordingly.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Wednesday, October 18, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Report from the Committee of the County of Monmouth, relative to the detention of a small Sloop, supposed to be a tender to some Ship-of-War, &c., with the several examinations respecting that matter, were read.

Resolved, That it be recommended to that Committee to publish an Advertisement in the Newspapers, describing the Sloop, so that the owner may know where to apply; and that the Men and Arms, found on board the said Sloop, be taken proper care of by that Committee, until this Congress, or the Committee of Safety, shall give further order therein.

The Congress resumed the consideration of Mr. Odell's case; and, having deliberated thereon, are of opinion, that it appears, from the general purport of Mr. Odell's Letter, that he disapproves of, and is in principle opposed to, the measures of defence adopted by the Continent, to prevent the oppressive designs of the British Ministry; but, as this Congress would by no means violate the right of private sentiment, and as Mr. Odell's Letter does not clearly appear to have been intended to influence publick measures, and as some degree of ambiguity is contained in several parts thereof, this Congress do therefore decline passing any publick censure against him.

The Congress adjourned till three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

On motion made,

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the Officers of Captain Sweetwood's Company, in Colonel Taylor's Regiment of Militia, in Monmouth County.

The Petition from Amwell, praying that the Third Regiment of Militia, in Hunterdon County, may be joined to the First; the Petition from the upper part of Amwell, praying that if any alteration be made in the Third Regiment, the petitioners may be joined to the Fourth Regiment in the said County; the Petition from the Committee of Amwell, and, also, the Petition of Captain Imlay and Captain Gray, respecting the Third Regiment of Hunterdon, were all read a second time; and the Congress having duly considered the prayer of the several Petitions,

Resolved, unanimously, That the appointment of Field-Officers, for the Third Regiment of Militia, for the County of Hunterdon, be confirmed, and that the several Regiments continue as directed by the late Congress.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Thursday, October 19, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Petition from Nottingham, praying that the petitioners may be admitted to join the Light-Infantry Company at Trenton; and, on the question being put,

Resolved, That the prayer of the Petition be granted to such persons as reside in the Village of Kingsborough.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

A Petition from sundry Inhabitants and Freeholders of Trenton, and parts adjacent, praying that Householders may be admitted to vote at future elections, and that such elections be carried on by ballot, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Committee appointed to prepare the draught of an Ordinance for the further regulation of the Militia of this Colony, reported a draught of the same; which was read, and ordered a second reading.

Pursuant to the Order of the Day, the Congress resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon the estimate of the expense necessary to put this Colony into a state of defence at this time; and also upon the ways and means necessary to be adopted to provide a sufficient Fund to defray that expense; and, after some time spent therein, Mr. President resumed the chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported, that the Committee had made some further progress in the matters referred to them, and desired leave to sit again; to which the Congress agreed.

The several Petitions from the County of Sussex, praying a suspension of Law Suits, upon certain conditions, were read a second time; and, after deliberating thereon,

Ordered, That the further consideration of the prayer of the said Petitions be postponed to a future session.

A Petition from the Farmers of Essex, praying that Money at interest, Lawyers, &c., may be taxed, was read, and ordered a second reading.

On motion made, Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the Field-Officers of the Northern Battalion of the Regiment of Militia of the County of Essex.

On motion made, The Congress resolved, unanimously, That a Commission of First Brigadier-General of the Militia Forces of this Colony do issue to Philemon Dickerson, Esq.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Friday, October 20, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Certificate of the election of Officers of the several Companies of Militia in the Township of Freehold, was read.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the several Officers therein named.

The Certificate of the election of Field-Officers for the Battalion of Minute-Men, for the County of Monmouth, was read.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the Officers therein named.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Congress resumed the consideration of the Ordinance for the further regulation of the Militia Forces of this Colony; and, after some time spent therein,

Ordered, That the said Ordinance be committed to Mr. Stewart, Mr. De Hart, Mr. Ellis, Mr. Pope, and Mr. Brown, who are to report their proceedings thereon.

The Certificate of the election of Field-Officers for the First Regiment of Sussex County, was read.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the Officers therein named.

The several Petitions from Hunterdon and Sussex, praying that Householders may be permitted to vote at future elections of Deputies to serve in Congress, were read a second time; and, after some time spent therein,

On motion made, Resolved, That the further consideration of the above Petitions be postponed until Wednesday next.

The Congress adjourned until to-morrow morning.

Saturday, October 21, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Petition from the Farmers of Essex, praying that Money at interest, Lawyers, and Mechanics, may be taxed; the recommendation of the Committee of Newark thereon; and the Petition from Hunterdon County, praying that Money at interest may be taxed; were all read a second time, and referred to further consideration, when this Congress shall find it necessary to raise Taxes in this Colony.

On motion made, Resolved, That this Congress will take up the further consideration of the estimate of expenses, and the Provincial Fund, on Monday next.

On motion made, Ordered, That the following Letter be engrossed, and despatched immediately to the Continental Congress, signed by the President:

In Provincial Congress, Trenton, October 21, 1775.

SIR: Since the resolutions of the Continental Congress, for raising two Battalions in this Colony, were communicated to us, great numbers of gentlemen have applied for commissions, or warrants, to recruit; but this Congress, expecting hourly to hear from you on the subject of appointing the field-officers, have, as yet, forbore either to grant commissions or issue warrants, and therefore are very anxious to have your resolution on the subject of our letter of the 13th instant.

This Congress desire me to assure you that, from every appearance, the Battalions will speedily be completed, if your honourable House shall think proper to comply with the purport of our letter of the 13th instant.

To expedite this important service, I am to request the favour of you, Sir, to transmit to us the resolutions of the Continental Congress, by the bearer, Thomas Potts, Esq., one of our members. By order of Congress.

Your most humble servant,

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Joseph Salter, Esq., having returned his Commission of Lieutenant-Colonel of the Second Regiment of Militia, for the County of Monmouth, and desired leave to resign the same,

Resolved, unanimously, That his resignation be accepted.

The Committee appointed to prepare the draught of an Ordinance for compelling the payment of the Ten Thousand Pound Tax, from such persons as have refused to pay their quotas, reported the draught of such Ordinance; which was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Congress adjourned until Monday morning next.

Monday, October 23, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The draught of an Ordinance for compelling the payment of the Ten Thousand Pound Tax, from such persons as have refused to pay their quotas, was read a second time, paragraph by paragraph; and, after deliberating thereon,

Ordered, That the same be engrossed.

Mr. Fisher, from the Committee appointed to examine what matters were referred over to this Congress by the late Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety, reported, that an application to the late Congress to encourage the making of Saltpetre in this Colony, and some Petitions from the County of Somerset, respecting Colonel McDonald's appointment to the command of the Battalion of Minute-Men in that County, were all the matters referred to this Congress.

The Congress adjourned till three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Pursuant to the Order of the Day, the Congress resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon the estimate of the expense necessary to put this Colony into a state of defence at this time; and also upon the ways and means to provide a Fund to defray the expenses of the same; and, after some time spent therein, Mr. President resumed the chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported, that the Committee had made some further progress in the matters referred to them, and desired leave to sit again; to which the Congress agreed.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Tuesday, October 24, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

A Petition from several persons of Captain Harrison's Company of Light-Infantry, praying that the Petitioners may be indulged in continuing in that Company, notwithstanding the late Resolution of this Congress, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The following engrossed Ordinance, for compelling the payment of the Ten Thousand Pound Tax, from such persons as have refused to pay their quotas, was read, approved, and, on the question being put,

Resolved, That the same do pass.

Whereas it was resolved and directed, by an Ordinance of the late Congress, that the sum of Ten Thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money, should be apportioned and raised for the use of this Colony, and it appearing that the whole of that sum hath not been collected pursuant thereto; and whereas it is necessary, from the publick exigencies of this Colony, that the same should be collected, and that some equitable mode be ascertained for this purpose:

1. It is therefore Resolved and Directed, That the Collector of every Town and Precinct, appointed or to be appointed pursuant to the above recited Ordinance, shall and do make demand, on or before the 20th day of November next, of every person within his District, who hath neglected or refused paying the sum assessed in virtue of said Ordinance, or give notice thereof at his usual place of abode, and inform such person, or give notice as aforesaid, that if the said Assessment be not paid into the hands of the said Collector, within fifteen days after the said 20th day of November next, in such case, the name of the delinquent will be returned to the Committee of the County where such delinquent resides; and such County Committee are hereby ordered to direct their Chairman, or Deputy Chairman, to issue an order to some proper person or persons, to be by them appointed for that purpose, to make distress on the goods and chattels of the said delinquent, and make sale thereof at publick vendue, giving five days' notice thereof, by advertisement, in such Town or County, who shall pay the Assessment, for which such distress shall be made, into the hands of the said Town Collector, to be by him paid unto the Collector of the County, in the same manner as the other assessments collected by the Ordinance aforementioned are, by an order of the late Congress, directed to be paid; and the person or persons so as aforesaid appointed, or to be appointed, to distrain, after payment made, shall and may retain one Shilling and six Pence for each distress and sale: Provided always, that after payment of the sum so distrained for, and the costs of such distress, the overplus, if any, be returned to the owner or owners of the goods so distrained as aforesaid.

2. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That in case any Town Collector, or person appointed to distrain as aforesaid, shall die, neglect or refuse to do or perform the several duties in this or the Ordinance above recited enjoined, new officers for that purpose shall be appointed by the Committee of the County where such default shall happen.

3. And whereas some owners of profitable tracts of land, whereon improvements are made, may not happen to reside in the same Township or County where such land lies; and, unless some remedy be provided, it may be impracticable to recover the Assessment made on such tracts of land: It is therefore Resolved and Directed, That the goods and chattels of the Tenant, or other persons residing upon or having the care of such tracts of land, or the goods and chattels of the landlord, if there found, on his refusal or neglect to pay the said Assessment, shall be liable to be distrained and sold for payment thereof, and all charges accrued thereon; and in case the Tenant, or person having the care of the land as aforesaid, shall pay such Assessment, or his goods be distrained and sold for payment thereof, then the said Tenant shall and may deduct the Assessment so paid out of the rent agreed for.

4. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That in case any person or persons shall think him, her, or themselves aggrieved by any Assessment made in pursuance of this or the above recited Ordinance, and complaint thereof be made to the Committee of the County where such person or persons shall reside, at the next meeting after the demand of the Assessment as aforesaid hath been made, such County Committee shall and may, in such case, determine the same; and if they shall adjudge that the complainant has been unduly assessed, in the whole or in part, the Chairman or Deputy Chairman of such County Committee is hereby directed to draw an order on the Town or County Collector, as the case may require, for repayment to the complainant of so much as shall be adjudged to have been paid more than ought to have been assessed: Provided always, that no such complaint shall be heard until after payment of the Assessment complained of.

5. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That every County Collector, who shall neglect or refuse accounting with, and paying the Moneys that are or shall be received by him, in virtue of this or the Ordinance above recited, to such person or persons as directed in and by the said recited Ordinance, shall forfeit, for every such offence, the sum of twenty Pounds; and every Town Collector, who shall neglect or refuse accounting with and paying into the hands of the Collector, the Moneys that are or shall be received by him, in virtue of either of the said Ordinances above recited, when thereunto required by the Committee of the County, or shall neglect to do or perform the other duties enjoined by either of the said Ordinances, shall forfeit five Pounds for every such offence; and every person appointed to distrain as aforesaid, who shall neglect or refuse accounting with and paying into the hands of the Collector of the Town where such distress shall be made, the Moneys he shall receive in virtue of this Ordinance, when thereunto required by order of the Committee of such Town, or the County Committee, or shall neglect to do or perform the other duties enjoined him by either of the said Ordinances, shall pay forty Shillings for every such offence; and every County Committee shall direct their Chairman or Deputy Chairman to issue an order to such person or persons as they shall appoint, to make distress and sale of the goods and chattels of all such persons who neglect or refuse accounting with, or paying into the hand of such person or persons who, in virtue of this or the said recited Ordinance, are or shall be appointed to receive the same, as well for recovery of the forfeitures aforesaid, as the publick Moneys detained by them as aforesaid; and in case sufficient goods and chattels for the purposes aforesaid shall not be found, then to take the bodies of such delinquents, who shall be ordered by the Committee of the County, where such default shall happen, to be confined in such safe place as they shall appoint, until the forfeitures and Moneys detained as aforesaid, and also all the charges accrued by reason thereof, be fully paid.

6. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That all forfeitures, recovered as aforesaid, shall be laid out in such manner as the Committee of the County, where such forfeiture is incurred, shall direct.

A Memorial was presented to this Congress from Ichabod B. Barnett, Esq., of Elizabethtown, setting forth that in the month of March last he was advertised by the Committee of Elizabethtown, as inimical to the liberties of his Country, for assisting Messrs. Robert and John Murray in landing certain goods out of the Ship Beulah; that ever before, and since landing the said goods, he hath been ready and willing to render any service to his Country, on the present occasion, in his power; and that he hath in nowise contravened the publick good, except in that particular instance, for which he is heartily sorry, and prays an acquittal from his former censure; and it appearing to this Congress, that the behaviour of the said Ichabod B. Barnett, since the above transaction, hath by no means been unfriendly to the liberties of this Country, and he having manifested a suitable penitence for his behaviour in the above matter:

It is unanimously Resolved, That the Memorialist ought to be restored to the favourable regard of his Country, and he is accordingly restored to all the civil and commercial privileges which he heretofore enjoyed in this Colony.

On motion made, Ordered, That Mr. Abraham Clark and Mr. Hart be added to the Committee appointed to prepare and amend the draught of the Militia Ordinance.

The Congress adjourned until three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

A Petition from sundry Inhabitants of Middlesex County, objecting to the Field-Officers of the Regiment of Militia commanded by Colonel Wetherill, and praying leave to proceed to a new choice of Field-Officers for the said Regiment, was read, and ordered a second reading.

A Petition from sundry Inhabitants of Hunterdon County, praying that Householders may be admitted to vote at future elections for Deputies to serve in Congress, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Congress resolved itself into a Committee of the Whole House, upon the estimate of the expense necessary for the defence of this Colony at this time, and also upon the ways and means to provide a Fund to defray the expenses of the same; and, after deliberating thereon, Mr. President resumed the chair, and Mr. Fisher, Chairman of the Committee, reported, that the Committee had gone through the several matters to them referred, and had come to the Resolutions following:

1. That four thousand stand of Arms be purchased for the use of this Colony.

And on the question being put, whether the Congress doth agree to the same, it passed for three thousand stand of Arms, only, to be purchased.

2. That ten tons of Gunpowder be purchased for the use of this Colony. To which the Congress agreed.

3. That twenty tons of Lead be purchased for the use of this Colony. To which the Congress agreed.

4. That two thousand Cartouch-Boxes be purchased for the use of this Colony. Which, on the question, was reduced to one thousand only.

5. That two Medicine Chests be purchased for the use of this Colony. To which the Congress agreed.

6. That eight hundred Tents, with the necessary Furniture, Canteens, and Knapsacks, be purchased for the use of this Colony. And, on the question, it passed for four hundred Tents, with the necessary furniture, &c., to be purchased.

7. That one thousand Hunting-Shirts be purchased for the use of this Colony. Which, on the question, passed in the negative.

8. That the sum of one thousand four hundred Pounds be appropriated as Subsistence Money, at one Shilling per man, per day, for the Troops of this Colony when called into actual service, and until they arrive at the place of destination. To which the Congress agreed.

9. That the sum of eight thousand five hundred and eighty-five Pounds be appropriated as a fund for the payment of the Troops of this Colony for one month, when called into actual service.

And on the question, whether this sum, or the sum of four thousand Pounds only, be appropriated, it passed unanimously for four thousand Pounds only.

10. That four thousand Blankets be purchased for the use of this Colony. Which, on the question, was reduced to two thousand only.

11. That the sum of three hundred Pounds be laid out in Axes, Spades, and Intrenching Tools, for the use of this Colony. To which the Congress agreed.

12. That the sum of five hundred Pounds be laid out in procuring a train of Artillery for the use of this Colony. To which the Congress agreed.

13. That the sum of five hundred Pounds be appropriated, to encourage the erecting of Saltpetre Works in this Colony.

And on the question being put, whether this sum or the sum of one thousand Pounds be appropriated to this use, it passed for one thousand Pounds.

On motion made, Resolved, That the sum of one thousand Pounds, voted by this Congress to encourage the erecting of Saltpetre Works in this Colony, be appropriated to the payment of a bounty of one Shilling per Pound, over and above the market price, for any quantity, not exceeding twenty thousand pounds weight, of good merchantable Saltpetre, which shall be made and manufactured in this Colony, on or before the first day of January, 1777: Provided, that the Continental Congress shall not offer the like premium for Saltpetre manufactured in any of the United Colonies.

On motion made, Resolved, That it is the opinion of this Congress, that the sum of Thirty Thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money, be immediately emitted in Bills of Credit, for the use of this Colony.

Ordered, That Mr. Fisher, Mr. Hart, Mr. Mehelm, Mr. Elmer, and Mr. Dunham, be a Committee to prepare the draught of an Ordinance for emitting the aforesaid sum of Thirty Thousand Pounds, in Bills of Credit, and to make a provision to sink the same; and also to appoint Commissioners to purchase and procure the several articles enumerated in the foregoing Resolutions, and that they report the same to this Congress.

The Congress adjourned until two o'clock, P. M., to-morrow.

Wednesday, October 25, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

A motion was made by the Deputies of the County of Salem, and seconded by the Members of Hunterdon, that, as soon as this session is ended, this Congress doth dissolve itself, in order that a new election may take place upon more extensive principles, to wit:

That, at such new election, such Householders, or reputable single men, as are possessed, bona fide, of a personal estate of the value of fifty Pounds, Proclamation Money, or upwards, and have been resident at least one year in the County, may be admitted to vote with those that are Freeholders.

Ordered, That the consideration of this motion be postponed until this Congress shall determine the Petitions from the Counties of Hunterdon and Sussex, praying that Householders may be admitted to vote at future elections.

And thereupon, pursuant to the Order of the Day, the Congress resumed the consideration of the several Petitions from the Counties of Hunterdon and Sussex, praying that Householders may be admitted to vote at future elections; and having duly weighed and considered the several arguments for and against the prayer of the said Petitions, and also the above motion of the Deputies of the County of Salem, for a dissolution of this Congress; the previous question was put, whether this Congress will proceed to determine the consideration of the above Petitions and motion at this time, or postpone the same to the next session, in order that the sense of the Colony in general may be known.

Resolved, That the same be postponed to the next session of this Congress.

YEAS.	NAYS.
Bergen County,	Middlesex County,
Essex “	Morris “
Somerset “	Sussex “
Monmouth “	Hunterdon “
Burlington “	Salem “
Gloucester “	Cumberland “
Cape-May “

The Petition from Middlesex, respecting the Field-Officers of Colonel Wetherill's Regiment, was read a second time; and on the question being put, whether the prayer of the said Petition be granted or not, it passed in the negative, unanimously.

The Petition from several persons of Captain Harrison's Company of Light-Infantry, praying that the Petitioners may be indulged in continuing in that Company, notwithstanding the late Resolution of this Congress, was read a second time; and it now appearing, that the Company in Nottingham, to which the Petitioners belonged, is united to another Company; It is therefore Resolved, That the prayer of the said Petition be granted, and that a Commission do issue to John Matthews, one of the Lieutenants.

The Certificate of the election of Field-Officers for the Battalion on the north side of Cohansie Creek, in Cumberland County, was read a second time.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the several persons therein named.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to Captain Thomas Wolverton, and to the Officers of his Company of Minute-Men, in Sussex County.

Ordered, That Commissions do issue to Samuel Forman, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel, Elisha Lawrence, Esq., First Major, and James Mott, Esq., Second Major, of the Second Regiment of Militia in the County of Monmouth.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Thursday, October 26, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

A Petition from the Committee of Sussex County, objecting to the appointment of John Budd Scott, Esq., as First Major of the First Regiment of Militia in that County, and praying that Mr. Scott's Commission may be vacated, was read, and ordered a second reading.

The Committee appointed to prepare the draught of an Ordinance for striking the sum of Thirty Thousand Pounds, in Bills of Credit, for the use of this Colony, and to make a provision to sink the same, &c., reported a draught of such Ordinance; which was read, and ordered a second reading.

The following engrossed draught of the form of an advertisement, respecting the enlistment of men for the two Battalions, recommended to be raised in this Colony, was read and passed.

Ordered, That the same be sent to the press as soon as possible, and that two hundred copies be printed for the use of this Colony.

In Provincial Congress, held at Trenton, }
October 26, 1775. }

Whereas the honourable Continental Congress have recommended to this Congress, that there be immediately raised, in this Colony, at the expense of the Continent, two Battalions, consisting of eight Companies each, and each Company to consist of sixty-eight Privates, and officered with one Captain, one Lieutenant, one Ensign, four Sergeants, and four Corporals, on the following conditions:

That the Privates be enlisted for a year, at the rate of five Dollars per calendar month, liable to be discharged at any time, on allowing one month's pay extraordinary; that each of the Privates be allowed, instead of a bounty, a felt Hat, a pair of yarn Stockings, and a pair of Shoes—the men to find their own Arms.

That each Captain, and other commissioned officer, while in the recruiting service of this Continent, or on their march to join the Army, shall be allowed two Dollars and two-thirds of a Dollar per week, for their subsistence; and that the men who enlist shall, each of them, whilst in quarters, be allowed one Dollar per week, and one Dollar and one-third of a Dollar when on their march to join the Army, for the same purpose.

The form of an enlistment to be in the following words: “I, . . . , have this day voluntarily enlisted myself as a soldier in the American Continental Army for one year, unless sooner discharged; and do bind myself to conform, in all instances, to such rules and regulations as are or shall be established for the government of the said Army.”

This Congress, desirous to carry into execution the above

Resolution of the Continental Congress, do resolve that warrants be issued to proper persons for immediately raising the said two Battalions, consisting of eight Companies each, and each Company of sixty-eight Privates, and officered with one Captain, one Lieutenant, one Ensign, four Sergeants and four Corporals, on the terms aforesaid; which Sergeants, Corporals, and Privates, to be enlisted, shall be able-bodied freemen: And it is further directed, that when any Company shall be enlisted, the persons having warrants for raising the same shall cause a muster to be had thereof, in the presence of either Elias Daton, Azariah Dunham, Joseph Ellis, or John Mehelm, Esquires, who are hereby appointed Muster-Masters to review the said Companies; and if, upon such review, such Muster-Master, who shall attend for that purpose, shall find the said Company complete, agreeable to the above directions, shall thereupon certify the same on the back of the Muster-Roll of such Company, to this Congress, or, in their recess, to the Committee of Safety, in order that Commissions may be made out to the Officers of such Company; which Commissions the Committee of Safety of this Colony, during the recess of this Congress, upon receiving certificates as above, are required to make out and issue.

And it is hereby recommended to the inhabitants of this Colony, to be aiding and assisting, as far as their influence extends, in raising the aforesaid levies.

And it is further Resolved, That each Muster-Master shall have for his trouble, for reviewing each Company, such reward as this Congress or Committee of Safety shall judge proper for his service, which the Treasurer of this Colony for the time being, appointed by Congress, shall pay out of the Bills of Credit to be issued by direction of this Congress, upon an order or orders to him produced from this Congress or Committee of Safety.

By order of the Congress:

SAMUEL TUCKER, President.

Attested: JOHN CAREY, Secretary.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Friday, October 27, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The Petition from the Committee of Sussex, respecting Mr. Scott's Commission, &c., was read a second time.

Resolved, unanimously, By all the Counties, except Sussex, which was excused from voting on this occasion, that Mr. Scott's Commission be confirmed.

On motion made, Ordered, That Commissions do issue to the Field-Officers, and the Officers of the eleven Companies of the North-West Regiment of Militia in the County of Morris, when it shall be made appear to this Congress that a Colonel hath been elected in the room of Mr. Winds, promoted to the rank of Colonel of the Battalion of Minute-Men in that County.

On motion made, Ordered, That Commissions do issue to Matthias Williamson, Esq., Colonel Samuel Tuthill, Esq., Lieutenant-Colonel, and Jacobus Post, Esq., Major of the Regiment of Light-Horse, in the Eastern Division of this Colony.

The Committee to whom the Militia Ordinance was referred, reported a draught of the same, with amendments; which was read, paragraph by paragraph, and debated.

Ordered, That the same be engrossed.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The following Letter from the honourable the Continental Congress was presented and read:

"Philadelphia, October 25, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: The Congress have taken into consideration your letters of the 13th and 14th instant, and, in answer thereto, I am directed to inform you that the Congress are of opinion the publick service makes it necessary that the Jersey Battalions be levied with all possible expedition; but as the Congress are waiting the return of their Committee from camp, in order to establish permanent regulations for all Continental Forces, they, for the present, incline to suspend a determination on the question about the appointment of regimental field-officers.

"The publick exigencies will not admit of loans from the Continental Treasury to any Colonies. The Congress, however, hope that this will not disable you from supplying yourselves with arms and ammunition; in doing which, it is not doubted you will fall upon such means as will be most for the ease and safety of the Colony, without hazarding the emission of paper currency.

"From some expressions in your letter of the 14th inst., the Congress apprehend it is the intention of your Convention to take into constant pay four thousand Minute-Men; but as this will be a very heavy expense, and more, we think, than any one Colony can afford, we hope you will well weigh and consider such a measure before you adopt it. With respect to provision for Minute-Men, the Congress have made none; conceiving that the several Colonies will make proper provision for them, where such provision is necessary, or where they are called into actual service, except where they are taken into Continental service, in which case they will be entitled to the same pay as the other Continental troops.

"I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"To the Members of the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey."

A copy of a Petition from Mr. Thomas Lowrey, to the Continental Congress, praying that he may be appointed Commissary to the two Battalions recommended to be raised in this Colony, was presented and read; and Mr. Lowrey having requested that this Congress would be pleased to recommend him to the Continental Congress, as a fit person for such appointment; and the question being put, whether this Congress will comply with the prayer of Mr. Lowrey's request, or not, it passed in the affirmative.

Ordered, That Mr. President do sign an attested copy of this minute, and transmit the same to Mr. Lowrey.

The Ordinance for striking the sum of Thirty Thousand Pounds, in Bills of Credit, for the use of this Colony, and to make a provision to sink the same, &c., was read a second time, and debated.

Ordered, That the same be engrossed.

The Congress adjourned till nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Saturday, October 28, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

The following engrossed Ordinance, for the further regulation of the Militia Forces of this Colony, was read, compared, and approved:

Whereas the Ordinances of the late Provincial Congress, for regulating the Militia of this Colony, have been found insufficient to answer the good purposes intended; and it appearing to be essentially necessary that some further regulations be adopted at this time of imminent danger:

1. It is therefore Resolved and Directed, That each and every Captain in this Colony, within ten days after the publication hereof, shall make out a list of all persons residing in his District capable of bearing arms, between the ages of sixteen and fifty years, who, by the first military Ordinance of a former Congress, were advised or requested to enroll themselves by signing a Muster-Roll therein mentioned, such persons only excepted whose religious principles will not suffer them to bear arms, who are hereby particularly exempted therefrom; a copy of which list each Captain, respectively, within ten days after completing the same, shall deliver to the Colonel of the Regiment to which he shall belong, and such Colonel shall make return thereof to the Brigadier-General of the Division to which he shall belong; and also transmit a duplicate thereof to the Provincial Congress at their next sitting. And the respective Captains shall also make out exact lists of all such persons residing in their several Districts, capable of bearing arms, between the ages of sixteen and fifty years, whose religious principles will not suffer them to bear arms; which lists the said Captains shall lay before the Committee of the County to which they belong.

2. And it is further Resolved, That every person above directed to enroll himself by signing the Muster-Roll, shall bear arms, attend musters, and in all things be conformable to the Rules and Orders hereinafter mentioned; and shall, with all convenient speed, furnish himself with a good Musket or Firelock, and Bayonet, Sword or Tomahawk, a steel Ramrod, Worm, Priming Wire and Brush fitted thereto, a Cartouch-Box to contain twenty-three rounds of Cartridges, twelve Flints, and a Knapsack, agreeable to the direction of the Continental Congress, under the forfeitures of two Shillings for the want of a Musket or Firelock, and of one Shilling for the want of the other above enumerated articles.

3. And it is further Resolved, That every person directed to be enrolled as above, shall, at his place of abode, be also provided with one pound of Powder, and three pounds of Bullets of proper size to his Musket or Firelock.

4. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That each whole Company of Militia do assemble at least once every month, properly accounted as aforesaid, at such place as the Captain or commanding officer of such Company shall direct, and shall spend the whole day in perfecting themselves in the military exercise; and that a general muster or review be had of each Regiment three times in every year, at such times and places as the Field-Officers of each Regiment shall think proper to appoint.

5. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That in case any person shall refuse or neglect to serve as a Sergeant or Corporal in any Company, being thereunto requested by the Captain or commanding officer, or shall refuse or neglect to warn the men to appear under arms when required by the Captain or commanding officer, such Sergeant or Corporal shall, for every such neglect or refusal, forfeit the sum of twelve Shillings.

6. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That all Officers, commissioned by this or the former Congress, do subscribe the following declaration, to wit:

"We, the subscribers, the Officers of one of the Regiments in the County of . . . . . and Colony of New-Jersey, do hereby promise and engage, under all the ties of religion, honour, and regard to our Country, that we will, respectively, duly observe and carry into execution, to the utmost of our power, all and every the orders, resolves, and recommendations, made or to be made, by the Provincial Congress of this Colony, for defending our Constitution, and preserving the same inviolate; and that we will also render due obedience to such Officers, who either by rank or superiority, are regularly placed above us."

Which declaration shall be laid before the next sitting of the Provincial Congress.

7. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the following penalties be inflicted on those who do not attend and obey orders on the days appointed for general musters or reviews, to wit: a Colonel, six Pounds; a Lieutenant-Colonel, five Pounds; a Major four Pounds; a Captain, three Pounds; Lieutenants, Ensigns, and Adjutants, two Pounds each; Sergeants, Corporals, Drummers, Fifes, and Privates, directed to be enrolled as aforesaid, ten Shillings each, for each and every default. And that there shall be inflicted on those who do not attend properly accounted as aforesaid, and obey orders, on the times to be appointed for the meeting of the Companies, at least once every month, to wit: a Captain, thirty Shillings; Lieutenants and Ensigns, twenty Shillings each; Sergeants, Corporals, Drummers, Fifes, and Privates, four Shillings each, for each and every default. Provided always, that reasonable excuses shall be admitted for delinquents' non-attendance, by those persons who are to issue the warrants of distress.

8. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That all fines, under the degree of a Captain, shall be levied on the goods and chattels of the offender, by warrant from the Captain, directed to a Sergeant of his Company; and those of Field-Officers and Captains, under the degree of Colonel, to be levied on the goods and chattels of the offender, by a warrant from the Colonel of the Regiment, directed to the Adjutant; and those of a Colonel, by a warrant from a Brigadier-General, directed to a Major of the Regiment to which such delinquent or delinquents belong.

9. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the several Officers and persons to whom warrants of distress shall be directed, shall, upon receipt thereof, immediately levy the several fines and forfeitures therein mentioned, under the forfeiture of forty Shillings for every neglect in levying the same, to be recovered by a warrant, under the hand of the Chairman of the Committee of the County where such neglect shall happen, directed to such person or persons as such Committee shall appoint for that purpose; and every Sergeant shall levy upon each delinquent, in the warrant to him directed, the sum of one Shilling over and above the penalty laid in such warrant, which he is to keep and detain as a reward for his trouble; and each Major or Adjutant shall receive, for each distress by them made, the sum of five Shillings, which he is to levy as aforesaid. And the fines and forfeitures aforesaid, levied by a Sergeant, when recovered, shall be paid to the Captain issuing such warrant, to be by him laid out in supplying such of his Company with arms as are not able to furnish themselves therewith; and shall render to the Committee of the County, in which he resides, a true account of all such fines and forfeitures by him received, and his disbursements out of the same, agreeable to the above directions, when he shall be thereunto required by said Committee; and in case any of such fines and forfeitures shall remain in such Captain's hands for the space of two months, not laid out as aforesaid, he shall then pay the same to such Committee, to be by them laid out as above directed; and all fines recovered from any officer or officers, above the degree of Lieutenant, shall be immediately paid into the hands of the County Committee, to be by them laid out in such manner as they shall judge most serviceable for the common defence of the Colony.

10. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That if this Colony shall be alarmed or invaded by an armed force, then, and in such case, every Subaltern and Soldier so enrolled, or directed to be enrolled as aforesaid; and also each Minute-Man raised, or which may then be raised, is hereby requested immediately to repair, properly armed and accounted, to his Captain's residence, unless otherwise ordered; and the Captain or commanding officer of the Company nearest to the place where such alarm or invasion shall happen, shall immediately march his Company to oppose the enemy; and at the same time send an express to the commanding officer of the Regiment to which he belongs, who is to march with the whole or part of the forces under his command, as he, before receiving orders from one of the General Officers, shall judge necessary, in order to prevent the enemy from landing or penetrating into any part of the country; and at the same time shall send an express to some one of the General Officers nearest to him, informing him of the intelligence he hath received of such an alarm or invasion; and during the times of such invasion or alarm, the Officers and Soldiers aforesaid shall be subject to a Court-Martial, under the same rules and orders as directed and ordered by the Continental Congress of the Associated Colonies, held at Philadelphia on the tenth day of May last, for the better government of the Continental Troops.

11. Provided always, and it is further Resolved and Directed, That no pains and penalties, imposed by a Court-Martial, shall extend to the taking life or member of any delinquent or offender who shall be called out as aforesaid.

12. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That every person between the ages of sixteen and fifty years, capable of bearing arms as aforesaid, who shall come from any of the neighbouring Provinces into this Colony, shall, within two weeks after his arrival, enroll himself in the Company of the place where such person may chance to reside, and attend musters, as before directed for the Militia; and, in case of neglect or refusal, shall be subject to the same fines and forfeitures.

13. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the Officers and Minute-Men, now formed into Companies or Battalions, or such as shall be so formed hereafter, shall observe the same rules, orders, and directions, as to attending musters, and learning the military discipline, and be subject to the same fines and penalties for non-attendance, as before directed for the Militia, and to be recovered in like manner.

14. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the Minute-Men, when called out to the assistance of a neighbouring Colony, shall be subject to the Articles of War established by the Continental Congress, and be under the direction of their own Officers, unless a Continental Officer of superior rank be present, to whom, in such case, they are to yield due subordination.

15. And whereas several Companies of Light-Horse have been raised in this Colony, and as it is probable that more may be raised hereafter, It is therefore Resolved and Directed, That each Company of Light-Horse do not exceed forty Privates, and that one Company only be allowed to be raised in each County; and that each Regiment be commanded by a Colonel, Lieutenant-Colonel, and Major, who are to be subject to the command of the Brigadier-Generals of this Colony, the Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety; and that such Regiments of Horse shall be under the same regulations, as to the times of muster, and learning the military discipline, as before directed for the Foot Militia by this Ordinance, and subject to the same fines and penalties for non-attendance; which fines and penalties are to be recovered in manner aforesaid; and that the Officers of each Regiment of Horse take equal rank with the Militia Officers of Foot, holding similar commissions of the same date.

16. And it is further Resolved and Directed, That each and every of the inhabitants of this Colony, between the ages of sixteen and fifty years, whose religious principles will not suffer them to bear arms as above directed, shall, as an equivalent thereto, and also in lieu of all future voluntary contributions for publick and benevolent uses, as recommended by Congress, pay into the hands of the Chairman of the Committee of the County where they reside, the sum of four Shillings per month for such exemption; and in case they, or either of them, shall neglect or refuse to pay the same, that then, upon such neglect or refusal, such Committee, once every three months, shall and are hereby required and enjoined to issue a warrant of distress, under the hand of their Chairman or Deputy Chairman, directed to such person or persons as they shall appoint for that purpose; requiring distress to be made on the goods and chattels of every such delinquent; and that the same be sold at publick vendue, giving five days' notice thereof, by advertisement; and, out of the money arising by such sale, to pay to the Chairman of such Committee the money then due from every such delinquent, returning the overplus, if any, to the owner thereof, after detaining one Shilling and six Pence for every such distress and sale; and in case any person or persons aforesaid, under age, shall make default in paying their equivalent as aforesaid, the same, by order of such Committee, shall be demanded of the parent, master, or person whose care such delinquents are under; and, upon their refusal or neglect to pay, the same shall be recovered by distress and sale as aforesaid, of such delinquent's parent, master, or other person whose care he or they are under; and the County Committees, respectively are also hereby enjoined and required, once every six months, to pay unto either of the Treasurers of this Colony for the time being, appointed by this Congress, all such sum and sums of money as they may receive as aforesaid, to be applied as a Provincial Fund to such uses and purposes as this or a future Congress shall judge the exigencies of the times may require.

17. Provided always, and it is further Resolved and Directed, That every person above directed and required to pay an equivalent for the above exemptions, shall be excused from paying such equivalent every time he shall make it appear to the Committee of the County where he resides, that he was sick or unable to attend musters at the time when the Company, in the District he lives in, shall attend their monthly exercises; or shall make it appear he was at that time out of the Province, or necessarily engaged in the publick business of the Colony.

18. And it is further Resolved, That in case any person or persons shall think him or themselves aggrieved by a distress made for their fines and forfeitures as aforesaid, such person or persons may, within two months thereafter, appeal to the Committee of the Township or Committee of the County in which he or they shall reside, which Committee shall take the same into consideration; and, in case they find any such appellant aggrieved, shall order suitable redress, by directing the money recovered of him or them, or such part thereof as they think proper, to be returned by the Captain or other officer who issued the warrant of distress, who is hereby required to return the same accordingly; or in case the goods distrained are not sold, the Committee then may give such order therein as to them may seem just and right, conforming themselves in such decisions, as near as may be, to the true intent and meaning of this Ordinance.

Whereupon, the question being put, whether the aforesaid Ordinance do pass this Congress or not, it was carried in the affirmative.

On motion made, it is Ordered, That the Rules laid down by the Continental Congress, for the regulation of the Army of the United Colonies, be printed with the above Militia Ordinance.

On motion made, Resolved, That the following gentlemen be recommended by this Congress to the honourable the Continental Congress, as proper persons for Field-Officers of the two Battalions to be raised in this Colony, to wit:

For the Eastern Battalion: Lord Stirling, Colonel; William Winds, Lieutenant-Colonel; William De Hart, Major.

For the Western Battalion: William Maxwell, Colonel; Israel Shreive, Lieutenant-Colonel; David Ray, Major.

Ordered, That the President do sign an attested copy of this Resolution, and transmit the same to the Continental Congress.

On motion made, Resolved, That Commissions be certified, signed by the President, and delivered to the Members of this Congress for the distant Counties, to be by them filled up and delivered to the respective Officers, upon proper certificates, from the County Committee, that such respective Officers have been duly elected, according to the Ordinance of this Congress; which certificate is to be returned to this Congress at their next sitting, or to the Committee of Safety.

On motion made, Resolved, unanimously, That a Commission of Second Brigadier-General of the Militia Forces of this Colony do immediately issue to William Livingston, Esq.

Ordered, That the Secretary, Colonel Ellis, and Colonel Maxwell, be a Committee to wait on Mr. Livingston, at Mrs. Stell's, and present him with the above Commission.

Whereupon, the Committee withdrew, and having returned to their seats, reported, that they had presented the said Commission to Mr. Livingston, who had received the same in a polite manner, and desired that his thanks might be returned to this Congress.

The Congress adjourned to three o'clock, P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Major Ephraim Anderson having thought proper to resign his Commission of First Major of the First Regiment of the Hunterdon Militia,

Resolved, unanimously, That his resignation be accepted.

The following engrossed Ordinance, for striking the sum of Thirty Thousand Pounds, in Bills of Credit, for the use of this Colony, and to make a provision to sink the same, &c., was read, compared, and approved:

Whereas it appears essentially necessary, at this time of increasing danger, that the Inhabitants of this Colony should be furnished with Ammunition and other Military Stores, and that this Colony should be put into some proper posture of defence:

It is therefore Resolved and Directed, That Messrs. Samuel Tucker, Abraham Hunt, Joseph Ellis, and Alexander Chambers, be, and they are hereby appointed Commissioners for the Western Division; and that Hendrick Fisher, Azariah Dunham, Abraham Clark, and Samuel Potter, be, and they are hereby appointed Commissioners for the Eastern Division of this Colony; which said Commissioners, or the major part of them, are hereby authorized and directed to receive of the Treasurers of this Colony for the time being, appointed by this Congress, or either of them, all such sum or sums of money as they shall, from time to time, find necessary to expend for the use of this Colony, pursuant to the Resolutions hereinafter mentioned.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the said Commissioners be, and they are hereby authorized and directed to contract with artificers for, or otherwise purchase, three thousand stand of Arms, at any price not exceeding three Pounds seven Shillings each stand; and, also, to purchase ten tons of Gunpowder, twenty tons of Lead, one thousand Cartouch-Boxes, at any price not exceeding nine Shillings each; a quantity of Flints, Brushes, Priming Wire, and Cartridge Paper, not exceeding one hundred Pounds in value; two chests of Medicine, not exceeding three hundred Pounds in value; four hundred Tents, with Camp Equipage, &c., not exceeding one thousand eight hundred and seventy Pounds in value; two thousand Blankets, not exceeding one thousand five hundred Pounds in value; a number of Axes, Spades, and other Intrenching Tools, not exceeding three hundred Pounds in value; and a Train of Artillery, not exceeding five hundred Pounds in value.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the said Commissioners do supply the Troops of this Colony, when called to action in this or any of the neighbouring Colonies, with one month's Subsistence, at one Shilling per day per man, or Provisions to that amount, if necessary: provided that the expense of such Subsistence doth not exceed the sum of one thousand four hundred Pounds in value; and one month's Pay for the Troops of this Colony, when called into actual service: provided that the Continental Congress do not make provision for the same; and provided, also, that the Pay of such Troops doth not exceed the sum of four thousand Pounds in value.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the Treasurers of this Colony be, and they are hereby required and enjoined to pay to the said Commissioners, or the major part of them, or to their order, all such sum or sums of Money as they may find necessary to expend for the purposes aforesaid; and the receipt or receipts from the said Commissioners, or a major part of them, shall be sufficient vouchers and discharges to the said Treasurers, or either of them, their executors and administrators, for all Moneys by them paid pursuant to this Ordinance.

And whereas it is absolutely necessary to provide a fund for defraying the above expense,

It is therefore Resolved and Directed, That Bills of Credit, to the amount of Thirty Thousand Pounds, Proclamation Money, be immediately prepared, printed, and made, as follows, to wit: five thousand seven hundred Bills, each of the value of three Pounds; six thousand Bills, each of the value of one Pound ten Shillings; four thousand Bills, each of the value of fifteen Shillings; and three thousand Bills, each of the value of six Shillings—which Bills shall be in the form following, to wit:

"This Bill, by an Ordinance of the Provincial Congress, shall pass current in all payments within the Colony of New-Jersey, for . . . . . Proclamation Money.

"Dated the . . . . . day of . . . . . 1775."

And shall be impressed with such devices as the Inspectors of the Press, hereinafter appointed, shall direct; and, when printed, shall be delivered to Hendrick Fisher and Azariah Dunham, Esquires, of the Eastern Division, and to John Hart and John Carey, Esquires, of the Western Division, four of the signers thereof, in equal moieties; one moiety to be signed by the Treasurer and signers of the Eastern Division, and the other moiety by the Treasurer and signers of the Western Division. And the said signers are hereby authorized and required, upon delivery of the said Bills by the printer thereof, to administer to him, and he is hereby directed and required to take, an Oath or Affirmation, in the following words:

"I, A B, do declare, that from the time the letters were set and fit to be put into the press for the printing the Bills of Credit now by me delivered, until the same Bills were printed, and the letters unset and put into the boxes again, I went at no time out of the room in which the said letters were, without locking them up so as they could not be come at without violence, a false key, or other art then unknown to me; and therefore, to the best of my knowledge, no copies were printed off but in my presence; and that all the blotters, and other papers whatsoever, printed by the said letters, while set for printing the said Bills, to the best of my knowledge, are here delivered, together with the stamps for the indents and devices; and that I have not at any time been privy or consenting to any other or more Bills being struck than I now deliver; and that, in all things relating to this affair, I have demeaned myself according to the true intent and meaning of the Ordinance by virtue whereof this money is printed, to the best of my knowledge and understanding."

Which printer, at the time he is ordered to print the said Bills, shall have a copy of this Oath or Affirmation, that he may govern himself accordingly. Provided, always, that if any accident has happened, he may have the liberty of making an exception thereof in his Oath or Affirmation, he declaring fully how it was.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the Bills made current by this Ordinance shall be nearly the size and likeness of the Bills now current in this Colony, and shall be signed and numbered by the respective persons hereinbefore appointed signers thereof; and in case of their or either of their deaths or other disability, then Joseph Hugg, of the Western Division, and John Covenhoven, of the Eastern Division, are hereby appointed signers of the said Bills; and one-half of them shall be delivered to the Treasurer of the Eastern Division of this Colony, appointed by this Ordinance, to be by him signed; and the other half shall be delivered to the Treasurer of the Western Division, to be by him signed; and in case of refusal or disability of either of the said Treasurers, then any three of the persons nominated in this Ordinance, as signers, are to sign the same.

And in order that the said Bills may be numbered and signed with the less charge and risk, and with the most ease and expedition, the said signers are to observe the directions following, to wit:

First. Before the said signers do receive any of the said Bills, they shall each of them take an Oath, or Affirmation if Quakers, before a Justice of the Peace, for the true signing of the said Bills of Credit; and that they will sign no more or other Bills than by this Ordinance is directed; and that, to the best of their skill, they will perform what, by this Ordinance, they are enjoined as their duty—a certificate of which Oath or Affirmation is to be signed by the Justice, and the deponents or affirmants, to be delivered to the Treasurers with the Bills, when signed by them.

Secondly. On receiving the Bills from the printer, the said signers shall burn and destroy the blotters, and they shall divide the fair bills so received into two equal parts, and, to avoid confusion, shall agree betwixt themselves how the parts of each shall be numbered; and the signers for the Eastern Division shall take the stamps for the escutcheons, and the signers for the Western Division shall take the stamps for the arms.

Thirdly. Each of the signers may then carry his part to his own house, there to be numbered and signed by him with all possible expedition; which, or such part as is then necessary, being done, they shall meet at a day and place by them to be appointed and agreed on, and each deliver the part numbered and signed by him to the other, in order for him to sign the same; and they shall then together burn and destroy the Bills, if any be, over and above the number hereby appointed to be issued; and in like manner shall do, from time to time, until all are signed and exchanged.

Fourthly. Each of the said signers may then carry the part of the Bills aforesaid so delivered to them by the other to their respective houses, to be signed with all possible expedition; and when signed, in any sums, from time to time, to be delivered to the Treasurer of the Division where the signers live, and the stamps for the escutcheons and arms, taking receipts of the respective Treasurers for the sums so delivered; which, when produced, shall be sufficient to discharge the said signers, respectively, their heirs, executors, or administrators, from such parts of the said Bills as the receipts do express.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the said Treasurers shall, respectively, sign the said Bills to them delivered; and, under the obligation of their oaths or affirmations for the due execution of their offices, pay them out accordingly, as they shall be directed by this and any future order of the Provincial Congress, or Committee of Safety of this Colony, and no otherwise.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the Bills of Credit to be made and issued by virtue of this Ordinance, shall pass current until the twenty-first day of December, which will be in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and eighty-six.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That Samuel Tucker, Hendrick Fisher, and Richard Smith, Esquires, or any two of them, are hereby authorized and directed to agree with the printer for the price to be paid him for printing the Bills, according to the directions of this Ordinance, and shall be and are hereby appointed Inspectors of the Press, to take care that the printer of the Bills of Credit doth duly perform the duty hereby enjoined him.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That there shall be paid to the printer of the said Bills of Credit such sum or sums of Money, for printing them, as the said Inspectors, or any two of them, shall certify under their hands they had agreed to pay him for that service; and there shall be paid to the Treasurers, Inspectors, and Signers, such reward for their trouble as the Congress or Committee of Safety for this Colony shall deem reasonable. All which sums of money shall be paid by the Treasurers, or either of them, out of the money made current by virtue of this Ordinance, and shall take proper receipts for the same; which receipts, when laid before the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety, shall discharge the said Treasurers, their heirs, executors, and administrators, for all such sums by them paid, pursuant to this Ordinance.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the residue of the said Thirty Thousand Pounds made current by this Ordinance, and not herein appropriated, shall remain in the said Treasury as a fund, subject to be disposed of in future by the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety of this Colony.

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That, for the better credit and effectual sinking of the said Bills of Credit, there shall be assessed, levied, and raised, on the several inhabitants of this Colony, their goods and chattels, lands and tenements, the sum of Ten Thousand Pounds, annually, in every of the years one thousand seven hundred and eighty-four, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-five, one thousand seven hundred and eighty-six, to be paid in the proportions and manner following:

By the County of Bergen, - - - -	£664	8	0
By the County of Essex, - - - -	742	18	0
By the County of Middlesex, - - - -	872	6	8
By the County of Somerset, - - - -	904	2	0
By the County of Monmouth, - - - -	1,069	2	8
By the County of Morris, - - - -	723	8	0
By the County of Sussex, - - - -	593	5	4
By the County of Hunterdon, - - - -	1,363	16	8
By the County of Burlington, - - - -	1,071	13	4
By the County of Gloucester, - - - -	763	2	8
By the County of Salem, - - - -	679	12	0
By the County of Cumberland, - - - -	385	6	8
By the County of Cape-May, - - - -	166	18	0

And it is further Resolved and Directed, That the several quotas, so apportioned as aforesaid, shall be assessed, raised, levied, collected, and paid into the Treasuries, in the same method, manner, proportion, and form, as is directed by an Act passed in the tenth year of his present Majesty's reign, entitled "An Act to settle the quotas of the several Counties in this Colony;" provided that some other more equitable expedient for sinking the same, in a more easy method to the inhabitants of this Colony, shall not be agreed upon in the mean time.

Whereupon, the question being put, whether this Ordinance do pass or not, it was carried in the affirmative.

The Memorial of Jonathan D. Sergeant, Esq., Treasurer to the late Congress of this Colony, was read a second time, and unanimously approved.

Ordered, That the thanks of this Congress be returned to Mr. Sergeant, for his constant and steady attention to the publick cause, at these times of general calamity.

On motion made, Resolved, unanimously, That Commissions do issue to Messrs. John Cooper and John Dennis, the Treasurers for this Colony, appointed by this Congress, upon their giving such security as this Congress or the Committee of Safety shall direct.

On motion made, Resolved, That upon proper certificates, from any County Committee of this Colony, being produced to the President or Vice-President, in the recess of this Congress, certifying the election of Militia or Minute Officers for any of the Battalions in this Colony, the President or Vice-President do issue Commissions accordingly.

Ordered, That a Commission do issue to John Taylor, Esq., as Second Major of the Fourth Regiment of Militia in Hunterdon County.

On motion made, Resolved, That in case of the death, or removal out of the Colony, of any of the Deputies of this Congress, before the next annual election, the Freeholders of the County for which such person was a Deputy, have leave to proceed to a new election to supply his place.

On motion made, Resolved, That it be recommended to the several County Committees of this Colony to allow their respective Deputies such recompense for their time and publick service, in attending the Provincial Congresses and Committees of Safety, as they shall think reasonable.

Resolved, That a Commission do issue to James Holmes, Esq., as Surgeon to the Sussex Battalion of Minute-Men.

Resolved, That a Commission do issue to Peter Campbell, Esq., as Aid-de-Camp to Brig. Gen. Dickinson.

On motion made, Resolved, That the following gentlemen be, and they are hereby appointed a Committee of Safety, to act for the publick welfare of this Colony, in the recess of this Congress, to wit:

Mr. President Tucker, Mr. Vice-President Fisher, John Hart, Abraham Clark, Lewis Ogden, Joseph Holmes, John Mehelm, Isaac Pearson, John Pope, Azariah Dunham, John Dennis, Augustine Stevenson, Ruloffe Van Dyke, Esquires.

Which said Committee of Safety, or the major part of the members thereof, are hereby directed to meet at such time and place as the President and Vice-President shall direct.

On motion made, Resolved, That Mr. President be desired to return the thanks of this Congress to the Rev. Mr. Spencer and the Rev. Mr. Panton, for their polite attention and services during the present sitting; and also to the several communities who have been pleased to accommodate this Congress with the use of their respective places of worship.

On motion made, Resolved, That the Secretary be requested to revise, correct, and make out a fair copy of the Minutes of this Congress, for publication; and that he be allowed such recompense for his time and trouble as this Congress or Committee of Safety shall deem reasonable.

Resolved, That as soon as the Secretary hath prepared a fair copy of the Minutes of this Congress for the press, Mr. President do issue an order to Isaac Collins to immediately print off one thousand copies thereof, for the use of the Colony in general; and five hundred copies of the new Militia Ordinance, with the Articles of War for regulating the Continental Army annexed, for the use of the Militia Forces.

Resolved, That, out of the Moneys in the Treasury of this Congress, there be paid to Mr. President so much Money as he hath expended for Fire-Wood, Candles, Pens, Ink, and Paper, for the use of this Congress, during the present sitting; and also ten Shillings to Mr. Fisher, and ten Shillings to Mr. Mehelm, for two volumes of the Acts of Assembly of this Colony; and to Daniel Bellingeau, the Doorkeeper of this Congress, for his constant attendance and services during this sitting, six Pounds; and also to the said Daniel Bellingeau, the sum of three Pounds fifteen Shillings, for his services in attending the late Congress.

The Congress adjourned to meet at New-Brunswick, on the first Tuesday in April next, unless sooner convened by the President, Vice-President, or the Committee of Safety.

TRYON COUNTY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Tryon County Committee Chamber, October 28, 1775.

HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: As we found our duty and particular reasons to inquire or rather desire Sir John Johnson's absolute opinion and intention of the three following articles, viz:

1. Whether he would allow that his tenants may form themselves into Companies, according to the regulations of our Continental Congress, to the defence of our Country's cause;
2. Whether he would be willing himself also to assist personally in the same purpose;
3. Whether he pretendeth a prerogative to our County Court-House and Jail, and would hinder or interrupt the Committee of our County to make use of the said publick houses for our want and service in our common cause;

We have therefore, from our meeting held yesterday, sent three members of our Committee with the aforementioned questions contained in a letter to him directed, and received of Sir John, thereupon, the following answer:

1. That he thinks our requests very unreasonable, as he never had denied the use of either Court-House or Jail to any body, nor would yet deny it for the use which these houses have been built for; but he looks upon the Court-House and Jail at Johnstown to be his property till he is paid seven hundred Pounds—which being out of his pocket for the building of the same.

2. In regard of embodying his tenants into Companies, he never did forbid them, neither should do it, as they may use their pleasure; but we might save ourselves that trouble, he being sure they would not.

3. Concerning himself he declared, that before he would sign any association, or would lift his hand up against his King, he would rather suffer that his head shall be cut off. Further, he replied, that if we would make any unlawful use of the Jail, he would oppose it; and also mentions that there have many unfair means been used for signing the Association, and uniting the people; for he was informed, by credible gentlemen in New-York, that they were obliged to unite, otherwise they could not live there. And that he was also informed, by good authority, that likewise two-thirds of the Canajoharie and German-Flatts people have been forced to sign; and, by his opinion, the Boston people are open rebels, and the other Colonies have joined them.

Our Deputies replied to his expressions of forcing the people to sign in our County; that his authority spared the truth, and it appears by itself ridiculous that one-third should have forced two-thirds to sign. On the contrary, they would prove that it was offered to any one, after signing, that the regretters could any time have their names crossed, upon their requests.

We thought proper to refer these particular inimical declarations to your House, and would be very glad to get your opinion and advice, for our further directions. Please, also, to remember what we mentioned to you in our former letters, of the inimical and provoking behaviour of the tenants of said Sir John, which they still continue, under the authority of said Sir John.

We must further hear that the Governour, Tryon, shall have granted again a commission to the great villain, Alexander White, for High-Sheriff in our County; but we shall never suffer any execution of such office in our County by the said White. We have not yet been favoured with your answer and opinion in regard to our proceedings in voting a new Sheriff for our County. Be also pleased to despatch to us the commissions for our Militia officers, as it is very difficult to cause the regulations to be executed according to the resolves of our Provincial Congress, without such authorities.

We remain, with much esteem, honourable Gentlemen, your obedient humble servants.

By order of the Committee:

NICHOLAS HERCKHEIMER, Chairman.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress at New-York.

P. S. We must also see some of our enemies, Indians of Guy Johnson's party, come back, and in particular the Indian William Johnson, who fought against our forces near St. John's, and has now made his abode again in our Canajoharie Castle, very boldly, and perhaps with bad designs.

GOVERNOUR COOKE TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, October 28, 1775.

SIR: When we removed part of the live stock from Block-Island, in July last, a number of cattle were left, so poor (owing to the severe drought) that they were totally unfit for the knife. The plentiful rains that have since fallen have increased the feed so much that there are now upwards of three hundred fit for market. The island is situated so far from the Continent, that any attempt to remove them will be extremely hazardous, and I can think of no other method to prevent their being taken by the enemy, than killing and salting them. As we have no demand for salted provisions in this Colony, I must desire your Excellency to take order that the beef, when barrelled, may be received into the magazines in camp, at a reasonable price; in which case they will be killed and cured forthwith. You are sensible, Sir, of the unhappy situation of this Colony with respect to the enemy, it being scarcely any thing more than a line of sea-coast; and I have no doubt will give us every assistance in your power.

I am, with great truth and respect, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

NICHOLAS COOKE.

General Washington.

P. S. I have this morning despatched Mr. Bowen, with orders to Colonel Hopkins for ten cannon, four-pounders, for the armed vessel now equipping at Plymouth.

STEPHEN MOYLAN AND JOHN GLOVER TO COL. JOSEPH REED.

Beverly, October 28, 1775.

SIR: We received your favour of the 25th instant, enclosing instructions for the agents, one of which we will deliver to the person appointed for this place, and transmit the others to Portsmouth, Newbury, &c., &c.

The first article mentions the laying in provisions, conformable to an enclosed paper, which enclosure was omitted; you will, therefore, please to send us five of them, and one more copy of the instructions, by return of the bearer.

We will pay due attention to your commands, in fixing the commissions, &c., with the agents, and all agreements shall be committed to writing.

Captain Glover has brought all the things we wrote to you for, except the three hundred swivel-shot, which, he informs us, were not to be had; he says there are four-ounce ball, which will answer very well. On looking over the ammunition left by the three schooners, we find there will be wanting, for Captain Adams, forty rounds of four-pound cartridges, and four or five hundred of them four-ounce ball; of these he will give half unto Captain Manly, when they meet at Cape-Ann. There is no sheet lead to be had in these parts—we want ten feet square—please to send it and these other things immediately, viz: 60 four-pound shot, 40 two-pound shot, 40 cartridges for two-pounders—absolutely necessary.

We will recommend harmony and good understanding to the Captains, and will give our best advice to Captain Adams, relative to his cruising farther eastward, and in all other matters. We shall be glad to see him soon—his vessel is ready—it is now five o'clock, P. M., and no appearance of him or his men. Captain Manly is off, and only waits a fair wind to proceed to sea.

We are, with great respect to his Excellency and to you, Sir, your most humble servants,

STEPHEN MOYLAN,
JOHN GLOVER.

To Colonel Joseph Reed.

P. S. Please to put Captain Adams in mind of bringing his Sergeant and Gunner.

PROCLAMATIONS BY GENERAL HOWE.

A PROCLAMATION,

By his Excellency the Hon. WILLIAM HOWE, Major-General and Commander-in-Chief of all His Majesty's Forces within the Colonies lying on the ATLANTICK Ocean, from NOVA-SCOTIA to WEST-FLORIDA, inclusive, &c.

Whereas several of the inhabitants of this Town have lately absconded, to join, it is apprehended, His Majesty's enemies, assembled in open rebellion, I do, by virtue of the power and authority in me vested by His Majesty, forbid any person or persons whatever, not belonging to the Navy, to pass from hence, by water or otherwise, from the date hereof, without my order or permission, given in writing. Any person or persons detected in the attempt, or who may be retaken, upon sufficient proof thereof, shall be liable to military execution; and those who escape shall be treated as traitors, by seizure of their goods and effects. All masters of transports or other vessels, sailing from hence, unless under the immediate order of Samuel Graves, Esq., Vice-Admiral of the White, &c., &c., &c., or officer commanding His Majesty's ships of war on this service for the time being, are hereby strictly forbidden to receive any person or persons on board, without my order or permission, in writing. Any master or others, detected in disobeying this Proclamation, shall be liable to such fine and imprisonment as may be adjudged.

Given at Head-Quarters, in Boston, the 28th day of October, 1775.

By his Excellency WILLIAM HOWE, &c., &c., &c.

Whereas there is reason to believe that many persons, leaving this Town by permission, have, contrary to orders, conveyed away large sums in specie, to the great inconvenience of this garrison, and detriment of His Majesty's service in general, I do hereby give notice, that any person, having leave to depart from hence, by water or otherwise, who shall be detected in an attempt to carry away more than five Pounds in specie, as heretofore allowed, without first obtaining my particular permission for so doing, shall forfeit the whole sum discovered, and suffer such other fine and imprisonment as may be adjudged, according to the degree of offence. And for the more effectual discovery of those who shall presume to act contrary to this Proclamation, I do hereby order, that one-half of the moneys duly detected, on information, be given to the informer.

Given at Head-Quarters, in Boston, October 28, 1775.

By his Excellency WILLIAM HOWE, &c., &c., &c.

Whereas it is become the indispensable duty of every loyal and faithful citizen to contribute all in his power for the preservation of order and good government within the Town of Boston, I do hereby recommend that the inhabitants do immediately associate themselves, to be formed into Companies, under proper officers, selected by me from among the associators, to be solely employed within the precincts of the Town, and for the purposes above mentioned.

That this association be opened in the Council Chamber, under the direction of the Hon. Peter Oliver, Foster Hutchinson, and William Brown, Esquires, on Monday, the 30th day of October, 1775, and continued for four days following, that no one may plead ignorance of the same.

Out of the number of persons voluntarily entering into the association, all such as are able to discharge the duty required of them shall be properly armed, and an allowance of fuel and provisions be made to those requiring the same, equal to what is issued to His Majesty's troops within the garrison.

Given at Head-Quarters, at Boston, October 28, 1775.

An Association proposed to the loyal Citizens, agreeable to the Proclamation issued by his Excellency the Honourable Major-General WILLIAM HOWE, Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's Forces, &c., &c., &c.

We, His Majesty's loyal subjects of the Town of Boston, being sensible of the duty incumbent on us, "to do every thing in our power to support order and good government, as well as to contribute our aid to the internal security of the Town," now take this opportunity to profess our firm allegiance to His Majesty, and entire obedience to his Government and laws. From a disposition to continue quiet and obedient subjects, we have generally neglected the use of arms, while those of different characters and sentiments have been diligently endeavouring to improve themselves in that art. Upon these principles, we have remained in or fled to this Town; neither do we wish or design to leave it.

We consider it as our strongest duty to contribute our aid in promoting the peace, order, and security of the Town, and are willing to be employed to these good purposes, in the ways and means suited to our capacities. To that end, we cheerfully accept the offers of his Excellency, and now voluntarily associate for the purposes mentioned in his Proclamation; hereby promising, that such of us as he shall think proper or able to perform the duties therein required will be formed into Companies, as therein mentioned, and will, to the utmost of our power, faithfully perform those services, and punctually discharge the trust reposed in us; and that such as are not able to go through those duties will freely contribute our proportions, according to our abilities, to raise a sum of money for promoting this salutary purpose, to be applied to the use of those who are able, in such manner as the General, or those he may appoint, may think proper.

SAMUEL ADAMS TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Philadelphia, October 29, 1775.

MY DEAR SIR: I wrote to you a few days ago, by young Mr. Brown, and then acknowledged your favour of the 9th instant.

You tell me that a Committee of both Houses of Assembly is appointed, to bring in a Militia bill. I am of your opinion, that this matter requires great attention; and I wish, with you, to see our Militia formed not only into Battalions, but also Brigades. But should we not be cautious of putting them under the direction of the Generals of the Continent, at least until such a Legislative shall be established over all America, as every Colony shall consent to?

The Continental Army is very properly under the direction of the Continental Congress. Possibly, if ever such a Legislative should be formed, it may be proper that the whole military power, in every Colony, should be under its absolute direction. Be that as it may, will it not till then be prudent that the Militia of each Colony should be and remain under the sole direction of its own Legislative, which is and ought to be the sovereign and uncontrollable power within its own limits or territory? I hope our Militia will always be prepared to aid the forces of the Continent in this righteous opposition to tyranny; but this ought to be done upon an application to the Government of the Colony. Your Militia is your natural strength, which ought, under your own direction, to be employed for your own safety and protection. It is a misfortune to a Colony to become the seat of war. It is always dangerous to the liberties of the people to have an army stationed among them, over which they have no control. There is at present a necessity for it; the Continental Army is kept up within our Colony, most evidently, for our immediate security. But it should be remembered that history affords abundant instances of established armies making themselves the masters of those Countries which they were designed to protect. There may be no danger of this at present, but it should be a caution not to trust the whole military strength of a Colony in the hands of commanders independent of its established Legislative.

It is now in the power of our Assembly to establish many wholesome laws and regulations, which could not be done under the former administration of Government. Corrupt men may be kept out of places of public trust; the utmost circumspection, I hope, will be used in the choice of men for public officers. It is to be expected that some, who are void of the least regard to the publick, will put on the appearance, and even speak boldly the language of patriots, with the sole purpose of gaining the confidence of the publick, and securing the leaves and fishes for themselves, or their sons, or other connexions. Men who stand candidates for public posts should be critically traced in their views and pretensions; and though we would despise mean and base suspicion, there is a degree of jealousy which is absolutely necessary, in this degenerate state of mankind, and is indeed at all times to be considered as a political virtue. It is in your power, also, to prevent a plurality of places, incompatible with each other, being vested in the same persons. This our patriots have loudly and very justly complained of in time past; and it will be an everlasting disgrace to them, if they suffer the practice to continue. Care, I am informed, is taking to prevent the evil, with as little inconvenience as possible; but it is my opinion that the remedy ought to be deep and thorough.

After all, virtue is the surest means of securing the public liberty. I hope you will improve the golden opportunity of restoring the ancient purity of principles and manners in our Country. Every thing that we do or ought to esteem valuable depends upon it; for freedom or slavery, says an admired writer, will prevail in a Country, according as the disposition and manners of the inhabitants render them fit for the one or the other.

P. S. November 4. Yesterday, the colours of the Seventh Regiment were presented to the Congress; they were taken at Fort Chamblly. The garrison surrendered prisoners of war to Major Brown, of the Massachusetts forces, with one hundred and twenty-four barrels of gunpowder. May Heaven grant us further success.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Camp at Cambridge, October 29, 1775.

DEAR SIR: As you will be fully informed of every matter and thing relative to the Army, by your own Committee, I should not have given you the trouble of a letter at this time, were it not on Colonel Reed's account. He is, as I presume you may have heard, concerned in many of the principal causes now depending in the courts of Pennsylvania; and should those causes be pressed for trial, by his brethren of the profession, it will not only do him a manifest injury in his practice and future prospects, but afford room for complaint of his having neglected his business as a lawyer. This he thinks may be avoided, if some of you gentlemen of the Congress, in the course of conversation with the Chief Justice and others, would represent the disadvantages which must result to him, in case his causes should be hurried to trial.

That Colonel Reed is clever in his business, and useful to me, is too apparent to mention. I should do equal injustice, therefore, to his abilities and merit, were I not to add, that his services here are too important to be lost, and that I could wish to have him considered in this point of view by your honourable body, when occasion shall favour.

I shall take it kind of you to give me, from time to time, such authentick intelligence of the manœuvres of the Ministry as you think may be relied on. We get none but newspaper accounts here, and these very imperfect.

I am, with sincere esteem and regard, dear Sir, your affectionate friend and countryman,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp at Cambridge, October 29, 1775.

SIR: Since I had the pleasure of addressing you last, no material occurrence has happened in our camp. Deputy-Governour Griswold was desirous of taking the minutes of the conference with the Delegates of the Continental Congress with him, but they were so lengthy the time did not admit of it. As soon as they can be copied fair, they shall be transmitted.

I was somewhat surprised to find that, in one of the Regiments lately from Connecticut, a Doctor Cheney had been commissioned as a Surgeon. As I am persuaded he must have obtained this appointment by some misrepresentation, I think it proper to apprise you of his conduct and behaviour. Last summer, being suspected of fraudulent draughts upon the Commissary store, and other malpractices, it was proposed to bring him to a trial; which he evaded by requesting a dismission, which was granted him. After which, I am very credibly informed, he returned to his Colony, where he has propagated the most infamous reports of some of the General Officers—reports tending to impress the minds of the soldiery and Country with prejudices which would dissolve that confidence which ought to subsist between troops and their officers. Since he has returned to camp he has renewed his draughts upon the stores, but being immediately detected, I have ordered him under arrest, and hope sufficient evidence may be had to convict him, so as to rid the Army of him entirely. But I beg leave to intimate to you the propriety of observing some caution in giving commissions to persons who have been discharged, before you are apprized of the reasons of their leaving the Army.

I am glad to hear the Commissary-General is in a fair way of recovery. I hope it will not be long before we have the pleasure of seeing him in the camp.

I am, Sir, with much regard and esteem, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

P. S. Have you heard any thing of the lead proposed to be sent from Albany in August? Allow me to call your attention to this important article.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Camp at Cambridge, October 29, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 25th instant came safely to hand. Captain Whipple's voyage has been unfortunate; but it is not in our power to command success, though it is always our duty to deserve it. I hope he will be more successful in his intended voyage, if it is proposed in consequence of the direction of the Congress. I think it proper you should apprise him that two schooners have sailed from hence to the mouth of St. Lawrence River, upon the same service, commanded by Captain Broughton and Captain Selman. The signal which they have agreed on to distinguish each other, and to be known to their friends, is the ensign up to the main toppinglift. I agree with you that the attachment of our Bermudian brethren ought to recommend them to the favourable regards of their friends of America, and I doubt not it will. I shall certainly take a proper opportunity to make their case known to the honourable Continental Congress.

I shall be happy in every opportunity to show the regard and esteem with which I am your Honour's most obedient and very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Cooke, Rhode-Island.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO CAPTAIN COIT.

Camp at Cambridge, October 29, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 26th instant came to hand this moment. I am very sorry for the accident that happened, but we hope more care will be taken in future. The vessel was well recommended, and as she is a good sailer, we hope you will soon put yourself in a better. We expect a brig and a schooner, taken at Martha's Vineyard, will be in Plymouth in a few days. Major Tupper, who took them, requested they might be fitted out from hence, to which the advance of the season, &c., was objected; but the General consented he might take one of them, if he could man and fit her out at Plymouth immediately. If he should want one of them, he is to have her upon those terms; but you may have the other, if you can immediately shift into her, without loss of time; but we rather wish you should proceed in the Harrison, as she is fitted out, and sails well. There are a great many vessels on the coast, so that you may do your Country great service, and acquire much honour yourself, if you proceed immediately. It is under the consideration of Congress to give the officers and men one clear third of the whole, without any reserve; which I mention for your encouragement.

I wish you all possible success; and am, Sir, your very humble servant,

JOSEPH REED, Sec'y.

To Captain Coit, Plymouth.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO CAPTAIN EPHRAIM BOWEN, JUN.

Head-Quarters, October 29, 1775.

SIR: Captain Coit has informed me of the accident which happened to his vessel, through the stupidity and unskilfulness of the pilot. We wonder we did not hear from you or Martindale, by the return of this messenger, as we are quite at a loss about the ammunition to be got from hence, and the time of marching the men to Plymouth. However, as by all accounts the vessel is ready, I have ordered the men to have notice to march to-morrow, or as soon as the weather will permit.

A gentleman from Plymouth informs us this morning that they cannot spare the powder from the stock, unless it is immediately replaced. You will, therefore, be particular in your account, that we may know how to repay it. They speak of a brass field-piece which they cannot well spare. You will also leave it, unless it is indispensably necessary for the vessels; which we cannot suppose.

You may let Captain Martindale know that it is under consideration of Congress to allow a great share of prizes to the officers and men. We hope all will exert themselves for the common good of our Country. Two of our vessels sail out of Marblehead to-day, if the weather permits; two are already gone to the eastward.

I am, in haste, your very humble servant,

JOSEPH REED.

To Captain Ephraim Bowen, Jun., Plymouth.

A LIST OF THE ARMED VESSELS AND A STATE OF THEM.

At Salem and Marblehead.

1st. The Lynch, schooner, commanded by Captain Broughton.

2d. The Franklin, schooner, commanded by Captain Selman. Both the above vessels have sailed from Marblehead, with seventy men each, to the River St. Lawrence, per the special order of Congress. See their additional instructions.

3d. The Lee, schooner, commanded by Captain Manley, fitted out at Marblehead. Sailed October 29, on a cruise.

N. B. Captain Glover having waived his rank, and gone as Lieutenant, I have given him expectations that if he behaves well the General will give him the command of the next vessel fitted out from that place, if there should be any more.

4th. The Warren, schooner, commanded by Captain Adams, of the New-Hampshire troops; she sails the 30th. Each of the above vessels carries four four-pounders, with twenty rounds for each cannon, ten swivels, and twenty rounds. The two last vessels carry fifty men each.

Agents: Tristram Dallon, Esq., Newburyport; Joshua Wentworth, Esq., Portsmouth.

At Plymouth.

1st. The Washington. This is a fine vessel, mounts ten carriage-guns, and is commanded by Captain Martindale, of Rhode-Island. She expects to sail the 30th. The crew have not gone down, but I have wrote to General Greene to order them away as soon as the weather will admit. This vessel will carry eighty or one hundred men.

2d. The Harrison, schooner, commanded by Captain Coit, of Connecticut. She is now out. She carries fifty men, four carriage-guns, and ten swivels. Agent, William Watson, Esq., Plymouth.

Captain Bowen is at that place, superintending the outfit of the vessel. Each of the above vessels have a Surgeon—their boxes of medicine prepared at the Hospital.

Ammunition for the vessels from Marblehead has been sent from camp; that for those at Plymouth has been provided by the Town, but is to be replaced as soon as an account is given by Captain Brown. Two hundred barrels of flour at Salem, for the use of these vessels, in the hands of the Agent.

Mr. Moylan and Colonel Glover are at Salem and Marblehead, superintending the vessels which have been and are fitting out there.

Major Tupper having expressed some desire to go out in one of the vessels he has taken at Martha's Vineyard, has had leave, provided he can man and fit her out at Plymouth immediately; otherwise not, as the season is far advanced.

Captain Coit is out in the vessel first fitted, but thinks she is rather old and weak; he has leave to take one of the late captures, if he can do it without loss of time; but is advised rather to keep in the vessel fitted out till he can take a better.

Mr. Watson, Agent at Plymouth, has directions to advance moneys to Major Tupper and those who assisted him, for which he has the prizes, &c., in hand.

The Agents are directed by their instructions to send their bills, with the vouchers and an affidavit of the truth of their accounts, to Head-Quarters, before their bills are to be answered.

No bills are yet drawn or warrants given upon this account. I would humbly recommend that the Paymaster-General should open an account for the armed vessels, and charge them outfits; that the money, or value of prizes taken, be sent to him and credited—from which it will, at one view, be seen what is the profit or loss, and be kept distinct from the Army accounts.

Mr. Moylan having been employed in this service, and from his education understanding shipping, I should apprehend a very proper person to control the accounts that will be sent in for the fitting out those vessels.

JOSEPH REED.

October 29, 1775.

GENERAL SULLIVAN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Portsmouth, October 29, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: I arrived here in about twenty-four hours after I left you. Have collected powder so as to make up near thirty barrels, and have since been preparing to set an example to the other sea-ports, by setting the fleet at defiance. Upon my arrival, I was surprised to find that the boom so much talked of was not prepared; that the bridge intended for crossing from the main to the island, whereon stands the principal fort, (called Fort Washington,) had nothing more done than one pier sunk; that there was not a foot of the parapet over which a man might fire, or even see his enemy; that the embrasures at the fort were horizontal, as well as the top of the parapets; and, in short, not a moment's defence could be made, or annoyance given to the enemy, either with cannon or small-arms. I immediately collected a number of gondolas, moored them head and stern, laid pieces from one to the other, and plank across, and soon completed the bridge. I then turned my attention to the boom, and in two days got it across, but found it could not stand the rapidity of the tide; it soon broke, and we have again fixed it, so that I hope it may hold; but lest it should deceive us, I have taken a number of ships, and moored them above, with a great quantity of combustible matter in them, and shall to-morrow have them chained together, and, in case the boom should give way, set those vessels in flames. I have also a great number of fire rafts ready to let loose upon them. I have altered the works, and, I trust, made them fit for defence, and I doubt not will, in two or three days more, be completely prepared.

I am extremely thankful to your Excellency for the riflemen sent to our assistance; it has indeed filled our people with gratitude; and that my coming down was equally agreeable, your Excellency will see by the enclosed letter from their Committee of Safety.

I have seen some men that were on board the fleet after the destruction of Falmouth. Captain Mowat showed his orders, which were to burn all the sea-ports east of Boston. When he departed from Falmouth, he told them that he must go to Boston, and take a recruit of shells, carcasses, &c., and then would visit Portsmouth. I expect him daily, but in case he does not arrive in a few days, shall despair of his coming.

I must beg your Excellency to give me intelligence of any movement of their ships, with any orders you may think proper, with respect to my conduct while here. I shall give the earliest intelligence of any thing material; and remain, with great esteem, your Excellency's most obedient servant,

JOHN SULLIVAN.

His Excellency General Washington.

P. S. I enclose a letter sent from the eastward, which was enclosed in one to me, signed by one Major Goodwin, of Pownalborough. That infernal crew of Tories, who have laughed at the Congress, despised the friends to liberty, endeavoured to prevent fortifying this harbour, and strove to hurt the credit of the Continental money, and are yet endeavouring it, walk the streets here with impunity, and will, with a sneer, tell the people in the streets that all our liberty-poles will soon be converted into gallows. I must entreat your Excellency to give some directions what to do with those persons, as I am fully convinced that if an engagement was to happen, they would, with their own hands, set fire to the Town, expecting a reward from the Ministry for such hellish service. Some who have for a long time employed themselves in ridiculing and discouraging those who were endeavouring to save the Town, have now turned upon me; and are flying from one street to another, proclaiming that you gave me no authority or license to take ships to secure the entrance of the harbour, or did any thing more than send me here to see the Town reduced to ashes, if our enemies thought proper. Sir, I shall wait your directions respecting those villains, and see that they are strictly complied with by your Excellency's most obedient servant,

J. S.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE BOROUGH OF DERBY.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough of Derby, presented to His Majesty by Daniel Parker Coke, Esquire, Petitioner for the Borough of Derby.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough of DERBY.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Clergy, and principal Inhabitants of the Borough of Derby, truly sensible of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's wise and equitable administration, beg leave to approach your throne with professions of the most sincere gratitude and unalterable allegiance. Such professions we look upon as peculiarly necessary at this critical season, when a considerable number of your Majesty's subjects in America, inflamed by the artifices of a disappointed and desperate faction in our own Country, have bid defiance to the authority of the British Legislature, and have risen into actual and avowed rebellion. Relying entirely upon the justice and prudence of your Majesty and your Parliament, we presume not to prescribe the measures which may be thought proper for the suppression of these unwarrantable and treasonable proceedings. We are convinced that every method consistent with the dignity of Government and the preservation of the Constitution, will be used to prevent the effusion of blood, and to restore peace and unanimity to the Colonies. But if (as we have too much reason to apprehend) these deluded men should so far continue to abuse your Majesty's clemency, as to draw down upon themselves the awful vengeance of the Parent State, we do, in the most solemn manner, assure your Majesty, that we shall always willingly exert our utmost endeavours to maintain inviolate the honour of your crown, and to assert the authority of the British Parliament in every part of your Majesty's Dominions.

That your Majesty may long reign in the hearts of a free, happy, and united people, is the earnest prayer of your Majesty's ever faithful subjects and servants.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM PHILADELPHIA TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, DATED OCTOBER 30, 1775.

Orders are given to fortify our river, that no ship of war can come up without much hot work, and the Militia still continue to exercise with as much assiduity as ever. All the commissioned officers for the new standing army are nearly appointed, and it is thought the Companies will be filled up directly, as the people, for months past, have been crying out for the measure. A very considerable quantity of gunpowder is lately arrived in New-England, which, when it reaches the camp, it is expected to bring on a very warm day, however late we are now in autumn.

The people in Maryland and Virginia have begun to dig up their tobacco-houses, and lixiviate the earth for nitre; and what would seem incredible, had a person of less credibility than Doctor Boyd, of Baltimore, related it, two ounces of saltpetre have been obtained from two quarts of loam. This success has excited a perfect enthusiasm throughout the Country, and the manufacture of nitre will be every where domestick. I know of three lead mines myself, whose ore yields seventy-five per cent., and we have assurance of as much copper from the Jerseys as will furnish us with as many field-pieces as we can wish to employ.

JOSEPH TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, October 30, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: I have been very unhappily detained here by sickness, which has been very severe; but, by the goodness of God, is now going off; and as that goes off, my anxiety about my business increases. I sent, some time ago, a request to your Excellency for a supply of cash, without which nothing can be done; that cash I have not received, which, possibly, was well judged in my friends, considering the then alarming state of my health. I have now procured Captain Wadsworth, the bearer, to wait on your Excellency in my name and stead, to request a warrant to the Paymaster-General for one hundred and twenty thousand dollars; the greatest part of which is now due to my agents in New-York and this Colony, and the rest will be needed by them immediately, to make the necessary supplies for the Army within my department for the coming winter. I hope to be able to attend my duty in camp again, but have been and am reduced so low that it must be two or three weeks first; however, your Excellency may depend on my attendance, as soon as it can be thought prudent for me to venture.

I am, with the greatest respect and esteem, your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

JOSEPH TRUMBULL, Com'y Gen.

His Excellency General Washington.

GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Lebanon, October 30, 1775.

SIR: I have received your two last favours, and thankfully accept the early intelligence given by that of the 24th instant, with the deposition therein transmitted to me. On this occasion I ask your favour to recommend and send to me a skilful Engineer, if one can be spared, to view the situation and circumstances of our port of New-London, to consider and direct the most eligible manner of fortifying the same, whether by fixed or floating batteries, and to make proper estimates of the expense.

Our gentlemen, sent to represent this Colony at the conference with the Committee from the honourable general Congress, are returned, and have given me a verbal account of the proceedings and report thereon. The want of time prevented their bringing a copy; please to forward one to me by this opportunity.

The Commissary-General hath been very sick with the dysentery since his coming hither; by divine goodness he is in a good way of recovery; hope he will be able to return, as soon as may be, with safety to his health.

I am, with great esteem and regard, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

His Excellency General Washington.

At a County Congress held at Fairfield, within and for the County of Fairfield, Connecticut, on the 30th day of October, Anno Domini 1775.

Gold Selleck Silliman, Esq., Chairman.

Whereas complaint and information hath this day been made to this Congress, against James Hayt, Jun., of Stratford, in said County, for that the said James Hayt, Jun., hath, within two months last past, imported a quantity of India Tea into said Stratford, from New-York, knowingly; and, also, that the said James Hayt, Jun., hath, within said two months, taken in and carried freight on board his boat, for one Arnold Glover, of Newtown, in said County, a person gazetted "inimical to the liberties of this Country."

And whereas those Members of said Congress, who belong to said Stratford, are of the Committee of Observation in that Town, they, and the said James Hayt, jointly move that said Congress take cognizance of said complaint. After long debate upon jurisdiction, voted in the affirmative.

Whereupon, the parties exhibited the evidence and proofs in the case, and were fully heard in their pleas and allegations. On consideration whereof, Voted, nem. con., That the said James Hayt is guilty of the last article of charge in said complaint, viz: that he hath taken in and carried freight on board his Boat, for Arnold Glover, of Newtown, in said County—a person duly published in a publick Gazette as being inimical to the liberties of this Country.

Ordered to be published in the Gazette, that James Hayt, Jun., of Stratford, is guilty of a violation of the Continental Association, with the above proceedings, to the end that all such foes to the rights of British America may be publickly known and universally contemned, as enemies of American liberty.

Personally appeared said James Hayt, and acknowledged his guilt, expressed his sorrow for it, and promised amendment for the future, and prayed to be restored to the good opinion and favour of his acquaintance and countrymen.

Voted, That the Committee for said County be appointed and empowered, and they are hereby appointed and empowered, to receive, examine, and approve of such confession as to them shall appear satisfactory.

Examined: ANDREW ROWLAND, Clerk.

Whereas I have been guilty of violating the Continental Association, as mentioned in the minutes of the County Congress; I acknowledge said judgment to be right and just, am sorry for my fault, promise reformation, and humbly desire that I may be restored to the friendship of my Country; and I hereby promise I will faithfully observe the doings of said Continental Association, and will use my faithful endeavours to carry the same into execution in all the parts thereof. As witness my hand, this 25th of November, 1775.

JAMES HAYT, JUN.

We approve of the above and foregoing Confession, and desire that Mr. Hayt may be restored to the friendship of his Country.

JONATHAN STURGIS,
THADDEUS BURR,
JOB BARTRAM,
ANDREW ROWLAND, } Committee-Men.

GENERAL GATES TO GENERAL SULLIVAN.

Head-Quarters, October 30, 1775.

SIR: His Excellency General Washington directs me to acquaint that it is necessary for the publick service that you be at Cambridge on Wednesday night, as the vessels that were expected at Portsmouth are said to be returned to Boston. I apprehend they have laid aside their design upon Portsmouth for the present. The General is now confident, from your vigilance, that the enemy can only meet with disgrace, should they dare to make their appearance before that Town.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

Brigadier-General Sullivan.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE GENERAL ASSEMBLY OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Camp at Cambridge, October 30, 1775.

SIR: At the instance and request of the Committee of Cape Ann, I despatched Major Mason to survey and make a report of such works of defence as were already constructed there, and how far any new one might be necessary. From his observations and account, I find that a battery may be erected, to the great advantage and security of the place; but the small stock of artillery, belonging to the Army, prevents me from supplying the materials for this purpose. I have therefore thought proper to acquaint you with the circumstances of the case, that you may make the best provision for this necessity; and have also sent Major Mason down to you, that particular inquiry, if desired, may be made. Be pleased to communicate this information to your honourable House.

I am, Sir, with great respect,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The Hon. James Warren, Esq., Speaker, &c.

EDMUND RANDOLPH TO THE COMMITTEE OF ARUNDEL.

Head-Quarters, Camp at Cambridge, October 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have it in command from his Excellency to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 24th instant, returning the names of six persons who have unnecessarily absented themselves from their duty in the American Army. He cannot but esteem this information as a proof of your attachment to the general interest and common cause.

I am, Gentlemen, with great respect, &c.,
E. RANDOLPH, Aid-de-Camp.

To the Committee of Arun-del.

COLONEL JOSEPH REED TO COLONEL GLOVER AND STEPHEN MOYLAN.

Head-Quarters, October 30, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Your favour of the 28th came last evening. Captain Adams is ordered to march immediately. Colonel Burbeck is preparing the ammunition, and I hope every thing will be got in such order as to have them without delay. The General approves of the detaining the twenty men. The Captain (Glover) will, if he behaves as we expect, have a vessel soon, when he will have it in his power to oblige a friend. Mr. Randolph will, with this, forward the accounts of the rations, and also a set of the instructions, signed agreeable to your desire. I am just setting out for Philadelphia, so that in future you will direct to Mr. Randolph.

You have both, Gentlemen, my best wishes of health and happiness, and am your most obedient and very humble servant,

J. REED, Secretary.

To Col. Glover and Stephen Moylan, Esq.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read November 7, 1775.]

Camp at Cambridge, October 30, 1775.

SIR: The information which the gentlemen, who have lately gone from hence, can give the Congress, of the state and situation of the Army, would have made a letter unnecessary, if I did not suppose there would be some anxiety to know the intentions of the Army on the subject of their re-enlistment. Agreeable to the advice of those gentlemen, and my opinion, I immediately began by directing all such officers as proposed to continue, to signify their intentions as soon as possible. A great number of the returns are come in, from which I find that a very great proportion of the officers of the rank of Captains, and under, will retire; from present appearances I may say half; but at least one-third. It is with some concern, also, that I observe that many of the officers who retire, discourage the continuance of the men, and, I fear, will communicate the infection to them. Some have advised that those officers who decline the service should be immediately dismissed; but this would be very dangerous and inconvenient. I confess I have great anxieties upon this subject; though I still hope the pay and terms are so advantageous, that interest, and I hope also a regard to their Country, will retain a greater proportion of the privates than their officers. In so important a matter I shall esteem it my indispensable duty not only to act with all possible prudence, but to give the most early and constant advice of my progress.

A supply of clothing, equal to our necessities, would greatly contribute to the encouragement and satisfaction of the men; in every point of view it is so important, that I beg leave to call the attention of the Congress to it in a particular manner.

A Sergeant has just come in from Bunker's Hill, but brings no important news.

I have the honour to be, with all possible respect, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

ORDERS BY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, October 25, 1775.

(Parole, Rutledge.)

(Countersign, Godsden.)

Otway Byrd, Esq., is appointed to act as Aid-de-Camp to Major-General Lee, during the absence of Samuel Griffen, Esq., and is to be obeyed as such.

For the future, Peas and Beans are to be valued by the Commissary-General at six Shillings, lawful money, a bushel.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 26, 1775.

(Parole, Camden.)

(Countersign, Burke.)

As several of the Officers have not yet signified their intentions respecting the requisitions contained in the orders of the 22d instant, and as the nature of the case will admit of no delay, the General directs that every Officer in the Army do forthwith declare to his Colonel or commanding Officer of the Regiment to which he belongs, whether he will or will not continue in the service until the last day of December, 1776, if the Continental Congress shall think it expedient to retain him so long. This declaration must be made in explicit terms, and not conditional, as the Congress are to be advised thereof immediately, in order that proper steps may be taken to provide other Officers and other men, if necessary. The times, and the importance of the great cause we are engaged in, allow no room for hesitation and delay. When life, liberty, and property, are at stake; when our Country is in danger of being a melancholy scene of bloodshed and desolation; when our Towns are laid in ashes, and innocent women and children driven from their peaceful habitations, exposed to the rigour of an inclement season, and to the hand of charity, perhaps, for a support; when calamities like these are staring us in the face, and a brutal savage enemy, more so than was ever yet found in a civilized nation, are threatening us, and every thing we hold dear, with destruction from foreign Troops, it little becomes the character of a soldier to shrink from danger, and condition for new terms. It is the General's intention to indulge both Officers and Soldiers, who compose the new Army, with furloughs, to be absent a reasonable time; but it must be done in such a manner as not to injure the service, or weaken the Army too much at once. The General also thinks that he can take upon himself to assure the Officers and Soldiers of the new Army, that they will receive their pay once a month, regularly, after the terms of their present enlistments are expired. The Major of each Brigade is furnished with the form of a return to be made to the Colonel or commanding Officer of each Regiment, of the determination of the Commissioned Officers therein; and it is expected that a return thereof will be made on Saturday morning, without fail, as no longer time can be allowed.

The General is willing to grant one month's pay to such Regiments and Corps as are in want of money for the purchase of necessaries, and abstracts are to be made out for the month of September accordingly.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 27, 1775.

(Parole, Ward.)

(Countersign, Greene.)

For making out the pay abstracts for the month of September, the Colonels and commanding Officers of Corps are not to include any Officer or Soldier on the detachment with Colonel Arnold, as he drew full pay, for that month, for every man under his command.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 28, 1775.

(Parole, Putnam.)

(Countersign, Heath.)

The General Court-Martial, whereof Colonel Bridge was President, is dissolved.

It is recommended to the Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers, whose pay will be drawn in consequence of last Thursday's orders, (especially to those whose attachment to the glorious cause in which they are engaged, and which will induce them to continue in the service another year,) to lay out their money in Shirts, Shoes, Stockings, and a good pair of Leather Breeches, and not in Coats and Waistcoats, as it is intended that the new Army shall be clothed in uniform. To effect which, the Congress will lay in goods upon the best terms they can be bought any where for ready money, and will sell them to the Soldiers without any profit; by which means a uniform Coat and Waistcoat will come cheaper to them than any other clothing of the like kind can be bought. A number of Tailors will be immediately set to work to make regimentals for those brave men who are willing, at all hazards, to defend their invaluable rights and privileges.

The undernamed men, in Colonel Whitcomb's Regiment, to be sent directly to the Quartermaster-General, viz: David Clark, Samuel Barrett, John Farmer, James Farmer, Daniel Fleeman, Amos Brown, Joshua Holt, Philip Overlook, and Joseph Champman, to burn charcoal for the use of the Army. Five wood-cutters, from each Brigade, to be added to those already ordered to cut fire-wood, under the direction of the Quartermaster-General.

A General Court-Martial to sit Monday morning, at nine o'clock, in Cambridge, to try such prisoners as shall be brought before them. Evidences and persons concerned to attend the Court.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 31, 1775.

(Parole, Cambridge.)

(Countersign, Dedham.)

As many Officers and others have begun to enlist men for the Continental Army, without orders from Head-Quarters, the General desires that an immediate stop be put thereto, that the enlistments be returned, and that no person, for the future, presume to interfere in this matter, till there is a proper establishment of Officers, and those Officers authorized and instructed in what manner to proceed. Commissions in the new Army are not intended merely for those who can enlist the most men, but for such gentlemen as are most likely to deserve them. The General would therefore not have it even supposed, nor our enemies encouraged to believe, that there is a man in this Army (except a few under particular circumstances) who will require to be twice asked to do what his honour, his personal liberty, the welfare of his Country, and the safety of his family, so loudly demand of him; when motives, powerful as these, conspire to call men into service, and when that service is rewarded with higher pay than private soldiers ever yet met with in any former war, the General cannot nor will not, until he is convinced to the contrary, harbour so despicable an opinion of their understanding and zeal for the cause, as to believe they will desert it. As the Congress have been at so much pains to buy goods to clothe the Army, and the Quartermaster-General at great trouble to collect, upon the best terms he can, such articles as are wanting for this purpose, he is directed to reserve those goods for those brave soldiers who are determined to stand forth in defence of their Country another year; and that he may be able to distinguish these from such as mean to quit the service at the end of their present engagement, he will be furnished with the enlistments. Any person, therefore, (negroes excepted, which the Congress do not incline to enlist again,) coming with a proper order, and will subscribe the enlistment, shall be immediately supplied. That every Non-Commissioned Officer and Soldier may know upon what terms it is he engages, he is hereby informed that he is to be paid by the calendar month, at the present rates, to wit: forty-eight Shillings to the Sergeants, forty-four to the Corporals, Drums and Fifes, and forty to the Privates; which pay it is expected will be regularly distributed every month.

That each man is to furnish his own Arms, and good ones; or, if Arms is found him, he is to allow six Shillings for the use thereof during the campaign.

That he is to pay for his clothing, which will be laid in for him upon the best terms it can be bought; to do which, a stoppage of ten Shillings a month will be made until the clothing is paid for.

That two Dollars will be allowed every one of them who brings a good Blanket of his own with him, and will have liberty to carry it away at the end of the campaign.

That the present allowances of Provisions will be continued; and every man who enlists shall be indulged in a reasonable time, to visit his family in the course of the winter; to be regulated in such a manner as not to weaken the Army or injure the service.

The Quartermaster-General, in preparing Barracks for the Officers, is to assign one to each complete Corps under the new establishment.

ADDRESS OF THE COUNTY OF BERWICK.

Address of the Freeholders of the County of Berwick, presented to His Majesty by Colonel James Pringle, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Freeholders of the County of BERWICK, in general meeting assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Enjoying under your Majesty all the blessings which a mild and equal Government can bestow, we observe, with inexpressible grief, an unnatural and ungrateful rebellion broke out in part of your Majesty's Colonies, threatening all the evils of civil war.

With equal concern and surprise, we observe numbers of your Majesty's subjects in America, who have suffered no actual oppression, misled by apprehensions of danger to their freedom from Great Britain, the seat of liberty itself; and we behold with detestation the arts that have been used to seduce, and by which the contagion has been spread so wide.

Though the forbearance and lenity which your Majesty has shown, and the conciliatory advances made by the wisdom of Parliament, fully evince how ready your Majesty has been, not only to redress all grievances, but also to quiet apprehensions; yet, instead of making such submission as is due to your Majesty's dignity, and the supremacy of the British Parliament, an open rebellion is raised by these deluded people, undeserving of the blessings they enjoy, ungrateful to the power by which they have been reared and protected.

These considerations call upon all your Majesty's loyal subjects, and, among others, upon the Freeholders of this County, to approach your Majesty's royal person, assuring your Majesty, that with their lives and fortunes they are ready to support the honour and dignity of your Majesty's crown, and the supremacy of the British Legislature; confident that the wisdom of your Majesty's councils, your paternal love for all your subjects, and the united force and valour of your Kingdoms, will have their full and proper exertion.

Signed by Sir John Stuart, of Allenbank, Baronet, Præses of the meeting, by their order, and in their presence, at Greenlaw, the 31st day of October, 1775.

JOHN STUART.

ADDRESS OF THE ANCIENT BOROUGH OF HADDINGTON.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the ancient Borough of Haddington, East-Lothian, presented to His Majesty by Sir George Suttie, Baronet, Representative in Parliament for the County of Haddington.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's faithful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of your ancient Borough of Haddington, East-Lothian, in Common Council assembled, filled with the deepest concern at the unjustifiable and rebellious proceedings of some of your Majesty's Colonies in America, beg leave to approach your royal throne, to testify our entire disapprobation and abhorrence of them, with the most solemn assurances that we will support your Majesty with our lives and fortunes, in maintaining the authority of the Legislature, which, we conceive, does and ought to extend over every part of the British Dominions.

With regret and indignation we see Colonies, which owe their existence and every blessing that attended their late prosperous situation, to this their Parent Country, unnaturally regardless of the fostering hand that raised and supported them, and affecting distinctions in their dependance not founded in law, or in the Constitution of Great Britain.

We are convinced by the experienced clemency of your Majesty's Government, that no endeavours will be wanting, to induce our deluded fellow-subjects to return to their obedience to that constitution which our ancestors bled to establish, and which has flourished pure, uninterrupted, under the mild Government of the House of Hanover.

May that Being who governs the universe so direct your Majesty's councils and measures, that from the present confusion order may arise, and peace be again restored.

That your Majesty may long reign over an happy and united people, is the earnest prayer of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most faithful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the Borough of Haddington, in Common Council assembled.

In name and by appointment of the Council.

JAMES DUDGEON, Provost.

ADDRESS OF THE FREEHOLDERS, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF HADDINGTON.

Address of the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heritors of the County of Haddington, presented to His Majesty by Sir George Suttie, Baronet, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heritors of the County of HADDINGTON, convened at their Quarter Sessions, the thirty-first day of OCTOBER, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, Commissioners of Supply, and Heritors of the County of Haddington, being under the deepest concern at that rebellion which has lately broke out in some of your Majesty's Colonies in America, humbly beg leave to address your Majesty on this most critical occasion, and to testify our disapprobation of these unjustifiable proceedings, with the most solemn assurances that we will, to the utmost of our power, support your Majesty in suppressing the said rebellion, and in maintaining the authority and dignity of the King and Parliament of Great Britain.

With much regret we see Colonies which owe their existence, their boasted opulence, and every blessing they enjoyed in their late prosperous state, to the unwearied and tender care of their Parent Country, regardless of the hand that has reared and supported them, at the expense of so much blood and treasure, and ungratefully attempting to throw off their dependance on their Mother Country.

From the experience we have had of the clemency of your Majesty's Government, and the temper and moderation of both Houses of Parliament, we are fully satisfied that no endeavours will be wanting to induce our deluded fellow-subjects to return to that allegiance which they owe to your Majesty, and to that obedience which they owe to the Constitution, which our ancestors judged no expense too great to establish, and which has flourished, pure and uninterrupted, under the mild Government of the House of Hanover.

May that Being who governs the universe direct your Majesty's measures and councils, so that from the present confusion order may arise, and peace be again restored; and that your Majesty may long reign over an happy and united people, is the earnest prayer of your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects.

Signed by our Præses, and by our authority.

GEORGE BROWN, Præses.

ADDRESS OF THE BURGH OF ABERBROTHOCK.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of Aberbrothock, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of Aberbrothock, in Common Council assembled, should think ourselves wanting, both in duty and gratitude to the best of Sovereigns, did we omit, on the present critical occasion, to join with the rest of your Majesty's loyal subjects in giving publick testimony of our detestation and abhorrence of the present unnatural rebellion in some of your Majesty's Colonies in North-America, as well as of those wicked artifices used by designing men to instigate and support it.

While we lament the fatal consequences of the infatuation of your Majesty's deluded subjects in America, and wish for nothing more ardently than an honourable, speedy, and lasting reconciliation between Great Britain and her Colonies, we cannot forbear to express our approbation of the measures hitherto pursued by your Majesty, in order to bring back the Americans to their duty and allegiance, and to an acknowledgment of the supremacy of our King and Parliament over every part of the British Dominions; and as we rest with the most entire confidence on your Majesty's wisdom, that such measures will, in future, be followed as shall be most proper for speedily effecting so desirable a purpose, we most heartily assure your Majesty of our best endeavours to support the honour and independence of your crown, and the legal and constitutional authority of Parliament, against every disturbance and opposition whatever.

We pray that God may bless your Majesty's councils with wisdom, restore peace to every part of the British Empire, and that your Majesty may long reign in the hearts of a free, united, and happy people.

Signed in our name, in our presence, and at our appointment; and the common seal of the Burgh is hereunto affixed, by DAVID GRIEG, Provost.

Aberbrothock, October 31, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE FREEHOLDERS, ETC., OF THE SHIRE OF DUMFRIES.

Address of the Justices of the Peace, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the Shire of Dumfries, presented to His Majesty by Major Robert Laurie, their Representative in Parliament.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, the Justices of the Peace, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the Shire of Dumfries, in Quarter Session assembled, humbly beg leave to approach your throne with earnest assurances of our steady attachment to your Majesty's person and Government, and firm resolution to support the honour and dignity of your crown, and the Constitution of our Country, against all open and disguised enemies.

We have, with indignation and abhorrence, beheld a set of factious men in your Majesty's American Dominions, endeavouring to set in opposition the executive and legislative part of the Constitution, and, under the pretext of grants derived from the one, to claim absolution from their allegiance due to the other. While they endeavour to assert principles so totally subversive of sound government by force of arms, we cannot look on the profession they make, of reverence to your Majesty, in any other light than as empty sounds; and we consider them as equally enemies to your Majesty, the liberty of their fellow-subjects, and the peace and tranquillity of the British Empire.

Actuated by these sentiments, we conceive it our indispensable duty to exert every effort to protect your Majesty's sacred person, to re-establish peace and concord throughout the British Empire, to give vigour and energy to the operation of law, and to assert and vindicate that system of government that has been handed down to us by our ancestors.

In the present crisis, we must lament that the part of Britain, in which we live, is destitute of the internal defence which a well-regulated militia would produce. Had we been possessed of such a safeguard to your Majesty's Government, and the liberty and tranquillity of the Country, the military force that may be proper for our security might have operated against the enemies of your Majesty, in every part of your Dominions.

That your Majesty may be long preserved to disappoint the designs of your open and secret enemies, that you may transmit to your posterity the British Empire, undivided, and secured by that excellent Constitution by which it has hitherto been cemented; and that your Majesty's family may continue, to the end of time, to reign over a free and happy people, is the earnest wish of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most dutiful and devoted subjects.

Signed in name and by appointment of the meeting, in their presence, by

ROBERT GRIERSON, Præses.

October 31, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF HALIFAX, IN THE COUNTY OF YORK.

Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Manufacturers, and other Inhabitants of the Town and neighbourhood of Halifax, in the County of York, transmitted to the Earl of Dartmouth, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Clergy, Merchants, Manufacturers, and other Inhabitants of the Town and neighbourhood of HALIFAX, in the County of YORK.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Permit us to express our grateful sense of the blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's auspicious reign, and our detestation of the conduct of your Majesty's Colonists in America, now in open rebellion against your crown and the well-founded laws of this realm.

The mild and prudent measures pursued by your Majesty to awake them from their insatiation to a due sense of their allegiance, would, we hoped, have had the desired effect; but we fear they have been too much countenanced by some of our own countrymen, whose seditious practices we totally disavow; assuring your Majesty, that we will at all times exert ourselves, to the utmost of our power, in support of your Majesty and the measures which the wisdom of your Parliament may think expedient for establishing the legislative rights of the Mother Country over all her Colonies.

We think it our duty to inform your Majesty, that the trade of this Town and neighbourhood (notwithstanding the assertions of ill designing men to the contrary) is in a more flourishing state than for many years past, and that the people are fully employed in every branch of the manufactures.

May the Almighty grant success to your Majesty's endeavours for effecting a speedy restoration of peace and tranquillity, and may your reign be very long and glorious, over a free and united people.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGHES OF DUNFERMLINE, INVERKEITHING, AND CULROSS.

Address of the Boroughs of Dunfermline, Inverkeithing, and Culross, presented to His Majesty by Lieutenant-Colonel Archibald Campbell, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Boroughs of DUNFERMLINE, INVERKEITHING, and CULROSS.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, presume to approach your throne with the deepest and most grateful sense of the manifold blessings which, under the dispensation of Divine Providence, we have happily enjoyed during the course of your Majesty's auspicious reign.

It is with equal sorrow and surprise that we find ourselves called upon to express our abhorrence and detestation of those rebellious violences into which some of your Majesty's subjects on the Continent of America have been unhappily deluded, and to such a degree as to manifest a desire of shaking off all dependance upon that Legislature which they have so often petitioned in time of distress, by which they were so frequently and so effectually relieved, and by whose favour and under whose protection their prosperity and opulence have been carried to so great a height.

It is the sincere and ardent wish of these your ancient and faithful Boroughs, that peace and good order in that part of your Empire may be speedily and happily re-established by the wisdom of your Majesty's councils, and by the success of your arms in support of your crown and dignity, and the authority of the British Legislature. And we beg leave to assure your Majesty that we are ready, from every principle of loyalty and attachment, to contribute cheerfully thereto, by the utmost exertions in our power.

May it please your Majesty, we are your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects.

Signed by order, and in the name of our respective Councils:

JOHN KIRK, Chief Magistrate of Dunfermline.

ARCH. CAMPBELL, Chief Magistrate of Inverkeithing.

JAMES JOHNSTON, Chief Magistrate of Culross.

Dunfermline, October, 1775.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

Committee Chamber, October 31, 1775.

The Sub-Committee appointed to receive and determine on applications for liberty to ship Provisions, &c., reported, that Captain Zebulon Baker, of Sloop Betsy, had applied for permission to load Flour, &c., for Kennebeck, and that they had forbid any immediate proceeding therein, and referred the determination thereon to the General Committee.

The Committee examined the certificate produced by Captain Baker, and some difficulties arising, on a full consideration thereof, and it appearing that the said vessel is owned by Mr. Abiel Wood, of Pownalborough, who stands convicted of being an enemy to his Country, by the Committee of the place where he lives; and Captain Baker's answers to sundry questions proposed by the Sub-Committee not having been satisfactory:

Resolved, That as it is the duty of all persons and Committees to concur with their brethren in opinion and practice, the Sub-Committee have judged well in not permitting said vessel to be loaded; and that, in the opinion of this Committee, we ought not to have any dealings or connections whatever with said Abiel Wood, or his agents in his behalf.

Mr. Pelataiah Webster appeared, on notice, and having given what information he could respecting Mr. Wood, and produced the proceedings of certain other Committees in Mr. Wood's case, this Committee are of opinion the said proceedings deserve no attention, and adhere to their judgment.

November 7, 1775.

Ordered, That the proceedings of this Committee, in the case of Sloop Betsey, Zebulon Baker Master, owned by Mr. Abiel Wood, be immediately published.

Extracts from the Minutes of the Committee for the City and Liberties of Philadelphia:

J. B. SMITH, Secretary.

PROCLAMATION BY GOVERNOUR TRYON.

By his Excellency WILLIAM TRYON, Esquire, Captain-General and Governour-in-Chief in and over the Province of NEW-YORK, and the Territories depending thereon, in AMERICA, Chancellor and Vice-Admiral of the same.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the General Assembly of this Province stands prorogued to the first day of November next, I have thought fit for His Majesty's service to prorogue, and I do, by and with the advice of His Majesty's Council, further prorogue the said General Assembly to the sixth day of December next; of which all His Majesty's subjects concerned therein are required to take notice, and govern themselves accordingly.

Given under my hand and seal at arms, in the City of New-York, the thirty-first day of October, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five, in the sixteenth year of the reign of our Sovereign Lord, George the Third, by the grace of God, of Great Britain, France, and Ireland, King, Defender of the Faith, and so forth.

WILLIAM TRYON.

By his Excellency's command:

SAMUEL BAYARD, JUN., Deputy Secretary.

God save the King.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Tuesday, October 31, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Deputy Chairman.

Oliver Templeton,	Joseph Totten,	Garret Abeel,
Gerardus Duyckinck,	Colonel Hyer,	John Ray, Jr.
Frederick Jay,	Andrew Breasted,	Lancaster Burling,
John Inlay,	Samuel Johnson,	Nicholas Roosevelt,
Eleazer Miller,	Leon'd Lisperard, Jr.	John Anthony,
John Ramsey,	Abraham P. Lott,	John Woodward,
George Janeway,	Daniel Dunscomb,	Jeremiah Brower,
Francis Bassett,	Colonel Lasher,	William Denning,
Gabriel W. Ludlow,	John Berrian,	John Broome,
Patrick Dennis,	Comfort Sands,	J. B. Moore,
David Beckman,	Henry Roome,	Peter P. Van Zandt,
Abr'm Brinckerhoff,	Captain Pell,	Jacobus Van Voorhies,
Abraham De Peyster,	Captain Anthony,	William W. Ludlow,
Evert Bancker,	Petrus Byvanck,	Thomas Buchanan.
William Walton,

Ordered, That Lancaster Burling, Patrick Dennis, and Mr. Lott, be a Committee to wait on Mrs. Jarvis. They report, that Mr. French's charge is without foundation.

Ordered, That Captain French and Thomas Pratt be desired to attend this Committee, at the next meeting, with their evidences relative to a charge exhibited by said Captain French, against Mr. Pratt, of having spoken disrespectfully of the Congress, and also threatening to set fire to this Town, in case troops should arrive here.

Committee appointed to take in subscriptions to establish a Manufactory, to employ the Poor of the City and County of New-York: Evert Bancker, Leonard Lisperard, Jun., Gabriel W. Ludlow, John Reade—East Ward.

EBENEZER HAZARD TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Constitutional Post-Office, New-York, October 31, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I have it in charge, from the Comptroller of the Constitutional Post-Office, to inform you that the keeper of the ferry across the North River charges our rider for ferriage, while he allows the rider who goes from the old office to cross gratis, pursuant to the directions of an act of Parliament. The Albany post likewise complains of a charge of ferriage between Paulus Hook and Albany. In order to prevent this in future, I am directed to request the interposition of your authority, which I doubt not will be readily granted, when it is considered that the posts have always hitherto crossed the ferries without charge; and even now, some keepers of ferries (among whom is Mr. Ellsworth, at Paulus Hook) permit them to pass in that manner.

I beg leave to hint, that perhaps it may be proper to direct that the post-riders be not delayed at the ferries, but taken across as soon as possible after they make application for that purpose.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
EBENEZER HAZARD.

ALBANY (NEW-YORK) COMMITTEE.

Albany Committee Chamber, October 30, 1775.

The Committee, agreeable to a Resolve of the 26th instant, took into consideration the Resolution of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, relative to choosing twelve Deputies to represent this County in Provincial Congress, on the 14th day of November next. And thereupon, and in consequence of an explanatory letter from the Deputies of this County:

Resolved, That an election be held in every District in this County, for the purpose aforesaid; and that the Committees of said Districts hold the election, and make a return of the poll on the 10th day of November next, to this Committee.

And further Resolved, That the said election be held on the 7th November next, at the usual places of elections for annual officers; and that the respective District Committees, by advertisement, give previous notice to the Freeholders, of the time and place of such election.

Resolved, That this Committee shall be dissolved on the 21st day of December next; and that there be an election held in every District of this County, on the 7th day of November next, for Committees to represent the County from the said 21st day of December next, until the fourth Tuesday in May next, unless a reconciliation between Great Britain and America shall sooner take place. That the District of Kinderhook shall have four Members.

District of Kinderhook, November 2, 1775.

In pursuance to the foregoing Resolution, the Committee for the District of Kinderhook do hereby give notice to all such of the Inhabitants as are qualified to vote for Representatives in General Assembly, that they will attend at the dwelling-house of Cornelius Vosburgh, innholder, near the Dutch Church, within the said District, on Tuesday, the 7th day of November instant, at eight o'clock in the morning, for the purpose of taking their polls for Deputies to represent them in Provincial Congress, as well as Members to represent them in the General Committee for this County.

As those Representatives may be of the utmost consequence, the Committee of this District hope and request that the meeting may be as numerous as possible, in order that the collective sense of the Freeholders may be known and transmitted to the General Committee.

PETER VOSBURGH,
PETER S. VAN ALSTINE,
H. V. SCHAACK,
MATTHEW GOES, JUN.

COL. EDMUND RANDOLPH TO CAPT. EPHRAIM BOWEN, JUN.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, October 31, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 29th instant came to hand this morning. Colonel Reed (to whom it was addressed) being gone for some short time to Philadelphia, I opened it, and communicated its contents to his Excellency General Washington. He highly approves of your assiduity and diligence in procuring the cannon, but thinks that the Governour's order, mentioned in your postscript, ought to be returned, as there will be no difficulty in renewing it, should any necessity appear.

His Excellency desires that you may continue to inform him of any circumstance occurring in your department, worthy of communication.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

EDMUND RANDOLPH, Aid-de-Camp.

To Captain Ephraim Bowen, Jun., Plymouth.

JOSIAH QUINCY TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Braintree, October 31, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: My worthy and dear friend Dr. Franklin, the Hon. Mr. Bowdoin, Dr. Winthrop, and Dr. Cooper, were the last week so kind as to honour me with a friendly visit. The conversation naturally turned upon the savage cruelty we are daily suffering from the unrelenting vengeance of a tyrannical Government. In the course of it, the stopping up the harbour of Boston, as one salutary measure, was thought well worthy the attention of our State pilots; and upon my saying I had once, if not more than once, hinted the scheme to your Excellency, they desired me to communicate my sentiments to you once more, in writing, especially as I had lately received a letter from the Honourable John Adams, Esq., in Philadelphia, in answer to one of mine, which seemed to throw new light upon the subject. This, Sir, I beg may be a sufficient apology for transmitting to you the following extracts of those letters, with what has further occurred to my mind since they were wrote. In my letter I thus write:

"In my former letter I said, 'the harbour might be blocked up, and both seamen and soldiers made prisoners at discretion;' which seems to you incredible. Please to read, at your leisure, the following explanation: There are but two channels through which ships of burden can safely pass to and from Boston. One of them runs between the west head of Long-Island and the Moon, (so called,) and is about a mile across. This is too shallow for any ship of war above twenty guns. The other is called the ship channel, and runs between the east head of Long-Island and the south point of Deer-Island, and is something better than a mile from side to side. This, the only channel through which capital ships can pass, leads, outward bound, through the Narrows between Gallop's Island and Lovell's Island, where the channel is not wider than the length of a fifty-gun ship. In the opening between Gallop's Island and George's Island is Nantasket Road, where one frigate is always stationed, to guard the Narrows from being stopped up. Upon these facts I thus reason:

"The Moon-Island communicates, at low water, with Squantum Neck, almost dry shod. A defensible fort, therefore, may be so placed upon Squantum as to cover the retreat, not only from the Moon, but from Squantum to the main. One upon the east head of the Moon, and another on the west head of Long-Island, secure that passage, and cover the retreat from the latter to the former. Another upon the summit in the middle of Long-Island covers the shore on both sides, so as that no force can land without being greatly annoyed, if not entirely prevented. Another strong fort, with heavy cannon, at the east head of Long-Island, would command not only the ship channel that runs by it, but the Narrows and Nantasket Road, so that no ship could remain there with safety; and consequently we might, by sinking hulks in the Narrows, prevent any ship of force from going out or coming in. If the passage through the Narrows is not stopped, I am sensible that a ship, with a fresh gale of wind and flood tide, which is rapid between Long-Island and Deer-Island, might run through without any great hazard; but, after the east head of Long-Island is fortified, I can foresee nothing to hinder the Narrows being reduced to such a depth of water as that no vessel of force can pass through there. This being effected, as I said above, both seamen and soldiers, if they do not escape by a timely flight, must become prisoners at discretion. I have been told there is, in one of the late English Magazines, an accurate draught of the harbour, which, upon examination, will enable you to determine, with precision, the bearings and distances from island to island, and the depth of water between them; and, consequently, whether such a scheme is practicable or not."

Mr. Adams, in answer, writes thus:

"I am much obliged by your kind explanation of your opinion, that the harbour might be blocked up. I must confess, although I was born so near it, I never understood before the course of the channel, and the situation of the harbour, so well. I have carefully compared your description of Squantum, the Moon, Long-Island, Gallop's Island, Lovell's Island and George's, the Narrows, and Nantasket Road, with 'A Plan of the Town and Chart of the Harbour of Boston, exhibiting a View of the Islands, Castle Fort, and Entrances into the said Harbour,' which was published in London last February. This plan I knew to be inaccurate in some particulars, and the chart may be so in others; but by the best judgment I can make, upon comparing your facts with the chart, and considering the depths of water marked on this chart, I think it extremely probable, with you, that nothing but powder and cannon are wanting, to effect the important purposes you mention—that of making soldiers and sailors prisoners at discretion.

"Dr. Franklin's row-galleys are in great forwardness; seven of them are completely manned, armed, &c. I went down the river the other day, with all of them. I have as much confidence in them as you have.* But the people here have made machines, to be sunk in the channel of Delaware River. Three rows of them are placed in the river, with large timbers, barbed with iron. They are frames of timber, sunk with stone—machines very proper for our channel in the Narrows."

Dr. Franklin says they may be made in the form of a chevaux-de-frise, and used to great advantage.

I have wrote to Mr. Adams for a model of the machines he mentions, with explicit directions how to sink and secure them from being weighed or destroyed by the enemy's ships. For my own part, since I have read what my friend has wrote, I am more than ever convinced of the practicability of not only securing the harbour, but relieving the Town of Boston, by making the present possessors of it our prisoners, and that without shedding much more human blood, provided we can once possess and fortify Long-Island.

I doubt not your Excellency will readily agree with me, that these are become objects of much greater importance, since the destruction of Falmouth demonstrates the malicious resolution of our barbarously civilized enemies, to destroy all the rest of our maritime Towns if they can.

If your Excellency should think the above sentiments worthy of your attention, and, for maturing your judgment, conclude it necessary to take an ocular view of the harbour and islands, please to accept of my cordial invitation to refresh or repose yourself at my house, where my happiness will be in proportion to the freedom with which you receive the friendly salutations of your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

JOSIAH QUINCY.

* I had wrote largely to Mr. Adams upon the subject, but have not copied it, for fear of being tedious.

DARTMOUTH (MASSACHUSETTS) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Inspection for the Town of Dartmouth, October 31, 1775, Colonel Seth Pope in the chair:

Complaint having been made against Captain Isaac Howland, of said Dartmouth, for his receiving upon his Salt from three Shillings, the usual price in the Town, to four Shillings, per bushel; and having had said Howland before this Committee, he saith he hath sold his Salt as abovesaid, and that he is determined to sell it; and being informed that he would be put into the publick papers if he did not sell his Salt at three Shillings, as heretofore, and refund the money he hath extorted from those of whom he had took four Shillings, he answered, he would not refund, nor sell under four Shillings per bushel. Therefore,

Resolved, That the conduct of the said Isaac Howland be put into the publick prints, as one inimical to his Country; and it is recommended to all lovers of their Country to break off all dealings with him, until he shall return to a sense of his misconduct.

Resolved, That the Clerk do transmit a copy of the foregoing Resolve to the Printer at Watertown, in order for publication.

Attest :

PHILIP SHEARMAN, Clerk.

GEORGE JAFFREY TO NEW-HAMPSHIRE CONGRESS.

Portsmouth, October 31, 1775.

I received the vote of Congress, of September 1, requesting me to lay my Treasurer's accounts before you, on the second day of your present session, at which time I should have attended on the Congress, had not the alarm of men of war and other forces coming to destroy this Town, necessarily prevented; for fear of which calamity, I was induced to have my goods packed up, in order to be removed from the threatened destruction. I began several days later than many of my neighbours, and hastily, before I had engaged a place out of Town to secure them, and for my family to retreat to; and removed many of my goods out of the Town, which are disposed of in places not secure. That I am necessarily engaged to remove my goods to a place I am favoured with by a gentleman at Northampton, which are already out of Town, in different barns, and other places, and also the remainder of my goods at my own house; which cases of necessity are such, that I cannot doubt that the Congress will dispense with my attendance upon them at the time they prescribed, as any other time may answer their purpose of my attending them.

So I rest, Gentlemen, your obedient servant,

GEORGE JAFFREY.

To the Honourable Congress held at Exeter.

NEW-YORK PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., October 4, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment on the 2d of September last. Present :

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

Mr. Sears moved, and was seconded by Mr. Henry Williams, in the words following, to wit: "Whereas, upon information to the Committee of Safety, from Thomas Buchanan, that the Snow Georgia, Captain Bolton, from Greenock, in Scotland, with some passengers for this place, and a cargo of dry goods for Georgia, was arrived at the Hook, in distress, and that the Captain desired leave to land his passengers and refit his vessel, the Committee gave leave for that purpose; and whereas it since appears, by the Captain's orders, the bills of lading, and a letter to said Thomas Buchanan, & Co., that the said cargo of dry goods were to be landed at this place, if the people would receive them: I move that it be Resolved, That the above-said Snow Georgia be not permitted to break bulk in this Colony, and that she be ordered, as soon as fitted for sea, to depart this port, and return with her cargo from whence she came."

Mr. Walton then moved, and was seconded by Mr. Low, for the following amendment to Mr. Sears's motion, to wit: That the words "and return with her cargo from whence she came," be struck out, and instead thereof, the words, "with her cargo, without delay," be inserted.

And debates arising on the proposed amendment, it was carried in the negative, in the manner following, to wit:

For the Negative.

For the Affirmative.

4 New-York,
3 Albany,
2 Cumberland,
2 Charlotte,
2 King's,
2 Suffolk.

2 Richmond.
Mr. Micheau dissents.

15 votes against the amendment.

Ordered, therefore, That the proposed amendment be rejected.

The question being then put on Mr. Sears's motion, it was carried in the affirmative, unanimously.

Resolved, therefore, That the said Snow Georgia be not permitted to break bulk in this Colony; and that she be ordered, as soon as fitted for sea, to depart this port, and return with her cargo from whence she came.

The Petition of Godfrey Haynes, Timothy Doughty, John Dob, Adam Bergh, Christian Bergh, Jun., and David Dob, was read. They thereby pray to be brought to an immediate trial, or released from their confinement.*

A draught of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony

* To the Honourable Provincial Congress:

GENTLEMEN: As there are six of us confined in jail by your order, charged with misdemeanors, we should take it kind of you if you would bring us to immediate trial, or provide for us in our confinement, as we have not wherewithal to support ourselves.

And will oblige yours,
GODFREY HAYNES, ADAM BERGH,
TIMOTHY DOUGHTY, CHRISTIAN BERGH, JR.,
JOHN DOB, DAVID DOB.

CITY HALL, October 4, 1775.

at Continental Congress was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, October 4, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are favoured with yours of the 21st ultimo, and, agreeable to your request, we inform you of the state of the troops raised by this Colony for the Continental service. Eight Companies of the First or Colonel McDougall's Regiment, completely appointed, are now in actual service in the Northern Department. The ninth Company is ready, completely armed and equipped, and, wind and weather permitting, will sail for Albany to-morrow. The tenth Company will be armed and equipped, and, we, hope, ready to depart next week. The first detachment of this Regiment, under Lieutenant-Colonel Ritzema, had proceeded as far as Half-Moon, before the 10th of August. The Second, or Colonel Van Schaick's Regiment, is completely equipped, and in service at the outposts; four Companies of this Regiment were raised early in the month of June, and three of those Companies then proceeded as far as Lake George; the other Companies of this Regiment were at and about Albany, under the command of General Montgomery, and we cannot ascertain the times of their departure. Seven Companies of the Third, or Colonel Clinton's Regiment, are also in service at the outposts. The eighth and ninth Companies proceeded early last week from hence, on their way to Ile-aux-Noix. The tenth Company of this Regiment is come to New-York, wants a few muskets, and will be ready and proceed this week. It may be proper to inform you, that the three last mentioned Companies of this Regiment were sent to and detained for some time, at the east end of Nassau-Island, by order of the Congress, to prevent the Ministerial Troops from carrying off the sheep and cattle from thence, the inhabitants of Suffolk County having armed them while in that service. The Fourth, or Colonel Holmes's Regiment, is now at the outposts. Part of this Regiment was obliged to be delayed at Albany until arms could be procured for them, but the last Company proceeded down Lake George the 27th of September. We are informed that four Companies of the Green Mountain Boys were raised and in service, about the middle of September, and that the others were getting ready with all possible despatch.

The First and Second Regiments, and some part of the other Regiments, are armed with the best of muskets and bayonets, and the others with firelocks of the widest bores which could be found, repaired where it was necessary, and fitted. All our troops are furnished with belts and pouches for nineteen cartridges, bayonets, belts, musket slings, blankets, coats, canteens, haversacks, &c. A great part of our arms have been procured by purchase; some have been hired; and, from necessity, to complete some Companies, a few arms have in some places been impressed.

As to the forts in the Highlands, we have taken every step to complete them. A number of cannon are sent up, with many of the necessary materials. The plans have been transmitted to you. Several cannon are mounted, to prevent any enemy from passing through the Highlands.

You have enclosed an account of the prices we gave for the different sorts of cloth for tents, and the expense of making.

We have furnished the Continental Army, at our own expense, with the following quantities of gunpowder, to wit: on the 23d of June we sent one thousand pounds of powder to the Continental Army at Cambridge; on the 24th we sent three hundred pounds to Albany, for the publick use, being wanted at Ticonderoga, and by the Company sent up to remove the cannon and stores. We have since delivered one hundred pounds to the troops marching to the Northern frontiers, and two hundred and thirty-five pounds (in part borrowed of General Wooster) to the troops sent to the east end of Long-Island, and which they have preserved and taken with them to the northward. We have sent two hundred pounds to the post in the Highlands, and have procured by loan from New-Jersey four hundred and fifty-five pounds of gunpowder, which, together with two hundred pounds furnished by us, was forwarded on the 13th of June to the camp at Cambridge. The above parcels amount to two thousand four hundred and ninety weight. Besides the above quantity, the Committee at Albany furnished to the Commissioners for Indian Affairs three hundred and seventy-five pounds, two hundred pounds of which have been replaced by our Congress. General Wooster now requires us to repay him the powder we borrowed of him. We earnestly request, gentlemen, that you would use your best endeavours to get this powder replaced as soon as possible, as we cannot at this time command above two hundred weight. If, in addition to this quantity, you could purchase for us, for cash, or borrow on our credit, one or two tons of powder, it will greatly oblige us, as we are in much want of this article. You know our exposed situation, and therefore it will be unnecessary to press you to use your interest in procuring it for us.

It may be proper to mention to you, that besides the troops abovementioned, we raised a Company of Artillery, consisting of seventy men, completely appointed; they are now with the Army. When this Company was formed, the Continental Congress had not made an establishment for Artillery. The Congress of New-York put this Company on the footing of the Rhode-Island establishment as to their pay, which was the only one known at that time. They are a good Company, well armed; many of them bred in artillery service, and much wanted. They were raised on the faith of being put and kept on the like pay as the Rhode-Island Artillery, before we knew what the Continental pay was. We entreat you would intimate this to the Congress, and get the Rhode-Island establishment confirmed for this Company.

We are, with the highest respect and esteem, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order:

P. S. We are apprehensive that the Army under General Schuyler will suffer greatly for want of warm underclothes. Many of the men raised in this Colony are badly provided in that respect, and we submit it to you, whether it may not be proper to mention it to the Congress, lest it should escape their attention.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, to cover a copy of Captain John Hamilton's Information, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York, }
October 3, 1775. }

SIR: The enclosed state of information is of such a nature that it is conceived highly proper to communicate it with all despatch to the Congress.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant. By order:
To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted, with the said Information, and extract of a Letter from Falmouth.

Ordered, That a like Letter be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, with a copy of the said Information and extract of a Letter, transmitted to General Washington.

The Proposal of a merchant of New-York, to load five hundred barrels of Flour to Hispaniola, and to bring in return five tons of Gunpowder, was read.

A draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, to accompany the said Proposal, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, }
October 4, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: We take the liberty to enclose a proposal made by a merchant of New-York, for obtaining gunpowder. As we are not competent to give permission for the voyage proposed, we submit the same to you, and request your directions as soon as possible.

We are, most respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order:

To the Honourable the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, with a copy of the said Proposal, be transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee at Albany, to cover the Order for repairing the Barracks and Hospital, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York, }
October 4, 1775. }

GENTLEMEN: By the enclosed resolutions you will see that the barracks and hospital, or either of them, as you may think proper, are to be repaired, and firewood to be procured. It is, however, the sense of this Congress, that the burden of this commission should not be troublesome to your Committee, unless you incline to act therein, as it may be more expeditiously and effectually done by appointing two persons; Messrs. Guysbert Marselis and Cornelius Santfort, of your Committee, are recommended to superintend this business, under your direction. If you approve of this appointment, you can immediately set them about the work. We think it not improper to hint to you that the less expensive the operation is, will be the most agreeable to, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants.

By order:

To the Committee of Albany.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, with a copy of the said Order, transmitted.

The Congress then adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., October 5, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

John Delancy, Esq., one of the Members, applied to the Congress, requesting their opinion, whether Ralph Izard, Esq., intending to come to and reside in this Colony, can, consistent with the American Association, bring with him, from Great Britain, his Coach, Furniture, Plate, Books, and other things, intended for the use of himself and family.

Resolved, unanimously, That it is the sense of this Congress, that Ralph Izard, Esq., may, consistently and without violating the American Association, bring with him from Great Britain, his Coach, Furniture, Plate, Books, and other effects, intended for the use of himself and family.

On reading and taking into consideration the Petition of Elizabeth White, wife of Alexander White, confined in the Jail of the County of Albany,

It is Resolved and Ordered, That the said Petition be referred to the General Committee of the County of Albany; and that they hear the charges brought, or that may be brought, against the said Alexander White, and finally determine thereon.

And for this purpose it is further Ordered, That the said Petition, and all the papers now before this Congress, relative to the said Alexander White, be sent to the said Committee.

A Letter from Thomas Palmer, relating to his Lead Mine, and the accounts of John McDonald, were delivered in and read.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance and pay to John McDonald the sum of five Pounds four Shillings and six Pence, in full for his wages and expenses in going to examine a Lead

Mine in Ulster County, by order of the Committee of Safety.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to Peter T. Curtenius, as Commissary of this Congress, the sum of seven thousand Pounds, on account, to be applied to discharge the debts contracted for the publick service, and by order of this Congress; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Curtenius's receipt for the same, on account.

A Letter from Benj. Baker, on the subject of making Saltpetre, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"GENTLEMEN: General Montgomery, when in Albany, heard of my attempts towards the production of nitre; sent for me to his lodging, and, after some examination and inquiry, requested of me to make application to the Committee for their assistance towards establishing a manufactory. Colonel Abraham Ten Broeck, Esq., requested me to write you somewhat of my pretensions in that way, for your further considerations. In conformity to his request, have wrote you as follows. From repeated trials and experiments, have strong reasons to believe that saltpetre may, in these parts of America, be made in as large quantities as now pot and pearl ashes are, or even to intercept, in a great measure, the East-India trade in that article. Common alkaline salts and wood otherwise concentrated into an acid juice; these two oppositions, and yet affinities, form a neutral commixture, and become as it were a proper magnet for the attraction of nitrous particles. These two materials only, with circulatory vessels properly adapted, and other apparatus convenient, large quantities assuredly may at one work be made, even to twenty or thirty tons a year, and, at the same time, the method so simple that the country people may easily learn the process, to the benefit of themselves and Continent. A capital work, to make the above quantity, would require a stock at least of one thousand Pounds, and a sum in proportion for lesser quantities. It is not the want of business induces me to make this application, but, on the other hand, to serve the Country, and oblige the gentleman that applied to me. I am already established in business, in an art peculiar to myself, in preparing in such purity alkaline salts as to answer all the different purposes in pharmacy, which may hereafter bring in great emoluments to America.

"N. B. It is not in the power of any art yet known to make, from its origin, saltpetre, in that limited time you are pleased to offer a price so extraordinary for."

"I am, Gentlemen, with due obedience, your humble servant,

"BENJAMIN BAKER.

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress, convened at New-York.

Ordered, That the gentlemen, who are members from Albany, write to the said Benjamin Baker, to know what quantity of Saltpetre he can make by the first day of May next, and on what terms.

A certified copy of Major Robert Rogers's parole, received by post from the Committee of Safety, Philadelphia, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, September 23, 1775.

"I, Robert Rogers, Major on half-pay in His Majesty's Army, a prisoner in the custody of the Committee of Safety for the Province of Pennsylvania, and being kindly treated and protected by them, and enlarged on parole, do hereby solemnly promise and engage, on the honour of a soldier and a gentleman, that I will not bear arms against the American United Colonies in any manner whatever, during the present contest between them and Great Britain, and that I will not in that time attempt to give intelligence to General Gage, the British Ministry, or any other person or persons, of any matters relative to America.

"ROBERT ROGERS."

"These are to certify to all persons to whom these presents may appear, that the above writing is a true copy of the parole of honour given by the bearer, Major Robert Rogers, to the Committee of Safety for the Province of Pennsylvania. It is therefore recommended to such persons, that the said Major Rogers be permitted to pass where his business may lead him, without any hinderance or molestation.

"Philadelphia, September 23, 1775."

"Extracts from the Minutes of the Committee of Safety.
"WILLIAM GOVETT, Secretary."

The Congress then adjourned until ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 10 ho. A. M., October 6, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President pro tempore.

A Letter from Major-General Schuyler was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Ticonderoga, September 29, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I am still confined with the remains of an inveterate disorder. I have this moment received a line from General Montgomery. He holds St. John's besieged; but the weak state of our Army and artillery cause the operations to go on slowly. The Canadians are friendly to us, and join us in great numbers; but unless we succeed against St. John's, all other operations in that quarter will avail little. We are in want of powder; and I send this by express, that you may forward me five tons, if you can. It should come in boats that can be rowed, that no delay may be made. Several rascals of the First Battalion have deserted to the enemy; and Captain Mott, of the same Corps, shamefully ran away from our bomb battery, when not one of the enemy was near him.

"Pray, let the powder be sent to the care of Colonel Van Schaick, at Albany.

"We have taken fifteen prisoners; seven of whom are soldiers, the rest unfriendly Canadians and Scotchmen, in the service of the Ministry.

"I am, Gentlemen, with the most profound respect, your most obedient humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To the New-York Provincial Congress.

"P. S. Be pleased to forward the enclosed by express."

Ordered, That Mr. Gabriel W. Ludlow deliver, with all possible despatch, fourteen hundred weight of Gunpowder to John Van Cortlandt and Joseph Hallett, Esqs., or their order.

A draught of a Letter to the honourable Continental Congress, to cover a copy of General Schuyler's Letter, received this day, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed packets we this hour received by express from Major-General Schuyler. We have also enclosed a copy of the General's letter to this Congress. In consequence thereof, we have ordered up, under the care of Mr. Watkins, one of our members from Charlotte County, fourteen hundred weight of powder, in a convenient boat, rowed with oars. This quantity, except two hundred weight, belongs to the different Counties of the Colony, and was ordered to be delivered some weeks ago; but finding it yet in the magazines, we have, in this necessity, taken it. It is the whole that can be obtained in the Colony. We have wrote to the Committee of Albany for their aid in forwarding this necessary article with all despatch. We have communicated this intelligence to Governour Trumbull.

From the importance of General Schuyler's requisition, and the situation of the Army to the northward, you will judge of the necessity of completing the General's request.

Pray, devise some ways and means to replace our powder with all expedition, as we may be distressed, and should not remain in this defenceless state, if it can be avoided.

We are, most respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order:

To the Honourable the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, with a copy of General Schuyler's Letter, transmitted by ———, as a Messenger.

A draught of a Letter to Governour Trumbull, of Connecticut, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 6, 1775.

SIR: We enclose an extract of a letter received this moment from General Schuyler, and shall send forward immediately to the Army fourteen hundred pounds of powder, which is all we have; but, from the vast importance of this object, we have despatched an express to the Continental Congress, requesting that a further supply may be sent from thence. We are, however, apprehensive that no considerable quantity can be got for this purpose from Philadelphia. As we shall want our powder replaced, and have therefore thought proper to forward the intelligence to you, and to beg that you will, with all possible despatch, give such aid, in this necessary article, as may be in your power.

We are, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servants.

To the Hon. Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of the Colony of Connecticut.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, with an extract of General Schuyler's Letter received this day, transmitted by ———, as a Messenger for that purpose.

A draught of an Answer to General Schuyler's Letter was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 6, 1775.

SIR: We have received your letter of the 29th ultimo, and have forwarded to you fourteen hundred weight of powder, which is all we have. We have also sent an express to the Continental Congress, requesting them to furnish an additional supply; but, as we shall want our powder replaced by them, (being now destitute,) we are afraid no great quantity can be got from thence to the Army, and have therefore sent an express to Governour Trumbull, requesting him immediately to give all the aid he can in this article. From these different quarters we hope you will have a timely supply to prevent any ill consequences from the want of it.

We are, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servants. By order:

To Major-General Schuyler.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Captain Robert Wallace, attending at the door, was called in. He informs, that he sailed from Baltimore, in Maryland, with the Brigantine Mary, on the 14th of September; that the brigantine was cleared out on the 9th, was loaded before the 10th, and passed the Capes on the 23d; that she is loaded with wheat, flour, and sixty casks of flaxseed; that her owners live in Baltimore, and she is bound to Falmouth, in Britain; that he put in here in distress, to save his life and the cargo; that his vessel was brought to by the Asia; that Capt. Vandeput had pressed six of his hands, and that the Brigantine Mary now lies alongside of the Asia. Captain Wallace prays leave to refit his vessel.

Ordered, That Robert Wallace, Master of the Brigantine Mary, from Baltimore, bound to Great Britain, be permitted to bring the said Brigantine up into the East River, in order to be refitted, and, if necessary for that purpose, to unload her.

A draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, informing the state of the Brigantine Mary, was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Captain Robert Wallace, in the Brigantine Mary, sailed from Baltimore, in Maryland, the 14th of September last, cleared out the 9th, was loaded before the 10th, and passed the Capes on the 23d. She is bound to Falmouth for orders, and put in here by distress, and wants repairs; her cargo consists of wheat and flour, and sixty casks of flaxseed; she was brought to by the Asia, ship of war, in our harbour, who has pressed six of her men, but has promised to return them, or supply her with others in their stead.

The Captain of this brigantine has applied to us for leave to come into this harbour to unload and refit, and when she is repaired, she may be allowed to prosecute her intended voyage.

From principles of humanity, we consented to his coming to unload and repair; but shall give no further order, until we are favoured with your sentiments on the subject, as it may possibly be construed a breach of the regulations of the last Congress, relative to exportations.

We are, respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order:

To the Honourable the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted by the Messenger to Philadelphia.

A draught of a Letter to the Hon. Robert R. Livingston, Esq., was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 6, 1775.

SIR: General Schuyler has, by express, sent to us for five tons of powder; we have sent forward fourteen hundred weight, all that we have, in a boat rowed with oars, to make despatch. We pray you to order all the powder at the mill at Rhinebeck to be forwarded by this conveyance.

We are, respectfully, Sir, your most obedient humble servants.

To the Hon. Robert R. Livingston, at his Seat, Claremont.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Committee at Albany was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 6, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: In consequence of Major-General Schuyler's despatches, this day received by express, we have sent up to Albany, by a boat, expeditiously to be rowed up, fourteen hundred pounds of powder, for the use of the Northern Army. We have acquainted the Continental Congress of this, and informed them that we would request you to give aid to the forwarding of this necessary article, in the best and most speedy manner; and if you can, by the help of your magazine, or any other way, augment the quantity, it would be very acceptable. We have urged the Grand Congress to send a further supply, if it is procurable, and to replace what we lend on this necessitous occasion as soon as possible. You will please to advise with the Commissary-General, or his deputies, and Col. Van Schaick, if at Albany, respecting the mode of conveying up the powder in safety, and with despatch.

We are, Gentlemen, your most humble servants. By order:

To the Committee at Albany.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Letter from Hendrick Fisher, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety of New-Jersey, dated the 30th ultimo, was read and filed. He informs, that their Provincial Congress is to meet speedily, and that he will lay the Letter from the Committee of Safety of New-York, on the subject of apprehending Deserters, before the Congress of New-Jersey.

A Letter from Beverly Robinson, Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Highlands, October 2, 1775.

"SIR: Your letter, of the 19th of September, I received a few days ago; in answer to which, I must inform you that the point of land whereon the fort is erecting does not belong to me, but is the property of Mrs. Ogilvie and her children; was it mine, the publick should be extremely welcome to it. The building a fort there can be no disadvantage to the small quantity of arable land on the island. I have only a proportion of the meadow land, that lies on the east side of the island.

"I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

"BEVERLY ROBINSON.

"To John Haring, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Safety in New-York."

The Congress then adjourned until nine o'clock.

* * * * *

Dio Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., October 11, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:
Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

The Petition of Abner Briggs to the Committee of the City, praying leave to ship one hundred and eighty barrels Flour to Falmouth, for the use of the people of Nantucket, referred to this Congress by the Committee of the City of New-York, and also an Order of the House of Representatives of Massachusetts-Bay, of the 28th of September last, signed by James Warren, Speaker; whereby it is resolved that the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Falmouth, in the County of Barnstable, be and were thereby empowered and directed, by written permit under their hands, to grant license to the said inhabitants to purchase so much Provision and other necessary supplies as is sufficient for their internal consumption and for those voyages which they may prosecute, consistent with the Resolves of Congress and of that Court, and no more; and that such permits shall specify the quantities such person has liberty to purchase:

Thereupon, Ordered, That Abner Briggs be allowed to lade one hundred and eighty barrels of Flour for Falmouth, in the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, upon condition that the said Abner Briggs do, within three months, return to the Secretary of this Congress a certificate from the Chairman of the Committee of said Town of Falmouth, that the said Flour was reported to and under the direction of the said Committee, the danger of the seas and seizures excepted; and if the said Abner Briggs does not comply with the condition aforesaid, that then he shall be deemed guilty of an infringement of the Resolution of this Congress, and an enemy to this Country.

Mr. Thomas Smith and Henry Williams dissenting.

A Letter from Volkert P. Douw, Esquire, of Albany, dated the 4th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, October 4, 1775.

"Sir: Enclosed you have a copy of the journal and proceedings of the four Indians sent by the Commissioners of Indian Affairs, appointed by the Twelve United Colonies, to the Caughnawagas, to acquaint them of the treaty that had been held here with their brethren of the Six Nations and the Commissioners.

"I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

"VOLKERT P. DOUW.

"To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress.."

The Journal of the proceedings of the Indians, therein mentioned, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, Saturday, September 30, 1775.

"At a meeting with the four warriors of the Six Nations who were sent, by the Commissioners (appointed by the Twelve United Colonies) of Indian Affairs, after the treaty held with the Six Nations at Albany, to the Caughnawagas:

"They were asked by Volkert P. Douw, Esq., one of the Commissioners, what news they brought.

"Answered by Saristtago, (alias Peter), by George Fulmer, the interpreter, that they were sent by the Six Nations, at the request of the Twelve United Colonies, to the Caughnawagas, to inform them what had been done here; which we undertook, and have performed. We came to the Isle-aux-Noix, and delivered the letter to General Schuyler which we had from the Commissioners, and the belts of wampum we took along, and others that we prepared by the way. General Schuyler fitted us out with provisions and money, to go to Caughnawaga. We were brought with a batteau ten miles, with three Canadians as guides, as we were unacquainted with the road; notwithstanding, we went at least six miles out of our road, where we lay. Next morning we came on the road that leads from St. John's to La Prairie; from thence we went on till we came to a house, and the people there put us on another road; they feared, if we went on that road, we should be taken prisoners. From thence the people on the road used us well; yet we lay in the woods, out of choice. Next morning we proceeded; about nine o'clock we came to the River St. Lawrence, eight or ten miles below Caughnawaga, where we set up a white flag, which we had from General Schuyler, as a token. From thence we proceeded about a mile or two, where we met a hundred warriors, of different nations, who came from Caughnawaga, at the request of Guy Johnson, (as they said,) and were going to St. John's to join the Regulars, to fight against the Continental Army. As soon as they saw our flag, they immediately came to us; on which we desired them to hearken to what we had to say to them from the Commissioners of the Twelve United Colonies and Six Nations; on delivering which, there was a great dispute among the warriors: some were for proceeding, others for returning; the majority were for returning to the castle. On which, two runners were despatched, to acquaint the chiefs of the castle that four of the Six Nations were come to speak to them. When we arrived within two miles of the castle, we were met by some on horseback, to know if it was true that we were coming; and, on seeing us, immediately returned to the castle (as we suppose) to acquaint the chiefs that it was true. When we arrived at the castle, one of the principal chiefs came to us, took the white flag from us, and brought it in the council-house, and introduced us at the same time. When we arrived in the council-house, all the chiefs and warriors of the seven nations were assembled, and desired to know our messages. As they were very inquisitive to know what had been transacted at Albany by the Six Nations and the Commissioners of the Twelve United Colonies, we then desired, as we were fatigued, that they would indulge us three or four hours to rest, and then they might call us. About four hours thereafter we went to the council-house, when we informed them of all that we were charged with from the Six Nations and Commissioners of the Twelve United Colonies; on which they heartily thanked us for the information, as they were now convinced that Guy Johnson had told them nothing but lies. We then delivered General Schuyler's request to them, that two of their chiefs and two of their warriors would come to him and confer further on the matter, as he desired that they would stand on one side, that no Indian blood might be spilt. After which, a party of Guy Johnson's Indians, with Col. Claus, came with strings of black wampum, to invite us to come to him in Montreal, as he had understood that we were come from the Six Nations. On which, we answered, we had no order to go to Guy Johnson, but that we were sent to Caughnawaga, and did not intend to go any farther; which made a great confusion in the castle among the Indians; and we were informed by the Caughnawaga Indians, that Colonel Johnson was about making up a company to take us prisoners, and advised us not to lie in the castle that night, but that we should go about three or four miles out of the place, to a plantation there, and some of the Caughnawagas went with us, where we lodged, and were well used. The next morning the Caughnawaga Indians returned with us to the castle, where we received an answer to our speech which we had delivered in behalf of the Six Nations: That they should be quiet till St. John's was taken, and then they should come to Onondaga, to speak with them; and, as General Schuyler was desirous to speak with them, they would now go with us to him, to hear what he had to say to them. They then again conducted us three or four miles out of the castle, and said that early next morning they would make up seven of the chiefs and warriors to go with us to the Isle-aux-Noix, to General Schuyler. In the morning they came, and went with us to the Isle-aux-Noix. When we came to the island, General Schuyler was gone from thence; on which we and the Caughnawagas and Fulmer, our interpreter, went by water toward St. John's, where the Army lay, under the command of General Montgomery. General Montgomery prayed the Caughnawagas that they would keep their people on one side, as he would be very sorry to shed any of the blood of his brethren. On which the Caughnawagas thanked General Montgomery for his speech, and gave him a belt of wampum, and assured him that he might depend that not one of the seven nations of Canada Indians should in the least molest them. On which General Montgomery thanked them, and made them a present for the seven nations of Canada Indians, besides a gratuity to the seven ambassadors."

Ordered, That the Brass Field-Pieces last cast by James Byers be delivered to Captain Anthony Rutgers, for the use of the Artillery Company under his command, and that he get good Carriages and other necessaries, for the said two Field-Pieces, with all possible despatch.

The application of Captain Benjamin Lindsay, of Providence, was read. He therein sets forth, that in the month of August last, he delivered to this Congress a Letter from the Committee of Safety of the Town of Providence, signed by Deputy-Governour Cooke and others, requesting to load his (the said Lindsay's) Sloop, and Captain Whitney's Sloop; that Provisions were purchased for both cargoes, and but only one (to wit: the cargo of Lindsay's Sloop) shipped; and that the other cargo now lies in store, which he prays leave to lade and take to Providence.

Ordered, That Benjamin Lindsay be allowed to lade the said Provisions on board, for Providence, upon condition that the said Benjamin Lindsay do deliver a manifest of the said Provisions to the Secretary of this Congress, and, within three months, return to the said Secretary a certificate from the Chairman of the Committee at Providence, that the said Provisions were reported to and under the direction of the said Committee—the danger of the seas and seizures excepted; and if the said Benjamin Lindsay does not comply with the condition aforesaid, that then he shall be deemed guilty of an infringement of the resolution of this Congress, and an enemy to this Country.

A Letter from General Washington, of the 5th instant, directed to Isaac Low, Esq., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Camp at Cambridge, October 5, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: By an intelligent person from Boston, the 3d instant, I am informed that a fleet, consisting of one sixty-four, one twenty gun ship, two sloops of eighteen guns, two transports, with six hundred men, were to sail from Boston as yesterday; their destination a profound secret. That they took on board two mortars and four howitzers, with other artillery, calculated for the bombardment of a Town. I have thought it proper to apprise every considerable Town on the coast of this armament, that they may be upon their guard. Should I receive any further account of their destination, it shall be forwarded.

“The same person also informs that an express sloop arrived four days before, from England, at Boston, which she left the 8th of August. General Gage, and most of the officers who were at Lexington, are recalled, and sail this day; General Hove succeeds to the command. Six ships of the line and two cutters, under Sir Peter Dennis, are coming out. Five Regiments and one thousand marines may be expected at Boston in three or four weeks. No prospect of accommodation, but, on the other hand, every appearance of the war being pushed with the utmost vigour.

“I am, Gentlemen, very respectfully, your most obedient and very humble servant, “GEORGE WASHINGTON.”

A Letter from Colonel Hasbrouck, and the Returns of the elections of the Officers of the several Companies of the Militia, in that part of Ulster County which is intended to be in the Regiment of Colonel Hasbrouck, at the south end of Ulster County.

Ordered, That Commissions issue to all the gentlemen named in those Returns.

A Return of Militia Officers on the south side of the Mountains, in Orange County, signed by Thomas Outwater, Chairman, was delivered in and filed.

The Congress then adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., October 12, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present: Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

A certified copy of the notes of examination of Captain William Thompson, was sent, by post, to the New-York Delegates at Congress, and another copy to General Washington, each enclosed in a private letter from the President.

Captain John Lawrence, being by request attending at the door, was called in and examined, and notes of his examination taken, which are filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

“Captain John Lawrence sailed from London the 2d of August; left Falmouth the 14th. Says he made it his business to get all the intelligence he could with respect to the intentions of Government against the Colonies. That twenty-three ships, from forty guns and under, were fitting out for the American service, to relieve the ships which were deemed too large, which he understood were to be recalled; that they were not all to come out this fall, on account of the carpenters leaving the yards. That he understood five Regiments were to come from Ireland, three Regiments from England and Scotland, and five Companies of Artillery. That a large quantity of ordnance was shipping for America, and that five transports, with provisions, were sailed for Boston before he sailed. That he understood the troops were destined for Boston; that he heard that four or five of the transports had sailed for Ireland, to take the troops on board, before he sailed. That he saw four thousand stand of arms shipped for Quebeck; that two brigs sailed out of the Downs, in company with him, laden with warlike stores; that they sailed without convoy; that they had a Lieutenant on board each, but no troops. That he understood the arms were for the use of the Canadians. That he did not hear of any troops going to Quebeck; that he did not hear of any artillery, or stores, or troops, were to be sent to the Southern Colonies, or to this Province. That he understood that ten thousand tons of transports were taken up to go to Embsen, and sixteen thousand Hessians and Hanoverians were intended for America; but whether they were to proceed immediately to America, or touch in England, was not certain, reports differing relative thereto. That the report of employing Hessians and Hanoverians took place before the account of Bunker-Hill battle. That the people seemed to be much exasperated against the Americans, on receiving the account of Bunker-Hill. That the merchants, in general, were opposed to the Americans; that they were much pleased on hearing that fifteen thousand of the Provincials were killed and taken prisoners by about seventeen hundred Regulars; but when the true state of the battle arrived, they made long faces. That he did not hear of their building any flat-bottomed boats. That the news of taking Ticonderoga, &c., was by no means relished. That it was supposed the Parliament would be called sooner than usual, on account of calling the Hessian and Hanoverian troops. That Captain Effingham Lawrence told him that he had been informed by Lord Gage, that they intended to make up their Army in America to thirty thousand men this fall. That there was no complaints of the manufacturers wanting employ, and was generally supposed that Administration kept them employed. That the people, in general, thought New-York worse than any of the other Colonies, for disappointing them, not only by joining the other Colonies, but by acting more vigorous than the rest. That he heard there was more than ordinary demands for British goods by the Mediterranean. That the manufacturers in Ireland were quiet, but wished well to the Americans. That the people in England were anxious to hear from the Congress, expecting some offer of accommodation. That it was reported that on the news of Bunker-Hill the stocks fell a little, but afterwards rose again. That he heard of no disunion in the councils of Administration. That great numbers of vessels were laid up in the Thames, owing to the stopping of the American trade. That it was generally expected in England, that the next news from America would be that Major Skene was hanged.”

This Congress having frequently been unable to proceed to business, for want of a sufficient number of Members,

Ordered, That the Members of each County present, who have not a quorum of their County, do immediately write to their absent fellow-Deputies, to attend this Congress without delay.

Colonel McDougall moved, and was seconded by Major Williams, in the words following, to wit: “I move that a Committee be appointed to examine all the resolutions and advices of the Continental Congress, relative to this Colony, and report, without delay, their opinion of the best means to carry the said resolutions into execution; and also what use should be made of that advice, for the safety of this Colony."

Ordered, unanimously, That Colonel McDougall, Mr. Kissam, Mr. Hubbard, Mr. Low, and Mr. Sylvester, be a Committee for the purposes mentioned in the foregoing motion of Colonel McDougall.

A Letter from the Delegates of this Colony at Continental Congress, of the 9th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, October 9, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: We received your favour of the 4th inst., containing an account of the troops raised in our Colony, of which we shall make the proper use. The Congress approve highly of your diligence in the erection of fortifications on Hudson's River. You will, we believe, receive by this conveyance their sentiments on this subject, as well as extracts of some letters that show its propriety, and the designs of Administration against us.

"We sincerely lament the necessity to which the want of Gunpowder may reduce us, and have endeavoured, as far as lies in our power, to remove it, by procuring for you, at the Continental expense, one ton, which was all that could be obtained. You will take care not to forward this unless you know how to supply yourselves, for it is not the design of the Congress that you should, at any time, be entirely at the mercy of the enemy.

"We will take care to get your Artillery Company put upon a proper footing, in which we apprehend no difficulty. As to the want of clothing for our troops, we are not without hopes that that may be provided for in Canada, of which we cannot but flatter ourselves they will shortly be in possession.

"We remain, Gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your most obedient humble servants,

"PHILIP LIVINGSTON,

"JOHN ALSOP,

"JAMES DUANE,

"ROBERT R. LIVINGSTON, JUN.

"To the Honourable the Convention of the Province of New-York."

A Letter from the Honourable John Hancock, Esquire, of the 9th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit;

"Philadelphia, October 9, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Your letters of 6th instant have been laid before Congress. They have issued an order for one ton of powder to be sent to New-York, but I am directed to inform you, if you can with safety spare it, or any part, it is the wish of Congress that you would immediately forward it to General Schuyler.

"In answer to your letter respecting the Brig Mary, Capt. Wallace, which put into your port to repair, I am ordered to acquaint you, that the Congress recommend that she proceed on her voyage with the cargo, after being refitted.

"In consequence of your letter to Congress, enclosing a plan and estimate of the fort erecting on the Highlands of North River, I now enclose you the resolution of Congress thereon, to which refer you. I also enclose you a resolve of Congress respecting those who are, in your opinion, dangerous by being at large, to which also refer you. Your proposal enclosed, respecting the importation of gunpowder, is submitted to a committee; the resolution of Congress thereon shall be transmitted you.

"I have wrote to General Wooster, at Albany, by order of Congress, to proceed to the fort now building on North River, and there leave as many of his troops as the conductor of the works shall think necessary to expedite the works, and with the remainder to proceed to New-York, and there remain.

"By desire of your Delegates, I enclose you some extracts of letters from London, laid before Congress.

"I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"The Convention of New-York."

The Resolution of Continental Congress therein enclosed, relating to the erecting of Fortifications in the Highlands, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, October 7, 1775.

"The Report of a Committee appointed to take into consideration the Letters from New-York, and the plans for obstructing Hudson's River, report:

"That the Provincial Convention of New-York be directed immediately to render Hudson's River defensible; that in doing this, they be particularly attentive to form such works as may be finished before the winter sets in. As it is very doubtful whether any stone work can be properly made at this advanced season, it is submitted to the judgment of the said Convention, whether it could not be more cheaply and expeditiously done by works of wood or fascines. If they should think otherwise, that they be directed to go on with the work in the way which they think best, since it is the opinion of the Congress that the work should by no means be neglected.

"But if the work be already begun on the plan sent us, that they render such parts as can be first finished defensible, so that the labour be not thrown away, if an attack should be made before the whole can be finished.

"That the Convention be directed to inquire whether there are not some other places where small Batteries might be erected, so as to annoy the enemy on their passage, particularly a few heavy cannon at or near Moore's house, and at a point on the west shore, a little above Verplanck's Point.

"That it be recommended to said Convention to establish, at proper distances, posts to be ready to give intelligence to the country in case of any invasion, or by signals to give alarms in case of danger, and that they confer with the Assembly of Connecticut, and Convention of New-Jersey, on the speediest manner of conveying intelligence in such cases, and receiving assistance when necessary.

"That the Convention be further directed to take the most effectual method to obstruct the navigation of the said river, if, upon examination, they find it practicable.

"Resolved, That orders be sent to General Wooster, in case he has no orders to the contrary from General Schuyler, that he immediately return to the Batteries, erecting in the Highlands, and there leave as many of his troops as the conductors of the work shall think necessary for completing them, and that he repair with the remainder to New-York."

The Resolution of the Continental Congress, also therein enclosed, respecting persons dangerous to the community, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, October 6, 1775.

"Resolved, That it be recommended to the several Provincial Assemblies or Conventions, and Councils or Committees of Safety, to arrest and secure every person in their respective Colonies, whose going at large may, in their opinion, endanger the safety of the Colony, or the liberties of America.

"Ordered, That an authentick copy of this Resolve be, by the Delegates, transmitted to proper persons in their respective Colonies."

To be kept as secret as its nature will admit.

The extracts of the Letters from London, of the 31st of July last, therein mentioned, were also read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

Extract of a Letter laid before the Congress, dated London, July 31, 1775.

"I have lately heard a person intimately connected with Administration lament that twenty thousand men had not been at first sent to America; one-half to have remained with General Gage at Boston, five thousand to have kept possession of New-York and cut off all assistance from the Southern Colonies, and five thousand to have been employed under Burgoyne or Howe, in making descents in different parts of New-England; and ravaging and burning the Towns. And I have good information that it is yet intended to endeavour to recover the possession of New-York, Albany, &c., so as to open a communication with Canada, and prevent the New-Englanders from receiving any succour from the southward. There is a talk that more of the train of artillery, and some Regiments of foot, are going to America."

Extract of another Letter by the said conveyance, laid before the Congress, dated July 31, 1775.

"It is fit I should convey to you a more particular detail of what I have collected, and more especially as it is from unquestionable authority. The British-American Generals differ, I am informed, as to the number of men which they now think it will require to subdue the Massachusetts Rebels. Gage says fifteen thousand more than he already has, and Burgoyne says twenty thousand more. But all the Generals, however, agree in desiring a large re-enforcement of artillery, and therefore orders were yesterday sent to Woolwich for four Companies to embark immediately for North-America, with a large train of field-pieces, &c., and a further supply of clothing more than I mentioned in my letter of the 15th, for the Canadians, which Government is assured by General Carleton he shall raise in the Province of Quebeck. Parliament is prorogued till September, and then will be further prorogued to meet the beginning of November. In the mean time, Lord North thinks he possesses power and credit sufficient to order more forces to America, and push matters to the greatest extremity, before winter sets in.

"I have been well assured, that if the Spanish Armada should not visit Gibraltar, which, from the repulse it is said they have met with, will be the case, Government propose composing that garrison of three-fourths Hanoverians, and one-fourth British troops, in order that they may send the remainder of the latter, now there, to America. But the secret (as they imagine) plan of operation they have at present in agitation, or which I, perhaps, might properly say actually determined on and transmitted to Boston, is as follows: With the assistance of Governour Tryon, who is much relied on for the purpose, to get immediate possession of New-York and Albany; to fill both of these Cities with very strong garrisons; to declare all rebels who do not join the King's forces; to command the Hudson and East Rivers with a number of small men of war and cutters, stationed in different parts of it, so as wholly to cut off all communication, by water, between New-York and the Provinces to the northward of it, and between New-York and Albany, except for the King's service; and to prevent, also, all communication between the City of New-York and the Provinces of New-Jersey, Pennsylvania, and those to the southward of them. By these means, Administration and their friends fancy that they shall soon either starve out or retake the garrison of Crown Point and Ticonderoga, and open and maintain a safe intercourse and correspondence between Quebeck, Albany, and New-York, and thereby afford the fairest opportunity to their soldiery and the Canadians, in conjunction with the Indians, to be procured by Guy Johnson, to make continual irruptions into New-Hampshire, Massachusetts, and Connecticut, and so distract and divide the Provincial forces as to render it easy for the British Army at Boston to defeat them, break the spirits of the Massachusetts people, depopulate their country, and compel an absolute subjection to Great Britain. Another good effect to be deduced from this extensive plan (as Government apprehend) is, that as New-York will, by this method, be prevented from supplying the Massachusetts Army near Boston, with flour, &c., as they heretofore have done, through the medium of Connecticut, and the New-Jersey and Pennsylvania people will not be able to transport provisions across the country; and as the Colony of Connecticut does not raise corn sufficient for the supply of herself and the Massachusetts-Bay, the inhabitants and troops of this Province must inevitably, of course, be in a short time destroyed by diseases and famine; and to this train of facts let me add that, in consequence of General Gage's desire, brought by Captain Chadd, one hundred flat-bottomed boats are at present building at Deptford, &c., in order to be immediately sent to America; but for what particular purpose, I have not yet been able to learn. Many American gentlemen, however, have been asked by a Lord, high in the American department, what sized vessels can go loaded from hence to Albany; what is the depth of water at the Overslaugh—(I think that is the name of the shallowest place in the North River;) whether the ship belonging to Albany, in the London trade, is always obliged to unload part of her cargo before she can get to Albany, and what proportion of it; whether, if batteries were erected at the Highlands, they would not prevent vessels from going up and down the North River; and where would be the best places on that river to hinder the New-Jersey people, &c., from sending flour, &c., in the winter, through Connecticut, to the Massachusetts Army."

Extract of a Letter from LONDON, 7th AUGUST, 1775.

"The design, last Spring, was to have divided the troops sent out, as it is said, according to a plan of Governour Tryon's, which he gave to the Ministers, for carrying on the American war; but Gage's necessity has altered that plan for the present, and has obliged him to collect all the troops together at Boston, and Tryon, with all his malignity of heart, is compelled to sit still this season. As Tryon, for his conduct in North-Carolina, is in high estimation with the Ministry, his plan of attacking the different Colonies at the same time, is still to be followed, and the talk is, that troops will be sent to New-York, Pennsylvania, and Virginia. It is long since Carleton has received orders to enter the frontiers of the Northern Colonies with the Canadians, and, by his proclamation of martial law, he is endeavouring to put his orders into practice. It was part of Tryon's scheme to meet Carleton with the four Regiments that were ordered to New-York. This idea is not yet given up; for I understand it is intended, if the shipwrights can be forced or cajoled to work again, to construct a number of flat-bottomed boats here, so contrived, as when they touch the shore, to throw down a platform that will land at once six armed men, or may be used to fire field-pieces or swivel guns from. They are, when completed here, to be taken to pieces, and sent to Canada, to be used on the lakes. Besides the Armies on foot, every Colony should diligently attend to training their Militia, for their own internal defence. All valuable goods should be removed from Rhode-Island into the country, that the Island may not be surprised as Boston was. The same thing should be done in the City of New-York, and at the same time fortify some strong passes, to prevent any troops getting into the country. It would be a capital stroke to get possession of Tryon's person. Philadelphia must also look to itself in time."

Ordered, That the Master of the Brigantine Mary have notice that he has leave to depart this Colony as soon as she is refitted and fit for sea.

A Letter from John Farmer, Clerk of a meeting of the Inhabitants of Great-Neck, Cow-Neck, and all such as lately belonged to the Company of Captain Stephen Thorn, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"At a meeting of us, the Inhabitants of Great-Neck, Cow-Neck, and all such as lately belonged to the Company of Captain Stephen Thorn, in Queen's County, being duly warned on Saturday, the 23d of September, 1775, and taking into our serious consideration our distressed and calamitous situation, and being fully convinced of our total inability to pursue proper measures for our common safety, while we, in all cases, are considered as part of the Township of Hempstead, and being conscious that self-preservation, the immutable law of nature, is indispensable, do therefore

"1st. Resolve, That during the present controversy, or so long as their general conduct is inimical to freedom, we be no further considered as a part of the Township than is consistent with peace, liberty, and safety; therefore, in all matters relative to the Congressional plan, shall consider ourselves as an entire, separate, independent Beat or District.

"2d. Resolved, That Mr. Daniel Kissam, Mr. Henry Stocker, Mr. William Thorn, Mr. Benjamin Sands, Mr. William Cornwell, Mr. John Cornwell, Mr. John Mitchell, Sen., Mr. John Burtiss, Mr. Simond Sands, Mr. Martin Schenck, Mr. Daniel Whitehead Kissam, Mr. Peter Onderdonck, Mr. Adrian Onderdonck, and Mr. Thomas Dodge, be a Committee for this Beat or District.

"Attest: JOHN FARMER, Clerk of meeting."

"In Committee for the District of Great-Neck, Cow-Neck, &c., in Queen's County, the 4th of October, 1775:

"Present: John Cornwell, William Cornwell, Thomas Dodge, Simond Sands, Adrian Onderdonck, Daniel Whitehead Kissam, Peter Onderdonck, John Burtiss, and Benjamin Sands. Then proceeded and chose Benjamin Sands Chairman. Then adjourned to the 7th instant.

"In Committee according to adjournment.

"Present: the same members as before, and also Martin Schenck; when the following Resolves were passed, nem. con.:

"Resolved, That the proceedings of the meeting on the 23d September, for enabling this part of the County to pursue Congressional measures, and the Committee chosen in consequence, be immediately laid before the honourable the Provincial Congress, or, in their recess, the Committee of Safety, for their approbation.

"2d. Resolved, That the following gentlemen, having signed the General Association, and being duly elected as Officers of the Militia Company lately formed in this District, agreeable to the recommendation of the honourable Provincial Congress of this Colony, are hereby returned accordingly: John Sands, Captain; Henry Allen, First Lieutenant; Thomas Mitchell, Second Lieutenant; Aspinwall Cornwell, Ensign.

"Signed by order: BENJAMIN SANDS, Chairman.

"Attest: JOHN FARMER, Clerk of the Committee.

"To Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq."

A draught of a Letter to Mr. John Farmer, at Cow-Neck, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, at New-York, October 12, 1775.

SIR: The Congress have received the state of the proceedings of the inhabitants of Great-Neck, Cow-Neck, &c., relative to the choice of a Committee and officers for that District, and highly approve of their conduct therein. The commissions are enclosed to the officers, agreeable to the choice made, and the Congress doubt not that your Committee, and the other Associators, will, in their conduct, manifest a due attention to the important interests of their Country, in its present alarming and critical situation.

We are your humble servants.

To Benjamin Sands, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Great-Neck and Cow-Neck.

P. S. You are requested to obtain a list of the Associators as soon as may be convenient.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 12, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed resolution, which we received last evening from the Continental Congress, will show you the objects they have in view with regard to the fortifications now building in the Highlands, and also their sentiments as to the necessity of fortifying several other places on the river. We desire that you would take the matters recommended by the Congress into consideration, without loss of time, go to the several places mentioned in the resolutions, give us your opinions as to the fortifications necessary to be built at these places, with an estimate of the expenses, and what will be wanting from this City to complete the works. You will take Mr. Romans to your assistance, and use all possible despatch in making your report to this Congress. We have only to add, that you conduct this business with as much secrecy as the nature of the transaction will admit.

We are, Gentlemen, your very humble servants. By order:

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay unto Captain John Grennell, of Colonel James Clinton's Regiment, the sum of one hundred and seventy-seven Pounds thirteen Shillings and nine Pence, for the purpose of paying the Officers and Men belonging to his Company, that the said Company may be enabled to join the Regiment, and that the said Captain John Grennell do give a receipt to the said Treasurer, and an order to the Deputy Paymaster-General for the repayment of the said sum, and to acquaint Colonel James Clinton therewith; the sum above-mentioned being the amount of the pay of the Officers of that Company for two months, and the pay of the private men to the thirtieth day of September last, included. The account of the men and their pay sent to the Treasurer to be filed.

The Congress proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety on the fourth and fifth days, and of the morning of the sixth day of September, which were read.

The Congress then adjourned to nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., October 13, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, &c.

A Letter from the Honourable Jonathan Trumbull, Esq., Governour of Connecticut, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Lebanon, October 9, 1775.

"SIR: Have this moment received your favour of the 6th instant, enclosing an extract of your letter from General Schuyler, also requesting me to give such aid in the necessary article you mention, as may be in my power. I have just received General Washington's letter of the 5th inst., advising that a small fleet, consisting of a sixty-four gun ship, a twenty, two sloops of eighteen guns, two transports, and about six hundred men, with two mortars and four howitzers on board, had just sailed from Boston, from which he suspects they intended to bombard some Town on the coast. We have this day received, by report, a transient account that some ships were cannonading the Town of Bristol on the last Saturday, but have not got any certain intelligence of the matter. We are in expectation they may appear soon on our coast, and fear that, under the present situation of affairs, we are not able to lend any aid in the necessary article you mention, having made so many disbursements of that article already.

"I am, most respectfully, Sir, your most obedient humble servant, JONATHAN TRUMBULL.

"Honourable President Woodhull."

A draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The enclosed letter from Governour Trumbull we received this morning. In our application to the Colony of Connecticut for aid in the article Gen. Schuyler requested might be forwarded to him, we have failed, and thought proper to enclose Governour Trumbull's letter to the Congress.

We are, Gentlemen, your obedient servants. By order: To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, with a copy of Governour Trumbull's Letter enclosed, sent by post.

A copy of the information received from Captain John Lawrence was enclosed to the New-York Delegates, by post, in a private Letter from the President.

A Letter from John Berrien was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, October 13, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I have to acquaint you that the moneys received by the Commissioners, amounting to three hundred and fifty Pounds, are expended, and that I am considerable in advance. Have sundry orders from the above gentlemen laying against me, and some considerable accounts of provision, stores, &c. Must therefore beg your honourable House to furnish me with five hundred Pounds, on account, by an order on your Treasurer, to enable me to answer the above demands.

"I am, with respect, your obedient humble servant,

"JOHN BERRIEN.

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress."

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to Mr. John Berrien, as Commissary of the Commissioners for erecting the Fortifications in the Highlands, and one of the said Commissioners, the sum of five hundred Pounds, to be applied for the necessary purposes of erecting the said Fortifications; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Berrien's receipt for the same, on account.

A Letter from B. Romans, dated 12th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Fort Constitution, October 12, 1775.

"HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: By order from the Committee of Safety, I am up here for the purpose of constructing this fort; said gentlemen gave me their words that I should be appointed principal Engineer for this Province, with the rank and pay of Colonel. As I have been now actually engaged in this work since the 29th of August last, I should be glad to know the certainty of my appointment, and therefore humbly pray that my commission may be made out and sent. I have left the pursuit of my own business, which was very considerable, and endangered my pension from the Crown, by engaging in our great and common cause. These matters considered, I hope my request will be thought reasonable, and therefore complied with.

"I remain, with the utmost respect, honourable Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

"B. ROMANS."

Ordered, That the same be taken into consideration when the Proceedings of the Committee on that subject are read.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, advance to James Byers, who is casting Brass Field-Pieces by order of this Congress, the sum of two hundred and fifty Pounds, on account, and that Mr. Livingston take James Byers's receipt for the same, on account.

A long Letter, in French, from Jean Viellatt, on behalf of himself and some other French gentlemen from Canada, who are prisoners at Albany, was read in English, by Mr. Morris.

Ordered, That the same be enclosed to the New-York Delegates at Congress.

Thereupon, the draught of a Letter to the Committee at Albany was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Canadian prisoners in your City have applied to us in order to obtain their liberty, which it certainly is not in our power to give them. The Generals, Schuyler and Montgomery, must have had good reason to take them into custody. Yet it is our duty to alleviate as much as possible the evils of their confinement. We therefore request this of you, and also to provide them with lodgings and board at the publick expense, taking the necessary precautions to prevent their escape. We are, &c. To the Committee of Albany.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of an answer to the said Jean Viellatt, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are sorry that the fortune of war hath deprived you of liberty, and are unacquainted with the reasons which have induced the Generals to take that step. It is our misfortune, equally with yours, that we are not authorized to take this matter into our consideration, and therefore we have sent your memorial to the Continental Congress, who are alone competent. All that is in our power, is to obey the dictates of humanity, by endeavours to alleviate the rigours of your captivity. For this purpose we enclose you a letter to the Committee of Albany, which you will be pleased to deliver them; and believe that we are, with respect, your countrymen.

To Mr. Jean Viellatt and his Companions at Albany.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Delegates of the Colony of New-York, in Continental Congress, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 13, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We enclose you the memorials from some prisoners in Albany, on neither of which shall we make any comment. You will lay such of them before the Congress as you think proper. We are, &c.

To the Delegates of the Colony of New-York, at Congress, Philadelphia.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with the papers therein mentioned, transmitted.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety on the afternoon of the sixth day of September last.

On reading the Letter of Samuel Bayard, Esquire,

Ordered, That the same remain for further consideration.

On reading the Letter of Nicholas Low, of the 6th of September last, for leave to ship Flour,

Ordered, That a Letter be wrote to the Continental Congress, requesting their directions, whether the Inhabitants of this Colony ought to be prevented from exporting Provisions or any other articles to any places whatsoever, except those interdicted by the General Association of the Congress.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 13, 1775.

SIR: I am directed to request the favour of you to take the sense of the honourable Congress, and to give us their answer by return of the post, or first other good conveyance, whether the inhabitants of this Colony ought to be prevented from exporting provisions or other articles to any places whatsoever except those interdicted by the General Association of the Congress.

I am, with the greatest respect. By order of the Congress: To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Report of the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety on the 7th of September last. And on reading the Certificate of Jacobus Stoutenbergh, the Congress conceived his estimate of the Arms, therein mentioned, to be too high.

Ordered, That inquiry be made, what is become of the Accoutrements mentioned in that Certificate, and that the same be further considered hereafter.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the residue of the Proceedings of the last Committee of Safety on the seventh, and their Proceedings on the eighth day of September last. Thereupon, Mr. Low moved, and was seconded by Mr. Verplanck, in the words following, to wit: "I move that the sense of this Congress be taken, whether the evidence, which appears to this Congress, was sufficient to authorize the taking of Mr. Bethune." Debates arising thereon, and the day being near elapsed,

Ordered, That Mr. Low's motion be postponed till tomorrow morning.

The Congress then adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., October 14, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present: Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, &c.

Mr. John Moore, of Tryon County, attending at the door, was called in. He produced a Certificate from the Committee of Tryon County, signed by Nicholas Herckheimer, Chairman. Was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Tryon County Committee Chamber, September 13, 1775.

"HONOURABLE GENTLEMEN: Agreeable to a resolve of this Committee, instead of your late Delegate at the Provincial Congress of New-York, Mr. John Moore, a member of our Committee, was chosen by a majority of votes to represent our County in the said Provincial Congress of New-York, as our Delegate, whom we recommend to be accordingly accepted on that purpose; and we are of the humble opinion that one will suffice as representative for our County, as the expense for two would be too burdensome for our small County. Relying on your favourable grant, we are always, with much regard, honourable Gentlemen, your obedient humble servants.

"By order of the Committee:

"NICHOLAS HERCKHEIMER, Chairman."

Ordered, That Mr. John Moore take his seat.

Francis James, owner of a Pilot-Boat, named the Bishop of Llandaff, lately employed in services to the eastward, was called in and examined. Thereupon,

Ordered, That the Wardens of the Port of New-York do, on their oath of office, value the said Pilot-Boat, as she now lays, and return their valuation thereof, signed by themselves, to this Congress, with all convenient speed.

A Letter from Jacob Lansing, Jun., Esq., Chairman of the Committee at Albany, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, October 9, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: In consequence of your letter respecting the repairing of the barracks, we have appointed those persons whom you recommended to us, who we judge are competent for the purpose. We will give them all the advice they may stand in need of, in order to complete this business with expedition; and as many articles cannot be got without cash, viz: firewood, lime, brick, &c., we have therefore taken the liberty to draw upon you, in favour of Messrs. Peter Silvester, Abraham Yates, Jun., and Henry Glenn, Esquires, for the sum of two hundred Pounds, for which sum this Committee will be accountable, after the work is completed.

"We are, Gentlemen, with esteem, your most humble servants. By order of the Committee:

"JACOB LANSING, JUN., Chairman."

The Draft for two hundred Pounds, mentioned in the Letter of Jacob Lansing, Jun., Esquire, Chairman of the Committee of Albany, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, October 9, 1775.

"SIR: Please to pay or cause to be paid unto Messrs. Peter Silvester, Abraham Yates, Jun., and Henry Glenn, Esquires, the sum of two hundred Pounds, New-York currency, for the purpose as mentioned in our letter of this day's date.

"I am, Sir, your most obedient servant.

"By order of the Committee:

"JACOB LANSING, JUN., Chairman."

"To N. Woodhull, Esq."

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress, do pay to Peter Silvester, Abraham Yates, Jun., and Henry Glenn, Esqrs., the sum of two hundred Pounds, New-York currency, for the purpose of repairing the Barracks at Albany, and that Mr. Livingston take a receipt from those gentlemen for that sum.

The President informed the Congress that Powder from Philadelphia for this Congress is passed or passing through Elizabethtown to Dobb's Ferry.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall be authorized, and is hereby authorized, to take such methods to get that Powder safe to Town as he shall think proper.

A Letter from Jacobus Van Zandt was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Saturday Morning.

"SIR: We think it will be prudent of the Congress to order Colonel Lasher to procure twenty men to guard the Congress money without Sandy-Hook, as the man-of-war boat may lay in wait for her near that place, although the Viper may be at sea by way of decoy.

"I am, in behalf of the Committee, Sir, your humble servant,

JACOBUS VAN ZANDT.

"To Colonel Woodhull, Chairman of Provincial Congress.

"P. S. The vessel will be ready to sail this evening or to-morrow."

Ordered, That Mr. Van Zandt and Colonel McDougall confer with Mr. Van Zandt on the subject of his Letter, and that they agree upon such methods relative thereto as they shall think proper, and carry the same or direct the same to be carried into execution.

The Congress then resumed the consideration of the motion of Mr. Low, of yesterday, seconded by Mr. Verplanck, which motion is in the words following, to wit: "I move that the sense of this Congress be taken, whether the evidence, which appears to this Congress, was sufficient to authorize the taking of Mr. Bethune."

And debates arising thereon, and the question being put, whether the evidence, which appears to this Congress, was sufficient to authorize the taking of Mr. Bethune, it was carried in the negative, in manner following, to wit:

For the Negative.

4 New-York, (Mr. McDougall, Thomas Smith, John Van Cortlandt, James Beekman, dissenting.)
2 Queen's, (Mr. Thorne for Queen's,)
2 Richmond,
2 Tryon,
3 Albany.

For the Affirmative.

2 Suffolk,
2 Cumberland,
4 (King's, divided.)

13

Resolved, therefore, That it is the sense of this Congress, that the evidence, which appears to this Congress, was not sufficient to authorize the taking of Mr. Bethune.

On motion of Mr. Micheau,

Ordered, That the Report of the Committee made on the 8th of July last, of a plan for a dissolution of this Congress, and the election of a new Provincial Congress for this Colony, except that part which was then considered and agreed to, be taken into consideration on Wednesday next.

The Congress then adjourned until Monday morning, but not then able to make a House.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., October 17, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

A Letter from Walter Franklin & Co. was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, October 17, 1775.

"RESPECTED FRIEND: We have a sloop which we propose sending to Georgia, one of the United Colonies, and to put her in a set of ballast, with about one hundred barrels of flour, some bread, rum, and perhaps some other small articles, but shall not proceed to take any thing on board until a permission is first obtained from the honourable Provincial Congress.

"We are, respectfully, thy friends,

"WALTER FRANKLIN & Co."

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be deferred until to-morrow.

Mr. Kissam, from the Committee appointed to examine all the Resolutions and advices of the Continental Congress, relative to this Colony, delivered in their Report, which was read; and the same being again read, paragraph by paragraph, and amended and approved of, is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee report, that they have perused all the Resolutions of the Continental Congress which more immediately respect this Colony, from the 18th May to the 17th instant, and find that the resolution relative to the collecting Saltpetre and Brimstone hath not been fully complied with, and therefore do report it as their opinion—

1st. That all the Brimstone and Sulphur in this City, not exceeding twenty tons, (except about two tons to be reserved for the use of vessels,) be purchased and deposited, with all convenient despatch, at some secure place near the Powder Mills in this Colony, under the care of the respective Committees of the County or District where the mills are.

2d. That a letter be written to the respective Colonels of the Militia and Minute-Men in this Colony, requesting them to appoint and notify to their respective Regiments, some convenient place of rendezvous, where they are to muster, completely equipped, upon any publick alarm, and to remain until marching orders shall be received by their respective Colonels or commanding Officers; and that the Colonels be desired to acquaint this Congress of the places they shall so respectively appoint for that purpose.

3d. That in order to give a general alarm throughout the Colony, in case of invasion, and for the purpose of mustering the Regiments aforesaid, that Beacons be erected at convenient places and distances throughout the Colony, and where convenient places cannot be found to erect Beacons, that Cannon be fixed instead of them, and that some fit person be employed, under the direction and with the advice of the several County Committees, to make a proper arrangement for this business, and to report thereon to the Congress.

4th. And for the purpose of conveying intelligence, in case of invasion, your Committee report, that it be recommended to the several County Committees in this Colony, to appoint and engage some one or more of their own body, whose place of residence shall be convenient for the purpose, or any other discreet person or persons who shall live on or near the most publick roads that lead from New-York through their respective Counties, to have a person and horse in readiness to forward intelligence in case of invasion; and that the Committees fix the several stages, in their respective Counties, from ten to about fifteen miles distance, and make a return thereof to the Congress, with the names and places of abode of the persons to be employed as aforesaid.

5th. That a letter be written to the Commissioners appointed for erecting a Battery on the banks of Hudson's River, requesting them to examine whether it is practicable to obstruct the navigation of Hudson's River, between this City and the said Battery, and, if so, in what place and how, and that they report thereon with all convenient speed. And that the said Commissioners be also desired to report whether there are any other places on Hudson's River, where small Batteries may be erected so as to annoy the enemy in their passage, and, particularly, whether the Point on the west shore, a little above Verplanck's Point, and at or near Moore's House, would not be proper places for that purpose; and that they be requested to report to this Congress, with all convenient speed, such places as they shall think may be advantageously fortified, with an estimate of the expense, and an account of the number and weight of ordnance that will be wanting, and when, in their opinion, the works could be completed.

6th. Your Committee further report, that it is their opinion that four Companies of Matrosses, consisting of eighty men each, will be necessary to occupy the Forts on Hudson's River, when completed, and that one Company at least should be immediately enlisted for that purpose; and that it will be proper to write to the Continental Congress for their direction on this subject.

7th. That a copy of the Continental Resolution of the 7th instant, together with such parts of this report as respect the said resolution, be sent to the Assembly of Connecticut and the Provincial Congress of New-Jersey, together with a letter, requesting their advice on the subject of conveying intelligence in cases of invasion, and of receiving assistance when necessary.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their Committee in their Report.

The draught of a Letter to the Colonels of the Militia and Minute-Men was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, October 17, 1775.

SIR: In order that timely assistance may be had, in case of an invasion on this Colony, directions will be given by the Congress for erecting beacons at some and cannon in other places of the Colony, to alarm the country; these signals, when erected, will be so arranged as to prevent any mistakes in the alarm. You are requested to give orders to your Regiments, that upon any alarm so made, they muster, completely equipped and with provisions, at some convenient place of rendezvous to be appointed by you, and remain there till you shall receive marching orders from the Congress or your commanding officer.

Please to acquaint us with the place you shall appoint for the rendezvous.

We are your humble servants.

To the Colonels of the Militia and Minute-Men.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Congress of New-Jersey, and to the Governour and Company of Connecticut, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

SIR: We enclose you a copy of an order of Congress, directing us to confer with you on the speediest manner of conveying intelligence, in cases of invasion, and of receiving assistance when necessary. We also enclose a plan for that purpose, for your consideration, and beg you will favour us with your sentiments on the subject, with such amendments or additions to it as you may think necessary.

We are your very humble servants.

Ordered, That two copies thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and one copy thereof be directed to the Congress of New-Jersey, and another copy to the Governour and Company of Connecticut.

A draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 17, 1775.

SIR: We have used all possible despatch to complete the fortifications on Hudson's River, and we expect they will be in such forwardness in about six weeks, as to have most of the cannon mounted. The Commissioners have been directed to make the necessary inquiries respecting the other small batteries, and in the obstructing of the navigation of Hudson's River, mentioned by Congress in their order of the 7th instant, to which due attention shall be paid. We are of opinion that four Companies of Matrosses, consisting of at least eighty men each, will be wanted to occupy these forts when completed, and that one Company at least should be immediately raised, that we may in time have men properly trained to the use of cannon, as the utility of our fortifications will much depend upon it.

We are, &c.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the above Reports of the Committee, be transmitted.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter T. Curtenius be requested to purchase fifty thousand Flints and five tons of Lead, for the use of this Colony.

Messrs. John Griffith and Thomas Vardell, two of the Wardens of the Port of New-York, delivered in an estimate of the Pilot-Boat named the Bishop of Llandaff, which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, October 18, 1775.

"We, the subscribers, have examined the Pilot-Boat named the Bishop of Llandaff, and find her to be worth the sum of four hundred and ninety-six Pounds, this currency.

"JOHN GRIFFITH,
"THOMAS VARDELL."

A Receipt from Colonel Goose Van Schaick to Christopher Duyckinck, for fourteen hundred pounds of Powder, delivered at Albany on the 10th instant, was read and filed.

A Letter from John Hanson, one of the Commissioners for erecting the Fortifications in the Highlands, dated and received yesterday, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Monday, October 16, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I shall esteem it a very particular favour if you will appoint somebody to act in my place as one of the Commissioners for erecting fortifications on Hudson's River, as I have always intended going to the West-Indies the last of this month. I shall return up the river, and give you every assistance in my power during my stay here, and bring with me the joint opinion of all the gentlemen, relative to the new instructions sent to us from the Continental Congress.

"I am, with esteem and respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

"JOHN HANSON."

Ordered, That the said Letter remain for consideration till a proper person can be thought of as a Commissioner.

Robert North and Ferboss, two of Hudson's River Skippers, came into Congress, and complained of some disagreeable treatment which they received at the new Fortifications. Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to the said Commissioners was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 17, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We have received complaints from sundry persons with relation to the conduct of some among you who have maltreated the commanders and passengers of vessels navigating Hudson's River, for not lowering the peak of the mainsail upon passing the fort. Those who have been provoked by this demand complain that you should, of your own authority, without the recommendation of the Congress, exact instances of respect from your fellow-citizens. You must at once be sensible that so trivial a token, or the omission of it, can never mark out our friends from our foes, or answer any other valuable purpose; at the same time it is evident that great disgusts have arisen from the peremptory demand, and probably bloodshed may ensue. The Colonies have sufficiently suffered through punctilio, and we beg you will desist from exacting marks of submission or respect, of any kind, until a plan, which is now in agitation, shall be completed, which may tend to obviate the future intentions of our foes to pierce into the interior of the Colony, through the natural communication which the river affords; to prevent this is the intention of the fortification which you superintend, and therefore all signals from vessels going backwards and forwards should, in our opinion, be simply confined to that object, and be by no means used as instances of complaisance to the Congress or its officers, when the peace and safety of the community so loudly forbid it.

We are, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order:

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

The Petition of John Hunter, for assistance in cash, and his Plan for carrying on a Linen Manufactory, with the scheme for appointing Managers, delivered in therewith, were read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Petition, and Plans attending the same, lay on the table for the perusal of the Members.

The Petition of Richard Lightfoot, a Pin-Maker, proposing a plan for carrying on the business of Pin making, and requesting money, and the aid of Congress, to set that business on foot and carry it on.

Ordered, That the said Petition, and the papers attending the same, lie on the table for the perusal of the Members.

The Congress then adjourned until nine o'clock, tomorrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 9 ho. A. M., October 18, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, &c.

A Letter from the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, October 16, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: By some late advices from General Schuyler, we understand that he is in great distress for want of powder; and as so much depends on the success of that expedition, indeed, as the safety of all America depends upon it, the Congress have unanimously agreed that the ton of powder forwarded to you last week, from Philadelphia, be, with all possible expedition, despatched to General Schuyler. In the mean time the Congress will fall upon all the measures in their power, to furnish you with all that they possibly can.

"You will please immediately to put this recommendation in execution.

"I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
"JOHN HANCOCK, President.

"Provincial Convention of New-York."

Ordered, That the ton of Powder, mentioned in President Hancock's Letter of the 16th instant, and now in the Powder-House at New-York, be forwarded to General Schuyler immediately; and that John Van Cortlandt and Joseph Hallett, Esquires, or either of them, be empowered to receive the said Powder from Gabriel W. Ludlow, Esq., and forward the same to Colonel Van Schaick, at Albany, and in his absence to the Commissary there, to be forwarded to General Schuyler immediately; and that these gentlemen forward the said Gunpowder in such manner as they think best.

And Ordered, That Gabriel W. Ludlow, Esq., deliver the said ton of Gunpowder to John Van Cortlandt and Joseph Hallett, Esquires, or either of them, or their or either of their order.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to Col. Van Schaick, at Albany, and in his absence to Walter Livingston, Esq., was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, October 18, 1775.

SIR: We send by this conveyance a ton of gunpowder, which, by order of the honourable the Continental Congress, is to be forwarded to General Schuyler with all possible despatch, which we pray you to see performed.

We are, respectfully, Sir, your very humble servants. By order:

To Col. Goose Van Schaick, at Albany, and in his absence to Walter Livingston, Esq., or his Deputy.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted with the said Gunpowder.

A draught of a Letter to the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 18, 1775.

SIR: We are this moment honoured with your favour of the 16th instant, advising us of the unanimous resolution of Congress to forward to General Schuyler the ton of Powder you lately sent us, which was immediately ordered to be carried into execution, although we cannot, beside that, command two hundred pounds of powder, if it would save the Colony from destruction. We have frequently spared all the powder in our Colony to supply the urgent calls of the Continental Army at Cambridge and Ticonderoga, and thereby exposed ourselves to insult and ruin. We therefore entreat you to represent to Congress the absolute necessity of their replacing, without delay, the powder we have furnished to the Continental Army, for otherwise we shall not be able, in case of an invasion, to make that defence which might be expected from us by our neighbours, or even to prevent insults. Should the Congress be unable to order us the powder out of the Continental magazine, we submit it to their consideration, whether the City of Philadelphia cannot, with greater safety to the confederated Colonies, spare the quantity we have sent to the Army, than we can want it.

We are, respectfully, Sir, your most obedient servants. By order:

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Mr. Abraham Yates, from the Members of Albany, brought in a draught of a Letter to Walter Livingston, Esq., the Deputy Commissary-General at Albany, relating to the accounts of Ferry-men, for ferrying Soldiers in that County, which was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress at New-York, October 18, 1775.

SIR: Upon application of the Members from Albany, representing the unsettled state of the ferry-men's charges for carrying over the troops on their way to the seat of action, we think proper to inform you that we conceive those charges should be a Continental charge, and would recommend it to you to settle the same, that no obstruction may arise to the troops passing and repassing to and from that quarter.

We are, most respectfully, Sir, your very humble servants. By order:

To Walter Livingston, Esq., Deputy Commissary-General at Albany.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt informed the Congress, that in obedience to their parole instructions, given to him in Congress yesterday, he had agreed with Francis James for the purchase of the Pilot-Boat named the Bishop of Llandaff; that the said Francis James, on behalf of himself and the other owners of the said Pilot-Boat, had disposed of her to him for the sum of four hundred and ninety-six Pounds, the value at which she has been appraised by two of the Wardens of this Port.

Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as

Treasurer of this Congress, do immediately advance to Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt, the said sum of four hundred and ninety-six Pounds, to pay for the said Pilot-Boat named the Bishop of Llandaff.

A Letter from General Washington was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit :

"Camp at Cambridge, October 13, 1775.

"SIR: I am to thank you for your favour of the 4th inst., enclosing the advices from England of 26th July and 8th August. A few days ago, I apprized the Committee of New-York of the sailing of a small fleet from Boston, with artillery to bombard a Town. I did not then know that the Provincial Congress was sitting, or the advice would have been directed to them. I now, Sir, beg leave to acquaint you that the fleet then mentioned has been seen standing N. N. E., so that we apprehend it is destined against some Town on the coast of this Province, New-Hampshire, or perhaps to Quebeck.

"We have no occurrence in the camp worthy of notice. Both sides are making all preparation for winter.

"I am, with the most respectful regards to the Provincial Congress, Sir, your most obedient and very humble servant,
GEORGE WASHINGTON.

"The President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

A Letter from Samuel Bayard and William Bedlow, Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands, bearing date the 15th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit :

"Martelaer's Rock, October 15, 1775.

"SIR: Since we have had cannon mounted and colours hoisted on this fortification, we thought it necessary for every vessel passing by in the daytime, instead of sending their boat on shore, to hail them to lower the peak of their mainsail, as a token of their being friendly. We are now to acquaint you that one Captain Robert North, passing by on this day, was hailed to lower his peak, which he refused to do. On being threatened with a shot, he replied, that was what he wanted. On this, we sent an armed boat on board of him, to bring him to, in order to inquire his reason for refusing to do the same which he that instant saw another sloop to do. On our boat's boarding of him, he told the people therein, that he had a brace of pistols, and if that damned rascal, Captain Bayard, did not produce an order to him, from the Provincial Congress, for the request we made, he would blow his brains out; with many more unfriendly expressions. We beg, Sir, you will lay the above before the honourable Provincial Congress; and if our conduct herein meet with their approbation, you will please to signify the same unto us.

"We are, with respect, Sir, your humble servants,

"SAMUEL BAYARD,

"WILLIAM BEDLOW.

"To Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress."

A Letter from Messrs. Samuel Bayard and William Bedlow, two of the Commissioners of the Fortifications at the Highlands, bearing date on the 16th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit :

"Hudson's River, October 16, 1775.

"SIR: Yours, in Provincial Congress of the 12th inst., enclosing sundry resolutions of the Continental Congress, we yesterday received; and on consulting with Mr. Romans, the engineer, have made the several remarks therein, which we now send you enclosed. As soon as time will permit, we shall view the places recommended more strictly than we have had an opportunity to do at present. The engineer informs us he cannot give an estimate of the charge of a further work, that may be necessary at Pooploop's Kill. We shall exert ourselves in forwarding the works carrying on here, and every other order the Provincial Congress may command. We beg leave to request you will communicate this, with the enclosed, unto the honourable Provincial Congress.

"We are, Sir, your very humble servants,

"SAMUEL BAYARD,

"WILLIAM BEDLOW.

"To Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress,"

The Remarks of the Engineer and Commissioners at the Highlands were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit :

"Highlands, October 16, 1775.

"Remarks in answer to the 'Report of a Committee appointed to take into consideration the Letters from NEW-YORK, and the plans for obstructing the navigation of HUDSON'S RIVER.'

"If it be considered that the season when this work was undertaken was very far advanced, I think that we are in as forward a situation as can be wished for; and I make no doubt but the works begun will in three weeks' time be of sufficient strength to stand the brunt of as large a ship of rank as can come here, and two or three small fry. Heavy cannon, such as of eighteen, twenty-four, and thirty-two pounds, seem to be all that is wanted. I think on Saturday next to be able to mount from twelve to eighteen cannon, eight of which, at least, might be heavy ones. We are in a miserable timber country; even fascines are with more difficulty got than stones. Of the last we have such plenty, that in four days one hundred and fifty perches of wall has been properly laid by twelve masons. We want more workmen, especially masons, and require a regulation prescribed to them, which it seems impossible to bring them under until they be properly officered and distributed, each division having its proper department allotted. It is not only the difficulty of getting timber, but we have fully experienced that the part of the work which is done in timber advances slower than the stone, by a degree beyond all comparison.

"A battery at Moore's house seems, at present, to me entirely useless. I will examine further into this article.

"The point on the west side, above Verplanck's Point, is too easy of access, and in the vicinity of many ill-disposed people; besides this, it can be of little use. But at Pooploop's Kill, opposite to Anthony's Nose, it is a very important pass: the river narrow, commanded a great way up and down, full of counter currents, and subject to almost constant fall winds; nor is there any anchorage at all, except close under the works to be erected. It is a very easy matter to establish posts for intelligence with the upper country and Connecticut; for the last, I intend to go in person, in about two or three weeks' time. With those in the Jerseys I am not so perfectly acquainted; but if the country people are well affected, I know the roads admit of the most expeditious intelligence, and of our receiving the readiest assistance.

"I understand that it will be an easy matter to obstruct the navigation of the river, so as to confine it to twelve or fourteen feet; and in that case it remains large enough for our use, and, without new inventions and constructions, the enemy can then do us very little hurt.

"B. ROMANS, Engineer."

"Highlands, October 16, 1775.

"We have considered the above remarks, and fully concur in opinion with the Engineer.

"SAMUEL BAYARD.

"WILLIAM BEDLOW."

Ordered, That a copy of the said Letter and Remarks be made, to be sent to the Continental Congress.

The Order of the Day being read, the Congress proceeded to take into consideration the Report of the Committee on the 8th of June last, of a plan for the dissolution of this Congress, and the election of a new Provincial Congress for this Colony. The same was read; and being again read by paragraphs, and amended, on reading that part of the said Report which directs to choose such persons as they can confide in to represent them, &c., Colonel Hardenbergh moved, and was seconded by Major Williams, in the words following, to wit: "I move that elections for Delegates for the next Provincial Congress shall be by ballot, in the several Cities and Counties in this Colony."

Whereupon, Mr. De Lancey moved, and was seconded by Mr. Clarkson, the Previous Question, whether the question on Colonel Hardenbergh's motion should be now put; and the Previous Question being put, it was carried for the Previous Question, in the manner following, to wit :

For the Previous Question.      Against the Previous Question.

2 Westchester,	2 Ulster,
4 New-York,	2 Cumberland,
2 Tryon,	2 Suffolk.
3 Albany,	—
2 King's.	6

13 Messrs. McDougall and Thomas Smith, of New-York, dissent from their County.

Resolved, therefore, That the question on Colonel Hardenbergh's motion be not now put.

The said Report being then read through, and agreed to and approved of, is in the words following, to wit:

Whereas it is highly necessary, for the sake of liberty, that the duration of the power of all persons intrusted with high authority should be limited to a short period, and more especially when they are nominated by and their authority delegated unto them from the body of the People:

Resolved, therefore, That this Congress shall be dissolved on Tuesday, the 14th day of November next. And forasmuch as it appears to us highly necessary that a Provincial Congress should exist until the disputes between Great Britain and America shall be adjusted, and that the Members of that Congress should be so proportioned as to give a due weight of representation to the several parts of the Colony, it is therefore recommended to the good people of this Colony, that those who are qualified to vote for Representatives in General Assembly, do choose such persons as they can confide in, to represent them, as Deputies of this Colony, in Provincial Congress, until the second Tuesday in May next, unless a reconciliation with Great Britain shall sooner take place; and that the Deputies so chosen meet at the City of New-York, on the said fourteenth day of November next. And it is further recommended, that the election be held at the usual places for election of Representatives in General Assembly, in the several Counties, on Tuesday, the seventh day of November next, by the respective Committees of the several Counties, or at such other places as the said Committees shall previously appoint, and duly notify to their several Counties.

And in order to proportion the Members of each County, it is Resolved, That the City and County of New-York have twenty-one Members; the City and County of Albany, twelve Members; the County of Dutchess, nine Members; the County of Westchester, nine Members; the County of Ulster, eight Members; the County of Suffolk, eight Members; the County of Orange, six Members; the County of Queen's, eight Members; the County of King's, four Members; the County of Richmond, four Members; the County of Tryon, four Members; the County of Cumberland, three Members; the County of Gloucester, two Members; the County of Charlotte, two Members.

Resolved, That this Congress does agree with their said Committee in the said Report; and Ordered, That the same be published in all the Newspapers.

A Letter from Mr. John Hanson, one of the Commissioners for erecting the Fortifications, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“October 18, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: I have taken the liberty to enclose to you the papers delivered to me by Mr. Yates and Mr. Glen. Those gentlemen behaved with the greatest politeness, and I imagined that their observations would have been sufficient to have set every thing at the fort in proper order. As for my part, when I undertook that business, it was from pure love to my Country and to the rights of mankind, without any views of self-interest, and never expected any pay for what I did; and I believe that those who were joined with me acted from the strictest principles of honour. I can, with truth, say that never any man was ill used, passing that river, by any of us, unless he abused us; and then he received but a small check, not equal to his demerits. It would have been acting genteel to have inquired into the complaint laid before the Congress, before passing a censure upon the gentlemen at the fort, contained in the four first lines of your letter to them. When men act from principle, and are placed at any particular post of consequence, and find themselves in a precarious situation, it naturally follows, they must exercise their own judgment for the good of the post, and ought to be supported by those who placed them there; which has not been the case in this instance. An insult offered to them, was offered to the Congress; and the abuse of the complainants in Congress ought not to have been permitted. Had the Congress answered our letter relative to the very thing complained of, this never would have happened. I must therefore request, gentlemen, the favour of the Congress to appoint somebody in my room, for I will never go back to the fort.

“I am, very respectfully, Gentlemen, your obedient humble servant,

JOHN HANSON.”

Ordered, That the consideration thereof be referred till to-morrow morning.

The Congress then adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., October 19, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

A Petition from Samuel Tudor, praying for rank for himself and Company, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“New-York, October 18, 1775.

“SIR: As I am informed the honourable Congress has it under consideration to fix the rank of the City Artillery Companies, my entreating it to be determined as soon as convenient, and offering my sentiments thereon, will not, I hope, be thought presumptuous. My duty to you, myself, and the Company I have the honour to command, urge me thereto: to you, Sir, that you be properly informed; to myself and the Company, that in case we be deprived of our rights, I shall stand acquitted of remissness. I therefore beg leave to inform you, that my Company is of as long standing as Captain Rutgers's commission—that is, about three years; that his Company does not consist of half my number; that mine was always styled the First Company, and, until now, was the only Artillery Company; and that it has been kept up with great expense and industry, for the service of this Country; which good intention, I fear, will be defeated, should it lose that rank which we, with submission, think it justly entitled to—of remaining the First Company. The event, Sir, I have some cause to apprehend, from Captain Rutgers receiving an order for two pieces of cannon, whilst I, with a much larger and disciplined Company, have received but one; and am, therefore, disappointed in my early repeated applications to your honourable body, in the promise I had of being first supplied, and the pains I took to forward the casting them.

“I am, with great respect, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

SAMUEL TUDOR.

“To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq.”

Ordered, That Mr. Clarkson, Mr. Thomas Smith, and Mr. Morris, be a Committee to inquire into the pretensions of Captain Rutgers and Captain Tudor, and their respective Companies, and report their opinion with respect to the rank of those gentlemen and their Companies.

A draught of Instructions to the Superintendents at the Fortifications in the Highlands, respecting vessels passing the said Fortifications, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 19, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are favoured with yours of the 15th instant, and are pleased with your activity in forwarding the fort and works under your charge in the Highlands. To obviate all disputes relative to your conduct, it is our desire that you would dispense with the ceremony of vessels lowering their peak as they pass the fort; we think it cannot answer the purpose of detecting the foe; and that for the future you would observe the following rules:

1st. In general, we do not apprehend any danger can arise from vessels coming from the northward. You may, therefore, let them pass unmolested, unless you shall have evidence, on oath, or a certificate from some Committee, previously given, that they are intended to supply the Ministerial Army or Navy with succours or necessaries; in which case, you are to detain them until you can give the Congress or the Committee of Safety notice thereof, together with such evidence or certificate, and receive their orders.

2d. You will permit all vessels from the southward to pass by unmolested, unless you shall have good reason to suspect that they are prosecuting designs inimical to the general cause; and in such case, you will prevent them from proceeding, until you shall be satisfied that they have no such designs.

3d. We recommend it to the Superintendents of the fort, and also to the inhabitants of the Colony, by their general conduct to use their endeavours to cultivate a good understanding with each other; being confident that the Superintendents will not permit those employed under them to use illiberal language to persons navigating the river, and that they will, in the exercise of their office, give as little trouble to the inhabitants of the Colony as is possible.

We are, respectfully, Gentlemen, your very humble servants. By order:

To the Commissioners at the Fortifications in the Highlands.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Ordered, That Timothy Doughty, and all the other prisoners now in the Jail, by order of the Committee of Safety, be brought down before the Congress to-morrow morning to be heard; and that Colonel McDougall be requested to furnish a sufficient Guard for that purpose.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety on the 9th, 11th, 12th, 13th, 14th, and part of the 15th days of September last; and on reading that part of the Minutes of the Committee of Safety which relates to John Cornell and George Nicholson,

Resolved, unanimously, That John Cornell be at liberty to prosecute George Nicholson, or any other person he thinks proper, for a certain Horse said to be let to the said George Nicholson, or for the Hire of the said Horse.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the residue of the Minutes of the Proceedings of the said Committee of Safety, as far as the end of their Proceedings on the morning of the said 15th day of September last.

A Letter from the Committee of Newport, dated October 12th, and signed by Samuel Dyer, Chairman pro tempore, was read, setting forth the distresses of the said Town, through the want of Bread, and praying that Captain John Andrews and Mr. Nathan Beebee may be permitted to purchase a load of Flour, for the use of the inhabitants of the said Town of Newport.

Ordered, That Captain John Andrews and Mr. Nathan Beebee be allowed to purchase and lade on board of their vessel a cargo of Flour, for the use of the inhabitants of the Town of Newport, upon condition that the said John Andrews and Nathan Beebee do deliver a manifest of the said Flour to the Secretary of this Congress, and within three months return to the said Secretary a certificate from the Chairman of the Committee of Newport, that the said Flour was reported to and under the direction of the said Committee, (the dangers of the seas and seizures excepted;) and if the said John Andrews and Nathan Beebee do not comply with the condition aforesaid, that then they shall be deemed guilty of an infringement of the Resolution of this Congress, and enemies to this Country.

The Congress then adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 9 ho. A. M., October 20, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present: Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

A Letter from the Delegates of this Colony at Continental Congress, dated Philadelphia, the 16th instant, was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, October 16, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Four of your Delegates being absent on publick business, and another detained by ill health, we are at present reduced to five, less than which number are insufficient to form a representation; so that in case of sickness, or the necessary absence of any one of us, our Province remains unrepresented.

"We submit it, therefore, to your consideration, whether a delegation of the power to three, when the rest are absent, would not be advantageous to the Colony.

"We beg leave to be favoured with your answer to this as soon as possible; and have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, your most obedient humble servants,

"JAMES DUANE,

"JOHN ALSOP,

"ROB'T R. LIVINGSTON, JR.,

"HENRY WISNER,

"JOHN JAY.

"The Hon. the Provincial Congress of New-York."

A draught of a Letter to the Delegates of this Colony at Continental Congress was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 20, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Although we do much regret the chance which you mention, that our Colony may perhaps be unrepresented, yet it is our misfortune to conceive ourselves incapable of complying with the mode you have pointed out to prevent this untoward circumstance. Although we should not hesitate to confer the important trust with which you are invested upon five gentlemen, or any three of that five, upon the supposition that it was now a question to nominate our trustees de novo, and although we have no apprehensions but that five such gentlemen might at once be named from among those who now represent us, yet when we consider that twelve were originally designated, of whom five to be a quorum, we necessarily supposed that this last number was particularly pointed out with a general view to the several members, and in the confidence that every five of them would be amply sufficient for that beneficial purpose. We cannot pretend, therefore, to lessen that number, unless indeed upon the most cogent necessity, and perhaps not then.

We are, with great respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient and humble servants. By order:

To the New-York Delegates in Continental Congress.

P. S. We should be glad to be informed of the determination of Congress on the application lately made by us with relation to the commerce of this City.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Hon. Robert R. Livingston, in answer to his of the 9th instant, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 20, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 9th instant has been laid before our Congress. They are happy to learn that one thousand and twenty pounds of very good powder has been made and sent up to Albany, out of the wet powder sent you for that purpose. With regard to the two hundred pounds of powder sent to the Committee at Albany, the Congress think it highly reasonable that you should receive twenty-five Pounds per hundred weight for it, the same as you get from other purchasers at your mill; and you will, besides, be entitled to the premium of five Pounds per hundred weight, agreeable to the resolution of this Congress of the 9th of June last, for all powder which you have manufactured or shall manufacture in this Colony within one year from the date of the said resolution. The nine hundred pounds of saltpetre sent from Connecticut, by Mr. Hamlin, and the four hundred pounds from the Committee at Albany, you will be pleased to have worked up, and kept at your mill until further orders, for the use of this Colony. The Congress cheerfully agree to your proposal of being allowed the same price for manufacturing it as is given to the powder makers in Pennsylvania.

We are, respectfully, Sir, your very humble servants. By order:

To the Hon. Robert R. Livingston.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Letter from Mr. John Berrien, dated this day, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, October 20, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: The Commissioners at the post have wrote me that they are in want of a sum of money to answer the demands of the country workmen and labourers, and to pay for sundry supplies from that quarter. I would submit it to your wisdom, whether it would not be proper to order them supplied with two or three hundred Pounds for these purposes, as the transmission of orders drawn in their favour by the Commissioners is attended with many inconveniences to them, and may, in its consequence, obstruct the publick business.

"I am, Gentlemen, with the greatest respect, your obedient humble servant,

"JOHN BERRIEN.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress."

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of the Provincial Congress of this Colony, do advance to Mr. John Berrien, one of the Commissioners for erecting the Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands, the sum of two hundred Pounds, for the purpose of enabling the said Commissioners to pay off the demands of the country workmen and labourers at the said Fortifications; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Berrien's receipt for the same.

A Letter from Colonel Goose Van Schaick, of the 15th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Albany, October 15, 1775.

"SIR: Agreeable to General Schuyler's orders to me, I send down Sergeant Neill McFall, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, and William Elphinston, both taken in Canada. These prisoners will be delivered you by Thomas Batts, Sergeant in the Connecticut troops; hope he will deliver them safe to your custody.

"I am, with perfect esteem, your most obedient and humble servant,

GOOSE VAN SCHAICK.

"To Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress in New-York."

Neill McFall and William Elphinston were called in and examined. And thereupon Neill McFall, a Sergeant in the Twenty-Sixth Regiment of Foot, a prisoner taken in the Colony of Canada, or Province of Quebeck, and now in the power of the Provincial Congress at New-York, being enlarged on the promise of himself and Thomas Mason, of the City of New-York, Innholder, his father-in-law, given to the Provincial Congress of New-York, that he, the said Neill McFall, will not bear arms against the American United Colonies, in any manner whatever, during the present unhappy controversy between Great Britain and the Colonies; and that he will not give any intelligence to General Gage, or the British Ministry, or any officer in the Ministerial Army or Navy, or any other person or persons whatever, relative to American affairs, until the said controversy shall be determined; and that he will, on demand, deliver himself up a prisoner to the Provincial Congress or Committee of Safety for the Colony of New-York:

It is therefore recommended to all persons, that the said Neill McFall be permitted to remain peaceable and unmolested in the City of New-York.

By order: NATH'L WOODHULL, Pres't.

Attest: JOHN MCKESSON, Sec'y.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be signed by the President, and countersigned by one of the Secretaries, and delivered to the said Neill McFall.

William Elphinston, Jun., was informed that his former conduct did not entitle him to the like treatment or favour as Neill McFall; because, that when he was taken by Colonel Arnold, and liberated, he had entered a second time into the Ministerial service. But this Congress have such a high sense of liberty, that they determine to permit him to go at large on the like engagement, of himself and of his father here present, as that given by Neill McFall and Thomas Mason. Thereupon, the said William Elphinston, Junior, and William Elphinston, his father, did promise and engage to this Congress, that the said William Elphinston, Junior, will not bear arms, or serve in any other manner, against the American United Colonies, in any manner whatever, during the present unhappy controversy between Great Britain and the Colonies; and that he will not give any intelligence to General Gage, or the British Ministry, or any officer in the Ministerial Army or Navy, or any other person or persons whatever, relative to American affairs, until the said controversy shall be determined. Thereupon, the said William Elphinston, Jun., was discharged, and informed that he might go to sea in the merchant service, or pursue any business for his support.

In pursuance of the Order of yesterday, Timothy Doughty, a prisoner, being brought to the door, was called in. The letter from the Chairman of the Committee of Dutchess County, and all the affidavits and proofs against the said Timothy Doughty, were read in his presence; and the said Timothy Doughty, who declined a trial by the Committee of the County where he resides, and put himself, as to all the charges against him, on this Congress, was fully heard in his denial of the charges against him and his defence, and ordered to withdraw; and the Congress came to a determination thereon, in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 20, 1775.

The Congress having taken the case of Timothy Doughty, now a prisoner before them, into their serious consideration, do determine, that notwithstanding his constant denial of the matters laid to his charge, they are of opinion, that the said Timothy Doughty hath formerly entertained designs and opinions inimical to the great cause of American liberty, and been a principal instigator of the disturbances which have of late prevailed in the County of Dutchess, and that therefore he hath merited the hardships and sufferings which he hath sustained during his imprisonment. Nevertheless, as he did continue in prison when he had an opportunity to escape, and did voluntarily repose himself upon the equity of this Congress, and hath further promised that he will for the future demean himself in a peaceable and orderly manner, the Congress do resolve to acquit the said Timothy Doughty from any further punishment, and recommend it to their constituents to receive him again as a member of the community.

The said Timothy Doughty was thereupon called in, and the determination of the Congress read to him, and, by order of Congress, a certified copy thereof was delivered to him; and he was thereupon discharged.

Ordered, That another certified copy thereof be delivered to the Chairman of the Committee of Dutchess County.

Ordered, That Peter T. Curtenius, as Commissary of this Congress, be requested, with all possible despatch, to procure, for the use of this Colony, the following Intrrenching Tools, viz: 100 Spades, 400 Pick-Axes, 300 Bill-Hooks, and 500 Falling-Axes; and that he have each of them marked C. N.

A draught of a Letter to the President of the Continental Congress was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 20, 1775.

SIR: Over and above the necessary expenditures, by reason of the different services recommended to us, we are in advance to the general concern for moneys paid to the troops, and also for provisions and other necessities forwarded by the order of the Continental Generals, and tents furnished to the troops under the command of General Wooster and General Hinman, and many other expenditures, which several articles, in the departments of the Paymasters and Commissioners, amount, in the whole, to a very considerable proportion of the moneys sent us by your body. We have now not above five thousand dollars remaining, and are continually called upon for cash, on several occasions interesting to the service. We beg, therefore, that you will forward us money by the first opportunity; the necessity of which, we doubt not, will be immediately perceived. We shall, as soon as possible, lay before the Commissioners, Paymasters, &c., our accounts, and send duplicates to the Congress, in order to check the drafts which they may make; and, in the interim, pray your advice, whether those gentlemen are to repay unto us the moneys advanced in their departments.

We are, Sir, with great respect, your most obedient and humble servants.

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Colonel Hardenbergh, from Ulster County, applied to this Congress relative to sundry disputes and controversies about the Elections and Commissions of the Militia Officers of Ulster County.

Ordered, That the Returns and Papers relating thereto be delivered to Colonel Hardenbergh; and that the Members of Ulster and Queen's Counties be a Committee to examine into the said disputes and controversies, and to report thereon to the Congress.

Mr. Jonathan Lawrence, of the City of New-York, being highly recommended to this Congress for his great vigilance, activity, care, prudence, skill, management, and unremitted industry, as a proper person for a Commissioner to carry on and forward, with the utmost despatch and vigour, the Fortifications erecting on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands, in this Colony, and that he is cheerfully willing to undertake that service,

Ordered, That the said Jonathan Lawrence be appointed a Commissioner for that purpose, in the stead and to supply the place of Mr. John Hanson, whose private affairs have obliged him to decline that service.

The Congress adjourned until nine o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Sabbati, 9 ho. A. M., October 21, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present: Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

Mr. Samuel Patridge, by direction of a Member, attending at the door, was called in and examined. He says that he applied to Isaac Garrison to cart ore for him, which he declined, because he was engaged in cutting timber for the fort; that Garrison informed him that he was allowed twelve Shillings for each piece for cutting said timber; that each piece of timber was fourteen feet long, and, as he understood, eight inches square; that Garrison told him that the farthest load to cart did not exceed half a mile; that the said Garrison lives at Pooploop's Kill; that he, the examinant, told said Garrison that he could cart eight loads a day, and Garrison answered, he did not know but he could, if he had good luck; that the roads there are very bad, and that it is his opinion that two such sticks of logs, on those roads, will be a load for a team.

Ordered, That a copy of this Information be given to Mr. Berrien, that he may make inquiry, lest the said Isaac Garrison should attempt to impose on the Commissioners.

Ordered, That Mr. Peter Vergereau be appointed an Ensign in Captain Ledgers's Company, in the First Regiment of New-York Forces; and that his commission be dated at the time he entered into the service.

Mordecai Lester having, through a Member, applied to this Congress for liberty to attend and be heard concerning matters alleged against him, Ordered, That the said Mordecai Lester appear before this Congress, on Thursday, the 26th instant; and that no person hinder or molest him during his journey to or continuance in this City.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety on the afternoon of the 15th day of September last. On reading the Order appointing Jacobus Van Zandt, Lewis Pintard, and Henry Remsen, a Committee for the purposes therein mentioned, and to furnish them with four thousand Pounds, the Congress requested information what was done with the money, and what contract was made for importing the article mentioned in that Order.

The Congress was then informed by Mr. Van Zandt, that the four thousand Pounds is sent out on the account and risk of the Provincial Congress, and whatever profits arise on said goods the Congress are to have the benefit of; that a vessel is chartered by Messrs. Jacobus Van Zandt, Henry Remsen, and Lewis Pintard, to go to sundry places to obtain those goods for the sum of five hundred and fifty Pounds sterling, payable on delivery of the said goods in any place within particular limits for that purpose mentioned in the charter-party; but that in case of her being seized or taken on her voyage, the owner of the vessel is to receive three hundred Pounds sterling for her; that the vessel is to lay forty working days to receive her cargo, after which she is to receive forty Shillings sterling per day demurrage; that whatever room may be in the vessel after the goods ordered by the freighters for the benefit of this Congress are laded on board, the owner or owners of the vessel have the liberty to fill up with any goods on their own account, without any deduction from the freight agreed for.

The Congress having received the above Information, approve of the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety therein, and direct that an entry be made, that the Congress does approve of the contract made by Messrs. Jacobus Van Zandt, Lewis Pintard, and Henry Remsen, on behalf of the Congress; and that, in the opinion of this Congress, the said contract is a judicious, good contract, and on behalf of the Congress.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the residue of the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety on the said 15th day of September last.

The Congress then adjourned to Tuesday, the 24th instant, at nine o'clock in the morning.

Die Martis, 9 ho. A. M., October 24, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, &c.

A Letter from the President of the Continental Congress, of the 17th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Philadelphia, October 17, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: As the Congress apprehend there may be a design of an attack upon New-York, I am directed by them to desire you will give directions for the immediate removal of all the sulphur now in the City of New-York, to a place of greater safety, at a distance from the City; and you will please to inform Congress to what place you have ordered it.

“I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

“JOHN HANCOCK, President.

“To the President and Members of the Convention at New-York.”

Thereupon, Ordered, That Peter T. Curtenius, as Commissary of this Congress, be requested immediately to purchase any quantity of Sulphur and Brimstone, not exceeding twenty tons, (except about two tons for the use of vessels,) agreeable to the Resolution of this Congress of the 17th instant, and that he forward the same with all possible despatch up Hudson's River—one part of it to be placed in such place of safety, under the care of the Committee of Rhinebeck Precinct, as the said Committee shall think fit; and the other half of it to be placed under the care of the Committee at Walkill Precinct, in Ulster County, whereof Henry Wisner, Jun., Esq., is Chairman.

A certified copy of a Resolution of the Continental Congress, relating to some Saltpetre lately removed from Turtle-Bay, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“In Congress, October 16, 1775.

“Resolved, That it be earnestly recommended to all persons who are possessed of the Saltpetre lately removed from Turtle-Bay, on the Island of New-York, forthwith to send the same to the President of the Convention of New-York, to be manufactured into Gunpowder, for the use of the Continental Army.”

On motion of Colonel McDougall, seconded by Mr. Gilbert Livingston,

Resolved, That this Congress will make provision for the expense of the Delegates of this Colony, who have represented it, and now represent it in the Continental Congress.

And Ordered, That Mr. Hobart, Colonel Lispenard, Mr. Cortelyou, Mr. Abraham Yates, Jun., Colonel Hardenbergh, and Mr. Gilbert Livingston, be a Committee to consider thereof, and report thereon to this Congress with all convenient speed.

Colonel McDougall, and some other Members, informed the Congress that Gunpowder is now to be obtained in the West-Indies.

Ordered, That Mr. Low, Mr. Vanderbilt, and Mr. Roosevelt, be a Committee to make inquiry, and plan a proper voyage for the Pilot-Boat the Bishop of Llandaff, and report thereon to this Congress with all convenient speed.

A draught of a Letter to General Washington was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 24, 1775.

SIR: We were honoured by the receipt of your Excellency's favour of the 13th instant, on the 18th. We beg leave to return our sincere thanks for the kind attention you shew to this Colony, on apprizing us of the dangers wherewith we are threatened, and are happy to find that the expedition of our foes was not intended against this City.

We take the liberty to inform your Excellency, that three deserters from the corps of the riflemen in your camp are now confined in the common jail of Ulster County, at Kingston; and notwithstanding that the Committees of that Town and of New-Windsor Precinct have written to the Captains of their respective Companies on that subject, yet we are still at a loss how to dispose of them. We therefore entreat your Excellency's instructions on this subject; and beg leave to assure you that we are, with the highest respect, your Excellency's most obedient and humble servants.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

The Committee then proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety, on the 16th day of September last; and on reading the Resolutions of the Committee relating to the impressing of Arms, debates arose thereon; and after some time spent therein, and the Resolutions read a second time, several Members disapprove of the said Resolutions. The question was then put, whether the Congress approves or disapproves of the said Resolutions, and carried in the negative, in manner following, to wit:

For the Negative.	For the Affirmative.
4 New-York, (Colonel McDougall dissenting.)	2 Cumberland,
2 Tryon,	2 King's, (Mr. Vanderbilt dissenting.)
2 Richmond,	4
3 Albany.

11

Resolved, therefore, That this Congress disapprove of the said Resolutions of the Committee of Safety, on the 16th day of September last, relating to the impressing of Arms.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the further Proceedings of the Committee of Safety, on the 17th, 18th, and on the morning of the 19th days of September last, and approved thereof.

Mr. Low, (seconded by Mr. Marston,) made a motion in the words following, to wit: "Mr. President, sundry Affidavits having been exhibited, and being now in possession of this Congress, relative to the conduct of a certain Timothy Doughty, of Dutchess County, and the said Doughty having applied, through a Member of this Congress, for copies of the said Affidavits, I move that copies thereof be accordingly furnished to the said Doughty, on his paying the Secretaries for their trouble."

Debates arose on the said motion; and the question being put, whether the said copies shall be furnished by the Secretaries, it was carried in the negative, in the manner following:

For the Negative.
2 King's,	4 New-York, (Messrs. Low , Marston , Webster , and Delancy , dissenting.)
2 Tryon,	2 Ulster.
2 Cumberland,
3 Albany,
	15

Ordered, therefore, That no copies of the said Affidavits be delivered to the said Timothy Doughty.

The Congress then adjourned until ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Mercurii, 10 ho. A. M., October 25, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

A certificate of John Smith and Daniel Tillinghast, of the Committee of Safety, in Providence, in the Colony of Rhode-Island, bearing date the 17th instant, was read and filed. They thereby certify that the Provisions shipped by Captain Benjamin Lindsay was safe arrived there.

A Letter from John Smith and Daniel Tillinghast, of the said Committee of Safety, of Providence, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Providence, October 19, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: Application being made to the Committee of Safety for this Town, by Messrs. Clark & Nightingale, merchants here, for letters of recommendation to the Provincial Congress of New-York, requesting permission to take on board their Sloop Fly, Captain Benjamin Lindsay, a quantity of provisions, &c., for the use of the Continental Army, we recommend to your body, that they would be pleased to grant them liberty for taking on board such a quantity of the above goods as they may want, as we doubt not but these gentlemen will use every precaution for securing it from the enemy, and getting it safe here. Your compliance with the above will greatly oblige, Gentlemen,

"JOHN SMITH,

"DANIEL TILLINGHAST,

"Committee of Safety.

"To the Honourable Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York."

Ordered, That Captain Benjamin Lindsay, on behalf of Messrs. Clark & Nightingale, Merchants at Providence, have permission to lade on board of the Sloop Fly a quantity of Provisions for the Continental Army, upon condition that the said Benjamin Lindsay do deliver a manifest of the said Provisions to one of the Secretaries of this Congress, before his departure, and within three months return to such Secretary a certificate from the Chairman of the Committee, that the said Provisions were reported to and under the direction of the said Committee, (the dangers of the seas and seizures excepted;) and if the said Benjamin Lindsay does not comply with the condition aforesaid, that then he shall be deemed guilty of an infringement of the Resolutions of this Congress, and an enemy to this Country.

On motion of Mr. Henry Williams,

Ordered, That a Commission be issued to William Boerum, as First Lieutenant of the Troop of Horse in King's County, elected by the said corps, instead of Abraham Remsen, who has declined; and that Commissions be issued to the following gentlemen, promoted by the election of said corps, viz: Thomas Everett, Second Lieutenant; Jacob Sebring, Jun., Cornet; and Isaac Sebring, Quartermaster.

A Letter from General Schuyler, of the 14th instant, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Ticonderoga, October 14, 1775.

"SIR: Your favour of the 6th instant was delivered me yesterday. It gives me great satisfaction to learn that you have sent me fourteen hundred pounds of powder. It will be very welcome, but I fear not sufficient, even with seven hundred and fifty pounds which is arrived from Albany. If more can be procured, I shall hope it will be forwarded without delay.

"My last accounts from St. John's were of the 6th. General Montgomery is carrying on his approaches as fast as the difficulties he hath to struggle with will permit. Every species of artillery stores are in some measure wanted. The Canadians are not only friendly, but join in considerable numbers, and the garrison of St. John's is so completely invested that not the least succours can be thrown in of any kind. I hope soon to give you an account of the reduction.

"My disorders have taken such deep root, that I now begin to have little hopes of a recovery so as to take an actual part in the future operations of the campaign. I hope, however, that I shall not be obliged to leave this place, unhealthy and unfavourable to my recovery as it is, lest it should involve General Montgomery in irremediable inconveniences.

"I am, Sir, with great respect, your and the Congress's most obliged, obedient, and very humble servant,

"PHILIP SCHUYLER.

"To Colonel Nathaniel Woodhull, President pro tempore of the New-York Provincial Congress, at New-York."

Ordered, That Mr. Low, Colonel McDougall, Mr. Verplanck, and Mr. Brasher, be a Committee to consider of and devise ways and means for the safety of the women and children in this City, in case of necessity, in obedience to the order of the Continental Congress of the . . . day of . . . last past, and report thereon with all convenient speed.

The Congress, taking into further consideration their Resolutions and recommendations of the 18th instant, touching the election of a future Provincial Congress, and convinced that many persons interested for the fate of this Country, in the present unhappy controversy, may be deprived of the privilege of a representation by the said Resolutions and recommendations, do further recommend that all tenants possessed of lands or tenements, within this Colony, of the value of eighty Pounds, be permitted to vote in the said election.

Colonel Hardenbergh, from the Committee appointed yesterday, to consider of a provision to be made for the Delegates of this Colony at the Continental Congress, and report thereon, delivered in their Report, which was read and filed.

Ordered, That the said Report be taken into consideration on Friday next.

An anonymous Letter,* said to be delivered by John Suffern to David Pye, Esq., a member of this House, and by him delivered to John Coe, Esquire, a member now here, was read and filed. The said Letter informs that there is a conspiracy of a great number of people, from Haverstraw to Hackensack, to join the King's Troops.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to the Committee of Haverstraw Precinct was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit :

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 25, 1775.

SIR: You will see, by the copy of a letter which you have enclosed, that there are apprehensions of a conspiracy having been formed against the Congress and Committee. The Congress, therefore, recommend it to your Committee, to inquire without delay into the truth of the subject-matter of that letter, and report the result thereof to them with all convenient speed. They also recommend that this inquiry be made with as much regularity and as little violence as the nature of it will permit.

To Johannes Blawvelt, Chairman of the Committee of the Precinct of Haverstraw.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with a copy of the said anonymous Letter, delivered to Mr. Coe, to be transmitted.

A Letter from Gilbert Drake, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Westchester County, was read and filed.

A list of Officers, therein enclosed in the said Letter, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Commissions be issued for the Field-Officers, and the other Officers of the two Companies of Minute-Men therein mentioned, and that blank Commissions be also sent up to the said Committee for the two Companies of Minute-Men in the Manor of Cortlandt.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety, on the afternoon of the 19th, and on the 20th, 21st, 22d, 23d, 24th, and 25th days of September last, and approved thereof.

The Congress then adjourned until ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

* DEAR SIR: I, with a trembling hand at the consequences, let you know what I have heard by the by. There is more than a thousand signed a sure writing made and sent by some of the Tories in New-York, to disavow of the Congress and Committees. And as soon as these troops come in, they are to join the King's Troops, and take up the Committees and Congress men, and deliver them up. And they are joined and signed from here to Hackensack, and from here to Tapon—all in general in this company. My neighbour, John Conte, they have mentioned for one of their commissions, and Ryneer Quackenbush. Mr. Anderson, of Oldbridge, told me he had found them out last night. The Lieutenant of the man-of-war was a whole week at Sloterdam, and the Ministry's tools have liberty to go through the Country, and as long as one does, we will never have peace. Unless you disarm these people, before the soldiery come, you will see such a time as you and I have never seen. No powder must be let any man have in Town or Country, but what has a certificate from the Committee.

NEW-AMSTERDAM, October 12, 1775.

Die Jovis, 10 ho. A. M., October 26, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present :

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

Mordecai Lester, at his request, being permitted to attend the Congress, and attending at the door, was ordered to be admitted.

The principal charges against the said Mordecai Lester were read to him, and he was heard in his defence, and ordered to withdraw.

A determination on his case was drawn up and agreed to, in the words following, to wit :

The Congress, taking into consideration the proofs exhibited against Mordecai Lester, Esq., of Dutchess County, and having heard what he had to offer in his defence, are of the opinion that the said Mordecai Lester hath behaved inimical to the liberties of this Country, and thereby exposed himself to the resentment of the publick. But as the said Mordecai Lester hath promised to behave himself in a peaceable and orderly manner for the future, and signified his desire to return to his family in Dutchess County:

Resolved, That the said Mordecai Lester be reprimanded by the President for his past conduct, and discharged ; and it is recommended to the inhabitants of this Colony to permit the said Mordecai Lester to remain in peace, he behaving in a peaceable and orderly manner, and complying with such orders and directions as shall be given by this or any future Congress of this Colony.

Ordered, That a certified copy of the determination of this Congress be delivered to the said Mordecai Lester. And he, being reprimanded from the Chair, was discharged.

Ordered, That the Secretaries get a sufficient number of the Letters to the Colonels of the Militia printed on good paper, and signed by the President.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety, on the 26th, 27th, 28th, and on the morning of the 29th days of September last, and approved thereof.

The Congress then adjourned until ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 10 ho. A. M., October 27, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present :

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President.

The Congress proceeded to hear the residue of the Minutes of the Committee of Safety; and having read that part of the Minutes of the said Committee, to wit: the Minutes of the Committee on the 30th of September last, which relate to Bernard Romans, and also his Memorial since delivered to this Congress—a draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, on that subject, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit :

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 27, 1775.

SIR: The Committee of Safety, during the recess of the Provincial Congress, held a conference with Mr. Bernard Romans, and engaged his services as an engineer, in building the fortifications on Hudson's River. He objected to them, that his pension from the Crown, of about fifty Pounds sterling per year, as botanist for one of the Floridas, might be taken away when it was known that he had assisted this Colony, and therefore prayed that he might be engaged as an engineer in the Continental service. The Committee thereupon promised him the pay of fifty dollars per month for the present, and informed him that it was probable his services would be wanted. We are not competent to the perfecting this business, and therefore pray that the Congress will make some order in the premises. As to the quantum of his pay, if fifty dollars is thought too little, the Congress will be pleased to fix upon the sum which they think adequate to the duties he has to perform.

We are, Sir, respectfully, your most obedient and humble servants. By order :

To the Honourable John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the residue of the Minutes of the Committee of Safety, until the 3d day of October instant, included, and approved thereof.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Committee of Safety, on the returns of Militia Officers, and the Commissions issued by the Committee.

On reading the Returns from Orange County, with respect to Field-Officers, the following Letter was drawn up and approved of, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 27, 1775.

SIR: The Congress, unwilling to determine the controversy subsisting among you, relative to the appointment of Field-Officers to command the Militia in the south part of Orange County, do recommend it to the Committees of Haverstraw and Orange Precinct to meet together, without delay, and, by plurality of voices, nominate the Field-Officers for the Regiment to be formed on the south side of the Highlands, and send down the return with all possible despatch, that the commissions may be made out.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

On reading the Returns of Officers recommended by the Committee of Tryon County, and the Letters from the Committee of Kingsland and German Flats, Ordered, That Commissions for Field-Officers of that District issue to the gentlemen recommended by the Committee of that District.

A Letter from Mr. Nicholas Low was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, October 27, 1775.

"SIR: I have received from Mr. Isaac Gouverneur, of Curagoa, a pair of nine-pound cannon, which he has directed me to present to the Provincial Congress, for the use of this Colony, and to pray your acceptance of them, with his best wishes for your happiness and prosperity. Please to direct me to whom I shall deliver them.

"I am, respected Sir, your most obedient humble servant,
"NICHOLAS LOW.

"Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress, New-York."

A draught of a Letter to Isaac Gouverneur was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 27, 1775.

SIR: The Congress have received from your agent, Mr. Nicholas Low, a pair of nine-pound cannon, sent by you as a donation to this Colony. I am directed to return you their hearty thanks for them, and to assure you of the high sense they have of your attention and regard for the welfare of your native Country, and beg you to accept their sincere wishes for your happiness and prosperity.

We are, Sir, your most obedient servants. By order:
Isaac Gouverneur, Esq., at Curagoa.

Ordered, That Mr. John Berrien receive from Mr. Nicholas Low the pair of Cannon sent to this Congress as a present, by Mr. Isaac Gouverneur, and pass his receipt for the same. That he get the initial letters of Mr. Gouverneur's name, and also the letters C. N. Y., marked on the said Cannon, and send them forthwith to the fort now building in the Highlands.

A Letter from Mr. John Berrien, with Memorandum therein enclosed, were read and filed, and are in the words following, to wit:

"New-York, October 27, 1775.

"GENTLEMEN: I take the liberty to inform you that the cash furnished me, by your orders, from the Treasury, is expended, and that I am about forty Pounds in advance. I have endeavoured to collect the amounts of sundry accounts against your honourable House, contracted by me for use of the fortifications, and find they amount, with sundry freights and hire of vessels not yet paid, to near one thousand Pounds. I must therefore beg you will enable me to discharge these debts already contracted, by furnishing me with the above sum; and that, as soon as convenient, or you shall judge necessary, some persons of your honourable House be directed to examine my accounts.

"I am, very respectfully, your most obedient servant,
"JOHN BERRIEN.

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress."

"Memorandum.—Accounts unpaid: Marsh's, for shingles, £78 6s.; W. Van Zandt's, including smith work, £219 12s. 4d.; William Ustick, for sundries, about £270; Peter T. Curtenius, wheels, shot, stoves, about £220; John & Jacob Dergen, for bread, £34; William Malcomb, for pork, £20; balance due Palmer, hire of sloop since 23d or 24th of August, £50; sundry freights upwards, and some small accounts not estimated. Cash in advance, £40."

William McHard, of Newburyport, produced a certificate of the Honourable Governour Trumbull, at New-Haven, dated 23d instant, which was a permit to him to load any quantity of Flour in New-York, and to bring it in a boat or boats to the Sloop Speedwell, Levi Carman master, in that Colony, and to put into any harbour in that Colony, and depart without molestation, the embargo notwithstanding.

And the said William McHard requested of this Provincial Congress leave to purchase Flour in this Colony, to be carried to Newburyport, for the use of the inhabitants there, agreeable to the said permit.

Ordered, That William McHard have permission to purchase and transport to Fairfield or Norwalk, or any other place in Connecticut, three hundred barrels of Flour, or any less quantity, and to convey the same to Newburyport, for the use of the inhabitants there, upon condition that the said William McHard do deliver a manifest of the said Flour to one of the Secretaries of this Congress before his departure, and within three months return to such Secretary a certificate from the Chairman of the Committee at Newburyport aforesaid, that the said Flour was reported to and under the direction of the said Committee, the dangers of the seas and seizures excepted. And if the said William McHard does not comply with the condition aforesaid, that then he shall be deemed guilty of an infringement of the Resolution of this Congress, and an enemy to this Country.

An application of William Ritchie, bearing date yesterday, was read and filed. He thereby informs that the people at Dartmouth are in great want of Flour, and requests permission to carry Flour to Dartmouth, for the use of the inhabitants.

Ordered, That Captain William Ritchie have permission to lade and ship a quantity of Flour for Dartmouth, in Massachusetts-Bay, upon condition that the said William Ritchie deliver a manifest of the cargo to one of the Secretaries of this Congress before his departure, and within three months return to such Secretary a certificate from the Chairman of the Committee at Dartmouth, that the said Flour and cargo was safely landed, and reported to the said Committee, the dangers of the seas and seizures excepted. And if the said William Ritchie does not comply with the conditions aforesaid, that then he shall be deemed guilty of an infringement of the Resolution of this Congress, and an enemy to this Country.

[Note.—There were not sufficient Members present to form a quorum on the 28th or 29th of October; therefore, those present adjourned until ten o'clock on the morning of the 2d day of November next.

The following Letters and other Proceedings of the Members present on the 28th and 29th have been preserved:]

New-York, October 28, 1775.

Several Members met, but there not being a sufficient number present to form a House, the gentlemen present prepared the following Letters, the draughts of which are on the files, but are not mentioned on the Minutes:

New-York, October 28, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We are sorry to inform you that, by reason of the absence of a number of the members, we are unable to make a Congress, so as to despatch the publick business. Many things are to be done preparatory to our dissolution, which must be despatched. We therefore entreat that you would attend on Tuesday next, that we may go on with the business. We hope we shall be able to finish in three or four days if we can make a Congress, and are your humble servants. By order:

To Paul Micheau.

P. S. Pray notify your fellow-Members of this.

To Orange, Queen's, Richmond, King's.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 28, 1775.

Suspensions having arisen in the minds of many of the citizens, that the Congress have received intimations which they are ignorant of, that this City will be made a garrison

Town, or destroyed, by reason whereof the inhabitants are subject to great apprehensions for their future safety, this Congress do therefore conceive it their indispensable duty to assure the citizens that they have received no private intelligence of any danger; and that, whenever they do, they will take the earliest method of informing them of it, that the citizens may provide in the best manner they can for the security of their families and effects.

In Provincial Congress, New-York, October 28, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: On the 13th instant we requested the sense of the Congress, by the first opportunity, whether the inhabitants of New-York ought to export their produce to the places not interdicted by the Association of the Continental Congress last year. This commercial object is of the highest importance to the Colony. You will therefore pardon our importunity, and favour us with an answer as soon as possible.

We are, most respectfully, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants. By order:

To the Delegates of the Colony of New-York at Continental Congress, Philadelphia.

Die Jovis, 9 ho. A. M., November 2, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment.

Mr. Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., was unanimously appointed President pro tempore.

A Letter from Silas Deane, John Adams, and George Wythe, of the 19th of October, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Philadelphia, October 19, 1775.

"SIR: The Continental Congress having been pleased to appoint us a Committee for collecting an account of the hostilities committed by the Ministerial Troops and Navy in America, since last March, with proper evidence of the truth of the facts, relating to the number and value of the buildings destroyed, and of the vessels inward and outward bound seized by them, as nearly as can be ascertained, and also the stock taken by them from different parts of the Continent, as you may see by the resolve enclosed, we entreat the assistance of the Convention of your Colony in this business, that we may be enabled to perform what is required of us, in the manner and with the expedition the Congress expects. And to that end, that you will be pleased to furnish us with the necessary materials, sending to us clear, distinct, full, and circumstantial details of the hostile and destructive acts, and the captures or seizures, and depredations, in your Colony, and accurate estimate of the loss and damage, with the solemn examination of witnesses, and other papers and documents officially authenticated.

"We are, Sir, your obedient humble servants,

"SILAS DEANE,

"JOHN ADAMS,

"GEORGE WYTHE.

"The Hon. Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President, and the Convention of New-York."

The Resolution of the Continental Congress of the 18th October, therein enclosed, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"In Congress, October 18, 1775.

"Resolved, That a just and well authenticated account of the hostilities committed by the Ministerial Troops and Navy in America, since last March, be collected, with proper evidence of the truth of the facts related, the number and value of the buildings destroyed by them; also, the number and value of the vessels, inward and outward bound, which have been seized by them since that period, as near as the number and value can be ascertained; also, the stock taken by them from the different parts of the Continent."

Ordered, That a copy of that Resolve and Letter be sent to the Committee of Suffolk County; and that the said Committee of Suffolk County do, in the best manner, ascertain the damages sustained by the people of that County, with all necessary particulars thereof, and with proper proofs to support the same; and that the said Committee transmit the same to the Provincial Congress of this Colony with all convenient despatch.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Resolve and Letter be delivered to the Chairman or Deputy Chairman of the Committee of the City of New-York; and that the said Committee do ascertain, in the best manner possible, the damages sustained by the people of this City and County, with all necessary particulars thereof, and with proper proofs to support the same; and that the said Committee transmit the same to the Provincial Congress of this Colony with all convenient despatch.

A Certificate of Doctor John Jones, of the bad state of health of Captain John Norbury, who is a Continental prisoner, was read. It is thereby certified, that Captain Norbury cannot probably obtain relief in America; and Captain Norbury, through a Member, requests leave to go to Britain.

Ordered, That Captain Norbury be informed that he may be exchanged for an officer of General Wooster's Regiment, now a prisoner on board the Ship Asia; and that he have leave to apply to Captain Vandeput for that purpose.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to David Clarkson, Esq., the sum of two hundred Pounds, to enable him to discharge his note to Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer of this Colony, for the like sum formerly borrowed by order of this Congress for the publick service; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Clarkson's receipt for the same.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Henry Glenn, Esq., the sum of seven hundred Pounds, to enable him to discharge the Note of Abraham Ten Broeck, Esq., given to Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer of this Colony, for that sum, formerly borrowed by the said Ten Broeck of Mr. Lott, by order of this Congress, for the publick service; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Henry Glenn's receipt for the same; and that Mr. Henry Glenn take a receipt of Mr. Lott on the said Note.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Christopher Tappen, Esq., the sum of four hundred and twenty-eight Pounds, to enable him to discharge the Note of Egbert Dumond, Esq., given to Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer of this Colony, for that sum formerly borrowed by Mr. Egbert Dumond of Mr. Lott, by order of this Congress, for the publick service; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Tappen's receipt for the same; and that Mr. Tappen take a receipt of Mr. Lott on the said Note.

Mr. Jonathan Lawrence, Chairman of the Committee appointed to take into consideration the disputed Elections of the Militia Officers of the Districts of New-Paltz and Hurley, in Ulster County, reported; which was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

Your Committee appointed to take into consideration Letters from the Committees of the Townships of Hurley and New-Paltz, in the County of Ulster, and the Petition of the Inhabitants of the said Townships, do report, that it is the opinion of this Committee, that the election of officers held on the 9th of June last, in the Township of Hurley, and that held in the Township of New-Paltz, on the 31st of May last, were not agreeable to the Resolution of the Continental and this Congress: And in compliance with the prayer of the petitions of the inhabitants of the said Townships, your Committee are of opinion, that it should be recommended to the Committees that Polls be held, in convenient places, in said Townships, for the election of Officers of the Militia, agreeable to the directions of this Congress, the time and place being first duly notified by the Committees of said Townships. And your Committee do further report, that as they have been informed a dispute hath arose between the inhabitants of two different parts of the Township of Hurley, of their rights of nomination of said Officers, if the Congress would give it as their opinion that said Officers should be elected from the different parts of said Township, it would give satisfaction, and again restore friendship and unanimity. All which is most humbly submitted. By order of the Committee:

JOHN LAWRENCE, Chairman.

Resolved, That the Congress does agree with their Committee in the said Report; and that the said Report stand confirmed.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Report and of this Resolve be sent to the Committee of Ulster County.

Ordered, That the Secretaries make out their Accounts, at twenty Shillings per diem each, for their services, from the commencement of this Congress until the 14th instant, together with their respective Accounts of Disbursements, and that the same be audited by three of the Auditors; and that the same, when audited, be paid by the Treasurer of this Congress.

Ordered, That the Account of Thomas Petit be made out at eight Shillings per day, for his services in time past, and his future services till the 14th instant, together with an account of any disbursements he may have made; and that the same be audited by three of the Auditors, that the same may be paid by the Treasurer.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Colonel McDougall the sum of six hundred Pounds, to enable him to pay off Captain Ledyard's Company to the 1st ultimo, and the Wives and Attorneys of the men of his Regiment, and to reimburse him for paying the men discharged by General Schuyler and the other Commanding Officer at the posts above.

Ordered, That Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, pay to Mr. John Berrien, as Commissary for the Commissioners for erecting Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands, and one of the said Commissioners, the sum of twelve hundred Pounds, on account, to be applied for the necessary purposes of erecting the said Fortifications, and discharging the debts already contracted or to be contracted thereby; and that Mr. Livingston take Mr. Berrien's receipt for the same, on account.

A Letter from the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., of the 20th of October, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Philadelphia, October 20, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: A letter appearing in the New-York paper of 16th instant, said to be wrote by Governour Tryon to the Mayor of New-York, expressing that this Congress had recommended it to the Provincial Congress to seize or take up the officers of that Government, and particularly himself, by name, I am directed by the Congress to request that you will immediately send them a genuine copy of the letter above mentioned, together with a copy of any order or proceeding of yours, or of the Mayor and Corporation, in consequence of the said letter of Governour Tryon.

“I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

“JOHN HANCOCK, President.

“Provincial Congress of New-York.”

A Letter from the Continental Congress, of the 26th of October, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Philadelphia, October 26, 1775.

“GENTLEMEN: A transport, with two officers and a number of marines, having been cast away on the coast of New-Jersey, near Brigantine Beach, the Captain, officers, and a number of the men, were taken prisoners, and brought to this place, where they have been examined by the Committee of Safety of this Province. By order of the Congress, I enclose you a copy of their examination, by which you will see the dangerous practices the officers have been engaged in, and it is not doubted but you will take effectual measures to put a stop to them.

“It is intimated that there is one Grant, in Dutchess County, now employed in raising recruits. The Congress expect you will inquire into this matter, and, if possible, secure the said Grant.

“It being represented to the Congress that a large quantity of blankets and shirts remain in the King's stores in New-York, the Congress came to the following resolution:

“That it be recommended to the Convention of New-York immediately to take possession of the said blankets and shirts, and forward so many of them as may be necessary to General Schuyler, for the use of the Army under his command.”

“I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient servant,

“JOHN HANCOCK, President.

“To the Provincial Congress, New-York.”

The Examinations therein mentioned and enclosed were also read and filed, and are as follow, to wit:

“Captain Duncan Campbell says he is a Captain in the Army, and was sent out on service; has a Captain's commission; sailed from Boston, 6th instant, for New-York, on board a transport ship, which was cast away; was sent only to receive such of the King's subjects as choose to join the Army at Boston; was asked if he had no emissaries on shore to procure men; said it was a question he did not choose to answer; went from New-York about 16th June, arrived at Boston about 12th July; was a Lieutenant on half-pay since 1774; his commission for a Company was made out before he went to Boston. He returned to New-York, and took to Boston a number of volunteers; that there was no particular part of the Country that he expected recruits from; no particular County promised to volunteer; this was left till they arrived at Head-Quarters; supposed they were to have some grants, as soldiers had at conclusion of last war, but never made promises of forfeited lands. He belongs to the Seventy-First Regiment; there is a Regiment raising, called the Fencible Americans, which is the Seventy-Second; his commission of Captain is in the Royal Regiment of Highland Emigrants, dated 14th June, 1775, at Boston.”

Lieutenant-Colonel Commandant Allen McClean. His Instructions, dated 18th July, 1775, which were produced, are as follows:

“By His Excellency the Hon. THOMAS GAGE, General and Commander-in-Chief of all His Majesty's Forces in NORTH-AMERICA, &c., &c., &c.

“To Captain DUNCAN CAMPBELL and Lieutenant SYMES:

“You are hereby directed to embark on board the Rebecca & Frances, transport, George Hastings master, and to proceed as fast as possible to New-York, where you are to receive on board your ship such men as may be inclined to serve His Majesty; and you are particularly to attend to the arrival of ships expected from Scotland, and to procure as many men out of them as you possibly can; and you are to do your endeavours not to suffer any of those emigrants to join the Rebels on shore, and to give every encouragement to all the Scotch and other nations that will join you. Captain Vandeput, of His Majesty's Ship Asia, will give you all the assistance in his power, and with whom you will confer when there may be occasion. You will continue at New-York as long as the service you are upon may require, when you are to return to this place with all expedition, bringing as many volunteers with you as you can procure.

“Given under my hand, at Head-Quarters, in Boston, this eighteenth day of July, 1775.

“THOMAS GAGE.

“By his Excellency's command:

“SAMUEL KEMBLE.”

“He says he was not compelled to enter into service, but knew he must join one side or the other, or be insulted by every person that thought proper.

“Lieutenant Symes was Surgeon's Mate in the Forty-Second; was now appointed a Lieutenant; a Lieutenant Grant, on half-pay, went with him to Boston; Grant is returned, and lives in Dutchess County; the ship was armed for defence, as they expected an attack from some armed vessels along the coast; the men were put on board for defence; there were a number of letters, for different persons, that were destroyed when they struck; was asked if any other vessels or officers were sent on the like errand; said could not answer such questions with propriety.

“Lieutenant Symes says he has left his commission in Boston; was ordered suddenly on board ship; brought no papers; was appointed 14th June; commissions for this new Regiment made out 13th and 14th June; another Regiment is formed, called the Royal Fencible Americans. Captain Campbell expected to get recruits at New-York, or from vessels coming from Scotland; having seen Grant's name among papers, asked about him.

“Captain Campbell said he was on half-pay, and was to have a commission in the Regiment; he came with the Forty-Third Regiment, in the year 1774; part of the recruits of the Regiment were sent to Halifax; expected that Halifax or Quebeck would be Head-Quarters. The person with him, named Cameron, was a steerage passenger; lived a neighbour to Captain Campbell, in Dutchess County. Angus Cameron, of Argyleshire, came to New-York Government two years ago; has no settlement; has been in Virginia; has followed farming since he came; was a drover in Scotland; lived near Captain Campbell's, to whom he lent some money, about fifty Pounds, on interest, at New-York; lent Captain Campbell some money, also, about one hundred Pounds; got part of his money from Alexander Campbell.

"Roderick McDonald, examined, says he was enlisted at Boston, the beginning of this month of October; went to Boston in Captain Hastings's vessel, in September last. Captain Duncan Campbell and Lieutenant Symes were coming with them to recruit at New-York; that in August last, Capt. Campbell was at his house, in Dutchess County, and told him he was going aboard the Asia, and to come to him there. About sixty volunteers went with Captain Campbell to Boston; one Foster, a Sergeant, McNeill, Conway, and two more of the volunteers, were Provincial soldiers—some in their uniforms; Foster, supposed to be a Sergeant in Wooster's Army, came from Milford, New-England; Captain Campbell advised and encouraged him to enter into the service.

"James Neill says he entered the King's service at New-York; he met Captain Hastings at New-York, who persuaded him to go aboard his ship, and said he should have good encouragement; went aboard; Captain Campbell there told him, if he would enter into the King's service, he should have two hundred acres of forfeited land, fight or not fight.

"Thomas Firm says he went on board a man-of-war at New-York; afterwards Captain Campbell came on board, and enlisted him; promised him two hundred acres of land; he was not sworn; did not know Captain Campbell before he saw him on board the man-of-war at New-York.

"David Carsan says he has been in this Country about six or seven months; lived at McCollison's, in New-York; heard they wanted men on board the transport; got put on board, and enlisted; was to have two guineas advance, and two hundred acres of land, not in the back parts, but cultivated forfeited lands. Was promised by Captain Campbell and the officers on board.

"Richard Wilson says he came from England last May; was a year at Captain Sadler's; lived with Lucas and with Smartsmith, in New-York. Galbreath, a Lieutenant of the Asia, persuaded him to go on board the Asia; went from that ship to the transport; Capt. Campbell promised him two hundred acres of forfeited lands. Captain Campbell was now coming to bring off a number of Highlanders that lived near his place in New-York Government; heard Captain Campbell and Lieutenant Symes, on whom he waited, talk of it; they expected about two hundred men, to come in small parties; three or four men were sent up from the transport before they left New-York, one of whom was Rod. McDonald, to engage the above people, and come back; could not get them down at that time; Captain Campbell left some people at his plantation, to bring the rest down.

"Robert Saunderson says he worked along shore at New-York, about a twelvemonth ago; was pressed on board a man-of-war; carried to Boston; came in the summer, in the Mercury, to New-York; got discharged, in order to go to Boston to enlist; was enlisted by Major Small; came with Captain Campbell, in the Rebecca & Frances, to New-York; got a number of men there; carried them to Boston, and were now coming back to get more.

"George Hastings says he is Master of the Ship Rebecca & Frances, of London, owned by James Mather; left Boston the 5th of October, bound for New-York, with commissioned officers, Captain Duncan Campbell, Lieutenant Symes, two Sergeants, named Hugh Morrison and William Foster, and twenty-one privates, belonging to a Regiment raising in America; that he understood they were coming to New-York, for the purpose of recruiting; that there sailed with him the Fowey, a twenty-gun ship, and one transport, bound to Halifax; that last Monday morning, before day, the weather being hazy, the said ship Rebecca & Frances struck on the shore at Brigantine Beach, where she lies stranded; that Captain Campbell parted with him at the beach on Tuesday evening, and, he supposes, made the best of his way to New-York, in some boat; did not see him in any boat; parted with him at his tent after dark; the Lieutenant went away in a small boat, with one man, an elderly man, dressed like a fisherman, on Tuesday, about noon; that they had on board sixty muskets, with bayonets and cartouch-boxes, and two barrels and a half of powder, all which were thrown into the sea; that the 20th July last, the said Captain Campbell sailed with him from Boston to New-York, and carried between fifty and sixty recruits from New-York to Boston; that he was chartered two hundred and ninety-three tons burden; that the said Campbell had been in the Forty-Second Regiment; lived in Dutchess County, New-York; has a wife and children there; that he was not ordered to apply to any person in New-York, but to be under the protection of the Asia; that Captain Campbell, while the ship lay at New-York, remained on board, and frequently sent the boat ashore for the recruits that were raised for him; the officers of the Forty-Eighth and Forty-Ninth Regiments are going home; General Gage is going home in a transport vessel of sixteen guns; no men of war or troops gone to Quebeck; no account of an expedition intended against Quebeck, but talk of one against Halifax; the soldiers now brought were some of those enlisted at New-York, and carried by Captain Campbell to Boston; has no written instructions; was to be directed by Captain Campbell."

A draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, in answer to the two last Letters, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, November 2, 1775.

SIR: Your letters of the 20th and 26th of October did not come to hand till Saturday last. For want of a sufficient number of members to make a Congress, we have been obliged to postpone an answer till this time. As to Governour Tryon's letter of the 13th, mentioning that the Continental Congress had recommended it to us to seize the officers of this Government, and particularly himself, we are to inform you that no application relative to that affair was made to this Congress, nor have we taken any part therein. The whole was conducted between the Governour and the Mayor and Corporation of this City. The Committee for the City was applied to by the Mayor, and, from the best inquiry we are able to make, the whole of the correspondence on this subject is contained in the enclosed printed sheets. [See 1052, 3, 4.]

We are sensible of the dangerous practices made use of to procure recruits for the Army at Boston, and you may rest assured that our best endeavours shall not be wanting to frustrate these designs. Proper orders have been given for securing Grant, of Dutchess County.

It is with real concern that we find the Congress have recommended it to us to seize the shirts, blankets, and sheets, in the King's stores in this City, and flatter ourselves they must have been imposed upon relative to this matter, or such a recommendation would never have issued. We think it our indispensable duty, as well for our own justification as for the information of the Congress, to state the matter in its true light.

There were in our lower barracks a number of hospital stores, consisting of shirts, blankets, and sheets. Some persons, without the knowledge or approbation of this Congress, in the night time, removed them to the house of our Commissary, who the next morning informed us of this transaction. Upon inquiry from him, we found the whole number of blankets did not exceed one hundred and fifty; some of them had been used in the Hospital, and the rest were destroyed by the moth. As to the shirts, we have not been able to ascertain the number, though the object is of very inconsiderable value. From this state of facts, the Congress thought proper to order these things to be returned, and, among other, for the following reasons:

1st. Because the stores had been taken away without the order or knowledge of the Congress, who ought to have been made acquainted with the transaction; which, in its consequences, might endanger the lives and properties of the inhabitants of this City.

2d. For that the stores were, at that time, entirely in our power, and more safe than in the custody of our Commissary, as our military watch was kept in the same house where the stores were lodged.

3d. Because, if we had sent the blankets up to the Army, we might, in all probability, have poisoned the Northern Army, by sending the small-pox among them.

And 4th. Because we are not in a situation, without exposing the lives and properties of the inhabitants of this City to inevitable destruction, should we attempt to execute orders that will bring on a cannonading from the ships of war. Our zeal for the publick cause has induced us to part with all the powder we have procured for the defence of this Colony, and we are sorry to find that there is but little prospect of having it replaced.

We hope these reasons will be satisfactory to the Congress; and are your most obedient servants. By order: To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President, &c.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted, together with the printed copies therein mentioned.

A Letter from the Delegates of this Colony at the Continental Congress, dated the 26th of October, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Philadelphia, October 26, 1775.

“SIR: We have the pleasure of enclosing you a resolve, passed this day in Congress, which, we hope, will enable our Province to provide ammunition with certainty and despatch. You will easily perceive the propriety of keeping it as secret as the nature of the business will admit, and we have particular reasons for wishing that the vessels intended for the voyage may be soon despatched.

“We have declined informing Mr. Fine of the purport of this resolve, thinking it more prudent to refer the whole to your discretion. It will not be long before you will be made acquainted with the sentiments of the Congress respecting the general state of trade. As to a certain necessary article, it is not, as yet, to be procured here.

“We are, Sir, with the greatest respect, the Convention's and your very humble servants, “ROB'T R. LIVINGSTON, JUN.,

“JAMES DUANE,

“JOHN JAY.

“To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq.”

A certified copy of a Resolution of the Continental Congress, therein enclosed, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“In Congress, October 26, 1775.

“Resolved, That it be recommended to the several Provincial Assemblies, Conventions, or Councils of Safety, of the United Colonies, to export to the foreign West-Indies, on account and risk of their respective Colonies, as much provision or any other produce, except horned cattle, sheep, hogs, and poultry, as they may deem necessary, for the importation of arms, ammunition, sulphur, and saltpetre.

“Extract from the Minutes:

“CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.”

In pursuance of the said Letter and Resolve,

Ordered, That Mr. Low, Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Vanderbilt, or any two of them, be a Committee to treat with Mr. Fine, for the benefit of his contract for obtaining Powder; and that they report to this Congress with all convenient speed.

By a charge from the Chair, this Letter and Resolve to be kept secret.

A Letter from the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Continental Congress, dated the 28th October, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Philadelphia, October 28, 1775.

“SIR: Your letter of the 17th instant has been laid before the Congress, and I am directed to acquaint you that they approve of your immediately raising a Company of Matrosses, to consist of sixty-eight privates. They prefer that number, as it is the fixed establishment of the Companies in the Continental service. You will please to appoint and forward the list of the officers proper to command them, and their commissions shall be made out and sent you. The Congress desire you will inform them when this Company shall be completed, and they will take under consideration your proposal for raising a larger number. Enclosed is the resolution of Congress.

“I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

“JOHN HANCOCK, President.

“The President of Congress of New-York.”

The Resolve of Congress of the 28th October, therein enclosed, was also read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“In Congress, October 28, 1775.

“Resolved, That a Company of Matrosses, to consist of one Captain, one Captain-Lieutenant, a First and Second Lieutenant, a Lieutenant-Fireworker, four Sergeants, four Corporals, eight Bombardiers, sixty-eight Matrosses, one Drummer, and one Fifer, be immediately raised in New-York, for the defence of Hudson's River, and to occupy the fortifications now erecting in the Highlands; and that the President write to the Convention of that Province, recommending it to them immediately to raise the said Company, and to appoint the proper officers.

“By order of Congress:

“JOHN HANCOCK, President.

“A true copy from the Minutes:

“CHARLES THOMSON, Secretary.”

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall, Mr. Van Zandt, and Mr. Brasher, be a Committee to arrange the Company, and report.

A Letter from Mr. William Bedlow, of the 30th October, ultimo, to Mr. Richard Yates, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“October 30, 1775.

“SIR: As the time of the present Congress's duration is almost expired, I beg leave, in behalf of myself and the other Commissioners appointed by them to superintend the building of a fort in the Highlands, to request that you will be so kind as to move in the House that the sum to be allowed each of us per diem for our services may be ascertained; and when this is done, please to inform Captain John Berrien what the allowance is, as I am to set out for the fort to-morrow morning. This will be gratefully acknowledged by him who is, with esteem, Sir, your humble servant,

“WILLIAM BEDLOW.

“To Mr. Richard Yates, in Congress.”

As the said Fortifications are erecting at a Continental charge, and this Congress about dissolution,

Ordered, That the consideration of Mr. Bedlow's Letter be deferred for the present, and referred to the consideration of the next Provincial Congress.

A Letter from General Washington, of the 24th of October, ult., was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Camp at Cambridge, October 24, 1775.

“SIR: The enclosed information being of the highest importance, I thought it proper to transmit it to you with all despatch.

“I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

“GEORGE WASHINGTON.

“To the Honourable Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq., President of the Provincial Congress, New-York.”

The information therein enclosed was also read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

“Falmouth, Monday, October 16, 1775.

“The Canceau, ship of sixteen guns, commanded by Captain Mowat, a large ship, schooner, and sloop, armed, anchored before the Town. The 17th, at three, P. M., they weighed and came up, and anchored within gunshot, and immediately Captain Mowat sent a letter on shore to the Town, giving them two hours to move their families out, as he had orders to fire the Town. The Town immediately chose a Committee of three gentlemen, and sent them on board, to know the reason of that Town's being set on fire. He returned for answer, that his orders were to set fire to all the sea-port Towns between Boston and Halifax, and that he expected New-York was then burned to ashes. He further said, that when he received orders from the Admiral, he desired that he might show some favour to the Town of Falmouth, which the Admiral granted, (I suppose as Captain Mowat was under particular obligations to some gentlemen at Falmouth, for civilities shown him when in captivity amongst them,) and which favour was to spare the Town until nine o'clock, Wednesday morning, in case we would send him off eight small-arms, which the Town immediately did. Wednesday morning, being the 18th, the Committee went on board

Captain Mowat again, in order to save the Town. He said he would save the Town until he heard from the Admiral, in case we would send off four carriage-guns, deliver up all our arms, ammunition, &c., and send four gentlemen of the Town as hostages; which the Town would not do. About half past nine, in the morning, he began to fire from the four armed vessels, and in five minutes set fire to several houses. He continued firing until after dark the same day, which destroyed the largest part of the Town. He further informed the Committee that he should proceed to Portsmouth, and destroy that place also.

"The foregoing is as near the facts as I am able to remember, as witness my hand.

"PEARSON JONES.

"Cambridge, October 24, 1775."

Another copy of the said information, received via Rhode-Island, together with a copy of a Letter from Nathaniel Greene, at Prospect-Hill, to Deputy Governour Cooke, was also read and filed.

A Letter from Ebenezer Hazard, Postmaster, dated the 31st ult., was read and filed. He thereby informs that he has in charge from the Comptroller of the Constitutional Post-Office, that the keeper of the ferry across North River, charges the post-riders for ferriage, while he suffers the rider from the old office to cross gratis; and that he is directed to request the interposition of the authority of this Congress in the premises.

Ordered, That Mr. Hazard be informed that this Congress does not think proper to interfere at present.

A long Letter from Benjamin Baker, at Albany, on the subject of making Saltpetre, was read and filed. The gentlemen who are Deputies from Albany, are requested to write him an answer, that the Congress does not, at present, incline to comply with his proposals.

The Remonstrance of the Associated Company at Poughkeepsie was read and filed. A copy of their Association was also read and filed.

Ordered, That the Commissions to the Officers of that Company, as Minute-Men, be delivered to the Secretaries, and that new Commissions issue to them as an Associated Company; and the said Commissions were issued accordingly.

A Letter from William Smith, Esquire, Chairman of a meeting of sundry Committees of Towns in which the First Regiment in Suffolk County is composed, signed by order of the said Committees, was read and filed. He thereby informs that Nathan Woodhull and Edmund Smith, Jun., Esquires, respectively declined accepting the offices of First and Second Majors of the said Regiment, and that the said Committees nominated and recommended Jeffrey Smith, Esq., to be First Major, and Jesse Brush, Esq., to be Second Major of the said Regiment.

Ordered, That Commissions issue to those gentlemen, respectively, and that their Commissions bear date on the 27th ultimo.

Mr. Joseph Hallett informed the Congress that he has more money than will be sufficient to discharge the contracts he has made on behalf of the Continental Congress, and that he will be enabled, in a few days, to close his accounts, but is desirous to pay the balance in hand to the Treasurer.

Ordered, That Mr. Hallett pay the balance of the money in his hands to the Treasurer, and that he take the Treasurer or his Agent's receipt for such sum as shall be so returned.

The Congress then adjourned until ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Veneris, 10 ho. A. M., November 3, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., President.

The Return of the Field-Officers of three Regiments of the City Militia was read and filed.

Ordered, That Commissions issue for those gentlemen.

Ordered, That Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt and Mr. Joseph Hallett be a Committee to purchase Flour, and load the Pilot-Boat named the Bishop of Llandaff, and send her to such Port as they think best, on the account and risk of this Congress, to procure Arms and Ammunition, or either that may be obtained, and that they make such contract or contracts, in the premises, as they think fit.

A Letter from General Schuyler, dated 26th October, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"Ticonderoga, October 26, 1775, two o'clock, P. M.

"SIR: I am favoured with an express from General Montgomery. The fort and garrison at Chambly, in which Major Stopford, of the Royal Fusileers, commanded, has surrendered to our troops. One hundred and twenty-four barrels of powder, and a considerable quantity of prepared ammunition, together with a quantity of provisions, has fell into our hands. The reduction of St. John's seems of course. We have already sunk their best vessel of force. A party of ours, consisting of about five hundred, that were stationed at La Prairie, has been attacked, but the assailants were repulsed with some loss. I hope the success which attends and promises to attend the American arms will induce a misinformed Ministry to adopt measures to bring about a reconciliation.

"I am, Sir, with the most respectful sentiments, your and the Congress's most obedient and very humble servant.

"Peter V. B. Livingston, Esq., &c., &c."

A draught of a Letter to General Schuyler was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, November 3, 1775.

SIR: We received your letter, unsigned, of the 26th ult., confirming the important intelligence that the fort and garrison at Chambly has surrendered to our troops, with a very considerable quantity of provisions and military stores. This victory, together with the favourable prospect it affords of the acquisition of St. John's, gives us pleasure, and we most heartily concur with you in the hopes you express, that the success of our arms may induce the Ministry to adopt measures of reconciliation.

We are, Sir, your very humble servants. By order:

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

The Protest of Francis James, one of the owners of the Pilot-Boat Hampden, was read and filed.

Ordered, That John McKesson, one of the Secretaries, draw an Affidavit of Francis James, one of the owners of the Pilot-Boat named the Hampden, that the said Boat was taken without any collusion.

A Letter from a Sub-Committee of the Committee of Westchester County was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"White Plains, November 1, 1775.

"SIR: The Committee of Westchester County having been called together upon a request of some of their body, upon suspicion of a plot being contrived to carry off several of the members, and some others who had showed themselves zealously attached to the liberties of this country, Mr. Philip Pinckney, who had given very full information to some of the Committee of the plot, and had offered to swear to it, provided he was brought by the Committee by an appearance of force, and had engaged not to be out of the way, upon being sent for by some of the guard attending the Committee, was not to be found. Whereupon, some of the Committee, by order of the whole, waited upon Mr. Pinckney, who, after refusing to come before the Committee, and after a great deal of equivocation, made the enclosed affidavit before a Magistrate, which we have reason to think is not the whole truth; for which reasons we refer you to Colonel Budd and Mr. Gilbert Horton, with whom Mr. Pinckney has conversed. As we are only a Sub-Committee, appointed to take the examination of Mr. Pinckney, and such other persons as might be necessary, and to make a report of our proceedings to the honourable the Provincial Congress, we beg leave to request that Mr. Pinckney may be sent for, and critically examined by the Congress respecting the above matter, and with relation to oars being made by the request of Captain Vandeput; and, also, that William Davis, who was employed in making the oars, and Sarah Williams, the wife of Isaac Williams, of Westchester, may be also sent for and examined as a witness respecting them. We also request that Mr. William Lounsbury, Isaac Gedney, Jun., and three hired men who work at Justice Sutton's, may be sent for on account of what Mr. Pinckney has related, though not sworn to, that they, among others, were Minute-Men, as he called them; that they were to be ready, at a moment's warning, to take off some persons who were the most obnoxious.

"We would also request, when the others are sent for, that the abovementioned Isaac Gedney, Jun., Wm. Nelson, Joshua Boyea, Joshua Ferris, Bartholomew Haines, Elijah Haines, William Haines, and John Haines, be also taken and brought before the honourable Congress, for taking up arms to rescue Elijah Weeks, who was brought before the Committee upon a charge against him. Upon the charge we would mention the widow Margaret Gedney, of the White Plains, where they left their arms, Job Hadden, of Harrison Precinct, Benjamin Morrell, of New-York, and Isaac Sniffen, of Rye-Neck, as witnesses. For evidence to the other charges, we beg leave to refer you to Colonel Budd, and Mr. Gilbert Horton.

"We would not have troubled the Congress about apprehending the abovenamed persons, but that we look upon ourselves at present too weak to do it, without great danger; and we beg leave to submit it, whether it be not necessary for the security of many amongst us, as well as to prevent provisions being conveyed to the Ministerial Army, that a guard be placed along the Sound in this County.

"We are, Sir, your most humble servants,

"JONA. G. THOMPSON, MICAH TOWNSEND,

"THOMAS THOMAS, ANTHONY MILLER."

"JESSE HUNT,

"To Nathaniel Woodhull, President of the Provincial Congress in New-York."

The Affidavit therein mentioned was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"WESTCHESTER COUNTY, ss.

"Personally appeared before me, James Horton, Jun., one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace, in and for said County, Philip Pinckney, of full age, who deposeth and saith, that on Wednesday, the 25th day instant, being in company, he heard one say that Godfrey Haines was determined to have satisfaction on some particular persons, and that there was a tender expected to take them off instantly; and that this deponent was asked if he would assist in taking off Judge Thomas privately; and that they were determined to have him, if possible; and that there was a person to be in a particular place, to receive him from those who took him.

"PHILIP PINCKNEY.

"Taken and sworn before me, this 1st day of November, 1775.

"JAMES HORTON, JUN."

Ordered, That Colonel Budd and Mr. Gilbert Horton be requested to attend this Congress at five o'clock, this afternoon.

Mr. Melnceton Smith delivered in an Account of the expense of apprehending and transporting to Albany three Deserters from Colonel Holmes's Regiment, who were apprehended at Poughkeepsie, and sent to Albany.

Ordered, That a copy of the said Account be transmitted to Colonel Holmes, that he may stop the said expenses out of the pay of the said Deserters, to prevent the loss of that sum, and that he may be enabled to reimburse this Congress for the same.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to Colonel Holmes was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, November 3, 1775.

SIR: Enclosed is a copy of an account of expenses paid to a detachment of the Independent Company at Poughkeepsie, for apprehending and conveying to Albany Thomas Hampton, James Devenport, and Henry May, three deserters belonging to Capt. Wynkoop's Company, of your Regiment. The Congress request that you will make an immediate stoppage in their pay, to reimburse the sum paid for that service, that you may account to the Congress for the same. We are, Sir, &c.

Colonel James Holmes.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with a certified copy of the said Account and of the above Order, transmitted.

A draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress, requesting an aid in Money, was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, November 3, 1775.

SIR: We are obliged to trouble the Congress once more on the subject of cash, as we are apprehensive the publick service will suffer greatly, unless we have an immediate supply from the Congress. When Mr. Trumbull, the Paymaster for the Northern Army, passed through this City, we applied to him for a reimbursement of the cash we had advanced in his department; he then informed us, that he would pay no money, as General Schuyler had ordered him to exchange what money he had into gold and silver, and bring the same with him, as it would be wanted in Canada. Since this, we have applied to General Schuyler for a warrant on the Continental Treasurer, but as yet we have not received an answer from him, owing, we suppose, to his indisposition and the hurry of business.

Our accounts will be made up and transmitted with all possible despatch; but as the publick creditors are pressing, we beg the Congress will pay to our Delegates at Philadelphia the sum of fifty thousand Dollars, to enable us to discharge the publick debt, for which this Colony will be accountable.

We are, Sir, your very humble servants.

By order of the Congress:

To the Hon. John Hancock, President of the Honourable the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Ordered, That Colonel McDougall be directed to cause one hundred and fifty barrels of the Gunpowder, now in the Magazine, to be made up into Cartridges of different sorts, in readiness for the common defence, and that Mr. Gabriel W. Ludlow deliver to him or his order the above quantity.

A Petition of Abraham H. Van Vleck, was read and filed, and is in the words following, to wit:

"To the Honourable the Provincial Congress: the Petition of ABRAHAM H. VAN VLECK most humbly sheweth:

"That your petitioner, having inadvertently infringed one of the Resolves of the honourable the Continental Congress, and for so doing has made every kind of concession and satisfaction in his power, declaring at the same time to act in every respect agreeable to the salutary resolves of the Congress, your petitioner therefore most humbly entreats your honourable Board to exonerate him, that he may make his peace with his countrymen, and have an opportunity of proving himself a sincere friend to his country. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, will ever pray; being, with the most profound respect, your most obliged humble servant,

"ABRAHAM H. VAN VLECK."

Thereupon, the Congress came to a Resolution in the words following, to wit:

Abraham H. Van Vleck, having been duly convicted by the General Committee of Association for the City and County of New-York, of having violated a Resolution of the Continental Congress, by shipping Provisions to Nantucket; and the said Abraham H. Van Vleck, by his Petition, having declared his contrition for his offence, and his intention for the future to conform to the Resolutions of the Congress, and his desire to make his peace with his countrymen, and to have an opportunity of proving himself a sincere friend to his Country,

Resolved, That the said Abraham H. Van Vleck hath fully satisfied this Congress of his contrition for his said offence, and of his intention for the future to act agreeable to the Resolutions of the Congress.

Resolved, That he be again restored to the favourable opinion of his countrymen; and it is hereby recommended that he be no longer considered or treated as an enemy to his Country.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be certified by one of the Secretaries, and delivered to Mr. Henry Van Vleck, to be published.

The Congress then proceeded to hear the Proceedings of the Members met on the 27th and 28th of October last, which were all read, because the Congress on each of those days wanted one or more Members; and the Congress having fully heard the same, approved thereof, and confirmed the same and every part thereof.

The Congress then adjourned until five o'clock, in the afternoon.

Die Veneris, 5 ho. P. M.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present: Abraham Yates, Esq., President.

Thomas Pearsall, by order of the Congress, attending at the door, was called in and examined, and notes of his examination were taken and filed, and are as follows:

"Thomas Pearsall examined touching raising the price of goods: says that about six weeks or two months ago, Samuel Weat, of Norwich, purchased of Robinson & Price, of this City, for account of Messrs. Christopher Leffenwell & Co., about fifty blankets, at the rate of sixteen Shillings per blanket; that they were striped blankets, of a middling good quality and size; that, from his knowledge of the sterling price of such blankets, he supposes they must have cost seventy-five or eighty Shillings per piece, of fifteen in a piece; that Robinson & Price charged the said blankets to said Pearsall's account, and that he charged the same to Leffenwell & Co., at the same rate."

Mr. Peter T. Curtenius attending at the door, was called in and examined, and notes of his examination were taken and filed, and are as follows:

"Peter T. Curtenius says that he purchased of Robinson & Price, last week, forty-five blankets, for Captain Ledyard's Company, at the rate of nineteen Shillings and six Pence per blanket; that, from the size and quality, he supposes they cost at three Pounds ten Shillings sterling per piece; that within a fortnight he (Curtenius) supplied blankets of a better quality to the poor-house, at twelve Shillings per blanket. That Robinson & Price told him they imported said blankets from Philadelphia, and paid sixteen Shillings for them there; that he (Curtenius) bought of said Robinson & Price, for the use of said Company, duffils, at the rate of eight Shillings per yard, such as he bought in the course of a month out of a retail shop at the rate of six Shillings and six Pence, and in the month of July last, of Mr. Hamilton Young, by wholesale, at the rate of five Shillings and six Pence. That Robinson & Price told him the duffils had cost them six Shillings and six Pence per yard."

Colonel Gilbert Budd and Gilbert Horton, from Westchester County, attending according to order, were called in and examined, and the examination of Gilbert Budd was taken in writing and filed, and is as follows, to wit:

"Gilbert Budd, of Mamaroneck, says that the Tories are getting the upper hand of, and threaten them daily, and have injured their private property by throwing down stone fences and cropping his horses' tails and manes. That Philip Pinckney told him, last Sunday, that he was in company, on the 25th October last, with a man who told him that there would be bad times in Mamaroneck before long, and said that some of the people of the place would be taken off; that he (Pinckney) asked the man that told him, how they were to be taken off; he answered, that they expected a tender in the harbour in a few days, and that she would send barges on shore, in order to carry the people off; that he (Pinckney) further asked the man, where they were to be carried to; he answered, to Gage. Mr. Budd told Pinckney that Gage was not there; he answered, to Gage's Army; that Pinckney said he asked the man, who the men were, that were to be taken off; that the man intimated to him, that Mr. Gilbert Budd and Mr. Samuel Townsend were the men that were to be taken off, and that there was another that they would have at all events; that Pinckney told Budd, that he asked the man who the other man was, that was to be taken off; that the man answered him, that Judge Thomas was the man, who they would have if it cost them the lives of fifty men; that Pinckney told the said Mr. Budd, that there was a number of his (Budd's) neighbours, who stood ready to assist the tender in order to take them; that Mr. Budd asked Pinckney if he knew who those neighbours were; he answered, that one of them was William Lounsberry, and one Isaac Gedney, Jun., and all Sutton's men—alluding to some hired servants of Sutton's; that Pinckney said he came as a friend, and advised Mr. Budd to keep out of the way, for that he did not think it safe for him to sleep in his house one night. Mr. Budd further says, that he heard that Godfrey Haines said that he was going to get a parcel of oars made for the man-of-war; that Haines came to Mamaroneck, and that the next day Isaac Gedney set about making oars; that they were making (as Budd understood) by Haines's order, for Captain Vandeput. Mr. Budd says the Tories are equipped and constantly in arms, walking about at night, six, eight, and ten at a time. Mr. Budd further says, that it is reported that these Tories say they are determined to defend themselves, and that if any body came to their houses to take away their arms, they would fire upon them."

A charge was then given from the Chair, to keep the whole of this matter a secret.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to the Committee of Westchester was read, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, November 3, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: We received a letter of the 1st instant, from a Sub-Committee of your County, relative to the conduct of the people of Rye; and the Congress have directed me to recommend to your Committee, to make an immediate and strict inquiry into the matters to which the letter refers, and to take the examinations, on oath, of the witnesses; and if you find satisfactory reasons to suppose the persons threatened to be in danger, that you take the proper means to protect them. Perhaps the binding over to the peace such persons as may be strongly suspected of a design to injure the persons or estates of those gentlemen, may be a useful expedient. If any thing afterwards shall be thought necessary to be done for their further protection, the Committee will attend to it. If you should find the County unable to give the necessary protection, you will transmit the examinations to us, that the Congress may take such order therein as may be proper. The Committee may rest assured that this Congress will support the friends of liberty to the utmost of their power.

We are, Sir, your humble servants.

To Gilbert Drake, Esq., Chairman of the Committee of Westchester County.

Mr. Melancton Smith moved, and was seconded, that that part of the Letter to the Committee of Westchester which refers them to the Civil Magistrate be struck out.

By consent of the Congress, the question was put by rising, and carried in the negative—Dr. Graham, Mr. Thomas, Mr. Sears, and Mr. Melancton Smith, dissenting.

Therefore, Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

Colonel McDougall informed the Congress, that on receipt of the Letters, Examinations, and Resolve or recommendation of the Continental Congress, relating to Grant, of Dutchess County, as the Congress was not sitting, and not a probability of their being able to have a House for some days, several Members who assembled were of opinion that the business therein mentioned would not admit of delay, had desired Mr. Gilbert Livingston and himself to take proper measures to have the said Grant secured, and the said recommendations carried into execution. That thereupon they had wrote a Letter, of which they delivered in a draught, in the words following, to wit:

New-York, October 29, 1775.

"SIR: You may remember, before you went out of Town, that the transport which went from hence some time ago, to Boston, was cast away at Brigantine Inlet, in Jersey, in returning to this place, and that captain and crew, as well as Captain Campbell, late of your County, with several marines, were taken prisoners and carried to Philadelphia, where they were examined before the Committee of Safety of Pennsylvania; which examination was handed up to the Continental Congress, from which the enclosed extract (No. 1) is made. The Congress, in consequence of it, wrote ours upon the subject, an extract of which you have herewith, (marked No. 2.) Our Congress being adjourned till Tuesday next, and it being uncertain whether a Congress will then be made, a number of the Members convened, and opened the above letter, and, from the necessity of the case, advised us to write you to secure the Mr. Grant mentioned in the examination, and all suspicious persons about Captain Campbell's house, and examine them touching the enlisting men for the Ministerial Army, and transmit the result thereof to our Congress by express. As we understand there are several of the Grants in your County, we think it will be proper to endeavour to designate the Grant herein mentioned from others of that name, and that two parties should be sent on this business—one to Grant's, and the other to Campbell's house. It will prevent suspicion and alarm, if they appoint a place of rendezvous near each of those houses, and not go in bodies along the road for some distance before they reach the houses. It will also ensure success, if those parties, when they get to their respective places of rendezvous, stop all the avenues leading to those houses, and prevent any person getting to them, to give notice of the approach of the party. Great care should be taken that no rudeness should be offered to the families of any person your party shall find it necessary to take.

"We submit it to you, and the friends of our common cause, to determine what number and who will be proper to carry the intentions of the Continental Congress into execution.

"We are, Sir, with great truth and regard, your humble servants,

"ALEXANDER McDougall,
"GILBERT LIVINGSTON.

"To Zephaniah Platt, Poughkeepsie."

The Congress approved of their proceedings, and confirmed the same.

The Congress then took into consideration the defenceless state of the Fortifications on the banks of Hudson's River, in the Highlands. Thereupon, Ordered, That Colonel McDougall, Captain Grennell, and Captain Ledyard, with their Companies, proceed up to the said Fortifications immediately, to be and remain until Matrosses are raised, or further orders.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to the Continental Congress was read and approved, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, November 3, 1775.

SIR: As the fort in the Highlands is at present in a defenceless state, for want of troops, and as it will take some time to raise the Company of Matrosses directed by the Congress, we have ordered two incomplete Companies, now here, of the Continental forces, from which draughts have been made, to that post, until the Company of Matrosses is raised.

We hope this step will meet with the approbation of the Congress; and are, Sir, your humble servants.

By order of the Congress:

The Honourable John Hancock, President.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and transmitted.

A Certificate of Simon Cook and Lewis Delavergne, returning the Officers of the Second Minute Company in Amenia Precinct, in Dutchess County, was read and filed.

The Officers returned are: Roswell Kinne, Captain; Judah Burton, First Lieutenant; Ebenezer Carter, Second Lieutenant; Andrew Shaw, Ensign.

Ordered, That the Commissions to those Officers issue; which were issued accordingly.

The Congress then adjourned until ten o'clock, to-morrow morning.

Die Sabbati, 10 ho. A. M., November 4, 1775.

The Congress met pursuant to adjournment. Present:

Abraham Yates, President.

Mr. Hallett produced two Bills of Exchange, drawn on Colonel Robinson, one of three hundred and fifty Dollars, and the other of one hundred and five Dollars, and a Letter from his Agent at Pensacola, of the 10th September last, informing that he took those Bills before he knew of the Resolve of Congress against the Bills of Military Officers, and cannot make demand for those Bills until they are returned protested. Debates arose thereon.

For paying the Bills.

3 Albany,	2 Tryon,
2 Queen's,	2 King's.
2 Richmond,	—
4 New-York,	15

Against paying the Bills.

2 Dutchess.

Ordered, That the Examinations of P. T. Curtenius and Thomas Pearsall be delivered to the Committee of the City of New-York; and that the said Committee be requested to call the said persons before them, and make proper inquiries therein, and to treat all such persons as they find offending against the Continental Resolves, agreeable to their demerits.

Ordered, That any three of the Auditors audit the Account of E. W. Kiers, amounting to twenty-seven Pounds eleven Shillings and two Pence, that it may be paid by the Treasurer.

And Ordered, That a Letter be wrote to Colonel James Clinton, covering a copy of this Account, and requesting him to stop the pay of the Deserters therein mentioned, and retain the amount thereof out of the pay of the said Deserters, to enable him to reimburse the same to this Congress, their Treasurer, or order.

Thereupon, a draught of a Letter to Colonel James Clinton was read and approved of, and is in the words following, to wit:

In Provincial Congress, New-York, November 4, 1775.

SIR: Enclosed is a copy of an account of expenses paid and expended for apprehending and conveying to Albany thirteen deserters, belonging to Captain Johnston's Company, of your Regiment. The Congress request that you will make an immediate stoppage in their pay, to reimburse the sum paid for that service, that you may be enabled to account to the Congress for the same.

We are, respectfully, Sir, your very humble servants.
Colonel Clinton.

Ordered, That a copy thereof be engrossed, and signed by the President, and, together with a certified copy of the said Account and the above Order, be transmitted.

The Affidavit of Francis James, of this day, was read and filed.

Ordered, That Francis James be paid for one-half of the Pilot-Boat the Hampden, the sum of three hundred Pounds, and for one-half of the wages or hire of the said boat, and her Mariners, the sum of forty-five Pounds, on his executing a proper conveyance for one moiety of the boat, and delivering over the papers relating to the said boat to Mr. Jacobus Van Zandt, and entering into covenants to Mr. Van Zandt, that if any money should be allowed for the said boat, or for the service or detention of the said boat, while employed in His Majesty's service, that he will pay a moiety thereof to Jacobus Van Zandt, and also a covenant, that if it shall hereafter appear that the said boat was taken by collusion or any deceit of the master or owners, or either of them, that then he will repay the said moneys to the said Jacobus Van Zandt.

And Ordered, That a copy thereof be a sufficient warrant to Peter Van Brugh Livingston, Esq., as Treasurer of this Congress, to pay the said moneys.

Ordered, That the Pilots of this City do not go on board of any Vessels with Troops on board; but that any Pilot who may discover any Vessel with Troops on board do immediately give intelligence thereof to this Congress or to the Committees of the City of New-York, and to the Inhabitants, with the utmost expedition; and that Mr. Beckman and Mr. Yates be a Committee to give directions to the Pilots for that purpose, and direct the Pilots to keep this order secret.

Henry Glenn, Esq., produced to this Congress the Note of Abraham Ten Broeck, Esq., dated the 2d of June last, to Abraham Lott, Esq., or his order, for the sum of seven hundred Pounds, with a receipt endorsed thereon for the whole amount, received of the said Henry Glenn, dated this day, and signed Andrew Lott, Deputy Treasurer. The said Note is given to Mr. Glenn, for the use of Abraham Ten Broeck.

Christopher Tappen, Esq., produced to this Congress the Note of Egbert Dumond, Esq., dated the 12th July last, to Abraham Lott, Esq., or his order, for four hundred and twenty-eight Pounds, received in an order on the Loan Officers of Ulster County, with a receipt endorsed thereon, signed by Andrew Lott, Deputy-Treasurer, for the amount of the said Note, this day received of the said Christopher Tappen. The said Note is given to Mr. Tappen, for the use of Egbert Dumond.

David Clarkson, Esq., produced to this Congress his Note to Abraham Lott, Esq., Treasurer of this Colony, dated the 2d day of June last, for the sum of two hundred Pounds, borrowed by order and for the use of this Congress, and at that time delivered to Dirck Swartz, for the publick services, in removing Cannon and Stores from Ticonderoga, and disbursements attending the same. Mr. Clarkson also delivered in Swartz's receipt for the said two hundred Pounds, dated on the said 2d day of June last, which is filed with the Secretaries.

A Letter from the Rev. Samuel Kirkland, recommending an Indian, the bearer thereof, for money, was read.

Ordered, That the said Letter be returned to the bearer, and that he be referred to the Continental Commissioners for Indian Affairs.

Captain Hutchinson, Captain of a Company of Minute-Men in Haverstraw Precinct, attending at the door, was admitted. He informed that he had formerly taken up three Deserters from Captain Robert Johnston's Company, who were not then sent up to the Regiment because they were sick. That they are now recovered and fit for duty, and he requests to be directed what shall be done with them. Captain Hutchinson was directed to send them to the new Fortifications in the Highlands as soon as he shall hear that any Company of the Continental Troops are there.

Ordered, That a proper Shed be built in or near the Barracks yard, to deposite the Artillery of the Colony.

And it is also Ordered, That Mr. Anthony Griffiths be, and he is hereby appointed a Commissary, to purchase Stores necessary for the Cannon of the two Artillery Companies, and that he superintend the building of the said Shed.

ADDRESS OF THE BURGH OF KIRKALDY.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of Kirkaldy, in Common Council assembled, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of Kirkaldy, in Common Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We beg leave, with all humility, to approach your throne, our hearts glowing with zeal for your Majesty's person and the honour of Great Britain.

We see, with the utmost concern, the conduct of your Majesty's subjects in America, who, encouraged by daring and factious men at home, have proceeded to attempts of the most criminal nature, and, with ingratitude equal to their folly, rebelled against your Majesty's Government, and that State to whose protection they owe the prosperity they enjoy.

We trust that your Majesty, in your wisdom, will take the most effectual measures for bringing these infatuated people to a true sense of their duty; and we humbly presume to assure your Majesty that we will cheerfully join your other faithful subjects in supporting your Majesty's authority and the supremacy of the British Legislature.

That your Majesty may long enjoy an uninterrupted state of felicity, and reign over a free and happy people, is the united and ardent wish of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of your Burgh of Kirkaldy.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, the seal of the Burgh being affixed.

THOMAS MACKIE, Provost.

Kirkaldy, November 1, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF BURNT-ISLAND.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Borough of Burnt-Island, in Common Council assembled, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Borough of Burnt-Island, in Common Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of your Borough of Burnt-Island, humbly presume to approach your Majesty, acknowledging, with gratitude, the many blessings we have enjoyed since your auspicious accession to the throne of these Kingdoms.

Convinced, by our own happiness under your Majesty's Government, that your paternal care and protection has been also extended to the whole of your Dominions, we view with astonishment the conduct of your subjects in America, now in arms, to oppose your Majesty's authority and the legislative power of the British Parliament. We trust that, by the wisdom of your Majesty's Councils, some speedy and effectual means will be devised for reducing your infatuated subjects to due obedience; and we hope that they themselves will soon perceive how much they have been deluded by the artful misrepresentations of factious and designing men.

Confident that such will be the effects of your Majesty's deliberations, allow us, most gracious Sovereign, to increase the number of loyal subjects who have, at this time of tumult, expressed their warm attachment to your Majesty's person and family; assuring your Majesty that we will, to the utmost of our power, join in supporting your lawful authority against all attempts, either foreign or domestic, to invade your Majesty's rights, or those of the British Legislature.

That your Majesty's reign may be long and prosperous, over a free, united, and grateful people, is the constant wish and prayer of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of your Borough of Burnt-Island.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, the common seal of the Borough being hereto affixed.

JAMES TOWNSEND OSWALD, Provost.

Burnt-Island, November 1, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF ANNAN.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Common Council of the Borough of Annan, presented to His Majesty by William Douglas, Esq., their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Common Council of the Borough of Annan.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Common Council of the Borough of Annan, behold with abhorrence the ungrateful conduct of your Majesty's American Colonies, who are aiming to throw off their dependance on the Mother Country.

We humbly request your Majesty's most gracious acceptance of this testimony of our affection and attachment to your Majesty's person, family, and Government, and pray that such measures may be pursued, by the wisdom of your Majesty and your Parliament, as may most effectually restore and support obedience to the laws.

That your Majesty may long reign over a free and happy people, and transmit your extensive Dominions, undivided, to your royal issue, to latest posterity, is the ardent wish of, may it please your Majesty, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Common Council of the Borough of Annan.

GEORGE HARDIE, Provost.

Annan, November 1, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF PERTH.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Royal Borough of Perth, in Common Council assembled, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of your royal Borough of Perth, in Common Council assembled, under no influence but the dictates of our own loyalty and affection, beg leave to approach your royal presence, and to declare our abhorrence of the rebellion in your American Colonies, excited by designing men, and, we are sorry to add, encouraged by too many at home, against their most indulgent Sovereign and the supreme Legislature of the British Empire, under whose protection our liberties, both religious and civil, have long been uninterruptedly enjoyed, and can only in future subsist.

With hearts full of gratitude for these blessings, we are ready, on every occasion, to assist your Majesty, to the utmost of our power, in subjecting your rebellious subjects to the obedience they owe their lawful Sovereign and both Houses of Parliament; and we pray that Almighty God may long preserve your Majesty, and direct your Councils to maintain our happy Constitution, and defeat the traitorous machinations of all your enemies, foreign and domestic, designed against your sacred person and Government.

Signed in our name and presence, and by our appointment, at Perth, the 1st of November, 1775, by ALEXANDER SIMON, Provost.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO COLONEL JOSHUA WENTWORTH.

Head-Quarters, November 1, 1775.

SIR: I arrived here last evening, and informed his Excellency of your attention and assistance in negotiating the transportation of the flour from your port to Ipswich and Salem. I have it in command from the General to return you his thanks, and at the same time to enclose you his instructions to the agents appointed for the armed vessels now fitted out, or which hereafter may be fitted out, for the publick service. I doubt not you will pay proper attention to them, and to any further instructions you may hereafter receive from Head-Quarters. You have also enclosed the lists of provisions necessary to be laid in for one month, for fifty men, which is the complement for the schooner fitted out to cruise on the coast. Those that are gone out to sea have seventy-five men. Your situation is such that, except a cruiser takes a prize, I don't apprehend you will have many visits from them; therefore, I am of opinion that a few barrels of beef, and a few of pork, with some bread, will be sufficient for you to lay in at present. Perhaps his Excellency may hereafter think proper to appoint a particular vessel for your port. Then it will be necessary for you to provide the other articles mentioned in the list.

I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

To Colonel Joshua Wentworth, Agent, Portsmouth.

EPHRAIM BOWEN TO COLONEL REED.

Plymouth, November 1, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I wrote you on Sunday last from Bristol, wherein I gave you an account of my proceedings, which I hope was agreeable, as I made all possible despatch. I waited at Taunton until Tuesday noon, when the guns arrived. I immediately procured carts, saw them loaded, and proceeded to this place, where I arrived this morning, and the cannon, &c., afternoon. I have sent, per the bearer, the formers for the cartridges; also, the commission, which Captain Wormwell declines taking, as Captain Martindale has engaged his First Lieutenant, and Wormwell does not choose to go Second; so you will please to appoint a Second Lieutenant in his stead. Captain Martindale says he wants two bolts of ticklenburgh or osnaburghs, for topsails, &c., which he desires you will send immediately; also, the men, as he can find employment for the most of them, and thinks he ought not to have less than eighty. There is much more to be done to this vessel than I expected, and Captain Martindale seems to be determined to have nothing wanting; so that I fear the expense of fitting the vessel will not be very agreeable to the General.

Captain Coit set sail again yesterday, but unluckily run aground again; but hope to get him off this evening, to sail with Captain Manly, who put in here to-day. There are ten carriage and ten swivel guns for this vessel, so you will send cartridges accordingly; also, some loose powder, for priming, &c.

Since writing the foregoing, Captain Coit's schooner has got off, and will sail in the morning. Mr. Howland, the master of Martindale's vessel, would be glad to have a commission or warrant, and desires to know the terms he goes on.

I am your humble servant,

EPHRAIM BOWEN.

To Colonel Reed.

COLONEL ARNOLD TO JOHN MANIR.

Sartigan, November 1, 1775.

DEAR SIR: As I make no doubt of your being hearty in the cause of liberty and your Country, I have taken the liberty to inform you that I have just arrived here, with a large detachment from the American Army. I have several times, on my march, wrote you by the Indians, some of whom have returned and brought no answer. I am apprehensive they have betrayed me. This will be delivered you by . . . . ., on whose secrecy you may depend. I beg the favour of you, on receipt of this, to write me, by the bearer, the number of troops in Quebeck and Montreal; how the French inhabitants stand affected; if any ships of war are at Quebeck, and any other intelligence you may judge necessary for me to know. I find the inhabitants very friendly this way, and make no doubt they are the same with you. I hope to see you in Quebeck in a few days. In the mean time, I should take it as a particular favour if some one or two of my friends would meet me on the road, and that you would let me know if the enemy are apprized of our coming; also, the situation that General Schuyler is in.

Your compliance will much oblige, dear Sir, your friend and humble servant,

B. ARNOLD.

ADDRESS OF THE HIGH SHERIFF, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF SOUTHAMPTON.

Address of the Lord Lieutenant, High Sheriff, Knights of the Shire, Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen, Clergy, and others, Freeholders of the County of Southampton, presented to His Majesty by Goodyer St. John, Esquire, High Sheriff of the said County.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most faithful and loyal subjects, the Lord Lieutenant, High Sheriff, Knights of the Shire, Justices of the Peace, Gentlemen, Clergy, and others, Freeholders of your County of Southampton, beg leave to approach your Majesty, to express our firm and unfeigned attachment to your sacred person and Government.

We acknowledge, with the utmost gratitude, the very many blessings which your people have enjoyed under your Majesty's mild and auspicious reign, and we behold, with an equal degree of concern and abhorrence, the repose of the State disturbed by a part of your American subjects, who have been led, by a spirit of delusion and sedition, into such violent proceedings against the legislative authority of this Country, as are no less repugnant to their duty and allegiance, than subversive of their own interest and the general weal of this great and extensive Empire.

We assure your Majesty that we will, with our lives and fortunes, support you in establishing and maintaining the authority of the legislation of this Country over every part of the British Dominions; and we most ardently wish that, by the wisdom and vigour of your Majesty's councils and measures, the present unnatural rebellion may soon be suppressed, and that general and permanent tranquillity may be restored to your Majesty's people and Government.

Castle of Winchester, November 2, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF CHESTER.

Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Common Council of the City of Chester, presented to His Majesty by Thomas Grosvenor, Esquire, one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, Aldermen, Sheriffs, and Common Council of your ancient and loyal City of Chester, seeing, with deep concern, that those conciliatory measures tendered by your Majesty's benignity, with the approbation of the great Council of the Nation in the last session of Parliament, to your rebellious Colonies in America, have not only failed to bring them back to their duty, and to acknowledge the supreme power of the British Parliament over them, but that, encouraged by the daily publications of factious subjects at home, in their favour, they have denied that power, and made such warlike preparations to resist all attempts to enforce it, as plainly show they aim at independency, and to bid defiance to that power which first raised and hath since supported them—cannot help, therefore, declaring our abhorrence of proceedings so subversive of all order and good government.

We are convinced, from the experienced clemency of your Majesty's Government, that (your Parliament being now assembled) if any other measures than those already offered, consistent with the honour and dignity of your Majesty's crown and Parliament, can even yet be suggested to heal the wound given by the American rebellion to the British Constitution, your tenderness and affection for all your subjects will permit them to be held forth to America, to close that scene of blood, which, from fatal necessity, will follow the refusal of the American Provinces to return to their obedience.

We entirely approve the wisdom of Parliament for assuring your Majesty of their firm resolution to grant you all such supplies as, with the assistance of Divine Providence, may enable you to enforce that duty and allegiance which mild and gracious offers have failed to obtain, and to which we declare we will, with all cheerfulness, contribute, till the right and authority of Great Britain, over her Colonies, shall be settled on a solid and lasting basis.

Given under our common seal, this second day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

THOMAS GRIFFITH, Mayor.

REPORT OF GUNNING BEDFORD, DEPUTY MUSTER-MASTER GENERAL OF THE NEW-YORK DEPARTMENT OF THE ARMY OF THE UNITED COLONIES.

Philadelphia, November 2, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: I made the best of my way forward, according to your Honour's direction, to General Schuyler. When I arrived at Head-Quarters, (Ticonderoga), I received orders from his Excellency the General, to muster the troops under his command. The Connecticut troops would not suffer me to muster them, for reasons mentioned to your Honour in my letter of the 31st August, and signified to the Congress by General Schuyler himself.

Of the New-York troops, I mustered nine Companies of the First Regiment, the whole of the Second Regiment, the whole of the Third Regiment, and nine Companies of the Fourth Regiment. The remaining Company of the First Regiment I met on the North River, on my way from Albany to New-York; the remaining Company of the Fourth Regiment I left at Isle-aux-Noix, when I was ordered to return to Ticonderoga.

I mustered one Company of the Regiment of Green Mountain Boys; the remainder of them passed me on Lake Champlain, as did the five Companies of New-Hampshire troops, commanded by Colonel Bedel.

In order that those Companies which had escaped me should not pass unmustered, General Schuyler thought proper that I should appoint an Assistant Deputy Muster-Master. I have accordingly appointed John McPherson, Esq., to that office. I then received orders from his Excellency General Schuyler to come to the southward, muster those troops which had not then gone forward, and make my report to the honourable the Continental Congress. I have now done accordingly, and hope my conduct may meet with their and your Honour's approbation.

G. BEDFORD, Dep. Muster-Master General.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq., President of the Honourable the Continental Congress.

SOLOMON PHELPS TO NEW-YORK CONGRESS.

Cumberland County, New-York, November 2, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOUR: I find the honourable Provincial Congress for our Colony of New-York have resolved that said Congress shall be dissolved on the 14th day of this instant, and that there shall be a new election of Representatives through the Colony. This intelligence we have in Holt's paper, of October 19th, ult. I have showed the said paper to some of the Committee of Safety for this County. They think the County ought to have some further intelligence from New-York, before they proceed to order an election, as is recommended in the abovementioned paper. I have told them that it is my opinion that the above intelligence is sufficient. Our Delegate, Major Williams, has wrote us nothing concerning the same.

I, as one of the Committee of Safety for this County, should take it as a great favour, if the County might have some further intelligence, to satisfy those gentlemen who object, that the said intelligence is not sufficient. If the Secretary, or any other gentleman belonging to the Congress, would send us a letter, concerning a new choice of Representatives, I should be exceedingly obliged to them for the same. The people in general, among us, want to choose new members, and are always ready to adhere strictly to the resolves of the honourable the Provincial Congress, if they shall be made acquainted with the same.

Mr. Moses Allen, the post, rides from Hartford (Connecticut) to Northfield, weekly, and brings some New-York papers with him. The honourable Congress, sending us word in regard to the above particular, would much oblige the County, and particularly your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

SOLOMON PHELPS.

The Honourable President Livingston.

CONNECTICUT COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Thursday, November 2, 1775.

At a meeting of the Governour and Council of Safety, Present: His Honour the Governour, Honourable Deputy Governour Griswold, Jabez Huntington, Samuel Huntington, William Williams, Nathaniel Wales, Jedediah Elderkin, Joshua West, Benjamin Huntington, Esquires.

A motion by Doctor John Waldo, of Coventry, (and recommended by Colonel Jedediah Huntington, &c.) Improved two months, from 14th August to 14th October last, as a Doctor, chiefly in said Colonel Huntington's Regiment, when they were very sick, and both the Surgeons' Mates also sick, and that he has expended six Pounds in said service, for subsistence, &c., and horse; and moving for an allowance, &c.; and, on consideration, this Board do allow said Doctor Waldo the sum of thirteen Pounds, which is four Pounds per month, and five Pounds for said expenses, and that an order be drawn accordingly. And an order was drawn accordingly, and delivered him.

Voted, also, An order on the Pay-Table, in favour of Mr. David Trumbull, for one hundred Pounds, to be improved for fixing, stocking, and repairing, &c., about one hundred and eighty Gun-Barrels sent from Crown Point for the use of the Colony; said sum to be improved for that purpose, and to account for in manner and for the use aforesaid. And he having already expended fifty-nine Pounds in said service, drew an order accordingly.

The Brigantine Minerva, an Armed Vessel in the service of this Colony, commanded by Captain Giles Hall, having been lately ordered by this Board on a cruise to the Northward, on an important enterprise, for the defence and safety of this Colony, and the hands on board having neglected and refused to obey said orders, said Captain Hall and Lieutenant Phillips, of said brig, being notified, were present to be inquired of in the premises; and being examined, &c., it appears that all the hands, or Soldiery and Marines on board, except about ten or twelve, being duly noticed by said orders, utterly declined and refused to obey the same, and perform said cruise, which, through their disobedience has wholly failed, &c.

It is thereupon considered and resolved by this Board, that all said hands, who were guilty of such disobedience, be forthwith dismissed and discharged from the service of this Colony on board said Brig, in manner and at the discretion of the Committee hereafter appointed; and that their wages, and title to receive any for former services on board the same, be suspended for further consideration.

And this Board do appoint the Honourable Deputy Governor Griswold, Samuel Huntington, and Benjamin Huntington, Esqs., a Committee, as soon as may be, to repair to Lyme or Saybrook, or where it shall be necessary, to make such further inquiry as they shall think proper into the matters aforesaid, and to dismiss and discharge said disorderly and disobedient hands, as aforesaid; and to direct, authorize, and empower said Capt. Hall to enlist and retain other men, so many as they shall think proper, instead of the men so discharged, for such term as shall, by the General Assembly, or the Governour and this Committee, be judged necessary, and until discharged or duly dismissed.

Moved by his Honour, That he expects an Engineer from General Washington, to view the circumstances of the Harbour, &c., at New-London and neighbouring places, and consider of the most proper places and manner of fortifying the same against our enemies, &c., according to Act of Assembly, and that some proper persons may be appointed to be with and assist him, &c.; and thereupon this Board do appoint Colonel Elderkin, and also Major Dorr, of Boston, now residing at Norwich, to attend and assist in said service, and make report.

His Honour also moved for advice about recommending Mr. Moses Cleveland to General Washington, for an officer, &c. And the matter is referred to his Honour's discretion. And the meeting dismissed.

Friday, November 3, 1775.

At a meeting of the Governour, &c., called specially on the receipt of a Letter and request from the Town and Committee of New-Haven, received the 2d inst., evening, per Mr. Babcock, requesting sundry things to be done, made and provided for their safety, occasioned by the alarming news of orders to destroy all the sea-port Towns, &c., Present, the same gentlemen as yesterday.

On consideration of the motion and request of the Town and Committee of New-Haven, requesting sundry things for their defence and safety, as per their Letter signed William Grenough, Chairman, received by hand of Mr. Babcock, and he being fully heard on the subject-matter therein contained, and the matters specially referred to him by said Town, this Board do Resolve and Order, That twenty men be enlisted by Captain Thompson, in addition to the thirty raised and continued there by order of the General Assembly at their last session, until the 1st of December next, and under the same regulations; and that the whole of said men be kept and employed, under the command of the said Captain Thompson, in building and erecting a proper Breastwork and Battery for defence and security against any hostile attack from any of the Ministerial Ships, &c., at a place called Black Rock, on the eastern shore of the harbour or channel leading up to said New-Haven, said works to be constructed under the directions of a Committee to be appointed for that purpose by said Town.

Voted and Resolved, also, That his Honour the Governour be desired to write to the honourable Committee of the City of New-York, requesting, for and in favour of the Town or Selectmen of New-Haven, for the use of said Town, the loan of eighteen pieces of Iron Cannon, of the size and dimensions of eighteen and twenty-four Pounders, or some of less size, viz: of twelve, if the others cannot be obtained, to be at the risk of this Colony, if lost or spoiled by inevitable providence, and without the fault of the concerned, otherwise at the risk of said Town; that is to say, if the same can be spared from New-York, consistent with their own safety.

Voted, also, That an order be given by his Honour, for the Selectmen of New-Haven to receive one hundred of the Colony Arms, made agreeable to the Act of Assembly, in the Counties of New-Haven or Litchfield, to be improved at present for the defence and safety of said Town, and returned or disposed, according to the order of said Assembly or this Council.

And as to the other matters requested by said Town, this Council are of opinion they ought to be referred to the honourable General Assembly of this Colony. Copy given.

Letters were now received by the Governour, containing accounts that the Pennites from about the West Branch of the Susquhannah, were about to come armed, (about five hundred,) to cut and drive off the Connecticut Settlers from Wyoming, &c. The matter discoursed, and considered as having a most dangerous tendency, &c., to break the union of the Colonies, &c., and probably the plan concerted by enemies with that view. And the Governour desired to write Congress, &c., about the matter, and endeavour to have the matter healed, and each side remain quiet in their own limits, &c., &c.

A Letter prepared and approved to the Committee at Hartford, appointed to take care of Prisoners, informing them of those coming from Chambly, &c., and advising them to distribute them in several Towns in Litchfield County, in Canaan, Salisbury, Sharon, &c., keeping families together, &c.

On motion by the Governour, at the request of Leonard Dassau, (who is waiting,) Agreed, That he may have liberty to purchase a vessel in this Colony, to transport a cargo of Lumber into the French West-Indies, for which he had liberty from the last General Assembly.

And sundry Letters prepared, &c., and this meeting was dismissed.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read November 13, 1775.]

Cambridge, November 2, 1775.

SIR: I could not suffer Mr. Randolph to quit this camp without bearing some testimony of my duty to the Congress, although his sudden departure (occasioned by the death of his worthy relative, whose loss, as a good citizen and valuable member of society, is much to be regretted) does not allow me time to be particular. The enclosed return shows at one view what reliance we have upon the officers of this Army, and how deficient we are like to be in subaltern officers. A few days more will enable me to inform the Congress what they have to expect from the soldiery, as I shall issue recruiting orders for this purpose so soon as the officers are appointed, which will be done this day, having sent for the General Officers to consult them in the choice. I must beg leave to recall the attention of the Congress to the appointment of a Brigadier-General, an officer as necessary to a Brigade as a Colonel is to a Regiment, and will be exceedingly wanted in the new arrangement. The Proclamations and Association, herewith enclosed, [folio 1246.] came to my hand on Monday last. I thought it my duty to send them to you. Nothing of moment has happened since my last.

With respectful compliments to the members of Congress, I have the honour to be, Sir, your most obedient and most humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The Honourable John Hancock, Esq.

COLONEL PARSONS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Roxbury Camp, October 23, 1775.

Pursuant to your Excellency's direction, I have directed the commanding officers of the Companies under my command to ascertain the number of officers and soldiers in their respective Companies, who are willing to extend the term of their enlistment to the first day of January next. By their returns I find there are two hundred and twenty non-commissioned officers and soldiers who are willing to serve till that time, on condition they can have a reasonable time granted them to go home, and prepare their winter clothing, without which it will be very difficult to detain many beyond their present engagement. I imagine the greater part of the Regiment will stay till that time, if at the expiration of their present enlistments there should be an apparent necessity for detaining them. Twenty-five of the commissioned officers are willing to remain in service till that time. From your most obedient humble servant,

SAMUEL H. PARSONS.

To His Excellency General Washington.

COLONEL STORRS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp at Cambridge, October 23, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: In compliance with your Excellency's request of the 20th of this instant, I have conferred with the several officers of this Regiment, laid your Excellency's letter before them for their consideration. They unanimously conclude to tarry, should the service require it, to the time mentioned by your Excellency. The officers absent are, Major Johnston, Captain Clark, Lieutenant Fitch, Lieutenant Roberson, and Lieutenant Waterman, with whose minds I am not acquainted.

I requested of the officers present to confer with their men, and return the names, to-day, of those who were willing to tarry until the first of January next; but they reported there was not any who would give in their names to tarry. Complained that in case they clothed themselves to tarry until that time, the cost would be the same as through the winter; that they were generally of the opinion, that were there now enlisting orders, and the promise of a furlough for a short time, that about two-thirds would enlist for the winter.

They say their men do not absolutely decline tarrying, agreeable to your Excellency's request, but are not willing to subscribe that. I think there is not much dependance on them after the term of their enlistment is expired. Believe (in case it is proper for me to offer my sentiments) that in case there were immediate orders for enlisting, that the bigger part of them would enlist for the winter, on condition they could have a short furlough, to go home and provide themselves clothing.

With due respect, from your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

EXPERIENCE STORRS,
Lieutenant-Colonel of the 34th Regiment.

To his Excellency George Washington, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief of the United Forces of the American Colonies.

COLONEL WEBB TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Camp on Winter-Hill, October 23, 1775.

SIR: According to your Excellency's desire, I have made inquiry among my officers, and find them in general willing to comply with your Excellency's request. The officers of the several Companies have not had time, as yet, to find out the disposition of their soldiers. I shall use my utmost influence to have your Excellency's request complied with, and as soon as I can possibly ascertain the precise number, will give your Excellency information.

I am your Excellency's most humble servant,
CHARLES WEBB.

To George Washington, Esq., Generalissimo of the Continental Army, Cambridge.

PROCEEDINGS OF A COUNCIL OF GENERAL OFFICERS.

At a Council of General Officers held at Head-Quarters, in Cambridge, November 2, 1775. Present: his Excellency General Washington; Major-Generals Ward, Lee, Putnam; Brigadier-Generals Thomas, Heath, Spencer, Sullivan, Greene, Gates.

The General acquainted the Council that it had been resolved, at a meeting held with a Committee from the Continental Congress and the Governours of the adjacent Colonies, that such Officers as have served in the present Army to approbation, and are willing to stay, be preferred. If there are more of those than are necessary for the new Army, the General to distinguish such as he deems best qualified. It was also at the aforesaid meeting further agreed, that it should be proposed to the Officers now serving in the Continental Army, that they signify which of them will continue to serve and defend their Country, and which of them retire; and that such Officers as propose to continue in the service, and are approved of by the General, proceed to enlist their men in the Continental service, upon the same pay and allowance of provision as is now given.

In consequence of these Resolutions, his Excellency signified his wishes that the General Officers composing this Council, as they are better acquainted with the characters and merits of the several Officers of the Army than he is, would aid him in the choice.

Whereupon, it was agreed that the following persons should be nominated for Colonels, to command the Regiments of the new Army.

- |                      |                         |                         |
|----------------------|-------------------------|-------------------------|
| 1. Thompson , | 10. Parsons ,    | 19. Webb ,       |
| 2. Reed ,     | 11. Hitchcock ,  | 20. Arnold ,     |
| 3. Learned ,  | 12. Little ,     | 21. Ward ,       |
| 4. Nixon ,    | 13. Reed ,       | 22. Wylllys ,    |
| 5. Stark ,    | 14. Glover ,     | 23. Bailey ,     |
| 6. Brewer ,   | 15. Paterson ,   | 24. Greaton ,    |
| 7. Prescott , | 16. Sargent ,    | 25. Bond ,       |
| 8. Poor ,     | 17. Huntington , | 26. Baldwin ,    |
| 9. Varnum ,   | 18. Phinney ,    | 27. Hutchinson . |

The Council then agreed with his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, in the nomination of the following under-named persons for Lieutenant-Colonels:

- |                         |                       |                      |
|-------------------------|-----------------------|----------------------|
| 1. Holden ,      | 10. Tyler ,    | 19. March ,   |
| 2. Hand ,        | 11. Cornwall , | 20. Enos ,    |
| 3. Gilden ,      | 12. Alden ,    | 21. Jacobs ,  |
| 4. Nixon ,       | 13. Shephard , | 22. Vose ,    |
| 5. Buckminster , | 14. Clap ,     | 23. Durkee ,  |
| 6. Brown ,       | 15. Johonnet , | 24. Henshaw , |
| 7. Putnam ,      | 16. Read ,     | 25. Tupper ,  |
| 8. McDuffy ,     | 17. Poor ,     | 26. Clark ,   |
| 9. Greene ,      | 18. Moulton ,  | 27. Hall .    |

The Council proceeded next to the nomination of the undernamed persons for Majors, viz:

- |                       |                      |                       |
|-----------------------|----------------------|-----------------------|
| 1. Hale ,      | 10. Sprout ,  | 19. Loring ,   |
| 2. McGaw ,     | 11. Collins , | 20. Bigelow ,  |
| 3. Cudworth ,  | 12. Putnam ,  | 21. Wesson ,   |
| 4. Wood ,      | 13. Smith ,   | 22. Jackson ,  |
| 5. Cilley ,    | 14. Lee ,     | 23. Meigs ,    |
| 6. Carary ,    | 15. Brooks ,  | 24. Coburn ,   |
| 7. Prentice ,  | 16. Austin ,  | 25. Humphrys , |
| 8. Angell ,    | 17. D. Wood , | 26. Knowlton , |
| 9. Sherburne , | 18. Brown ,   | 27. Hayton .   |

The Council then proceeded to place the Field-Officers in Corps, in the following manner:

- | Colonels.           | Lieutenant-Colonels. | Majors.            |
|---------------------|----------------------|--------------------|
| Thompson ,   | Hand ,        | Magaw .     |
| Read ,       | Gilman ,      | Hale .      |
| Learned ,    | Shephard ,    | Sprout .    |
| Nixon ,      | Nixon ,       | Coburn .    |
| Stark ,      | Poor ,        | Moore .     |
| Brewer ,     | Buckminster , | Cudworth .  |
| Prescott ,   | Moulton ,     | H. Wood .   |
| Poor ,       | McDuffy ,     | Cilley .    |
| Varnum ,     | Greene ,      | Carary .    |
| Parsons ,    | Tyler ,       | Prentice .  |
| Hitchcock ,  | Cornwall ,    | Angell .    |
| Little ,     | Henshaw ,     | Collins .   |
| Reed ,       | Clap ,        | Smith .     |
| Glover ,     | Johonnet ,    | Lee .       |
| Paterson ,   | Read ,        | Sherburne . |
| Sargent ,    | Enos ,        | Austin .    |
| Huntington , | Clark ,       | Humphrys .  |
| Phinney ,    | March ,       | D. Wood .   |
| Webb ,       | Hall ,        | Brooks .    |
| Arnold ,     | Durkee ,      | Knowlton .  |
| Ward ,       | Tupper ,      | Bigelow .   |
| Wylllys ,    | Putnam ,      | Meigs .     |
| Bailey ,     | Jacobs ,      | Hayden .    |
| Greaton ,    | Vose ,        | Loring .    |
| Bond ,       | Alden ,       | Jackson .   |
| Baldwin ,    | Brown ,       | Wesson .    |
| Hutchinson , | Holden ,      | Putnam .    |

The Council then resolved that the Brigadier-Generals of the Army do call together the Field-Officers in each Brigade now appointed, to serve under the new establishment, and they to select out of those Captains or Subalterns who have returned their names willing to continue in service, so many as can be well recommended; the others to be rejected. Attention to be paid to those who are absent upon furlough or command. The first of those to undergo the same scrutiny as those who give in their names. If there are any Officers that have not returned their names, but are now willing to serve, and can be well recommended, their names to be returned; also, the best Sergeants. A return of all the Officers, the Regiments to which they belong, and their former rank, to be made to the Commander-in-Chief, that they may be formed into Regiments.

It appearing, from information, that several of the inhabitants of the Town of Boston are desirous of leaving that place, and had obtained passes for that purpose, arising, perhaps, from a proclamation of General Howe's, which seems to have a tendency to compel the Town's people to take up arms to aid the Ministerial Troops in subverting the rights and liberties of America; and it also appearing, from information, that the small-pox is at this time in many parts of the Town of Boston, his Excellency desired to know whether, under these circumstances, it is prudent to suffer any of the inhabitants of the said Town to be transported to Chelsea, by way of Winnisimit Ferry.

As the situation of American affairs with respect to Great Britain may be such as to render it indispensably necessary to attempt to destroy the Ministerial Troops in the Town of Boston, before they can be re-enforced in the spring, even if it should be by bombarding and firing the Town, is it advisable to erect any kind of works upon Dorchester Point before frost sets in, and what kind?

What proportion of pay are persons of non-age and apprentices to draw?

In our present state of powder, had not our morning gun better be discontinued?

What is to be done with Mrs. Inman, if she comes out?

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Camp at Cambridge, November 2, 1775.

SIR: I have been honoured with your favour of the 30th ultimo, by Mr. Trumbull. I sincerely wish this camp could furnish a good Engineer. The Commissary-General can inform you how exceedingly deficient the Army is of gentlemen skilled in that branch of business, and that most of the works which have been thrown up for the defence of our several encampments have been planned by a few of the principal officers of this Army, assisted by Mr. Knox, a gentleman of Worcester. Could I afford you the desired assistance in this way, I would do it with pleasure.

Herewith you will receive a copy of the proceedings held with the Committee of Congress from Philadelphia; it ought to have been sent sooner, but I am at present without a Secretary, Colonel Reed having a call at home, left this on Sunday last. I heartily congratulate you on the recovery of the Commissary-General, whose return as soon as he can travel with safety is much wished for.

I am, with the greatest esteem and regard, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Trumbull, Connecticut.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GOVERNOUR COOKE.

Camp at Cambridge, November 2, 1775.

SIR: I have your favour of the 28th ultimo before me. Immediately upon the receipt of it I communicated the contents to the Deputy Commissary, (Mr. Trumbull being sick in Connecticut.) as a business appertaining to his department; but, as deputy, he wishes for the direction of his principal, to whom I could wish you to write, as he is at Lebanon, and not expected back under three weeks. His intention was, I know, to make both beef and pork bring itself to this place; but as that cannot be in the case you mention, there is no doubt of his readiness to take the beef, if delivered here in barrels, at the price other beef in barrels stands him in here; perhaps (for an encouragement) more, to get it out of the reach of the enemy.

I thank you for your order in favour of Mr. Bowen, who, I am informed, after some trouble, got the cannon wanted somewhat more convenient. Herewith you will receive a copy of the proceedings of the conference held at this place with the Committee of Congress. Nothing new since my last.

With much esteem and respect, I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Governour Cooke, Rhode-Island.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY.

Cambridge, November 2, 1775.

SIR: I promised the gentlemen who did me the honour to call upon me yesterday, by order of your House, that I would inquire of the Quartermaster-General, and let them know to-day, what quantity of wood and hay would be necessary to supply the Army through the winter. I accordingly did so, and desired General Gates this morning to inform you that it was his (the Quartermaster's) opinion it would require ten thousand cords of the first, and two hundred tons of the latter, to answer our demands; but the hurry in which we have been all day engaged caused him to forget it, till a fresh complaint brought it again to remembrance. When the Committee were here yesterday, I told them I did not believe that we had then more than four days' stock of wood beforehand. I little thought that we had scarce four hours', and that different Regiments were upon the point of cutting each others' throats for a few standing locusts near their encampments, to dress their victuals with. This, however, is the fact; and unless some expedient is adopted by your honourable body to draw more teams into the service, or the Quartermaster-General empowered to impress them, this Army, if there comes a spell of rain or cold weather, must inevitably disperse; the consequence of which needs no animadversion of mine.

It has been matter of great grief to me to see so many valuable plantations of trees destroyed. I endeavoured (whilst there appeared a possibility of restraining it) to prevent the practice, but it is out of my power to do it. From fences to forest trees, and from forest trees to fruit trees, is a natural advance to houses, which must next follow. This is not all; the distress of the soldiers in the article of wood will, I fear, have an unhappy influence upon their enlisting again. In short, Sir, if I did not apprehend every evil that can result from the want of these two capital articles, wood especially, I should not be so importunate; my anxiety on this head must plead my excuse. At the same time, I assure you that, with great respect and esteem, I am, Sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

The Hon. James Warren, Esq., Speaker, &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOSEPH TRUMBULL.

Camp at Cambridge, November 2, 1775.

DEAR SIR: The news of your recovery has given your friends a great deal of joy. We had little hopes of seeing you again, from some late accounts of your health. I have given Captain Wadsworth a draft on the Treasury for one hundred and twenty thousand Dollars, agreeable to your request, although the state of our cash is by no means able to bear such a pull upon it. Besides this, Mr. Avery, on the 20th instant, got a warrant for twenty thousand, and is now applying for ten thousand more. As soon as you can travel with safety (and not before) I should be glad to see you at this camp; and am, with sincere regard, dear Sir, your most obedient servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Joseph Trumbull, Esq., Commissary-General of Provisions.

CAPTAIN MARTINDALE TO COLONEL REED.

Plymouth, November 2, 1775.

SIR: This will be handed you by Lieutenant Turner, informing you that I have received the carriages and swivels, &c., for the brig, and am making all possible despatch to get to sea; but as the schooner is not yet sailed, and the want of men for the brig, I cannot make the proficiency should be glad to, but imagine I shall be ready to sail this day week, at farthest, if I am supplied with men, &c. I have sent the formers for the cartridges, and want two-thirds of the swivel cartridges of the smallest size. Should be glad to have all the people supplied with their small-arm cartridges there, and likewise the match rope. In regard to the vessel, she is very suitable for the business, and think that a hundred, or eighty men at least, is no more than a common complement, as I flatter myself I shall be able to give a good account of her. I shall be obliged to get a Second Lieutenant at the camps, as Captain Warner refuses to go in that station. The master is desirous to know the terms of wages he is to have. I should be glad to have a drum and fife, as the other privateers are equipped with them. Have nothing further to communicate at present.

Remain, in the interim, your most humble servant,

SION MARTINDALE.

To Colonel Reed, at Head-Quarters.

CAPTAIN BROUGHTON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

White-Head, 5 leagues west of Canso, in Nova-Scotia, }
November 2, 1775. }

SIR: By unfavourable winds and weather, we have been able to make but little head since our last. The 31st of October, some way off this harbour, we saw a vessel standing to the northward, which Captain Selman and I gave chase to. The wind springing up suddenly to a heavy gale, she bore away for this harbour for safety. We pursued her directly in, and found her to be a sloop belonging to Enoch Rust, of Boston, who last spring had the sloop cleared out from Halifax, with provisions, for Quebeck. The sloop has since taken a cargo of provisions from Louisburgh for the West-Indies, contrary, as we apprehend, to the Association of the United American Colonies. The owner, now at Canso, we have reason to believe is not a favourer of our cause, as the Captain (James Hawkins) told us he was lately undetermined whether he should go to Boston this fall or not. The smallest intention of going to that den of mischievous violators of the rights of humanity must carry in the bosom of it, as we conceive, the idea of friendship to their infernal intentions. We, upon the whole, conceive ourselves bound, in obedience to your Excellency's instructions, to send the vessel to a friendly port in New-England. Upon her arrival your Excellency will have the vessel's papers laid before you, and will do respecting vessel and cargo as you may please. The master will be sent to New-England the first opportunity after this.

Captain Hawkins, about the middle of September, saw a ship and a brigantine going up the River St. Lawrence, but did not speak with either. The master informs that there was no vessel of force at Quebeck the beginning of September, and that he knows of none going up since. He likewise says that a large brigantine was lately (and he believes is not yet sailed) loading with coal at Spanish River, on the Island of Louisburgh, for Boston; that three or four score Boston men have been digging coal there for the Ministerial Army for the season. We shall hoist sail directly, the wind breezing rather favourably, and pursue our course.

From your most obedient and very humble servant,
NICHOLSON BROUGHTON.

To his Excellency General Washington.

ADDRESS OF THE NOBLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF PERTH.

Address of the Noblemen, Justices of the Peace, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Perth, presented to His Majesty by the Hon. Colonel James Murray, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The Address of the Noblemen, Justices of the Peace, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of PERTH.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Noblemen, Justices of the Peace, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Perth, beg leave, with all humility, to express to your Majesty the deep and unfeigned sorrow with which we have beheld sedition in America artfully fomented by designing and wicked men there, until it has burst forth into open rebellion.

Having reason to apprehend that our deluded fellow-subjects in America have been misled into a belief that their resistance to the supreme authority of the Parliament, and the disobedience of the laws, are agreeable to the sentiments of many of your Majesty's subjects in Great Britain, we think it our indispensable duty to make this publick declaration, that we detest and abhor such practices and such principles, so repugnant to the spirit of our excellent Constitution, and destructive of true liberty, which can only subsist in conformity to and under the protection of the laws; we therefore, upon this serious and important occasion, respectfully approach your Majesty's throne with the warmest and most solemn assurances that we will, in our respective stations, exert every means in our power to strengthen the hands of your Majesty's Government.

May your Majesty, whose arms have heretofore been crowned with victory, still, by the blessing of the Almighty, triumph over all your enemies. May our fellow-subjects in America soon return to a proper sense of their duty. May your Majesty long reign over a free, grateful, and united people; and may the British Dominions be transmitted to your Majesty's latest posterity, entire and undivided.

At Perth, this 3d day of November, 1775. Signed in the presence and by the appointment of the meeting.

KINNOULL, Præses.

ADDRESS OF THE FREEHOLDERS, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF KINROSS.

Address of the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Kinross, presented to His Majesty by Mr. Adams.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Kinross, beg leave to approach your royal person, in order to express our grateful sense of the happiness which we enjoy under the Government of a Prince whose administration hath been uniformly distinguished by a sacred regard to the Constitution and to the welfare of his people.

Conscious of the many blessings which every part of the British Empire derives from your Majesty's mild and equitable Government, it is with deep concern that we have observed the attempts of domestic faction to disturb the tranquillity of your reign; and with astonishment, that we now behold the rebellious spirit which hath excited the deluded people of America to take arms in opposition to your Majesty's just authority and the supreme jurisdiction of Parliament.

At such a juncture, we should deem ourselves inexcusable, if we did not join our voice to that of our loyal fellow-subjects, in declaring our detestation of those seditious principles which have alienated the Colonies from their duty, and in professing our fixed purpose of supporting your Majesty's Government and supremacy of Parliament to the utmost of our power.

May your Majesty's reign, over a happy and grateful people, be long and glorious.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, at Kinross, the 3d day of November, 1775.

MICHAEL MALCOLM, Præses.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN OF COLCHESTER.

Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Deputy Recorder, Aldermen, Assistants, Common Council, Free Burgesses, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Inhabitants of the Town of Colchester, in the County of Essex, presented to His Majesty by Charles Gray and Isaac Martin Rebow, Esqrs., their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, Deputy Recorder, Aldermen, Assistants, Common Council, Free Burgesses, Gentlemen, Clergy, and Inhabitants of the Town of Colchester, in the County of Essex, beg leave to address your Majesty, on occasion of the unhappy disturbances in your Majesty's Colonies, which have at length broke out into actual and open rebellion.

While we sincerely lament the fatal effects of this unnatural contest, we do with all humility assure your Majesty, that we are firmly resolved, on every occasion, to pay a due obedience to the legislative authority, and to support and defend your Majesty's person and Government to the utmost of our power.

May the Divine Providence bless your Majesty's Councils with speedy success in defeating the designs of all the enemies of their Country, and in restoring peace and good order in every part of your Majesty's Dominions.

AFFIDAVIT OF MOSES COTTER.

SOUTH-CAROLINA, Ninety-Six District:

Personally appeared before me, Jason Mayson, one of His Majesty's Justices of the Peace for the District aforesaid, Moses Cotter, of the Congarees, wagoner, who, being duly sworn on the Holy Evangelist of Almighty God, makes oath and says, that on Tuesday morning last, at about nine o'clock, he left the Congarees, with his wagon, containing the ammunition that was delivered him in Charlestown by the honourable the Council of Safety, to carry to Keowee, under an escort of Colonel Thompson's Rangers, consisting of Lieutenant-Colonel Charleton and Mr. Uriah Goodwin, a Cadet, two Sergeants, and eighteen privates, and continued on their journey there, without the least molestation or interruption, until about noon this day, when the deponent perceiving some men on horseback, ahead of the wagon, come towards him; a few minutes after, two of Patrick Cunningham's men coming up to the deponent, and asking him what he had in his wagon, the deponent answered, rum. Then up came a large body of armed men, in number, I suppose, at least one hundred and fifty, headed by Patrick Cunningham and Jacob Bowman. Cunningham ordered his men to halt, and then came up to the deponent and said, "I order you to stop your wagon, in His Majesty's name, as I understand you have ammunition for the Indians to kill us, and I am come on purpose to take it in His Majesty's name." He then ordered the deponent to take off his wagon cloth, which he refused; upon which, Cunningham mounted the wagon himself, loosed the strings of the cloth, and took up a keg of the powder; "there," said he, "is what we are in search of." I immediately took the keg from him, and laid it in the wagon. Cunningham said, "it is in vain for you to attempt to hinder us from taking this ammunition, as you have no arms." Then he handed out every keg to his men, who were alongside the wagon, and prepared with bags to receive it; after they finished with the powder, he, with Messrs. Griffin and Owen, and several others, took out the lead, which they unfolded, cut into small pieces with their tomahawks, and distributed among the men.* When the Rangers were at some little distance behind the wagon, and were riding up pretty fast, Cunningham's party said, "there comes the liberty caps; damn their liberty caps, we will soon blow them to hell," and such like scurrilous language. Cunningham's men, as soon as Lieutenant Charleton came up with his guard, retreated behind trees on the road side, and called out to him to stop, and not to advance one step further, otherwise they would blow out his brains; at the same time, a gun was fired by one of their men, but did no damage. Lieutenant Charleton, with his men, were soon surrounded by the opposite party, with their rifles presented, who said, "don't move a step; deliver up your arms, otherwise we will immediately fire upon you." Lieutenant Charleton continued moving on, when Cunningham's men marched up to him, with their rifles presented at him, and repeated, "deliver up your arms, without moving one step further, or you are a dead man." They then took his arms, together with his men's; afterwards they tied Lieutenant Charleton, Mr. Goodwin, and William Witherford, a private, by their arms.

Lieutenant Charleton seemed very much displeased at their behaviour, and said he would rather have been shot than used in such a manner, had he expected it; that he did not value his own life; thought he had acted prudent by not ordering his men to fire on them, as it would be throwing away their lives without answering any good purpose, especially as their party were so numerous; that he was sorry to see them behave in such a base manner, and that he would very willingly turn out his party against twice the number of theirs, and give them battle. Cunningham and Bowman, some little time after, asked Lieutenant Charleton whether, if they were to unloose him, he would be upon his honour not to go off; to which he replied, "I scorn to run, and all your force cannot make me." They then marched off with the ammunition and the prisoners, as they called them, and left the deponent, desiring him to return to the Congarees; but as soon as they were out of sight, he took a horse from out the wagon and came to Ninety-Six, to inform me of what had happened, and where he arrived this night, about eight o'clock. This unfortunate accident, of taking the ammunition, happened eighteen miles below Ninety-Six.

*The Cherokee Indians, being deprived of their trade through the Southern Provinces, were in very bad humour, and we were very apprehensive of an Indian war; it was therefore proper they should be supplied with powder and ball for the hunting season, to enable them to procure skins for their support. The Council of Safety, therefore, to keep them in good temper, sent one thousand weight of powder, and lead in proportion, to be forwarded to them under an escort of Rangers; but Patrick Cunningham and Jacob Bowman, of Ninety-Six, at the head of a party of Tories, intercepted and took away the ammunition.—Moultrie.

MOSES COTTER.

Sworn before me, this 3d of November, 1775.

JASON MAYSON, J. P.

ANNE ARUNDEL COUNTY (MARYLAND) COMMITTEE.

In Committee, Annapolis, November 3, 1775.

Ordered, That the persons respectively appointed to carry the Association to the inhabitants of their respective Hundreds in Anne Arundel County, return the same, together with a list of the Non-Associators, agreeable to the Resolves of the late Convention. For St. Anne's and St. Margaret's Westminster Parishes, at Mr. John Ball's, in Annapolis, on Wednesday, the 15th inst.; for Queen Caroline Parish, at Mr. William Spurrier's, on Friday, the 17th instant; and for St. James's and Allhallows, at Mr. Jonathan Rawlings's, on Tuesday, the 21st instant.

The Captains of the Militia of this County, and also those persons who were appointed to enroll Minute-Men, are requested to meet the Committees of their respective Parishes at the above times and places.

By order:

G. DUVALL, Clerk.

YORK COUNTY (PENNSYLVANIA) COMMITTEE.

On the 3d of November, 1775, the Returns of twenty-six Townships were received at York, whereby the following gentlemen appear to be chosen as a Committee for York County, to continue for the space of one year, unless they shall think it expedient to dissolve themselves sooner, viz:

Michael Swoope,	Francis Crezart,	William Shakly,
James Smith,	George Brenkerhooff,	Frederick Gilwix,
Thomas Hartly,	John Semple,	John Hinkel,
John Hay,	Robert McPherson,	John Hoover,
Charles Lukens,	Samuel Edie,	Patrick McSherry,
David Grier,	William McClellan,	James Leeper,
Joseph Donaldson,	Thomas Douglass,	Joseph Read,
George Irwin,	John Agnew,	Patrick Scott,
John Kean,	David Kennedy,	James Egar,
William Lease,	George Clingen,	Benjamin Savagr,
William Scott,	George Kerr,	Andrew Thompson,
George Eichelberger,	Abraham Banta,	Peter Baker,
Philip Albright,	John Mickle, Jun.,	Jacob Kasel,
Michael Hahn,	Sam'l McConaughy,	William Mitchell,
David Candler,	David McConaughy,	John Williams,
Baltzar Spangler,	John Blackburn,	Lewis Williams,
John Huston,	William Walker,	William Rankin,
Thomas Armor,	Richard McAlister,	James Nailor,
John Schultz,	Christian Graff,	Baltzar Kuertzer,
Christopher Slagle,	Jacob Will,	Henry Mathias,
Andrew Rutter,	Henry Slagle,	George Slough,
Peter Wolfe,	John Hamilton,	Daniel Messerle,
Philip Jacob King,	John Mintoeth,	John Nesbit,
Zachariah Shugart,	Thomas Lilly,	William Wakely,
John Herbach,	Richard Parsel,	John Chamberlin,
William Johnston,	Charles Gilwix,	Andrew Thompson,
John Spangler,	John McClure,	Alexander Sanderson.
James Dixon,

On the same day, the Committee met at the Court-House in York, when James Smith was chosen President, and Thomas Hartly Vice-President of the Committee.

The following gentlemen were unanimously elected as a Committee of Correspondence for York County, viz: James Smith, Michael Swoope, Thomas Hartly, Joseph Donaldson, George Eichelberger, Charles Lukens, David Grier, George Irwin, Thomas Armor, William Lease, George Clingen, John Nesbit, James Leeper, Francis Crezart, Peter Wolfe, and David McConaughy; and five or more of them are empowered to act.

The Committee-Men in York Town, or any two or more of them, were appointed to carry into execution the orders of the Committee of Safety, relating to the person of Dr. John Kearsley, now confined in the Jail of this County, and were fully empowered to act in this matter.

The Committee adjourned to the first Thursday in December next, to meet at the Court-House in York.

THOMAS ARMOR, Clerk.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Thursday, November 3, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: Henry Remsen, Deputy Chairman.

William Denning,	L. Pintard,	E. Bancker,
William Seaton,	J. Inlay,	A. Brinckerhoff,
Captain Pell,	A. Duryee,	J. Norwood,
Joseph Bull,	Oliver Templeton,	N. Hoffman,
J. Broome,	Anthony Bleeker,	D. Phenix,
S. Johnson,	J. Brower,	R. Sharpe,
L. Burling,	P. Dennis,	H. Mulligan,
J. Totten,	Colonel Hyer,	C. Sands,
William Walton,	H. Roome,	P. T. Curteneus,
P. Goclet,	G. Abeel,	F. Bassett,
A. Breasted,	J. Stoutenbergh,	Nicholas Roosevelt,
B. Helme,	Colonel Lasher,	Eleazer Miller,
J. Ray, Jun.,	J. Ramsey,	T. Anthony,
G. Duyckinck,	P. Byvanck,	G. W. Ludlow,
Robert Ray,	J. Morton,	Abm W. De Peyster,
Cornelius Clopper,	F. Jay,	W. W. Ludlow,
L. Lispenard,	G. Janeway,	J. Berrian.

Whereas the Provincial Congress, in order that the duration of their power might be limited to a short period, did, by their Resolve, dated the 10th day of October last, and inserted in the publick Newspapers, signify to their constituents their determination to dissolve themselves on Tuesday, the 14th instant; and whereas the Congress, at the same time, did recommend to the good people of this Colony the choice of Deputies to represent them in a future Provincial Congress, to exist until the second Tuesday in May next, and the election to be held under the inspection of the several County Committees: In pursuance of the aforesaid Resolve and recommendation, the General Committee have thought it prudent to nominate twenty-one persons, to be proposed to the publick for their approbation, viz: Peter V. B. Livingston, Isaac Low, Alexander McDougall, Joseph Hallett, Abraham Walton, Abraham Brasher, Isaac Roosevelt, James Beekman, Benjamin Kissam, John M. Scott, John Van Cortlandt, Jacobus Van Zandt, John Marston, Isaac Sears, John Ray, Theodorus Van Wyck, Captain Anthony Rutgers, John Inlay, Gabriel H. Ludlow, Benjamin Helme, Comfort Sands.

The Committee, therefore, do hereby request the Free-men, Freeholders, and all Tenants possessed of lands or tenements of the value of eighty Pounds, within this City and County, to attend at the City Hall on Tuesday, the 7th instant, at ten o'clock in the forenoon, to declare for the abovenamed gentlemen, or for any others they may please to elect in their stead.

JOHN BROOME TO A COMMITTEE OF THE CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

New-York, November 3, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I duly received your favour of the 18th ultimo, enclosing a resolution of the Continental Congress for ascertaining the damages sustained by the inhabitants of America, from the Ministerial Troops and Navy, since March last.

I have already taken the necessary steps towards carrying this Resolve into execution, as far forth as it respects this Province, and shall be careful to transmit you the vouchers as soon as they come to hand.

You may always rely upon my best services in the cause of liberty and my Country, in every department wherein I think myself competent.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

JOHN BROOME.

To Silas Deane, John Adams, and George Wythe, Esq's.

JAMES LIVINGSTON TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

La Tours, November 3, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have the pleasure to send you, prisoner, the Captain of La Tours, a notorious villain. After having sworn two or three times faithfully to assist our cause to the utmost of his power, hath forsworn himself, and joined the Regulars with his Company; hanging is too good for the rascal; hope you'll secure him in irons immediately on his arrival. I am just setting out for Sorel; make no doubt we shall proceed with more caution than the unhappy Colonel Allen, who, I understand, is badly treated. I just learn the vessels are gone from Sorel; suppose they will go to Quebeck, if Colonel Arnold has not already taken it. Their fortifying there may be of great detriment; however, Montreal must undoubtedly yield to our arms. I sent off your two Indians to Colonel Arnold the day before yesterday—one of them appeared to be very lame—and advised them to take a canoe at Sorel. I was under the necessity of giving them a half johannes to defray their expenses, they having declared you gave them only six dollars. If you write soon, beg you will send your letters via Longeuil. You may depend upon it, we shall make the utmost expedition to join Warner's party, where we will wait your further orders.

I am yours, with esteem,

JAMES LIVINGSTON.

To Brigadier-General Montgomery.

EXTRACT FROM A LETTER DATED LA PRAIRIE, NOVEMBER 3, 1775.

Blessed be God, our arms are at length crowned with signal success. Yesterday evening the fortress of St. John's surrendered to our Army, and this morning our people take possession. Our Army is scattered over the whole country—a small garrison at Chambly; Colonel Easton and Major Brown, with about three hundred Provincials, with Colonel James Livingston, and five or six hundred of his Canadians are drawn down at the mouth of the River Sorel, opposing one hundred and twenty Regulars and five hundred Canadians, who are intrenching there—at Longeuil (three leagues east of La Prairie, and two miles from Montreal, being nearly opposite) is Colonel Warner, with about three hundred of the Second Battalion and Green Mountain Boys; and I am posted at La Prairie, with one hundred men of our Regiment. I am three leagues from Montreal, which lies full in view, upon the bank of St. Lawrence, northwest from here. There are no troops to the westward of this post. Caughnawaga lies near three leagues west of this place, where there are about three hundred fighting men, and all in our interest; that is, (in the Indian style,) strictly neutral.

There have been several attacks made from the enemy, in their boats, on Colonel Warner's Regiment—a very serious one last Monday, in which General Carleton, with St. Luke La Corne and five or six hundred men, (mostly Canadians,) and one hundred Indians, attacked our people with great resolution, but were at length repulsed, with the loss of fifty of their men killed and wounded, among whom were five Indians slain. We took three Canadians and two Indians prisoners; not one man on our side so much as wounded. As the whole Army are now coming down, I expect Mr. Carleton will suspend his operations on this side the water. He will have his hands full, I believe, in defending his own shores; indeed, it is expected by many, that as soon as the surrender of St. John's is known among them, all opposition will vanish. However, Carleton is an intrepid old fellow, and may resist to the last; he has an armed brig and one or two small vessels riding near the Town, and as many more at the mouth of Sorel. The merchants' vessels, with peltry, are near the Town.

The Canadians, in general, on this side St. Lawrence, are very friendly to us; almost unanimously so along the River Sorel; where they are actually embodied, and in arms, altogether to the number of more than one thousand. About this place they are not quite so active; though I think they will now be stirring, as they seem to be very anxious about the reduction of St. John's, and could not think the Bostonians, as they call our troops, were really in earnest, until they saw St. John's surrender. During the whole siege of St. John's, our Army had but nine men killed and four or five wounded, I think; their preservation has been almost miraculous. More hospitable people I never saw; you cannot enter into a peasant's house, at any time of day, but they immediately set a loaf of bread and a pan of milk before you. The whole country, as far as the eye can reach, is one entire low marshy plain, and covered with water after every rain; they are forced to plough their land in high ridges, to keep the grain from being flooded. They raise no winter wheat at all, or Indian corn; their gardens and vegetables are excellent, and their pasture most luxuriant.

A gentleman just arrived from Head-Quarters, at Cambridge, informs that, just as he came away, an express to General Washington arrived there from Colonel Arnold, with advice that he was safe arrived in Canada, and met with a cordial reception from the Canadians.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER FROM AN OFFICER OF THE NEW-YORK FORCES, DATED AT ST. JOHN'S, NOV. 3, 1775.

I have the pleasure to inform you that I had the honour of marching into and taking possession of this fortress, at the head of my Company, and about two hundred men from the different corps of which our Army is composed, about nine o'clock this morning; when the garrison, consisting of about six hundred men, marched out and grounded their arms on the plains, to the westward of the fort, (agreeable to the terms of the enclosed capitulation,) and were immediately embarked in batteaus for Captain Mead's encampment, and from thence to be sent, under guard, as speedily as possible, for Ticonderoga, Connecticut, or any other place which the Continental Congress may direct. I most sincerely congratulate you on this most fortunate event; which, in my opinion, will be a most fatal stab to the hellish machinations of the foes of freedom, as it will facilitate the reduction of Canada, and secure the Canadians in our favour. We have taken in the fort a considerable quantity of military stores; among which are seventeen pieces of excellent brass artillery, two of them twenty-four pounders, the rest of them field-pieces, two royal howitzers, several mortars, cohorns, and a considerable number of iron cannon. There were in the garrison about five hundred regular troops; the rest were composed of Canadian volunteers, among whom are many of their noblesse; who, I believe, are (from appearance) on the stool of repentance. And as you may be fond of knowing how we have proceeded, in carrying on the siege of this place since my last, I will give you a detail of the particular operations since that period.

On Saturday, the 28th ultimo, the main body of the Army decamped from the south, and marched to the north side of the fort, under the command of General Wooster. We were joined in the evening by General Montgomery, and the same night we began to throw up a breastwork, (on an eminence which entirely commanded the enemy's works,) in order to erect a battery of cannon and mortars; this battery they kept continually pelting at with grape-shot and shells, but without doing us the least injury, until Wednesday morning, when we opened our battery, consisting of three twelve and one nine-pounders, three mortars, and as many cohorns, with which we kept an almost incessant blaze on them great part of the day, and likewise from our battery on the east side of the river, which the enemy returned with the greatest spirit. Late in the afternoon, I received a message from General Montgomery, ordering me to cease firing till further orders; these orders were extremely disagreeable to me, when I saw some of my men bleeding before my eyes, and dying with the wounds which they had received. On our ceasing to fire, the General ordered a parley to be beat, and sent in an officer to demand a surrender of the fort. Two officers soon after returned with him, and were led blindfold through the camp to the General's tent, where a pretty long conference was held, and they promised the General an answer from the commanding officer next morning; which promise was complied with. The answer imported, that if they should receive no relief within four days, he would then send in some proposals. The General replied, that he must have an explicit answer next morning, and the garrison must remain prisoners of war, at all events; and that if they had any intention to renew hostilities, they need only signify it by firing a gun, as a signal. This, though very unpalatable, they were at length obliged to digest, as you see by the capitulation.

You will readily excuse the incorrectness of this scroll, when I inform you it is now past one o'clock in the morning, having had no time to write before, as I have been all day at the fort, examining the stores, and we are to begin our march for Montreal this morning, and my fingers and senses are so benumbed with cold, that I can scarcely write at all, owing to a northeasterly wind and plenty of snow, which is now falling in abundance; yet, notwithstanding, I am not so senseless or ungrateful as to forget my friend.

I am yours, &c., &c.

P. S. My little Company has been rather unfortunate, as I have had five killed—four by the enemy, and one by accident—six wounded, one died by sickness; which is as great a loss as has been sustained by the whole Army, except in the first skirmish with the Indians, &c.; but this is what we must naturally expect, as the post of honour ever is the post of danger.

EXTRACT OF ANOTHER LETTER FROM FORT ST. JOHN'S, DATED NOVEMBER 3, 1775.

The 28th ultimo the remainder of our Army on the southwest side of the fort, of which our Regiment composed a part, marched round St. John's, to the north side of it, and encamped there with the main body.

October 29th. I went, in the evening, with two hundred men, and completed a battery within two hundred and fifty yards of the fort; the fort kept a continual fire upon us all night.

October 30th. Four guns and six mortars were mounted on the battery.

October 31st. The Army busily employed in preparing for a cannonade and an assault, if necessary. This day we received news that seven hundred of our men, near Longueuil, about eighteen miles from hence, had repulsed Governor Carleton, who intended to raise the siege of St. John's, with eight hundred men. Our Green Mountain Boys did this business. The Governor had twenty-five men killed and fifty wounded, besides several taken prisoners; among whom are two Indians. Carleton retreated to Montreal.

November 1st. Our gun and mortar battery on this side, and the four-gun battery on the east side, kept an incessant fire all day on the garrison, and the garrison kept up a very brisk fire. In the evening General Montgomery sent a flag into the fort, with a letter to Major Preston, by one of the prisoners taken at Longueuil, informing him of Carleton's defeat, and that he had now no longer any reason to flatter himself with relief from that quarter; and that, therefore, to prevent the further effusion of blood, which a fruitless and obstinate defence would cause, he recommended to him a surrender of the fort. Major Preston, in return to General Montgomery's letter, sent Captain Stewart, of the Twenty-Sixth, with a drum into our camp; that the General should have a full answer to his letter in the morning; that, in the mean time, hostilities should cease on both sides.

November 2d. Captain Stewart and Captain Williams, of the train, came, about eight o'clock in the morning, with a flag into our camp with an answer from Major Preston to General Montgomery's letter of yesterday, requesting of the General to wait four days, to see whether no relief could come to the garrison in that time; if not, that then they would make proposals for a surrender. The General returned an answer that, from the advanced season of the year, he could not give the garrison the time it requested, and that they must immediately surrender prisoners of war; otherwise, that if any fatal consequences should ensue from their needless defence in the weak state they were in, they must charge themselves with it.

The General also referred them, for the truth of Carleton's defeat, to another prisoner on board of our sloop, whom they might have access to to examine; and that when they chose to renew hostilities, they should give a signal, by firing a cannon without ball. In the evening the above gentlemen returned into our camp from the fort, with articles of capitulation, some of which were agreed to by us, others rejected; which, as amended, were sent back to the fort, and agreed to—the sum of which were, that the garrison should march out of the fort to-morrow morning, with the honours of war, and then lay down their arms, be prisoners of war, and be sent to Connecticut. The articles of capitulation will be published by authority; to which I must refer you. A great quantity of military stores are taken, the detail of which is not yet ascertained; about six hundred men made prisoners. This day, detachments from every Regiment in our Army took possession of the fort, and the prisoners are embarked for the place of their destination.

JOHN BROWN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Providence, November 3, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I having a vessel arrived at Norwich, from Surinam, which having brought a small quantity of powder, viz: forty-four casks, containing a half hundred each, I thought it proper to acquaint you thereof; but I am at a loss to determine which may be best for the general cause, for it to go to the camp, or to be sold out here, so that people in general may be better qualified to defend the sea coast. Our General Assembly is now sitting, and I expect will order every Town in this Colony, adjoining on the sea, bay, or river, to equip themselves immediately, with two field-pieces to each Town, to be mounted on field-carriages, and an Artillery Company to be formed in each, to hold themselves ready at a moment's notice. Five hundred men are already ordered to be raised, which are to be stationed on the Islands of Rhode-Island, Conanicut, Prudence, &c. I gave my Captain orders to purchase all the powder he possibly could, but no more was to be had on any terms; and, indeed, could I sell this for six Shillings, sterling money, per pound, it would not equal, as to profit to me, the article he would have brought had he not got the powder. If it arrives here safe, (being landed on the back of Long-Island), and you think it best for the chief of it to go to the camp, I will spare fifteen or sixteen hundred weight of it to your order. I would also acquaint you that the owners of the furnace Hope, in Scituate, are about to put said furnace in blast, as soon as may be, to make pig iron, this article being now in demand; and as their making up what stock they now have will put it out of their power to put said furnace in blast again towards next fall, and as the metal made in said furnace is of the very best kind for making cannon, of which General Greene can fully acquaint you, and as the Continent will doubtless be in want of cannon, &c., in the spring, I therefore, in behalf of the persons concerned in said furnace, give you this notice, that in case you may please to order any quantity of cannon and other warlike stores made, that the stock now provided for said furnace (which suppose may make from one hundred and fifty to two hundred ton weight of iron) may be made into such cannon, &c., as you may see fit to order. Your answer, as soon as convenient, will oblige, dear Sir, your obedient humble servant,

JOHN BROWN.

P. S. The owners are confident that they can make as large cannon as eighteen pounders, and they expect, ere the blast is finished, that they can make twenty-four pounders.

November 4.—Since the above, our General Assembly has applied for the refusal of the powder; and if they give the price, (which will make it as good to me as though the money had been laid out in . . . .) viz: six Shillings per pound, must give them the preference.

EPHRAIM BOWEN TO GENERAL GATES.

Plymouth, November 3, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: When I wrote you last, I expected that Captain Coit would have sailed yesterday morning, with Captain Manly, of the Lee, but the wind coming ahead has detained him; he will, however, sail the first wind that can get him out of the harbour. Captain Martindale's vessel will sail as soon as possible, as he is fitting with all speed. I beg you would send down five hundred pump nails as soon as possible, as there is none to be had here. Captain Manly's vessel is completely fitted. Since seeing her I have been very happy, as I thought before that the expense Captain Martindale was at would be disliked by the General.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

EPHRAIM BOWEN, JUN.

To General Gates.

WILLIAM WATSON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Plymouth, November 3, 1775.

SIR: I have just this moment received intelligence of the shipwreck of a vessel, bound to Boston, from Philadelphia, at Eastham, inside of our bay, laden with one hundred and twenty pipes of wine, and that the wine is all saved excepting two pipes, stove in landing it. Your Excellency will please to order in what manner this wine shall be disposed of; whether it shall be sent to Head-Quarters, or whether it shall remain where it is.

I would acquaint your Excellency that the Schooner Harrison has been some time ready to sail, but bad weather hinders; and that the Schooner Lee, Captain Manly, is now in this port, who, with the Harrison, Captain Coit, will sail the first wind. Captain Martindale would have been ready by this, had not the rains and some impediments respecting cannon intervened.

I have the honour to be your Excellency's most obliged humble servant,

WILLIAM WATSON.

To his Excellency General Washington, Esq.

COSMOPOLITAN, NO. II.

To the Inhabitants of the AMERICAN Colonies.

Friends and Fellow-Citizens:

In all periods, the history of mankind, however diversified, however disguised, has its outlines and internal principles nearly the same. That like causes should produce effects that are similar, is an institution of Heaven. Nature has said it, experience verifies it. When the dissolution of political establishments has been derived from a feeble original, when from the insidious sappings and the craft of a Court, the story of its slow and gradual advances exhibits the indications of intrigue, address, and an artful prostitution of constitutional formalities by the ambitious usurper; and on the part of the subject are seen the vestiges of a willing confidence, remissness, and a dangerous scrupulosity of contending with Government. The best of establishments have by insensible transitions been laid in ruins. But when cunning and policy fail of success, the rapacious and aspiring attempt the pinnacle by bolder strides. In the practice of the tyrant who aims at wielding the sceptre with unlimited sway, at extending his prerogatives by open violences, or arms reeking with blood, is reversed the old maxim, of enlarging the lion's by the skin of the fox. When this succeeds, the dignity of the citizen yields to the feelings of a slave. The womanish fear of a military conflict, which terrifies the subject in his private retreat, strikes a panick through the multitude, and produces a scene of wild confusion, or a plan of defence strongly marked with the symptoms of irresolution, diffidence, and despair. In many such cases the subject has found to his sorrow, though too late, that magnanimity and firmness, unanimity and bravery, would have preserved those blessings which cowardice has surrendered; and oftentimes, that the price which is paid for the privilege of yielding would have purchased their lasting security. Stinging reflection! And to a mind whose prospects run parallel with time, and open into futurity, nothing more cutting, than to be loaded with the execrations of an enslaved posterity.

History is a magazine of knowledge and important instruction. It lays a foundation for general prudence, and accommodates itself to the circumstances and situation of every state, in all ages. To become acquainted with the characters of men, the marks, sources, and effects of their passions, prejudices, power, customs, and intrigues, is a necessary step to prudential conduct. It teaches us to make other men's experience our own, to profit by it, and to learn wisdom from their misfortunes. The same tragedy is now acting that has been acted a hundred times on the theatre of the world; and the scenes are opened by the same agents, and by springs that are similar. Every community has sooner or later been invaded by the rapacious hand of bloody assailants, and, for a time, been enrobed in armour and in blood. The Assyrian, the Persian, and the more ancient monarchies of the world which have gone to decay, seemed to have laid the basis of their despotick power in violence and force. The particular characteristic of the subjects of these Empires, whether they were sunk into a total lethargy, and all their spirits chilled by the biting frost of stupidity and want, or whether there were some displays of genius in a vigorous opposition, seem buried amidst the rubbish of ages. Greece was attacked by Philip of Macedon, and he was opposed by the struggling Spartans. This State, anciently eminent for wit and learning, for the noble actions of its numerous heroes, is now groaning under the Turkish yoke, and those admired seats of knowledge, liberty, and politeness, are swept away by a deluge of ignorance and barbarity. Rome, it is certain, did not die of a lethargy. She was dazzled by the clemency of the smiling Cesar, before she bled by the point of his dagger. Denmark was gradual and irregular in her progress to slavery. The power of the Crown was formerly limited and restrained by the States. At length, the commonalty, finding themselves grievously oppressed by the nobility and gentry, agreed to an absolute sovereignty. The King, having assembled their nobility in a garrisoned Town, received their liberties into his hands. The consequence is a burdensome revenue extorted from the subject, and a numerous army quartered upon the farmer, without their consent.

The subjects of France are generally devoted to their Prince, though he rules them with an iron rod, and treats them as slaves. This Kingdom once had Parliaments, whose concurrence was necessary for the making of laws and for the raising of money. They suffered the Cardinals to deprive them of a share in the Government, and their Parliament, at this day, are assembled to pass such laws as the King is pleased to present, which none dare to refuse. Many of the offices of state are purchased of the Crown, to increase his revenue. The nobility, clergy, gentry, the burgesses of Paris and other cities, are exempted from a tax on their land, while others are bowing beneath the weight. Their religion is papistical. The Protestants sought long for their liberties and religion, and at length obtained a toleration. But this was abolished, and a cruel persecution ensued, which cost the King several hundred thousand of the most industrious part of his subjects.

It was the boast of a Spanish King, that the sun never set upon all his extensive dominions. This Kingdom had formerly great and important privileges. Its inhabitants acted like freemen—behaved in a manner that made monarchs tremble. Upon an infraction of their rights, their allegiance ceased. They despised even the pageantry of a King. No laws could be made or repealed but by the consent of the subject; nor could any taxes be raised but by the concurrence of the people. They have now lost these privileges. Ferdinand, after Spain became one monarchy, by many artful, insidious, and curious practices, sapped the foundation of its freedom, and the great men bartered away their liberties; they sold themselves and their posterity to the Crown. Slow and silent were their first attacks. The States, consisting of the nobility, clergy, and representatives of the Commons, meet now only to record and confirm the decrees of the Court, which will compel a submission, should they refuse it. Thus the Crown of Spain has become absolutely despotick, and the inquisition rages in all its horrors.

I have been, my dear friends, wounding your feelings by the blackest scenes in all historick existence. Scenes of great, happy, and flourishing Empires reduced to wretchedness, by the remissness and pusillanimity of their subjects. I will now reverse the picture, and show it on its brightest side—bright although set in crimson shades.

When the wheels of the political machine get out of repair, Government drags on heavily, and, although brought to a low ebb, may be recovered by prudent management. But when the stamina is poisoned, and a canker or gangrene is forming on every part, amputations and incisions are the only expedients. Instances in English story of the people's asserting their rights by the point of the sword are not wanting; and those of an early date. When the Stuart family possessed the throne, the nation were in a situation truly melancholy. For a long course of years the liberty of the subject seemed to be fluctuating. Its motion was sometimes direct, and sometimes retrograde. Its eccentricities were very great, when the English spirit roused, and Cromwell, with his sword, paved the way for its restoration. However, the gloom increased in a tenfold degree at the restoration of the gay and dissolute Charles the Second. His successor, the Duke of York, a determined and bigoted Prince, attacked the liberties of the people in a more fatal manner; gradually proceeding until he broke down all the fences and barriers of a free Constitution. The tragedy of English freedom would now have received its finishing stroke, had not the lion once more roused. The patriots of the day hunted up from the darkness of antiquity the principles of their free Government. These were hammered on the popular anvil, until they became familiar to every breast. This drove James from the Kingdom, and ushered in the glorious Revolution.

I will conclude with an instance that comes home to our own case. The Netherlands contained seventeen Provinces. They were free, and enjoyed great privileges. But free States are always viewed with jealousy. Charles V invaded and fiercely attacked many of their rights. His successor, Philip II, King of Spain, followed the same plan, and materially altered their Constitution. The people perceived the innovations, and were determined to oppose the encroachments of power, and lop off the excrescences from their Constitution, by hazarding the event of a civil war. This they attempted under the most discouraging circumstances. Awed by a soldiery quartered in their bowels, with Alva, an accomplished officer of great experience, at their head; terrified by the tortures of the inquisition, which had drove most of their enterprising leaders out of the nation—all these hazards, difficulties, and dangers, they dared to encounter, for the preservation of their rights and their old Constitution. Watered in blood, the plant grew, spread, and gloriously flourished. The event of the struggle was a rich compensation. Seven of the seventeen Provinces threw off the yoke. The other ten were reduced to Spanish servility—to something worse than death.

It is not the beauties of nature, says one, that can captivate alone. Freedom polishes their lustre, and gives a relish to every other pleasure. Without it they look gloomy and uninviting. Hence in the countries of Burgundy, &c., in France, though naturally luxuriant, the people are miserable and unhappy. Whereas in Switzerland, the native smiles and is contented. Liberty produces comfort—nay, plenty—even among rocks. She smileth in the sternest regions. She blesses in spite of nature; and in spite of nature tyranny brings curses.

Leaving you to your own reflection and natural penetration until my next, let me remind you that inattention and pusillanimity are equally dangerous. Let me conjure you by the groans and cries of an enslaved Turk; by the racking tortures of a Spanish inquisition; by every motive, by every principle that can reach your hearts; by that affection towards your Country that should animate you as its guardians; by those sentiments that should influence you as men and as Christians; by that tenderness and sympathy which results from a reflection on those endearments that brighten the chain of existence and make beings happy; by life, by death, by every duty and obligation that respects time or eternity—be determined, at every risk, at every hazard, to struggle to the last to save yourselves and the community, your immediate and remote posterity, from the fate of Greece and Rome, of France and Spain. On this critical period depends the destiny of Kingdoms and Empires for ages yet to come.

ADDRESS OF THE PRINCIPAL INHABITANTS OF THE ANCIENT BOROUGH OF PERTH.

Address of the principal Inhabitants of the ancient Borough of Perth, presented to His Majesty by the Honourable Colonel James Murray, Representative in Parliament for the County of Perth.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful subjects, the principal inhabitants of your ancient Borough of Perth, beg leave, at this important crisis, to testify our grateful sense of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's Government, and our abhorrence of the unnatural and unprovoked rebellion which has been excited among our deluded fellow-subjects of America, by the artifices of ambitious and designing men.

The lenient measures which your Majesty, induced by your paternal tenderness, had employed for reclaiming that infatuated people, having proved ineffectual, your Majesty has at last been compelled, by their obstinate disobedience, to have recourse to more vigorous exertions. We think ourselves bound, by every consideration of duty and interest, to declare our resolution to support your Majesty on this occasion, so far as we are able, in our several stations and professions, being convinced that the supremacy of the British Legislature over the Colonies is essential to the harmony, strength, and happiness of the whole Empire

November 4, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF LINLITHGOW.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of the Borough of Linlithgow, in Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by Sir James Cockburn, Baronet, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, the Provost, Magistrates, and Council of your Majesty's ancient Borough of Linlithgow, in Council assembled, beg leave to approach your royal presence, and declare our abhorrence of that pernicious spirit of licentiousness and avowed rebellion that prevails among some of the Colonies in America. Nor can we regard with less abhorrence any persons who by their conduct have contributed to kindle, or still continue to encourage and foment this rebellion, which it is the indispensable duty of every good citizen to oppose and suppress.

It is with no less astonishment than indignation that we behold the misled and deluded Colonies, who have been nursed up from feeble beginnings to opulence and greatness, by the tender care of their Parent State, and protected from all their enemies in the full enjoyment of all their advantages, at an immense expense; who are blessed with the most excellent Constitution the world ever knew, enjoy the most mild and equal laws, and live under your Majesty's most gracious reign, hurried into a behaviour so undutiful to your Majesty and their Parent State, and so destructive to themselves.

But while our thoughts dwell with deep concern on this subject, permit us, great Sire, to say, we are fully confident such wisdom and vigour in council, such spirit in enterprise, such conduct and firmness in execution, will be exerted under your Majesty's auspicious direction, as, by the blessing of Heaven, may soon suppress this rebellion and all its abettors; reduce the deluded Colonists to a sense of duty and loyalty, restore peace, establish and extend commerce, and diffuse a spirit of unanimity, the strength of every State, over all the extensive Dominions of the British Empire.

To compass these important ends, our most zealous endeavours shall be cheerfully and vigorously exerted.

We beg leave to assure your Majesty of our most firm loyalty and attachment to your sacred person, family, and Government. That your Majesty may long reign in the hearts of a free, united, happy, and grateful people; and that some of your Majesty's illustrious race, inheriting your royal virtues as well as throne, may rule in these realms to latest posterity, is the sincere and hearty prayer of this community.

This, in their name, in their presence, and at their appointment, is subscribed by ROBERT CLARK, Provost.

Linlithgow, November 4, 1775.

ASSEMBLY OF JAMAICA.

Kingston, Jamaica, November 4, 1775.

On Tuesday the honourable House of Assembly met, according to Proclamation, when his Excellency the Governour was pleased to open the session with the following speech:

Gentlemen of the Council,

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

As I have very satisfactory experience of your zeal for the prosperity of this Country and attachment to its interests, it is with the greatest pleasure I meet you again in General Assembly.

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

I have hitherto found you very ready to grant sufficient supplies for the support of Government, and all the exigencies of the publick service. I ask no more, and promise myself you will cheerfully raise them.

The state of the forts and fortifications shall be laid before you, which I recommend to your most serious consideration.

Gentlemen of the Council,

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

I firmly trust the business of this session will be carried on with harmony among yourselves, and the advantages of

His Majesty's service; which you cannot better or more acceptably promote, than by consulting the good of his subjects.

You may depend upon my hearty co-operation with you in every measure which may tend to such desirable purposes.

To his Excellency Sir BASIL KEITH, Knight, Captain-General, Governour, and Commander-in-Chief of JAMAICA, &c.

The humble Address of the Assembly:

May it please your Excellency:

We, His Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Assembly of Jamaica, return your Excellency our sincere thanks for your speech at the opening of this session.

We are happy that our zeal for the prosperity of this Country, and attachment to its interest, are satisfactory to your Excellency. We could not expect less from a gentleman so well disposed to promote its happiness.

The necessary supplies for the support of Government, and the exigencies of the publick, we shall cheerfully grant; and your Excellency's recommendation will be an additional motive for our immediately taking into consideration the state of the forts and fortifications.

Gratitude to our Sovereign for the many benefits we enjoy under his auspicious reign, and our desire to express that gratitude, by endeavouring to render your Excellency's Government easy, will impel us to carry on the publick business, as far as regards us, with harmony; and, being certain of your Excellency's concurrence in every measure for the publick advantage, we shall endeavour to promote His Majesty's service, by consulting the good of his subjects.

To which his Excellency was pleased to return the following answer:

Mr. Speaker, and Gentlemen of the Assembly:

I sincerely thank you for your address.

Your gratitude to the best of Sovereigns will be extremely pleasing to him; for his first wish is to reign in the hearts of his subjects. The manner in which you mean to show that gratitude calls forth feelings I want words to express; but I hope, by every act of administration, to convince you and your constituents, that no man is more warmly interested than I am in the prosperity of Jamaica.

FRANCIS MENTZES TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, November 4, 1775.

HONOURED SIR: Finding that a Battalion is now raising in the Province of Pennsylvania, for American Continental service, and being informed that the Adjutant, as well as Field-Officers, are to be appointed by the honourable the Continental Congress, in which you preside, I beg leave to address myself to you, as a gentleman ever willing to take notice of those who may be capable of assisting, in any manner, the grand cause of all British-America. I have made some application to the Assembly of Pennsylvania, for an office in the Battalion now raising, but have not had the influence of those gentlemen who are nominated by the Assembly for officers. I am desirous to enter into the service of the United Colonies of North America, in their present opposition to tyranny and oppression, and that not from motives of self-interest, but willing and could wish to be employed to act in the office to which I have the confidence to think myself equal. I am willing to be put to the trial. I could, perhaps, say much, from the opportunities I have had in Germany, during the last war, but think most prudent not to be ostentatious. My greatest ambition, at present, is to become Adjutant to the Battalion now raising in Pennsylvania; an office which I take the liberty to say, I perfectly understand, as well in the field as in garrison. Pardon me, Sir, the liberty I have taken to address you in writing. As to my private character, gentlemen with whom you are acquainted, particularly Colonel George Ross and James Wilson, both of the Congress, will vouch for me.

I am your most obedient humble servant,

FRANCIS MENTZES.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress.

TO THE NEW-YORK COMMITTEE OF SAFETY.

Philadelphia, November 4, 1775.

GENTLEMEN OF THE COMMITTEE: I sincerely sympathize with you in your distress, and, from the inhuman proceedings of those tyrants that infest America, I am afraid your valuable Town of New-York is in danger of being burnt. I would therefore recommend to you to prepare fire-vessels, which, properly made use of, will defend you against your infernal enemies, and save your Town, which is valuable. I am of opinion I am possessed of a knowledge that would be efficacious in burning such vessels as may come to do you damage; but as my situation requires me to conceal my name, at present, it would not be prudent it should yet be known, as it may be attended with ill consequences to me; neither would it be prudent to risk my advice without an advantage in proportion to the service I may do. Should you, therefore, gentlemen, conceive the above proposal to be of any importance, and deserving of an answer, be pleased to direct to A, at the London Coffee-House, to the care of Mr. Hugh James, the bar-keeper.

I am, Gentlemen, your most humble servant,

A.

To the Chairman of the Committee of Safety, in New-York.

BY THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS-BAY,

A Proclamation for a Publick Thanksgiving.

Although, in consequence of the unnatural, cruel, and barbarous measures adopted and pursued by the British Administration, great and distressing calamities are brought upon our oppressed Country, and on this Colony in particular, we feel the dreadful effects of civil war, by which America is stained with the blood of her valiant sons, who have bravely fallen in the laudable defence of our rights and privileges: Our capital, once the seat of justice, opulence, and virtue, is unjustly wrested from its proper owners, who are obliged to flee from the iron hand of tyranny, or are held in the unrelenting arms of oppression; our seaports greatly distressed, and towns burnt by the foes, who have acted the parts of barbarous incendiaries: And although the wise and holy Governour of the world has, in his righteous providence, sent droughts into this Colony, and wasting sickness into many of our Towns, yet we have the greatest reason to adore and praise the supreme Disposer of Events, who deals infinitely better with us than we deserve, and, amidst all his judgments, hath remembered mercy, by causing the voice of health again to be heard amongst us. Instead of famine, affording to an ungrateful people a competency of the necessaries and comforts of life; in remarkably preserving and protecting our troops, when in apparent danger, while our enemies, with all their boasted skill and strength, have met with loss, disappointment, and defeat; and, in the course of his good providence, the Father of Mercies hath bestowed upon us many other favours, which call for our grateful acknowledgments:

Therefore, we have thought fit, with the advice of the Council and House of Representatives, to appoint Thursday, the 23d day of November instant, to be observed as a day of publick Thanksgiving throughout this Colony; hereby calling upon ministers and people to meet for religious worship on said day, and devoutly to offer up their unfeigned praises to Almighty God, the source and benevolent bestower of all good, for his affording the necessary means of subsistence, though our commerce has been prevented, and the supplies from the fishery denied us: That such a measure of health is enjoyed among us; that the lives of our officers and soldiers have been so remarkably preserved, while our enemies have fell before them: That the vigorous efforts which have been used to excite the savage vengeance of the wilderness, and rouse the Indians to arms, that an unavoidable destruction might come upon our frontiers, have been almost miraculously defeated: That our unnatural enemies, instead of ravaging the Country with uncontrolled sway, are confined within such narrow limits, to their own mortification and distress, environed by an American Army, brave and determined: That such a band of union, founded upon the best principles, unites the American Colonies: That our rights and privileges, both civil and religious, are so far preserved to us, notwithstanding ing all the attempts of our barbarous enemies to deprive us of them. And to offer up humble and fervent prayers to Almighty God, for the whole British Empire, especially for the United American Colonies: That he would bless our civil rulers, and lead them into wise and prudent measures in this dark and difficult day: That he would endow our General Court with all that wisdom which is profitable to direct: That he would graciously smile upon our endeavours to restore peace, preserve our rights and privileges, and hand them down to posterity: That he would give wisdom to the American Congress, equal to their important station: That he would direct the Generals and the American Armies, wherever employed, and give them success and victory: That he would preserve and strengthen the harmony of the United Colonies: That he would pour out his spirit upon all orders of men through the land; bring us to a hearty repentance and reformation; purify and sanctify all his churches: That he would make ours Emanuel's land: That he would spread the knowledge of the Redeemer through the whole earth, and fill the world with his glory.

And all servile labour is forbidden on said day.

Given under our hands, at the Council Chamber in Wartertown, the fourth day of November, in the year of the Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

By their Honours' command:

PEREZ MORTON, Deputy Secretary.

JAMES OTIS,	BENJAMIN LINCOLN,
WALTER SPOONER,	MICHAEL FARLEY,
CALEB CUSHING,	JOSEPH PALMER,
JOSEPH GERRISH,	SAMUEL HOLTEN,
JOHN WHETCOMB,	JABEZ FISHER,
JEDEDIAH FOSTER,	MOSES GILL,
JAMES PRESCOTT,	BENJAMIN WHITE.
ELDAD TAYLOR,

God save the People.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO JOSIAH QUINCY.

Cambridge, November 4, 1775.

SIR: Your favour of the 31st ult. was presented to me yesterday. I thank you, as I shall do every gentleman, for suggesting any measure which you conceive to be conducive to the publick service; but in the adoption of a plan, many things are to be considered to decide upon the utility of it. In the one proposed by you, I shall not undertake to determine whether it be good, or whether it be bad; but thus much I can say, that if there is any spot upon the main, which has an equal command of the ship-channel to Boston harbour, (and give me leave to add that Point Alderton is not without its advocates,) in all other respects it must have infinitely the preference; because the expense of so many batteries as you propose, with the necessary defences to secure the channel, the communication, and a retreat, in the dernier resort, from the east end of Long-Island, are capital objections. Not, I confess, of such importance as to weigh against the object in view, if the scheme is practicable. But what signifies Long-Island, Point Alderton, Dorchester, &c., while we are in a manner destitute of cannon, and compelled to keep the little powder we have for the use of the musketry. The knowledge of this fact is an unanswerable argument against every place, and may serve to account for my not having viewed the several spots which have been so advantageously spoken of. I am not without intentions of making them a visit, and shall assuredly do myself the honour of calling upon you. In the mean while, permit me to thank you most cordially for your polite invitation, and to assure you that I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

Josiah Quincy, Braintree.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO THE COMMITTEE OF SAFETY OF DEDHAM.

Cambridge, November 4, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: His Excellency received a letter, dated the 26th ultimo, from David Parker, in which he most pathetically deplores his situation. After the most solemn assurances of contrition for the part he acted, and strong declarations of his regard for the liberties of his Country, he prays that the arrest under which he now is may be removed. I have it in command from his Excellency, to let you know that he has no objection to his enlargement, provided he can make it appear clear to you that he is no longer inimical to the Country.

I am your most humble servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

To the Committee of Safety of Dedham.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO DAVID PARKER.

Cambridge, November 4, 1775.

SIR: By his Excellency's command, I wrote this day to the Committee of Safety of Dedham, letting them know that he had no objection to your enlargement, provided you satisfied them that you are not inimical to the liberties of your Country.

I am, Sir, &c.,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

To Mr. David Parker.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO SAMUEL GOODWIN.

Head-Quarters, November 4, 1775.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 28th ult. He is pleased that you had supplied Colonel Arnold with the plans for his route to Quebeck. If it hereafter should be found necessary to lay out the road you mention, his Excellency won't be unmindful of your offers of service for that purpose.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

To Samuel Goodwin, Esq.

WILLIAM BARTLETT TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Beverly, November 4, 1775.

SIR: Since I have had the honour of a commission under your Excellency, I have never had an opportunity before to return you my hearty thanks. The honour conferred on me I gratefully acknowledge, and hope I shall be able so far to do my duty as to meet with the approbation of your Excellency; if so, I am sure of doing honour to my Country, which is my sincere desire.

I have the pleasure of informing your Excellency, that this morning, at daylight, there appeared two sloops at anchor under one of our islands, called by the name of the Misery. One of them came to sail, and went in a direct course for Boston; the other, being very much torn to pieces in the gale of wind, was unfit to proceed on her intended voyage. Two resolute people, in a small boat, went off, and took possession of her before we knew of it in this part of the Town. However, some of Captain Brown's Company of stationed men, together with a number of inhabitants, armed, went down and brought her up safe in this harbour. I have taken the liberty of taking her under my care. My instructions are short with regard to such prizes; as I hope many such may be taken, which Providence may force into our harbours in gales of wind, before next spring, beg your Excellency will give me particular instructions with regard to them. I find, by examination, that Captain Ritchie has been a long while out of Boston, has been blown off the coast as far as the latitude thirty-eight; but there being no log-book on board, must refer to the bills of parcels for the confirmation of the matter with regard to the time he has been from Boston. I have procured all the papers on board of her, and send them to your Excellency by Captain Brown. Captain Ritchie's crew consists of his father, one white man, one mulatto fellow, one negro, and two women, passengers, which I shall keep secure until further orders from your Excellency. As Captain Ritchie had the original bills of parcels, I thought it would be most satisfactory to send them up to you, which I believe contain the chiefest part of her cargo, except one barrel of pork, one barrel of flour, and one barrel and one hogshead of rum, part of a hogshead of tobacco, and one trunk of English goods. Your Excellency will find, by some of the papers enclosed, that Captain Ritchie has been one voyage, if no more, to Annapolis, and carried up provisions to the Ministerial Army; and make no doubt but his intentions were the same now, if Providence had not frowned upon him.

I would inform your Excellency that Captain Adams, commander of the Privateer Warren, has carried a sloop, loaded with wood, as I am informed, bound to Boston, into Portsmouth. I have heard nothing concerning the rest of the privateers since their sailing.

I shall wait your Excellency's orders with regard to the above; and beg leave to subscribe myself your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM BARTLETT.

To his Excellency General Washington.

JOHN ADAMS TO ELBRIDGE GERRY.

Philadelphia, November 5, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I am under such restrictions, injunctions, and engagements of secrecy, respecting every thing which passes in Congress, that I cannot communicate my own thoughts freely to my friends, so far as is necessary to ask their advice and opinions concerning questions which many of them understand much better than I do. This, however, is an inconvenience which must be submitted to, for the sake of superior advantage.

But I must take the liberty to say, that I think we shall soon attend to maritime affairs and naval preparations. No great things are to be expected at first, but out of a little a great deal may grow.

It is very odd that I, who have spent my days in researches and employments so very different, and who have never thought much of old ocean, or the dominion of it, should be necessitated to make such inquiries; but it is my fate and my duty, and therefore I must attempt it.

I am to inquire what number of seamen may be found in our Province, who would probably enlist in the service, either as marines, or on board of armed vessels, in the pay of the Continent, or in the pay of the Province, or on board of privateers fitted out by private adventurers.

I must also entreat you to let me know the names, places of abode, and characters, of such persons, belonging to any of the sea-port Towns in our Province, as are qualified for officers and commanders of armed vessels.

I want to be further instructed, what ships, brigantines, schooners, &c., are to be found in any port of the Province, to be sold or hired out, which will be suitable for armed vessels. What their tonnage, the depth of water they draw, their breadth, their decks, &c., and to whom they belong, and what is their age.

Further, what places in our Province are most secure and best accommodated for building new vessels of force, in case a measure of that kind should be thought of. The Committee have returned, much pleased with what they have seen and heard, which shows that their embassy will be productive of happy effects. They say the only disagreeable circumstance was, that their engagements, haste, and constant attention to business, were such as prevented them from forming such acquaintances with the gentlemen of our Province as they wished. But as Congress was waiting for their return, before they could determine upon affairs of the last moment, they had not time to spare.

They are pretty well convinced, I believe, of several important points, which they and others doubted before.

New-Hampshire has leave to assume a Government, and so has South-Carolina; but this must not be freely talked of as yet, at least from me.

New-England will now be able to exert her strength, which a little time will show to be greater than either Great Britain or America imagines. I give you joy of the agreeable prospect in Canada. We have the colours of the Seventh Regiment, as the first fruits of victory.

JOHN ADAMS.

To Mr. Elbridge Gerry.

COMMISSIONERS FOR FORTIFICATIONS TO NATHANIEL WOOD-HULL.

Highlands, November 5, 1775.

SIR: You will be pleased to lay this letter, with the enclosed, before the honourable Congress for this Province, by which they will see the necessity there is of immediately settling those matters Mr. Bedlow laid before them, when he was in New-York last. We have had some evil persons already among us, who have instilled into the minds of the people at work here, that there is no security for their pay. This has given us a deal of trouble, with a set of people whose tempers and dispositions are as various as their faces, to convince to the contrary. All our influence cannot get them to work on Sundays. An order from the honourable Board on this head will have great weight, to be made publick here. Some of the artificers who were employed by the master workman have had the assurance to say they were not to be directed by the Commissioners, but by their own master workman. The advanced season of the year, and necessity of forwarding the works, is a reason why we did not immediately disband them from the work.

We are, Sir, with esteem, your humble servants,

SAMUEL BAYARD,
WILLIAM BEDLOW,
THOMAS GRENELL.

Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq.

COLONEL ROMANS TO COMMISSIONERS FOR FORTIFICATIONS.

Fort Constitution, November 8, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: Considering myself placed by the Congress in a very conspicuous rank, which requires it of me that I should watch the interests of America, as far as in my power lies, and having frequently observed that the plan we at present pursue is a very lame one, for the remedying of which I have often offered my discourse, but as we are momentarily interrupted by our discontented gentry, I resolved to pen down and lay before you the following considerations, in our present situation at the post of Martelaer's Rock, in the Highlands:

The number of men now employed on the fortifications are one hundred and thirty-seven, they being distributed as follows, viz: carpenters, thirty-six; masons, twenty-seven; blacksmiths, two; miners, four—sixty-nine artificers: steward, one; cooks, five; overseers, three; seamen, employed as such on shore, two; seamen, employed as such in vessels, four; mortar-makers, two; actual labourers, fifty one—sixty-eight. Total, one hundred and thirty-seven.

This disposition is the most erroneous that can possibly be imagined, and must tend to retard our works; nor can we pretend to do any thing till better regulations take place.

This will appear from the following estimate, which I judge to be right, but am willing to submit the same to the opinion of any able engineer or engineers. Each mason ought to have, as attendants, two stone-breakers, two stone-carriers, one mortar-carrier; five in all.

With this assistance, each mason will with ease make one hundred cubical feet of stone wall in twelve hours' time, provided, to every four masons one miner be allowed, to work in the quarry.

Thus it is evident, that our twenty-seven masons, attended by one hundred and thirty-five labourers and seven miners, would have completed the two thousand four hundred perches of stone wall, contained in my estimate, in twenty-eight days, of twelve hours each; but, to allow for extra occurrences, I will say thirty days.

Then it follows that twenty-seven masons, suppose them to have 9s. 6d. per day each, including provisions, will daily cost, - - - - - £12 16 6

Seven miners, suppose them 6s., provisions included, is, daily, - - - - - 2 2 0

£14 18 6

Which will amount in thirty days to £454 10s.

N. B. Please to observe, that in my estimate the labourers' work stands as a separate article.

But instead of such a regular arrangement, a very different one has unhappily taken place at this post, by which means only about seven hundred perches are done. What need have I to animadvert on so palpable an absurdity as that of the half of fifty-one labourers to attend on twenty-seven masons? I say one-half, for surely the other half must be allowed for the attendance on our carpenters.

But what makes it worse, this very day on which I write, I am reduced to the dilemma of keeping only seven masons on the principal work; the other twenty are necessarily employed in breaking and carrying stone, by reason that all the labourers are employed in unloading of vessels, there being now three craft at the pier head, and for fourteen or fifteen days past there have generally been two, nor are we ever without one (at least) to unload. Thus the labourers are all taken off, and men who are hired for seven shillings and six pence per diem do that labour, for the doing of which men may be had at fifty shillings per month.

Where, then, is the wonder that we advance not as we should do, and that the expense becomes great?

With regard to the timber work I have the following to offer. We are on an island, where we have not a single stick of timber fit to do any thing with, except making firewood, and not even that, as most is a shrubby kind of pine; if we had it, the expense of carrying it out of the woods and bringing it to the work would be to the amount of ten shillings per hundred feet, especially if done by the labour of men only, without oxen, whereas now we have good oak delivered at the landings at six shillings.

I will undertake and promise to build a block-house, such as we have now erected, in six weeks, with six hands and two oxen, including one week as allowance for bad weather, whereas now twelve carpenters and twenty labourers have been employed on the timber work thereof since the 10th of October, and will not have completely done till the 10th of November. Nor happens this by reason that the men are idlers. No. But they are not conversant with similar work. It is true that they receive the timber in a muddy, dirty state, with a bad appearance, but it is hewn truer than they are able to do it; then to reduce it to what they judge to be a true square, they line it and hew half way down; afterwards turn it, line it again, and hew the other half way. Thus a piece of timber is lined eight times, and hewed to these eight lines, to make it worse than it was. Next, the piece, through the lack of oxen, is drawn by twenty men to the place where it is wanted. Here the carpenters discover it not to be hewn in the square, and line it and hew it again eight times over. Then the dovetail is cut, and, when put together, they see it makes bad joints, therefore have it to dub over again. Whereas the country carpenter (used to such work) hews the whole side through by one line, and thereby leaves it, when he parts with it, truer than our people (unacquainted with such work) can possibly do.

The expense of one block-house stands, therefore, as follows:

The timber and plank, 14,000 feet at 6s. per 100 feet, - - - - -	£42 0 0
2,000 shingles, at £5 per M, - - - - -	10 0 0
Much against my inclination and advice, 256 iron bolts have been used, instead of so many treenails. These weigh each 5 pounds, is
1,280 pounds, at £28 per ton, - - - - -	17 18 4
Necessary iron, 275 pounds, at same price, -	3 17 0
200 weight of nails, 9 pence, - - - - -	7 10 0
Work of 12 carpenters, 30 days, at 9s. 6d. per day, provisions included, - - - - -	185 0 0
In my estimate, no value of labour in timberwork is mentioned, as it is of the masons; therefore I must add 20 labourers, at 3s. per day, for 30 days, provisions included, - -	90 0 0

£356 5 4

But according to my method of building, with such people as I could find, the timber, necessary iron, shingles, and nails, would be - - - - - £63 7 0

Instead of 256 bolts, as many treenails would not exceed - - - - - 1 10 0

Six carpenters, 36 days, at 9s. 6d. per day, provisions included, - - - - - 102 12 0

A yoke of oxen, teamster included, 12s. per day, for 15 days, - - - - - 9 0 0

£176 9 0

The country carpenter is still inferior to the ship carpenter for our work, provided we can get him equally honest.

From the above small specimen, it is evident, that even in the cheapest method, timber at this place becomes infinitely higher than the masonry, and I am now convinced that stone towers, of the nature of block-houses, would not amount to above one hundred Pounds each, complete, at this place; and, when finished, they are preferable.

Among other bad regulations that have taken place here, there is one most grievously against the sound policy that ought to prevail. Besides the carpenters from the city, some country carpenters are employed, who have a chief, as well as the former, and being a more diligent set of people than those from the city, have very deservedly (though somewhat injudiciously) some marks of special favour shown them.

From this distinction sprung envy, who never fails in all similar cases to rear her head. I will only remark, that such favour ought to have been shown in a manner somewhat less open. Yet, in favour of the country carpenters, I must say, that they labour harder, and do not stand on the punctilium of stated hours. Likewise, I believe, had the country carpenters been first engaged, they might have been hired for six shillings per day, and thus been an example to the others. The breach is already pretty large between them. Should it continue to widen, so that it becomes necessary to remove one party, my advice is, to remove those from the City.

We have seen that the two oxen, in one day, drew twelve pieces of timber and four pieces of cannon from the landing to the block-house—a labour which would have employed, according to our experience, twenty men for two days. In other matters, this holds exactly similar. Therefore, twenty men, at three shillings per day, provisions included, is, for two days, six pounds; and two oxen, with the teamster, cost, if hired for one day, twelve shillings. Here rises a balance of five pounds eight shillings per day.

Your winter's firing will be impossible to get without oxen. In getting that, and drawing of timber, each yoke will do the work of thirty men, at least.

This makes the reason appear evident, why I have so strenuously recommended the procuring of oxen. They will cost thirty bushels of corn and one load of hay, per head, in four months—equal to about seven pounds; and then, if care is taken of them, they will sell for the original price; but if they are kept in the same manner as the two we have now, I confess they had better be left alone, for you will want new oxen every fourteen days.

The next and greatest grievance to be considered is, the erroneous principle on which our labourers are procured. Instead of hiring them for a month, and thereby giving them an opportunity of harassing us in the shocking manner they do, I humbly think, gentlemen, that you ought to recommend it, that they be enlisted for a limited time, suppose six months, under the denomination of pioneers, or whatever else may be thought a proper appellation for such a body.

I cannot omit mentioning, that when I first took a superficial view of the ground, I judged it to be less rough than it proves to be. I likewise thought that there was more wood, which made me put down more axes, bill-hooks, and spades, than I now find necessary, we being here in the very extreme of rough ground. Yet the number sent up is more disproportioned than even my rough estimate. I will point out the just proportion of tools, as they ought to be given to the workmen; it may be of use.

In extreme rough ground: 1–10 shovels, 1–20 spades, 1–16 miner's hammers, 1–8 jumpers, 1–16 wedges and cold chisels, 1–8 small crowbars, 1–40 large do., with claws, 1–8 mauls, 1–16 pick-axes, 1–8 grubbing-hoes, 7–80 axes, 1–20 bill-hooks.

In extreme fine soil: 1–4 spades, 1–2 shovels, 1–8 grubbing-hoes, 1–16 pick-axes, 1–40 axes, 3–80 bill-hooks.

The mediums must be calculated according to the nature of soils between these two extremes.

We cannot work here without powder. I know it is scarce; but suppose it to cost even ten shillings per pound, and that four miners make eight holes per diem, with an inch auger, which require each two and a half inches of powder. This will make twenty inches of powder. Now, twenty-one inches of powder, in an inch hole, make three pounds; therefore, three times ten is thirty shillings; and four miners, at six shillings per day, is twenty-four shillings—together, two pounds fourteen shillings. And these four miners will break more stone than thirty men with mauls can do; yet these thirty men would cost you, provisions included, three shillings each, which amounts to four pounds ten shillings per diem.

Another thing I have to remonstrate to you, gentlemen. This is, that the Steward never yet has been made to keep a regular book of the accounts of his delivery of provisions, &c.; which, however, in my opinion, is highly necessary. Likewise, that a person ought to be appointed, who should take an exact account of what tools are delivered out in the morning, and to whom; observing at night that the same person returns a similar tool, be it whole or broken. This method is far preferable to that of throwing by a broken axe, maul, or crowbar, while nobody knows how tools are expended. In my humble opinion, the Steward could do this, without adding much vexatious labour to his present employment.

The number of strangers who come, volens volens, to visit us, is a gross grievance. A rascal, who does not vouchsafe to lift his hat to us, nor even avoids to insult us, comes into our innermost recess, and interrupts us, perhaps at a time when we are consulting the welfare of the community.

By noticing the above mistakes, and properly amending them, I make no doubt but we will, in this day of need, save a great sum of money for our country.

I entreat you, therefore, to endeavour the making of the necessary alterations, in which I am highly interested, by reason that the rank I hold endangers me of being made the butt against which all resentment may break; because, if the present measures continue, my calculations will prove erroneous; but if these mistakes in proceedings are altered, as I propose, my estimate must prove true, or nearly so. The power lies with you, gentlemen. I have never received any kind of instructions from the Congress or Committee, that may serve me as a line for the regulation of my conduct, except that I understood their intentions were, that I should give you my advice, and therefore consider myself in duty bound to be content under your direction of affairs in every particular; but I could not forbear taking this liberty, in telling you what I think the most eligible path to pursue.

I am, with the greatest respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,

B. ROMANS.

To the Commissioners for Fortifications at the Highlands.

P. S. The draught of the above writing was prepared before Captains Bedlow and Grenell came up. Since that, some variation in our distribution of labourers and masons has taken place. Though it is better than the former, it is still very absurd, and only serves to show the instability of our plan.

They now stand thus, viz:

Carpenters, thirty; masons, sixteen; smiths, two—forty-eight artificers: steward, one; cooks, five; overseers, two; gunner, one; seamen employed on shore, two; seamen employed on board of vessels, four; mortar-maker, one; actual labourers, fifty-two—total, sixty-eight. In all, one hundred and sixteen.

Estimate of the Expense that will accrue in the finishing the Fortifications in the Highlands, laid before the Committee of Safety, in NEW-YORK, on the 2d OCTOBER, 1775.

2,400 perches of stone wall, each perch containing 16½ feet in length, 18 inches high, by 12 wide, at 5s. 6d., £660. 2½ bushels of unslacked lime, are taken up by each perch, is 6,000 bushels, 6d., £150.

1,000 pieces of ranging timber, 18 feet long, 12 inches square, for five block-houses, and for the merlons of the battery, &c. This contains 216,000 superficial feet, at 6s. per hundred, (at Windsor Landing.) £648.

1,500 two-inch plank, for platforms of the battery and floors of the block-houses—400 of 24 feet long, 10 inches wide; 1,200 of 20 feet long, 10 inches wide—49,600 feet; say 50,000 feet, (at Windsor Landing.) at 6s. per hundred, £150.

1,200 beams and sleepers, for block-houses and platforms, of different lengths, from 8 to 24 feet long, 9 inches by 3, supposed to contain 50,000 feet, (at Windsor Landing.) at 6s. per hundred, £150.

3,200 for each, is 16,000 shingles for five block-houses, at £5 per thousand, £80.

140 laths, of 14 feet long, for each, is 700 laths, of 2½ inches by 1½, for the roofs of five block-houses, about £15.

80 rafters of 16 feet long, 80 rafters of ten feet long, is 160 rafters for the block-houses, their mean measure being 6 inches by 3, is 3,120 feet, at 6s. per hundred, (at Wind-sor.) is £9 7s., say £10.

2,000 fascines, for levelling, &c., will cost about £25.

4,000 pickets, to picket these down, made out of about 1,000 laths, £20.

500 tompons for loopholes, about £2.

40 ports, 5 windows, and 6 doors for block-houses and magazines, and a gate and wicket for the citadel, about £30.

6,400 broad-headed spikes, for the gate and wicket, and block-house doors and windows, 10 to a pound, of iron, is 640 pounds; 14 bolts of 10 pounds each, is 140 pounds; 5 bolts of 4 pounds each, 20 pounds; 26 hinges, on an average, 250 pounds; 50 iron hoops, for swivels, about 200 pounds; small iron work, about 200 pounds—in all, 1,450 pounds, say 15 cwt. wrought iron, at 1s. per pound, £75.

Broad-headed copper nails for magazine door, 360, 10 to a pound, 36 pounds; copper hinges and bolts, 30 pounds; two copper circles, or busses, for vents, 20 pounds—about 80 pounds wrought copper, at 3s. 6d. per pound, £14.

5 ordinary locks, £2; 1 large lock, £1; 1 copper lock, £1; about 1,000 pounds nails, £40; 5,000 treenails, about £25.

Necessary tools—6 stone mauls, 20 very large pick stone hammers, 20 pick-axes, 130 crowbars, 50 hand bill-hooks, 50 axes and hatchets, 50 spades, 40 mallets, 300 sand bags of crocus, 50 hand-barrows—about £150.

For the barracks, 80 by 20 feet: 2 sills, 4 by 5 inches, 80 feet long, 270 feet; 2 plates, 4 by 6 inches, 80 feet long, 320 feet; 25 beams, 4 by 6 inches, 20 feet long, 1,000 feet; 50 posts, 4 by 6 inches, 8 feet long, 800 feet; 50 rafters, 4 by 4 inches, 13 feet long, 870 feet; 20 joists, 4 by 4 inches, 14 feet long, 360 feet; 25 sleepers, 4 by 6 inches, 20 feet long, 1,000 feet—in all, 4,620 feet, at 6s. per hundred, £14.

5,000 shingles, at £5 per thousand, £25.

250 laths, 14 feet, about £5.

500 inch boards, 14 feet, at 10d. per board, £20.

200 inch and a half boards, 14 feet, 1s. 3d. per board, £12 10s.

400 pounds nails, at 10d. per pound, £16 13s. 4d.

2 double stacks of chimneys, of brick, £20.

Store-house and guard room, 60 by 20 feet: 2 sills, 4 by 6 inches, 60 feet long, 240 feet; 2 plates, 4 by 8 inches, 60 feet long, 320 feet; 20 beams, 4 by 6 inches, 20 feet long, 800 feet; 40 posts, 4 by 6 inches, 9 feet long, 720 feet; 40 rafters, 4 by 4 inches, 15 feet long, 800 feet; 15 joists, 4 by 4 inches, 14 feet long, 280 feet; 20 sleepers, 8 by 3 inches, 20 feet long, 280 feet—in all, 3,440 feet, at 6s. per hundred, £10 16s.

4,000 shingles, at £5 per thousand, £20; 200 laths, £4 10s.; 375 inch boards, £15; 180 inch and a half boards, £11 5s.; 300 pounds nails, £12 10s.; a stack of chimneys, £10—in all, £84 1s.

Labour of and provisions for 150 men four months, 26 days to the month, at an average of 3s. per day, £2,250.

Entire cost, £4,695 4s. 4d.

Five iron stoves, for the block-houses.

The above is exclusive of ropes, &c., to raise the guns, as well as some other incidental requisites, such as transport of stores and tools, to be made by the blacksmith on the spot, as also, 150,000 bricks, the price of which I am entirely ignorant of.

B. ROMANS, Engineer.

COMMISSIONERS FOR FORTIFICATIONS TO COLONEL ROMANS.
Martelaer's Rock, November 10, 1775.

SIR: Your considerations on the conspicuous light you have been placed in at this post, your watchfulness for the interests of America, as far as in your power lies, (suppose you mean in the expense that must attend our present works,) with the many et ceteras therein, we beg leave to make the following reply to.

First. As to the erroneous distribution of one hundred and thirty-seven artificers and labourers at the post, when you drew up your considerations—about twenty-eight carpenters and nineteen masons have come to this post since the 20th October. You arrived here the 10th, and think it would have been your duty to have let the Commissioners know the proportion of labourers wanted to the artificers before the addition of the latter were sent from New-York; and we do not recollect that even then you mentioned it. It has been latterly your complaint, on seeing the season advance, and our uneasiness, that we had no place of any defence finished. To your judgment we submit what quantity of cubical feet of stone a mason properly attended may lay in twelve hours. We confess our ignorance in this calculation; but this we certainly are judges of, viz: if the work is well done, and the artificers keep close to it the proper time of working. The disappointment of one hundred men, expected up soon after we landed here, you are no stranger to. A proper attention should have been paid, in your mind, to the labourers that would necessarily be wanted frequently to unload timber, lime, brick, shingles, and stores.

Secondly. In regard to your promise to build a block-house in six weeks, with six hands and two oxen, you may perform; but remark that your account of the number of carpenters and labourers employed on the one now near finished is certainly much exaggerated, as to the whole time, since the 10th of October. The carpenters not doing the work of it in a workmanlike manner, you was to notice, and to have pointed out the most expeditious method, as we were frequently expostulating with you on the backwardness of our having some place of defence finished. As to oxen being cheaper than labourers to carry the timber from the pier-head up to the height of the rock, where the block-house is erected, may be just; but you know that when we began said block-house, we scarcely had a road up to it from said pier for men; then a cart was proposed, to be drawn by labourers; a road was, with great labour, made for that, and a cart procured. About three weeks ago you proposed the hire of oxen, and three pair to be got directly; one pair was agreed to, and every step in our situation taken to get them. A letter was wrote to the Committee of Fishkill to assist us; a boat and people employed in messages to procure them; three pair of team, or even one, ought to have been provided with forage (none being on this rock) before they were brought to this place to be worked hard amongst rocks. This is not the work of a day, where we are placed. Your calculation of the extra iron, in lieu of treenails, may be just; but you will be pleased to observe, it was a case of absolute necessity, as you had never mentioned any thing of treenails till they were wanted, and then informed us that nothing here was fit for such use; that only locust treenails would answer; these not being to be got, after many applications, up here, the block-house could not be left waiting for them, as our orders from the Provincial Congress, dated the 28th September, were to get at least twelve guns directly mounted for defence; which you was made acquainted with, on your return to this post, and frequently urged to get performed.

Thirdly. Your calculations of the expense of the block-house, now near built, (for this being the 10th of November, it is not yet finished,) we think not exact in many articles. Necessary iron, we believe, you will find to exceed your estimate. All that we have to say further on this head is, that we are of opinion, and told you so, that there was no necessity of making a temporary work have an elegant outside appearance, and the inside to be lined with so much nicety and expense.

You say, with your method of building, and workmen you could find, you could build such a block-house for one hundred and seventy-six Pounds nine Shillings—something less than the half of what, by your estimate, you say the present one will cost. We should be glad to know who, but yourself, constructed, ordered, and particularly directed that building, (except in the case of the iron bolts in lieu of treenails?) Had the timber for it been ordered in pieces of length equal to the sides, instead of pieces of eighteen feet long, unwieldy for men to move and bring up on the rock, we should have had those pieces brought up with more despatch, and not have seen so great a waste of timber—sawed from every piece—lying about the work. No trifling extraordinary expense this.

Fourthly. We are at a loss to conceive what you mean by, amongst other bad regulations, one, and that grievously against sound policy, has taken place here, respecting some special marks of favour shown by us (suppose that is your meaning) to the country carpenters above the York carpenters. Now, we request you would point out this special mark of favour. Sure we are that the country carpenters have not been so comfortably accommodated as the others, having no fireplace to this day (November 10th) to go to; and, according to your own confession, they are the most faithful workmen. We have always understood that it was both just and sound policy to reward merit; we have rather been deficient in this to those deserving men. If you had heard any unreasonable murmurs from the York carpenters, why was it kept from us? as a proper inquiry might have been made, and, if unjust murmurs, the persons guilty should have been discharged from the service. The rest of this long carpenters' affair we shall leave, thanking you for your advice at the conclusion, which we think would be very impolitick, in these times, to put into execution.

Fifthly. As the oxen are again introduced, with an estimate of the difference of twenty men's labour and two oxen, with the teamster, one day, in which you make a balance of five Pounds eight Shillings in favour of oxen; but you have forgot that this one teamster cannot put a stick of timber twelve inches by twelve, eighteen feet long, on the carriage by himself, nor put it down when at the place wanted. We have had a pretty good sample this day in the oxen carrying of stone, when six men were employed to put the stone on and support it all the way to where it was thrown off. We are apprehensive your calculations of the cost of hay and corn for two oxen, four months, is below the mark, as we will soon be convinced of. However, on the whole, we join with you in the necessity of having them at this place, and that a vast saving will be made by using such; the reason why they were not procured sooner we have already mentioned.

Sixthly. In regard to the erroneous principle you say our labourers are hired on, you may be very right in, could it have been carried into execution on our first coming here, (if you had then mentioned it;) which is some doubt with us, as the times are.

Seventhly. The superficial view you say you took of the ground, when you first came up here, was a great error. It should have been minutely examined, to have made a proper estimate of works to be erected here. As to the estimate, you never favoured us with it. We wish you had; it might have been of some service then; it can be of little now, amongst your considerations presented to us. All the necessary tools, wheelbarrows, &c., brought to this post, were procured without any direction from you. In your estimate of the expenses of barrack and store, you have forgot glass for the windows, iron, the freight of boards and shingles, unless the freight of the two latter articles are included in your incidental requisites.

Eighthly. As to the article of not being able to do without miners, is a doubt with us. We however submitted to some being employed for taking away a large part of a rock to the northwest of the block-house, although powder was scarce with us, and not sent up for such service, twenty odd weight of which has been already expended. We are satisfied to have two miners employed for the purpose of taking away rocks that cannot be removed without, as soon as we have powder sent up for that service, which we have applied for; but to have four employed to blast stone for the works, we presume would be very expensive indeed, as stone enough can be procured all around us, and brought with the team to the works, when, after a blast is made, the large pieces are to be worked upon by labourers with mauls to make them portable.

Ninthly. On what view you have interfered with the Steward's office, you best know, in your directions about delivering out the provisions; we know what provisions are received, what number of hands every day to be victualled, and he keeps an account of provisions expended. If it has proceeded from a suspicion that more provisions may be delivered out than necessary, by which an extraordinary expense will arise, we wish you would consider how often we have requested you to send from this post your negro, (which we now insist on,) who is a nuisance, and has caused more dissatisfaction amongst the people than ever we could learn from any particular favours shown to the country carpenters. Your addition of a clerk for yourself, is an officer we can by no means allow of, and for the above reason, desire, if you retain him, to pay and provide provision for him at your own expense. You cannot have forgot when you recommended Mr. Vandome to Messrs. Bayard, Bedlow, and Hanson, that he was to assist you in your writing.

Tenthly. As to the number of unwelcome guests we so frequently have had, you know it has never met with our approbation; and have frequently informed the Provincial Congress of the impropriety of suffering it.

Lastly. As to your entreaty to make the necessary alterations you have recommended in your conclusion, we think the above a sufficient reply; and could any alteration, in this advanced season of the year, take place, to advance the fortifications, no persons would more gladly embrace them to further the publick service we are engaged in, as we think ourselves as much interested to do it, in the rank the honourable Provincial Congress of this Province have placed us in, as possibly you can be. We know the powers we are invested with, and will be glad to see you not interrupt them, by assuming sole director in every thing here. Upon the whole, we assure you, Sir, we have no other desire than to treat you as a gentleman who has an important trust committed (with us) to your charge. Therefore, to avoid every thing that should interrupt that harmony that ought to subsist amongst persons employed in the cause of American liberty, do desire that, whenever you want to have any piece of work done, we may come together and consult about it, that we may approve or not.

We are, Sir, your very humble servants,

WILLIAM BEDLOW,
JONATHAN LAWRENCE,
THOMAS GRENELL.

To Bernard Romans, Engineer.

COMMISSIONERS FOR FORTIFICATIONS TO NATHANIEL WOODHULL.

Highlands, November 11, 1775.

SIR: We beg you will lay the following lines before the honourable Provincial Congress, respecting our present situation. We have now a block-house completed, with eight four-pounders in the upper story. The curtain of the intended fort, of two hundred feet in length, will be finished up to the parapet in a few days, weather permitting; the grand bastion, round the eminence on which the block-house stands, but little advanced, and think, from the advanced season of the year, nothing further on that can be expected to be done. We shall endeavour to get a small magazine finished in the northwest corner of the curtain, if brick can be procured in time, we having been disappointed in a kiln we had engaged near us, by its turning out very bad; the platform to the curtain will also be complete in a few days. A barrack of eighty feet by twenty finished; one adjoining it, of one hundred feet by twenty, under cover, floored, and completed, all to the stacks of chimneys and glazing. As, according to the Engineer's plan, a great deal more work is to be done, especially a block-house on an eminence two hundred yards to the southeast of the one finished, which the Engineer is for going on with, as it commands the river down below the West-Point, we would be glad to know if any of the artificers and labourers should be retained at this post the winter, for going on with the works whenever the weather will permit; and if it would be agreeable to retain some carpenters, we had not better keep the country carpenters and discharge the York ones, as the former are better qualified for such works as we shall now have to do; they work more faithful, and under better order. We have had a great deal of wet weather, which has retarded our work much.

We should be glad to have the directions of the honourable Provincial Congress herein; and are, Sir, your humble servants,

SAMUEL BAYARD,
WILLIAM BEDLOW,
THOMAS GRENELL,
JONA. LAWRENCE.

To Nathaniel Woodhull, Esq.

PETITION AND MEMORIAL OF BERNARD ROMANS.

To the Honourable the Provincial Congress for the Province of NEW-YORK, now convened at the City of NEW-YORK, or, during their recess, to the Honourable the Committee of Safety.

The Petition and Memorial of BERNARD ROMANS most humbly sheweth:

That your petitioner and memorialist having, since the 28th day of August last, been employed on the business of erecting and building fortifications in this Province; and that, on the 2d day of October last, he was, by the honourable Committee of Safety, examined as to the situation and nature of the ground pitched upon for a fort in the Highlands, of all which your petitioner and memorialist gave ample information and a plan; that the honourable Committee of Safety then directed your petitioner and memorialist to produce a draught of such works as your petitioner and memorialist thought most adequate and proper to be there erected, for the defence and obstruction of the navigation of the North River, as also an estimate of expense that might accrue in erecting the same, which plans were, to his great satisfaction, approved of; that the honourable Committee of Safety then inquired on what terms your humble petitioner and memorialist would engage to build and erect said works; that, in answer to such inquiry, he, your humble petitioner and memorialist, proposed to undertake the matter for a sum nearly equal to the sum mentioned in the aforesaid estimate, which was, for reasons unknown to him, rejected; but, in lieu thereof, was, by the said honourable Committee, appointed Engineer for the Province of New-York, with the rank and pay of a Colonel, which appointment your petitioner and memorialist thought the height of favour bestowed on him, and therefore accepted it, without any considerations beyond those of gratitude, and that it was a great honour that such a trust should be reposed in him; and your humble petitioner and memorialist only took the freedom to request knowing whether it was meant as an establishment or not, to which your humble petitioner received an answer in the affirmative; that your humble petitioner and memorialist expected a commission and instructions for a line of his conduct would have been granted to and made out for him, and by the first opportunity sent up to him, in full confidence whereof your humble petitioner and memorialist immediately repaired to the post intended, where he has exerted himself to the utmost of his power, under the limited circumstances he has been obliged to labour under; that your humble petitioner has not received any such written appointment nor instructions, which makes him think that he labours under uncertain circumstances. Your humble petitioner and memorialist, thinking himself, as projector, entitled to be director of the above works, has found himself grossly mistaken, and his orders continually counterordered and his plans contradicted, especially in an erroneous distribution of labourers and artificers, which he made complaint of to the honourable Committee the first time he appeared before that Board, for the truth whereof he appeals to the memory of the members present; and this distribution has since been still altered greatly for the worse, and by this, especially, expenses have accrued which he never intended should in any ways originate; as also in the building of a sudden addition of barracks, which, however, was, by your humble petitioner and memorialist, judged to be in obedience to the orders of said honourable Committee, and therefore gave directions for the same, which have been by every method contravened, and an erroneous plan substituted. Your humble petitioner and memorialist has often expostulated with the Commissioners on this head, remonstrating that hereafter it would be asked who was Engineer, but never who were Commissioners; and that he has at length delivered to them the annexed instrument of writing, to which they have given him an answer, and he again made a reply. Your humble petitioner and memorialist, therefore, prays that you would give him his commission, as promised, and take him out of this dreadful dilemma, where, at first setting out, his character cannot fail to suffer, and appoint him in the field, or elsewhere, where his abilities may stand a fair trial. Your humble petitioner and memorialist is not one of those men who consider themselves injured, if the first appointment in the State is not conferred on them. No. But if it be thought requisite to continue him here, he begs that it may please you to alter his appointment, so that the Commissioners must consult him in every thing, that he may at least have some shadow of the dignity of the office he bears, for he knows that in all states whatever an Engineer, whose plan is once approved of, knows no superior, but in the execution thereof his word is law. Your humble petitioner and memorialist does not mean to have any thing to do in money matters, but he begs leave to observe, that had the Engineer been told "such a sum is to be expended; you must consider this, and regulate your plan accordingly; and the Commissioners are directed to go by no means beyond those limits;" in that case, the Engineer must have been lost to all sense of honour, if he had not fixed his pride in making a good work, and endeavoured to contract the expense below the limits of his estimate; but, as your humble petitioner and memorialist is now placed, the treatment he receives must grate a man of but a grain of spirit, as it makes him contemptible in the eyes of the workmen, and continually places him in the situation of a man conscious of his own abilities under the absolute command of a schoolboy. Your humble petitioner and memorialist begs leave to observe to the honourable House, that his office is a very exercising one, keeping body and mind constantly employed together, and therefore humbly prays that an assistant may be granted to him; and as persons in some measure acquainted with the art are certainly most proper for this purpose, he begs leave to request that he may retain with him in the service a man of whose talents and fidelity he has had an experience for years together, and who is now with him—submitting this, however, to the discretion of the honourable House: your humble petitioner likewise prays some allowance of provisions for the maintenance of a servant. Your humble petitioner and memorialist hopes that this prayer and memorial may not any ways be construed as originating in ill will, or other sinister intent against the Commissioners. By no means; his acquaintance with three of them, at least, forbids it; he judges them to be honest, well-meaning men, who, in their Country's cause, have self not so much at heart, but would sacrifice life and property for liberty; yet their anxious care for the pecuniary affairs of their Country leads them into such methods of saving as a little experience will soon convince them and all the concerned are very expensive; and this only has given ground to the premises. By granting the above prayer to your humble petitioner and memorialist, he will ever think himself in duty bound, &c.

Highlands, November 15, 1775.

BERNARD ROMANS.

COLONEL ROMANS TO THE COMMISSIONERS FOR FORTIFICATIONS.

Martelaer's Rock, November 16, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: As I am a great hater of epistolary altercation, I was not willing to answer your long starter of difficulties, which seems to me a declared commencement of a paper war, instead of an answer to my reasonable remonstrances of the 2d inst.; but as I am determined that you should not think yourselves unanswerable, I resolved, this morning, to honour your long answer with as short a reply as the nature of things will allow; at the same time assuring you that this is the last paper I shall blacken on this head, and that I will take care that my pen shall proclaim the voice of truth.

Your introduction seems intended to be of the humorous kind. You play on my words, and call a conspicuous light what I called a rank. I will do no more than think as I did then; and as in a private station I have more than once exerted myself for America, you may rely on it that I will do no less now I am honoured with the post and rank the Congress has conferred on me, the dignity of which commission I shall try to preserve with military vigilance and spirit.

To your first, wherein you say "it was my duty to let the Commissioners know the proportion of labourers wanted to the artificers," I knew my duty, I did it; and so I did to the Committee of Safety; which last, I dare say, remember my complaint about it. And if the Commissioners' memory fail them, some one of them may remember, when one evening we were on that topick, I ventured to say, that since my plan was approved of, I thought myself the person who should direct all. The polite answer I got on that head, I have not forgot, though it made me resolve an imposition of silence on myself, till the state of affairs would naturally dispose matters to flow in their proper channels. How far you are judges of work, I know not, as I am not acquainted with your extent of experience; but I often heard you complain of the freezing out of the masonry. I beg leave to inform you, that on a single brick wall, of nine inches thick, a frost may take out three inches on each side, but it cannot take out quite so much of our wall; because, as the thickness increases, the effect of the frost decreases, and cannot be more than two inches at most on the outside of our works, which must be pointed over again in the spring, and this new pointing I mentioned before ten stones were laid in the wall. All men, who ever were necessitated to work late in thick work, will, from experience, vouch the truth of my assertion.

To your second and third, relating to the block-house, I did not exaggerate my number of carpenters. I still stand to my promise, and can do it. I do not remember any expostulation, except shrugging up shoulders can be called so, for that always was the answer to my many times repeated complaints in regard of hewing and re-hewing of the timber; and whenever that kind of expostulation happened, I used to recollect your original polite answer of "we are not grown so old to allow you to direct the work." With regard to a road, you made your landing in a wrong place before I came here; and when I used to be angry at so many hands working on roads, at unseasonable times and unnecessary places, I always got my labour for my pains. And how shortly is it ago since I got the ill-will of one of you, for barely telling the labourers that there was no necessity to remove a certain stone laying near a road which was then making? My proposal of oxen was as soon as they became necessary; and I then said buying was preferable to hiring, unless people would bring forage along with them. You might have bought them; but instead of that, you countermanded some that were bought, as you did of getting of timber, even now, before one-fifth of the timber is got that is mentioned in my estimate. What you mean by an elegant outside appearance, I cannot conceive. My calculation of the necessary iron-work is just, except, indeed, the rings and staples outside of the ports, which I never thought of, nor would have had them there, had you not ordered some one to put them there. About the inside lined with so much nicety and expense, the extra cost of this is no more than one day and a half, easy work, for a carpenter, (about fourteen shillings,) for it must be lined, let who will live in it; and as it is generally the residence of an officer, as this is now for me, I thought passing the jack-plane over one side of the lining was the least that could be done. What would you have said had I lined the roof, divided the lower room with panel partitions, and put up a panel ceiling, to remove and put up at pleasure; for most block-houses are so, and the meanest are partitioned. It seems your idea of a temporary work is, that it ought to last six months, to build a new one again.

As to treenails, I ordered two thousand of oak, when locust was not to be had. I do not know what ruined your credit; but the badness of that, among the country people, prevents your getting any thing regularly. I planned, gentlemen, but remember you ordered even that; though you could not so well direct that case, as you could when you spoiled my plan of the barracks.

What you mean by a waste of timber, I am utterly at a loss for. My order, of eighteen feet long, was right; and had I ordered them the just length, they might have come three inches too short, and then, indeed, it would have been waste; but had they been three inches too long, the sawing off of three inches would take as long time as sawing off two, three, and ten feet, which I wanted elsewhere.

The day I got your epistle, I looked around the works for waste timber. I saw none but chips; and I confess I was struck with the thought, what a pity it was nature gave our carpenters so much trouble. The truth is, gentlemen, you have no business with any calculations of the kind. You are to judge afterwards. You have before now seen what your no trifling extraordinary expense of timber goes to. The mention you make of the pieces being unwieldy, is curious. I cannot see what odds it made to the men, to have them sawed at the landing or at the mill. They would have been eleven feet in either case; and excepting some trifling iron-work, that was not finished, I was right in my judgment about the 10th of November, for that day I lived in it, and I received your letter there. By what necessity do you introduce the order for mounting twelve guns? Have I ever opposed it; and are we not on the point of having twenty?

To the fourth, I must tell you, that Mr. White, the master carpenter, being an acquaintance of Mr. Bayard, was indulged with a liberty to make evening visits to you; and this gave rise to a distinction, insomuch that Mr. Adams has been told to let Mr. White go on with such and such particular work; he, Adams, need not trouble himself about it. This produced two master carpenters, and Adams justly complained of the matter, because White at first treated him as his superior, but at length became his equal. Yet still I think, as I did then, country carpenters are preferable; and what makes the use of them impolitick, is a conception beyond my ideas.

Fifthly. My calculation of the oxen's work is evident. I can show your teamster how himself and one man may load his cart; but as every country clown knows how, it is below me, even while I am the paltry being that is not allowed to direct his own plan; for as the helping of the oxen is the finest skulking birth our labourers can find, I do not know whether I would be safe in destroying it, while I have no command. But, gentlemen, your wheels are too low; and when a new pair was bespoke, I pleaded long to have them timber wheels. But no. They must be common cart wheels; and now they are come, they are common cart wheels indeed. As to the six men employed to steady the stone, I only tried the oxen twice on the walls, and found the fear of the animals made it unsafe. I desisted, therefore, and men only have done it. You will please to remember that that machine was no cart, and with it I have brought stones of two ton weight to the wall, very different from a piece of timber of ten or even eight feet long. It was my invention; but any body might have thought of that, as well as of Columbus's egg. If my calculation of forage is below the mark, please to know that it is far above what the people of the country allow to their cattle.

Sixthly. Labourers may be had under the regulations I mentioned. I can get five hundred if need be.

In your seventh, you catch at my word "superficial," as drowning people do at straws. I will tell you something, perhaps, to you, extraordinary. What I call a superficial view, was such as most other surveyors would call a perfect survey. I am, from long experience, enabled to take more exact surveys of places, with a piece of paper and pencil, than perhaps ninety-nine besides me can, with all the circumstantial apparatus generally used. It is true, I forgot the iron for the barracks; but have you mended that mistake, by using nearly as much on one block-house as I intended to use for the whole work? Glass is a trifle; three hundred and eighteen panes cost about six pounds twelve shillings and six pence. Transport of stores surely includes freight for boards and shingles; and work to be made on the spot, by the blacksmith, surely showed that I was aware more iron would be required than I could think of. In short, I am more and more convinced that my estimate is right, the price of the article of lime only excepted, which I calculated at Philadelphia or New-England prices, little dreaming that it cost above twice as much in New-York.

To your eighth, I insist on it, you must have miners here. And as to the labourers mauling the stone, need I tell you, gentlemen, that I have often been out of all humour to see them work in stone that would not split, as I knew how to get them to the wall, of any size. But here again my authority failed me.

To the beginning of your ninth: I have, perhaps, gone a little below the dignity of my office. This proceeded, chiefly, because I found that many of our gentry took the advantage of drawing their provisions, when they intended to decamp the very next morning. But what I mentioned about tools in this article is what you ought to have answered. Here I spoke in my proper sphere; but this you waived, to proceed to a matter which, had I not been convinced of the integrity of your transcriber, I could never have thought would have proceeded from you, it looks so much like the little vengeance of disappointed scolds. I deny your ever having requested me to send my negro away. Mr. Bedlow once told me this: "Mr. Romans, you had better get a place for your negro;" but I could not construe this into a request, much less an order from men who have no manner of authority over me. The negro is more rogue than fool; but he is so harmless, that while people let him alone, he will be quiet. He is a new negro, and by his actions he sometimes diverts your people; but I defy you to point out a single instance of dissatisfaction on that score. Once, indeed, there was a complaint against him, for which I gave him a severe chastisement; and you know that I had reason to be sorry when, almost immediately after, his innocence appeared. But, gentlemen, he never cost you nor the Country anything, as there was never an ounce of provision served out for him. He has lived on scraps from others; and he must be a sorry dog, indeed, that does not deserve the crumbs from his master's table. He might at least serve me to fetch wood and water. I have provided a place for him, but not in obedience to you.

It is hard, indeed, that I, who in my private station have for many years past never been without a servant, or even two or three, should be raised to a publick one to be debarred that privilege. I know no place where so cruel a prohibition would take place. While I was in the service of the King, my pay was greater, and I had sundry rations allowed, although my servants were in pay, and drew provisions besides. Since I arrived last to the northward, now near three years ago, I have always maintained and fed a number of people, seldom less than six, at high wages, and now not to be allowed any attendance at all is surely never meant. People whose duty it was to ask me whether I was in want of any thing, have been reprimanded for coming to the block-house. But your mention of Mr. Adams astonished me beyond everything. Was it necessary, my copy-book would show you his handwriting, to make it appear that he has for years back transacted my business. He is a gentleman in whose fortunes I am interested, and I will assist him with all my means. You say he is an officer you can by no means allow of. Sure I want him not to be your officer. If he is mine, it is enough. And to it you add, "If you retain him, pay and procure provision for him." How mean the innuendo. I have often done it. It is true it was said Mr. Vandome was to assist me. He came up to be the clerk of the check, and as such you retained him; but since I saw him employed as commissary of stores, and as clerk to the Commissioners, as well as clerk of the check, I thought it cruel to ask assistance from him. My business, well followed, is three men's work. Perhaps you think me your officer too. Softly, gentlemen; that will never do. The Congress appointed me to a rank I esteem more honourable than any I ever held. Yet, for fourteen years back, I have been sometimes employed as a commodore in the King's service, sometimes at the head of large bodies of men in the woods, and, at the worst of times, I have been master of a merchantman, fitted in a warlike manner. I will, in future, draw the provisions the Congress will allow me, and that will maintain us both.

To your tenth, I have nothing to reply.

But your lastly is too important to let pass unnoticed. The necessary alterations must be made before the work goes on well; and as for seasons, such business as this waits none. If we keep not the work going, we will, in spring, again be new beginners. I interrupt none of your powers. I meddle with none; but you have hindered me from having as much again work done; and till I am sole director of my plan, things cannot go well. None can be more happy in the union you mention; but if I must be cap in hand, gentlemen, to be an overseer under you, it will not do, depend upon it. I have too much blood in me for so mean an action, and you must seek such submissive engineers elsewhere. If I execute my plan, which is approved of, I have no business to consult you any further than that you must find me people and pay them. If, in that case, I do not comply with my enterprise, then is your time to disapprove and complain, but not before.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
B. ROMANS.

The Commissioners for the Fortifications in the Highlands.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

Cambridge, November 5, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 26th ultimo, with the enclosures, containing an account of the surrender of Fort Chamby, was an excellent report, but somewhat incomplete for want of Montgomery's letter, which (a copy) you omitted to enclose. On the success of your enterprise so far I congratulate you, as the acquisition of Canada is of unmeasurable importance to the cause we are engaged in.

No account of Arnold since my last. I am exceeding anxious to hear from him, as he was expressly ordered, in case of any discouraging event, to advertise me of it immediately.

I much approve your conduct in regard to Wooster. My fears are at an end, as he acts in a subordinate character. Intimate this to General Montgomery, with my congratulations on his success, the seasonable supply of powder, and wishes that his next letter may be dated from Montreal. We laugh at his idea of classing the Royal Fusiliers with the stores. Does he consider them as inanimates, or as a treasure? If you carry your arms to Montreal, should not the garrison of Niagara, Detroit, &c., be called upon to surrender, or threatened with the consequences of a refusal? They may, indeed, destroy their stores, and, if the Indians are aiding, escape to Fort Chartres; but it is not very probable.

The enclosed Gazette exhibits sundry specimens of the skill of the new commander in issuing proclamations, and a proof, in the destruction of Falmouth, of the barbarous designs of an infernal Ministry. Nothing new has happened in this camp. Finding the Ministerial troops resolved to keep themselves close within their lines, and that it was adjudged impracticable to get at them, I have fitted six armed vessels, with design to pick up some of their store-ships and transports. The rest of our men are busily employed in erecting of barracks, &c.

I hope, as you have said nothing of the state of your health, that it is much amended, and that the cold weather will restore it perfectly. That it may do so, and you enjoy the fruit of your summer's labour and fatigue, is the sincere wish of, dear Sir, yours, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Major-General Schuyler, Northern Department.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO CAPTAIN BARTLETT.

Cambridge, November 5, 1775.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency to acknowledge your favour of yesterday, by Captain Brown, which brings an account of a sloop from Boston, bound to Annapolis Royal, having fallen into our hands. It is his Excellency's pleasure that you take an accurate inventory of all the goods on board, and, as soon as you conveniently can, transmit them to Head-Quarters, where there is no doubt that, when sold, they will bring a better price than they would at your place. The General will, at finishing the sale, make such satisfaction to those two resolute fellows who first ventured on board, and to the rest who engaged in that adventure, as in such cases is proper and customary. He desires me, Sir, to assure you he approves much of your conduct in this affair, and doubts not, from your character, that he will have further reason to do so in your agency, which I sincerely hope will be of consequence to you and to the publick. As to the people found on board, it is his Excellency's pleasure that, on their giving the best security they can that they will not act against America, they be discharged, taking with them their clothes and necessaries, except the Captain and owner, whom you will please to send to Head-Quarters for examination. Let the vessel be laid up at the wharf until further orders. We heard of Manly's being at Plymouth, as yet unsuccessful.

Providence has sent us a good supply of wine, by a vessel from Philadelphia being stranded at Eastham, with an hundred and twenty pipes, bound to Boston; one hundred and eighteen of them saved, which are ordered to this place.

I am, with great regard, Sir, your most humble servant,
STEPHEN MOYLAN, Sec. pro tem.

To Captain William Bartlett, Agent, Beverly.

ORDER IN COUNCIL.

At the Court at St. James's, the 6th day of November, 1775: Present, the King's Most Excellent Majesty in Council.

Whereas there was this day read at the Board a Report from a committee of the Lords of His Majesty's most honourable Privy Council, dated the 4th of this instant, upon considering a representation from the Lords Commissioners for Trade and Plantations, proposing that all ships and vessels clearing out for the coast of Africa, for trade, should be permitted to take on board and export such quantities of Gunpowder and Military Stores as shall be necessary for their respective voyages: His Majesty, taking the said report into consideration, is pleased, with the advice of his Privy Council, to approve thereof, and to order, as it is hereby ordered, that all ships and vessels clearing out for the coast of Africa, for the purpose of carrying on the trade for Slaves, Ivory, and Gold, be permitted to take on board, as an assorted part of their cargoes, as much Gunpowder, and as large a quantity of Trading-Guns, Pistols, Cutlasses, Flints and Lead Balls, Bars and Shot, as the exporters shall think necessary; provided, that sufficient security be given to the principal officers of His Majesty's customs of the port in which they are fitted out, and before they proceed upon their respective voyages, in treble the value of the articles so exported, that the same shall be expended in trade upon the coast of Africa; which security is not to be cancelled until proof of such expenditure has been made by the oath of the Captain or master of the ship or vessel, in like manner as is practised with regard to Spirits and East-India goods, used in carrying on that trade. And His Majesty is further pleased to order, that all ships and vessels trading to the said coast be allowed to take on board, for their defence, whatever quantity of Carriage-Guns, Swivels, and Small-Arms, shall be judged proper by the respective masters thereof; provided, that no greater quantity be taken on board any one ship, for her defence, than twelve Carriage-Guns and twelve Swivels, together with one Musket or Blunderbuss, one pair of Pistols, and one Cutlass, for every person of which the ship's company shall consist, and Ammunition in proportion; provided, that sufficient security be, in the like manner, first given to the said principal officers of the customs at the ports where the ships shall be fitted out, in treble the value thereof, to bring back the Carriage-Guns, Swivels, and Small-Arms, so taken on board for the defence of the ships, when the voyage is completed; and to account upon oath for the expenditure of the Ammunition. And the right honourable the Lords Commissioners of His Majesty's Treasury are to give the necessary directions herein accordingly. W. BLAIR.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF NAIRN.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Borough of Nairn, presented to His Majesty by Col. Hector Munro, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Borough of NAIRN.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most faithful subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Borough of Nairn, think it our indispensable duty upon this occasion to approach our Sovereign, and, with unanimous voice, to testify that loyalty and attachment, which so mild and equitable a Government must ever create in the minds of a grateful and affectionate people.

Deeply sensible of the many blessings we enjoy under the happy auspices of such a reign, we cannot but reflect with horror and detestation on the audacious attempts that have been made to alienate the affections of your subjects, and kindle the flame of civil war. May such infernal machinations recoil on those flagitious heads that framed them, and every latent viper of sedition be dragged to open light.

The differences between Great Britain and her Colonies have now come to such a crisis, that every community, every individual, ought to be interested in the publick cause. Weak as our utmost efforts may be deemed, and limited our powers, each heart and hand devoted to your service will, with the most ardent zeal, contribute in promoting such measures as may be now thought necessary for re-establishing the violated rights of the British Legislature, and bringing back to order and allegiance your Majesty's deluded and unhappy subjects in America.

By order of the Magistrates and Council,

LEVIS ROSE, Provost.

Nairn, November 6, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF HEREFORD.

Address of the Mayor, Aldermen, and chief Citizens of the City of Hereford, presented to His Majesty by Sir Richard Symons, Baronet, one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most faithful subjects, the Mayor, Aldermen, and chief Citizens of the ancient and loyal City of Hereford, in Council assembled, beg leave, at this alarming and critical juncture, to tender our sentiments of duty and affection to your Majesty, and our inviolable attachment to our free and happy Constitution.

Penetrated with these sentiments, we lament the unnatural defection of part of your Majesty's subjects in America, from their allegiance to this their Parent State, as well as the unsuccessful endeavours hitherto used to bring them back to their duty.

We trust your Majesty, of your great wisdom and clemency, will apply wise and wholesome measures to conciliate their affections, and reclaim those deluded people to a true sense of their duty and interest.

But, alas! should such measures fail, we beg leave to assure your Majesty that we are ready, to the utmost of our abilities, to support your Majesty in such vigorous and constitutional measures as may best conduce to accomplish this salutary purpose, and promote the happiness and dignity of your Majesty and the whole British Empire.

Given under our common seal, at the Guildhall in the said City, the sixth day of November, in the year of our Lord one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

ADDRESS OF THE BURGH OF INVERNESS.

Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of Inverness, presented to His Majesty by Colonel Hector Munro, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of the Burgh of INVERNESS.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Provost, Magistrates, and Town Council of your Burgh of Inverness, beg leave to approach your throne with the most sincere expressions of duty and attachment to your Majesty's person and Government.

We acknowledge, with the highest degree of gratitude, the many blessings we enjoy in common with all your subjects, under your Majesty's mild and just Government; and we cannot avoid expressing our utmost detestation and abhorrence of that spirit of rebellion which has unhappily broke forth among your Majesty's subjects in America, and has induced them to take up arms against your Majesty and the just authority of the Legislature.

It is with the greatest sorrow that we behold the seditious designs of discontented and factious men so far attended with success as to seduce your infatuated and deluded subjects in the Colonies from their allegiance and duty to your Majesty and their Parent State; and we do solemnly declare our determined resolution of supporting your Majesty's Government, to the utmost of our power, against all attempts that may be made to disturb it, either at home or abroad.

Our most sincere and ardent prayers are, that your Majesty's reign may be long and prosperous, and that you may always have the satisfaction of finding yourself the Sovereign of a grateful, free, and happy people.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, the seal of the Town being affixed, at Inverness, the 6th day of November, 1775.

WILLIAM CHISHOLM, Provost.

ADDRESS OF THE CITY OF OXFORD.

Address of the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty of the City of Oxford, in the County of Oxford, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Lord Robert Spencer, one of their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Bailiffs, and Commonalty of the City of Oxford, in the County of Oxford, in Common Council assembled, should think ourselves failing in that duty which we owe to your Majesty, if, at a time when the greatest part of your British Dominions have declared their loyalty to your sacred person, we should remain in silence, without giving your Majesty the same assurances of our affection towards you, the same promises of supporting your just rights, and the same expressions of that indignation which we feel at the unnatural and rebellious spirit which now pervades the Continent of America.

We have observed, with the most sincere and heartfelt pleasure, that your Majesty has not been tempted to endanger the Constitution of Great Britain, by accepting the alluring offers of an unconstitutional increase of your prerogative.

We have observed, too, with the same satisfaction, that your Majesty has made every possible effort to put a stop to the effusion of blood, and to bring back your American subjects to their former obedience, without tainting the dignity of your crown, or hurting the safety of your realm. That part of your Majesty's gracious speech, by which we are given to understand that your commissions, sent to America, contain in them a power of granting special or general pardons, and of receiving the submission of whole Provinces, confirms our ideas of your Majesty's earnest desire of a reconciliation with your deluded Colonies.

We thought that America had reason to complain of the unconditional, unlimited right of taxation claimed by the Parliament of Great Britain, but as the grievance was, in our apprehension, redressed by a measure taken in the last session of Parliament, and as America has contemptuously rejected that redress, absolutely, even without making it a ground of treaty, we cannot but think that she entertains views totally inconsistent with the subordination which she, by every principle of right and sound policy, owes to the Crown and Parliament of Great Britain.

Confiding in your Majesty's good intentions, in the firm resolution of your Ministers, in the steady support of your two Houses of Parliament, in the loyalty of your faithful subjects, and in that high spirit of this Nation, which in a just cause has always enabled her to surmount the greatest difficulties, we offer to your Majesty our most hearty assurances of supporting the rights of your crown, and of maintaining the legislative authority of your Parliament, in every part of your extended Dominions.

Given under our common seal, at our Council Chamber, in the City of Oxford, the sixth day of November, in the sixteenth year of your Majesty's reign.

HENRICO COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Freeholders of Henrico County, on Monday, the 6th of November, 1775, for the purpose of electing a Committee, agreeable to ordinance of Convention, upon closing the ballot, a majority of votes appeared for the following gentlemen, viz: Peter Winston, Nathaniel Wilkinson, Turner Southall, Martin Burton, Samuel Price, Richard Adams, Joshua Storrs, Joseph Lewis, Daniel Price, John Hales, Thomas Pleasants, Reverend Miles Selden, Daniel Lawrence Hylton, Samuel Duval, Thomas Prosser, Abraham Cowley, David Bowles, Julius Allen, Richard Randolph, Doctor John Powell, and Isaac Younghusband, who are accordingly appointed a Committee as aforesaid. After which, fifteen members being present, formed a meeting.

Resolved, unanimously, That the Rev. Miles Selden be appointed Chairman to this Committee.

Resolved, That John Beckley be appointed Clerk.

Resolved, unanimously, That no Provision, Fuel, or Naval Stores, be allowed to be water-borne, from this County, without the permission of the honourable Committee of Safety first had and obtained for that purpose.

Zachariah Rowland, who stood bound with Samuel Duval, gent., his security, in the penalty of one hundred Pounds, payable to the members of the last Committee, and their successors, upon condition of his complying with a resolution of the Committee made the 14th of October last, to prohibit his exporting a quantity of provision and fuel, shipped on board a vessel, of which he is part owner, from this County to Norfolk, or lower down James River than Jamestown, without the permission of the honourable Committee of Safety, this day appeared, and prayed an inquiry into his conduct upon that occasion, and that this Committee would bear testimony of the guilt or innocence thereof to the publick. He then produced an extract from the proceedings of the honourable Committee of Safety; also, a certificate under the hand of Colonel Patrick Henry; from which, and the testimony of Captain John Kerr, a witness who was sworn and examined, it appears that the said Zachariah Rowland waited upon the honourable Committee of Safety, to know their determination respecting his vessel; and that, upon finding they were of opinion that she ought not to proceed to Norfolk, with the said provisions and fuel, he sent different written messages to his partner, John Leonard, then on board the said vessel, at the mouth of Archer's Hope Creek, apprizing him of the determination of that honourable body, and of their common danger, in case of a non-compliance therewith. It also appears, that all the said written messages reached the hands of the said John Leonard; and that, notwithstanding the same, and all the diligence and precaution the said Zachariah Rowland could make use of to prevent it, the vessel actually proceeded in the night time, with the said provision and fuel on board, to Norfolk, of which Mr. Rowland immediately gave information to the honourable Committee of Safety. It further appears, that, in a short time after, two tenders from the Navy came up to the mouth of Archer's Hope Creek and seized two other vessels, which were in the same predicament with Mr. Rowland's. Upon consideration of which, this Committee are unanimously of opinion, that the procedure of the said vessel as above-mentioned, contrary to the determination of the honourable Committee of Safety, was not done with the privity, knowledge, or consent, of the said Zachariah Rowland; but that he has done every thing in his power to comply therewith, and throughout the whole of his conduct upon that occasion manifested himself a real friend to the rights and liberties of his Country. And the said Zachariah Rowland, and Samuel Duval, his security, are discharged from their recognizance abovementioned, which is hereby declared to be void.

By order of the Committee:

JOHN BECKLEY, Clerk.

VOLKERT P. DOUW TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

[Read November 11, 1775.]

Albany, November 6, 1775.

SIR: This is to inform you that Mr. Deane (who was sent by the Commissioners to the Six Nations, to recapitulate to them what was said to them at the treaty here in Albany) is returned, and informs me that the Cayuga, Mohawk, and Senecas, who went with Colonel Johnson, are returned from Canada, and informed their brethren that they had taken up the hatchet against the Colonies, at the request of Colonel Johnson, in Canada, which their brethren, who had been on the treaty here, were much displeased with, and insisted that they should bring said hatchet to the Commissioners at Albany, to be buried; others were that they should bring back to Colonel Johnson. The majority were for its being brought to Albany, to the Commissioners; and they have let me know that, the latter end of the month, sixty or seventy of the chiefs will be here for that purpose, which will be attended with a considerable expense. And as I have no orders from the honourable Congress to lay out any money for their travelling expenses to and fro, I should be glad to have any directions from the honourable Board how to act, whether I am to lay out at my discretion, and to be accountable to the honourable Congress, or be limited to a certain sum; of which I shall be glad to be informed per bearer.

As the Commissioners, at the treaty here, recommended to the honourable Congress to send two blacksmiths in the Indian country, since which, one of the chiefs has been here with a string of wampum, and desired me not to fail sending smiths in their country, (I having had no orders from the honourable Congress to send any, it is yet omitted,) as they have for these many years past constantly had them, both from former Commissioners and Sir William; and if possible that they may have some powder, as, without that, they cannot support themselves and families.

As they are now well disposed towards us, I think it expedient to exert ourselves in maintaining that harmony, which I have and always will endeavour to cultivate and maintain, to the utmost of my power, but it will be certainly attended with expenses.

As I have no interpreter, (and frequent occasions for one,) I beg the honourable Congress will appoint or give me authority to appoint one.

I am, Sir, your most obedient and humble servant.

VOLKERT P. DOUW.

To the Honourable John Hancock, Esq., President of the Continental Congress, at Philadelphia.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, November 6, 1775.

DEAR GENERAL: Your Excellency's favour of the 26th ultimo I had the honour to receive on the 3d instant.

I have long since signified to Congress the necessity of a delegation from them to this place, and in their last to me, of the 12th ult., they (unfortunately for me) say that it did not appear necessary then. I took the liberty to lament that they were not in sentiment with me on the subject, and to add that I thought it absolutely necessary that one should be sent, so that I hope soon to see some of the gentlemen here. A variety of regulations are necessary to be made in this quarter; a task to which I feel myself greatly inadequate, but which, if I had even judgment enough to arrange with propriety, the shattered condition of my constitution is such that matters so momentous as these should not be left to so precarious an event as that of my being able to support the fatigue; for General Montgomery, though endowed with shining abilities, will have his time so totally engrossed with other matters, that he will not be able to attend to these.

Should success crown our endeavours at St. John's, of which there seems to be little doubt, the entire reduction of Canada will, in all probability, be the consequence; an event which will open new scenes. An army to be formed and properly disposed of in that quarter; provisions, ammunition, and every necessary to be procured for it; preparations to be made for the next campaign; proper places to be determined on, and fortifications to be erected to defend that Province against any attacks that may be made on it in the ensuing year; small craft to be constructed here, that a re-enforcement may be speedily sent into Canada, in case it should be found necessary to support what troops may be stationed there; galleys, carrying heavy artillery, to prevent vessels of force from coming up the St. Lawrence; a mode of government to be adopted in a country where all will be anarchy and confusion without it; and probably a variety of other interesting regulations to take place, that do not just now occur to me.

Your Excellency will do me the justice to believe that I feel, in the most sensible manner, the favourable opinion you are pleased to entertain of me; and I am confident General Montgomery will not be less affected on what you observe of him. I do myself the pleasure, this day, to write that gentleman, and shall convey to him your best wishes and respects.

The vast benefit that would result from a successful conclusion of the campaign, in this quarter, has been so deeply impressed upon me, that I have often regretted that the operations were not commenced at an earlier period, and, when commenced, that so much tardiness prevailed in sending up the necessary stores and troops. That you, my dear General, should feel an anxiety to induce you to ask those questions which you have done in so polite and friendly a manner, is what I can easily suppose.

The difficulties under which General Montgomery has laboured have been in the extreme, and which he most pathetically laments in a letter to me of the 13th ult., an extract of which I do myself the honour to enclose your Excellency, together with the opinion of a Council of War held on that day, and which I forgot to transmit you in the hurry with which I sent off my last. And in his letter of the 23d ult. he says: "Our re-enforcements not yet arrived. At this instant I have not in my camp above seven hundred and fifty men, and I wish much to send a strong detachment to the Island of Montreal;" a manœuvre which would have taken place sooner, had it been in his power, or been prudent to have gone into, neither of which I think it was, and shall beg leave to make the following observations in support of this opinion.

At no period, until this, has it appeared to me that it would have been prudent to have passed St. John's, although a sufficient force could have been left for forming a blockade; for previous to the reduction of Chambly, and the success of our troops in repulsing the attack of Monsieur Regouville, who was sent from Montreal with two hundred and forty men, and expected to be joined by the inhabitants of three of the most populous parishes on the south side of the St. Lawrence, in which he was disappointed to a man, and which has in some measure evinced the temper of the Canadians towards us, and given us better assurances than any we have had of their friendly disposition, for until then their real sentiments were problematical; and about this time, too, we sunk their best armed vessel, so that we can now spare more men for an attack upon Montreal, which, if not prevented by other obstacles, was General Montgomery's intention, as soon as the re-enforcement above alluded to should arrive, which took place on the 26th or 27th, and consisted of General Wooster's, of three hundred and thirty-five, and Major Tutill, of Colonel Holmes's, with two hundred and twenty-five, officers of both included. In the numbers, however, he will be disappointed, as Gen. Wooster had returned four hundred and eighty-four effectives from Albany, but discharged ninety-nine between this and Albany, and left fifty-one sick here; and the others, too, fell greatly short of what I expected.

If a blockade had been formed before the above-mentioned events took place, it must have been sufficiently strong, not only to have guarded against the danger of a sortie, but to have prevented the enemy's armed vessels, which greatly surpassed ours in strength, from getting to the southward of us, and thereby effectually cut off every possibility of retreat; which, if they had been able to accomplish, the Canadians, I do firmly believe, would immediately have joined Mr. Carleton. But if a sufficient body had been left, that to make the attempt on Montreal would have been too weak for such a service; and if they had met with a repulse, the Canadians, in that case, would not have hesitated one moment to have acted against us, (as Colonel Allen, in his report to me, observes,) and all our hopes in Canada would have been at an end. But another difficulty presented itself, and which I do not know how the detachment which General Montgomery proposed to send, or has sent, will even now surmount—the want of craft to convey a body of troops, sufficient to promise success, to the Island of Montreal, across the St. Lawrence, (which is deep, rapid, and wide,) as no craft can pass the fort at St. John's, to go down the Sorel; which obstacles would be immediately removed on the reduction of that fortress, which I hope has taken place by this time, and then I shall have the fullest confidence that our labours will be at an end in this quarter, except from what difficulties may arise from the intemperate desire our people have to return to their habitations; my fears on which account I have expressed to Congress.

If we had passed it wholly, and could have got to and succeeded against Montreal, St. John's would undoubtedly have fallen. But what a vast risk! No less than that of the loss of the whole Army, the command of Lake Champlain, Ticonderoga, and Crown Point; for no retreat could possibly have taken place; the dependance on the Canadians uncertain. And if they had found us incapable of passing to Montreal for want of boats, or of retreating on the same account, it is certain we should have found them opposed to us.

In this view of things, I hope it will be thought that either attempt would have been injudicious.

I do myself the honour to enclose you sundry extracts of my letters to Congress, with extracts of their answers, by which your Excellency will perceive that I have hinted at several things which I conceived claimed the attention of Congress. Enclose you, also, a list of the officers made prisoners at St John's. The return of the non-commissioned officers and privates is either mislaid, or by mistake enclosed to Governour Trumbull.

Be so good as to assure the gentlemen of your family that they have my best wishes.

I have the honour to be your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

General Washington.

GENERAL MONTGOMERY TO GENERAL SCHUYLER.

[Extract.]

Camp near St. John's, October 13, 1775.

DEAR GENERAL: Some time ago I informed you of my intentions to make my approaches on the west side, as soon as the expected re-enforcement enabled me to undertake it. I had had a road cut to the intended ground, and some fascines made, when I was informed, by Major Brown, that a general dissatisfaction prevailed; that unless something was undertaken in a few days there would be a mutiny; and that the universal sense of the Army was to direct all our attention to the east side. The impatience of the troops to get home has prevented their seeing the impossibility of undertaking this business sooner, the duty being hard for the troops, even on the present confined state of operations.

When I mentioned my intentions, I did not consider I was at the head of troops who carry the spirit of freedom into the field, and think for themselves.

Upon considering the fatal consequences which might flow from a want of subordination and discipline, (should this ill-humour continue,) my unstable authority over troops of different Colonies, the insufficiency of the military law, and my own want of powers to enforce it, weak as it is, I thought it expedient to call the Field-Officers together. Enclosed I send you the result of our deliberations.

I am, &c.,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

Proceedings of a Council of War held at St. John's, OCTOBER 13, 1775.

I proposed establishing a battery of all our spare heavy cannon on the rising ground exactly opposite the stone house in the north redoubt, (in the west face of which there is but one embrasure open,) at the distance of about four hundred yards, securing this battery with a work capable of being well defended by two hundred men. From this battery our approaches might be continued to the ditch, and, by the time we arrived there, the fraise round the berm would be destroyed, the rampart in a ruinous state, and the large house (which is said to be their principal barrack) would be destroyed, as every shot that missed the rampart must take the house. Two four-pounders, on the east side, would answer the end of securing the west rampart in reverse, and thereby slackening the opposition of the enemy. By this mode of proceeding, if our ammunition held out, there would be, in my opinion, some prospect of success, notwithstanding the superior artillery of the garrison, which could not be mounted in its proper place time enough to prevent the erection of our battery. The Field-Officers were, to a man, of opinion that my reasons were insufficient, being afraid the designed ground was, at this season, too wet for approaches, and strongly of opinion our heavy cannon, on the east side, would more effectually distress the enemy by annoying their buildings; the fort having a gentle slope to the river, and which was urged as the strongest motive by destroying their schooner. In vain I represented that if every building was destroyed, the garrison could not surrender without a probability of an assault, which could never arise from any attack on the opposite side of the river; that the vessel could not be destroyed, because she would change her place in such a manner as to elude our batteries; that we had but little powder or time to throw away on experiments; that I had a moral certainty they would find themselves mistaken; and, finally, that they must take it upon themselves, for I would not oppose the general sense of the Army, and should enforce the measure by every effort in my power.

I cannot help observing to how little purpose I am here. Were I not afraid the example would be too generally followed, and that the publick service might suffer, I would not stay an hour at the head of troops whose operations I cannot direct. I must say I have no hopes of success, unless from the garrison's wanting provisions.

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

DANBURY (CONNECTICUT) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting of the Committee of Inspection for the Town of Danbury, November 6, 1775:

Resolved, That it be recommended to the Selectmen of Danbury, not to allow any persons from abroad to take up their residence in the said Town, unless they produce a Certificate from the Committee of Inspection, Observation, or Safety, for the Town or County from whence they remove, that they are friends to the cause of American liberty.

And it is likewise ordered, that this Resolve be published in Mr. Holt's Journal.

SAMUEL TAYLOR, Com. Clerk.

IN GENERAL ASSEMBLY, RHODE-ISLAND.

An Act for the punishment of persons who shall be found guilty of holding a traitorous correspondence with the Ministry of GREAT BRITAIN, or any of their Officers or Agents, or of supplying the Ministerial Army or Navy, that now is or may be employed in AMERICA against the UNITED COLONIES, with Provisions, Cannon, Arms, Ammunition, or warlike or naval Stores, or of acting as Pilots on board any of their Ships or Vessels.

Whereas the Ministry of Great Britain have, for several years last past, steadily pursued a plan for subjecting the inhabitants of the British Colonies in America to an absolute, unconditional state of slavery, and have proceeded at length to the burning of our Towns, and spreading desolation and slaughter, as far as it hath been in their power, through the Country, in a manner totally inconsistent with the practice of civilized nations, and unworthy of the reputation formerly sustained by British troops; and whereas the aforesaid Colonies have been reduced to the fatal necessity of taking up arms in defence of those inestimable rights and liberties which they derive from the unerring laws of nature and the fundamental principles of the British Constitution, and which they cannot resign but with their lives; and whereas several of the inhabitants of the said Colonies, lost to every generous sentiment of liberty, of love to their Country and posterity, have kept up a traitorous correspondence with, and supplied the Ministerial Troops and Navy, and some of them have acted as pilots on board their ships and vessels, whereby the safety and liberties of the said Colonies may be greatly endangered:

Be it therefore enacted by this General Assembly, and by the authority thereof it is enacted, That if any of the inhabitants of the said Colonies, within this Colony, or any of the inhabitants of this Colony, within any other Colony, shall be found guilty of holding a traitorous correspondence with the Ministry of Great Britain, or any of their officers and agents, or of supplying the Ministerial Army or Navy that now is or may be employed in America, against the United Colonies, with provisions, cannon, arms, ammunition, or warlike or naval stores, or of acting as pilots on board any of their ships or vessels, he or they so offending shall suffer the pains of death, as in cases of felony, and shall forfeit his lands, goods, and chattels, to the Colony, to be disposed of by the General Assembly as they shall think fit, all necessary charges of prosecution, condemnation, and execution, being first deducted; and that all offences against this act shall be cognizable before the Superior Court of Judicature, Court of Assize, and General Jail Delivery, of this Colony. The negotiation and treaty of the Town Council with Captain Wallace, respecting the supplying the ships of war stationed in the harbour of Newport, and the regulation thereof by the commanding officer, allowed of by this General Assembly at this present session, to be excepted out of this act.

And be it further enacted by this General Assembly,

That this act shall be in force in ten days after the rising of this Assembly; and that the same be published in the Providence Gazette and Newport Mercury.

HENRY WARD, Secretary.

November 6, 1775.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE COMMITTEE OF FALMOUTH.

Cambridge, November 6, 1775.

SIR: I received your favour of the 2d instant, and am very sorry it is not in my power to supply the necessities of the Town of Falmouth. I have referred the gentlemen who brought me your letter to the General Court of this Province, who, I hope, will fall upon some method for your assistance. The arrival of the Cerberus, man-of-war, is very alarming. I do not apprehend they will attempt to penetrate into the country, as you seem to be afraid of; if they should attempt to land any of their men, I would have the good people of the country by all means to make every possible opposition in their power, for it will be much easier to prevent their making a lodgement, than to force them from it when they have got possession.

I write by this conveyance to Colonel Phinney, who will give you every advice and assistance in his power. I sincerely sympathize with the people in the distress they are drove to, but it is in such times that they should exert themselves in the noble cause of liberty.

I am, Sir, &c.,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Enoch Moody, Esq., Chairman, &c.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL PHINNEY.

Cambridge, November 6, 1775.

SIR: Having received a letter from Mr. Enoch Moody, Chairman of the Committee of Falmouth, that the inhabitants of that Town are greatly alarmed by the arrival of the Cerberus, man-of-war, and are under great apprehension that some of the King's troops will be landed there, it is my desire that you raise all the force you can, and give the Town any assistance in your power. The difficulty of removing troops, after they have made a lodgement or got possession of a place, is too obvious to be mentioned. You will, therefore, use every possible method to prevent their effecting that, or penetrating into the country, until you have further orders.

I am, Sir, your very humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Edmund Phinney, at Falmouth.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO WILLIAM WATSON.

Head-Quarters, November 6, 1775.

SIR: I am ordered by his Excellency to acknowledge the receipt of your favours of the 30th ultimo and 3d instant. Such articles on board the vessels taken by Major Tupper as are subject to perish, you had better have sold off immediately; the vessels and appurtenances to be securely laid up, and the cargoes carefully stored, until further orders from hence. A manifest of the cargo you will please to send us as soon as made out. The advanced season of the year, and the difficulty in procuring cannon, will prevent the General's ordering more armed vessels to be fitted out for the present.

By your last, his Excellency observes that there are one hundred and eighteen pipes of wine saved out of a vessel bound to Boston, and wrecked at Eastham. It is his desire that you take immediate charge of them, and forward them to Cambridge with all speed, where they will be sold for the publick use, and where they will fetch a good price, if their quality is tolerable. Captain Coit has, I find, been so unlucky as to get aground again. I hope his misfortunes are now over, and that success will attend his cruise; which it will give pleasure to hear he has commenced. I hope the Lee is out again. The chance of taking prizes must soon be over, from the advance of the season. Therefore, the cruisers should now be in port as little as possible; which you will please to urge to the gentlemen who command them.

The General is apprehensive that Captain Martindale is going upon too large a scale, and that he will make the outfit of his vessel too expensive. The intention of fitting out these vessels is not to attack the armed, but to take the unarmed vessels; which Captain Martindale seems to have lost sight of, by putting so many carriage-guns on board the Washington; but I sincerely hope his success will amply repay the expense. The ammunition is preparing—forty rounds for each gun, one barrel of loose powder, for priming, &c., and a proper quantity of match rope. I doubt much whether we shall be able to get the osnaburghs which the Captain writes for; if to be had, it will go by the same conveyance with the ammunition. There is no swivel-shot to be had here. If we cannot procure some time enough, shall send four-ounce balls; which, I think, will answer every purpose. You will please to communicate the part of this letter which regards Captain Martindale unto him, and to Captain Bowen, as I do not believe I shall have time to write them by this conveyance. The eighty men will be sent, and General Greene has been applied to for a Second Lieutenant. The master will be on just the same footing with the masters of the other armed vessels. I don't know the use of a drum and fife on board, nor do I imagine that any of the other vessels have got them; but if it will give Captain Martindale any pleasure, he shall be indulged with them.

I am, with respect, Sir, your most humble servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN, Sec'y pro tem.

To William Watson, Esq., Plymouth.

JEREMIAH HALL TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Hanover, November 6, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: The Committees of Correspondence and Inspection in the County of Plymouth, viz: of Hanover, Scituate, Pembroke, and Marshfield, were notified, by one Captain Toby, who guards on the shore at Marshfield, that he had two infamous Tories under his care, who fled to Boston soon after the Lexington battle—one of them a native and inhabitant of Marshfield, named Nathaniel Philips; the other of Pembroke, named Thomas Joselyn—who have been in Boston from that time to the 27th day of October, as may appear by their permit; who have, both of them, signed the obnoxious address to General Gage, when bound to England. One of them, viz: Philips, appears to be sorry for his past conduct; the other stubborn, refractory, and evasive. And said Committees apprehending that said Tories are capable of giving intelligence which might give light and be beneficial in the common cause, beg leave to trouble your Excellency with their examination; and that your Excellency would judge and secure them according to their demerits.

JERE. HALL, Chm'n of said Committee.

To His Excellency George Washington, Esq., Captain-General and Commander-in-Chief of the Forces of the United American Colonies.

WILLIAM WATSON TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Plymouth, November 6, 1775.

SIR: This morning Capt. Coit, after a cruise of thirty-six hours, brought into this port the Schooner Industry, Chas. Coffin, master, and the Sloop Polly, Sibeline White, master, both from Nova-Scotia, bound to Boston, with provisions for the garrison there; manifests of both cargoes are enclosed. I have landed the cattle, and put them to pasture; the other articles I shall store immediately, and wait your Excellency's orders.

Captain Coit finds his main-mast too weak; is now getting in a new one, and will sail again to-morrow. Captain Manly sailed six hours before Captain Coit; since which, we have heard nothing about him.

The prisoners will be sent forward to-morrow, under guard, agreeable to your Excellency's instructions to Captain Coit. I shall do all in my power to expedite Captain Martindale, and hope that, if the weather favours, he will be ready in a few days.

I am your Excellency's most obedient and much obliged humble servant,

WILLIAM WATSON.

His Excellency George Washington, Esq.

PROCLAMATION BY GENERAL HOWE.

By His Excellency the Honourable WILLIAM HOWE, Major-General and Commander-in-Chief of all His Majesty's Forces within the Colonies lying on the ATLANTIC OCEAN, from NOVA-SCOTIA to WEST-FLORIDA, inclusive, &c., &c., &c.

A PROCLAMATION.

Whereas the present and approaching distresses of many of the Inhabitants in the Town of Boston, from the scarcity and high prices of Provisions, Fuel, and other necessary articles of life, can only be avoided by permitting them to go where they may hope to procure easier means of subsistence:

Notice is hereby given, that all those suffering under the abovementioned circumstances, who choose to depart the Town, may give in their names to Captain James Urquhart, Town-Major, before Thursday, twelve o'clock, on the 9th instant, specifying their names, abodes, number, and names of those in family, effects, &c., that passes may be made out, conformable to regulations already established.

Given at Head-Quarters, in Boston, this sixth day of November, 1775.

WILLIAM HOWE.

CAPTAINS BROUGHTON AND SELMAN TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Gut of Canso, at the entrance of the Gulf of St. Lawrence, }
November 6, 1775. }

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR EXCELLENCY: We attempted for some time after our last to get to Spanish River, in order to take the brigantine loading with coal; but the wind being contrary, and blowing up a heavy storm, we were obliged to give over our design. We then stood for this place, where the storm has hardly yet ceased; we are, however, something comforted in that no vessel passes this season to Boston, Halifax, or to any part of America, from Quebeck, but must pass within gun-shot of us. We found, at the entrance of the gut, a sloop belonging to John Denny, of New-Haven, esteemed by Government an inhabitant of Quebeck, which was cleared out from Gaspee for Nantucket, freighted by himself and one Buddington, a passenger; neither of these men appear in a very favourable light, respecting their attachment to American liberties. Buddington himself dares not speak in favour of Denny's political orthodoxy. We, at the first conference, used the words Yankees and Pumpkins, with apparent jeering, and asked after the King's troops. They answered as men well-affected to the Ministry would. Upon being undeceived, they did not make such apologies as true sons of liberty, strongly attached to their interest, but had mistaken their company, might naturally be expected to do.

Upon the whole, we think ourselves bound to send the vessel, cargo, and her papers, to your Excellency, for your decision. The owner, Denny, and Buddington, the principal freighter, shall be sent by the first opportunity after this. Captain Hawkins, master of the sloop we sent to Beverly the 2d instant, we send in this sloop; who will be directed to wait on your Excellency upon his arrival. Immediately upon the wind suiting, we shall endeavour to conform to the spirit of your Excellency's orders.

We remain your Excellency's most obedient and very humble servants,

NICHOLSON BROUGHTON,
JOHN SELMAN.

To His Excellency General Washington.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF CLACKMANAN.

Address of the Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Clergy, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Clackmanan, presented to His Majesty by Colonel Ralph Abercromby, their Representative in Parliament.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Clergy, Freeholders, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Clackmanan, conscious of the many blessings we enjoy under your mild and equitable Government, and penetrated with the deepest sense of the unhappy situation into which so great a number of your subjects in America have been led, by the artful and traitorous misrepresentations of their self-interested and designing leaders, humbly beg leave to approach your royal throne, to assure your Majesty, in the most solemn and publick manner, of our abhorrence and detestation of their unconstitutional principles, and of the heartfelt concern with which we behold their present rebellion.

We are the more strongly induced to consider it as our indispensable duty most seriously to address your Majesty on this occasion, when we reflect that our deluded fellow-subjects in America have been taught to believe, that, by opposing the supreme authority of Parliament, and by disobeying our Legislature, they act agreeably to the sentiments of the greater part of your subjects in Great Britain.

We therefore embrace this opportunity of unanimously declaring, that we consider such principles and practices as repugnant to the true spirit of the British Constitution, and as destructive of that liberty which can only exist where there is a strict observance of the laws; and that we are firmly resolved to exert ourselves to the utmost, in our respective spheres, to support the great and important cause in which the rights of your Majesty's crown, and the interest of your people, are so deeply concerned.

We flatter ourselves that the vigorous and decisive measures your Majesty seems resolved to adopt, will, by the blessing of the Almighty, speedily produce the desired effect of re-establishing peace and harmony between Great Britain and her Colonies, by convincing the latter that Great Britain, from whom they derive their origin, by whom they have been nourished and supported in their infancy, and by whom they have been protected from foreign enemies, at the expense of much blood and treasure, can still exert and vindicate the rights of a Parent State.

Upon the whole, then, great Sire, it is our fervent prayer and most ardent desire, that your Majesty may long continue to reign over a free and a happy people, and that this Empire may be transmitted to your latest posterity, entire and undivided.

Signed in our presence, and by our appointment, at Clackmanan, this 7th day of November, 1775, by WILLIAM CATHCART, Præses.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF NAIRN.

Address of the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Nairn, presented to His Majesty by the Honourable Colonel Cosmo Gordon, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of NAIRN.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of Supply of the County of Nairn, think it our indispensable duty, at this juncture, humbly to address your Majesty, and to declare our abhorrence of the present unnatural rebellion carried on by many of your infatuated subjects in America. In doing this we can assure your Majesty, that we express not only our own sentiments, but those of our fellow-subjects of all ranks, in this corner of your Majesty's Dominions.

With profound humility, we profess our unalterable attachment to your Majesty's person and family, and our most cordial approbation of the early measures adopted for giving a check to the first dawns of disobedience. This County, in the late war, sent out many of its sons to defend your Majesty's ungrateful Colonies against the invasion of foreign enemies, and they will now, when called upon, be equally ready to repel all the attempts of the traitorous and disaffected, against the dignity of your crown, and the just rights of the supreme Legislature of Great Britain.

By appointment of the meeting:

HUGH ROSE, Præses.

Nairn, November 7, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE TOWN COUNCIL OF PAISLEY.

Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of Paisley, presented to His Majesty by John Craufurd Esq., Representative in Parliament for the County of Renfrew.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Magistrates and Town Council of PAISLEY, in Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We should be unworthy of the blessings which we enjoy as British subjects, did we fail, at this time, to express our attachment to that Government which conveys and secures them.

With much concern and abhorrence, we behold the unnatural and daring attempt of your Majesty's American subjects to throw off their subjection to legal authority, and to subvert those very laws under which they have risen to power and opulence.

Enjoying true peace and liberty, we wish to see them restored to our fellow-subjects; and are convinced that this great end will be most effectually promoted by the steady exertion of those powers which the Constitution has vested in your Majesty; fully persuaded that they will ever be wisely employed by a Monarch who, while able to chastise rebellious subjects, declares from the throne that he is ready to receive the misled with tenderness and mercy. Animated with these sentiments, it is our steady purpose to support the rights of your Majesty, as Sovereign of all your Dominions, and the supreme authority of the British Legislature over the whole Empire.

We beg leave to assure your Majesty, that although this be among the first manufacturing Towns in North-Britain, and, by its situation, most likely to be affected by the unconstitutional proceedings of the Colonies, our trade, in most of its branches, in no degree has suffered from their ungrateful conduct. Our manufactures daily increase, and afford employment for thousands of loyal subjects; and we are persuaded that to enforce submission to the laws of Great Britain, is absolutely necessary to secure a lasting commerce with America.

For every advantage which we derive from your Majesty's care and attention to the good of your people, we humbly beg leave to present to your Majesty our most sincere acknowledgments. That your Majesty may long reign over a happy and united people, is the earnest prayer of your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Magistrates and Town Council of Paisley.

Signed in our name, and by our appointment, by our First Magistrate; and we have ordered the common seal of the Town to be hereto affixed.

JOHN STORIE.

Paisley, November 7, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF RENFREW.

Address of the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of the Land Tax of the County of Renfrew, presented to His Majesty by John Craufurd, Esq., their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of the Land Tax of the County of RENFREW.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Gentlemen, Freeholders, Justices of the Peace, and Commissioners of the Land Tax of the County of Renfrew, humbly beg leave to approach your throne, with hearts full of zeal and affection for your Majesty's person and Government.

Deeply impressed with a sense of gratitude and fidelity to your Majesty, happy under the influence of your mild and beneficent administration, rejoicing in the contemplation of your virtues, we beheld, with pity and with indignation, the daring attempts of your Colonies to disturb the tranquillity, and to interrupt the felicity of your reign.

We commiserate the errors, we detest the guilt of those deluded people, who, seduced by the wicked arts of designing men, and actuated by prejudice and passion, abuse the venerable name of liberty, and employ it as a cover for their treasonable purpose of withdrawing their allegiance from your Majesty, of renouncing their subordination to Great Britain, and of arrogating independence to themselves.

We assert the principle, that in the Constitution of every State there must be one supreme, uncontrollable power, whose dictates all must obey. We wish for no liberty to ourselves, and can admit of none to others, beyond what we all are entitled to by the laws of our Country. We disclaim those timid, interested, or factious suggestions in favour of lenity and concessions to subjects in rebellion, while they have arms in their hands. Upon their first return to duty and submission, none can doubt your Majesty's gracious declaration that you will be ready to receive the misled with tenderness and mercy.

Though an occasional increase or diminution of trade must appear of less importance when the contest is for national honour and the preservation of great national rights, yet we cannot help observing, with satisfaction, that our commercial interests have not suffered by the defection of the American Provinces, and that their malignant combinations to distress and alarm this Country, by a total prohibition of trade, have happily been hitherto disappointed. The valuable and extensive manufactures of the Town of Paisley, and other parts of this industrious and populous County, have at no period had a greater produce, or a more ready demand. Every hand is full of employment, and every heart full of confidence, relying on your Majesty's wisdom and fortitude to put a speedy end to those disorders, and to restore the blessings of peace and concord to all your Dominions.

Permit us to assure your Majesty, that, animated by the united sentiments of loyalty, love of our Country, regard for our own interests, and those of our posterity, we are determined to exert our utmost efforts in support of your Majesty's authority, the supreme power of the Legislature, and the constitutional dependance of every part of the British Empire.

Signed in our presence, and by our appointment.

WILLIAM MURE, Præses.

Paisley, November 7, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF ANDEVOR.

Address of the Bailiff, Steward, Approved-Men, and Burgesses of the Borough of Andevor, in Common Council assembled, presented to His Majesty by Sir John Griffin Griffin, Knight of the Bath, and Benjamin Letheuliere, Esq., their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Bailiff, Steward, Approved-Men, and Burgesses of the Borough of ANDEVOR, in Common Council assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful subjects, the Bailiff, Steward, Approved-Men, and Burgesses of your ancient Borough of Andevor, beg leave to approach your royal person, to testify the abhorrence we have of the rebellious revolt of many of your American subjects, under the false pretence of asserting rights they never had, but, in reality, with a design of casting off their allegiance to your Majesty, and their dependance on the British Empire, of which they are an undoubted part.

We have too much reason to fear that the spirit of disobedience, now raging in this distant part of your Majesty's Dominions, with all the madness of arbitrary riot and cruelty, hath been worked up to its present alarming crisis by the artful insinuations of some designing leaders, who have themselves other pursuits in view than what their deluded followers may, perhaps, as yet suspect. We trust, and do most sincerely hope, this will eventually turn out to be the case, and that these unhappy and misguided men will soon see the fatal tendency of their rash proceedings, and return to their duty. And we are the rather inclined to hope this, as we cannot conceive that any number of men here, or in America, who have felt the blessings of your Majesty's mild and gentle sway, can, when they come coolly to consider the consequences, wish to exchange it for any other.

It is to your Majesty, and to the illustrious Princes of the House of Hanover, your royal predecessors, that we, and all your subjects at this time, in a great measure owe that enjoyment of true legal liberty, which we believe no nation in the world can boast of but ourselves. That the same constitutional liberty which we feel, may be felt by all other your Majesty's subjects, in all the parts of your wide extended Empire, and that every member of it may acknowledge the sovereignty of Great Britain, is the incessant and most ardent wish of our hearts. And in order to obtain the accomplishment of this wish, we do assure your Majesty that we shall most heartily concur, as far as in us lies, in supporting your Majesty in all such measures as in your great wisdom you shall think necessary to take, to bring back your rebellious Colonists to a submission, in deed as well as power, to your Majesty's Government, and to the legislative power of the British Parliament.

Given under our common seal, the seventh day of November, in the sixteenth year of your Majesty's reign.

ADDRESS AND PETITION OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF BERKS.

Address and Petition to His Majesty, moved for by the Earl of Abingdon, seconded by the Lord Craven, and signed by a very great majority of the Gentlemen, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Berks, at the meeting held in the Town-Hall at Abingdon, pursuant to an advertisement from the High Sheriff, "for taking the general sense of the County on the present unhappy differences between Great Britain and her Colonies," on Tuesday, the 7th of November, 1775.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address and Petition of the Freeholders of the County of Berks.

May it please your Majesty:

Your Majesty's most loyal and dutiful subjects, Freeholders of the County of Berks, though deeply affected with the melancholy civil dissensions which prevail in your Empire, have acquiesced with boundless confidence in your Majesty's goodness, and in the wisdom of your Parliament, for the restoration of internal tranquillity to your Dominions, and satisfaction and repose to the minds of all your subjects.

We conceive that the interference of your Majesty's people, otherwise than by their Representatives in Parliament, (although it be their undoubted right,) ought to be extremely rare, and reserved for occasions of the greatest necessity. We have therefore beheld, with astonishment, persons who profess uncommon zeal for your Majesty's Government, discovering a manifest distrust in his discretion; urging your Ministers to a continuance of the violent measures which hitherto have produced none but calamitous effects, and to which the Ministers have shown, and still do show, a disposition which it does not seem at all necessary to stimulate.

These inflammatory addresses, we humbly apprehend, have a tendency to distress your Majesty's paternal feelings; and by urging coercive measures, as alone effectual and proper in the present disorders, to render such concessions, as your Majesty's and the publick wisdom may think necessary to make, dishonourable and unsafe to your Majesty and this Nation.

Finding the dangerous and seditious attempts to embarrass your Majesty's councils, and prevent the restoration of tranquillity, pursued with an earnestness which fills the minds of your Majesty's peaceable subjects with horror, we are constrained, very reluctantly, with all possible humility and deference, to lay before your Majesty our faithful sentiments on the origin of the present troubles, on the measures which have been and still are pursued in consequence of those troubles, and on the dismal effects which we conceive must result from them.

As the inhabitants of that part of your Dominions which is the seat of the Imperial Legislature, we have a due sense of the necessity of preserving the supreme authority of Parliament over all the British Empire; but as English Freeholders, who value ourselves on our inestimable right of granting our own property, either by ourselves, or Representatives of our own choosing only, we cannot, without divesting ourselves of every principle of equity, justice, and even of common decency, consider the complaints of millions of our fellow-subjects, separated from us by an immense ocean, on being taxed without any voice, directly or indirectly, in the grant, to be entirely groundless, and the result of nothing but a factious spirit, aiming at the dismemberment of the Empire. The substantial and not nominal assent of the subject, in the grant of their own money, we can never hold to be a frivolous concern to English Freeholders. It can never be exterminated in one part of the Empire, without being endangered in all. And we look with just indignation at the servile and unmanly spirit in which the very principle of that sacred right is treated with scorn and ridicule by several publications industriously circulated, and which we trust receive no countenance from your Majesty's Ministers; because, if so countenanced, they can have no other effect than to raise a suspicion that the Government of this Country is sliding from its only firm, natural, and constitutional foundations.

We have seen, with much concern, the disorders which have arisen in America on this serious ground. We lament, we blame them; but we cannot think them unnatural, in those in whom the love of freedom is united with the ordinary weakness and imperfection of human nature. It is for that principle, joined with that infirmity, that we presume to supplicate your Majesty's clemency.

The disorders have arisen from a complaint (plausible at least) of one right violated; and we can never be brought to imagine that the true remedy for such disorders consists in an attack on all other rights, and an attempt to drive the people either to unconstitutional submission or absolute despair.

Sire, the affairs of your Empire are distracted because they are misconducted. The consequences of the measures pursued are as evident as they are deplorable. Your Majesty's Ministers, finding the forces of your natural-born subjects not sufficiently powerful for, or not sufficiently disposed to the present coercive service, have listened to the offers of foreign nations, who have thought fit, it seems, voluntarily, and therefore in a manner the more alarming to all true Englishmen, to interfere in our domestick differences.

Prostrated before your throne, with faces suffused with shame for this apparent nakedness of our Country, and with hearts oppressed with anxiety for its future destiny, we deprecate, whilst yet it is in suspense, this most perilous and desperate proceeding. English dignity and English government, whilst resting on their true bottom, can never stand in need of Russian assistance for their preservation. They who are necessary to the support of Government, are the Government; and if we cannot preserve America without foreign aid, America belongs to foreigners, and not to England.

It has been the usual course of a rebellious people to call in the arms of strangers to distract their country. This worst part of rebellion has not yet appeared in America. Let this one thing right in their conduct atone for many wrong ones, and let your Majesty's clemency permit itself to operate in favour of a people whose petitions have not yet appeared before any throne but yours. Let not England set an example, which is but too easily copied, by drawing into a free country the insidious and mercenary aid of foreign forces, trained to the support of a barbarous despotism. The moment that a great army of such, or of any foreigners, shall enter your territories, the liberties of your people are at an end; and your Majesty's authority will be the more endangered by their assistance, than it can be by any rebellion which can arise among your own subjects.

When we have such terrible objects in prospect, we forget the millions we are spending, and the millions more we are like to spend, in this unhappy and fruitless contest.

Deign, therefore, most gracious Sovereign, to attend to manifest reason, delivered by the affectionate voice of duty and fidelity; strenuous as we are for the honour of our Country, we cannot be forgetful of its peace and concord. It is therefore we abhor the idea of encouraging foreigners to make a prey of this Nation and its dependencies, under the miserable and uncovered pretext of discountenancing faction and sedition among ourselves.

PROCLAMATION BY THE GOVERNOUR OF VIRGINIA.

By his Excellency the Right Honourable JOHN, Earl of DUNMORE, His Majesty's Lieutenant and Governour-General of the Colony and Dominion of VIRGINIA, and Vice-Admiral of the same.

A PROCLAMATION.

As I have ever entertained hopes that an accommodation might have taken place between Great Britain and this Colony, without being compelled by my duty to this most disagreeable, but now absolutely necessary step, rendered so by a body of armed men, unlawfully assembled, firing on His Majesty's Tenders; and the formation of an Army, and that Army now on their march to attack His Majesty's Troops, and destroy the well-disposed subjects of this Colony: To defeat such treasonable purposes, and that all such traitors and their abettors may be brought to justice, and that the peace and good order of this Colony may be again restored, which the ordinary course of the civil law is unable to effect, I have thought fit to issue this my Proclamation, hereby declaring, that until the aforesaid good purposes can be obtained, I do, in virtue of the power and authority to me given by His Majesty, determine to execute martial law, and cause the same to be executed throughout this Colony. And to the end that peace and good order may the sooner be restored, I do require every person capable of bearing arms to resort to His Majesty's standard, or be looked upon as traitors to His Majesty's crown and Government, and thereby become liable to the penalty the law inflicts upon such offences—such as forfeiture of life, confiscation of lands, &c., &c.; and I do hereby further declare all indented servants, Negroes, or others, (appertaining to Rebels,) free, that are able and willing to bear arms, they joining His Majesty's Troops, as soon as may be, for the more speedily reducing this Colony to a proper sense of their duty to His Majesty's crown and dignity. I do further order and require all His Majesty's liege subjects to retain their quit-rents, or any other taxes due, or that may become due, in their own custody, till such time as peace may be again restored to this, at present, most unhappy Country, or demanded of them for their former salutary purposes, by officers properly authorized to receive the same.

Given under my hand, on board the Ship William, off Norfolk, the 7th day of November, in the sixteenth year of His Majesty's reign.

DUNMORE.

God Save the King.

Williamsburgh, November 23, 1775.

A copy of the above Proclamation having fallen into my hands, I thought it was necessary, for the welfare of two sorts of people, that its publick appearance should be attended with comments of the following nature. Such as have mixed much in society, and have had opportunities of hearing the subject of the present unnatural contest discussed, will be but little startled at the appellation of Rebel, because they will know that it is not merited. But others there may be whose circumstances may, in a great measure, have excluded them from the knowledge of publick matters, who may be sincerely attached to the interests of their Country, and who may yet be frightened to act against it, from the dread of incurring a guilt which, by all good men, is justly abhorred. To these it may be proper to address a few remarks upon this Proclamation. And as part of the Proclamation respects the Negroes, and seems to offer something very flattering and desirable to them, it may be doing them, as well as the Country, a service, to give them a just view of what they are to expect, should they be so weak and wicked as to comply with what Lord Dunmore requires.

Those, then, who are afraid of being styled Rebels, I would beg to consider, that although Lord Dunmore, in this Proclamation, insidiously mentions his having till now entertained hopes of an accommodation, yet the whole tenor of his conduct, for many months past, has had the most direct and strongest tendency to widen the unhappy breach, and render a reconciliation more difficult. For what other purpose did he write his false and inflammatory letters to the Ministers of State? Why did he, under cover of the night, take from us our powder, and render useless the arms of our publick magazine? Why did he secretly and treacherously lay snares for the lives of our unwary brethren?—snares that had likely to prove but too effectual. Why did he, under idle pretences, withdraw himself from the seat of Government, where alone he could, had he been willing, have done essential service to our Country? Why, by his authority, have continual depredations been since made upon such of our countrymen as were situated within the reach of ships of war and tenders? Why have our Towns been attacked, and houses destroyed? Why have the persons of many of our most respectable brethren been seized upon, torn from all their connexions, and confined on board of ships? Was all this to bring about reconciliation? Judge for yourselves, whether the injuring of our persons and properties be the readiest way to regain our affections. After insulting our persons, he now presumes to insult our understandings also. Do not believe his words, when his actions so directly contradict them. If he wished for an accommodation, if he had a desire to restore peace and order, as he professes, it was to be upon terms which would have been disgraceful, and, in the end, destructive of every thing dear and valuable.

Consider, again, the many attempts which have been made to enslave us. Nature gave us equal privileges with the people of Great Britain; we are, equally with them, entitled to the disposal of our own property; and we have never resigned to them these rights, which we derived from nature. But they have endeavoured unjustly to rob us of them. They have made acts of Parliament, in which we in no manner concurred, which dispose of our property; acts which abridge us of liberties we once enjoyed, and which impose burdens and restraints upon us too heavy to be borne. Had we immediately taken up arms to assert our rights, and to prevent the exercise of unlawful power, though our cause would have been just, yet our conduct would have been precipitate, and so far blameable. We might then, with some shadow of justice, have been charged with rebellion, or a disposition to rebel. But this was not the way we behaved. We petitioned once and again, in the most dutiful manner; we hoped that the righteousness of our cause would appear—that our complaints would be heard and attended to; we wished to avoid the horrors of a civil war, and so long proceeded in this fruitless track, that our not adopting a more vigorous opposition seemed rather to proceed from a spirit of meanness and fear, than of peace and loyalty; and all that we gained was to be more grievously oppressed. At length, we resolved to withhold our commerce from Britain; and, by thus affecting her interest, oblige her to redress our grievances. But in this, also, we have been disappointed; our Associations have been deemed unlawful combinations, and opposition to Government; we have been entirely deprived of our trade to foreign Countries; and even ourselves and fleets and armies have been sent to reduce us to a compliance with the arbitrary, unjust demands of the British Minister and corrupt Parliament. Reduced to such circumstances, to what could we have recourse but to arms? Every other expedient having been tried, and found ineffectual, this alone was left; and this we have, at last, unwillingly adopted. If it be rebellion to take up arms in such a cause as this, rebellion then is not only a justifiable, but an honourable thing. But let us not be deceived with empty sounds. They who call us Rebels cannot make us so; rebellion is open and avowed opposition to lawful authority; but it is usurped and arbitrary power which we have determined to oppose. Societies are formed, and magistrates appointed, that men may the better enjoy the blessings of life. Some of the rights which they have derived from nature they part with, that they may the more peaceably and safely possess the rest. To preserve the rights they have reserved is the duty of every member of society; and to deprive a people of these is treason, is rebellion against the State. If this doctrine, then, be right, which no one, I believe, will venture to deny, we, my countrymen, are the dutiful members of society; and the persons who endeavour to rob us of our rights, they are the Rebels—Rebels to their Country and to the rights of human nature. I repeat it again, let us not be deceived with empty sounds. We are acting the part of loyal subjects, of faithful members of the community, when we stand forth in opposition of the arbitrary and oppressive acts of any man or set of men. Resort not, then, to the standard which Lord Dunmore has set up; and if any of you have been so far mistaken in your duty as to join him, fly from his camp, as an infected place, and speedily rejoin your virtuous suffering countrymen; for be ye well assured that the time will come when these invaders of the rights of human kind will suffer the punishment due to their crimes, and when the insulted and oppressed Americans will, if they preserve their virtue, triumph over all their enemies.

The second class of people, for whose sake a few remarks upon this Proclamation seem necessary, is the Negroes. They have been flattered with their freedom, if they be able to bear arms, and will speedily join Lord Dunmore's troops. To none, then, is freedom promised, but to such as are able to do Lord Dunmore service. The aged, the infirm, the women and children, are still to remain the property of their masters—of masters who will be provoked to severity, should part of their slaves desert them. Lord Dunmore's declaration, therefore, is a cruel declaration to the Negroes. He does not pretend to make it out of any tenderness to them, but solely upon his own account; and should it meet with success, it leaves by far the greater number at the mercy of an enraged and injured people. But should there be any amongst the Negroes weak enough to believe that Lord Dunmore intends to do them a kindness, and wicked enough to provoke the fury of the Americans against their defenceless fathers and mothers, their wives, their women, and children, let them only consider the difficulty of effecting their escape, and what they must expect to suffer if they fall into the hands of the Americans. Let them further consider what must be their fate should the English prove conquerors. If we can judge of the future from the past, it will not be much mended. Long have the Americans, moved by compassion and actuated by sound policy, endeavoured to stop the progress of slavery. Our Assemblies have repeatedly passed acts, laying heavy duties upon imported Negroes, by which they meant altogether to prevent the horrid traffick; but their humane intentions have been as often frustrated by the cruelty and covetousness of a set of English merchants, who prevailed upon the King to repeal our kind and merciful acts, little, indeed, to the credit of his humanity. Can it then be supposed that the Negroes will be better used by the English, who have always encouraged and upheld this slavery, than by their present masters, who pity their condition, who wish, in general, to make it as easy and comfortable as possible, and who would, were it in their power, or were they permitted, not only prevent any more Negroes from losing their freedom, but restore it to such as have already unhappily lost it? No; the ends of Lord Dunmore and his party being answered, they will either give up the offending Negroes to the rigour of the laws they have broken, or sell them in the West-Indies, where every year they sell many thousands of their miserable brethren, to perish either by the inclemency of weather or the cruelty of barbarous masters. Be not then, ye Negroes, tempted by this Proclamation to ruin yourselves. I have given you a faithful view of what you are to expect, and declare, before God, in doing it, I have considered your welfare, as well as that of the Country. Whether you will profit by my advice I cannot tell; but this I know, that whether we suffer or not, if you desert us you most certainly will.

Williamsburgh, November 30, 1775.

Let no man be dismayed at being proclaimed a Rebel; let every such person know, that Lord Dunmore has no right to declare any man so who has not been legally convicted, and that he himself may be sued and indicted for such proceedings. Whoever considers well the meaning of the word Rebel, will discover that the author of the Proclamation is now himself in actual rebellion, having armed our slaves against us, and having excited them to an insurrection; for which, by the laws of the land, they forfeit their lives. And let it be remembered, that there is a treason against the State, for which such men as Lord Dunmore, and even Kings, have lost their heads. Let it be remembered, that the King and his Governours are bound by the laws, as much as his subjects; and that no man can be condemned or punished who is not found guilty by a jury of his Country, nor legally prosecuted for disobeying the arbitrary mandates of a tyrant. We have taken up arms, it is true; but this we have an undoubted right to do, in defence of the British Constitution—of that very Constitution which the present royal family was brought in to support, and on the principles of the glorious Revolution, those very principles which alone could give our King a right to the throne of England. We are therefore contending, not only for our privileges as freemen, but for the support of the British Constitution; and if we are supporting that, we are supporting our King, and on the only sure ground on which he can be supported.

The present Ministry are rebels and traitors to their Prince; they are endeavouring to make him forfeit his crown. The Earl of Dunmore, late Governour, may be called a genuine rebel. His father was in two rebellions, strictly and properly so called; and he is now himself engaged in one of a more artful and dangerous nature; and he has the effrontery to shift the odious charge on us. If there are loyal subjects in the world, they are in America—they are in Virginia. But enough of this. Independent of these arguments, my countrymen, we may urge, that we have a right to take up arms in self-defence, since we have been threatened with an invasion of savages and an insurrection of slaves, and have had our Negroes and stocks piratically taken from us. The laws of God and nature, and the principles of the Constitution, justify it; and, at present, all the feelings of humanity, every suggestion of policy, and the cries of our insulted and imprisoned countrymen, loudly call you to arm.

MECKLENBURGH COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a Committee held for the County of Mecklenburgh, on the second Monday in November, 1775:

This Committee, for themselves and their constituents, present their compliments to their suffering brethren residing in the lower parts of this Country, and assure them, in case they should be reduced to the necessity of abandoning their habitations, that they will meet with a cordial reception from the inhabitants of this County, and every accommodation that their situation and circumstances will admit. By order of the Committee:

JOHN SWEPSON, Clerk.

PHILADELPHIA COMMITTEE.

In Committee, November 7, 1775.

Information was given that Messrs. Owen Jones, Jonathan Zane, and Joshua Fisher & Sons, had refused to receive the Continental Bills in the course of their business, and on inquiry it appeared that Mr. Jones had not considered himself at liberty to receive said Bills as Provincial Treasurer, in which character he had only refused them, until he had advised thereon with the Members of Assembly. Mr. Zane having been long confined to his house by indisposition,

Resolved, That Messrs. Matlack and Benezet wait on him, and inquire his reasons for said refusal.

November 14.—The Committee being informed that Mr. Joseph Richardson, silversmith, has refused to take the Continental Currency,

Resolved, That he be desired to attend this Committee immediately.

Mr. Richardson attended, and acknowledged that he had refused to receive the Continental Bills in the course of his business, and alleged as his motive, a conscientious scruple, as said currency was emitted for the purpose of war.

The Committee considering it of the utmost importance to the general weal that no discouragement should be given to the currency of the Bills issued by the Continental Congress, and that it is their duty to take some measure to prevent any such discouragement,

Resolved, That Messrs. McKean, Smith, Matlack, Wilcocks, and Milligan, be a Committee to consider and report what steps this Committee ought to take in this case.

November 21.—The Committee appointed to consider what measures ought to be taken in the case of persons who may refuse to receive, in the course of their business, the Continental Bills, reported, that on full consideration of the importance and delicacy of the case, they were of opinion that this Committee ought to refer the same to the General Congress, that such measures may be ordered by them as will give full and effectual remedy in this case, before any considerable real injury may arise from such refusal.

Mr. Thomas Fisher, one of the partners of the house of Joshua Fisher & Sons, attended in Committee, and declared that, from conscientious motives, their house could not accept this kind of money, as it is issued for the purpose of war.

On motion, Resolved, That Messrs. Wilcocks and Smith be directed to wait on the President of the Continental Congress, with a copy of the Minutes of the Committee concerning the refusal of the Continental Bills by sundry persons.

Extract from the Minutes of the Committee of the City and Liberties of Philadelphia.

JONATHAN B. SMITH, Secretary.

VOTE OF QUEEN'S COUNTY, NEW-YORK, REFUSING TO SEND DEPUTIES TO THE PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

A list of Voters for and against Deputies to represent in Provincial Congress, taken at JAMAICA, in and for QUEEN'S County, on TUESDAY, NOVEMBER 7, 1775, and continued to SATURDAY following, five o'clock, afternoon.

The following persons were nominated as the Deputies, viz: Colonel Jacob Blackwell, Samuel Townsend, William Townsend, Esqrs., Waters Smith, Benjamin Sands, Jeromus Remsen, Jun., and Stephen Van Wyck.

For Deputies—221.

Micajah Townsend,	Nathaniel Box,	John Skidmore,
John J. Skidmore,	Samuel Morrell,	John Skidmore, Sr.,
Ephraim Bayles,	Jonathan Lawrence,	Jonah Roades,
Alexander Wheyley,	Capt. Samuel Moore,	John Coe,
Samuel Riker,	Joseph Robinson,	Philip Edsall,
Philip Woodard,	John Riker,	Charles Boerum,
Benjamin Cornish,	Samuel Smith,	Stephen Pettitt,
Robert Field,	John Cockle,	Benjamin Farrington,
Stephen Field,	Samuel Higby, Sr.,	Philip Edsall, Jr.,
Morris Hazard,	Rem Remsen,	John Brush,
Simon Sands,	John Burtis,	William Betts,
Lambert Woodard,	Benjamin Field,	John Wory,
Daniel Lawrence,	Platt Smith,	John Hendrickson,
Fordham Burtis,	Andries Hegeman, Jr.,	H. Hendrickson,
John Rodgers,	Obadiah Damelt,	Jonah Hallett,
Albert Hegeman, Jr.,	John Waters,	Thomas Denton,
Albert Hegeman, Sr.,	Robert Morrell,	John Smith,
H. Hendrickson, Jr.,	Matthias Van Dyck,	William Creed, Sr.,
Elias Bayles,	Andries Hegeman, Sr.,	Stephen Rider,
Henry Hocker,	Josiah Mitchell,	Christopher Rider,
Benjamin Coe,	Thomas Rodman,	Isaac Hendrickson,
Jonathan Coe,	John Parker,	Garret Murphy,
Abraham Kettletas,	John Thorne,	Samuel Messenger,
Wait Smith,	Thomas Thorne,	John Vanleau,
Daniel Bayles,	John Thorne,	William Creed, Jr.,
Samuel Waldron,	C. Van Wyck,	Samuel Seaman,
Simon Horton,	William Thorne,	Isaac Hendrickson,
John Burtis,	Thomas Mitchell,	William Forbes,
William Furman,	John Montaine,	William Seaman,
Nicholas Everit,	James Doughty,	Christopher Robert,
Daniel Ludlam,	John Yates,	Jonas Fredricks,
Whitehead Skidmore,	James Burling,	Cornelius Losce,
Richard Borrien,	Richard Rapalje,	Joseph Higby,
Thomas Burroughs,	William Cornell,	Thomas Wiggins,
John Pettitt,	I. Carpenter, Jr.,	Peter Onderdonek,
Martin Schenck,	Jacob Carpenter,	Thomas Dodge,
Samuel Burr,	John Luyster,	George Bennit,
Othniel Smith,	Rem Hegeman,	Albert Nostrant,
Gabriel Furman,	Jacobus Luyster,	John Mills,
William Ludlam, Jr.,	Samson Crooker,	Benjamin Hinckman,
Nehemiah Everit,	Lieut. Charles Hicks,	William Willis,
Robert Mitchell,	John Brimer,	Benjamin Akerly,
Nicholas Smith,	Thomas Woodard,	Philip Valentine,
Daniel Hitchcock,	Joseph Bezly,	Benjamin North,
John Roades,	David Latour,	Benjamin Sands,
Richard Roades,	Jotham Townsend,	Gabriel Smith,
Nathaniel Smith,	Daniel Burr,	Richard Valentine,
Adrian Onderdonek,	Isaac Bayles,	John Fish,
Amos Denton,	James Townsend,	George Brinckerhoff,
Ephraim Marston,	Zeb. Seaman, Jr.,	Benjamin Moore,
Noah Smith, Jr.,	George Townsend,	Zebulon Williams,
Noah Smith, Sr.,	J. W. Seaman,	Doctor Latham,
Walter Smith,	Gilbert Searing,	Doctor Townsend,
Benjamin Everit,	John Schenck,	Richard Lawrence,
John Burroughs,	Joseph Coles,	Richard Betts,
Benjamin Field, Jr.,	Daniel Searing,	William Sackett,
Aaron Hendrickson,	John Searing,	Edmund Penfold,
William Ludlam, Sr.,	Jacob Searing,	Samuel Denton,
Daniel W. Kissam,	John Sands,	Hope Roades,
William Howard,	Pepperel Bloodgood,	Samuel Lawrence,
Nicholas Smith, Jr.,	Walter Dalton,	William Penfold,

Thomas Lawrence,
Nathaniel Tom,
Daniel Everit,
Robert Hinckman,
John Thurston,
Hope Roades, Jr.,
Augustin Betts,
James Hinckman,
Jonathan Roberts,
Robert Denton,
Samuel Higby, Jr.,
Jacob Wright,
Uriah Rider,

Nicholas Van Dyck,
Peter Smith,
Benjamin Birdsall,
Joseph Bowne,
Jacob Johnson,
Andrew Oakley,
Robert Coe,
Abr'm Brinckerhoff,
Robert Furman,
Jonathan Thurston,
Jonathan Wright,
William Glean,
Moses Higby,

Gilbert Hicks,
Jacob Mott,
John Eagles,
Stephen Cornell,
I. Hicks,
David Lamberson,
Adam Mott,
John Burtis,
Luke Remsen,
Samuel Edsall,
Isaac Roades,
Jacob Valentine.

Against Deputies—788.

John Willett,	Elias Allen,	T. Hendrickson, Jr.,
John Polhemus,	Daniel Kissam,	Solomon Powell,
Nathaniel Mills,	Ab. Townsend,	Nathaniel Smith,
Nicholas Lambertson,	Elijah Smith,	Stephen Baldwin,
Joseph Dunbar,	Elijah Barton,	Thomas Comes,
Rem Remsen, Sr.,	Peter Jones,	Benjamin Rainer,
John Smith,	Gabriel G. Ludlow,	Jacob Rainer,
Joseph Goulder,	James Langdon,	Ezekiel Rainer,
Ob. Hinckman,	Jacobus Nelsor,	Gabriel Doxe,
Johannes Williamson,	Benjamin Carman,	Abr'm Mannecree,
William Pettitt,	Michael Rodgers,	Peter Losce,
Samuel Moore, 3d,	Thos. Williams, Sr.,	Thomas Youngs,
Powel Amberman,	Johannes Scott,	John Seaman,
John Doty,	Capt. Samuel Carman,	Daniel Youngs,
Joshua Mills,	Johannes Cushen,	Gilbert McCorow,
Johannes Snedeker,	Thomas Fetherby,	Peter Underhill,
Daniel Remsen,	Daniel Pine,	Thomas Fleet,
A. Boerum,	William Verity,	Daniel Youngs, Jr.,
Hendrick Emmons,	Levi Cock,	Charles Smalling,
Dow Dittmus,	Joseph Birdsall,	Benj. Smith,
Luke Eldert,	William Stiles,	Cornelius Hart,
Benj. Haviland,	Henry Ludlam,	Cornelius Jackson,
Daniel Whitehead,	Daniel Hall,	William Burtis,
Joseph Dunbar, Jr.,	David Peterson,	David Sammons,
John Lambertson,	Jonas Abrams,	Richard Wiggins,
M. Lambertson,	Flower Hulse,	R. Townsend, Jr.,
Simon Lambertson,	Elijah Sprag,	Richard Pine,
Joseph Field,	Harry Colwell,	Samuel Jackson,
Luke Nostrant,	Samuel Fosdick,	Benjamin Hewlett,
Benj. Whitehead,	William Gritman,	William Langdon,
John Williamson,	Edmund Titus,	William Cornell,
Joseph Ludlam,	Timothy Titus,	James Pine,
Capt. John Howlett,	Henry Waters,	Isaac Weekes,
Cornelius Hogland,	Tice Lane,	Cornell Smith,
John Hewlett, Jr.,	Solomon Powel,	Jos. Smith, Jr.,
Daniel Allen,	Daniel Nostrant,	David Battine,
William Sprag,	Albert Van Nostrant,	Benj. Titus,
Samuel Smith,	Joseph Pettitt,	James Cornell,
Ezekiel Matthews,	Barnet Van Wyck,	William Pearson,
Theodorus Van Wyck,	John Monfort,	John Legross,
Jacob Van Nostrant,	Harman Hendrickson,	John Abrams,
Tunis Van Colt,	Thomas Hallett,	Richard Southard,
Jacob Hicks, Jr.,	Michael Golder,	William Hewlett,
Amos Roades,	Abraham Furman,	Samuel Foster,
Jonathan Smith,	Michael Flower,	Adam Pettitt,
N. Smith,	Tunis Covert, Jr.,	William Pettitt,
Robert Allen,	James Smith,	Elijah Cornell,
Silas Hicks,	Daniel Smith,	Michael Demott,
Elijah Rainer,	Benjamin Cornell,	John Mott,
John Ellsworth,	Abr'm Furman, Jr.,	Archibald Langdon,
Benjamin Downen,	Joseph Rainer,	Peter Thomas,
Thomas Balden,	Robert Jackson,	Thomas Southard,
Aaron Burtis,	John Cornell,	Aaron Van Nostrant,
Joseph Rainer,	Joel Rainer,	William Valentine,
Thomas Hutchens,	Garret Golder,	Simon Losce,
John Duryee,	Benjamin Bedel,	Daniel Smith,
Stephen Hendrickson,	Stephen Carman,	James Birdsall,
Nathaniel Coomes,	John Hughes,	Samuel Birdsall,
John Weekes,	Amos Smith,	Oliver Birdsall,
Henry Shaw,	James Smith, Jr.,	Isaac Smith, Jr.,
Ananias Southard,	David Jackson,	Joseph Pearsall,
Jacob Peterson,	George Watts,	Joseph Bedel, 3d,
John Fetherby,	C. Van Nostrant,	Joseph Bedel, Sr.,
Honse Covert,	Thomas Birdsall,	Aaron Van Nostrant,
John Rainer,	Joseph Smith,	Abraham Nostrant,
William Golder,	Benjamin Waters,	Israel Eldert,
Peter Titus, Jr.,	Henry Miller,	Solomon Doxe,
William Fetherby,	Jno. Jackson, Jr.,	Jonathan Gildersleve,
Henry Rainer,	Pearse Pool,	Samuel Wood,
Simmons Verity,	Zeb. Smith,	Felham Sands,
Robert Sutton,	Benajah Bedel,	Anthony Demott,
Daniel Hewlett,	James Place,	John Fleet,
Daniel Murray,	George Rapalje,	Robert Valentine,
Joseph Dodge,	Pearson Langdon,	Caleb Underhill,
Thomas Seaman,	William Langdon,	Richard Smith,
John Townsend,	Peter Scott,	James Smith,
Edward Sprag,	John Holmes,	Peter Bond,
Benjamin Pettitt,	Thos. Smith, Jr.,	Charles Cornell,
John Pettitt,	Samuel Titus,	Samuel Carman, 3d,
Isaac Denton,	John Allen,	Philip Parmer,
Barent Snedeker,	Barent Allen,	John Waters,
Daniel Thurston,	Samuel Carman, Jr.,	John Smith,
Richard Smith,	Henry Ludlam, Jr.,	Samuel Van Wyck,
Samuel Langdon,	William Johnson,	Samuel Abrams,
Thomas Durlin,	Nathan Skidmore,	Garret Nostrant,
Michael Butler,	Harman Flower,	Benj. Hegeman,
Charles Hewlett,	John Flower,	Joseph Haviland,
John Demott,	John Curman,	Joseph Thorne,
John Hewlett, Esq.,	William Ludlam,	Israel Rodgers,
John Fittito,	Silvanus Southard,	Benajah Wiggins,
Joseph Weekes,	Luke Cummins,	Samuel Denton,
Joseph Langdon,	Henry Jackson,	Townsend Weekes,

Andrew Allen,
Thomas Hicks,
David Castiborne,
Peter Welser,
Hezekiah Pearsall,
Solomon Seaman,
Samuel Pettitt,
John Hulse,
Townsend Hewlett,
Stephen Powell,
Joseph Bezly,
John Townsend,
Richard Townsend,
Zebulon Seaman,
William Velser,
Jacob Bedel,
Thomas Tredwell,
William Smith,
Joseph Smith,
Joseph Smith,
Jonathan Smith, Jr.,
Tunis Covert,
Edward Cornell,
Carman Rushmore,
Samuel Seaman,
Benjamin Lester,
William Cornell, 3d,
John Martin,
Joseph Hewlett,
Philip Woolly,
Lawrence Hewlett,
Benjamin Smith,
David Ludlam,
Israel Smith,
Garret Nostrant,
Increase Pettitt,
James Eldert,
Simeon Hacoxturust,
John Sands, Jr.,
John Peters,
John McIntosh,
William Rushmore,
Samuel Stringham,
Samuel Smith,
William Smith,
Henry Balden,
Daniel Underhill,
Thomas Cornell,
Richard Matthews,
George Weekes,
Robert Coles,
Cornelius Bogert,
John Fowler,
Elias Smith,
William Covert,
Benjamin Stivers,
Gabriel Colt,
Wat. Covert,
Christian Snedeker,
Michael Demott,
Parnus Jackson,
Rem Remsen,
Michael Pettitt,
Elijah Wood,
John Underhill,
Benj. Tredwell, Jr.,
Adrian Schenck,
Thomas Cock,
Anthony Roades,
Jacobus Demott,
Richard Brewer,
Pen Weekes,
James Hicks,
Martin Van Nostrant,
H. Hendrickson,
Elijah Smith,
John Van Colt,
Daniel Cock,
Benjamin Fish,
George Weekes,
Richard Langdon,
Samuel Langdon,
Samuel Pettitt,
Amos Rainer,
Luke Haviland,
Tunis Covert, 3d,
Philip Platt,
Richard Place,
Gilbert Van Wyck,
Benjamin Durlin,
Nicholas Colt, Jr.,
Stephen Robbins,
Samuel Green,
Samuel Durlin,
Samuel Doty,
Jonathan Balden,
Martin Riarson,
Morris Simonson, Jr.,
Abraham Simonson,
Charles Simonson,
Isaac Rainer,
Charles Abrams,
Charles Doughty,
John Nostrant,
Fred. Nostrant, Jr.,
Isaac Denton,
Thomas Durlin,

Benjamin Burtis,
John Hegeman,
John Titus,
Samuel Johnson,
Amos Shaw,
James Wood,
John Linnington,
Joseph Pettitt, Jr.,
David Demott,
James Pine,
John Van Nostrant,
Adam Mott,
Henry Abrams,
Whitehead Field,
George Riarson,
Obadiah Smith,
Daniel Brinkerhoff,
Jacob Lamberson,
Amos Powel,
Thomas Wiggins,
Jonathan Pratt,
Richard Gildersleve,
Benjamin Wiggins,
Thomas Frost,
Nathaniel Frost,
Peter Bond,
Thomas Woolly,
Samuel Tredwell,
Daniel Nostrant,
Richard Hewlett,
Joseph Totten,
John Higby,
William Golder,
Isaac Amberman,
Thos. Smith, Esq.,
D. Colden, Esq.,
Thos. Hendrickson,
John Talman,
Casper Springsteen,
Israel Sealy,
Epenetus Platt,
Joseph Smith,
Joseph Townsend,
Daniel Hewlett, Jr.,
Ludlam Smith,
Abraham Wanser,
Jonathan Gorum,
Thomas Jackson,
John Hacoxturust,
John Coomes,
George Duryee,
Thomas Place,
David Bedel,
Jacobus Lawrence,
Whitehead Cornell,
Timothy Clowes,
Elias Durlin, 3d,
John Schenck,
Francis Davenport,
Timothy Cornell,
Nehemiah Sammons,
John Kissam,
John Remson,
Joshua Birdsall,
Tunis Covert, Jr.,
James Robbins,
Obadiah Mills,
Jacob Stringham,
William Hewlett,
Abr'm Lawrence,
Felix Fowler,
John Bennit,
Pen Cock,
Albert Hogland,
Cornelius Bennit,
Stephen Higby,
Peter Nostrant,
Robert Doughty,
Jacob Hicks,
Samuel Carman,
John Cock,
Jacob Dean,
Hendrick Hagner,
Richard Robbins,
Richard Mott,
George Doughty,
Jabez Woodruff,
John Troup,
S. Clowes, Esq.,
Jacob Mott,
Jacob Williams,
Stephen Cock,
Stephen Rapalje,
Jacobus Riker,
Cornelius Rapalje,
Rulof Duryee,
Thomas Hewlett,
John Golden,
William Thurston,
Silvanus Bedel, Esq.,
James Lewis,
Abraham Van Wyck,
John Marvin,
Jacob Nostrant,
Jonathan Smith,
William Welling,
Joseph Cadle,

Philip Thorne,
Henry Pearson,
John Watts,
William Tillett,
Isaac Smith,
Obadiah Valentine,
Harman Shaw,
Israel Seaman,
Townsend Jackson,
James Verety,
George Hewlett, Sr.,
Silvanus Bedel,
Joseph Langdon,
John Rushmore,
Reuben Hall,
Jacamiah Hutchens,
James Southard,
Ambrose Seaman,
Wm. Van Nostrant,
Cornelius Miller,
William Pigeon,
William Cock,
John Remsen,
Jonas Valentine,
Capt. Johannes Eldert,
Samuel Davenport,
Richard Tattersall,
W. Cornell, } sons of
S. Cornell, } Joseph,
Jacamiah Valentine,
Frederick Nostrant,
James Burtis, Jr.,
Caleb Morrell,
Doct. Chas. Arding,
John Mott,
Timothy Townsend,
Adam Carman,
Henry Woolly,
Stephen Callas,
William Buns,
Joseph Abrams,
Richard Roades,
Nathaniel Woodruff,
Samuel Carman, 3d,
Luke Bergen,
Stephen Clement,
Benjamin Durlin,
William Hall,
Hope Mills,
Joseph Hall,
George Hewlett,
A. Brinkerhoff, Jr.,
James Verety, Jr.,
Isaac Pettitt,
John Oakley,
After Burtis,
George Roades,
John Hall,
John Thurston,
John Sprag,
John Simonson,
James Balden,
Thomas Seaman,
George Balden,
Elias Durlin,
Silas Latten,
Simcon Watts,
Sam'l Mott Cornell,
Stephen Smith,
Jonathan Cornelius,
John Morrel,
Abraham Balden,
William Miller,
James Whaley,
William Weyman,
John Nostrant,
Jacob Bedel,
Joseph Hall,
Abijah Bedel,
Moscos Cornelius,
William Coomes,
John Amberman,
John Smith,
Thomas Townsend,
Archelaus Doxe,
Lawrence Fish,
James Burtis,
John Haviland,
John Burtis,
Nicholas Townsend,
Capt. Dow Van Dyne,
Abraham Rapalje,
Hewlett Townsend,
Martin Rapalje,
Hendrick Munseo,
Doct. D. Lawrence,
John Southard,
James Denton,
John Suydam,
Leffert Leferts,
Jno. Smith, son of Samuel,
Michael Burns,
Richard Mason,
George Weekes,
William Hogland,
Edmund Weekes,

Peter Riarson,
Abraham Demott,
Austin Hicks,
Henry Abrams,
John Hegeman,
Stephen Hewlett,
Tunis Bergen,
Benj. Hewlett, Jr.,
Isaac Denton, Jr.,
Nathaniel Higby,
John Townsend, Esq.,
Auris Remsen,
Isaiah Doughty,
Jacob Rinehart,
Stephen Willis,
Nicholas Ludlam,
Joseph Bedel,
William Thatford,
Joseph Oldfield,
Daniel Hendrickson,
Jeremiah Bedel,
John Pearson,
Henry Suydam,
Richard Green,
John Durlin,
Thomas Clowes,
Samuel Durlin,
Stephen Hicks,
Nicholas Schenck,
Cornelius Suydam,
Joseph Kissam,
R. Hewlett, Esq.,
Timothy Roades,
William Abrams,
Benjamin Tredwell,
Daniel Abrams,
I. Amberman, Sr.,
James Waters,
Samuel Mott,
John Vanleaw,
Garret Nostrant,
Adam Seabury,
Jacob Jackson,
Thomas Jackson,
Eldert Van Wyck,
Benj. Durlin, Jr.,
John Toffy,
Henry Wanser,
Lewis Davenport,
James Marr,

John Foster,
Daniel Durlin,
Abraham Remson,
Nath'l Townsend,
John Moore, Jr.,
Thomas Cornell,
John Moore, Sr.,
Thomas Willlett,
Uriah Platt,
Elias Burtis,
Jacob Bond,
George Rapalje,
Thomas Morrell,
Samuel Moore,
Richard Burgaw,
Barnardus Bloom,
Benjamin Kissam,
Tunis Brinkerhoff,
John Brewer,
Aaron Van Nostrant,
Jeromus Rapalje,
Peter Burgaw,
Nicholas Van Colt,
Christopher Remsen,
Garret Dorland,
Nathaniel Moore,
Garret Latting,
Thomas Van Wyck,
John Amberman,
Thomas Stockford,
Thomas Ludlam,
Michael Weekes,
Capt. Chas. Hicks,
Samuel Smith,
John Stevens,
John Mitchell,
Gerardus Clowes,
Doct. David Brooks,
Thomas Kip,
John Weekes,
James Carpenter,
Obadiah Lawrence,
Richard McCorne,
Derrick Bergen,
Hugh Hoomes,
Daniel Kerby,
William Frost,
John Snedeker, Jr.,
Christopher Remsen,
Daniel Albertson,

Jeromus Luyster,
William Velser,
Daniel Velser,
Isaac Lattin,
John Rainer,
Elbert Adriance,
Timothy Flower,
Cornelius Monfort,
Jonathan Fish,
Cornelius Riarson,
Capt. John Woolly,
William Monfort,
Isaac Seaman,
Jeremiah Robbins,
Isaac Rapalje,
Isaac Ditmus,
Cornelius Rapalje,
William Williams,
John Wiggins,
Jonathan Rowlin,
Peter Nostrant,
Isaac Remsen,
Jacob Adriance,
Morris Lott,
Archibald Hamilton,
John Doughty,
Capt. Samuel Hallett,
Timothy Bedel,
Thomas Thorne,
John Shoals,
George Brinkerhoff,
Adam Lawrence,
V. H. Puters, Esq.,
Richard Hallett,
James Hallett,
John Tredwell,
Elbert Brinkerhoff,
John Voorhies,
Jackson Mott,
Jonathan Searing,
James Turner,
Capt. Richard Betts,
Charles Willett,
John Greenoak,
John Stockes,
Seamans Weekes,
Joseph Willis,
Joost Van Brunt,
Daniel Rapalje.

This is to certify, that the foregoing is a copy of the poll list of the election, taken from the original, by me,
JOSEPH ROBINSON, Inspector of the Poll.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

[Read November 15, 1775.]

Ticonderoga, November 7, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have the honour to congratulate Congress on the reduction of St. John's, and I do wish that such an interesting account should reach it as soon as possible. I only enclose copy of General Montgomery's letter, with copies of sundry papers he has sent me. His merit is much enhanced by the variety of difficulties he has had to surmount—a detail of which would be too long at this time. I therefore conclude with begging to repeat the necessity of a delegation to this quarter; General Montgomery having, as you will easily conceive, as much business on his hands as he can possibly do, and my health being so much impaired, that even now I support, with difficulty, the fatigue incident to my office.

I am, dear Sir, with the most respectful sentiments, your Honour's most obedient humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To the Hon. John Hancock, Esq.

P. S. I beg leave to mention the necessity of more cash, in specie, as well as in bills.

Camp near St. John's, November 3, 1775.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I have the pleasure to acquaint you the garrison surrendered last night. This morning we take possession; to-morrow I hope the prisoners will set off. Enclosed you have the capitulation, which I hope will meet with your approbation and that of Congress. I have ventured to permit an officer or two to go to their families, which are in some distress, at Montreal, upon their parole; they cannot do us any harm, and there would have been a degree of inhumanity in refusing them. When we had played on the fort some hours, from our battery of four twelve-pounders, on the northwest, and another of two twelve-pounders and two four-pounders on the east side, some prisoners arrived, who had been taken in an action with Governour Carleton, at Longueuil. He made an attempt to land, with thirty-four boats full of men. Warner's detachment, consisting of the Green Mountain Boys and Second Regiment of Yorkers, repulsed them with loss; took two Indians and two Canadians prisoners. We have buried three Indians, and it is supposed many in the boats must have been killed; we had not a man even wounded. (This, I believe, is his last effort.) One of the above-mentioned prisoners I sent into the fort, to inform Major Preston of the circumstances of the action, that he might judge what prospect he could have of relief; it had the desired effect—the garrison having been on half-allowance for some time. I am making the necessary preparations to proceed immediately to Montreal, by way of La Prairie, as the enemy have armed vessels in the Sorel.

Send every body you possibly can immediately down, as it is much to be apprehended many of the men on this service will insist on returning home when their times are expired. It will not be necessary to keep people with arms for the present at Ticonderoga. Several men of rank in Canada are among the prisoners. I have permitted them to remain at Crown Point, till the return of two gentlemen they sent to their friends for money, &c.; they pleaded hard to return home, but they are too dangerous to let loose again.

I have this moment received your letter of 27th October. Not a word of Arnold yet. I have sent two expresses to him lately—one by an Indian, who promised to return with expedition. The instant I have any news of him, I will acquaint you by express. Colonel Easton and Major Brown, with their Corps, and Mr. Livingston, with, I believe, one thousand Canadians, are going towards the mouth of the Sorel, pushing Colonel Allan Maclean before them. Maclean had many Canadians, but they joined through fear of fire and sword; you may easily judge how they will fight.

I send you a list of stores, artillery, &c.; and am, my dear Sir, with respect and esteem, your much obliged humble servant,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

To General Schuyler.

P. S. Half-past six. Just received your favour of 31st October; a good deal of artillery stores, but we have not time to ascertain them. Neither Macpherson nor Rensselaer have commissions.

St. John's, November 1, 1775.

SIR: I am credibly informed that the prisoner you permitted to pass here this evening is frequently subject to fits of insanity, and therefore cannot lay much stress on what he says.

Equally anxious to prevent the further unnecessary effusion of blood, and zealous to maintain the honour of His Majesty's arms, I now inform you, that should no attempt be made to relieve this place within the space of four days, I will then offer to you my proposals relative to a surrender. The low state of my provisions, the destruction of artillery stores, tools, &c., are points with which the deserter was not well acquainted. In whatever way the fate of this garrison may be determined, I flatter myself it will never depend on the assembling of Canadians, who must have rendered themselves equally contemptible to both parties.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

CHARLES PRESTON,

Major 26th Reg't, comm'dg at St. John's.

To Brigadier-General Montgomery.

November 1, 1775.

SIR: The advanced season of the year will not admit of your proposal. I do assure you, upon the honour of a gentleman, that what the prisoner has informed you of is true, as far as has come to my knowledge; however, if it want further confirmation, Mr. Depane, of Montreal, who is also my prisoner, will, I believe, give you the same intelligence.

Having now acquitted my conscience, I must, to save time and prevent trouble, acquaint you, if you do not surrender this day, it will be unnecessary to make any future proposals; the garrison shall be prisoners of war, without the honours of war, and I cannot ensure the officers their baggage.

Should you wish to send an officer to Mr. Depane, who is on board the sloop, you have my permission. Captain Stewart carries an order for that purpose. Should you still be inclined to persist in a useless defence, you will immediately fire a cannon without shot, as a signal.

I am, Sir, your most obedient,

RICHARD MONTGOMERY.

To Major Preston.

ARTICLES OF CAPITULATION PROPOSED BY MAJOR CHARLES PRESTON FOR HIS MAJESTY'S FORTS AT ST. JOHN'S, IN THE PROVINCE OF CANADA.

Article 1st. All acts of hostility shall cease on both sides, till the articles of capitulation shall be agreed upon and signed.

Answer. Agreed.

Article 2d. The garrison shall be allowed all the honours of war, and suffered to proceed with their baggage and effects to the most convenient post in America; from thence to embark for Great Britain, as soon as they shall be furnished with transports and provisions by his Excellency General Gage, or Commander-in-Chief of His Majesty's Troops in America.

Answer. The garrison shall march out with the honours of war; this is due to their fortitude and perseverance. The non-commissioned officers and privates shall ground their arms on the plain south of the fort, and immediately embark on board such boats as shall be provided for that purpose. The officers shall keep their side arms, and their fire-arms shall be put up in a box, and delivered to them when those unhappy disputes are ended, if they do not choose to dispose of them before. The garrison must go to Connecticut Government, or such other Province as the honourable the Continental Congress shall direct; there to remain till our unhappy differences shall be compromised, or till they are exchanged. Our prisoners have been constantly treated with a brotherly affection; the effects of the garrison shall not be withheld from them.

Article 3d. An officer or Quartermaster from each Corps shall be allowed to pass to Montreal, upon parole of honour; there to transact and settle the business of his respective Corps, and to bring up their baggage, clothing, and pay; for which purpose they shall be furnished with carts and batteaus.

Answer. Agreed to in the fullest latitude.

Article 4th. The Canadian gentlemen, inhabitants, and other persons residing in this Province, and now in St. John's, shall be permitted to return unmolested to their respective homes, with their arms and baggage, and remain secure in their property and effects.

Answer. Answered in the second article; the Canadian gentlemen and others being part of the garrison.

Article 5th. The sick and wounded shall be taken proper care of, and permitted to join their respective Corps, or return to their respective homes, upon their recovery.

Answer. The sick and wounded shall be taken care of by their own Surgeons, and when recovered follow their respective Corps.

Article 6th. As soon as the above articles shall be signed, Major Preston will deliver up the forts, with the ammunition, provisions, &c.

Answer. To-morrow morning, at eight o'clock, the garrison will march out, having first collected their baggage and effects together in a convenient place for embarkation, and leaving a guard for its protection; the officers must be upon honour, with respect to their baggage. Should any Canadian or other person effect his escape, his baggage shall be given as plunder to the troops. The Quartermaster-General, with proper Commissaries, will attend at eight o'clock, to receive the artillery, ammunition, naval stores, &c.

The deserters from the Continental Army shall not be included in the stipulation for the garrison. The commanding officer to sign and deliver the articles of capitulation by sunset this evening.

CHARLES PRESTON,

Major 26th Reg't, com'dg at St. John's.

St. John's, November 2, 1775.

RETURN OF BRASS AND IRON ORDNANCE AND MORTARS IN THE NORTH AND SOUTH FORTS AT ST. JOHN'S.

Brass: Two 24-pounders, one 12-pounder, four 6-pounders, two 4-pounders, eight 3-pounders, two 8-inch howitzers.

Iron: Six 9-pounders, one 8-pounder, eleven 6-pounders, one 5-pounder, one 4-pounder, two 3-pounders.

Mortars: Three 5 1-2-inch, four 4 2-5-inch.

M. JAMES, Commissary of Art'y.

St. John's, November 3, 1775.

AN INVENTORY OF NAVAL STORES AT FORT ST. JOHN'S.

Two 9-inch cables, 120 fathoms each; two 7-inch cables, 120 fathoms each; two 4½-inch hawsers; one coil 3½-inch rope, 120 fathoms; two coils ratline; sundries of lines and marline; two anchors, weight 4 cwt. 25 lbs.; two anchors, weight 3 cwt. 1 qr. 8 lbs.; two anchors, weight 2 cwt. 3 qrs.; one suit of sails for the Schooner Royal Savage; one square-sail for the row galley; two mariner's compasses; three cases nails and spikes; five kegs paint; eight gallons linseed oil; three hand-leads; brushes; ten barrels pitch; one barrel rosin; one barrel tar; new blocks for the sloop on the stocks; three large iron kettles; two large iron pots; part of a cask of tal-low.

Fort St. John's, November 3, 1775.

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Ticonderoga, November 7, 1775.

MY DEAR GENERAL: I had prepared an answer to your last, which I received three days ago; but as it was not copied, and having this moment received the agreeable intelligence of the reduction of St. John's, I would not withhold from your Excellency so interesting an account, for a letter which I may hereafter send. I only enclose copies of General Montgomery's letter, and of the papers that were enclosed in it.

Mr. Montgomery's merit is the more, on account of the difficulties he has had to encounter. What these are, the answer to your Excellency's, above alluded to, will point out.

I beg leave to congratulate you on this happy event, which I hope will be followed by the reduction of all Canada, especially should Colonel Arnold get down to the St. Lawrence.

Believe me, my dear General, that, with all those sentiments which flow from unfeigned esteem, I am your Excellency's most obedient and most humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

General Washington,

MAJOR BROWN TO GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

Sorel, November 7, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I have enclosed you a number of letters, which I took from the post at Berke, the last night, on his way from Montreal to Quebeck. I patrolled the north shore the whole of last night; took young Paterson, a merchant from Montreal to Quebeck; Mr. Woolsey, merchant, Quebeck; James Cuthbert, Esquire, counsellor and seigneur, of Berke. The two first I discharged immediately, they appearing to be on private business. Mr. Cuthbert I brought this side, and, on examination, could not prove any thing material; therefore, he is discharged on his parole.

Mr. Paterson informs that the merchants at Montreal held a council yesterday; after which, they waited on the Governour, and requested him to determine their fate. He answered, that he should quit the Town in a day or two, and they might take care of themselves. They instantly determined to apply to General Montgomery for protection, &c. You will find the Governour's departure foretold in the letters sent you. I should have tarried the other side the river, raised a large party, and covered your landing; but, from the intelligence aforesaid, thought it not worth while. Took a good batteau the other side, &c. The shipping remain here as yet; we shall give them a few shot to-morrow morning, from a battery now erecting. We wait the General's pleasure for further orders. Should be glad to have the honour of entering the City of Mon- treál with the Army, provided the Regiment remains here.

I am, Sir, with the greatest esteem, your very humble servant,

JOHN BROWN, Major.

Brigadier-General Montgomery.

EXTRACT OF A LETTER TO A GENTLEMAN IN LONDON, DATED
QUEBECK, NOVEMBER 7, 1775.

In my last I hinted to you the situation this country was in. Since that period things have grown worse, insomuch that the country is now invested in three different places. Our friends above will inevitably fall a sacrifice to a Rebel banditti, being unable to withstand such powerful opponents; while we in this place are making every preparation for an obstinate defence, being resolved to hold out to the last. So soon as this vessel sails, which I imagine will be the last this year, every citizen will betake himself to arms, as all kinds of business will then in a great measure cease. For these three months past, the inhabitants have already been doing garrison duty, as militia, in which corps I have also the honour to serve, and this day mounted guard, which comes round every fourth day.

We have at this time about forty pieces of cannon on our ramparts, and every avenue leading to the Town properly repaired. The only thing we want is men, there being no Regulars in the garrison. However, what with sailors, British settlers, and French, (though the latter cannot be much depended upon,) we nearly muster two thousand five hundred. With this force we hope to hold out till we have a re-enforcement in the spring; but should that be late in arriving, I am afraid we shall be at last obliged to yield. Indeed, would you believe it, the French, whom the Government has done so much for, and relied upon, have taken up arms against us, several of whom are now prisoners amongst us, having been taken in a late engagement near the Town. As I shall have no opportunity of writing to Great Britain till perhaps June next, unless matters are settled at home, you will not be surprised at my silence.

INSTRUCTIONS TO BRIGADIER-GENERAL JOHN SULLIVAN.

Orders for Brigadier-General SULLIVAN, given at Headquarters, November 7, 1775.

You are to proceed immediately to Portsmouth, New-Hampshire, and complete the works already begun, to secure that and the other Towns at the entrance of Piscataqua River from any attacks by ships of war. For this purpose, you are to fix ships and fire-rafts in such places as you find most convenient to prevent the enemy from passing up the river. As great calamity and distress are brought upon our sea-port Towns, through the malicious endeavours and false representations of many persons holding commissions under the Crown, who, not content with bringing destruction upon some of our principal Towns, are yet using every art that malice can devise to reduce others to the same unhappy state, in hopes, by such diabolical and cruel conduct, to please an arbitrary and tyrannical Ministry, and to receive from them, in return, a continuance of such places and pensions as they now hold, at the expense of the blood and treasure of this distressed Continent: You are therefore, immediately upon your arrival in that Province, to seize such persons as hold commissions under the Crown, and are acting as avowed and open enemies to their Country, and hold them as hostages for the security of those Towns which our Ministerial enemies threaten to invade. In case any attack should be made upon Portsmouth, or other sea-ports in that quarter, you are immediately to collect such force as can be raised, to repel the invasion, and at all hazards to prevent the enemy from landing and taking possession of any ports in that quarter. When you have completed the works at Portsmouth, and secured the passage of the river there, you are to return without delay to the Army, unless you find that the enemy are about to make an immediate attack upon that or the neighbouring Towns. The above is rather to be considered as matter of advice, than orders; as I do not conceive myself authorized to involve the Continent in any expense, for the defence of Portsmouth or other place, out of the line of the great American defence, particular Colonies being called upon by the Congress to prepare for their own internal security.

Given under my hand, the day and year above.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

JAMES SULLIVAN TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Falmouth, November 7, 1775.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: I not long ago took leave to write to your Honours on the very alarming state of this part of the Colony; and now again, presuming on your great candour, trouble you further, which I hope, as the publick good is my only inducement, however assuming it may be, will be pardoned.

In my former letter I mentioned, that an army raised to defend us, at the publick expense, would defeat its very end. Since that time, being invited by the people of the County of Cumberland to assist in fortifying on Falmouth Neck, I find the ground here to be so advantageous, that, should the regular Army get possession of it with one thousand men, there would be no way to force their lines, and all the Province of Maine must fall a sacrifice, and be obliged to take arms against their brethren, as the inhabitants of Boston now are, or flee from their habitations to the Old Colony, for subsistence and protection—an alternative cruel to our brethren, but infinitely more so to us. If the English troops should get footing here, beef, wood, &c., would be supplied to their Army, wherever on the Continent it may be encamped; and from here would be a full supply of lumber to the West-Indies. These things, I apprehend, are well worthy the attention of the guardians of this Colony in a special manner, as well as of those of the Continent.

The militia of the County of Cumberland and the eastern part of the County of York have been for several days, and now are, cheerfully, intrenching and fortifying, to prevent so great a calamity; but as a fleet can, at any hour of the night, come into the harbour here, which is undoubtedly, at all seasons of the year, the best in America, and suddenly land a party on the hill which forms one bank of the harbour, and is much better formed for defence than Bunker-Hill, there must be a constant garrison, in order to hold the possession of it. And I apprehend that one thousand men, with a good organization of the militia, will be sufficient to keep possession of the Town, and hold the key of all this territory.

This, I think, would be more eligible than the keeping an army of several thousand men here next summer, to watch the motions of an army encamped within lines by no means to be forced. There are a number of fine cannon here, but no powder worth consideration; and I must beg leave to suggest, for the publick good, that the powder in several Towns behind the Continental Army might be ordered here immediately. There is no probability of its being needed there this winter; and as several vessels are now gone on this errand, from this place, and advice being this day had, from the West-Indies, that powder is plenty there, it may be repaid before spring.

The distress of this unhappy Town serves to unite the people in the most vigorous measures they are capable of; and many of those who addressed Governor Hutchinson are now the most zealous in their Country's cause.

I would beg leave to suggest to your Honours the expediency of having the sea-coast men in this County, and those in Wells, Arundel, Biddeford, and Pepperellborough, in the County of York, ordered here. These will make one good Regiment; and as they must go on much fatigue, their wages may be raised to the establishment of the Army at Cambridge, and field-officers may be appointed over them. These can serve until the last of December, with such Regiment as may be ordered here from Cambridge, or raised by this Colony; and by the expiration of that time it may be determined whether five hundred men, during the residue of the winter, will be sufficient. There must also be some person appointed as Commissary and Quartermaster.

In the above suggestions for garrisoning this place, I have no selfish views; for if the Ministerial Army should come here to ravage and destroy, it would be but little out of my way to find an asylum on the westward of Merrimack River; but I tremble at the consequence of not holding this advantageous piece of ground. I would just mention, that the General Officer who commands this garrison, I imagine, ought to command the militia of the Province of Maine also.

I am, with the greatest veneration, your Honours' most obliged and very humble servant,

JAMES SULLIVAN.

To the Honourable Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

MAY IT PLEASE YOUR HONOURS: The distressing circumstances and dangerous situation of the County of Cumberland, and the eastern part of the County of York, will, I hope, sufficiently apologize for my laying it before your Honours.

The metropolis of this eastern part of the Colony is now in ashes, and the same fate seems pending over the whole territory. An armed vessel now lies near where Falmouth lately stood, demanding free egress and regress on the land, and the giving up all weapons of war, with apparent design of possessing themselves of that advantageous post, where they can securely lie, and by degrees subject and destroy the country round, and no leader appears, to whom the people pay the least regard.

An army to defend us, at the publick expense, would, I fear, defeat its very end; and no method can be suggested to save us, but the organization of the militia, who, notwithstanding their recent and free choice of officers, are not under the least control. Nor do I conceive it possible to have a militia that may be depended on, while they have the election of their officers; for such is the state of human nature, that people will not be obedient to power derived immediately from themselves; and as all power is, or ought to be, derived from the people, it would always be well to have a certain depositum, where it shall be lodged by the people, and from whence it may be taken by their officers. Where it should be lodged in this Colony is obvious; but however this may be, it is a melancholy and incontestable fact, that there can be no attack, to good purposes, made on disciplined troops, by our militia, in their present disordered situation. To this the battle of Lexington is a witness.

I therefore humbly move to your Honours, that as you regard our lives, and wish not our utter destruction, you would immediately commission our militia on the old, if there is no new establishment; and would also beg leave to suggest the necessity and importance of appointing a General Officer in each quarter of the Province; for, unless this is done, there can be no head, and the forces will be a multitude, and not an army.

I am, with the most profound veneration, your Honours' most humble and obedient servant,

JAMES SULLIVAN.

To the Honourable Council of Massachusetts-Bay.

ADDRESS OF THE PRINCIPAL INHABITANTS OF THE BURGH OF FORTROSE.

Address of the Magistrates, Town Council, and all the principal Inhabitants of the Burgh of Fortrose, presented to His Majesty by Colonel Hector Munro, their Representative in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Magistrates, Town Council, and all the principal Inhabitants of the Burgh of Fortrose, lawfully assembled.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

Animated with the most sincere and loyal affection to your Majesty's person and family, with the warmest zeal for the dignity of your crown and the constitutional legislative authority of the King and Parliament of Great Britain, and filled with a just sense of the many blessings we enjoy, in common with millions of our fellow-subjects, under your mild and auspicious Government, we, your Majesty's loyal and dutiful subjects, the Magistrates, Town Council, and Inhabitants of the Burgh of Fortrose, assembled, beg leave to approach the throne, and express our indignation at, and abhorrence of, the measures adopted by our unhappy and deluded fellow-subjects in America, in direct opposition to law and justice, and to every rational idea of colonization, especially in Colonies so long, so unweariedly, and so tenderly cherished by the Parent State, which with so liberal a hand poured forth her blood and treasure, to rear them up to their present state of power and opulence.

With still greater indignation, if possible, we behold this rebellious disposition, which so fatally obtains on the other side the Atlantick, fomented and cherished by a set of men in Great Britain, who, under the mask of patriotism, sow sedition and discord among their fellow-subjects, that, by involving every thing in confusion, they may accomplish their private views, by which they seem to be actuated.

We heartily wish our untoward brethren, your Majesty's deluded children, may quickly return to their duty, without further bloodshed, and upon terms as mild and gentle as are consistent with the dignity of our King, and a just subordination and submission to the supreme Legislature of Great Britain. But if they shall persist in their unnatural and unprovoked rebellion, we hope your Majesty will direct such vigorous, speedy, and effectual measures to be pursued, as may bring them to a due sense of their error; in which we are persuaded your Majesty will be cheerfully supported by all your faithful subjects of Great Britain and Ireland, however a few (and we trust they are but few) factious and turbulent spirits may have entered into an unnatural confederacy to encourage ingratitude, stubbornness, and rebellion, among their fellow-subjects.

May peace, harmony, and due subordination, every where prevail in your Majesty's extensive Dominions, to the last period of a long and happy reign; and under the auspices of your royal progeny, copying the glorious pattern, may every constitutional blessing, hitherto inviolated by the best of Kings, be perpetuated to generations yet unborn.

Signed in name and authority of the Magistrates, Town Council, and all the principal Inhabitants of the Burgh of Fortrose.

HECTOR MUNRO, Provost.

ADDRESS OF THE CORPORATION OF BEWDLEY.

Address of the Corporation of Bewdley, in the County of Worcester, presented to His Majesty by Charles Henry Lyttelton, Esq., their Representative in Parliament, accompanied by the Right Honourable Lord Lyttelton, High Steward of the Corporation, and Charles Baldwyn, Esq., the Recorder.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Corporation of Bewdley, in the County of Worcester, in Common Council assembled, most humbly beg leave, at this very important crisis, to approach your Majesty, with hearts full of zeal for the maintenance of those rights which are inseparably attached to your Majesty's imperial crown, and abhorrence of those unconstitutional doctrines and practices which have plunged so large a part of your Majesty's American subjects into open rebellion against the supreme legislative authority of your Majesty, in your High Court of Parliament.

As Englishmen, we hold ourselves bound to concur with alacrity in such measures as, in the wisdom of your Majesty and the Great Council of the Nation, shall be found necessary to assert and confirm the ancient unalienable power and jurisdiction of the three estates of this Realm, over every part of the British Dominions, in all cases whatsoever; and as men, whose welfare is more immediately dependant on trade, and who know the importance of the objects in dispute, we earnestly supplicate your Majesty to persevere in such courses as may most effectually subdue that treasonable and ungrateful spirit in the American Provinces, which manifestly tends to throw off every restraint, commercial and political, which, as Colonies that owe their existence to the support and protection of this Country, law, reason, and justice, have subjected them to.

Permit us, Sir, to conclude with our fervent prayers to Almighty God, that our deluded fellow-subjects may soon return to a just sense of their duty; and that your Majesty may long live and reign the father of a happy and undivided people.

Given under our common seal, at the Guildhall in Bewdley, this eighth day of November, 1775.

JAMES PRATTINTON, Bailiff.

W. A. ROBERTS, Town Clerk.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH OF PLYMOUTH.

Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Justices, Aldermen, Common Council, Freemen, and Inhabitants of the Borough of Plymouth, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Lord Barrington and Sir Charles Hardy, Knight, their Representatives in Parliament.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Recorder, Justices, Aldermen, Common Council, Freemen, and Inhabitants of the Borough of PLYMOUTH.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's dutiful and loyal subjects, the Mayor, Recorder, Justices, Aldermen, Common Council, Freemen, and Inhabitants of the Borough of Plymouth, beg leave to assure your Majesty of our steady attachment to your person and family, in these times of publick commotion. We reflect with gratitude on the many blessings dispensed to us by your Majesty's goodness, and observe with the deepest concern the calamitous effects of that spirit of discontent which prevails among your subjects in America, and is increased to such a degree as to produce all the evils of a civil war in that quarter of your Dominions. Arduous questions of Government, of which we are incompetent to judge, we do not affect to decide; we leave them to your Majesty, assisted by the Great Council of the Nation, in confidence that the powers vested in you by the laws of your Kingdom will ever be directed towards the attainment of the great end of their institution—the good of your people. And we persuade ourselves that, under the influence of measures concerted with wisdom and executed with firmness and moderation, the Colonists will be brought to a just sense of their duty, that good order will be re-established among them, and that peace and harmony will take place throughout the British Empire.

Permit us further to assure you, Sir, that we contemplate with abhorrence every proposition that is inconsistent with the idea of your Majesty's perfect security on the throne of these Kingdoms, because we look up to your Majesty as the faithful guardian of those liberties which were recovered by the Revolution, have been protected by your illustrious family, and which, we trust, will be preserved entire to us and our descendants.

EARL OF DARTMOUTH TO MAJOR-GENERAL HOWE.

Whitehall, November 8, 1775.

SIR: Since my letter to you of the 22d of October, triplicate of which I enclose, the plan, the object, and the probable effect of the intended expedition to the Southern Provinces, have been maturely considered, and the King has thought fit that the force should be augmented by an addition of the Twenty-Eighth and Forty-Sixth Regiments; so that the whole will consist of seven Regiments.

It has been found, upon examination, that Cape Fear River will not admit ships of a large draught of water, on account of its bar; so large a body of troops, therefore, cannot receive from the fleet that is to accompany them that protection and assistance which is necessary in their disembarkation, and consequently there is much doubt whether the object of sending a force there can be accomplished.

As my letter to you, however, directs that the General Officer who is to have the command should repair to Cape Fear, the Regiments from hence will be directed to proceed thither, and the Commander-in-Chief will be instructed to confer with Governour Martin, and consider whether it will be practicable to effect any essential service in North-Carolina, with such a part of the Army as can be conveniently landed.

Should that be the case, he will proceed with the rest of the troops, or otherwise with the whole of them, to South-Carolina, and after advising with the Governour upon the best means of executing the service he is sent upon, according to the instructions he will receive from me, he will either land the troops at Charlestown, or proceed to Port-Royal harbour.

The enclosed copies of my letters of yesterday's date, to Governour Martin and Lord William Campbell, will not only point out to you the orders I have given to them respecting this expedition, but will also explain to you our ideas of the possible advantage that is to be expected from it. I say of the possible advantage, because the effect of it is very precarious.

If, however, it should succeed, according to the assurances that have been given us, in encouraging the friends of Government to stand forth in the defence of the Constitution, and in enabling them to wrest the sword out of the hands of the Rebels, it will be a great point gained. But even if it should fail of that consequence, it can have no effect to weaken the operation to the northward, as there are many situations in the Southern Provinces where the Army may be posted with great security, and with every advantage of a healthy climate, until the season arrives for their joining the body of forces under your command—a junction that will be made with greater advantage, and at a much earlier period than it could be from England.

I am, &c.,

DARTMOUTH.

HANOVER COUNTY (VIRGINIA) COMMITTEE.

At a meeting appointed and held for Hanover County, at the Court-House, on Wednesday, the eighth day of November, 1775:

This Committee being apprehensive that the enemies of America may be supplied with Provisions, by transporting the same by water: therefore it is hereby directed and ordered, that no person within their jurisdiction be allowed to carry any Grain, or other Provision, from landing to landing, without a permit from John Syme, William Johnson, Benjamin Anderson, William Anderson, (son of Nelson,) and Bartelot Anderson, Gentlemen, or any two of them; and that the persons praying such permit do give bond and security, payable to the Committee of Safety for the time being, or their successors, in such sum as shall be adjudged necessary by the above gentlemen, to comply with such orders as they shall direct.

Ordered, That a copy be transmitted to the printers, to be published.

W. BENTLEY, Clerk.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO RICHARD HENRY LEE.

Cambridge, November 8, 1775.

DEAR SIR: I mean but to acknowledge the receipt of your obliging favour of the 22d ultimo; for, as I expect this letter will be handed to you in Philadelphia, to recite the contents of my letter to the Congress would be little more than idle repetition. I should be very glad if the Congress would, without delay, appoint some mode by which an examination into the captures made by our armed vessels may be had, as we are rather groping in the dark till this happens.

I sincerely condole with you on the loss of our good old Speaker; and, with respectful compliments to the good family you are in, your brother, &c., I remain, dear Sir, your most affectionate humble servant,

To Richard Henry Lee.

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

P. S. Tell Doctor B. Shippen that I was in hopes that his business would have permitted him to come here Director of the Hospital. Advices from England would be very agreeable; we have none here.

G. W.

MAJOR BROWN TO GENERAL MONTGOMERY.

Sorel, November 8, 1775.

SIR: This minute received your letter of yesterday, via Colonel Warner and Captain Grant. The row-galley has not, as yet, arrived; should she arrive timely, we will attack Mr. Carleton in his retreat, you may be sure. This morning opened our battery on the shipping; gave them at least twelve rounds. The snow was within two hundred yards of the battery, at the commencement of the fire; we plumped her through in many places, before she could tow off; she slipped her cable, and has made the best of her way down the river, out of sight. The Negroes on board cried out, "O Lord! O Lord!" &c. She fired briskly on us, or rather on the Town, until she got off. We are entirely at leisure; having swept land and sea. We wrote particularly to the General yesterday, &c.

Your most obedient humble servant,

JOHN BROWN, Major, per order.

To General Montgomery.

GENERAL GATES TO THE COUNCIL OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Head-Quarters, November 8, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: I send you, by order of his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief, Lemuel Cox, late of Boston, a supposed spy from the Ministerial Army. I send, also, such evidence as can be immediately produced against him; others there are, at some distance in the country—I think at Marlborough—but Captain Forster will inform you. What you think proper to do with the prisoner should be done as soon as convenient. There is no doubt of his having been in and out of Boston twice, if not thrice, since the battle on Bunker's Hill. His distant removal from the camp will at least be absolutely necessary.

I am, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servant,
HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

To the Hon. James Otis, Esq.

JAMES OTIS TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Council Chamber, November 8, 1775.

SIR: Agreeable to your request, signified to the Board by your Excellency's Aid-de-Camp, Mr. Harrison, we have caused Mr. Smithwick to be apprehended, and herewith send him to wait your Excellency's order, under custody of the Sergeant's guard who brought Mr. Cox here this morning.

In the name and by order of the Council:

JAMES OTIS, President.

To His Excellency General Washington.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO THE PRESIDENT OF CONGRESS.

Cambridge, November 8, 1775.

SIR: The immediate occasion of my giving the Congress the trouble of a letter at this time, is to inform them that in consequence of their order, signified in your letter of the 20th ult., I laid myself under a solemn tie of secrecy to Captain Macpherson, and proceeded to examine his plan, for the destruction of the fleet in the harbour of Boston, with all that care and attention which the importance of it deserved, and my judgment could lead to; but not being happy enough to coincide in opinion with that gentleman, and finding that his scheme would involve greater expense than (under my doubts of its success) I thought myself justified in giving in to, I prevailed upon him to communicate his plan to three gentlemen of the Artillery, in this Army, well acquainted in the knowledge and practice of gunnery. By them he has been convinced, that inasmuch as he set out upon wrong principles, the scheme would prove abortive. Unwilling, however, to relinquish his favorite project of reducing the naval force of Great Britain, he is very desirous of building a number of row-galleys for this purpose; but as the Congress alone are competent to the adoption of this measure, I have advised him (although he offered to go on with the building of them, at his own expense, till the Congress should decide) to repair immediately to Philadelphia with his proposals, where, if they should be agreed to, or vessels of superior force (agreeable to the wishes of most others) should be resolved on, he may set instantly about them, with all the materials upon the spot. Here they are to collect. To him, therefore, I refer for further information on this head.

A vessel, said to be from Philadelphia, and bound to Boston, with one hundred and twenty pipes of wine, (one hundred and eighteen of which are secured,) stranded at a place called Eastham, in a gale of wind on the 2d instant; another, from Boston to Halifax, with dry goods, &c., amounting, per invoice, to about two hundred and forty Pounds, lawful money, got disabled in the same gale, near Beverly. These cargoes, with the papers, I have ordered to this place; the vessels to be taken care of till further orders. I have also an account of the taking of a wood sloop, bound to Boston, and carried into Portsmouth, by one of our armed vessels; particulars not yet come to hand. And this instant, of two others, from Nova-Scotia to Boston, with hay, wood, live stock, &c., by another of our armed schooners; these are in Plymouth. These accidents and captures point out the necessity of establishing proper courts, without loss of time, for the decision of property and the legality of seizures; otherwise I may be involved in inextricable difficulties.

Our prisoners, by the reduction of Fort Chamblly, (on which happy event I most sincerely congratulate the Congress,) being considerably augmented, and likely to be increased, I submit it to the wisdom of Congress, whether some convenient inland Towns, remote from the post roads, ought not to be assigned them, the manner of their treatment, subsistence, &c., defined, and a commissary or agent appointed to see that justice is done both to them and the publick, proper accounts rendered, &c. Without a mode of this sort is adopted, I fear there will be sad confusion hereafter, as there are great complaints at present.

I reckoned without my host when I informed the Congress, in my last, that I should, in a day or two, be able to acquaint them of the disposition of the soldiery towards a new enlistment. I have been in consultation with the Generals of this Army ever since Thursday last, endeavouring to establish new corps of officers, but find so many doubts and difficulties to reconcile, I cannot say when they are to end or what may be the consequences, as there appears to be such an unwillingness in the officers of one Government mixing in the same Regiment with those of another; and, without it, many must be dismissed, who are willing to serve, notwithstanding we are deficient on the whole. I am to have another meeting to-day, upon this business, and shall inform you of the result.

The Council of Officers are unanimously of opinion that the command of the Artillery should no longer continue in Colonel Gridley; and knowing of no person better qualified to supply his place, or whose appointment will give more general satisfaction, I have taken the liberty of recommending Henry Knox, Esq., to the consideration of the Congress, thinking it indispensably necessary, at the same time, that this Regiment should consist of two Lieutenant-Colonels, two Majors, and twelve Companies, agreeable to the plan and estimate handed in, which, differing from the last establishment, I should be glad to be instructed on.

The Commissary-General, not being returned, will apologize, I hope, for my silence respecting a requisition of the expense of his Clerks, &c., which I was to have obtained, together with others, and forward.

I have heard nothing of Colonel Arnold since the 13th ult. His letter of and journal to that date will convey all the information I am able to give of him. I think he must be in Quebeck. If any mischance had happened to him, he would, as directed, have forwarded an express.

No account yet of the armed vessels sent to St. Lawrence. I think they will meet with the stores inward or outward bound.

Captain Symons, in the Cerberus, lately sent from Boston to Falmouth, has published the enclosed declaration at that place, and it is suspected intends to make some kind of a lodgement there. I wrote immediately to Colonel Phinney, of this Army, who went up there, upon the last alarm, to spirit up the people, and oppose it at all events. Falmouth is about one hundred and thirty miles from this camp.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

P. S. I send a general return of the Troops, and manifests of the cargoes and vessels taken at Plymouth.

Falmouth, November 2, 1775.

SIR: We have received your polite favour of the 24th ultimo. It gives us inexpressible concern to find that it is out of your power to afford us any aid; and we are the more concerned, on the arrival yesterday of the Ship Cerberus, with a number of men, said to be about four hundred. Those, we expect, will in a few hours land and take possession of the Town. How soon they will penetrate in the country, God only knows; for what can a people do without arms and ammunition to defend themselves. The poor distressed people, drove from their habitations by the late cruel destruction of the Town, can scarcely find sufficient places for their accommodation; and the country is so engaged in procuring provisions for them, that we find it difficult to raise the militia for our present defence. But we have only two half barrels of powder in stock, and we almost fear to make an opposition.

We think it our duty to represent our situation to you, not doubting that if you can think of any measures to relieve us, consistent with the general interest, you will do it.

We are in great want of some person, of a martial spirit, to conduct the few Tories we already have.

We are, Sir, with great respect, your most obedient and very humble servant,

ENOCH MOODY,

Chairman of the Committee of Falmouth.

P. S. Enclosed is a manifesto sent on shore by the Captain of the Cerberus, who verbally demanded of two or three gentlemen, who went on board yesterday, twenty sheep, and to come on shore for wood and water unmolested. Also is enclosed Captain Mowat's letter.

Falmouth, November 1, 1775.

Captain John Symons, commander of His Majesty's Ship Cerberus, hereby causeth it to be signified and made known, to all persons whatever in the Town of Falmouth, as well as the country adjacent, that if, after this publick notice, any violences shall be offered to any of the officers of the Crown, or other peaceably disposed subjects of His Majesty; or if any bodies of men shall be raised and armed in the said Town and country adjacent, or any military works erected, otherwise than by order of His Majesty, or those acting under his authority; or if any attempts shall be made to seize or destroy any publick magazines of arms, ammunition, or other stores, it will be indispensably my duty to proceed with the most vigorous efforts against the said Town, as in open rebellion against the King. And if, after this signification, the Town shall persist in the rebellious acts abovementioned, they may depend on my proceeding accordingly.

And I do hereby also make known, that if any officers of the Colonies, belonging to the Crown, or any of His Majesty's subjects whatever, who may be compelled, by the violences of the people, to seek an asylum, that they may repair on board His Majesty's Ship Cerberus, where they will receive every protection in my power.

JOHN SYMONS.

God save the King.

General Return of the Army of the UNITED COLONIES, commanded by His Excellency GEORGE WASHINGTON, Esq., General and Commander-in-Chief.

The number of Regiments, 39; 4 Companies of Riflemen from Virginia and Maryland; 2 Companies in Col. Hinman's Regiment; and 4 Independent Companies.

Total of Commissioned Officers present: 28 Colonels, 32 Lieutenant-Colonels, 30 Majors, 290 Captains, 558 Lieutenants, 65 Ensigns.

Total of Staff Officers present: 21 Chaplains, 35 Adjutants, 35 Quartermasters, 31 Surgeons, and 36 Mates.

Total of Non-Commissioned Officers present: 1,238 Sergeants, 690 Drums and Fifes.

Rank and File present: Fit for duty, 13,358; sick present, 1,378; sick absent, 784; on furlough, 875; on command, 3,009. Total of Rank and File, 19,404.

Wanting to complete: 12 Sergeants, 47 Drums and Fifes, 1,686 Privates.

Since last Return: 2 enlisted, 10 dead, 101 discharged, and 39 deserted.

HORATIO GATES, Adjutant-General.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, November 6, 1775.

ORDERS BY GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, November 1, 1775.

(Parole, Dorchester.)

(Countersign, Ep. om.)

The General recommends it to those officers who have signified their intention to continue in the service of the United Colonies another campaign, not to run themselves to any expense in procuring Coats and Waistcoats, until they are arranged into proper Corps, and the Uniforms of the Regiment they belong to ascertained; which will probably be in a few days.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, November 3, 1775.

(Parole, Huntington.)

(Countersign, Ip. wic.)

William Briant, Alexander Ingham, Francis Woo-

bourn, and Joseph Rockwood, tried at a late General Court-Martial, for "stealing Rum out of the Commissary-General's stores." The Court are of opinion, that the prisoners Briant, Ingham, and Woobourn, are not guilty; but that the prisoner Rockwood alone is guilty of the crime laid to his charge, and do therefore sentence him to receive ten lashes, upon his bare back, at the head of the Regiment to which he belongs. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to be executed as soon as the weather will permit.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, November 5, 1775.

(Parole, Montgomery.)

(Countersign, Chamblis.)

Samuel Huntington and John Englis, soldiers in the Thirty-Fourth Regiment of Foot, tried at a late General Court-Martial, for "mutiny." The Court, upon mature consideration, are of opinion, that the evidence against the prisoners is not sufficient to convict them of mutiny, but that they are each of them guilty of assisting and encouraging mutiny; therefore adjudge that each of them pay a fine of fifteen Shillings, and suffer each of them fifteen days fatigue. The General approves the sentence, and orders it to be put in execution.

As the Commander-in-Chief has been apprized of a design formed for the observance of that ridiculous and childish custom of burning the effigy of the Pope, he cannot help expressing his surprise that there should be officers and soldiers in this Army so void of common sense as not to see the impropriety of such a step at this juncture, at a time when we are soliciting, and have already obtained the friendship and alliance of the people of Canada, whom we ought to consider as brethren embarked in the same cause—the defence of the general liberty of America. At such a juncture, and in such circumstances, to be insulting their religion is so monstrous as not to be suffered or excused; indeed, instead of offering the most remote insult, it is our duty to address publick thanks to these our brethren, as to them we are so much indebted for every late happy success over the common enemy in Canada.

Head-Quarters, Cambridge, November 6, 1775.

(Parole, Arnold.)

(Countersign, Quebeck.)

Robert Hanson Harrison, Esq., is appointed Aid-de-Camp to his Excellency the Commander-in-Chief; and all orders, whether written or verbal, coming from the General through Mr. Harrison, are to be punctually obeyed.

Although the men confined by Lieutenant-Colonel Reed, of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, were released, upon application to Head-Quarters, the General, so far from being displeased with Colonel Reed, for his endeavours to prevent an infringement of the General Orders, that he thanks the Colonel—as he shall every officer who pays strict obedience to orders; as, without so doing, it is in vain to think of preserving order and discipline in an Army. The disagreeableness of the weather, scarcity of wood, &c., inclined the General to overlook the offence committed at that time; but he hopes and expects the officers and soldiers will, for the future, carefully avoid wantonly cutting the trees and committing waste upon the property of those already but too much distressed by the depredations of the Army.

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL JOSEPH REED.

Cambridge, November 8, 1775.

DEAR SIR: The shipwreck of a vessel, said to be from Philadelphia to Boston, near Plymouth, with one hundred and twenty pipes of wine, of which one hundred and eighteen are saved; of another, from Boston to Halifax, near Beverly, with about two hundred and forty pounds worth of dry goods; the taking of a wood vessel bound to Boston, by Captain Adams; and the sudden departure of Mr. Randolph, occasioned by the death of his uncle, are all the occurrences worth noticing, which have happened since your departure. I have ordered the wine and goods to this place for sale, as also the papers. The latter may unfold secrets that may not be pleasing to some of your townsmen, and which, so soon as known, will be communicated. I have convinced Captain Macpherson, as he says, of the propriety of returning to the Congress. He sets out this day, and I am happy in his having an opportunity of laying before them a scheme for the destruction of the naval force of Great Britain. A letter and journal of Colonel Arnold's, to the 13th ultimo, are come to hand, a copy of which I enclose to the Congress, and by application to Mr. Thomson you can see it. I think he is in Quebeck. If I hear nothing more of him in five days, I shall be sure of it.

I had like to have forgotten what sits heaviest upon my mind, the new arrangement of officers. Although we have now enough to constitute the new corps, it has employed the General Officers and myself ever since Thursday last, and we are nearly as we began. Connecticut wants no Massachusetts man in her corps; Massachusetts thinks there is no necessity for a Rhode-Islander to be introduced into hers; and New-Hampshire says, it is very hard that her valuable and experienced officers, who are willing to serve, should be discarded, because her own Regiments, under the new establishment, cannot provide for them. In short, after a few days' labour, I expect that numbers of officers, who have given in their names to serve, must be discarded from the Massachusetts corps, where the Regiments have been numerous, and the number in them small, and that of Connecticut will be completed with a fresh recruit of officers from her own Government. This will be departing not only from principles of common justice, but from the letter of the resolve agreed on at this place; but, at present, I see no help for it. We are to have another meeting upon the matter this day, when something must be hit upon, as time is slipping off. My compliments to Mrs. Reed, and to all inquiring friends.

I am, with sincerity and truth, dear Sir, your affectionate humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

To Colonel Joseph Reed, Philadelphia.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO WILLIAM WATSON.

Cambridge, November 8, 1775.

SIR: I wrote you the 6th inst., to which you will please to be referred. Your favour of the same date to his Excellency is come to hand. It is his pleasure that you sell the different articles found on board the two prizes, and transmit a copy of the sales to Head-Quarters when finished. The schooner and the sloop must be carefully laid up until further orders. I hope we shall soon hear of Captain Manly's being successful, and that Captain Coit is again at sea, to pursue his good fortune, which I sincerely wish him a continuance of. The men, ammunition, &c., for the Washington will set out this day. I recommend all possible despatch to Captain Martindale; and assure you I am, Sir, yours, &c.,

S. MOYLAN.

To William Watson, Esq., Plymouth.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO JOHN BROWN.

Cambridge, November 8, 1775.

SIR: I have it in command from his Excellency General Washington to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 3d instant. As the powder you mention to have imported is disposed of, I have nothing to say thereon. Colonel Gridley has orders from the General to procure what cannon will be necessary for the use of the camp, which I dare say is all engaged. Should more be hereafter required, provided the owners of the Hope furnace can make them as good and on as reasonable terms as they can be elsewhere procured, his Excellency will give you notice thereof.

I am, with great respect, Sir, your most humble servant,

S. MOYLAN, Secretary p. t.

To John Brown, Esq., Providence.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO CAPTAIN E. BOWEN, JUN.

Cambridge, November 8, 1775.

SIR: His Excellency wrote you a few lines yesterday, informing you he could not send the sheathing nails. He has ordered me to acknowledge the receipt of your favour of the 6th instant, giving an account of two prizes being carried into your harbour by Captain Coit. Instructions relative to them are sent to the agent, William Watson, Esq. I hope Captain Coit will not be detained long by the badness of his masts. The time is very short for expecting more prizes, the season being so far advanced. This is one reason for his Excellency's determination not to fit out more cruisers for the present.

Captain Martindale's men, &c., will, I hope, set out this day. It is unnecessary to repeat how anxious his Excellency is to hear of his being at sea.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

S. MOYLAN, Secretary p. t.

To Captain E. Bowen, Jun., Plymouth.

WILLIAM BARTLETT TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Beverly, November 8, 1775.

SIR: I have the pleasure of informing your Excellency, that this morning, Sergeant Doak, belonging to Captain Selman, brought in here a sloop and her cargo, consisting of three hundred and seventy quintals of dry fish, seventy barrels of mackerel, three barrels of train oil, one barrel of salmon, by the best accounts I can collect from the people on board. I can find nothing to ascertain the cargo she has by any papers delivered me, the whole of which I send to your Excellency. Sergeant Doak, who will deliver this, can better inform your Excellency than I possibly can.

I shall wait your Excellency's further orders with regard to her; and am your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM BARTLETT.

To General Washington.

ADDRESS OF THE GENTLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF STIRLING.

Address of the Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County of Stirling, presented to His Majesty by the Right Honourable Sir Lawrence Dundas, Baronet.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Clergy, and Freeholders, of the County of STIRLING.

We, your Majesty's faithful subjects, the Gentlemen, Justices of the Peace, Clergy, and Freeholders of the County aforesaid, impressed with the deepest sense of the happiness we enjoy under the reign of a Prince so mild and beneficent, beg leave to approach your throne, with assurances of our warmest gratitude and most faithful allegiance.

We have seen, with equal concern and surprise, many of your Majesty's Colonies, who derive their origin from Britain, and owe their protection to her arms, influenced and misled by men of turbulent dispositions and democratic principles, oppose, by sedition and tumult, every constitutional act of Government, till at length, throwing aside even the appearance of obedience to the legislative authority of Great Britain, they have openly in the field displayed the ensigns and unsheathed the sword of rebellion.

We trust in your Majesty's steadiness and wisdom for such an exertion of the power of your Kingdoms as shall effectually enforce submission and obedience from the most refractory; and that no terms of accommodation will be listened to, till, abandoning every idea of resistance, they acknowledge the supreme authority of the Mother Country, in terms the most explicit, and in a manner the most unreserved.

When so desirable a period to the contest shall arrive, we rely, with perfect confidence, on your Majesty's clemency, for giving to that deluded people as favourable and indulgent terms as your Majesty in your wisdom shall see consistent with the nature of their future dependance on the British Nation.

We cannot but express our astonishment that there should be found any of our fellow-subjects so infatuated by prejudice, or so insensible to the blessings of regular Government, as to countenance, in the smallest degree, this unprovoked and daring rebellion. We confide in your Majesty's vigilance for directing such an inquiry into the correspondence from these Kingdoms with the disaffected in America, as shall effectually disconcert and annihilate a practice so unnatural and dangerous.

For our parts, we shall esteem it our highest honour, as it is unquestionably our duty, to hazard our lives and fortunes in the support of the dignity of your Majesty's crown, and the undoubted rights of the Nation; and shall embrace with ardour every occasion to testify our affection to your Majesty's person, and attachment to your family.

Signed in the presence and by appointment of the meeting, by James Bruce, of Kinaird, Preses.

JAMES BRUCE.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE PENNSYLVANIA DELEGATES IN CONTINENTAL CONGRESS.

Thursday, November 9, 1775, A. M.

The Committee appointed to prepare and bring in a draught of Instructions for the Delegates of this Province in Congress, reported an Essay for that purpose, which, being read and considered, was agreed to by the House, and is as follows, viz:

"GENTLEMEN: The trust reposed in you is of such a nature, and the modes of executing it may be so diversified in the course of your deliberations, that it is scarcely possible to give you particular instructions respecting it.

"We therefore, in general, direct, that you, or any four of you, meet in Congress the Delegates of the several Colonies now assembled in this City, and any such Delegates as may meet in Congress next year; that you consult together on the present critical and alarming state of publick affairs; that you exert your utmost endeavours to agree upon and recommend such measures as you shall judge to afford the best prospect of obtaining redress of American grievances, and restoring that union and harmony between Great Britain and the Colonies so essential to the welfare and happiness of both Countries. Though the oppressive measures of the British Parliament and Administration have compelled us to resist their violence by force of arms, yet we strictly enjoin you, that you, in behalf of this Colony, dissent from, and utterly reject, any propositions, should such be made, that may cause or lead to a separation from our Mother Country, or a change of the form of this Government.

"You are directed to make report of your proceedings to this House."

Signed by order of the House:

JOHN MORTON, Speaker.

TO THE MEMBERS OF THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

I address you by the above title for the want of another; because the line of business you now move in differs as much from the business of an Assembly, acting by virtue of what you call the present Constitution, as if you professedly renounced the name.

But be your title what it may, I cannot help expressing my surprise at seeing, in your votes of the 9th instant, an Essay for instructing the Delegates of this Province respecting their conduct in the Continental Congress, and the said Instructions couched in terms amounting to a command. When I voted at the last election for a Representative in the House in which you now sit, I never meant to invest any of you with such a power, and I protest against your assuming it. The Delegates in Congress are not the Delegates of the Assembly, but of the people, of the body at large. For convenience sake only, we at present consent to your nominating them; but we may as well be without Delegates, if they must act solely under your influence, and thus circumstanced they can only sit there as ciphers.

The Constitution of England, decayed and complicated as it is, never suffers one House to instruct the other; neither doth it permit a person to sit in both Houses. Instruction is as sacredly the right of the people as election. It was your duty to give them all possible information, but nothing further; because, respecting that body of men, you are but as individuals.

As I hope never to see the day when the Continent shall be without a Congress, so I hope in proper season to see a Congress chosen by the people, which may as easily be done as the choosing an Assembly; by which means not only every Colony, but every part of it, will be represented.

As an individual, I have no right to instruct; wherefore,

I can only convey to them my wishes, which are, that the moment they enter the threshold of the Congress, that they lay aside all private interest and connection, and consider themselves not acting Provincially, but Continentally; that as men they will disregard all undue influence, and as fathers that they will think for posterity; and with these wishes, I leave them to God and their own consciences.

A LOVER OF ORDER.

Philadelphia, November 22, 1775.

TO THE PEOPLE OF PENNSYLVANIA.

Permit me, my dear countrymen, to engage your attention for a moment, upon a subject of the last importance. I mean only to trouble you with a very few observations upon a publication in the Pennsylvania Journal of this week, which, under the plausible signature of A Lover of Order, is endeavouring to introduce into your Country a system of Government that will involve you in all the evils your enemies can wish to come upon you. I shall not hesitate to say, that the author of this essay is much more offended with the substance of the Instructions given by our Assembly to the Pennsylvania Delegates, than with the measure itself. Had they prescribed a conduct directly opposite to what is so properly pointed out in them, no man can doubt but this Lover of Order would have submitted quietly to the breach of it, which he censures, and would gladly have seen that assumption of power which he now so boldly protests against; because, not used according to his destructive wishes, or to speak in the plain language which the times demand, I think it requires but little penetration to pronounce, that he has conceived the pernicious hope of seeing Great Britain and America in a state of separation. He cannot call this an unfair construction of his conduct, when he recollects, that of all the deviations from our Constitution into which the House has been driven by the unhappiness of our situation, that only is marked with his disapprobation, which interferes with the independent scheme. It will be needless to mention the many instances of this kind that have passed unnoticed by him since the commencement of our unhappy contest. Ill informed as he appears to be, they cannot have escaped him.

He acknowledges that, for the sake of convenience, he would consent that the Assembly should appoint the Delegates; surely then the same convenience would induce him to consent that they should instruct them, as it would be much more difficult for the people at large, in this extensive Province, to agree upon a set of rules for the government of their members in Congress, than to fix upon men who are equal to the execution of those directions. If in the latter case the difficulty is found too great to contend with, in the former it must be considerably increased, not to say quite insurmountable. But if the people think it proper to invest the House with the power of appointing members for the Congress, they ought also to suffer the same body to instruct them; because the English Constitution does, and reason always would permit instructions to be given to persons intrusted with any commission by those who appointed them to execute it. If our Assembly have not a right to instruct, they have not a right to appoint the Delegates; and, consequently, Pennsylvania has never joined her sister Colonies in any part of the present opposition, never having sent her Representatives to the Congress.

But this doctrine, your love of liberty and your understandings will forbid you to allow.

Another objection made to the Instructions is, that they are too positive, and couched in terms amounting to a command, which he would have you believe renders the design of appointing Delegates abortive, and makes them sit as mere ciphers among their brethren. In this place the intention of a Congress seems to be entirely forgot. If I remember rightly, it was instituted by all the Provinces, professedly, to obtain a redress of grievances, and to agree upon some plan of opposition to the tyranny with which Great Britain unhappily thought of distressing us. The exercise of this duty is left open as wide as ever, nay, it is enforced in the strongest terms. They are only forbid to accede to any proposition which may cause or lead to a separation from our Mother Country, or a change of the form of Government. For the truth of this construction, I appeal to your judgment upon the words of the draught.

The dangerous arts of men of this cast are clearly shown in the attempts he makes to mislead your understandings, and to turn your just prepossessions in favour of our excellent form of Government into the means of overthrowing it. The Constitution of England, says he, decayed and complicated as it is, never suffers one House to instruct the other; neither doth it permit a person to sit in both Houses. The observation is true in both parts, and we shall no longer be freemen when it ceases to be so. But how or when can he mean to apply it. The cases are totally different, for two substantial reasons. In the first place, no other body can be found in the British Dominions which answers the description of the American Congress; because no part of them is in a situation to require the existence of such a body, except the Colonies. And, in the second place, neither the Congress, nor Pennsylvania House of Assembly, are formed upon the plan of the British House of Lords, where the members either inherit their seats, or are called into them by the King's writs. The Lords and Commons of Great Britain are different bodies, with separate interests, in many respects, but so connected that one cannot act without the other, being designed as a check upon each other; but the interest of every American House of Assembly is entirely involved in that of the Congress, and though every reasonable man would wish them to agree in their resolutions, yet it is not absolutely necessary, as we see in the fatal instance of New-York. This remark, when submitted to the judgments of men who have not had an opportunity of making themselves acquainted with the nature of the bodies which are compared in it, may seem to imply what the author would infer from it, viz: that our Constitution will not admit an Assembly to instruct its members of the Congress; but I hope the falsity of the inference will be easily seen through, when the cases are properly considered.

At the present juncture, when a petition from a few of the Friends has, to the eye of the world, given the false appearance of a disunion in our Province, we must esteem it a particular happiness, that we have a House of Assembly, which, from our Constitution, cannot be dissolved, and which coincides with the Congress in the opposition to an arbitrary Court. The resolves of a set of men, elected as they are, will ever be considered as conveying the true sentiments of the people they represent, notwithstanding the feigned language of non-resisting petitions, or the clamours of discontented Republicans.

It may be thought by many, that the little publication which I have ventured to comment upon could have no very dangerous tendency; but when I see that, inconsiderable as they really are, such pieces constantly attract the notice of Government, and have been made use of by a neighbouring Governour to support the false charge of independent designs in the people, I am induced to take more notice of them than they really deserve.

Our Representatives, my dear countrymen, have set us a noble example, in this respect at least; let us, therefore, join with them in endeavouring to convince our Sovereign and the world, that the accusation of our aiming at a separation from Great Britain is as false as our opposition to despotism has been true and spirited.

A PENNSYLVANIA ASSOCIATOR.

Philadelphia, November 25, 1775.

TO THE PRINTERS OF THE PENNSYLVANIA JOURNAL.

GENTLEMEN: I observed in the Pennsylvania Ledger of Saturday last, a piece signed A Pennsylvania Associator, condemning the Lover of Order for protesting against the Instructions given our Delegates by the House of Assembly. I think he guessed right, when he said that the Instructions were more disagreeable to the Lover of Order than the Assembly's exercising a power which was never delegated to them. And I think the Associator has fallen into a similar error; for he seems more offended with the Lover of Order's latent inclination to independency, than with any other thing in his performance. The honourable House, as well as the Associator, seem desperately afraid of independency. I would not condemn such fears; but, on a serious review of the conduct of Great Britain on this occasion, and an honest attention to her present measures, I see no way to avoid it but the following, which I humbly beg leave to lay before him and their Honours.

It is to me plain, after the many opportunities put into the hands of Administration of settling matters to mutual satisfaction, all which they have rejected with contempt, that they never design any union but on the terms of our absolute submission. Any one who likes these terms, I advise him to sell his estate here, settle his affairs as soon as possible, and remove to Nova-Scotia; there he may submit without trouble. If he likes them not, he has two ways of avoiding it: the one is, to sell his estate and remove to Great Britain; or, which may be a more honourable way, to go as a volunteer in the Continental Army, and offer his service on every perilous occasion, and then he may have the honour of dying in the glorious cause of liberty, and not be obliged to live independent. I see no other means of avoiding it at present; for as every measure we have entered into has been forced on us by the conduct of Administration, and as this Administration seems resolute and determined, I think we shall have to fight it out; and as the Associator seems to be a friend to his Country, I am persuaded he believes we shall come off conquerors. For my own part, I have never entertained a doubt of it. And I do not imagine any one would give his voice for a submission to Great Britain, or a dependance on her, after we have disabled her so far as to render her incapable of carrying on a war against us. She will then be neither able to protect us nor herself; and it would be a blameable degree of generosity to submit to her in such circumstances. I am for independency, till she offers us better terms than slavery or grape-shot. We have no better as yet; nor are we likely to have, until it is out of her power to prevent us from having what we please.

However, I am glad to see such a Christian disposition in our legislators, that they will love their enemies with an unconquerable affection; and that, though Great Britain is doing us every mischief in her power, we pant after her friendship with an unceasing solicitude. She cuts off our right hand, and we attempt, with the fondness of a doating mistress, to lay hold on her with our left; and no doubt, when that is cut off, we will then try to lay hold on her with our teeth; and when she has cut off our heads, we will then die martyrs to this our Christian temper. Surely we are very good Christians, and deserve better usage.

Philadelphia, November 9, 1775.

INDEPENDENT WHIG.

TO THE MEMBERS SITTING IN THE HOUSE OF ASSEMBLY OF PENNSYLVANIA.

In my former address to you, in this paper of the 22d instant, signed A Lover of Order, I protested against your right of instructing the Delegates of this Province, as being an authority you are not invested with, and which you cannot possess but by a grant from the people.

Some short-sighted writer, under the feigned signature of A Pennsylvania Associator, has endeavoured to justify the Instructions, by showing the excellence of them. To which I reply, so much the more dangerous; because he who doth a right thing, not having a right to do so, may hereafter do a wrong one under sanction of the precedent.

In the same address I likewise modestly reminded you that your power of appointing of Delegates is at present accepted by us on the score of present convenience only, and for that reason ought to be used by you with the greatest delicacy. The patriots on the other side the water have been for years endeavouring to exclude placemen from the House of Commons. Pity but you, gentlemen, had taken the hint. Two of our present Delegates have places; and though I respect their characters as private gentlemen, yet we need not be told, in this age of sad experience, that interest steals insensibly upon man, and limits the progress of his virtue.

Having thus sufficiently protested against the legality of the Instructions, I now proceed to examine them: first, as a composition; secondly, as to their tendency.

As a composition, they are mystical, contradictory, and absurd. The preamble and the conclusion are in opposition. The head disowns the tail, the tail the head, and the body belongs to neither. A mass without order; having neither the precision of the lawyer nor the arrangement of the logician, and which sufficiently convinces me that cunning can never acquire the rectitude of wisdom.

The preamble sets forth that "the trust" is great and difficult; yet the conclusion shows that the trust is neither great nor difficult, being little more than the trust of executing a command or delivering a message.

It likewise acknowledges that, from the complexity of affairs, it is "scarcely possible to give particular instructions," yet surmounts the difficulty at once, by giving positive ones. Perhaps some scribbling advocate will inform mankind that the phrase "particular instructions" more elegantly means the this, that, and t'other, as to terms of accommodation; to which I answer, that, from the present face of things, it is not only "scarcely possible," but totally impossible, to give any this, that, or t'other, on that head.

The preamble likewise implies, if it implies any thing, that in the course of their (the Delegates) deliberation with their colleagues in Congress, that a variety of new and at present unseen and even unimagined matters may hereafter arise; wherefore it follows, as a natural inference from the premises laid down, that all judgment on future circumstances ought to be suspended till the circumstances happen; for if present judgment on present things is "scarcely possible," pre-judgment is consummate folly.

The following extracts from the Instructions, notwithstanding their absolute and positive air, are nevertheless dark and equivocal, and neither mean what they express, nor express what they mean:

"We strictly enjoin you, that you, in behalf of this Colony, dissent from and utterly reject any proposition, should such be made, that may cause or lead to a separation from our Mother Country."

Our Mother Country! This part is so happily unmeaning, that you may turn it which way you please. One man thinks that arms will "lead to a separation;" wherefore, in obedience to his instructions, he gives his negative on defensive means. Another thinks that petitioning will "lead to a separation;" because, not meeting with a decent reception, the animosity becomes increased; wherefore, he puts his negative on that measure. Another thinks that nothing will reconcile us like fighting it out; wherefore, he is for spirit and resolution. Another thinks that nothing will "lead to a separation of our animosities," like separating the dependance; wherefore, in obedience to the same instruction, he votes point blank for independence, and makes his report to the House accordingly. Gentlemen, do be so kind as to tell us what you mean, unless we should suspect (which suspicion many of you do not deserve) that some of you are not sound at heart.

As to the tendency of the Instructions, no great deal can be said on that head, until they are rendered intelligible. As I presume the framer of them had some meaning, and perhaps more than one, I shall endeavour to supply what he has left out. If I err, I am pardonable—the field being wide and the path invisible.

Perhaps he meant to recommend himself in time to the favourable eye of "our Mother Country," that he might, according to the English phrase, be pricked down for a Governour; perhaps not. Beware of the Galloway rock, young soldier.

But be his private reason this or that—I suppose 'tis something—his publick meaning is, that, right or wrong, the Delegates shall vote against independency. Wherefore, that being the true meaning, and not the measure which may "lead to" or be the "cause of" independency; for, according to the opinion of many, every thing which we have already done, are now doing, with all the late Acts of the Assembly, (the Instructions excepted,) "leads to" that very end; wherefore, I say, every wise man will join in condemning the Instructions, as being ill judged; for until any matter hath had a fair hearing, and all the circumstances thereof duly weighed and considered, no man can tell what he ought to do, or what ought to be done. I care neither for dependency nor independency, any further than they promote the good and happiness of the whole Continent; and not for a day or two, but lastingly so.

But the greatest evil which accompanies the Instructions is, that they have a tendency to promote disunion, because they admit of no relax, let the reasons to the contrary be what they will, or the sufferings of any other Colony ever so great.

As our cause is one, our happiness is the same; on which grounds I despise the narrow idea of acting Provincially, and reprobate the little unworthy principle conveyed in the following words, "in behalf of this Colony;" and the more so, because, by a late resolve, all Colony distinctions are to be laid aside. 'Tis the American cause, the American Congress, the American Army, &c., &c.; whom God preserve. And for the same reason I subscribe myself, at this time,

A CONTINENTAL FARMER.

Philadelphia, December 6, 1775.

TO THE PRINTER OF THE PENNSYLVANIA LEDGER.

SIR: In your Ledger of the 25th of November is a piece signed A Pennsylvania Associator, containing some remarks on a publication in the Pennsylvania Journal, under the signature of A Lover of Order. These remarks appear to me to be generally sensible, and pertinent to the subject; but the author has been unfortunate in one of the reasons he has given for his comment. He says, "Such pieces constantly attract the notice of Government, and have been made use of by a neighbouring Governour to support the false charge of independent designs in the people."

Whatever truth there may be in the first part of this observation, there certainly is not the least foundation for the latter. So far from charging or supporting a charge against the people of such a nature, the Governour, in a speech alluded to, expressly says that they have fears of independency, and an aversion to a Republican Government. And in a former speech, to which he refers, he declares that he is "fully convinced that the body of the people in the Colonies do not even entertain a wish to throw off their dependance upon Great Britain."

Philadelphia, December 9, 1795.

A MAN OF CANDOUR.

NEW-YORK DELEGATES TO PROVINCIAL CONGRESS.

Philadelphia, November 9, 1775.

GENTLEMEN: The Congress have taken the resolution to appoint a commander of the fortress in the Highlands, with the rank of Colonel, and Wednesday is fixed for the purpose. As it must be of moment that this command should be vested in a person of abilities, and in whom the inhabitants place confidence, we wish you would name three or four gentlemen who are competent for the trust, and we shall endeavour to get one of them preferred. You will, however, be pleased to observe, that as these works are erected at a Continental expense, the Congress claim an absolute right to appoint the officers.

We have the honour to be, with the greatest respect, Gentlemen, your most obedient humble servants,

JAMES DUANE,

R. R. LIVINGSTON, JUN.

To the Honourable Provincial Congress at New-York.

MATTHIAS VISSCHER TO ABRAHAM YATES, JUN.

Albany, November 9, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Yours of the 1st instant I have received, together with the instructions for the Post-Office; which were very agreeable, as I very often was at a loss how to regulate the charges. As to the secrecy of this matter, your commands shall be readily obeyed.

By all we can learn from St. John's, we have the greatest reason to expect that matters will turn out well there. General Wooster is to proceed, or is already gone forward, to take possession of Montreal. General Montgomery keeps St. John's besieged, and, by the accounts of the prisoners, the Regulars at St. John's must have but little provisions.

We are busy electioneering for Deputies and Committees. The voters do not come in so rapid as I could wish, owing to the fair. The following are the candidates for Deputies: Abraham Ten Broeck, Abraham Yates, Jun., Jacob Cuyler, Robert Yates, Henry Glenn, Peter Silvester, Robert Van Rensselaer, Francis Nicoll, Leonard Gansevoort, Robert R. Livingston, Peter R. Livingston, James Barker, and Henry Oothoudt. The Judge and Nicoll almost even. Henry Oothoudt by far the majority of Barker. Peter Van Ness and John J. Bleecker are also in opposition to each other; how this will turn out I cannot say, they being almost equal in votes of this City.

The Committee will be the same as last, only one or two new ones in each Ward.

I am, dear Sir, your very humble servant,

MATTHIAS VISSCHER.

To Abraham Yates, Jun., Esq., at New-York.

THE MONITOR, NO. 1.

New-York, November 9, 1775.

"A civil war, (says the incomparable Lord Somers) though very sharp, cannot continue long, and a nation may flourish and be happy again; but if once arbitrary Government be introduced, people's miseries are endless; there is no prospect or hope of redress. Every age will add new oppressions and new burdens to a people already exhausted." This sentiment, so entirely correspondent to fact and experience, ought to regulate the conduct of every man during the scene of public alarm and commotion. It should incline us cheerfully to meet the inconveniences and calamities with which we are threatened from the unrelenting malice of our enemies; in rational hope of being able eventually to disappoint their barbarous projects, to avoid the galling yoke of the most ignominious slavery, and to secure to ourselves and to posterity the permanent advantages of freedom, established upon an immovable foundation. Great and noble enterprises are seldom unattended with danger and difficulty; but if they are conducted with prudence and fortitude, they more than repay the toils and hazards incurred in prosecuting them. When these become necessary in society, a generous mind embraces them with alacrity, and willingly encounters the perils and hardships resulting from them; while the timid and base, viewing them through the medium of an imagination distorted with terrour, are ready to magnify every appearance of evil, and to sink beneath the load of their own desponding fears. No enterprise can be more glorious than the preservation of liberty to a community, the most precious gift of the Creator, and the vital principle by which the whole fabrick of social happiness is supported. In defence of this, a wise and good man scruples not to risk either life or fortune; to him the desire of securing the most inestimable jewel of society, is capable of smoothing the furrowed brow of affliction, and of disarming even death itself of its terrour and sting.

A civil war is certainly an evil much to be deplored; nor should it be entered into, unless from motives of the most urgent necessity. But when it is requisite to defend the essential rights of humanity, and to defeat the desperate attempts of despotick violence, it is highly criminal, as well as impolitick, to decline it. Every duty we owe to ourselves, to our descendants, to mankind, to the author of our being, calls upon us to protect those privileges on which the dignity of our nature and the safety and comfort of our lives depend. Tamely to surrender the blessings of Providence is to undervalue them, and is a mark of ingratitude to the donor. To suffer ourselves to be despoiled of our liberties, and to be degraded from the rank of freemen to that of slaves, is an evidence of a grovelling disposition, and of a stupid insensibility to the greatest advantages a reasonable being can enjoy.

The mental appetite of some men is too corrupt to relish the sublime in morals: they rather turn it into derision and mockery. They affect to consider the rights of mankind as altogether visionary, liberty as a mere shadow, and the benefit ascribed to it as pretended and unreal. Patriotism and benevolence are in their eyes but hypocritical pretences; all their views centre in themselves, and they are ready to laugh when they are told of their obligation to sacrifice their own interest to that of their Country. It is in vain to endeavour to impress them with a sense of the excellence of civil liberty, by insisting on those more refined topics of its tendency to ennoble the human mind, to promote knowledge, virtue, and religion, to expand and elevate the powers of the soul, and to lead men in all the brightest paths of glory, magnanimity, and heroism. They feel not the value of those things in their own breasts, and therefore they can never allow them their intrinsic weight and importance. Present ease and tranquillity are preferable, in their estimation, to all the future prospects of glorious freedom, sheltered from the depredations of usurping power by the undaunted efforts of a brave people.

These Lilliputians in virtue and humanity represent the horrors of a civil war in the most aggravated colours. They are continually pondering the most dismal scenes of bloodshed, desolation, famine, and distress in every shape; filled with panick terrors themselves, they strive to communicate the infection to all around them; willing that their Country should be deserted by all, and left to groan under the indignities and complicated miseries of slavery. In general, this dastardly conduct serves only to increase the evils it is intended to mitigate or prevent. It seldom produces more than a partial defection: this war is still prosecuted by the greater part; if success attends them, notwithstanding the disunion, it is purchased with more difficulty and loss than had there been a perfect combination of strength and forces; consequently the common sufferings are heightened by the cowardice and disaffection of a part: if they are overpowered, by reason of the desertion of those who ought to have been friends, to the baseness of these must be attributed the more disastrous consequences of an unsuccessful struggle. In any case, the timidity and meanness of these men, falsely termed moderation and prudence, answer no other ends than to strengthen the hands of the common enemy, and to weaken and enervate those of friends and fellow-sufferers, the worst effects of civil rage and animosity still ensue, and the temporizing dastards, no more than the bold and enterprising, escape a share in the general calamity.

It is, however, folly to reason with such men, or to expect to move them by the suggestions of honour, or by the views of an extensive and generous plan of policy. Their narrow minds will still listen to the present passion or prejudice, in spite of all that can be said. But to those whose bosoms are susceptible of love to their Country, who are not insensible to the value of freedom, and to the debasing, destructive influence of slavery, the following summary reflections must appear to merit the most attentive consideration.

The contest between Britain and the Colonies has now every appearance of being arrived to the last extremity: a decision by the sword seems the only one to be expected, as every day, still more than the preceding, dissipates all prospect of an amicable accommodation: applications from every quarter have hitherto been unavailing, and the instruments of tyranny are putting in practice, with increasing ferocity, all the abominable arts of plunder, devastation, and slaughter. We must either patiently submit to the exorbitant authority of a rapacious Parliament, or we must prepare to make a courageous stand in defence of our rights, in defiance of all the rigours and disasters of war. If the former be our choice, we must be contented to live the most miserable people under the sun, to endure all the oppressions that avarice and ambition, inflamed by opposition, jealousy, and resentment, can contrive or inflict; and to crouch beneath the unceasing insults and contempt of our triumphant masters, as well as the ridicule and disdain of all mankind: if we prefer the latter, we must be satisfied to suffer many poignant, though temporary ills, animated with the certain hope of brighter days to come, and of substantial felicity to our Country, through the successive periods of future generations.

Whoever is acquainted with the history of mankind must know that it has ever been the policy of ruling States to enrich themselves by the plunder and spoils of their dependant Colonies and Provinces. This iniquitous principle has proceeded chiefly from a twofold cause: from the natural desire most men have of profiting themselves at the expence of those in their power and disposal, and from a supposed necessity of depressing the spirits and destroying the power of Colonies, lest, if they should find themselves in the possession of opulence and strength, actuated by that pride which is apt to flow from them, they might be tempted to revolt and throw off their dependance. These dispositions prevail in proportion to the natural advantages and growing prosperity of the subordinate members. And notwithstanding experience has shown that these contracted notions of policy are, in the end, detrimental to all parties, they still continue fashionable among mankind. The Spanish settlements in South-America afford a notable instance of the destructive maxims of governing States respecting their dependencies. There, humanity appears in such a wretched and degraded condition, that it is impossible to behold it without compassion, horror, and indignation. But not to roam abroad for instances of this melancholy nature, we may see in Ireland the plainest indications of a similar spirit, influencing the politicks of Britain; and, to come nearer home, the present gloomy situation of America has been occasioned by a commencement of this same scheme of oppression.

We have wisely begun a strenuous opposition to it in its infancy, and have discovered a temper totally repugnant to the lofty and unreasonable pretensions of the Mother Country; but should we now abandon a work so nobly undertaken, we must look for even greater severity and rapacity than we might otherwise have experienced. Better had it been for us that we had never contended at all, than vainly to have shown our disapprobation, and afterwards, by relinquishing the conflict, to betray our own impotence and cowardice. Britain would justly impute our submission to our fears, and, knowing our affection to be irrecoverably lost, would be sensible that the only way to secure our future attachment, and maintain her unlimited dominion over us, must be by force and compulsion. With much propriety, she would conclude that, without these, the same spirit of liberty which inspires us would naturally be transmitted to our descendants, who, finding their numbers and their wealth augmented, would scorn any longer to wear the fetters of servitude, and would procure for themselves that freedom which their ancestors had not virtue and courage enough to preserve and convey to them. Justified by such plausible inducements, our enemies would take every method to extirpate all sense of liberty from among us. The manifold contrivances of despotism would be remorselessly employed to debase our minds and render us abject and spiritless.

No man of sense can doubt that a military Government would, in such case, be established over all the Colonies. Our rebellious conduct, as it is called, would seem to demand it, and Britain would never think her authority safe without it. A Standing Army—that inveterate and dangerous disease under which Europe has so long groaned—would take deeper root in America than it has ever had there. To maintain this, together with a long list of needy courtiers, all the fruits of our labour and industry must go. If we are dissatisfied, the bayonet will be ready to silence our presumptuous murmurings. We must pine in uncomplaining indigence and misery, while our lordly masters would dissipate extorted millions in the gratification of every wanton and voluptuous appetite. These things have been frequently insisted upon; but they cannot be too often repeated. They are not the jargon of seditious declamation, intended to allure the giddy populace, but they are solemn truths, founded on reason and experience, and ought to engage the serious attention of the most sober and dispassionate. With all the earnestness of self-conviction, I affirm, that America will be one of the most unhappy countries in the world, if it should once submit to the yoke Britain is preparing for it.

On the other hand, if we are duly sensible of the blessings we enjoy, and persevere steadfastly in the defence of our native and hereditary rights, we may justly cherish a firm persuasion that our laudable exertions will be finally crowned with success; that Britain, though she may sorely distress us a while, will at length be wearied with an enterprise by which she exhausts herself, without any likelihood of obtaining any solid or equivalent advantage; that our privileges will by these means be settled upon so stable a basis, and our importance so highly raised in the eyes of the world, as to bring together a confluence of wealthy and useful inhabitants from all the European Nations, and to render us flourishing at home, and respected abroad; that the vigour of our youthful State, seconded by the emoluments of an accumulating commerce, under the auspicious smiles of freedom, will soon enable us to recover from the losses we have sustained during the war, and will in a little time elevate us to a much higher pitch of grandeur, opulence, and power, than we could ever attain to by an ignoble submission to arbitrary rule. The evils of slavery are inexpressibly great—the prize of liberty is worth contending for: let us therefore continue the pursuit with unremitting ardour, determined either to lead an honourable life, or to meet, with resignation, a glorious death.

EXTRACTS OF LETTERS RECEIVED IN ENGLAND.

Quebeck, November 9, 1775.

Lieutenant-Governour Cramahé told Mr. Macaulay, of this place, a few days ago, in great anger, "that it was our damned Committees that had thrown the Province into its present state, and prevented the Canadians from taking arms; but that he should hear more of that hereafter." By these words we presume we are to understand, that if they had the power in their hands to enforce their authority, a Star-chamber would be erected to harass those who might differ in opinion from them, or might make any attempts, by future applications to the throne, for a redress of their grievances, for we are told that all meetings are illegal, by martial law. The new arrangements of Government, under the Quebeck Bill, met with a general disapprobation. Not to mention the English inhabitants, (who could not but dislike it, as it was totally different from what they had expected and applied for,) the Canadians in general were displeased with it, and declared that it was not at their desire or solicitation that it was passed; and that they had not been made acquainted with the petition which was presented to the King from a few persons in the Province, and was made the ground of passing it. They said that the persons who had signed that petition consisted principally of their ancient oppressors, their noblesse, who wanted nothing more than, as formerly, to domineer over them; and they exclaimed against them bitterly on that account, but intimated that they had better take care of themselves, and not be too forward to put their intentions into execution. The lawyers and notaries, and such of the citizens as had been induced to sign that petition, (or rather had been afraid to refuse to sign it, for fear of being pointed at by the friends to such measures,) almost unanimously declared their disapprobation and dislike of the act of Parliament, more especially when the appointments of the members of the new Council came to be made, and it was found that none but the noblesse, or those who had the croix de Saint Louis, were appointed to it, without a single person taken from the commercial part of the French inhabitants of the Province. This, with the giving half-pay to a set of French officers who had served on a batton expedition against the Indians in General Murray's time, and the appointment of Monsieur De Rouville for one of the Judges at Montreal, and of Claude Panet for Quebeck, (who has his dose every day before twelve o'clock,) with salaries, as it is given out, of seven hundred Pounds a year each; and, in short, the wantonly and profusely inventing places for creatures and sycophants, with which the Governour was continually surrounded, has given great disgust. It is, indeed, alarming to think how all this money was to be raised. A very little matter would have induced the Canadians to unite in a body to petition for a repeal of the act. But no one cared to step forth and set forward any measure of that kind, through the fear of the ill treatment which they might be made to suffer in consequence of having done so, now that the Governour's authority is so extensive, and partly through the hope that we continually entertained of hearing from England of the repeal or amendment of it. Peter Panet, of Montreal, (who is a brother to the other, but quite another sort of man,) had every reason to expect to be made a Judge, if any of the French were to be made so. He is really very clever, and had been Clerk to the Court of Captains of the Militia immediately after the conquest of the Country, or, one may almost say, both Clerk and Chief Judge; and he certainly ought, on this occasion, to have had the preference, by far, to Rouville. Indeed, the nomination of the latter to this office is so offensive to the Canadians at Montreal, that they were quite exasperated at it, and were going to prefer a petition to the Governour against his being appointed to it. But the taking of Crown Point, and the subsequent disturbances in the Province, put a stop to every thing, and has prevented any part of the act from taking place.

NOTE.—By this letter, as well as by other accounts received from Quebeck, it may be observed that the temper of the new Government is so very arbitrary, that the right of petitioning the Crown for redress of grievances, is not allowed to the inhabitants of that unhappy Province.

Quebeck, November 9, 1775.

The Canadian inhabitants of this Province openly avow their affection to the English manners and customs, and declare that they never wish to live more quiet or more happy than they have done since the commencement of the Civil Government. Indeed, it is surprising to see how much they have flourished and increased in riches within these few years, by meeting with so good a market for their produce. This is owing to the great spirit of speculation-trade that prevails amongst the English merchants here and their friends at home, and cannot, in any degree, be attributed to the French merchants, who have nothing of the spirit of trade in them. This flourishing state of the Province, since the establishment of the English laws in it, makes the Canadians fond of those laws, and desirous of their continuance, and numberless are the proofs that might be given of their preferring them to the French laws by which they were formerly governed, were it not for the artifices of a very few persons, the noblesse of the Province, who, by having gained the support and assistance of Government, have had it in their power to disguise the truth, and to prevent an union between the old and new subjects in making applications to the Throne to obtain a settlement of the Province upon the foundation of the English law. When any strangers from England have come to these parts by way of curiosity, who, on their return, might have represented things in a true light, they have been kept up amongst a small circle of people, and have hardly ever appeared in publick, or conversed with the people at large, and have thereby been prevented from getting true and general information concerning the real state of the Province, and the sentiments of its inhabitants.

The Canadians, very early this spring, declared that the noblesse had no manner of authority over them, and that even their seigniors had no right to command their military service. They acknowledged that they owed them respect, as their lords of the manor; but they insisted that when they had paid them their rents, and all their other just dues, together with certain compliments which were customary at different seasons, they owed them nothing further, and were not bound to submit to any power they might presume to exercise over them; for some of the seigniors have pretended to some authority over their tenants, of which there was an instance in the seigniorship called La Beauce, behind Point Levi, where the young seignior, Monsieur Taschereau, caused one of his tenants to be confined for refusing to march, at his command, against the Provincials, who had invaded the Province; but he soon thought it best to solicit the man's release, and did not afterwards try the same experiment with any other of them. But in other parts of the Province, several of the Canadians have been threatened with the same treatment, if they did not obey their seignior's order to take arms for the defence of the Province, in order to frighten them into the service; but it has had the contrary effect, and has been found to be of bad consequence. Nothing of this kind had appeared before the Quebeck Bill passed. But the strongest verbal proof that I can give you of the dislike of the Canadians to the Quebeck Bill, is this: Mr. John Thompson, who is a very honest man, told me yesterday, that he was present at the coffee-house, at Montreal, when Mr. James Finlay, of that place, declared publickly, that the Captain of the French Militia had, in his presence, told Governour Carleton, "that the Canadians in that Town, themselves included, would not take arms, as a militia, unless his Excellency would assure them, on his honour, that he would use his utmost endeavours to get the Quebeck Bill repealed;" and that he thereupon promised them that he would do so. But now all these considerations are at an end, as we are likely to have new masters shortly.

Quebeck, November 9, 1775.

The Governour's reason for establishing martial law in this Province was, that he might be able, by means of that law, (which he thought would authorize him so to do,) to force the Canadians to take arms. But he has entirely failed of success in this attempt. Indeed, it was a most ridiculous attempt, as he had no troops at hand to enforce his authority or commands. Great threats are frequently thrown out, and every now and then people are put under confinement by the militia. On Saturday, the 28th of October, Mr. John Dyer Mercier, as he was going into the upper Town, was laid hold of by the Town Sergeant, and conducted to the main guard and there confined, and his papers were seized and examined merely by the order of the Lieutenant-Governour, without any crime or accusation alleged against him, and at daybreak the next morning he was put on board the Hunter, sloop-of-war. This was very alarming to the citizens of Quebeck, who thereupon had a meeting, and appointed three of their number to wait on the Lieutenant-Governour, to know the cause of so remarkable a step. He made answer, "that he had sufficient reasons for what he had done, which he would communicate when and to whom he should think proper." But he soon thought better of it; for the next morning he called together the six Captains of the British Militia, and communicated to them one or more intercepted letters, directed to Mr. Mercier, of a nature that was sufficient to warrant his being secured for the safety of the Town. But nothing was found that had proceeded from him, or that could serve as a proof to convict him of any crime. This communication gave a good deal of satisfaction. It is a piece of justice to the French inhabitants of the Province, to say that those of them who have taken arms for the defence of the Province are not corrupted in their tempers by the use of them, so as to be ready to act as the instruments of arbitrary power over their fellow-citizens, but rather decline being so employed. Of this we had lately a remarkable instance at Montreal; for General Prescott, who commands at Montreal, having thought fit to place sentinels at the fore and back doors of Mr. Walker's house, to be a guard upon Mrs. Walker, (notwithstanding her husband is no longer with her, but a prisoner on board a sloop-of-war,) ordered Pascal Piller, one of the French inhabitants of Montreal, who had taken arms for the defence of the City, and was willing to stand sentry in his turn on the walls, to oppose the enemy, but would not be employed as a jailor, to watch his fellow-citizens, but would sooner throw down his arms, though they were his own property, and let those persons take them who would consent to be so employed.

General Prescott, upon being told of this refusal, thought proper to drop his design of setting a guard upon Mrs. Walker, and said it was hardly worth while to watch an old woman. This certainly does honour to the spirit and temper of the French inhabitants, who have entered into the militia upon this occasion. Shortly after this affair, we heard that Fort Chambly was taken, with eight officers and sixty men. Then it was said that a plan was formed for General Carleton and Colonel Maclean to join their forces, and march to the relief of St. John's Fort. It was given out here that General Carleton had fifteen hundred Canadians with him. Proper signals were agreed on, and General Carleton was to cross over the River St. Lawrence, with his Army, which consisted, first, of the militia of Montreal; and secondly, of a number of Canadians that he had with him, and whom he had maintained for some time before at Montreal; and thirdly, a few troops that he had with him, who might amount to about one hundred men, and who were to have headed the Canadians; and lastly, some Indians. They accordingly set off from Montreal in high spirits, and attempted to cross the River St. Lawrence, and land at Longeuil; but they were so warmly received by the Provincials on the other side the river, that they could not make good their landing, but were thrown into great confusion, and retired with precipitation. Some of them ran aground on an island, and had like to have perished, but were saved by the New-England men. Two Indians were killed, and two more taken prisoners. The next express informed us, that upon Colonel Maclean's party hearing of this repulse, his Canadians all left him, and retired to their homes. And the night before last, an express brought the news that the garrison of Fort St. John's had capitulated, being starved out, and were all made prisoners of war; and that Montreal was invested, and its communication with the country entirely cut off; and that the Provincials were on St. Helen's Island, over against the Town, and were there erecting a battery to fire upon it in case they shall refuse to capitulate; and that Governour Carleton was on board of the Fell, an armed snow.

There are also fifteen hundred Provincials arrived at Point Levi. We have, within a few days past, heard of their approach, and our guards have been doubled on that account. Our fate (at least for some time) must soon be decided. There are fifteen Commissaries appointed, consisting of the six English and six French Captains of militia, and the three Judges. Three of them sit every day, to examine into small matters, and give passes to all the canoes that come into or go out of the Town. This, with the means made use of to get Canadians from the neighbouring country to do duty in Town, has so intimidated the inhabitants of the country, that very few of them venture to come to Town; so that we have hardly a supply of provisions from hand to mouth, much less to stand out a siege.

P. S. Just now an order is come down for eight men, from each of the six Companies of the British Militia, to appear on the parade without arms, to receive one shilling and a pint of porter for the business they were to do. Orders are also given for a party of the Marines to be on the parade, armed; so we are inclined to judge the intentions of our Government to be, to force us to a defence of the Town, and sacrifice our lives and properties. The shilling and pint of porter are supposed to be considered as King's money, to enlist us and subject us to military discipline. The Lord protect us from our enemies within and without.

Quebeck, November 9, 1775.

There are about five hundred Provincials arrived on Point Levi, opposite to the Town, by the way of Chaudiere, across the woods. Surely a miracle must have been wrought in their favour. It is an undertaking above the common race of men, in this debauched age. They have travelled through woods and bogs, and over precipices, for the space of one hundred and twenty miles, attended with every inconvenience and difficulty, to be surmounted only by men of indefatigable zeal and industry.

General Carleton is gone to Quebeck, but the Province is against him. The Quebeck Act has displeased nine-tenths of the inhabitants. Accustomed as they have been to absolute Government, they abhor tyranny under the pretence and mask of law. Lord Mansfield is said to have been the author of this bill. The present Ministers must long since have abandoned their posts, if he had not been their adviser. In the summer, the King was told he was reduced to this alternative: he must part with his Ministers or his Colonies. He has made his choice. He has kept his Ministers, and lost America.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO JONATHAN GLOVER.

Cambridge, November 9, 1775.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency to inform you that it is his opinion that those persons who belong to the two schooners, sent into Marblehead, be discharged, on condition they can get bondsmen for their not leaving Marblehead, and such a district about it as to you will seem proper, lest they give information to the enemy of the destination of Captains Broughton and Selman. These persons to be well looked after. As to the schooners, you will have them carefully laid up, with what unperishable articles may be on board. As to the sloop brought in by Captain Manly, it is the General's orders that you dispose of the wood, &c., on board, on the best terms, and lay the vessel up until we can determine whether she is totally a prize, or only a retaken vessel.

I am, Sir, your most humble servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN, Sec. pro tem.

To Jonathan Glover, Esq., Marblehead.

ROBERT H. HARRISON TO JONATHAN GLOVER.

Cambridge, November 9, 1775.

SIR: There are many transports from England and Ireland, arriving every day at Boston. Should any of the armed vessels be in your port, you will please to order them out to sea immediately. Every hour they remain in port may be a loss to them of a good prize. Please to communicate this to such Captain or Captains as may be with you, being wrote by order of his Excellency.

I am, Sir, your humble servant,

ROBERT H. HARRISON, Aid-de-Camp.

To Jonathan Glover, Esq., Marblehead.

[The same to William Bartlett, Esq., Beverly; to Colonel Joshua Wentworth, Portsmouth; and to William Watson, Esq., Plymouth.]

WILLIAM BARTLETT TO GENERAL WASHINGTON.

Beverly, November 9, 1775.

SIR: These are to inform your Excellency that yesterday a small boat, with about fifteen men, went out of this harbour, and took a schooner, from Ireland, loaded with beef, pork, butter, &c. As your Excellency approved of my conduct with regard to the other prize, the North-Briton, I thought it my duty to proceed in the same manner; therefore, when she came in, I made a demand of the papers, &c., but the people refused me. As I am willing and desirous to live in peace with all men, should be extremely glad if your Excellency would give me some particular directions with regard to such vessels; for if I have no power to make such demands, I make myself appear ridiculous to the eye of the world, which is far from being my desire.

I shall forward to your Excellency, as soon as possible, the goods found on board the North-Briton; and am your Excellency's most obedient humble servant,

WILLIAM BARTLETT.

To General Washington.

ADDRESS OF THE NOBLEMEN, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF FIFE.

Address of the Noblemen, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of Fife, transmitted to the Earl of Suffolk, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Noblemen, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of FIFE.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the Noblemen, Gentlemen, and Freeholders of the County of Fife, humbly beg leave to approach the throne, with the strongest assurances of our firm attachment and warmest affection to your Majesty's royal person and family, and of our zeal for the honour of your crown and the dignity of Great Britain.

Sensible of the many blessings which your Majesty's mild and auspicious Government has diffused over every part of your Dominions, it is with the greatest concern we observe the conduct of your Colonies in America, who are now engaged in the most open acts of rebellion against your Majesty's Government, as well as of these turbulent and factious men, who have endeavoured to alienate the minds of your subjects from their just and true allegiance, and by whose means this rebellion has been chiefly promoted and encouraged. We therefore beg leave, in the most dutiful manner, to assure your Majesty that we will, to the utmost of our power, be ready to support your Majesty, the honour and dignity of your crown, and the authority of the British Legislature, in defence of our valuable Constitution.

While we lament the folly of your Majesty's deluded subjects in the Colonies, we cannot but admire the gracious declaration your Majesty was pleased to make from the throne, of your being willing to receive them with tenderness and mercy, when they become sensible of their error; and express our most fervent wishes that they may soon avail themselves of your Majesty's clemency, so that peace and tranquillity may be restored to all your Dominions.

That your Majesty's reign may be long and prosperous, over a free, a happy, and a grateful people, sensible of the many blessings they enjoy under the Government of the best of Sovereigns, is the earnest wish and prayer of us, your Majesty's most dutiful and affectionate subjects.

Signed in our name, and at our appointment, by LEVEN, Præses.

Cupar, November 10, 1775.

ADDRESS OF THE HIGH SHERIFF, ETC., OF THE COUNTY OF DUBLIN.

Address of the High Sheriff and Grand Jury of the County of Dublin, transmitted by his Excellency the Earl Harcourt, Lord Lieutenant of Ireland, to the Right Honourable Lord Viscount Weymouth, one of His Majesty's principal Secretaries of State, and presented to His Majesty.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the High Sheriff and Grand Jury of the County of DUBLIN.

Most Gracious Sovereign:

We, your Majesty's most dutiful and loyal subjects, the High Sheriff and Grand Jury of the County of Dublin, sensible of the many blessings we enjoy under your Majesty's mild and just Government, feel ourselves, at this time, indispensably called upon to express our abhorrence of the unnatural rebellion existing in a part of your American Dominions, and our highest indignation at the ungrateful revolt, by which the Government of the best of Kings hath been for some time disturbed in your Majesty's Colonies.

With the utmost sincerity and zeal, we beg leave to assure your Majesty of our inviolable attachment to your sacred person and Government, which we are determined to support, at the hazard of our lives, against all hostility to your royal crown and dignity, and to the violated rights of the British Empire.

We cannot sufficiently admire the temper with which your Majesty has acted, from your paternal anxiety to prevent, as long as possible, the calamities which are inseparable from a state of war; and we, with equal concern and regret, observe that the resolutions of the British Parliament, breathing moderation and forbearance, have produced no other effect on the deluded minds of the disobedient part of your American subjects, than usurpation and rebellion.

We find that the rebellious war, now levied in America, hath not been confined in its objects to Great Britain; for it appears, in several of the American Resolutions, that their resentments are also directed to the trade of this Kingdom; and we glory in being considered, even by those who injure us, as united with Great Britain, against all the universe, and as devoted to your Majesty against every enemy upon earth.

By your Majesty's arms was preserved the very existence of this ungrateful people; by the courage and discipline of your troops were they saved from the impending danger of a powerful, and, till then, victorious foe. Ireland shared in that triumph; and we trust Ireland fervently wishes to see accomplished the glorious task of restoring to the Americans that liberty which is consistent with the laws of the Empire, and those comforts of life which interested and desperate agitators, with merciless perseverance, instigate them to forfeit.

'Tis indeed to be lamented they should still listen to these restless deluders, who, whilst they affect to deprecate the effusion of blood, call for the shedding of it; and who, by efforts as unavailing as unwarrantable, urge on the destruction of those whom the whole power of your Majesty's insulted Dominions are happily combined to subdue.

We acknowledge, with gratitude, your Majesty's concern for our commercial advancement, upon which our prosperity and happiness so exceedingly depend; and we trust to your Majesty's distinguished firmness and wisdom, to support the dignity, maintain the rights, uphold the Constitution, and restore the tranquillity of the British Empire.

THOMAS KENNAN,
Sheriff.
HENRY L. LUTTRELL,
Foreman.
RICHARD MORGAN,
RICHARD TRENCH,
CHARLES EUSTACE,
JOSEPH SERR,
RICHARD UNDERWOOD,
HENRY ARCHDALE,
W. HAWKINS, Ulster,
GEORGE NIXON,

JOHN GILMER,
NIC. ENGLISH,
HUGH BOWEN,
PATRICK KING,
CHARLES HAMILTON,
WILLIAM KEAN,
WILLIAM EVANS,
CHARLES KING,
BENJAMIN HOUGHTON,
B. CONNOR,
W. LEAVER.

ADDRESS OF THE BOROUGH AND PARISH OF SOUTHMOLTON.

Address of the Mayor, Capital Burgesses, Common Councilmen, and Town Clerk of the Borough and Parish of Southmolton, in the County of Devon, presented to His Majesty by Charles Warwick Bampfylde, Esq., one of the Representatives in Parliament for the City of Exeter.

To the King's Most Excellent Majesty.

The humble Address of the Mayor, Capital Burgesses, Common Councilmen, and Town Clerk of the Borough and Parish of SOUTHMOLTON, in the County of DEVON.

May it please your Majesty:

At a time when one part of your Majesty's Dominions is in actual rebellion, which, there is too much cause to think, hath been excited and fomented by ill-disposed people in another part of them, silence in any man or body of men, who profess themselves well affected to your Majesty and the Constitution, would betray a justly and reprehensible inattention in a matter of so great importance.

Permit, therefore, most gracious Sovereign, your Majesty's most faithful and dutiful subjects, the Mayor, Capital Burgesses, Common Councilmen, and Town Clerk of your Borough and Parish of Southmolton, in the County of Devon, to join the rest of your Majesty's loyal subjects in expressing our warmest zeal and attachment to your Majesty's person and Government, to testify in the best manner we at present can, our sense of, and gratitude for, the many blessings we derive, under Divine Providence, from your Majesty; and to declare our utter disapprobation and abhorrence of those principles which at first occasioned and have since promoted those troubles and disturbances which now prevail in America.

We most heartily wish that this deluded people may soon see their error, and return to their duty.

Should they, however, still persist in their obstinacy and disobedience, we entirely confide in your Majesty's wisdom and goodness, for taking such measures as will effectually secure obedience to the supreme authority in and from all parts of your Majesty's Dominions.

And we beg leave to assure your Majesty that we will cheerfully contribute every thing in our power towards the maintenance and support of that authority, as far as our influence extends. And we will use our utmost efforts to discourage and prevent any tendency to disaffection or disregard for your Majesty's and our valuable Constitution; and upon all occasions endeavour to approve ourselves your Majesty's most faithful, dutiful, and loyal subjects.

Given under our common seal, at the Guildhall of the said Borough and Parish, this tenth day of November, one thousand seven hundred and seventy-five.

Signed by order, and with the concurrence of JOHN STARLAND, Town Clerk.

NEW-YORK COMMITTEE.

Friday, November 10, 1775.

The Committee met. Present: John Broome, Chairman, and thirty-five Members.

The Sub-Committee appointed to superintend the Election for Deputies to represent the City and County of New-York in Provincial Congress for the Colony of New-York, delivered in their Report; which, being read, was unanimously approved of, and is as follows, viz:

Pursuant to an order of the General Committee, we, the subscribers, superintended the Poll taken this day at the City Hall, for the election of Deputies to represent this City and County in the ensuing Provincial Congress; and do hereby certify, that the following twenty-one Gentlemen were chosen by a great majority, viz:

Peter V. B. Livingston,	Jacobus Van Zandt,
Cornelius Clopper,	John Morton,
Alexander McDougall,	Isaac Sears,
Joseph Hallet,	John Ray,
Thomas Smith,	Theodorus Van Wyck,
Abraham Brasher,	Anthony Rutgers,
Isaac Roosevelt,	John Inlay,
James Beckman,	Gabriel W. Ludlow,
Benjamin Kissam,	Benjamin Helme,
John M. Scott,	Comfort Sands.
John Van Cortlandt,

And we do further certify, that the electors, at the same time, did constitute any seven of the forementioned persons to be a quorum.

ROBERT RAY, JOHN BROOME,
EVERT BANCKER, JOHN INLAY.
DANIEL PHENIX,

New-York, November 7, 1775.

Ordered, That the Chairman of this Committee deliver a certified copy of the foregoing Report to one of the Deputies chosen to represent this City and County in the ensuing Provincial Congress.

Joseph Mount, master of the Sloop Wanton, attending at the door, was called in, and informed this Committee that he was bound to sea in the said Sloop, and applied for leave to take on board Stores and Provisions for a captain, mate, seven seamen, a boy, and one passenger, for eighteen months, agreeable to the following estimation, viz: fifty-six barrels of Beef and Pork, eighteen and a half tierces Bread, eighteen barrels Flour, ten barrels Peas, thirty dozen Poultry, twenty bushels Corn, fifteen small Pigs, ten barrels Potatoes, ten barrels Apples, thirty-five hogsheads Water, one quarter-cask Wine, twenty dozen York Porter, two barrels Rum, and small Stores.

The Committee having taken the said application into consideration, are of opinion, that the request of Joseph Mount is unreasonable; and, therefore,

Resolved, That the said Joseph Mount be not permitted to take on board any more than the following Stores and Provisions, viz: Bread, one thousand and eighty pounds; Beef and Pork, ten barrels; Flour, two barrels; Peas, one barrel; Poultry, four dozen; Corn, six bushels; three Hogs; Potatoes, two barrels; Apples, two barrels; Water, two hogsheads; Wine, six dozen; Porter, six dozen; Rum, one barrel.

Ordered, That Captain Mount apply to Messrs. Ray and Bancker, the Sub-Committee appointed to give a permission to Masters of Vessels relative to Stores and Provisions.

Messrs. Dennis, Lott, and Burling, the Sub-Committee appointed to inquire into the conduct of Thomas Pratt, relative to his having made some imprudent expressions of his determination to set fire to this City, if Troops should arrive, reported, that they had waited on Mr. Jarvis, one of Mr. French's evidences against Mr. Pratt, who gave them such information as convinced them that Mr. Pratt had no intention wantonly or maliciously to set fire to or destroy the houses or property of any of the Inhabitants of this City.

Thereupon, Ordered, That the complaint of Mr. French, against Mr. Pratt, be dismissed.

The Sub-Committee appointed by the General Committee to consider of a mode for employing the Industrious Poor of this City, and promoting American Manufactures, report the following plan, already adopted by one of our neighbouring Colonies, as the most eligible, and with some small alteration the best adapted to answer the purpose of their appointment, subject to such alteration as shall be thought necessary at a general meeting of the subscribers:

We, the subscribers, being deeply impressed with a sense of our present difficulties, and earnestly solicitous, as far as in our power, to support the freedom and promote the welfare of our Country, on peaceable and constitutional principles, and well knowing how much the establishing Manufactories amongst ourselves would contribute thereto, besides exciting a general and laudable spirit of industry among the poor, and putting the means of supporting themselves into the hands of many who at present are a publick expense; and also to convince the publick that our Country is not unfavourable to the establishing Manufactures, do agree to form ourselves into a Company for the promoting American Manufactories, on the following principles, subject to such rules and regulations as shall be hereafter agreed on.

I. That the Society shall be called, The New-York Society for employing the Industrious Poor, and Promoting Manufactury.

II. That the Company shall continue for three whole years, commencing on the day of the first general meeting of the subscribers.

III. That a single share in the Company be fixed at ten Pounds; but that every subscriber be at liberty to subscribe as many shares as they think proper, and shall be entitled to their proportion of the profits arising; and after payment of their respective subscriptions, every subscriber shall be entitled to a vote in common on all occasions, and also to be elected to any office belonging to the Company; and no person shall be intrusted with any office but a member thereof.

IV. That we will begin with the manufacturing of woollens, linen, cotton, and nails, and carry on the same to the greatest extent and advantage our stock will admit of, during the three years aforesaid; for which purpose we do agree to pay into the hands of the Treasurer, who shall be hereafter chosen, one moiety of full one-half of each of our subscriptions, within one week after the first general meeting of the subscribers, and the other moiety within two months after the aforesaid general meeting; all which moneys, paid as aforesaid, together with all the profits arising from the manufactory, shall be continued as Company stock for the space and to the full end of three whole years, commencing on the day of the first general meeting of the subscribers aforesaid.

V. That the general meeting of the subscribers shall be called by written tickets, within one week after two hundred subscribers are obtained, in order to choose by ballot, for the first year, twelve Managers, a Secretary, and Treasurer; to fix the time of the annual meeting for our future elections, and to do all other matters and things as may be deemed necessary for the better regulating the affairs of the Company.

VI. That one-third of the managers, and no more, be changed annually on the day of election, by re-electing eight of the old managers, and adding four new to their number, and on the death or departure of the City and its Districts of any manager, for the space of three calendar months, the other managers may choose another in his stead, who shall be considered as acting in the room of the deceased or departed manager.

VII. That the managers carry on the manufactory agreeable to the rules of the Company, and shall have the whole direction thereof, and shall attend two by two, in turn, every day at the manufactory store, at such hours as they shall agree upon, to oversee the business, draw orders on the Treasurer, and give the necessary directions.

VIII. That the Treasurer shall give security for the faithful discharge of his trust; and account for and deliver up to his successor in said office all such moneys, books, writings, and effects, as shall then be in his hands, belonging to the Company, at such times as the managers, or a majority of them, shall direct and require; which security the managers are hereby required to see duly given, executed, and recorded in the office for recording of deeds for the County of New-York, before any such Treasurer, so elected, shall enter upon his said office; and the Treasurer is hereby enjoined to answer no order but such as shall be signed by the two attending managers for the day, as aforesaid, which said orders shall be good vouchers to indemnify him.

IX. That a state of the manufactory, and of the Company's accounts, shall be fairly made out at the end of every six months, and kept in the manufactory store, for the inspection of the members.

X. That the managers shall have power to call a general meeting as often as they shall find it necessary to take the advice of the Company in any affair, or to lay any proposal or matter of importance before them.

XI. That after the first general meeting of the subscribers, three weeks' notice of the time and place of meeting, in one of the newspapers, shall be sufficient to call a general meeting of the Company; and no rule nor regulation shall be binding on the Company, but such as shall have received the approbation of a majority of the members present at a general meeting.

GARRET ABEEL, THEOPHILUS ANTHONY,
COMFORT SANDS, ABRAHAM LOTT,
JOHN WOODWARD, PATT. DENNIS.
JOHN RAMSAY,

The foregoing Report, being read and considered in the FOURTH SERIES.—VOL. III.

General Committee, is unanimously approved of as proper to be recommended to the consideration of the Inhabitants of this City; and that two persons be appointed in each Ward to obtain subscriptions.*

GENERAL SCHUYLER TO GOVERNOUR TRUMBULL.

Ticonderoga, November 10, 1775.

SIR: I do myself the honour to enclose you a return of the prisoners of the Seventh and Twenty-Sixth, as also of those of the Navy, all of which go to your Government; and I have ordered Captain Mott, who conducts them, to dispose of them as your Honour shall direct, and beg you will send your orders for that purpose to Canaan. From Major Preston, and the officers of the Twenty-Sixth Regiment, I have experienced the most polite and friendly attentions when I was a stranger and a traveller in Ireland. A return of good offices is the duty of every honest man; and I therefore beg leave to recommend them to your Honour's notice, and would wish, if there is any choice in the quarters which you shall destine to them, that theirs were the best, which I shall consider as a particular favour done me.

I am your Honour's most obedient and most humble servant,

PHILIP SCHUYLER.

To Governour Trumbull.

Names of the Officers, Non-Commissioned Officers, and Private Men, brought Prisoners from CHAMELY.

The Hon. Joseph Stopford, Major; William Godwin, Captain of Artillery; John Morrison, John Shuttleworth, Ebitson Hamer, — Barrington, Lieutenants; Surgeon Huddleston; Captain Algee, Navy; McCulloch, Commissary-General of Provisions, Quebec.

Captain Arthur Hill Brice, with his servant, left sick at Chamblly.

Sergeant-Major Wood,	Isaac Pearce,
Sergeant Quekett,	Peter Ward,
Sergeant Leaver,	Thomas Rylie,
Sergeant Gould,	Joseph Edwards,
Sergeant Taylor,	Stephen Lockin,
Sergeant Lomax,	William Powell,
Sergeant Kearsley,	John Teate,
Corporal Atkins,	John Berry,
Corporal Walker,	James Wood,
Corporal McLeod,	James Watham,
Corporal Mowat,	Josiah Dugmore,
Corporal White,	James Neal,
Corporal Ewyens,	Henry Adams,
Corporal Wm. Bradshaw,	Thomas Richardson,
Corporal Rich. Bradshaw,	James Murdock,
Corporal Smith,	Thomas Shears,
Robert Ryre,	Thomas Tomlin,
John Smith,	William Kelley,
William Such, 26th Reg't.	George Lang,
James Day,	Oliver Whittle,
Thos. Humphreys,	William Downing,
William Ruston,	John Smith,
John Dukins,	Stephen Mumford,
William Rowden,	John Frazer,
Thomas Houghton,	John Anderton,
James White,	William Hendrick,

* Mr. Holt: It gave me pleasure to see a scheme in your last paper, proposed by the Committee of this City, for establishing a Linen and Woollen Manufactory, the utility of which is so obvious, that every friend to his Country in this City, whose abilities will admit, will no doubt cheerfully become adventurers in the scheme; for not only the necessity we will soon be in for woollen and linen cloth, if our unhappy differences between Great Britain and America are not soon amicably settled, but the principles of humanity, ought to induce us to put the scheme immediately into execution, as it will instantly employ some hundreds of the industrious poor, who are at present in want of the necessities of life: they would then cheerfully eat the bread of industry, and, instead of being a burden to the community, they would be of infinite service to their Country; and while many of our brethren are exposing their lives in support of our civil and religious liberties, they would be usefully employed in providing them with necessary clothing. No person need be intimidated from engaging in such a scheme; for I aver it, that this Country has many advantages for carrying on the linen manufactories, superior either to Great Britain or Ireland, which can be fully elucidated. I hope that those gentlemen who are appointed to receive subscriptions will not meet with the least difficulty in speedily raising the stipulated sum.

I am, yours, &c.,

A FRIEND TO AMERICAN MANUFACTORY.

*Paul Price,
John Watson,
William Wilkinson,
Daniel Smith,
Thos. Hall, Drum-Major. J. Wilkinson, Drummer.
John Miller,
George Caton,
George Bullings,
Samuel Green,
Joseph Jeffcott,
Thomas Richardson,
Patrick Sinnot,
Anthony Shatford,
John Barber,*

*John Francisco,
Edward Farrestal,
John Burckley,
John Nelly,
J. Wilkinson, Drummer.
Adam Telford,
Donald Sutherland,
William Blakeny.*

ARTILLERY.

*Bombardier Barbour,
Thomas Miles,
John Browne,
William Follos.*

ARTILLERY.

*Bombardier Barbour,
Thomas Miles,
John Browne,
William Follos.*

Officers, - - - - -	9
Non-Commissioned Officers and Privates, -	78
Women, - - - - -	30
Children, - - - - -	51

Total, 168

N. B. Two women and one child gone to St. John's.
J. STOPFORD, Major Royal Fusileers.

*Officers of the Royal Fusileers taken at St. JOHN'S,
NOVEMBER 3, 1775.*

Captain Kinnear ,	Lieutenant Peacock ,
Captain Newmarch ,	Lieutenant Desperd ,
Captain Dundee ; left sick	Lieutenant Anstruther ,
at St. John's .	Lieutenant Duffe ,
Captain Hesketh ; absent	Lieutenant Hughes ,
with Gen. Montgomery's	Lieutenant Andrie ; gone
leave.	to Montreal as Quarter-
Captain Baillie ,	master.
Lieutenant Hay ,	Lieutenant Campbell .

JOHN KINNEAR, Captain Royal Fusiliers.

OFFICERS OF THE TWENTY-SIXTH REGIMENT.

Major Preston,
Captain Gordon, absent.
Captain Strong,
Captain Stuart,
Captain Livingston,
Lieutenant Dunkhanty, absent.
Lieutenant Borough, abs't to New-York, for fourteen days, by General
Schuyler's leave.
Lieutenant Thompson,

Lieutenant Richardson, absent to New-York, for fourteen days, by General Schuyler's leave.
Lieutenant Cuppidge,
Lieutenant McDonald,
Ensign Willington,
Ensign Thomas,
Ensign Gordon,
Major Millar, absent.
Captain Robinson, Royal Emigrants.

OFFICERS OF THE NAVY.

Captain Hunter, sent with General Mont-
Midshipman Stanhope, gomery's leave.
Captain's Clerk, Kempe, Ship-BUILDER, Capt. Thomp-
Surgeon Sandon, son, absent with General
Commissary Morrison, ab- Montgomery's leave.

OFFICERS OF ARTILLERY.

Capt. Lieutenant Edward Williams, of Col. Phillips's Company, absent with General Montgomery's leave.	Second Lieutenant Thomas Abbott, of Capt. Jones's Company, absent with General Montgomery's leave.
First Lieutenant Jacob Schalch, of Capt. Jones's Company, absent with General Montgomery's leave.	John Smith, of Capt. Jones's Company, absent to New-York, for fourteen days, with General Schuyler's leave.

Return of the FRENCH Officers taken Prisoners at St. JOHN'S, NOVEMBER 3, 1775.

Mons. De Beletre,	Mons. Tonnancour,
Mons. De Longueillea,	Mons. Dechanbaur,
Mons. Montesson,	Mons. Chr. St. Ours,
Mons. La Morandiere,	Mons. Cruiſy, absent, sick.
Mons. Borchevalle, ab-	Mons. Hertel,
ſent, sick.	Mons. Lamadeleine, absent,
Mons. Rouville,	leave of Gen. Montgo-
Mons. Semblin, absent, sick.	mery.
Mons. Loibiniere,	Mons. Fleuremon,

Mons. Soumagne, absent.
Mons. La Ronde, absent.
Mons. Ducheney,
Mons. Salabery, sick.
Mons. Demussaux,
Mons. La Marque,
Mons. Foucher, sick.
Mons. Vincene,
Mons. Gamelin, sick.
Mons. Skmiith,
Mons. Gaucher, sick.
Mons. Grasson, Cadet, absent.
Mons. Derussaux, absent.

OFFICERS OF MILITIA.

Mons. Jacques Harvieux , absent, leave of Gen. Montgomery .	Mons. Bapt. Harvieux , Mons. Moquin , Mons. Grisson L'Aine .
---	---

GENERAL WASHINGTON TO COLONEL WILLIAM WOODFORD.
Cambridge, November 10, 1775.

DEAR SIR: Your favour of the 18th September came to my hands on Wednesday last, through Boston, and open, as you may suppose. It might be well to recollect by whom you sent it, in order to discover if there has not been some treachery practised.

I do not mean to flatter when I assure you that I highly approve of your appointment. The inexperience you complain of is a common case, and only to be remedied by practice and close attention. The best general advice I can give, and which I am sure you stand in no need of, is to be strict in your discipline; that is, to require nothing unreasonably of your officers and men, but see that whatever is required be punctually complied with. Reward and punish every man according to his merit, without partiality or prejudice. Hear his complaints. If well founded, redress them; if otherwise, discourage them, in order to prevent frivolous ones. Discourage vice in every shape, and impress upon the mind of every man, from the first to the lowest, the importance of the cause, and what it is they are contending for. Forever keep in view the necessity of guarding against surprises. In all your marches, at times, at least, even when there is no possible danger, move with front, rear, and flank guards, that they may be familiarized to the use; and be regular in your encampments, appointing necessary guards for the security of your camp. In short, whether you expect an enemy or not, this should be practised; otherwise your attempts will be confused and awkward when necessary. Be plain and precise in your orders, and keep copies of them to refer to, that no mistakes may happen. Be easy and condescending in your deportment to your officers, but not too familiar, lest you subject yourself to a want of that respect which is necessary to support a proper command. These, Sir, not because I think you need the advice, but because you have been condescending enough to ask it, I have presumed to give as the great outlines of your conduct.

- As to the manual exercise, the evolutions and manœuvres of a regiment, with other knowledge necessary to the soldier, you will acquire them from those authors who have treated upon these subjects, among whom Bland (the newest edition) stands foremost; also an Essay on the Art of War; Instructions for Officers, lately published at Philadelphia; the Partisan; Young, and others.

My compliments to Mrs. Woodford; and that every success may attend you in this glorious struggle, is the sincere and ardent wish of, dear Sir, your affectionate humble servant,

GEORGE WASHINGTON.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO THE GENERAL COURT OF MASSACHU-SETTS-BAY.

Cambridge, November 10, 1775.

SIR: I am commanded by his Excellency General Washington to forward papers relative to the Sloop Polly and Schooner Industry, with the Captains and sailors; also, Mr. Jabez Hatch, who appears to be a noted tory, and is owner of one of these vessels, which was taken by one of the armed vessels fitted out at the Continental expense. You will please to return these papers after you have examined them, and the honourable Council will do with the prisoners as to them shall seem proper.

His Excellency will be glad to see the papers found on board the schooner from Ireland. Your sending them as soon as possible will oblige him. As the General Officers are all now sitting with him, he will be pleased to communicate to them their contents.

I have the honour to be, with great respect, Sir, your most humble servant,

S. MOYLAN, Sec. p. t.

The Hon. James Warren, Esq., Speaker, &c.

STEPHEN MOYLAN TO THE COMMITTEE OF NEWBURYPORT.

Cambridge, November 10, 1775.

SIR: It has been represented to his Excellency General Washington, that the Indians at and about Penobscot are in great want of powder; and that, if they cannot be supplied by us with some, they will make application to the enemy, who, no doubt, would gladly embrace such an opportunity of making them their friends. I have it, therefore, in command from his Excellency, to request the favour of the Committee of Safety of Newbury, to give, for the use of those Indians, two barrels out of their stock, which his Excellency will replace, if it is not done by the legislative body of this Province.

Captain Jedediah Preble, who is come down on this errand, will receive the powder, and has directions not to apply it to any but the use intended. Your compliance with this request will be gratefully acknowledged by his Excellency.

I am, Sir, your most obedient humble servant,

STEPHEN MOYLAN.

H. Wentworth, Esq., Chairman, &c.

COSMOPOLITAN, NO. III.

To the Inhabitants of the AMERICAN Colonies.

Friends and Fellow-Citizens:

We are strangely inattentive to the events of past ages. We read of the rise of Kingdoms and the ruin of Empires, together with the causes that produced them, as we peruse the fables of antiquity. Never giving ourselves the trouble of comparing and applying former occurrences, which are the beacons to warn posterity, with our own times, we turn over a few pages, are pleased with the tale, close the book, and the impressions die away. The consequences flowing from certain actions are much the same in all ages. We may derive knowledge, through the channels of history, from the fountains of remote time. By observing the behaviour of others, we gain experience for our own conduct, and are taught what things to pursue after, and what to avoid. It is likewise not uncommon, when the thunder begins to rumble at a near distance, when the political atmosphere is black and gloomy, when, amidst the scenes of war, misery, and distress, serious prospects open to view, to be lost in the contemplation of present difficulties, and to forget the origin, progress, and those links in the chain which have led to such threatening calamities. This knowledge is, however, necessary, as it furnishes materials of immediate utility. I must, therefore, my dear countrymen, beg your full recollection of the historical sketch in my last, and your equal attention to the contents of the present; that by comparing the intrigues, oppressions, practices, and the secret progress of slavery in our own State, which had brought it to totter on the verge of destruction, with those which have proved fatal to the freedom of others, you may be led to adore the goodness of that guardian angel who, as we were insensibly gliding into the most abject state of humiliation, has, we trust, kindly snatched us from the jaws of ruin. Being no courtier, I shall produce you the materials for the comparison with freedom, uninfluenced by private pique or party spirit; as a descendant of one who, in search of liberty, found it in a desert, as a member of a community struggling for its rights, I shall do it with seriousness and becoming sensibility.

I shall take the Massachusetts Province, only, as an instance; not only because the stabs she received were the stabs of America, but because similar oppressions, management, and arts of subjugation, were pursued in all the other Colonies.

Taking, then, a part for the whole, I assert, and will prove it, that America has been trembling under the rod of tyranny for several years; that her neck has been galled by the yoke, and her spirits, for a time, almost subdued; that the shackles have been forged and put upon her hands; and, judging of what was to come from what we felt, had they been riveted, we should have been the servants of servants, the most despicable of God's creation. I assert, that we have enjoyed little more than the formalities, without the real advantages of liberty; that, under the habits of regularity, real anarchy, confusion, and concealed tyranny, had made an amazing progress. This is the ill-shaped monster into which our Government has gradually been forming. The cockatrice, though hatched in an earlier period, could not stretch itself until nurtured by the fostering hand of its recent nurses. They brooded over it, gave it genial warmth, and made it a brat in their own likeness. I assert, further, as matter of opinion, that the destruction of the tea, and the assumption of government into the hands of the people, was the happy dawn of a bright and glorious day; that at this instant, notwithstanding fire and fagot are spreading desolation far and wide, the western world is now in blossom; that the flames that have consumed the dwellings of our countrymen will serve only to whet up the edge of our courage, to add a brilliancy to our sufferings, light up the lamps of fame; and that the trump of renown, in the mouths of revering posterity, will hail us the bulwarks of general liberty and the friends of mankind. Be this as it may, one thing is certain: that a state of war, that the consequences of independency, that no state can be more depressing to the spirits of Englishmen, than the state we have been in for years that are past.

Two instances may show how a dread of power had blunted the ardour of an Englishman's resolution. When the tool of a Ministerial despot, from the wantonness of revenge, had drove the Assembly from their State-House in Boston, how did they resent the gross affront? They came to what they called a constitutional stand: maintained their ground for a while, and then (I had almost said shamefully) gave it up. Britons, upon discovering an arbitrary, vindictive display of prerogatives, would have returned to their legal and usual seat of residence, and proceeded to business.

The conduct of the people upon the surrender of the Castle, that important fortress erected by the Province, its defence and security, must be imputed either to an affectionate scrupulosity of displeasing the Parent State, or to such sentiments of the heart as I blush to name. In honour to my countrymen, I hope it was the former. But no one effectual step was taken to recover it from the hands of Ministerial butchers. It is true, the Assembly addressed the Justice of the King, by a dry remonstrance. It might have been but the spirit of Englishmen, had we addressed the hearts of our enemies by more forcible weapons, and bound the traitorous betrayer of his Country's rights in fetters of iron, and packed him off to his royal master. This perfidious wretch has since dared to exult in the success of his treachery. It is too much for mortals to recollect. Horum meminisse non possum sine indignatione quadam. But not to dwell upon particulars:

Let any one recollect the uninterrupted series of oppressions, cruelty, and barbarity, under which we have laboured; from the Grenvillian to the late pitiful exertions of the present Minister, and he must confess that no sorrows for their origin, nature, and circumstances, have been like our sorrows. He must confess what I have advanced, that we have suffered all the horrors of slavery, under the formalities of a free Government. I say, let him recollect, for its description would baffle the force of genius, and exceed the boldest flights of fancy. On this subject language is barren, and imagination wing-broken.

While the wounds we had received from the Stamp Act were still bleeding, the Revenue Laws fretted the sore, and caused it to gape anew. These acts were the designed criterions of British authority. Had we been deceived, coaxed, frightened, or forced into a recognition of this monstrous power, American liberty would have been gone forever. The wise and the virtuous saw this, but their line of conduct was the cold line of prudence. The times required a more spirited procedure. But men's minds were forming for something future. The period is now arrived. While our chair, as to the purposes of doing good, was filled with a mere machine, wheeled about by Ministerial agency, whose hands were tied up and formed for mischief by sought-for instructions, the people were sinking under the capricious weight of the same authority. While our Board had become the simple skeletons of power, without nerves or sinews, and, in some of its hebdomadal sessions, tools to the duped, our House was a well formed mass of matter, with feverish pulses, but without real strength or energy. It was wearied, dragooned, dogged, and harassed into unworthy compliances. I do not mention it as matter of blame, but a subject of pity. It struggled to the utmost; what could it do? Its greatest merit was to bear gracefully; its greatest strength, to lay still. Our misfortune was the fault of the times, the temper of the day, the policy of the Continent. How could it be otherwise, when the spirit of the Continent could see, as it did see, the legislative authority of one Colony entirely suspended, and the Representatives of another drove, by the mouth of cannon and the points of bayonets, from their usual and legal place of residence, with as much insignificance as a marching posse of regulars, with a corporal at their head, crosses a green? Thus the bare badge and semblance of a Governour, with all the pageantry of power, and a band of mercenaries at his heels, (those curses of the day, and scourges of mankind,) bursted the sacred bands of society asunder, and dried up the sources of justice. This perversion of faith has been the arts of the little despots of the day. Instructions first wrote for, and then made the pretence for opposing every attempt in the Assembly for the good of their constituents. The interest of the Governour and that of the people consisting in opposite extremes, when, by a prostitution of the laws in being, he could not be the author of positive evil, he was a never-failing obstruction to future good, by proscribing the advantages of new laws. Every discouragement, check, and restriction, was practised, to goad down our necks to a vile dependance. Hedged out from the advantages of Government, such a mockery from power, such a delusion of command, has heightened the colours of our slavery; such an insult upon our feelings has made servitude more servile. The American, generous and humane, has suffered his private virtue to betray him into a weakness in politicks. He, too prone in excusing long the servants of the people, the first dawnings, and even repeated instances of tyranny, he imputes to any cause, rather than an oppressive design. But when he discovers a long premeditated plan; when he sees himself impoverished, plundered, robbed, and distressed, he becomes determined and daring; a tide of just indignation swells his veins, and neither the ornaments of power nor the trappings of state will sooth the fervour of his spirits. They may lift the culprit to higher view, and render his fall the more conspicuous. But to return to our history.

It was not enough to see our Representatives contemned, insulted, held in duress, by a mere fang of power; not enough to be shut out from the advantages of enacting wholesome laws, and a printer who dared to publish the truth, marked out for destruction; not enough to see law, justice, and the principles of a free Constitution, set at defiance—but the very shadows of freedom must be puffed away by the contaminated breath of a Minister. Is it possible that a King of the Brunswick line should stoop from the dignity of his station to prescribe the form of a preamble to a Provincial law? That he should instruct the representative of his own virtues to assent to no law which contained in its purview words purporting the authority by which it was enacted? Is it possible that an assembly of freemen should submit to the wanton restriction, as it leads to servitude and all the absurdities of the Tresillian doctrine? I repeat it from memory, but for its confirmation appeal to the Records of the House—the Assembly strangely complied. Was there any occult meaning, any magick threatening the supremacy of Parliament, any treason, any thing that looked like riots, routs, unlawful assemblies, or combinations of a dangerous tendency, that these five words, "by authority of the same," must be proscribed and forever struck out, shamefully banished the code of our Provincial laws? Was the very form of liberty so odious in the eyes of the "best of Princes," that the most obsequious of his subjects could not be indulged with its mere shadow? I say shadow—I blush for my countrymen—I speak it with indignation, nothing else remained. I beg pardon for being ludicrous upon a subject so melancholy. I feel a sacred loyalty for Kings and the Representatives of Majesty, but the transaction merits consummate contempt.

Other badges, or rather effects of slavery, were the unconstitutional Board of Commissioners, and its twin sister, the Court of Admiralty. These two hopeful children of oppression have been constantly merchandising in cruelty, knavery, injustice, and bribery. However black these charges may seem, they can be proved by evidence and supported by arguments. The former of these monsters had a numerous offspring, without property or sentiment, of pimps, clerks, and tide-waiters, who rioted on the spoils of the people, living by plunder and speculation. The latter, rendered despicable to an odious degree by some extraordinary decisions, was well calculated to enslave and procure submissions, and, by its expansions, to be destructive of that jewel in the English Constitution, trial by juries.

The egregious violation of our charter, in the independency of our Governour, was completing the tragedy, and productive of the worst of evils. This opened new scenes. Unchecked, and without control from the governed, he assumed airs, prerogatives wanted in all their licentious rigour, power grown rampant, opposition ineffectual, and every moving popular principle, except the tongues of the oppressed, was sealed in silence. The liberty of the press was basely, was infamously attacked by this dignified bribed oppressor—a privilege ever dear to Englishmen, as it is an engine fruitful of mighty events, in battering down the strong holds of the powerful. It should always be viewed with jealousy, and defended at every hazard. Tyrants have often felt its force, and wreaked their malice against it. Says the ingenious Hume, "It is sufficiently known that arbitrary power would steal in upon us, were we not extremely watchful to prevent its progress, and were there not an easy way of conveying the alarm from one end of the Kingdom to the other. The spirit of the people must frequently be roused, in order to curb the ambition of the Court, and the dread of that spirit's being roused must be employed to prevent that ambition. Nothing so effectual to this purpose as the liberty of the press, by which all the learning, wit, and genius of the nation may be employed on the side of liberty, and every one be animated to its defence." It is from the efficacy of this that our opposition is so respectable, our unanimity so ample. It is equally open to the Court and the Country, to the man in public life, and the private speculator, who may have the world for his theatre, and the publick for the object of his beneficence, while buried in obscurity, and confined to the smoke of his own chimney. In this way, many have been the watchings in our day, long the lucubrations, great the toils, and constant the labours, of some obscure individuals, God knows, for the good of their Country. Yet very contracted must have been their sphere, and useless their private efforts, had they been confined to that narrow circle into which the lot of Providence had cast them. But this liberty of the press, which is of common right the palladium of freedom, important as it is, and useful as it must be, has been attacked with impunity by the sacrilegious hand of a pensioned Governour.

I must reserve the remainder of this catalogue, which blackens the escutcheons of an Hutchinson, and gives him a plenitude of infamy, to some future number. I think this, at least, is very apparent from the adduced instances: that if our disease was not slavery itself, it had most of its threatening symptoms, and was hastening fast to a crisis; if it was not the worst we had to fear, it was what Denmark, France, and Spain, died of. We are now in a fair way of recovery; let us not relapse by our own supineness, inattention, or cowardice.

Worcester, Massachusetts, November 10, 1775.

HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES OF MASSACHUSETTS.

Wednesday, September 20, 1775.

The House met according to adjournment.

The following Gentlemen were returned Members from the Towns hereafter mentioned, viz :

George Godfrey, Esq., from the Town of Taunton.

Mr. David Field and Mr. Samuel Wells, from the Towns of Deerfield and Conway.

Mr. William Cooper, for the Town of Boston.

Ordered, That Mr. Gerry, Colonel Orne, Mr. Story, Mr. Greenleaf, and Mr. Jewett, be a Committee to wait upon the majority of the honourable Council, and acquaint them that a Quorum of this House is present, and ready to proceed to business.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed by this Court, to bring in a Tax Bill, be instructed to insert a clause directing the Assessors of the several Towns in this Colony to consider the Officers and Soldiers now in the Army as residents in their respective Towns, and tax them accordingly.

Mr. Wood was appointed on said Committee, in the room of Mr. Devens, otherwise engaged.

Ordered, That the Memorial of the Hon. Enoch Freeman, Esq., entered last Session, be recommitted to Deacon Nichols, Mr. Greenleaf, and Mr. Crane.

Afternoon.

The Proceedings of the Committee of Inspection for Deer-Island, relative to the taking a Sloop and Schooner, supposed to be in the service of our enemies, was read, and committed to Colonel Godfrey, Mr. Wood, Captain Foster, Captain Stone, and Captain Batchelder, who were directed to confer with the gentlemen who presented the same, and report what is proper to be done thereon.

Ordered, That Colonel Orne, Deacon Stickney, and Colonel Spaulding, with such as the honourable Board shall join, be a Committee to devise ways and means for supplying the Army with Wood.

In Council, September 20, 1775: Read and concurred; and Benjamin Lincoln and Benjamin White, Esqs., are joined.

Thursday, September 21, 1775.

A Petition of William Owen, one of the Selectmen of the Town of Falmouth, praying the Court to order a sum of Money to be granted them, to procure Provisions for billeting the Soldiers stationed in said Town, was read; and the petitioner had leave to withdraw it.

Ordered, That Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Greenleaf, and Mr. Mills, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve for the purpose of directing payment to be made for one month's billeting the Soldiers stationed on the sea-coasts, to commence from the day of their enlistment.

Ordered, That Mr. Gerry bring in a Resolve directing the several Colonels of the Massachusetts Forces to exhibit to this House a return of the names of the men in their respective Regiments.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve for paying one month's billeting to the Officers and Soldiers stationed on the sea-coasts, reported.

The Report was recommitted, and the Committee were directed to extend the pay for billeting to two months.

A Petition of Stephen Hussey and others, of Nantucket, praying for liberty to send a number of Vessels to sea on whaling voyages, was read, and committed to Colonel Orne, Mr. Wood, and Colonel Thayer.

A Petition of Warwick Palfrey, of Salem, praying the Court to approve of his intention to send a Vessel to Baltimore for Flour and other Provisions, was read, and committed to Colonel Grout, Mr. Story, and Deacon Nichols.

Afternoon.

A Petition of David Bradish, for himself and in behalf of a number of the Inhabitants of the Town of Falmouth, praying that this Court would direct them what to do with fifty white pine Masts, taken from Captain Thomas Coulson, was read, and committed to Mr. Hall, Colonel Grout, and Mr. Woodbridge.

A Petition of Samuel Noyes, for himself and in behalf of a number of Inhabitants of the Town of Falmouth, praying this Court to direct them what to do with a Boat, and seven white pine Masts and Bowsprits, taken from Captain Thomas Coulson, was read, and committed to the Committee last chosen.

The Committee on the Petition of Warwick Palfrey reported. Read and accepted.

Resolved, That the Petitioner have full liberty to bring in his said Schooner at Baltimore, in Maryland, a cargo of Flour, and other produce of that country, to the Port of Salem.

In Council, September 22, 1775: Read and concurred.

Ordered, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Selectmen and others appointed by Congress to billet the Officers and Soldiers raised for the defence of the sea-coasts, or to their order, two months' billeting of said Officers and Soldiers, from the time of their enlistment, according to the rate established by Congress.

In Council, September 21, 1775: Read and concurred.

Ordered, That Major Hawley, Colonel Orne, and Mr. Hopkins, be a Committee to make inquiry of Captain Glover, relative to the manufacture of Saltpetre, at Wind-sor, in Connecticut.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, to the Hon. Enoch Freeman, Esq., and Mr. William Owen, two of the Selectmen of the Town of Falmouth, for the use of said Town, the sum of twenty Pounds, in order to enable them to supply the Powder, Ball, and Flints, mentioned in the within Petition,* and the Treasurer is accordingly ordered to pay the same.

In Council, September 21, 1775: Read and concurred.

Friday, September 22, 1775.

A Petition of Elisha Cobb, of Wellfleet, in behalf of Elisha Doane, Esq., and others, praying for liberty to send off a number of Vessels on whaling voyages, was read, and committed to Captain Bragdon, Deacon Coddington, and Dr. Gunn.

Ordered, That Mr. Story, Deacon Nichols, Mr. Mills, Mr. Hubbard, and Deacon Rawson, be a Committee to consider the expediency of paying off the Massachusetts Forces to the first of August last past.

Benjamin Lincoln, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee appointed to devise means for supplying the Army with Wood.

Read and considered, and the matter was ordered to subside.

Ordered, That Mr. Cooper, Colonel Bowers, Colonel Orne, Colonel Thompson, and Mr. Durfee, be a Committee to consider the Petition of Stephen Hussey and others, of Nantucket; also, the Petition of Elisha Cobb, of Wellfleet, and all Petitions of a similar kind; and also to take a general view of the trade of this Colony, and report some rules relative thereto.

A Petition of the Committee of Inspection of the Town of Bristol, praying the direction of this Court with respect to the Sloop Sally, taken from one Andrew Johnson, was read, and committed to Mr. Hall, Colonel Grout, and Mr. Woodbridge.

Ordered, That a Message be sent to the honourable Board, for the Petition of Warwick Palfrey.

* Petition of Enoch Freeman, of Falmouth, in the County of Cumberland, in said Colony, Esquire, humbly shows: That the Selectmen of said Town, agreeable to a resolve of the late Provincial Congress, supplied the soldiers stationed in that Town to guard the sea-coast with ninety weight of powder, one hundred and sixty weight of ball, and forty-five dozen of flints, out of the Town stock, as per their account herewith. Therefore your petitioner prays the said powder, balls, and flints, may be immediately replaced, or so much money deposited in the hands of some suitable person as will purchase the same. And your petitioner further shows, that the Selectmen of said Town have taken the utmost pains to procure powder, far and near, but have hitherto failed; that their stock of powder is too small to be mentioned; and that no Town is more exposed to the enemy than that; that the inhabitants have lately provided carriages and mounted several fine cannon, which, had they powder, would greatly help them in their defence; wherefore, your petitioner humbly prays this honourable Court would take their critical and dangerous circumstances into consideration, and grant said Town, by way of loan or otherwise, three or four barrels of powder, until the said Town can supply themselves. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Afternoon.

A Petition of Captain John Lane, representing that his Company is suffering for want of Money, Coats, and Blankets, and praying relief, was read, and committed to Captain Batchelder, Mr. Starkweather, and Major Johnson.

A Petition of John Riordan, praying a Permit to send his Sloop to the Island of St. Croix, was read, and committed to the Committee on Trade.

A Petition of the Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Hardwick, praying the direction of this Court with respect to the Estate of Timothy Rugles, was read, and committed to Mr. Allen, Mr. Bent, and Captain Brown.

The Committee on the two Orders of Colonel Arnold reported. The Report was recommitted, and the Committee were directed to sit again forthwith.

A Petition from the Committee of Waldoborough, praying the Court to consider the distressed circumstances of said Town, and grant relief to the Inhabitants, was read, and committed to Mr. Woodbridge, Mr. Durfee, and Mr. Wilson.

The Report of the Committee appointed by the late Congress to agree with the Post-Riders, &c., was read, and committed to Mr. Pitts, Deacon Codding, Colonel Bowers, Colonel Thayer, and Mr. Phillips.

A Petition of Jeduthan Baldwin, praying pay for his services as an Engineer in Colonel Gridley's Regiment of Artillery, was read, and committed to Colonel Thurston, Deacon Gould, and Mr. Ward.

Benjamin White, Esq., brought down the following Resolve, viz:

"In Council, September 22, 1775.

"Whereas, by an act of this Court, entitled 'An Act for making and emitting of Bills of Publick Credit,' passed the 23d day of August, 1775, and by a subsequent resolve of said Court, on the following day, it is therein ordered, that all the Bills of Credit therein mentioned to be emitted, (ten thousand of each denomination,) should be authenticated by signing and numbering, by any three of the Committee mentioned in said act and resolve; and it appearing to this Court that there is no necessity for three signers to the bills of one Shilling, of two Shillings, of two Shillings and six Pence, of four Shillings, of five Shillings, of six Shillings, of seven Shillings and six Pence, and of eight Shillings, mentioned in said act and resolve, to be authenticated by three signers, and that such authentication will cause an unnecessary delay in said emission; it is therefore Resolved, That one thousand of said mentioned bills of each denomination, from number one to number one thousand, inclusively, shall be signed by only any two of said Committee, and that the remaining nine thousand of each denomination of said mentioned bills, from number one thousand to number ten thousand, including the last number, shall be signed only by any one of said Committee.

"And whereas four thousand of the bills of each of the larger denominations mentioned in said act, viz: of ten Shillings, of eleven Shillings, of twelve Shillings, of seventeen Shillings, of twenty Shillings, of twenty-four Shillings, of thirty Shillings, and of forty Shillings, are already signed by three signers, agreeable to said act and resolve; and whereas six thousand of the said last mentioned bills of each of the larger denominations yet remain to be signed; it is therefore Resolved, That the said six thousand remaining bills, of each of the larger denominations, shall be signed or authenticated only by any two of said Committee; and that all such signing or authentication in both these resolves shall be, to all intents and purposes, as lawful and valid as if the same bills had been signed and authenticated by any three of said Committee, any thing in said act or said resolve contained to the contrary in any wise notwithstanding."

Read and concurred.

The Committee on Colonel Arnold's Order reported. Read and accepted.

Resolved, That there be paid out of the publick Treasury, to the order of Lochlan McIntosh, Esq., the sum of thirty-one Pounds, ten Shillings, and four Pence, in full of his order.

Mr. Gerry, agreeable to order, reported a Resolve directing the Colonels of the Massachusetts Forces to return a list of the names of the men in their respective Regiments.

Read, and not accepted; and Mr. Gerry was directed to bring in a Resolve directing that application should be made to General Washington, for the purpose aforesaid.

Ordered, That the Secretary lay on the table the Petition of Warwick Palfrey.

The Secretary laid the same on the table accordingly.

Ordered, That Mr. Crane, Colonel Orne, and Colonel Cutt, be a Committee to consider a Resolve of the Provincial Congress prohibiting the sale of English Goods after the 10th day of October next, and report what is expedient to be done thereon.

Saturday, September 23, 1775.

A Letter from the Committee of Inspection of the Town of Londonderry, relative to some Goods carried there inadvertently from Charlestown, was read, and committed to Mr. Story, Mr. Mighill, and Colonel Gridley.

The Committee appointed to inquire into the conduct of the Honourable Jerathmeel Bowers, Esq., being called upon to report, reported accordingly; which Report, after debate thereon, was dismissed.*

* The Committee appointed by the House of Representatives to make inquiry of the Committee of Inspection who stigmatized Jerathmeel Bowers, Esq., in the publick papers, and to examine and hear the evidences which they might produce against him, and also to give the said Bowers a fair hearing in his defence, beg leave to report:

That they have attended that service; having first duly notified all persons concerned, who were present, with their evidences, and had a full and fair hearing.

The charges exhibited by the Committee of Inspection, against Jerathmeel Bowers, Esq., were as follows:

That he opposed the Town's paying their outstanding Provincial rates to Henry Gardner, Esq.; that he was in favour of dismissing the Committee of Inspection for the Town of Swansey; that he opposed, from time to time, the raising of a Minute Company, and after they were raised, continued his opposition till he finally procured their dismissal, and afterwards he used his influence to prevent the raising of a Minute Company, when moved for by some of the inhabitants, and the urgency of the times demanded it; that he expressed a great dislike to our assuming Government; that he was much displeased at the Courts being put down; that he spoke with contempt of a paper currency; that his conversation and conduct have had a tendency to spirit the inhabitants of the Town he lives in, and prevent their properly furnishing themselves for defence against an invading enemy—as his saying, that it would never do to fight Old England, that five thousand Regulars would drive our Army, and the expence of maintaining thirteen thousand men could not be supported, and that they would use the sword put into their hands against us, for their pay; that he had advised Captain Gibbs to lie still and not act in our difficult affairs, and blamed some of the Committee of Swansey for examining a person whose conduct had been inimical; and that he was against the Town's augmenting their stock of powder, &c., and opposed equipping the Militia out of the Town's stock. In support of these charges the Committee brought the depositions which have appeared in the publick papers, most of the deponents being present, who again made oath to the truth of them.

It appears to your Committee, that at the first meeting the Town had to determine whether their rates should be paid to Henry Gardner, Esq., Colonel Bowers warmly urged that the taxes should be collected, and paid into the hands of some suitable person in Town; but as almost all the inhabitants were against paying them to Henry Gardner, he, with the rest, expressed a disinclination to do it. But at the several adjournments he insisted that they should be paid to Henry Gardner, but could not succeed in obtaining the approbation of the Town, till after the Lexington battle, when he was instrumental in procuring a vote of the Town for that purpose. He was even so zealous for collecting the money, that it might be ready for Henry Gardner, when wanted or called for, that he declared, in meeting, that if any one refused to pay, he himself would aid and assist the Constable in compelling him to do it.

It appears to your Committee, that the Committee of Inspection for the Town of Swansey were first chosen in consequence of a motion made by Colonel Bowers for that purpose; and that their dismissal was owing to those persons who were offended at the Town's refusing to pay three Shillings a day to every Minute-Man, for exercising, in case a Company should be raised. And if Colonel Bowers seconded the motion for their dismissal, (as is suggested by some of the evidences,) it did not arise from any dislike he had to so useful an institution. But it remains very uncertain whether the motion was seconded by him; for Simeon Mason, whose evidence has appeared in the papers, observed further to us, that he himself made the motion for their dismissal, and that he was not seconded by Colonel Bowers, but by another person. Others declared, that when the motion was made, he showed a great deal of dislike, and said, "if they would run mad he would have no hand in it;" and after they were dismissed, he observed to them, "just so you do your business; you dance backwards and forwards, do and undo."

The Captain and Lieutenant of the Minute Company which had been in Swansey, with others, deposed that Colonel Bowers encouraged them to proceed in raising a Minute Company; and that he was so far from opposing, that he always expressed his approbation of the scheme. When an Army was established, he supposed their useful-

Ordered, That the Secretary lay upon the table the Resolve for stationing Capt. Lane's Company at Gloucester.
The Secretary laid it upon the table accordingly.

Mr. Gerry, agreeable to order, reported the following Resolve, which was accepted, viz:

Resolved, That the Speaker, Mr. Gerry, and Major Hawley, be, and they hereby are appointed a Committee to apply to his Excellency George Washington, Esq., with a desire of this House that he will, as soon as may be, cause a return to be made of the names of the Officers and Men to each Regiment established by this Colony, and now in the American Army respectively belonging, including such of each Regiment as are deceased since its establishment, or as have been draughted for the detachment ordered to Quebeck, and specifying the names of the Towns and other places from which they were respectively entered, in order to enable the Court to rectify and prevent any errors in Accounts, which have been or may be rendered for payment of Blankets and other articles supplied the Soldiers, according to the terms of their enlistment.

Resolved, That Tuesday next, ten o'clock, A. M., be assigned to take into consideration the state of the Militia in this Colony.

The Committee on the Petition of Captain John Lane reported. The Report was recommitted, and the Committee were instructed to report a state of facts.

ness in a great measure ceased; and as they were entitled to a considerable bounty upon their marching out of Town, he thought it best they should be dismissed, and they were accordingly. And afterwards he opposed the Town's agreeing to pay three Shillings a day to Minute-Men, for exercising, in case a Company could be raised.

With respect to the Courts, Colonel Bowers granted that he had disapproved of the people's conduct, in not permitting them to do business agreeable to the charter of the Province.

As to a paper currency, Colonel Bowers produced evidence that he had taken it in a considerable quantity, and had given silver in exchange.

In answer to the evidences which were produced, that his conversation and conduct were calculated to dishearten the people, &c., Colonel Bowers proved, that he used all his influence to induce the Town to adopt the Suffolk Resolves, but without effect; that he urged the Town to choose a Committee for the County Convention, and it was accordingly done; that, upon the news of the Lexington battle, he was sent for by a number of the inhabitants, to consult what was best to be done; he told them "he was very much against fighting," but, since it was begun, he "was for going a thorough-stitch with it," and advised to the calling a Town meeting immediately; that he moved, at one of their meetings, for doubling the Town stock, which would make better than five hundred weight of powder, above seven hundred weight of lead, &c., and likewise that forty fire-arms should be procured, all which were voted; he also moved, that the Town of Swansey should join with Freetown, and erect a battery on each side of the river, and afterwards said, in private conversation, that he himself would be at the expense of the cannon, if he knew where to get them; that he was for the Town's stock being divided, and placed in different parts of the Town, for the convenience of the inhabitants in case of an emergency; or that every man should fill his powder-horn, and give it to the Sergeants to keep; but objected to their having it in their own possession, as they might waste it, in shooting at birds, &c.; that he solicited the people to enlist into the Army, telling them that they had good encouragement so to do; that he would by all means have their full quota engage in the service; that he had been heard to say, that Great Britain could never drive this Country by any force they could send; that at the time of the Weymouth alarm, he declared, he "would go in person as far as any man;" that he had been heard to say, within a few months back, that he "would expend as much of his estate in defence of his Country as any person whatever: that he would spend his life and fortune in the cause."

Moreover, Captain Robert Gibbs deposed, that Colonel Bowers never advised him not to act in our difficult affairs, as mentioned in the testimony of David Pierce; but that he informed said Pierce that Colonel Bowers came to him on account of his keeping a pedlar, and giving a sword to one of Colonel Gilbert's Company, and told him that he had better turn away the pedlar, recall the sword, lie still, and not make the people uneasy; which story said Pierce misapprehended.

Silas Clark, the person referred to in the depositions of Philip Slead and David Pierce, as being present at the time when Colonel Bowers expressed his apprehensions about the Army, testified, that Philip Slead expressed some concern about prying the Army, but he observed to him, that he need not trouble himself about that, for as the Army had the sword in their hands, they would pay themselves; which seemed to affect said Slead, who said, "I never thought of it before, and am a good deal troubled at it;" and then asked Colonel Bowers what he thought of Clark's opinion, who asked what it was; and upon being told, he answered, in a careless way, "there's no knowing which way it would turn."

As in some of the depositions published to the world, Colonel Bowers is said to call the meeting illegal, the meaning of which may be mistaken, we think proper to observe, that, from the deponents themselves, it appears that Colonel Bowers mentioned the absence of the Town Clerk as the cause of its illegality.

Your Committee, after a thorough examination of the several evidences and the most careful inquiry, cannot find that Colonel Bowers has acted a part unfriendly to his Country, but quite the reverse; and are unanimous in the opinion, that he, so far from wishing his countrymen to be deprived of their liberty, or a single privilege, would exert himself to the utmost in support of them.

By order of the Committee: WILLIAM BAYLIES, Chairman,

Monday, September 25, 1775.

A Memorial of Elisha Cobb, relative to a Schooner brought into Wellfleet-Bay, was read, and committed to Colonel Godfrey and Colonel Orne, with such as the honourable Board may join.

In Council, September 25, 1775: Read and concurred, and Walter Spooner, Esq., is joined.

Ordered, That Major Brooks, Colonel Grout, Major Hawley, Captain Batchelder, Deacon Rawson, Colonel Orne, and Mr. Cheever, be a Committee to consider the services of all the Officers and Private Soldiers (excepting the men raised for the defence of the sea-coasts) who have served the Colony either in the character of Minute-Men, Militia-Men, or Officers and Soldiers retained in the Army raised for the defence of this and the other American Colonies, until the last of December next, from the 19th of April last to the 1st of August last, and at what rate the said Minute-Men and Militia-Men should be paid for their respective services; also, at what rate or in what manner all the said Officers and Soldiers should be paid for their subsistence, on their march from their respective homes to Head-Quarters; also, in what manner and by whom it is proper the Rolls and Accounts of such services and subsistence should be made up and authenticated.

The Committee appointed to consider the expediency of paying off the Forces of this Colony, to the first of August last, reported. The Report was committed to the Committee last chosen, to consider the services of all the Officers, &c.

Afternoon.

An Examination of Catharine Cook and Nancy Sullivan, two suspected women, who were examined by the Committee of Correspondence of Lexington, and sent to this place, was read, and sent up.

A Petition of Joseph Palmer, Esq., relative to the Estate of the late John Borland, Esq., of Braintree, was read, and committed to Mr. Story, Major Ely, and Colonel Grout.

The Committee on the Petition of Captain John Lane* reported. Read and accepted.

The Committee appointed to take into consideration the Petition of Captain John Lane have attended that service, and beg leave to report the following state of facts, viz:

The 22d May, the said Lane received orders to confer with the Penobscot Tribe of Indians; at the same time he received orders to enlist fifty-six Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers. He left his Lieutenant with directions to enlist as many men as he could, and proceeded to Penobscot, treated with the Indians, and conducted four of them to the Congress. After the Congress had finished a treaty with the said Indians, in which said Lane was accepted as their Agent, he conducted them back as far as Falmouth, where he found his orders were not sufficient to procure goods for said Indians. He then sent forward the said Indians, gave Lieutenant Gilman orders to enlist men at Penobscot, and returned to the Congress, where he received orders to Mr. Pribble to furnish the said goods; which said Pribble did. Said Lane then proceeded to Penobscot, and delivered them to the Truckmaster there. He found the Indians, and acquainted them with what he had done. He then returned to the Truck-House, and took on board forty-nine men, which Lieutenant Gilman had enlisted, and proceeded to Falmouth, and from thence to Head-Quarters, by land. In the mean time he had, according to his orders, wrote his Lieutenant, who was raising men at Falmouth, to proceed to Head-Quarters with what men he had; which he did. And then said Lieutenant received orders to proceed to Gloucester, where that Company were to be stationed. That Captain Lane met his Lieutenant in Salem with twenty-eight men that he had enlisted, which, together with said forty-nine men with him, * Petition of John Lane, of Buxton, in the County of York, and Colony of Massachusetts-Bay, humbly sheweth: That your petitioner commands a Company of seventy-nine men, now stationed at Cape Ann, by order of the honourable Council, and said men are now on duty, by order of the honourable Council, and suffering for want of money, and their coats and blankets; and the greatest part of them have neither received money nor blankets since they enlisted, which they very much want, and makes them uneasy. Pray your Honours would consider their condition, and relieve them in such manner as your Honours shall see fit. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

made the number seventy-seven Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers. That this was the first time Captain Lane had an opportunity of knowing what men he had. At the same time he received orders from the honourable Council to proceed immediately to Gloucester, with his whole Company, where they have been on duty ever since, under the direction of the Committee of Correspondence there. That Captain Joseph Foster hath already paid forty Shillings advance wages, and twelve Shillings in lieu of a blanket, to each of the said first twenty-eight men, and hath mustered the whole seventy-seven men, agreeable to orders he received from the Council. That the Council knew the number of men before they directed Captain Foster to muster them. Said Lane had also enlisted five Indians, which have since received their month's advance pay, and are ordered to Canada. Upon the whole, it appears to your Committee that the reason that Captain Lane hath enlisted the twenty-one men more than he was directed to, was, because that the two Lieutenants were enlisting men in two distant places at the same time, whilst he was very busy in transacting business of importance with the said Indians.

Resolved, That the Committee of Clothing be, and they hereby are directed to deliver to Captain John Lane seventy-seven Coats, as soon as they conveniently can, to be by him delivered as followeth: one Coat to each Non-Commissioned Officer and Soldier under his command; the said Lane to be accountable to this Court for the same.

In Council, September 27, 1775: Read and concurred.

Doctor Gunn and Captain Morton were appointed on the Committee to consider the Proceedings of the Committee at Deer-Island, in the room of Mr. Wood and Captain Stone, absent.

Charles Chauncy, Esq., brought down the Examination of Catharine Cook and Nancy Sullivan.

"In Council, September 25, 1775.

"Read, and Ordered, That Benjamin Chadbourn, Esq., with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee to examine the said Catharine Cook and Nancy Sullivan, and report."

Read and concurred; and Colonel Thompson and Mr. Fairfield are joined.

Tuesday, September 26, 1775.

The Committee on the Petition of Hussey and others, of Nantucket, reported. The Report was recommitted.

Benjamin Lincoln, Esq., brought down the following Vote of Council, viz:

"In Council, September 22, 1775.

"Ordered, That William Sever, Esq., with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee to form a proper Preamble or Introduction to the Acts of this Colony passed the last Session, and report."

Read and concurred; and Colonel Dwight and Dr. Whiting are joined.

Edward Davis, Esq., was returned a Member from Oxford.

Ordered, That Mr. Cooper, Colonel Godfrey, Colonel Porter, and Mr. Fabyan, with such as the honourable Board shall join, be a Committee to bring in a Bill for regulating the Militia of this Colony.

In Council, September 26, 1775: Read and concurred; and Benjamin Greenleaf and Jedediah Foster, Esqs., are joined.

Ordered, That Mr. Phillips, Mr. Story, and Mr. Pitts, be a Committee to procure some suitable person to attend the Muster-Master General, and obtain a Return of the Massachusetts Forces.

Afternoon.

A Resolve of Congress, empowering Major Nathaniel Low to purchase Corn, &c., for the inhabitants of Deer-Island, and an Order, signed by said Low, to pay Mr. Peter Coffin, Junior, the sum of fourteen Pounds, eleven Shillings, and two Pence, for the same, was read; and Mr. Story was appointed to bring in a Resolve for payment thereof.

Michael Farley, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee appointed to examine Catharine Cook and Nancy Sullivan.

Passed in Council, viz: "In Council, September 26, 1775: Read and accepted, and thereupon, Ordered, That the said Catharine Cook be sent to the Town of Worcester, and be placed under the care and direction of the Selectmen of said Town; and that the said Nancy Sullivan be permitted to pass unmolested through this Colony to her friends in Philadelphia."

Read and non-concurred, and ordered to be recommitted.

A Petition of the Selectmen of the Town of Sherburne, on the Island of Nantucket, relative to a Resolve of Congress which prohibited supplies of Provisions being carried to that place, and also relative to the Whale Fishery, was read, and committed to Captain Partridge, Mr. Story, and Mr. Pettingale.

Ordered, That the Petition preferred to this House by Colonel Palmer, (entered at the last sitting of this Court,) be committed to the Committee to whom was committed his Petition entered yesterday.

Wednesday, September 27, 1775.

On the Petition of Captain John Lane, it was further

Resolved, That the Receiver-General be, and he hereby is directed to pay the sum of one hundred and forty Pounds, eight Shillings, out of the publick Treasury of this Colony, unto Captain Joseph Foster, to be by him applied for the payment of one month's advance wages to Captain John Lane, the two Lieutenants, and forty Shillings to each of the forty-nine Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers under his command, who have not received any advance pay. Also, for the payment of twelve Shillings to each of the said forty-nine Non-Commissioned Officers and Soldiers, in the lieu of a Blanket; the said Joseph Foster to be accountable to this House for the same.

In Council, September 27, 1775: Read and concurred.

Ordered, That Major Hawley, Mr. Hopkins, and Captain Batchelder, with such as the honourable Board shall join, be a Committee to receive and confer with the Indian Sachem of the Oneida Tribe, when he comes to this place.

A Bill for apportioning and assessing Forty-Six Thousand Pounds upon the several Towns in this Colony was read a first time, and ordered to be read again to-morrow morning, ten o'clock.

A Petition of the Inhabitants of the Town of Boston, in Town Meeting convened, at Watertown, September 21, 1775, relative to Donations for the Poor of said Town of Boston, was read, and committed to Mr. Story, Mr. Wood, and Dr. Whiting.

Afternoon.

A Petition from the Town of Edgartown, on the Island of Martha's Vineyard, praying that sixty Men may be enlisted for their defence and protection, and also a Petition from the Town of Chilmark, on said Island, praying that fifty Men may be enlisted for their defence, were read, and both committed to Colonel Orne, Colonel Cobb, Mr. Greenleaf, Major Ely, and Mr. Low.

Ordered, That Mr. Cooper be on the Committee to consider the Resolve of Congress forbidding the sale of English Goods after the 10th of October next, in the room of Mr. Crane, absent.

On the Petition of Stephen Hussey and others, of Nantucket,* and Elisha Cobb and others, of Wellfleet,†

*The Petition of Stephen Hussey, Richard Mitchell, Josiah Coffin, and Andrew Myrick, humbly sheweth: That your petitioners have, at Nantucket, a number of vessels that are fitted for a whale voyage, excepting provisions; but as your petitioners are restrained by a resolve of the General Court, forbidding any ship or vessel sailing out of any port in this Colony on any whale voyage, without first leave had and obtained, your petitioners humbly pray your Honours would, in your great wisdom, point out some way whereby your petitioners may obtain leave to send said vessels to sea. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

†The Petition of Elisha Cobb, of Wellfleet, in the County of Barnstable, most humbly sheweth: That a number of whaling vessels is now preparing for sea, owned and possessed by Elisha Doane, Esq., Ezekiel Holbrook, Hezekiah Doane, Eleazer Atwood, and Naaman Holbrook and Company: Your petitioner, therefore, in behalf of the

Resolved, That the Petitioners abovementioned, and all others who have Vessels fitting out for the Whale Fishery, be, and they hereby are permitted to send their Vessels out on said Fishery, they taking on board no more Provisions than is necessary for said voyages, in the judgment of the Selectmen of the Towns from whence they sail, and giving bond to the Receiver-General of this Colony, in the sum of two thousand Pounds for each Vessel, that they will carry out no more Provisions than is hereby allowed; and that said Vessels, with their Cargoes, return to some Port in this Colony, and there land the same, the Ports of Boston and Nantucket excepted.

In Council, September 27, 1775: Read and concurred.

Joseph Palmer, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee to whom was recommitted the Report relative to Catharine Cook and Nancy Sullivan, viz:

"In Council, September 27, 1775.

"The Committee of both Houses appointed upon the representation of a number of the inhabitants of the Town of Lexington, relating to Catharine Cook and Nancy Sullivan, taken up at Lexington, and brought to this Court, on suspicion of their travelling about the country upon some bad design, the Committee have made inquiry of the time and manner of their coming out of Boston, and have reason to think they came out of Boston within about three weeks past, and have husbands now in Boston, one a soldier in the Fifty-Ninth Regiment, the other a carpenter in General Gage's Army; and your Committee are of opinion their staying in the country would be attended with trouble and expense, and that it will be expedient that application should be made to his Excellency General Washington, for their passing through his lines into Boston.

"BENJAMIN CHADBOURN, per order."

Read and concurred, and Voted, That the honourable Board be desired to cause a Letter to be sent to General Washington, for the purpose aforesaid.

Resolved, That nine o'clock, to-morrow morning, be assigned for the choice of a Chaplain pro tempore.

Thursday, September 28, 1775.

On a motion made, that the House proceed to the choice of a Chaplain pro tempore, the question was put, and it passed in the negative.

A Petition of James Ready, praying for some satisfaction for ninety-seven pounds of Tea, which was taken from him in July or August, 1774, on his way to Albany, was read, and dismissed.

A Petition of Daniel Nimham, (an Indian), praying an allowance for his services as a soldier in the Army; also a Petition of Solomon Ukhannauwaunmut, chief Sachem of the Moheakonnuck, or Stockbridge Indians, praying an allowance for services performed in consequence of a Letter he received from the Provincial Congress, as set forth in said Petition, were both read, and committed to Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Wood, and Deacon Stickney.

The Committee on the Proceedings of the Committee of Inspection of Deer-Island, relative to the Schooner Nightingale and Sloop Sally, reported a state of facts, and also two Resolves, directing the Committee at Deer-Island to release and discharge the Schooner Nightingale, belonging to Jonathan Rich.

Read, and not accepted; and ordered to be recommitted.

The other was accepted, and is as follows, viz:

Resolved, That whereas the Committee of Safety and Correspondence of Deer-Island did, on the 30th of August last, take into custody the Sloop Sally, belonging to Nathan Jones; that the said Committee be, and they hereby are directed to detain and take proper care of said Sloop Sally, until the further order of this Court.

In Council, October 12, 1775: Read and concurred.

aforesaid gentlemen, most humbly prays this honourable Court to take into consideration the great necessity of the whale fishery at this day, and grant them liberty of proceeding on their voyage; they complying with the order of this honourable Court, which they are always ready to obey. Your petitioner would further represent, that, should this honourable Court neglect granting the desire aforesaid, a large number of the inhabitants of said County will be unemployed in any sort of business; and as a number of said vessels hath been preparing for the employ aforesaid, your petitioner humbly hopes the aforesaid petition will be granted. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Major Hawley, by desire of Mr. Ephraim Jones, Keeper of the Jail at Concord, informed the House that Josiah Jones, Jonathan Hix, and William Likely, did last night break out of said Jail, and requested the directions of the House. Whereupon,

Ordered, That Colonel Mitchell, Colonel Grout, and Colonel Barrett, be a Committee to make inquiry of Mr. Jones, and report what is proper to be done.

A Petition of Ivory Hovey, in behalf of three Districts in the County of Lincoln, praying that this Court would appoint (or give said Districts liberty to choose) a Committee to be empowered to detain Vessels acting contrary to the Resolve of Congress, &c.

Read, and committed to Mr. Sullivan, Major Sewall, and Colonel Thompson.

The Committee on the Petitions from Edgartown and Chilmark reported. The Report was recommitted.

The Committee on the Petition of David Foster reported. The Report was recommitted for amendment.

The Committee on the Petition of Joseph Palmer,* Esq., and the Petition of the Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Braintree,† reported. Read and accepted.

Resolved, That the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Braintree be, and they hereby are fully authorized and empowered immediately to enter upon and take possession of the Estate of the late John Borland, Esq., deceased, situate in Braintree, in the County of Suffolk, both real and personal, and that they improve the same in the best manner they can, till the further order of this Court, any Resolve of the late Congress to the contrary notwithstanding; they to be accountable to this Court for the profits arising from the same.

Afternoon,

On the Petition of the Committee in behalf of the Town of Edgartown,‡ the Petition of Joseph Mayhew and others,

* The petition of Joseph Palmer, of Braintree, humbly shews: That your petitioner, by order of the Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence of said Braintree, lately presented a petition to this honourable Court, respecting an estate of the late John Borland, Esq., praying directions in the premises therein mentioned; which petition is now pending, and reference is had thereunto by your petitioner.

And whereas there is a part of the house and premises of said estate, which said Borland usually reserved for the special use of himself and family, which is and long has been void of any occupant; and whereas your petitioner, living near the sea, has been obliged to quit his habitation, and has taken refuge with Mr. Crauch, at Braintree; but there not being with him sufficient accommodation for both families in the winter time, your petitioner, upon application, was put into possession of said vacant estate by delivery of the keys by said Selectmen and Committees of Correspondence; but upon your petitioner's sending servants to clean the rooms, in order to put his furniture into the premises, your petitioner was forbidden by one James Hayward, who is in possession of another part of said house and estate, although he does not so much as pretend to any right of occupancy in said vacant part, nor anything but a verbal agreement with said Borland, for the occupancy of any part of said estate. Your petitioner, therefore, humbly prays this honourable Court to take his case into consideration, and to put him into immediate, actual, and quiet possession of said vacant part of said estate, (he being accountable as your Honours may direct,) or otherwise to grant relief to your petitioner, as in your wisdom may seem meet. And your petitioner, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

† Petition of the Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence from the Town of Braintree humbly sheweth: That, in consequence of two several resolves of the late Provincial Congress, dated the 16th and 21st of June past, respecting the property and estates of such persons who had left their habitations in the country, and taken refuge with our enemies, your petitioners made application to one Mr. Hayward, who resided on Mr. Borland's estate, in Braintree, and inquired of him (the said Hayward) whose was the property of the stock upon the farm, and the household furniture, &c.; but not receiving satisfactory answers, your petitioners took an inventory of said stock and furniture, and were proceeding to let said farm, but, before this was effected, your petitioners were acquainted with an explanatory resolve of said Congress, respecting the premises, dated the 8th July past, which occasioned doubts in the minds of your petitioners, what was the duty expected from them by the publick; therefore, they, your petitioners, humbly pray this honourable Court to direct them in the premises, as in their wisdom may seem meet. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

‡ Petition of the Inhabitants of the Town of Edgartown humbly sheweth: That whereas your petitioners, thinking themselves in imminent danger of our reputed enemies, invaders of our rights and properties, without the interposition of your Honours, humbly beg leave to represent their case as briefly as may be.

Whereas your petitioners, being situated on an island, laying about three leagues distant from the main land which makes a sound, where ships of war and tenders are frequently passing and repassing; also, there being two commodious harbours lying about eight miles distant from each other, in which ships of war and tenders have of late frequently anchored, by which means the said inhabitants have been freof the Town of Chilmark,* and the Petition of the Town of Tisbury,† all inhabitants of the Island of Martha's Vineyard, praying some assistance may be granted to enable them to defend themselves against Men of War, Cutters, &c., to which they are in a particular manner exposed:

Resolved, That there be raised in the Island of Martha's Vineyard two Companies, to consist of fifty men each, including their Officers; said Companies to be stationed upon the sea-coast on that Island, according to the direction of the Field-Officers of the Regiment of Militia of said Island, or the major part of them; the said two Companies to be under the same establishment the Forces raised in this Colony, for the defence of the sea-coast, are, as to Pay, Subsistence, and Ammunition. And every Soldier in the said two Companies shall furnish himself with a good and sufficient Firelock and Bayonet; and no man shall be mustered as a Soldier who is not so furnished. Said two Companies to continue in service until the first day of December next, unless before that time dismissed by the orders of this Court. And that the Field-Officers of the Regiment of Militia of said Island be, and they hereby are empowered to issue Beating Orders, for the raising said Companies, to such persons as they can recommend to be commissioned, and muster those Companies when raised.

In Council, September 28, 1775: Read and concurred.

The Committee appointed to make inquiry of Mr.

gently alarmed, by night and day, and have been obliged to keep up a constant watch, which is attended with no small expense. We would also inform your Honours that the greater part of said inhabitants of said Towns, living very remote from the harbour where those invaders most commonly anchor, and the people in said Town generally poor, and yet very fond of preserving their liberties, and to protect their stock of sheep and cattle, have been often under arms, and marched from their respective places of abode eight and ten miles, when alarmed, to prevent the enemy's landing: Your petitioners humbly pray your Honours to take the matter into your wise considerations, and grant to said Town the privilege to enlist sixty men, or one Company, for our protection, on the common expense of Government, or otherwise, as you in your great wisdom shall think fit to direct. All which is humbly submitted. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

*Petition of a number of Freeholders and other Inhabitants (whose names are hereunto subscribed) of the Town of Chilmark, in the County of Duke's, in the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, humbly sheweth: That the said Town, as well as all the other parts of said County, lies greatly exposed to such armed vessels as have of late forcibly carried off from some places on the sea-coasts of this and some neighbouring Colonies, a considerable number of fat cattle and sheep; to supply and support the Army and Fleet, whereby this Colony hath long been and still is greatly annoyed and distressed; and do frequently pass and repass the sound, and anchor in our roads and harbours, which occasions frequent alarms, and the keeping a constant watch along our shores. And that we, your said petitioners, think it to be our duty, and are willing and resolved, not only from a regard to our own private interest, but also to the general interest of this Continent, to do all that is or shall be in our power, to hinder the common enemy of this land from being strengthened in carrying on their hostile designs against us, by making a prey of our property and that of our neighbours. But we are sorry that we are obliged, as we think we are, to say that a considerable number of the inhabitants of this Town are (through the influence of certain powerful men here, who are against openly opposing those who are endeavouring to enslave us) averse to such exertions, in our defence, as we think will be highly proper and necessary; by which means a vote of the majority of the inhabitants of this Town, qualified by law to vote in Town affairs, could not be obtained, at a meeting here lately held, to petition your Honours for such help as we perceive you have granted to other places much less exposed to the enemy than the Island of Martha's Vineyard. And we are apprehensive that, in our present state, no such vigorous and powerful opposition will be made here, to the attempts likely to be made by our invaders, as will be necessary to prevent their carrying off from this Island a considerable supply of provisions for the support of the common enemy of North-America. The prayer of your petitioners is, that your Honours will be pleased to order fifty men, belonging to this Island or elsewhere, as your Honours shall think best, to be enlisted and employed for our defence, on the pay of this Colony, and this till the beginning of December next, or longer, inasmuch as this Island is not so likely to be defended by ice as the shores of the neighbouring Continent, or to grant us such other means of defence as your Honours, in your wisdom, shall seem meet. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

†Petition of a number of the Inhabitants of the Town of Tisbury humbly sheweth: That on Monday, the 21st of August, Anno Domini 1775, in consideration of our present unhappy situation at this crisis, and resolving to act in conformity to and with the rest of our brethren of said Colony, it was therefore voted to prefer a petition on the following particulars, viz: In consideration of our dangerous situation, being daily exposed to the invasions of His Majesty's fleet and armed vessels, they having already commenced hostilities upon this County, not only by firing upon us, but by carrying off stock, to the great prejudice of sundry inhabitants of this County. It was therefore voted in said meeting, to petition your Honours to take our situation under your serious consideration, and supply us with such a number of men, either by sea or land, or both, as you in your wisdom shall think meet for our defence. And your petitioners, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

Ephraim Jones, relative to the three Prisoners who broke out of Concord Jail last night, reported. Read and accepted.

Whereas Captain Ephraim Jones, of Concord, (Keeper of the Jail there,) hath just represented to this House that Josiah Jones, Jonathan Hicks, and William Likely, were, by the late Congress, committed to Jail in that Town, and that the said Jones, Hicks, and Likely, did, some time last night, break Jail and make their escape; therefore,

Resolved, That the said Ephraim Jones do immediately advertise said Jones, Hicks, and Likely, in all the Newspapers published in this Colony, describing their age, stature, dress, and countenances, offering a reward of three Pounds, besides other necessary charges, to any person or persons who shall apprehend and deliver into his custody each or either of said persons, and to offer the like reward to any person who shall discover to him any person who may be convicted of being accessory to their escape.

And it is further Ordered, That the said Ephraim Jones do immediately take into custody, and bring before this House, the Rev. Asa Dunbar and Simeon Jones, of Weston, that they may be inquired of concerning such escape.

In Council, September 28, 1775: Read and concurred.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan, Mr. Pitts, Mr. Jewett, Mr. Story, and Captain Partridge, be a Committee to inquire into all frauds that may be committed by any of the Officers of the Massachusetts Forces, and to convene before them such persons as they may think proper as witnesses, and to report to the House any such frauds that may appear to said Committee, and the method proper for detecting and punishing the same.

Moses Gill, Esq., brought down a Letter from his Excellency General Washington, relative to a Chief of the Oneida Tribe of Indians. Also, the Report of the Petition of Elisha Cobb.*

Ordered, That the Schooner mentioned in said Petition be detained where she now is, with her Tackling and Stores now on board, until the further order of the General Court.

In Council, September 28, 1775.

Read and accepted; and thereupon, Resolved, That the said Schooner, mentioned in the within Petition, be detained where she now is, with her Tackling and Stores now on board, until the further order of this Court.

Read and concurred.

A Petition of Tracy Hovey, in behalf of nine Districts in the County of Lincoln, lying between Machias and Penobscot, praying the Court to consider the danger to which they are exposed by the British Men of War, &c., and grant them some protection, was read, and committed to Captain Parker, Mr. Whitney, and Colonel Thompson.

Ordered, That Colonel Orne, Mr. Story, Mr. Cooper, Colonel Thompson, Mr. Sullivan, Colonel Grout, and Mr. Jewett, be a Committee to consider the expediency of fitting out a number of Armed Vessels.

The Committee on the Petition of the Selectmen of Sherburne, on the Island of Nantucket,† reported. Read and accepted.

Whereas it has been represented to this Court, by the Selectmen of the Town of Sherburne, on Nantucket, that *Petition of Elisha Cobb humbly sheweth: That, on the 7th inst., Thomas Sparks, in a schooner belonging to John Webb, of Boston, came into Wellfleet-Bay, with orders from Admiral Graves to catch fish and purchase fresh provisions for said Graves's family. Being informed that said Sparks, the trip before, had carried off some poultry and sauce, and being apprehensive that further mischief might ensue from said Sparks being at liberty to pursue his orders, I ordered Captain Joseph Smith, of the troops raised for the defence of the sea-coast, to bring said schooner into harbour, which he did. I then ordered said schooner to be hauled up, and her sails unbent, where she now is. The same day, sent said Sparks, with his order and other papers, to Colonel Joseph Otis, of Barnstable, for further orders; and also his crew, viz: a white lad named Richard Caswell, belonging to Boston, and a negro man named Francis, belonging to Thomas Talbot of Salem. All which is submitted to your Honours' further direction.

†Petition of the Selectmen of the Town of Sherburne, on the Island of Nantucket, in behalf and at the request of many of the inhabitants thereof, sheweth: That your petitioners, some time past, presented their memorial to you, in General Court assembled, representing, among other things, their apprehensions that some designing men had made false representations of the inhabitants of this Island, which probably produced the resolve of the late Provincial Congress, forbidding all necessary supplies being brought to this place. And notwithstanding we the Inhabitants of that Island are likely to be reduced to great difficulty and distress, by the severity of a restriction laid on their purchasing necessary supplies from the Continent; and as this Court are far from being desirous of laying unnecessary restrictions and burdens on the People of that Island, therefore,

Resolved, That the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Falmouth, in the County of Barnstable, be, and they hereby are empowered and directed, by written permits, under their hands, to grant license to such Inhabitants to purchase so much Provisions, and other necessary Supplies, as is sufficient for their internal consumption, or for those voyages which they may prosecute consistent with Resolves of Congress and of this Court, and no more; said permits shall specify the quantities each person has liberty to purchase. And it is recommended to the Inhabitants of this Colony to sell to said Inhabitants of Nantucket such Supplies, on their producing such permits, and not otherwise, any Resolve of the Provincial Congress to the contrary notwithstanding. And it is recommended to the said Committee, with their neighbouring Committees of Correspondence, that in case they shall receive credible intelligence that the Supplies thus purchased and transported are sold at any other market than said Island, or disposed of to the Ministerial Fleet or Army, or any connected with them, that they give the earliest notice thereof to this Court.

Whereas a late Congress of this Colony did, on the fifth day of December last, pass a Resolve prohibiting the sale of all Goods that were imported from Great Britain or Ireland; Molasses, Sirups, Panales, Coffee, or Pimento, from the British Plantations or from Dominica; Wines from Madeira or the Western Islands—after the tenth of October, 1775; and as the reasons of passing said Resolve do not subsist, therefore,

Resolved, That any person or persons whatsoever, having in their custody any of the abovementioned Goods, be, and they hereby are permitted to make sale and dispose of said Goods in this Colony, as usual, after the said tenth day of October next, any thing in the aforementioned Resolve to the contrary notwithstanding; and that this Resolve be published in the Cambridge, Watertown, and Worcester Papers. And it is recommended to the Committee of Correspondence, Inspection, or Safety, in the several Towns in this Colony, and, where no such Committees are appointed, the Selectmen of such Towns, that they take proper care that no undue advantage is taken in the sale of Goods, but that all persons making sale thereof strictly adhere to the Resolve of the Continental Congress respecting the sale of Goods and Merchandise.

In Council, September 30, 1775: Read and concurred.

Friday, September 29, 1775.

A Petition of General Thomas was read, and committed to Captain Brown, Colonel Woodbridge, and Colonel Thayer.

A Petition of Ivory Hovey committed to the Committee appointed to consider the propriety of fixing out Armed Vessels for the defence of the Sea-Coasts, the Committee to whom it was first referred being excused from that service.

Ordered, That Captain Stone, Mr. Sullivan, and Mr. Cooper, be a Committee to examine the Bonds to be given by the Nantucket Petitioners, and see if they are sufficient.

On the Petition of Solomon Ukhannauwaunmut,

Resolved, That the Treasurer of this Province be, and he hereby is ordered to pay the said Solomon the sum of thirty Pounds, four Shillings, in full for his service mentioned in his Petition.

In Council, September 29, 1775: Read and concurred.

A Petition of ten Prisoners in Concord Jail, taken in the Battle of Lexington, on the 19th of April last, praying for hoped those misrepresentations had been in good measure cleared up to your satisfaction, yet we find the resolve still remains in force, and a strict adherence is paid thereto. Therefore, we desire you would take the matter into your serious consideration, and remit the severity of said resolve, so far as to suffer the necessities of life to be brought us, for the use of our domestick concerns, and likewise for the whale fishery, so far as we shall obtain permission to prosecute that branch of business. And, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

some Clothing, &c., was read, and committed to Colonel Barret, Mr. Perry, and Mr. Durfee.

A Memorial of the Committee of Safety of the Town of Salem, proposing that an Armed Vessel should be established to cruise from Cape-Ann to Cape-Elizabeth, for purposes therein mentioned, was read, and committed to Colonel Thayer, Mr. Phillips, and Mr. Pitts.

Ordered, That Mr. Cushing, Captain Stone, and Major Ely, be a Committee to consider at large the matter relative to the Nantucket People's giving Bond, to enable them to send out their vessels on whaling voyages, and report what is proper to be done.

Ordered, That the Report of the Committee on the Proceedings of the Committee at Deer-Island, relative to the Schooner Nightingale, together with all the Papers relative thereto, be committed to Mr. Phillips, Mr. Gerry, Colonel Thurston, Colonel Barret, Mr. Sullivan, Deacon Rawson, and Mr. Jewett.

Ordered, That the Committee lately appointed by this Court to obtain some knowledge of the manufactory of Saltpetre, be directed to repair to Windsor, in Connecticut, to procure such information therein as they may be able.

Ordered, That Mr. Davis, Mr. Johnson, and Colonel Barret, be a Committee to receive and examine all Fire-Arms that may be presented to the Government for sale, and report the price thereof to the House.

Ordered, That Mr. Gerry, Mr. Phillips, and Colonel Davis, with such as the honourable Board may join, be a Committee to report to the House in what manner the manufactory of Fire-Arms may be most effectually encouraged.

In Council, October 2, 1775: Read and concurred; and Benj. Chadbourn and Samuel Holt, Esqs., are joined.

Ordered, That Colonel Orne, Mr. Hopkins, and Mr. Cooper, be a Committee to wait on his Excellency General Washington, and consult him on the expediency of fitting out Armed Vessels, and to inquire if any Powder can be spared for that purpose.

Afternoon.

Resolved, That some person be now appointed to act as Speaker, in the absence of the Speaker, from time to time, during the continuance of the present Session. Whereupon,

Ordered, That Mr. Wood, Mr. Story, and Mr. Phillips, be a Committee to receive and count the Votes for a Speaker pro tempore. Who reported, that Mr. William Cooper was chosen.

Saturday, September 30, 1775.

Resolved, That the Committee appointed to prepare Accounts of the sums disbursed by this Colony in the present contest with Great Britain, be directed to prepare a Letter to the Continental Congress, desiring them to prescribe some method of forming such Accounts; and also to report some method to this House.

Ordered, That Major Johnson, Captain Brown, Colonel Thompson, Mr. Woodbridge, and Mr. Mills, be a Committee to examine Simeon Jones, who has been apprehended by order of this Court.

A Petition of Aaron Wright, Keeper of the Jail in Northampton, and an Account annexed of billeting several Officers and Private men, sent to said Jail by order of the honourable Council, were read, and committed to the Committee on Accounts.

The Committee on the Petition from Londonderry reported. The Report was recommitted.

Ordered, That Mr. Starkweather, Captain Morton, and Mr. Rice, be a Committee to consider the Petition of Simeon Gross, praying the House to point out a way for the said Gross to reimburse him his expenses from Machias to this Town, and since the 30th August, he being taken from on board the Sloop Sally, and brought to Watertown as a prisoner.

Ordered, That Mr. Phillips bring in a Resolve for reconsidering the Resolve of this Court relative to the Accounts of the Assistant Commissaries.

Ordered, That one of the Committee appointed to consider what is proper to be done relative to the Nantucket people's giving the Bonds required by this Court, apply to the Receiver-General for such Bonds as have been received by him.

Charles Chauncy, Esq., brought down a Letter from the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Marblehead, relative to the capture of a Vessel belonging to New-Providance, and a state of facts reported thereon by a Committee from the honourable Board, viz:

"The Committee appointed to take into consideration the letter from the Committee of Correspondence of Marblehead, beg leave to report facts: That by the log-book it appears that the Schooner Industry, (being the schooner mentioned in said letter,) Francis Butler, master, sailed from Boston for New-Providance, July 24, 1775; arrived at Providance, August 25; sailed again from Providance for Boston, September 6, and came into Marblehead, September 27, 1775. And by the best accounts we can at present obtain, she has the following cargo, viz: about one hundred and fifty Turtles, (one hundred and fifty to one hundred and eighty, as the Mate says;) nineteen barrels of Limes; one thousand four hundred Lemons, (two thousand as the Master says;) two thousand one hundred Oranges, (twelve hundred as the Master says;) cash, three or four hundred Dollars, and thirty or forty numbered chests or packages opened. Josiah King, Mr. Josiah Clark, and Captain Butler, owners.

"The clearance papers are for Salem, but the log-book says for Boston. Captain Butler says, that he made signal of distress, but our boats would not speak with him. The Master told the Mate, as was said to the Captain's face, 'that it was a bad affair, being in our hands,' and was angry about the delivery of the log-book. The Master says, that he was fired at in the bay, near the Light-House. He says, that he would have run the vessel upon the rocks, rather than have fallen into our hands; but says, he was bound to Salem.

"Josiah Nottage, Jun., mate, says, that the permit or pass, from the Admiral at Boston, was to go to New-Providance, and return to Boston; but that in the harbour they took the pass from Butler, and gave a receipt for it. Says that she was bound to Salem; that Lewis Gray had about thirty or forty dollars on board, and the Captain about three or four hundred dollars; that he expected a man-of-war in Marblehead harbour; spoke with no armed vessel in the bay; heard several guns, but does not know whether any were fired at them or not. The Captain says, that he was fired at by a brig and tender, in the bay; that he (the Captain) had both a pass and permit—but the pass was taken from him, and a receipt given, but had it not about him; one hundred and eighty pieces of eight, belonging to Captain Daniel Martin, in Boston, and a little cash belonging to himself."

"In Council, September, 29, 1775.

"Read and accepted; and thereupon,

"Ordered, That Charles Chauncy, Esquire, and Joseph Palmer, Esq., with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee to take the foregoing matter under consideration, and report what is proper to be done with the said vessel and cargo."

Read and concurred; and Colonel Orne, Mr. Gerry, and Mr. Sullivan are joined.

The Committee appointed to employ some person to attend the Muster-Master General, to obtain a return of the Massachusetts Forces, reported, that they had engaged Mr. John Kneeland for that purpose. The Report was accepted, and the said Committee was directed to inform Mr. Kneeland that the House approve of him for that service.

Charles Chauncy, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee appointed to form a proper Preamble or Introduction to the Acts of this Colony, lately passed.

"In Council, September 29, 1775.

"The Committee of both Houses appointed to form a proper Introduction to the Acts of this Colony, lately passed, have attended that service, and are of opinion that the Introduction be in the words following, viz: 'Acts and Laws passed by the Great and General Court or Assembly of the Colony of the Massachusetts-Bay, begun and held at Watertown, upon Wednesday, the 19th day of July, 1775.'

"Read and accepted; and thereupon,

"Resolved, That the Introduction to the Acts of this Colony, passed the last session, be in the words following, viz: 'Acts and Laws passed by the Great and General Court or Assembly of the Massachusetts-Bay, begun and held at Watertown, upon Wednesday, the 19th day of July, 1775.'

Read and concurred.

A Memorial and Petition of Isaac Backus, Agent for the Baptist Churches, was read, and Thursday next, at three o'clock in the afternoon, was assigned for the consideration of it.

Afternoon.

The Committee on the Petition from Waldoborough reported.

The Report was ordered to lie till there is a fuller House.

The Bonds of those people of Nantucket who have applied for Permits to send their vessels on whaling voyages being laid before the House, were examined, and the Committee were directed to lodge them with the Receiver-General; and the adventurers aforesaid were permitted to proceed on said voyages accordingly.

Ordered, That Colonel Orne, Mr. Gerry, and Mr. Sullivan, with such as the honourable Board may join, be a Committee to consider the circumstances of the capture of a Brig, bound from Quebeck to Boston, and carried into Cape-Ann, and report what is proper to be done thereon.

In Council, October 2, 1775: Read and concurred; and Charles Chauncy and Joseph Palmer, Esqs., are joined.

The Committee on the Petition of a number of Prisoners in Concord Jail reported. The Report was recommitted.

Ordered, That Mr. Story, Colonel Thompson, and Captain Parker, be a Committee to consider at large the subject of a Petition of Philip Bass, Junior, and Edward Carnes, Jun., relative to the Sloop Belisle, taken off Seguin-Island, and carried into Kennebeck River; and report.

A Petition of the Selectmen of the Town of Springfield, praying payment of an Account, for aiding General Washington on his way through Springfield to the Camp at Cambridge, and for transporting Powder, &c., was read, and committed to the Committee on Accounts.

Monday, October 2, 1775.

Jedediah Foster, Esq., brought down a Letter from General Washington, and a Memorial of Captain Jacob Rogers, and other Papers relative to the request of said Rogers, for protection, &c., with the following Vote of Council thereon, viz:

"In Council, September 29, 1775.

"Read, and Ordered, That Samuel Holten, Esq., with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee to consider some proper means of protection for the said Rogers, and report."

Read and concurred; and Colonel Orne and Mr. Wheeler are joined.

Benjamin White, Esq., brought down a Letter from Captain Jacob Rogers, setting forth the dangerous situation he is in, and praying the protection of the honourable Board, with the following Vote of Council thereon, viz:

"In Council, October 2, 1775.

"Read, and Ordered, That Samuel Holten, Esq., with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee to consider the request contained in the foregoing Letter, and report."

Read and concurred; and Colonel Orne and Mr. Wheeler are joined.

Afternoon.

A Petition of William Holland, praying that he may have liberty to fit out his Brigantine as a Privateer, and be himself commissioned as Master thereof, was read, and committed to Mr. Pitts, Colonel Thompson, and Captain Morton.

On the Memorial and Petition of Paul Mendall, Resolved, That the Selectmen and Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Hardwick be, and hereby are empowered to sell so much of the Stock belonging to the Estate of Timothy Ruggles, a refugee, as they shall find necessary to winter the remainder, and they to be accountable to this Court.

A Letter from Joseph Reed, Esq., Secretary to his Excellency General Washington, relative to the disposal of the Vessels which have been taken from our enemies,* was read, and committed to Major Hawley, Colonel Orne, and Mr. Hopkins.

Resolved, That the Vote of this House, directing the Committee to prepare Accounts, &c., to prepare a Letter to the Continental Congress, desiring they would prescribe a form for such Accounts, be reconsidered.

Jedediah Foster, Esq., came down and informed the House that the honourable Board had agreed to the assignment of three o'clock, to-morrow afternoon, for the choice of Civil Officers,† and would join the House in such choice.

Ordered, That Mr. Story, Major Brooks, and Captain Parker, be a Committee to consider how the Committee to prepare Accounts, &c., shall be possessed of proper Vouchers to be transmitted to the Continental Congress.

Ordered, That Mr. Pitts, Colonel Cutt, and Mr. Watson, be a Committee to consider what is proper to be done relative to the communication between the Town of Boston and the country.

The Committee on the representation made to this Court by the Committee of Safety for Newburyport reported, that a Committee, to be joined by such as the honourable Board shall appoint, wait on General Washington, to acquaint him with the subject-matter of the representation made by the Committee of Safety of Newburyport, that he may determine whether it will not conduce to the publick interest to take the Vessel therein referred to into the Continental service.

Read and accepted.

Tuesday, October 3, 1775.

Agreeable to a Resolve of the General Court, dated August 21, 1775, desiring the Committee of Inspection of the Town of Falmouth to inquire into the conduct of Jeremiah Pote and Robert Pagan, relating to their exporting a quantity of Fish, the said Committee met for the above purpose, and called the said Pote and Pagan before them, and, upon examination, found Robert Pagan clear of the matter; but Jeremiah Pote, as also Thomas Wyer, remains for further examination. Thereupon,

Ordered, That Colonel Thompson, Mr. Woodbridge, and Captain Cutter, with such as the honourable Board may join, be a Committee to examine Captain Jeremiah Pote and Captain Thomas Wyer, relative to their exporting Fish, contrary to the Resolves of Congress, as set forth in a Letter from the Committee of Inspection of Falmouth, and other Papers accompanying.

In Council, October 3, 1775. Read and concurred.

Samuel Holten, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee on the representation from Newburyport, relative to fitting out an Armed Vessel there, with the following Vote of Council thereon, viz:

"In Council, October 3, 1775.

"Read and concurred; and Ordered, That Benjamin Greenleaf, Esq., with such as the honourable House shall join, be a Committee for the purpose expressed in the above Report."

Read and concurred; and Colonel Orne and Mr. Pitts are joined.

Michael Farley, Esq., brought down a Memorial from the Field-Officers of the Western Regiment of the County of Barnstable, relative to the arrival of a Fleet of Men of War and Transports at Holmes's Hole, &c.; and praying for a supply of Ammunition, &c.

Read, and committed to Mr. Gerry, Colonel Orne, Mr. Hall, Captain Harding, and Colonel Norton.

A Petition of the Selectmen of Lunenburg, praying payment for an Account of Provision sent to Cambridge on the 20th April last, for the use of the Soldiers who marched thither in consequence of the shedding of blood

* [Relative to three Vessels proposed to be manned by his Excellency, and taken into the Continental service.]

† [To come to the choice of such Civil Officers, the appointment of whom, by Charter, rests in the General Court.]

at Lexington and Concord, by the King's Troops, was read, and ordered to lie on the files.

Ordered, That Mr. Low, Deacon Stickney, Mr. Allen, Deacon Nichols, and Mr. Hendrick, be a Committee to consider the matter at large.

The Committee on the Letter from the Committee of Inspection of Londonderry reported. Read and accepted.

Whereas the Committee of Inspection for the Town of Londonderry have collected a considerable quantity of wearing apparel, household furniture, and other articles, that were taken away on the day of the battle at Charlestown, and have sent them to Watertown, and delivered them into the hands of Mr. Richard Devens; and whereas it is probable that wearing apparel, household furniture, and other goods, were taken from Charlestown and other places at the time aforesaid, and may be in divers Towns of this Colony, and the neighbouring Colonies and Provinces: It is therefore

Resolved, That the Committee of Correspondence and Committees of Inspection in each Town in this Colony, and in each Town in the neighbouring Colonies and Provinces, and, where no such Committees are, the Selectmen of each Town, be desired to make inquiry and search for any Apparel or Goods of any sort brought amongst them, belonging to the Inhabitants of Boston or Charlestown, or any other Towns, at or after the time aforesaid, and that they advertise in the publick newspapers all such Goods as may, from time to time, come to their hands, that the owners thereof may know where to apply for the same.

And it is further Resolved, That the said Richard Devens be directed to deliver the Goods now in his possession to those persons that shall make out to his satisfaction their property in them, they paying a proportionable part of the charge of collecting and bringing the same to Watertown.

In Council, October 4, 1775: Read and concurred.

Ordered, That Colonel Cutt, Colonel Pyncheon, and Major Ely, be a Committee to bring in a Resolve recommending to the Corporation and Overseers of Harvard College not to appoint any person as Governour or Instructor, but such whose political principles they can depend upon; and to inquire into the principles of such as are now in office, and dismiss those who are not friendly to the Country.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed to consider the Proceedings of the Committee of Inspection of Deer-Island, relative to the Schooner Nightingale, be directed to sit forthwith.

The House, according to the Order of the Day, proceeded to the consideration of suitable Grants to the Civil Officers of the Colony.

Whereupon, Resolved, That there be granted and allowed, to be paid out of the publick Treasury, to Mr. Edward Wigglesworth, Hollisian Professor of Divinity at Harvard College, the sum of one hundred Pounds, as a gratuity, in consideration of his faithful discharge of the great and important trust reposed in him, for one year, ending the 25th day of January last.

Resolved, That there be granted and allowed, to be paid out of the publick Treasury, to John Winthrop, Esq., L. L. D., Hollisian Professor of Mathematical and Natural Philosophy at Harvard College, the sum of one hundred Pounds, as a gratuity, in consideration of his faithful discharge of the great and important trust reposed in him, for one year, ending the 13th day of January last.

Resolved, That there be granted and allowed, to be paid out of the publick Treasury, to Mr. Stephen Sewall, Hancock Professor of the Hebrew and other Oriental Languages at Harvard College, the sum of forty Pounds, as a gratuity in consideration of his faithful discharge of the great and important trust reposed in him, for one year.

Ordered, That a grant to the President of Harvard College, and to the Commissary-General, be referred to some future time.

Ordered, That Deacon Plympton and Mr. Hobart be on the Committee to examine Captain Pote and Captain Wyer, in the room of Colonel Thompson and Captain Cutter, excused.

A Petition of Jeremiah Pote and Thomas Wyer,* praying to be heard, as soon as may be, before the Court, on the matter of charge laid against them by the Committee of Falmouth.

Afternoon.

Resolved, That there be granted and allowed, to be paid out of the publick Treasury, to the Honourable James Warren, Esq., the sum of four Shillings per diem, for every day of his attendance in the General Court, during its several Sessions, over and above his pay as a member of this House.

In Council, October 4, 1775. Read and concurred.

Resolved, That the Thanks of this House be given to the Honourable James Warren, Esq., for his faithful services as President of the late Provincial Congress.

The Committee appointed to bring in a Resolve respecting the Corporation and Overseers of Harvard College reported. Read and accepted.

Resolved, That it be recommended to the said Corporation and Overseers not to appoint any persons as Governors or Instructors, but such whose political principles they can confide in; and also to inquire into the principles of such as are now in office, and dismiss those who, by their past or present conduct, appear to be unfriendly to the liberties and privileges of the Colonies; and the Secretary is hereby directed to serve the President of Harvard College, and the Secretary of the Board of Overseers, severally, with a copy of this Resolve.

In Council, October 4, 1775: Read and concurred.

Walter Spooner, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee appointed to consider what was proper to be done with the two Vessels lately taken and carried, one into Cape-Ann, and the other into Marblehead.

Ordered, That a Message go to the honourable Board, desiring them to send down all the Papers that relate to the capture of the two Vessels aforesaid.

Ordered, That Mr. Hall, Mr. Caldwell, and Deacon Gould, be on the Committee to consider the Proceedings of the Committee of Deer-Island, in the room of Mr. Jewett, Deacon Rawson, and Mr. Gerry, excused.

Ordered, That a Message go to the honourable Board, desiring them to direct the Committee who were appointed to bring in a Militia Bill to sit forthwith.

The Report on the Petition from the Committee of Waldoborough. Read, and not accepted; and the Petitioners have leave to withdraw their Petition.

Charles Chauncy, Esq., brought down the Papers relative to the two captures; and at the same time informed the House that the honourable Board had agreed to the further assignment of Friday next, at ten o'clock, for the choice of Civil Officers.

The Report of the Committee appointed by both Houses to consider the capture and disposal of the Schooner Industry, Francis Butler, master, and her Cargo, was read, amended, and accepted, and is as follows, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee of Correspondence of the Town of Marblehead be, and they hereby are directed to return an Inventory of the said Cargo to this Court, on oath, and cause said Cargo to be sold at publick vendue, and after paying the necessary charges of taking care of said Vessel and Cargo, and the sale of the same, that they bring, or cause to be brought, the remainder of the Money that said Cargo may sell for into the publick Treasury of this Colony, taking the Treasurer's receipt for the same, there to be held till the further order of the General Assembly of this Colony; that the Money on board said Schooner, said to be the property of some inhabitants of Boston, be also delivered to the said Treasurer, taking his receipt therefor, that this Court may have opportunity * Petition of Jeremiah Pote and Thomas Wyer humbly sheweth: That they being accused, by the Committee of Inspection of the Town of Falmouth, of counteracting the Association of the late honourable Congress of this Colony, by sending dry Fish to the West-Indies, are desirous of having their cause before the General Court as soon as may be, that their conduct may appear in its true light, whereby they hope to be delivered from all suspicion of being enemies to their Country; and they beg leave to assure this honourable Court, that they think they have and still do design religiously to adhere to and pursue every measure that is or shall be ordered for the defence of American liberty. And they, as in duty bound, shall ever pray.

to determine the propriety of delivering the same, whenever the owners shall appear.

And it is further Resolved, That the Committee of Correspondence be directed to have the said Schooner appraised by three persons, under oath, and that they make return of said appraisement to this Court, as soon as may be; and that the said Schooner be delivered to the order of his Excellency General Washington, for him to improve as an armed vessel, he giving a receipt for the same, duplicate of which shall be lodged in the said Treasurer's office.

It is also further Resolved, That the men who were present aiding and assisting in the capture of said Vessel, shall be allowed, out of the publick Treasury, such sums as this Court shall hereafter determine; they proving, by a certificate from said Committee, to the satisfaction of this Court, that they were so assisting.

The Report of the Committee appointed by both Houses to consider the capture and disposal of the Brigantine Dolphin, William Wallace, master, was read, amended, and accepted, and is as follows, viz:

Resolved, That the Committee of Safety for the Town of Gloucester be, and they hereby are directed to deliver the Master of said Vessel his Wearing Apparel and Cabin Furniture, and that they also deliver the Mate and foremast hands thereof any small property or adventure they may have on board; and that the said Committee of Safety, as soon as may be, return a true Inventory of the said Cargo to this Court, under oath, and that they cause the same, except what is to be delivered as aforesaid, to be sold at publick vendue, and to bring, or to cause to be brought, the Money that the same may produce into the publick Treasury of this Colony, and take the Treasurer's receipt for the same, there to be held till some further order of the General Court.

And it is further Resolved, That the said Committee of Safety be directed to have the said Brigantine appraised by three men, under oath, and that they make return of said Appraisement to this Court, as soon as may be; and that the said Brigantine be delivered to his Excellency General Washington's order, for him to improve her as an armed vessel, for defence of the Country; he giving his receipt for the same, a duplicate of which receipt said Committee are directed to lodge in the Treasurer's office aforesaid.

And it is also Resolved, That there shall be allowed, out of the publick Treasury, to those persons who were present and assisting in the capture of said Vessel, such sums as this Court shall hereafter determine; they proving, by a certificate from said Committee or otherwise, to the satisfaction of this Court, that they were so assisting.

Wednesday, October 4, 1775.

Upon a motion, Ordered, That the Committee appointed to prepare Accounts to be laid before the Continental Congress bring in a Resolve purporting some method of applying to said Congress for a gross sum, as a reimbursement of our expenses in the American cause, till said Accounts can be properly prepared and supported.

The Committee to receive Fire-Arms reported. The Report was recommitted.

Whereas some persons, in order to break through the Association, entered into by the Continental Congress in behalf of their constituents, and to contravene the Resolutions of the late Congress of this Colony, have ordered their Vessels into the eastern parts of this Province, and the good people there have been at great expense and trouble in coming to and attending on the General Court, to take necessary orders for the disposal of such Vessels by them so taken into custody; and whereas, to ease the people of this expense, it becomes necessary, in the present exigency of publick affairs, to have a more certain inquiry made into the reason of such captures, before the General Court shall take them under consideration:

It is therefore Resolved, That Samuel Jordan, Esq., Daniel Merritt, Alexander Campbell, William Nichols, John Bayne, John Springer, Joseph Wood, James Richardson, Adam Cogswell, Thomas Stinson, John Bateman, Thomas Milliken, and Ivory Hovey, be a Committee, until the further order of this or some future General Court of this Colony, any nine of whom to be a quorum, to examine into the reason and justness of the capture of any Vessel or Vessels that have been or may be taken into custody by any Committee of Inspection, Safety, or Correspondence, of any Town, place, or District, or other person, between Penobscot and Machias, and may order any Vessel or Vessels so taken to be discharged or held, according to the nature of the charge and evidence against them; and in such cases where the said Committee shall order the detention of any Vessel taken into custody as above expressed, they are required, as soon as may be, to transmit an account of their doings to this Court, setting forth the nature of the case, with the circumstances attending it: Provided, always, That when any Committee of Inspection, Safety, or Correspondence, of any Town, District, or place, within the limits aforesaid, or any Owner or Master of any Vessel so taken and detained, shall be aggrieved at the determination of said Committee by this Court appointed, such Committee of any Town, place, or District, or Owner or Master of any such Vessel or Vessels, may bring their cause, at their expense, before the General Court of this Colony, where they shall be heard, and have the order or determination of said Committee appointed by this Court reversed, if the same shall appear to said Court to be unreasonable and unjust; to which end, the said Committee are required to furnish any Committees, or other person or persons aggrieved by their determination, in any instance, with copies of their Proceedings, the same being demanded.

Afternoon.

A Message by the Secretary, from a majority of the honourable Council, viz:

"Gentlemen of the House of Representatives:

"There is of necessity some expense incurred by the bringing of persons before the Council, who are taken in Vessels, and otherwise; and no provision is made for discharging the same. To delay the persons concerned until application can be made to the whole General Court for the paying such accounts would increase the publick expense, and injure the persons so detained. We recommend to your consideration, the making some provisions, by an application of such a sum of money as you shall judge necessary, to be applied for that purpose, without an application to the whole Court.

"W. SEVER,	B. LINCOLN,
"B. GREENLEAF,	JAMES PRESCOTT,
"W. SPOONER,	CHARLES CHAUNCY,
"J. WINTHROP,	MICHAEL FARLEY,
"B. CHADBOURN,	J. PALMER,
"JOSEPH GERRISH,	S. HOLTEN,
"JOHN WHITCOMB,	MOSES GILL.
"JEDEDIAH FOSTER,

"Council Chamber, October 4, 1775."

Read, and committed to Colonel Sayer, Captain Walker, Captain Batchelder, Captain Adams, and Mr. Sewall.

Ordered, That Captain Partridge, Colonel Sayer, and Colonel Thayer, be a Committee to consider how the Fire-Arms procured by this Colony shall be disposed of.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan and Mr. Story be added to the Committee appointed to prepare Accounts to be transmitted to the Continental Congress.

Moses Gill, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee appointed to wait on General Washington, on the representation from the Committee of Safety of Newburyport, viz:

"In Council, October 4, 1775.

"That they are informed by his Excellency, that it is his purpose to have some Armed Vessels fitted out immediately, on the pay of the Continent, for the purpose of cruising along the Sea-Coast. That he intends to furnish men for this business from the Army, as he has a sufficient number qualified therefor. He therefore declines taking the Vessel, referred to in the aforementioned representation, into the Continental service.

"B. GREENLEAF, per order."

Jedediah Foster, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee of both Houses appointed to consider the request of Captain Jacob Rogers.

Resolved, That Mr. John Kneeland be directed to apply to the Officers of the Massachusetts Forces, for a Return of the said Forces, agreeable to the Orders of General Washington, which were issued pursuant to the desire of this House.

Thursday, October 5, 1775.

The Report of the Committee of both Houses on the request of Captain Jacob Rogers was read and considered; and the question was put, whether the House will accept the same? It passed in the negative; and the Petition was dismissed.

On a motion, Resolved, That there be a further assignment for the consideration of the Petition of Isaac Backus, agent for the Baptist Churches; and three o'clock, next Friday, was assigned for that purpose accordingly.

Afternoon.

A Petition of Ivory Hovey, praying that the Committee for the Eastern Districts may be empowered to fit out certain Vessels therein mentioned, as Privateers, &c., read, and committed to Mr. Hopkins, Captain Morton, and Colonel Thompson.

The Committee appointed to consider what is proper to be done relative to the communication between the Town of Boston and the country reported. Read and accepted.

Whereas this Court has reason to apprehend that the Small-Pox prevails in the Town of Boston, whereby great danger is apprehended of spreading that distemper through the country, by the Ferry at Chelsea, being open for the transportation of the Poor and other inhabitants of the Town of Boston into the country; and whereas General Gage does not comply with the just expectations of this Court, that the said inhabitants, with their effects, should come out indiscriminately, but perverts the communication to purposes that may prove dangerous to the community:

Therefore, Resolved, That the Committee appointed to attend at Chelsea be ordered to retire, and give no further attendance, and that no boats pass and repass that ferry, from and to Boston; and whenever it shall appear to this Court that General Gage is disposed to comply with his engagement for a general liberation of the inhabitants of Boston and their effects, this Court will be ready to receive and make suitable provision for said inhabitants.

In Council, October 5, 1775: Read and concurred.

On the Memorial from the Field-Officers of the County of Barnstable,

Resolved, That the Selectmen and other persons who have billeted the Soldiers raised in the County of Barnstable, and stationed in the Counties of Barnstable and Plymouth, be allowed the Billeting Money that shall be due to them the 8th of October instant; and, also, that the sum of one hundred Pounds be allowed and paid, out of the publick Treasury, to Colonel Joseph Otis, Colonel Nathaniel Freeman, Major Enoch Hallet, and Joseph Demick, or to either of them, for the purpose of purchasing four pieces of Cannon, from four to nine pounders, and Ammunition for the same, agreeable to the within Petition; the said Colonel Joseph Otis, and the other Field-Officers, to be accountable to this Court for said sum.

Friday, October 6, 1775.

The Report on the Account and Petition of the Selectmen of Springfield was read, and not accepted; and the Petitioners had leave to withdraw their Petition.

Ordered, That Mr. Pitts, Colonel Sayer, and Deacon Cheever, with such as the honourable Board may join, be a Committee to consider a Letter from Messieurs Thomas Crandon and Nathaniel Hammond,* relative to a Brigantine

* A letter from Thomas Crandon and Nathaniel Hammond, of Dartmouth, acquainting the honourable Board of an alarm upon Naushan Island, and several Companies repaired there, to their assistance; and at the time they were there, Captain Collins, in a sloop-of-war, came down the Sound, with four brigantines and a tender. In the night, on the 29th of September, one of said brigantines got on shore upon Non-nemeset Island. After a trial, found they could not get her off. The owner of said brigantine, Mr. Bowers, with the men belonging to the sloop-of-war, took to their boat, and set out for Holmes's Hole, in order to get assistance from aboard a man-of-war. In the interim, our soldiery, having notice of her being on shore, went and took possession of her, and have brought her to Dartmouth, where they have her safe, under a strong guard.

lately taken and carried into Dartmouth; also, a Letter from the Committee of Correspondence of Dartmouth,* dated October 1st, relative to the same Brigantine, and to six Prisoners, taken at Martha's Vineyard, and brought to this Town.

In Council, October 6, 1775: Read and concurred; and Walter Spooner and Moses Gill, Esquires, are joined.

A Petition of Joseph Patrick, praying an allowance for the expense of himself and a number of other persons, in taking and securing two Vessels at the eastward, was read, and committed to Mr. Hopkins, Captain Batchelder, and Mr. Whitney.

The Committee on the Petition of Ivory Hovey, entered October 5th, reported. The Report was ordered to lie on the table till the Committee appointed to consider the expediency of fitting out a number of Armed Vessels should report, who were enjoined to sit; and Mr. Gerry and Captain Foster were appointed on said Committee, in the room of Colonel Grout and Mr. Jewett, absent.

The Committee appointed to consider what should be done with the Fire-Arms purchased for the use of this Government reported. Read and accepted.

Whereas a number of Fire-Arms have been purchased by this Colony, and no person appointed whose proper business it is to receive and take charge of the same; therefore,

Resolved, That Deacon Samuel Fisk, of Watertown, be, and he hereby is authorized and directed to receive into his possession such Fire-Arms and Accoutrements as have been or may be purchased for the use of this Colony, and give his receipt for the same; which receipt shall be lodged with the Clerk of this House, before any further allowance be made for the payment for said Arms; and said Samuel Fisk shall deliver said Fire-Arms to the order of the major part of the Council only, and shall be accountable to this or some General Court for his conduct in said office.

Ordered, That the Committee appointed to examine and receive Fire-Arms be directed to see that each Fire-Arm, purchased by this Colony, be marked with the letters C. M. B., and numbered, and that such number and mark be stamped on the barrel; and, when so marked and numbered, to be by said Committee deposited with Deacon Samuel Fisk, of Watertown.

Ordered, That Mr. Partridge inform the said Deacon Fisk that this House have appointed him to take such Fire-Arms into his custody.

Afternoon.

Jabez Fisher, Esq., brought down the Report of the Committee of both Houses, on the Petition of Jeremiah Pote and Thomas Wyer; and the Representation of the Committee of Inspection of the Town of Falmouth, relative to the said Pote and Wyer's shipping dry Fish, contrary to the Resolve of the Congress of this Colony, passed on the 12th of June last.

"In Council, October 6, 1775.

"The Committee of both Houses upon the Petition of Jeremiah Pote and Thomas Wyer, and the Representation of the Committee of Inspection of the Town of Falmouth, relating to the said Pote and Wyer's shipping dry Fish, contrary to the Resolve of the Congress of this Colony, passed on the 12th day of June last: The Committee have attended that service, and agree to report the following facts:

"We find the said Wyer arrived at Portsmouth, in New-Hampshire, in the schooner called the Favourite, about the 20th day of July last, and was restrained from proceeding from that port to the port of Falmouth, (where the vessel belonged,) by the Captain of the man-of-war then in that harbour. The owners of said vessel (the said Pote being one) were obliged to purchase the cargo in that river, and landed and sailed out of that harbour; and they gave the master of said vessel one hundred and thirty-six dollars, to lay out in dry fish, in the Isle of Shoals, if the wind would permit of his calling there after he went out of the harbour. The said Pote, in excuse for his so doing, said he never had seen said resolve of Congress, but had heard of it; but as they were in another Colony, thought that resolve could not be binding upon him; but soon after was convinced of his error, and is heartily sorry for the offence he has given in that transaction, and has since and will observe, religiously, the resolves of this Colony and the Continental Congress.

* A letter from the Committee of Correspondence of Dartmouth, acquainting the honourable Board, that, on the 30th ultimo, the militia of Martha's Vineyard made six men prisoners, belonging to the Nautilus, ship-of-war, Captain Collins commander, which men were sent to us this day, by the Committee of Correspondence at Holmes's Hole, and, upon examination, find they were actually engaged in the service of the enemies of America. Also inform you, that on the same day, a brigantine from Jamaica, laden with rum, sugar, and cotton, the property, of Mr. Henry Bowers, was retaken and sent in here, &c.

"It does not appear to your Committee that the said Wyer ever heard of said resolve of that time. Wherefore, although your Committee think the care and vigilance of the Committee of Inspection of the Town of Falmouth to be very commendable, yet inasmuch as the fish above referred to was purchased without the limits of this Colony, if purchased at all on their account, and therefore as they apprehended no violations of the resolves of Congress, and as they profess an entire disposition religiously to observe and conform to all the resolves and regulations of the Congress of the Continent, and also of the Colony, they are of opinion that the said Pote and Wyer be dismissed from any further attendance on this Court.

"Read and accepted; and thereupon

"Resolved, That the said Pote and Wyer be dismissed from any further attendance on this Court."

Read and concurred.

Ordered, That a Message go to the honourable Board, to desire them to inquire of the Committee appointed to bring in a Militia Bill, if they were ready to report.

Ordered, That Captain Cutter be on the Committee to consider the expediency of fitting out Armed Vessels, in the room of Mr. Sullivan.

The Secretary laid upon the table two Letters from his Excellency General Washington, one dated August 30, relative to a demand for Wood, the other of this date, relative to the same article; and also to some irregularities at Winnisimit Ferry, and the necessity of appropriating the houses in and about Cambridge as Barracks for the Troops; and informed the House that it was the desire of the honourable Council that they might be immediately taken into consideration. They were accordingly read, and committed to Major Learned, Colonel Sayer, Colonel Thayer, and Major Fuller, with such as the honourable Board may join.

In Council, October 7, 1775: Read and concurred; and Benjamin Greenleaf, Walter Spooner, and Joseph Gerrish, Esquires, are joined.

Ordered, That the Memorial and Address of Isaac Backus, in behalf of the Baptist Churches, be committed to Mr. Hopkins, Mr. Wheeler, Mr. Wood, Captain Morton, Mr. Hendrick, Mr. Mills, and Doctor Fletcher.

The Report of the Committee appointed to repair to Windsor, to obtain what knowledge they could in the manufactory of Saltpetre,* was read, and Tuesday next, at

* The Committee who were appointed by this honourable Assembly to carry on the manufacture of saltpetre, for three months from the first day of September, 1775, having been ordered by this honourable House, on the 30th day of September ultimo, to repair to Windsor, in Connecticut, in order to acquire further knowledge in that important manufacture, the subscriber, as Chairman of that Committee, begs leave to report the following state of facts, viz: That as Captain Bowman, one of said Committee, was at Newburyport, did not think it expedient to wait until he could be sent for from so great a distance, but immediately set out for Windsor, by the way of Bolton, in order to consult Deacon Baker, another of said Committee, who refused to accompany me, alleging that one could do the business effectually, and that his going would only put the Colony to unnecessary charge. From thence I proceeded on my way with all expedition for Windsor; but, luckily, in passing through Enfield, a Town adjoining to Windsor, I lit on a saltpetre work, where the business had been carried on with success by Messrs. Blakerlige and Wilson. They had erected a house for that purpose, about thirty by twenty feet square. They had three vats, containing about forty-five bushels each. They had also two potash kettles, conveniently set in brick, for boiling. They had just finished a very successful process, and showed me a vessel of very fine saltpetre crystals, containing twenty-seven pounds weight, which they had obtained at one boiling. They appeared like gentlemen truly patriotic; and their late success inspired them with such generosity that they immediately told me they would freely communicate to me all the knowledge they had acquired in this art; which they did, as follows, viz: They told me that they had been endeavouring to make saltpetre, by different processes, for more than a month, with very ordinary success, not having been able, from a great number of processes, to obtain but about twenty weight in the whole; and after entirely failing three o'clock, was assigned to take the same into consideration.

Resolved, That the Committee last mentioned be directed to make trial in this Town of the process mentioned in said Report.

Resolved, That Joseph Greenleaf, Esq., with such other person as he may choose, be, and hereby is appointed to repair immediately to Brookfield, to make experiment of a certain earth there, said to be impregnated with a matter proper for the production of Sulphur.

Ordered, That Captain Batchelder and Major Smith be appointed on the Committee to bring in a Militia Bill, in the room of Colonel Godfrey and Colonel Porter, absent.

of success, without knowing the cause, were about to give over; but hearing that one Mr. Kibbe, of Windsor, Goshen, had discovered a successful method of making saltpetre, they immediately applied to him for instructions, who acquainted them that he had, by repeated experiments, found out a method by which he could make fifteen or sixteen weight of saltpetre in a day, but utterly refused to give them any information until they had given him a fee of four Pounds, lawful money. Upon which he told them as follows, viz: That saltpetre, he found, might be extracted from almost any earth in some quantity. He had tried common earth, taken up directly from the ground, which had never been under any cover, and from his vat full, (containing between fifty and sixty bushels,) he had made six pounds of good saltpetre; but the best earth he could find was from under old buildings, standing on pretty high land, of a light, sandy, or loamy nature. In using this earth, he found the light loose dirt on the surface contained the largest proportion of nitre; but when he got below this, the lower he dug the better it yielded, as he had gone, which was about three feet deep. With this earth he filled his vat, as he had but one, leaving it hollow on the top. He then sprinkled on the earth, in the vat, lie, drawn from common ashes, in the proportion of about a pint to a bushel of earth. He then poured on water, sufficient to wet the earth, about milk-warm. He then poured on cold water until he had added about as much as there was of the earth, letting it run through the earth as soon as it would; if the first running was foul, he returned it on to the earth until it came through perfectly clear. He continued to save the lie, for boiling, as long as it came through clear; but as soon as it began to change to a yellow or brown colour, he put all that came through after that into his next vat of earth, alleging, very justly, that the nitre, being easily dissolved by water, came through first, and that when the colour changed, the unctuous, bituminous parts of the earth were coming through, which, though they contained some nitre, yet would so clog and entangle the nitrous salts, as to prevent their freely shooting into crystals. When he had collected a sufficient quantity of lie to fill his two kettles, he began to boil; and as the lie consumed in the kettles, he constantly filled the kettle he intended to boil off in with hot liquor, out of the other kettle, and filled that other kettle with cold lie from the vats, observing carefully, through the whole boiling, to skim off what arose to the top of the boiling liquor; which scum he saved to put into his next vat of earth. When he had got all the liquor he designed for one boiling, into one kettle, and had reduced it to about double or treble the quantity he expected to reduce it to for crystallizing, he poured it into a tub, previously fixed for the purpose, by being let nearly on a level, being perforated, and a tap fixed within about an inch of the bottom. After letting it stand in this tub a sufficient time for all the gross matter to settle to the bottom, he drew it off by the abovementioned tap, which left the sediment in the bottom of the tub, below the tap. He then returned it into his kettle, and boiled it gently, throwing in at this time a small quantity of alum, viz: about two spoonfuls into a quantity of liquor, from which he expected fifteen pounds of nitre. This would occasion it to throw up the impurities, plentifully, to the surface of the boiling liquor, which he carefully skimmed off, until by setting a little of the liquor in a cool place, in a spoon, he found it begin to shoot into crystals. He then dipped it out of the kettle into the abovementioned perforated tub, being clean washed. Here he let it stand long enough for the gross matter again to subside, taking care, however, to draw it off into his coolers before it grew so cold as to crystallize in the tub. For crystallizing vessels, he preferred wooden trays to any other, into which he now drew his liquor, and set it in a cool place, where, in about twelve hours, it would be sufficiently crystallized. He then carefully drained off the liquor from the crystals, and boiled it again, until he found it would again crystallize. He then poured it into his tub, in order for the sediment to subside as before, and then drew it off and set it to crystallize. This he repeated twice after the first crystallizing, and the remaining liquor he put into his next vat of earth. His method of refining was exactly similar to that recommended from Virginia, published in the pamphlet ordered by the Continental Congress.

By exactly following these directions, these gentlemen informed me they had produced the fine crop of crystals I there saw; and by computing from the success they had there had, and even making some allowance, they should be able (in that works, consisting of three vats, holding about forty-five bushels each, and two potash kettles to boil in) to make fifty weight a week.

Having got this intelligence from these gentlemen, I went to visit Mr. Kibbe, who appeared very reserved on the subject; but he told me that he had honestly told these gentlemen all he knew at that time, and that the knowledge I had got in the business was sufficient to carry it on with success; but that he had, in the course of his experiments, since he informed them, made some very useful, advantageous discoveries; but as he had obtained his knowledge by great expense of time, and painful assiduity, he did not think it his duty to give it away; but as their Assembly was to sit soon, he intended to make them an offer of his skill, on reasonable terms, which, if they complied with, no doubt the whole would be soon published. He told me, positively, that he could make fifteen pounds a day, and confirmed the above accounts those gentlemen had given me, respecting the nitrous qualities of the earth, from his own experience.

WILLIAM WHITTING.

Saturday, October 7, 1775.

Samuel Holten, Esq., brought down the Report of a Committee of both Houses on the Petition of Thomas Crandon and Nathaniel Hammond; and also on the application made by the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Dartmouth, viz:

"The Committee of both Houses, appointed on the Petition of Thomas Crandon and Nathaniel Hammond, and also on the application made by the Committee of Correspondence for the Town of Dartmouth, have attended that service, and beg leave to report as their opinion, that four of the prisoners named therein, viz: Edward Webb, Thomas Newman, Charles Clarke, and John Wooden, be forthwith sent to Taunton Jail, in this Colony, there to be confined until the further order of this Court; and the other two appearing to be impressed men, (viz: Benjamin Bowers and John Burn,) therefore report that they be discharged. Also report, that the said Brigantine, mentioned by said Committee, said to be the property of Henry Bowers and Henry Bowers, Jun., be forthwith discharged, and delivered to the said Bowerses, or their orders.

"In Council: Read and accepted; and thereupon

"Resolved, That the said Edward Webb, Thomas Newman, Charles Clarke, and John Wooden, be forthwith sent to Taunton Jail, in this Colony, there to be confined until the further order of this Court; and that the said Benjamin Bowers and John Burn be forthwith discharged.

"And it is further Resolved, That the said Brigantine be forthwith discharged, and delivered over to Messrs. Henry Bowers and Henry Bowers, Jun., who are the rightful owners thereof."

Read and concurred.

Charles Chauncy, Esquire, brought down a Petition of James Hayward, of Braintree, praying this Court to suspend the proceedings of the Committee of Correspondence of said Town, with respect to the Estate of the late John Borland, Esq., until he can have a hearing thereupon before this Court, with the following vote of Council thereon:

"In Council, October 6, 1775.

"Read, and Ordered, That the Petitioner serve the Committee of Correspondence with a copy of this Petition and Order; that they show cause to this Court, if any they have, on Thursday, the 12th inst., why the prayer thereof should not be granted; and that they stay all further proceedings, in regard to the said Estate, in the mean time."

Read and concurred.

Monday, October 9, 1775.

Resolved, That four o'clock, in the afternoon, be assigned for the consideration of a Letter to the Continental Congress, and an Account reported by the Committee to prepare Accounts, &c.

Ordered, That Mr. Sullivan prepare an Address to the majority of the honourable Council relative to an information received by this House, of thirteen Ships and two other Vessels arrived at Long-Island, near Penobscot.

